IN THE AFTERNOON, the President reacted sharply to the report that he had allegedly offered Artemio Lobrin, Nationalist-Citizens Party candidate for Congress in Batangas, ₱100,000 to withdraw his protest against Rep. Jose M. Laurel IV.

The President said the report is a “brazen lie.”

He immediately directed Press Secretary Jose C. Nable to deny the report.

The President also received Charles Henderson of the Australian Pacific Shipping Company on the possibility of investing in the economic development of the country.

Henderson was accompanied by Fernando Campos, President Garcia’s son-in-law.

President Garcia likewise received Ambassador Jose Ingles, who returned recently from his station in West Germany. Ingles reported to the President upon his arrival.

Gov. Triviño of Camarines Sur also accompanied to the President the Philippine delegation to the Food and Agriculture Organization international conference on coconut production.

The delegation is composed of Simeon Bomidiano, Braulo Alfaro, Sisemundo Barreto, and Godofredo Reyes, Jr.

The delegation saw the President for final instructions before leaving shortly.

August 14.—THIS morning, the President accepted the resignations of three members of the board of pardons and parole in the course of his conference with Justice Secretary Alejo Mabahag, who had recommended acceptance of the resignations. The three board members are— Mrs. Pilar Hidalgo-Lim, Dr. Leopoldo Pardo, and Dean Jose Espiritu.

Rev. Fr. Casimiro Alvarez, another board member, did not submit any resignation papers. Under the law, the secretary of justice is ex officio chairman of the board. The President today also accepted the resignation of Lt. Col. Francisco Paraan, chief of police of Baguio City, who is running for mayor of that city. President Garcia signed this morning the appointments of Santiago A. Fonacier, Ardeliza Sucaldito, and Dr. Julian Pilares as members of the Board of Pardons and Parole.

Fonacier is former senator, Sucaldito is an active law practitioner and woman civic leader, while Pilares is former director of hospitals of the Department of Health. They replaced Mrs. Pilar Hidalgo-Lim, Dr. Leopoldo Pardo, and Dean Jose Espiritu whose resignations had been accepted by the President.

The President commended the Presidential Backpay Committee for having succeeded in eliminating fixers and middlemen in the payment of backpay claims by the backpay division of the national treasury.

In a conference with the committee this noon, the President said that he had not heard any complaint about fixers or middlemen mulcting backpay claimants since the committee had been constituted and started working with the backpay division months ago.

The committee is composed of Pedro Aguilar of the General Auditing Office, as chairman, and Rodolfo Ocampo of the Presidential Committee on Administration Performance Efficiency and Ruben Castro of the Budget Commission, as members.

The committee attributed their success in the elimination of fixers and middlemen to their having tried faithfully to enforce the President's policies regarding payment of backpay claims.

During his conference with the Presidential Backpay Committee this noon, the Chief Executive instructed the body to expedite action on the application of sick or otherwise incapacitated backpay claimants.

The President also directed the committee to pay some attention to cases, where negotiable certificates of indebtedness had been used for the purchase of lots and houses. He said that backpay holders should be given all the opportunity to own their houses and lots in line with the home-for-the-homeless and land-for-the-landless policy of his administration.

The President instructed the committee to look into whether the backpay holders had entered into contracts with parties from whom they had acquired their homes and lots before redeeming their certificates of indebtedness. This is to protect the interest of the backpay holders.

To update the records in the backpay division, Chairman Aguilar of the committee recommended the recall of personnel previously detailed at the division but who had recently been withdrawn by their respective offices.

Other callers of the President this morning included Commerce Undersecretary Perfecto Laguio, who reported on his recent trip abroad, Ambassador Eduardo Quintero, and Ramon Gaviola, Jr., administrator of the Social Security System.

PRESIDENT Garcia this afternoon said he will press for a holding of a Nacionalista convention in Manila with 3,164 delegates to choose the official city mayoralty and vice-mayoralty candidates. The President made the announcement at his regular press conference.

The President said he would call Senate President Eulogio Rodriguez shortly to a conference to explain, his thinking on the matter.

In favoring a convention with more than 3,000 delegates, the President said that the meeting “is just a continuation of the convention recently held to select the 20 official NP candidates for the city council.”

He said the decision of the NP executive committee reducing the number of delegates should be enforced in the next elections.

The President’s decision is expected to stir up another controversy between the two mayoralty aspirants for the NP nomination; namely, Mayor Arsenio H. Lacson and Vice Mayor Jesus Marcos Rocas.

The President’s stand coincides with that of Rocas, who has been asking that the number of delegates be restored to its original membership of 3,164.

Rocas had previously agitated for a convention in Manila to choose the NP mayoralty candidate. However, after the NP executive committee pared down the number of the delegates to 587, the Vice-Mayor moved for a “free zone”.

Rocas charged that all his delegates were scratched from the list and that he could not win the nomination with the 587 delegates.

When contacted for comment last night on the President’s decision, Lacson said: “I am not in the least interested to know what Garcia does or will do. I have already started my own campaign.”

At the press conference this afternoon the President:

1. Said he would endorse to the NP executive committee the resolution recalcitrant NP solons who had been urging the inclusion of Rep. Vicente Peralta in the senatorial ticket;
2. Claimed that Sen. Claro M. Recto, president of the Nationalista Citizens Party, may or may not campaign for the NP senate slate;
3. Stated that the foreign office is looking into the report that 43 naturalized Chinese are undergoing military training in Nationalist China;
4. Lashed at Vice-President Macapagal, Liberal Party president, for advertising the Administration of “shamelessly” abetting corruption;
5. Frowned upon intervention of the church in politics;
6. Said that the foreign office is at present conducting negotiations for reconsideration of the decision of the U.S. Government rejecting 15 of the Philippine omnibus claims and collecting the 25 per cent margin in the surplus of U.S. goods to the Philippines; and
7. Denied the adoption of “mailed fist” policy in dealing with the native of criminality in Ilocos Sur.

August 15.—PRESIDENT Garcia reiterated today his determination to see to it that elections this year are peaceful and orderly Ilocos Sur as well as in other parts of the country.

In the course of a half-hour conference with Brig. Gen. Isagani V. Ocampo, chief of the Constabulary, at his Bohol Avenue residence in Quezon early this morning, the President instructed the defense department to take possible measures to insure peace in the violence-torn province of Ilocos Sur.

Gen. Campo called on the President to render a verbal report following return yesterday afternoon from a province-wide tour of Ilocos Sur the purpose of determining the root cause of lawlessness recently sweeping the province.

The PC chief reported that the situation in Ilocos Sur had considerably ceased. He attributed the improved situation to the presence of troops which, he said, had a tranquilizing effect upon the people. He said that the campaign currently being waged to collect loose firearms is proceeding smoothly all over the province.

After the conference, the President received Sen. Pedro Sabido, who fed him on the latest political developments in the Bicol regions. The conference held while the President was having breakfast at 10 a.m. lasted about an hour.

The Chief Executive did not receive any other caller. He spent most of time at his private study going over some papers he had brought over from Malacañang.

On duty with him at his residence today were Lt. Melchor Fronda, naval aide, and Maj. Agerico Palaypay, appointment secretary. The President took time out to congratulate his two aides on learning that they were more than 500 Armed Forces officers who had recently been promoted.

Fronda is now lieutenant-commander in the Navy while Palaypay, whose rank is temporary major, has been made permanent. Other officers detailed with Malacañang included in the promotion list of 500 officers were Maj. Ciriaco Hocson, aide to the First Lady, whose temporary rank had also been made permanent; Capt. Abdinago Ortiz, chief the Presidential Security Unit, who was raised to major; and Lieuts. Carlos Crisostomo and Eustaquio Meim, junior military aides, who were made captains.

In the evening, the President conferred with Speaker Protempore Constancio Castañeda, Rep. Jose J. Roy, Gov. Arsenio Lugay of Tarlac, and Mayor Benigno Aquino, Jr., of Concepcion. The conferees discussed Tarlac politics.

The President today appointed Justice Jose Gutierrez David associate justice of the Supreme Court and Justice Jose Ma. Paredes, as presiding justice of the Court of Appeals.

Justice David replaces Justice Alex Reyes, retired, in the Supreme Court while Justice Paredes, who' is the ranking member among all the associate justices in the Court of Appeals, took the place of Justice David as presiding justice of the Court.

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

August 16.—PRESIDENT Garcia spent the day at his Bohol Avenue residence in Quezon City today poring over reports submitted to him for consideration, including the proposal to let the private sector participate in, or take over, the establishment of an integrated steel industry in the Philippines.

Earlier this morning, President and Mrs. Garcia heard mass celebrated before an improvised altar in their residence. After breakfast, the President perused the morning newspapers and then retired to his study to work on some papers he had brought over from Malacañang.

In the late afternoon, the President was prevailed upon to take a break and relax. Inclement weather and wet grounds kept him indoors; so he spent his rest period conversing informally with Palace aides until it was almost time for dinner.

Linda and Fernando Campos, the President's daughter and son-in-law, arrived shortly before dinner and joined the President and Mrs. Garcia at supper.

After Linda and Nanding had left to return to Manila, President Garcia closeted himself in his library and worked until late in the evening on the final draft of the speech he will deliver on the 81st birthday anniversary celebration of the late President Manuel L. The President expressed satisfaction with the general peace and order situation in the country following receipt today of a consolidated report on police activities all over the nation.

The report was submitted by Col. Crisanto V. Alba, presidential adviser on police matters, and was compiled from the monthly narrative reports received from chiefs of police throughout the country.

Governors of these provinces were requested by Alba to remind their chiefs of police to exert more efforts to improve the solution of cases, the enforcement of laws and regulations, and the maintenance of peace and order in their respective jurisdictions.

Executives of chartered cities and provinces that obtained a percentage; rating of 90 per cent and above in the solution of cases were given letters of commendation by Assistant Executive Secretary Sofronio C. Quimson.

The President sounded the call for national unity after a two-hour long military and civic parade, witnessed by members of the diplomatic corps members of the executive, judiciary, and legislative branches of the government, civic leaders and high Filipino and American officers at the grandstand, and by a teeming crowd along Epifanio de los Santos Avenue (formerly Highway 54).

President Garcia stated that the government is zealously guarding the freedom that President Quezon labored for a life-time.

However, he pointed out that to make the people truly free, the economy of the country must be substantially in the hands of Filipinos. He added that the present economic orientation adopted by the Administration is towards wider participation of Filipinos in the national economy.

August 20.—PRESIDENT Garcia today directed the People's Homesite and Housing Corporation to place the selling prices of houses and lots in its various housing projects within the reach of their low-salaried occupants.

During the conference with Gov. Bernardo Torres, PHHC general manager and board chairman, the President expressed concern over persistent reports that the government housing firm was contemplating to charge amounts considerably higher than those currently being paid by tenants.

The President ordered the PHHC manager to look into these reports and to submit a complete report as soon as possible. He reiterated the policy of his administration to help low-salaried employees to acquire and own their own homes on easy pay plans.

Gov. Torres called at the President's Bohol Avenue residence in Quezon City this morning to report on his recent trip to Tokyo. He had just arrived from an observation tour of the low-cost housing program in Japan. He informed the Chief Executive that the PHHC board was studying the proposed sale of the firm's eight-hectare lot in Paranaque to low-salaried employees of the Civil Aeronautics Administration and the Philippine Air Lines.

Sen. Eulogio Balao also called to receive final instructions before leaving for Minneapolis, Minnesota, USA, to attend the three-day convention of American veterans from August 24 to 27.

The President had appointed Balao to represent the Filipino veterans at the convention upon the invitation sent through the Chief Executive by the American Legion.

August 21.—PRESIDENT Garcia conferred with officials of the Department of Justice headed by Justice Secretary Alejo Mabanag in Malacañang this morning on proposed appointments to fill vacancies in the judiciary.

Secretary Mabanag also presented a request for the release of additional funds to cover operational expenses of the department.

Present at the conference aside from the justice secretary were Undersecretary Enrique Fernandez, Solicitor General Edilberto Barot, Judge Eulagio Pichay, and Leon Jayme, financial officer of the department.

At another conference with members of the executive committee of the Philippine Amateur Athletic Federation (PAAF) led by PAAF President Antonio de las Alas, President Garcia deferred action on the proposed presidential proclamation awarding to the PAAF a 42-hectare lot in Quezon City for the future site of a national stadium.

The President said he did not wish the lot, which is a part of the Quezon Memorial Park, to be excluded from the park.

He appointed a committee of three composed of Judge Salvador Esguerra, chairman, and Education Secretary Jose Romero and former Education Secretary Manuel Lim, members, to draft a new proclamation which would give the organization the use of the property, including its use for raising funds, the construction of the proposed national stadium, but will leave it as part of the Quezon Memorial Park.

The youngsters are scholars of the American Field Services, a private non-profit organization, and had just completed a two-month stay with Filipino families in different parts of the Philippines and had also studied in high schools near their foster homes.

Near the end of the courtesy call, President Garcia gladly granted the request of Katherine. Knowles Campbell to autograph a snapshot she had taken of the town hall in Talibon, Bohol, the President's hometown.

Recognizing the picture, the President asked of Miss Campbell, "How in the world did you happen to go to that remote hometown of mine?"

The American scholars and the places they stayed at during their sojourn in the Philippines are Katherine Knowles Campbell of Scottsbluff, Nebraska—Mabolo, Cebu; Patricia Ann Graham of Phoenix, Ariz.—Roxas City; Betty O'Neill of New Bedford, Mass.—Batangas, Batangas; Judy Boeschen of Milwaukee, Oregon—Tarlac, Tarlac; Bonnie Rowan of South Milwaukee, Wisconsin—Bacolod City; Janet Trowbridge of Wayzata, Minn.—La Carlota, Negros Occidental; Ted Fogliani of Laguna Beach, Calif.—Batangas, Batangas; Bob Kane of Bartlesville, Okla.—Tarlac, Tarlac; and Richard Bennett of Oakdale, Calif.—Tanjay, Negros Oriental.

The President also received a large delegation from Bataan led by Gov. Emilio Naval, who called to pledge their loyalty and support to the Administration.

Other presidential callers this morning were Gen. Emilio Aguinaldo and Don Ramon Fernandez, Justice Jose Gutierrez David, and Justice Jose Ma. Paredes.

THE President today said he was in favor of a 3,000-delegate convention in Manila.

At his regular press conference this afternoon, the President said his position for a convention with all 3,176 delegates to choose the NP candidate for mayor and vice-mayor “still stands.”

He told newsmen at the press conference that he would take up this matter at his scheduled meeting with Senate President Eulogio Rodriguez concurrently NP president, and Speaker Daniel Z. Romualdez.

The President had invited Rodriguez and Romualdez to a merienda conference Sunday to break the deadlock for the eighth senate berth in the NP ticket at his private residence on Bohol Avenue, Quezon City.

At the same time, the President lampooned Mayor Arsenio H. Lacson, who had allegedly assailed the Administration in his campaign speeches.

“That is without parallel in political history,” the President remarked upon being informed of Lacson’s attacks against the Administration.

The President pointed out that the city mayor is a Nacionalista and a member of the NP executive committee and should help build” up rather than destroy the party.

At the press conference the President also:

1. Refused to commit himself on the tug-of-war between former Chairman Alfredo Montelibano of the National Economic Council and Assistant Executive Secretary Sofronio Quimson for the eighth berth in the NP senatorial ticket;
2. Reiterated his stand to bring down the cost of units of the People’s Homesite and Housing Corporation within a reasonable level;
3. Expressed the belief that five or six NP Senate candidates are sure of winning in the November elections;
4. Flayed Vice-President Macapagal and former Commissioner of Customs Manuel P. Manahari for their charges against the Administration;
5. Hoped that the coalition between the Nacionalista and the Nationalist-Citizens Parties will go down from the national level to the provincial and grassroots level; and

6. Said that diplomatic negotiations for a reconsideration of the United States decision on an increased dollar value in relation to the peso in the, payment of surplus goods are still underway.

THIS evening the President was informed by a visiting Japanese solon that Japan considers the Philippines as a strong force in the fight against communism in the Far East.

The statement was made by Rep. Aikawa Katsuroku, who arrived yesterday in the course of a tour of Asian countries. He was accompanied by Rep. Shiro Watabi, Ambassador Morio Yukawa, and Toriyoshi Kawaguchi, director of the third section of the Legislative Bureau of the Japanese Diet.

Rep. Aikawa, a former secretary of the Welfare Ministry, urged a promotion of the cultural and trade relations between the Philippines and Japan.

The Japanese solon stated that the state visit of President Garcia to Japan has promoted “tremendously” the friendship ties between the two countries.

Earlier this evening, the President administered the oath of office to Simeon M. Gopengco as government corporate counsel in the presence of members of the Cabinet, the judiciary, heads of government owned corporations, and relatives and friends.

The new government corporate counsel, who holds the rank of an undersecretary, was the former secretary of Justice Sabino Padilla of the Supreme Court. A law graduate of the Ateneo de Manila, Gopengco was appointed chairman of the committee that investigated the anomalies in the Import Control Commission in 1954.

Until his appointment as government corporate counsel, Gopengco was the first assistant government corporate counsel.

The new position was created by law passed during the last regular session of Congress. The position was formerly held ex officio by the Solicitor General.

August 22.—THIS morning President Garcia ordered the review of leases on public lands held by absentee claimants for, possible revocation after a three-hour conference at his residence on Bohol Avenue, Quezon City, with officials of the Presidential Committee on Administration Performance Efficiency on the squatter, problem in Davao.

The President said he was inclined to revoke the leases and award titles to the disputed lands to squatters living in the area and actually working on the land.

He expressed the opinion that land should be made use of, and spoke against nominal claimants possessing legal titles to public lands but who are sleeping on their obligations or merely holding, on to their rights to the land for purposes of speculation.

The conference was called in view of numerous complaints received by the PCAPE from squatters in Davao province who are being forcibly ejected by lease holders from land they had cleared and developed.

Present at the conference were Justice Buenaventura Ocampo, PCAPE chairman; Maximo Maceren, vice-chairman; J. Gualberto Planas, chief of the public affairs division; and Rodolfo V. Ocampo, private secretary to the chairman.

Justice Ocampo also gave a verbal report to the President on the accomplishments of the presidential committee during the last fiscal year.

After the meeting broke up at 12:30 p.m., President Garcia had lunch. Then he retired to his room to resume work on a draft of the speech he would deliver tonight before the Lions International in the Winter Garden of the Manila Hotel.

The President stayed at his Bohol Avenue residence the whole day where he received political leaders who took up with the Chief Executive the political problems confronting their respective areas.

The unidentified political leaders also discussed the current tug-of-war between former Chairman Alfredo Montelibano of the National Economic Council and Assistant Executive Secretary Sofronio Quimson for the eighth berth in the NP ticket.

THIS evening the President motored to the Winter Garden of the Manila Hotel, where he fired the opening salvo of his political campaign for the Nacionalista Party candidates in the coming November elections. His move was rather unexpected as the NP Senate ticket had not yet been officially formed.

The President, in a fighting mood, reiterated his readiness to pitch into the coming political campaign. He had told newsmen at his regular press conference yesterday that he would participate in the political campaign as titular head of the Nacionalista Party.

President Garcia said his participation in the campaign was necessary, as he was sure of only “five or six” of the NP bets would win. However, he did not mention the candidates whom he did not expect to win in the mid-term senatorial elections.

President's Week in Review: August 23-29, 1959

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

August 23.—THIS morning, the President started the day by hearing mass at an improvised altar in his Quezon City residence.

After breakfast, the President went over the morning papers and then retired to his study to work on two speeches he will deliver Wednesday, one before the Seventh Annual Postwar Convention of Philippine Sugar Technologists, and the other on the occasion of the awarding of the Legion of Merit by the Marquez Veterans Legion (Folsom's Division).

After his lunch, the President retired to his bedroom to rest. He woke up shortly to prepare for his crucial meeting with Rodriguez and Romualdez.

This afternoon, the President met with top Nacionalista leaders at a crucial conference in his private residence on Bohol Avenue, Quezon City, to break the deadlock over the eighth Senate berth in the NP ticket between Alfredo Montelibano former chairman of the National Economic Council, and Assistant Executive Secretary Sofronio Quimson.

The "Big Three" meeting was called, as the NP executive committee had failed twice to break the deadlock in order to give room for Senator Lorenzo M. Tañada, Nationalist-Citizens candidate, in the NP ticket.

The meeting was held inside the President's residence as a slight drizzle fell preventing their meeting outside,

The meeting started at 5:30 o'clock this afternoon, a few hours after the Speaker had returned from a flying trip to Samar.

Senate President Rodriguez immediately opened the conference with a reiteration of his support for Quimson.

Up to early hours this evening, the President was still in conference with Rodriguez and Romualdez.

The merienda meeting had gone through dinner, with the three top leaders of the party still tossing their arguments for and against the two aspirants.

August 24.—THE President conferred this morning with Speaker Protempore Constancio Castañeda, secretary general of the Nacionalista Party, who briefed him on preliminary plans to be adopted for a more effective national political campaign.

During the hour-long conference, the Chief Executive took up with the NP secretary general the basic issues to be exploited and the policies to be pursued during the campaign.

After the conference the President received Lt. Gen. Manuel F. Cabal, AFP chief of staff, who reported on his routine inspection of Army and Constabulary installations in the country, as well as the coordinated effort of the PAF-DANR team currently conducting the campaign against locust and rat infestation in the different provinces of Mindanao.

Cabal reported that the campaign against locust and rat infestation is progressing effectively with four PAF spray planes assigned with the team, but suggested the procurement of additional insecticides and other chemicals needed to enable them to cover a wider area.

On the peace and order situation, General Cabal said that the five provinces he had inspected, namely, Misamis Occidental, Lanao del Norte, Lanao del Sur, Cotabato, and Davao, are generally good.

The President received very few callers at his Bohol Avenue residence in Quezon City this morning. He spent most of his time going over some papers he had sent for from Malacañang.

President Garcia today sent a message of congratulations to Prime Minister Tengku Abdul Rahman Putra of the Federation of Malaya, who recently took his oath of office following his reelection to the premiership of his country.

“On behalf of the Filipino people and of myself, I wish to convey to Your Excellency cordial greetings and warmest felicitations on your inauguration as Prime Minister of the Federation of Malaya,” the President said in his message.

“Your reelection to your high office is an endorsement of your lead-ship in working for the welfare of your people and in helping promote closer cultural and economic ties with the countries of Southeast Asia,” he added.

The President concluded: “Please accept my most sincere wishes for your continued success in all your endeavors.”

THIS evening the President took a hand again at a gubernatorial conflict, this time, in Sorsogon, as he conferred with 16 mayors of the province to decide the official candidate for provincial executive of the Nationalists party.

The delegation was accompanied by Reps. Vicente Peralta and Salvador Encinas of Sorsogon.

The delegation claimed that they could not resolve the deadlock between incumbent Gov. Juan Fajardo and Henry Fajardo.

The President decide to take a straw vote and after the ballots were counted Fajardo obtained eight while Fajardo got six. Two votes were not counted, one being without any candidate while the other voted for another aspirant.

With the straw votes of the mayors, the NP would proclaim Fajardo as its official candidate for governor of Sorsogon. Fajardo may run as a rebel candidate, it was learned.

August 25.—PRESIDENT Garcia today solved the gubernatorial rivalry in Sorsogon between incumbent Gov. Juan Fajardo and Henry Fajardo by prevailing upon the latter to withdraw from the race in order to preserve party unity in the province.

The President summoned both the contending parties, together with Reps. Salvador Encinas and Vicente Peralta, to a conference in Malacañang. The conferees agreed to support Gov. Fajardo.

It was understood that the conferees also agreed to give Gov. Fajardo a chance to “continue his good work.” The Sorsogon politicians will soon announce the other NP candidates for members of the provincial, board.

After the conference, President Garcia received members of Congress and provincial governors in his Malacañang study room.

They called to brief him on political developments in their respective localities and sought financial aid for various public works projects.

The callers included Reps. Jose Leido of Mindoro Oriental, Fausto Dugenio of Misamis Oriental, Guillermo Sanchez of Agusan, Agaton Ursua of Camarines Sur, Faustino Tobia and Godofredo Reyes of Ilocos Sur, accompanied by Mayor Nicolas Bello of Santa, Numeriano Babao of Batangas, Emilio Cortez of Pampanga, and Ramon Bagatsing of Manila.

Rep. Salipada Pendatun of Cotabato asked the President to push through the former's plan to reclaim the Liguasan marsh as a means of effectively eliminating the breeding places of rats and locust in his province.

The President received callers from 9:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m.

The President today proclaimed Monday, August 31, a special holiday in Zambales and Cebu City in commemoration of the 52nd birthday anniversary of the late President Ramon Magsaysay.

August 26.—PRESIDENT Garcia was kept busy this morning by two speaking engagements and a conference with top executives of the Philippine Air Lines and the Philippine National Bank.

At 10 a.m., the President accompanied by Agriculture Secretary Juan de G. Rodriguez went to the Winter Garden of the Manila Hotel to speak before the delegates to the 7th Postwar Annual Convention of the Philippine Sugar Technologists. (See Historical Papers and Documents, pp.—, for full text of the President's speech.)

After speaking before the sugar technologists, the President went to the presidential suite in the Manila Hotel for a brief rest.

Then at midday, the President went to the Fiesta Pavilion of the Manila Hotel to speak again before "fellow guerrilleros" from the Marquez Veterans (Folson's Division).

Before his speech, the President was awarded the Legion of Merit medal by Col. Zacarias M. Marquez, over-all commander of the guerrilla unit.

Present at the affair were Senate President Eulogio Rodriguez; Sens. Pacita Madrigal-Gonzalez, Lorenzo Tañada, and Pedro Sabido; Reps. Numeriano Babao of Batangas, Wenceslao R. Lagumbay of Laguna, Godofredo Reyes of Ilocos Sur, and Augusto Francisco of Manila; Gen. M. S. Torralba, chairman of the Veterans Claims Commission; and ranking officers of the Marquez Veterans Legion.

The President was roundly applauded when in his introductory remarks he spoke extemporaneously in Tagalog. In delivering his speech he was also interrupted several times when he spoke of the concern of his administration for the welfare of the guerrillas. (See Historical Papers and Documents, pp.—, for full text of the President's speech.)

During the occasion, certificates of merit were awarded to Senate President Rodriguez; Foreign Affairs Secretary Felixberto Serrano; Senators Tañada, Sabido, and Gonzalez; and Reps. Francisco, Babao, Lagumbay, and Reyes.

The President, looking tired, returned to Malacañang together with his aides about 2 p.m.

After breakfast, the President conferred with Don Andres Soriano, Daniel Me. Gomez, top officials of the Philippine Air Lines, and Daniel Z. Romualdez, president of the Philippine National Bank, on the re-establishment of the international flights of the Philippine Air Lines in time for the advent of the jet age.

THE Cabinet this evening decided to sell all houses and lots in the "different projects of the People's Homesite and Housing Corporation "at cost" to be able to retrieve the capital invested in these projects.

At the same time, the Cabinet also approved the PHHC proposal to sell other lots which it had purchased that are "not immediately needed by the agency."

In deciding to sell all PHHC houses and lots, the Cabinet pointed out that government capital in these projects has been "tied up" and has prevented the agency from opening up new projects in accordance with its charter.

However, the houses and lots will be sold only to those who are "able and willing."

Former Governor Bernardo Torres and Antonio Barrera, general manager and director, respectively, of the housing firm, were invited to the Cabinet meeting to explain the PHHC plan to the department secretaries.

Torres explained that there are some PHHC lands which are not immediately needed by the agency.

He also said the houses and lots in the different housing projects could be sold to “those willing and able,” in order to be able to retrieve the firm’s capital investments.

President Garcia told the PHHC official to sell the houses and lots “at cost and without profit to the government.”

In the sale of the lands, the President asked the PHHC officials to dispose them at public bidding.

Torres explained that there are several offers from private parties who have submitted proposals at a price higher than what the agency paid for them in acquiring these estates.

The Cabinet also ratified this evening a proposal of the foreign office to dispute a U.S. Government’s decision seeking to impose ₱2.50 equivalent for every dollar in the purchase of surplus goods, from America.

Foreign Affairs Secretary Felixberto M. Serrano elevated the case to the Cabinet level, following a note from the U.S. State Department seeking to impose a higher peso rate for American dollars following the passage by Congress of the foreign exchange margin law.

Serrano was given “full backing” by the Cabinet to contest the decision of the U.S. Government.

While no details were available in Malacañang on the Serrano report, the Foreign Affairs Secretary was believed to have argued that to accept the U.S. decision would force the Philippine Government to be a party to the violation of its own law.

Serrano was reported to have told the President and the Cabinet that the U.S. Government was consulted before the margin bill was enacted in Congress. At that time, it was pointed out that the measure was merely to control the currency and not to devalue the peso.

The case cropped up following the request of the Philippine Government to purchase surplus raw cotton, leather, and tobacco from the U.S. in accordance with the Mutual Security Act, otherwise known as Public Law 402.

However, after the President had signed into law the foreign exchange measures, the U.S. Government sent the foreign affairs office a note demanding payment of ₱2.50 for every dollar in the deal.

Serrano, in his report, explained that the transactions involving the surplus goods are specifically exempted from the scope of the margin bill.

He likewise waved aside the argument of the U.S. Government that the increase in the dollar value in peso would any way be returned to the Philippines in another grant, as “untenable.” He said that to accept the proposal would be admitting that the country has devalued its peso currency.

The Cabinet, after hearing Serrano’s report, decided to give Secretary Serrano “full backing” in disputing the U.S. decision to increase the dollar value in relation to the peso.

August 27.—POLITICAL rivalries among Nacionalista candidates for city and provincial executives were today brought to the attention of President Garcia for final solution by some of the parties involved Mayor Elpidio O. Cudio of Cabanatuan City got presidential backing to his bid for the top position in Cabanatuan at a conference in Malacañang with President Garcia.

The Chief Executive requested Senate President Eulogio Rodriguez, Sr., in his capacity as NP president to release the proclamation of Cucio as official NP candidate for mayor.

In the case of Democrito O. Plaza, who was proclaimed official NP candidate for governor of Agusan in a convention called by Governor Felixberto Dagani, the President endorsed the case to Senate President Rodriguez for solution in view of the protest of Rep. Guillermo Sanchez, who wants another convention called to select the NP official candidate for governor.

Maj. Authur Sevilla, who is running for governor of Marinduque under the NP standard, also called on President Garcia to request for a free zone in the gubernatorial race in his province. To solve the rivalry between Sevilla and Gov. Miguel Manguerra, the President will summon the latter to Malacañang for a conference.

Gov. Bienvenido Ebarle of Zamboanga del Sur also saw the President and convinced the latter to sign an executive order creating the municipality of Kumalarang.

Other callers were Lt. Gov. Jose Neri of the sub-province of Camiguin; Govs. Feliciano Leviste of Batangas, Manuel Barretto of Zambales, Marcos Malupa of Batanes, and Bado Dangwa of Mountain Province; acting Governor Jose Javier of Batanes; and Rep. Ramon Mitra, Sr., of Mountain Province.

During the call, the President was informed that Dr. Schacht had submitted a written report to the PNB on his observations on the Philippine economy.

The serious concern of the Philippine Government for the recent announcement of the American Government to the effect that it was disposing of its coconut oil stockpile will be taken up by the FAO to the proper authorities, Gov. Juan Triviño, a Philippine delegate to the recently concluded FAO international conference on the coconut industry, informed President Garcia today at a conference in Malacañang.

The matter was brought to the consideration of the conference held in Colombo, Ceylon, by the Philippine delegation, which further informed the delegates that the announcement had caused a depression of prices not only in the international but also in the domestic market.

President Garcia was informed that the Philippine stand on the matter was supported by delegates from other coconut producing countries.

Triviño further informed President Garcia that the Philippine delegation was also supported by coco-producer countries on its stand to have copra exports chemically analyzed in the ports of loading instead of in the ports of destination.

Triviño said that the change of procedure will protect the interests of the Philippines, which can determine for tax purposes the total amount in dollars of the copra exports, thus avoiding the pernicious practice of stashing dollars abroad.

Owing to the objection of the consumer countries and some procedural obstacles, the Philippine proposal will be taken up at the next conference, Triviño said.

The President signed today the appointments and transfers of seven judges of courts of first instance on the recommendation of the Department of Justice,

The President is scheduled to administer the oaths of office to Justice Jose Gutierrez David as associate justice of the Supreme Court and Justice Jose Ma. Paredes as presiding justice of the Court of Appeals.

Of the 331 promotions, 35 were to lieutenant colonel, 55 to major, 145 to captain, 16 to first lieutenant, 12 to lieutenant commander, 50 to lieutenant (senior grade), and 18 to lieutenant (junior grade).

August 28.—THE President received this morning callers at Malacañang from 9:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m.

A group of visiting Mexican surgeons, led by Prof. Manuel A. Manzanilla, called to pay their respects. Other members of the group were Profs. Juan Mora Ortiz, Carlos Malabehar, and Leonardo Silva Espinosa; Drs. Sergio Raul Chaniza, Juan Paz, J. Luis Marin, and Manuel Martinez Suarez; and Mesdames Maria Mora and Luz del Carmen Malabehar.

The President also administered the oaths of office to Justices Jose Gutierrez David and Jose Ma. Paredes as associate justice of the Supreme Court and presiding justice of the Court of Appeals, respectively, in ceremonies held at the Malacañang reception hall.

The Chief Executive approved the readjustment in rank of Major Juan V. Abañes (ret.) of the Philippine Air Force. In approving the readjustment, the President took into account the excellent war and peacetime record of Abañes, who had entered the military service as enlisted man on December 17, 1928.

Other callers this morning included Rep. Salipada Pendatun of Cotabato, Provincial Board Member Henry Fajardo of Sorsogon, Don Manolo Elizalde, and J. P. Roxas.

President Garcia today declared Monday August 31, a special public holiday in the province of Zambales in commemoration of the 52nd birthday of the late President Ramon Magsaysay.

In declaring the day a special public holiday in Zambales, the President declared it was fitting that the people of President Magsaysay's birthplace "be afforded full opportunity to celebrate the occasion with appropriate ceremonies."

The President recalled the exemplary real and devotion to duty with which the late President had performed his official tasks for the people he loved so well and for the future of the country.

THIS afternoon the President inaugurated the new ₱120,000 municipal building of San Juan, Rizal, and took occasion to chide his detractors for allegedly generating issues based on falsehood.

“Our people have shown their maturity time and again, to differentiate between fact and fiction,” the President said as he expressed optimism that the voters in November will “once more rise to the occasion and do justice by those who have your welfare at heart.”

The President played Sen. Emmanuel Pelaez and former Commissioner of Customs Manuel P. Manahan for criticizing the present administration for allegedly neglecting the rural areas.

Although he did not mention them by name, it was evident that the President referred to them as “some of my critics” who have taken advantage of his busy schedule “to mispresent my economic program as sidetracking the welfare of the rural masses.”

The President pointed out that he does not want to take part in any petty debate with detractors. “Your President is too busy attending to your needs and the multifarious problems of the nation. If I try to answer all criticisms, I will have no time for something else,” he added.

In, answering his critics, “to set the records straight,” the President explained that “today, the PACD serves 2,231 barrios and generated a total of 20,254 projects with an aggregate value of ₱17,916,254.90. In other words,” he added, “community development in the rural areas increased and expanded tenfold since I assumed the Presidency.”

He said the value of these projects which is ₱18 million in round figures did not all come from government funds. He said they were contributed by the people in the barrios.

After inaugurating the new municipal building, the President said the new edifice is the culmination of his promise two years ago to help construct it “that you may have a bigger and better edifice that will serve your various and growing needs.

The President predicted this afternoon a “free zone” in Manila as a compromise solution to end the bickerings over the number of delegates to the convention that will choose the Nacionalista candidates for mayor and vice-mayor.

At a press conference with college editors at the state dining room, the President was asked:

“Will you support, Mr. President, Mayor (Arsenio) Lacson if he were nominated as official candidate of the Nacionalista party?”

The President paused for a moment, and said:

“I understand that Manila will be declared a free zone; so, I will be free to choose my own candidate.”

The President indicated he would settle for a free zone in Manila as a compromise in his conflict of views with Senate and NP President Eulogio Rodriguez and the executive committee.

President Garcia had battled for a convention in Manila with 3,164 delegates to choose the candidates of the majority party for mayor and vice-mayor.

However, Senate President Rodriguez, who is backing Mayor Lacson, wanted the number of delegates reduced from 3,164 to 517.

At the press conference, the President:

1. Said he is going over the report of Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, German economist who made a survey of the economic conditions of the country;
2. Branded the “white paper” as a misnomer which contained a list of alleged irregularities, written by the Senate President, based on rumors and gossips; and
3. Refused to comment on his political plans after the end of his four-year term as Presidents.

Although he did not answer the question categorically, the President gave the impression he would not support Mayor Lacson’s candidacy.

The President also said he is calling his economic advisers, shortly to take up the recommendations of Dr. Schacht.

Dr. Schacht was a former economic adviser of Hitler and was a guest of the Philippine National Bank in the Philippines.

The President said he had always been in favor of gradual decontrol. But decontrol, he said, must go hand-in-hand with the stabilization of the country’s economy.

President Garcia today assured residents of various housing projects of the People’s Homesite and Housing Corporation that every centavo they had paid in rentals would be applied to the selling price of their housing units.

The assurance was given to a delegation of Project 8 residents who called at Malacañang this noon to appeal a reported decision of the PHHC board of directors to raise the rentals of the firm’s tenants.

The President reiterated that the housing units would be sold at cost to their occupants without any profit to the corporation. He said that prices would depend on computations currently being undertaken as to the cost of the units. He assured, however, that the selling price would be such as to be within the reach of low-salaried employees.

The Chief Executive recalled that the PHHC had been created to help low-income groups own their own homes through easy payment plans. He said this was part of the program of social justice launched by the Government and that he would see to it that the program was implemented.

Accompanied by Juan Perez, president of the National Press Club, the delegation was composed of Mariano Sta. Romana, Jr., president of Project 8 Residents’ association, Ramon Veloso and David Baquirin of the Manila Times, Benjamin Defensor of the Manila Chronicle, Cesar Salenga and Gregorio Datuin of the Daily Mirror, Victor Diamonon, Rolando Juturian, Arsenio Dominguez, and other prominent residents of Project 8.

August 29.—PRESIDENT Garcia this morning sat down with top leaders and all the senatorial candidates of the Nacionalista Party to map out a campaign strategy for the coming November elections.

The NP senatorial bets were divided into two stumping teams, with Senate President Eulogio Rodriguez, Sr., and Senate President Protempore Fernando Lopez, together with Sens. Arturo Tolentino and Pacita M. Gonzalez, forming a “stand-by” team to be used “as the need arises.”

Forming Team 1 are Executive Secretary Juan C. Pajo, Sen. Edmundo Cea, and Rep. Genaro Magsaysay, who will fan out to Iloilo, Capiz, Aklan, and Negros Occidental starting next Monday for an intensive 11-day stumping tour.

At the same time, Team 2 composed of Sen. Lorenzo Tañada, Secretary Alejandro Almendras, and Assistant Executive Secretary Sofronio C. Quimson will leave for a stumping tour of northern Luzon provinces, particularly Isabela, Cagayan, and Ilocos Norte.

Present at the conference were NP senatorial candidates, Speaker Daniel Z. Romualdez, Senate Majority Floor Leader Cipriano Primicias, Speaker Protempore Constancio Castañeda, Sen. Gonzalez, Press Secretary Jose C. Nable, former Press Secretary J. V. Cruz, Assistant Executive Secretary Mariano Logarta, who is the NP information director, and his assistant Ramon Mitra, Jr.

The conference started at 8:30 a.m. and broke up at 1 p.m.

The President did not receive any caller in the afternoon. He devoted his time working on some papers which he had brought over to his Bohol Avenue residence in Quezon City from Malacañang.

The President was informed by Gov. Miguel Cuaderno of the Central Bank that opponents of the dollar exchange margin must have been disappointed to find that during the first month of the imposition of the charge, prices were going down instead of skyrocketing, that exports were increasing instead of diminishing, and that tax collections continued to be much higher than those of last year.

In a personal communication received by the President at Malacañang, contents of which was revealed by Press Secretary Jose C. Nable this evening, Gov. Cuaderno had recalled that not a few people had claimed that the imposition of the margin would bring chaos to the economy. He said that the opposite of what these people had predicted was happening in the country.

The CB governor, in his letter, cited the Philippine Association which, in its review of local business conditions for the first semester of the year, had said that major economic indicators showed encouraging features during the half-year period. The association had reported that price levels as reflected by lower averages of the cost of living and retail prices indices evidently moved at ranges well below those of the comparable period in 1958.

Gov. Cuaderno predicted a marked improvement in the national economy by next year if the government would continue to be very sparing in putting out money during the remaining months of this year.

President Garcia approved the promotions of 299 regular officers of various services of the Armed Forces of the Philippines, it was announced by Press Secretary Jose C. Nable today.

Of the 299 promotions, 93 were to lieutenant colonels, 97 to major, 57 to captain, 42 to first lieutenant, five to commander, four to lieutenant commander, and one to lieutenant senior grade, the last three being naval ranks.

Official Week in Review: September 6 – September 12, 1959

September 6.—PRESIDENT Garcia today stayed the whole day in his private residence on Bohol Avenue, Quezon City, where he rested preparatory to starting a gruelling campaign to insure the victory of the Nacionalista Party candidates in the coming November elections.

The President is leaving for Cebu, home province of the First Lady, where he is facing a stiff political fight following the alignment of the powerful Osmeña-Cuenco blocs against the Chief Executive.

The President is scheduled to board the yacht Lapu-Lapu tomorrow, accompanied t-y the First Lady and Cebu politicians.

The President was reported to have gone over the morning papers to have an assessment of the political situation in Cebu and other parts of the country.

He had been informed that Rep. Sergio Osmeña, Jr., is also planning to stage a simultaneous rally in Cebu City when the President holds a meeting to show the Chief Executive that he has more followers in the city.

Osmeña is running for the Cebu City mayoralty.

Earlier this morning, the President and the First Lady heard mass at their private residence in Quezon City.

September 7.—ON the eve of the anniversary commemorating the organization five years ago of the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization, President Garcia said the SEATO is attaining its objective in serving as a shield against communism in this part of the world.

The President recalled that exactly five years ago tomorrow, he had the singular distinction of presiding over the conference which gave birth to the organization of the SEATO. He was then vice-president and concurrent foreign affairs secretary.

The President also took this occasion to call on the Filipino people, along with other beneficiaries of the Organization, to be united behind the principles and purposes of the SEATO so that it may better serve its mission within the treaty area.

THIS afternoon President Garcia left for Cebu on a two-fold mission of insuring the victory of NP candidates in that province and of greeting former President Sergio Osmeña on the occasion of the latter's 81st birth anniversary.

The President boarded the yacht Lapu-Lapu, together with Mrs. Garcia and a group of Cebu politicians and Manila newspapermen.

The yacht is scheduled to dock at the Cebu wharf late tomorrow afternoon.

Nacionalista "loyalists" headed by Rep. Ramon Durano, who is running for governor against incumbent "rebel" Gov. Jose Briones (of the Osmeña-Cuenco faction), plan a huge fluvial reception for the visiting Chief Executive.

This being his first trip to Cebu since he decided to stake his political prestige behind the Durano-Zosa bloc, the President is expected to confer with Cebu NP "loyalists" on ways and means of insuring the victory of the "loyalists" bloc.

He is scheduled to address a political meeting in a "show of numbers" with the NP rebels.

Rep. Sergio Osmeña, Jr., who is at present teamed up with the Cuenco faction, is also scheduled to address a separate rally in another spot in Cebu.

After joining the birthday celebration of former President Osmeña, the President is expected to hold several rallies in the interior towns of Cebu to boost Durano's candidacy.

He may return to Manila either Thursday night or Friday morning.

September 8.—PRESIDENT and Mrs. Garcia were accorded royal welcome upon their arrival in Cebu City by a huge rousing crowd that converged at the pier and lined the streets several feet deep.

Even before the RPS Lapu-Lapu, which brought the presidential party, reached the breakwater hundreds of motorboats and bancas with colorful buntings and streamers met it in Bagacay. The fluvial parade started in Bagacay and ended behind the customs building where the Lapu-Lapu docked.

Upon debarking, the President received military honors and then, delivered a short speech greeting his welcomers. From the dock, the President headed a long motorcade to the residence of former President Sergio Osmeña, Sr., and gave his greetings to the Grand Old Man of Cebu. Tomorrow will be Don Sergio's birthday anniversary.

The President then motored to the Nacionalista Party headquarters, where he inducted the officers of the Nacionalista Youth Movement.

The President and the First Lady attended a popular banquet in their honor before proceeding to the huge rally where the NP Loyalist candidates for provincial and city positions were proclaimed.

NP Loyalist candidates are Rep. Ramon Durano for governor; Isidro Escario for vice-governor; and Arsenio Villanueva, Ernesto Bascon, and Reynaldo Mendiola for board members; Casimiro Madarang for city mayor; Leandro Tojong for vice-mayor; and Remedies Jayme de Fernandez, Generoso Jaca, Alfredo Deen, Francisco Briones, Jose Fortich, Emilio Matheu, Nicolas Ruiz, Florentino Tecson, and Luis Espina for councilors.

Before breakfast, the President and the First Lady heard mass aboard the RPS Lapu-Lapu, said by Col. Nicolas Ortega, chief of AFP chaplains. After breakfast, the President received Brig. Gen. Isagani Campo, PC chief, who reported on the much improved peace and order situation in Ilocos Sur, Cavite, and other provinces. The Chief Executive also received Pablo Suarez, special assistant in the foreign affairs office.

The President this day set aside September 17, 1959, as a special public holiday in Tarlac province in commemoration of the birthday anniversary of Gen. Francisco Makabulos.

Gen. Makabulos was one of the outstanding Filipino leaders during the Revolution against Spain and the war with the United States.

The presidential proclamation was signed to give the people of Tarlac, his birthplace, full opportunity to commemorate the occasion with appropriate ceremonies.

President Garcia received today the profound gratitude of the people of Nationalist China for his donation of NT$55,500.00 equivalent to P3,000.00 for the relief of victims of the recent floods in Taiwan.

This was contained in a letter from President Chiang Kai-shek which was forwarded to Manila by Ambassador Narciso Ramos. The President's donation was given after a report on the extensive damage to life and property as a result of this major disaster had been submitted by the Department of Foreign Affairs.

Embassy staff members and Filipino musicians in Taipei, Ambassador Ramos reported, also contributed a total of NT$8,000.00. These donations and expressions of sympathy from Filipinos, he said, were deeply appreciated in all quarters and were well played up in Taipei and Hongkong newspapers.

September 9.—PRESIDENT and Mrs. Garcia joined thousands of well wishers who greeted Don Sergio Osmeña on his 81st birthday anniversary. The President and the First Lady motored to the Redemptorist Church at 7 a.m. and joined Don Sergio and Doña Titay at mass together with members of the Osmeña family and friends.

After the mass President and Mrs. Garcia returned to the RPS Lapu-Lapu, where the Chief Executive held a conference with NP municipal mayors who renewed their pledge of loyalty to him. The President in turn appealed to them to support all loyal Nacionalistas and lambasted rebels who are trying to wreck the party. The President appealed for discipline within the NP ranks.

After the conference the President received a Negros Oriental delegation led by Gov. Serafin Teves and former Rep. Enrique Medina to discuss the political situation in the province. Then the President met many people on board the ship.

At past 12 noon, President and Mrs. Garcia left the boat and went to the residence of Don Sergio for the traditional luncheon on the occasion of the birthday anniversary of the Grand Old Man of Cebu. The couple joined friends and admirers in wishing Don Sergio happy returns of the day. From the residence Don Sergio, the President and the First Lady went to the corner of Lapu-Lapu and Legaspi Streets for the unveiling ceremonies of the historical marker of the birthplace of Don Sergio under the auspices of Patria, affiliated Cebu Employees Association.

After the unveiling ceremonies, the First Couple returned to the Lapu-Lapu where the President held a press and radio conference.

Commenting on the tumultuous reception at the dock where more than one hundred thousand Cebuanos welcomed him and at the rally where a similar number heard him sound appeal for support of Loyalists NP group, the President said, "I feel deeply grateful to the people of Cebu for the tremendous reception given me and for attending the mammoth rally that followed, and I take this as a testimonial of the continued faith and confidence of the people of Cebu in the Administration. This demonstration convinces me that Cebu will once more uphold the NP in the forthcoming elections. I am also happy to have joined with the thousands of Cebuanos who greeted Don Sergio Osmeña on his 81st birthday anniversary."

PRESIDENT Garcia departed tonight for Manila on board the yacht Lapu-Lapu, tired but happy, after more than 30 hours' stay in Cebu City.

The President appeared confident that his leadership in Cebu will be upheld in the coming elections, against the combined forces of Sen. Mariano J. Cuenco and Rep. Sergio Osmeña, Jr. He gauged this from pledges he received from Cebu politicians and ordinary voters.

PRESIDENT Garcia told a press conference this afternoon that the Philippines will honor her commitments with the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization, saying that the defense of Laos against communism is the defense of the country, against the Red menace.

The President held the press conference aboard the yacht Lapu-Lapu with local and Manila newsmen.

Despite the Philippine concern over the Laos situation, President Garcia stood pat on the Philippine decision not to allow the use of American bases here by the United States military to airlift supplies for the beleaguered country unless the Philippine Government's consent is first secured.

President Garcia has always stood against indiscriminate use of American bases in the Philippines by the US unless previous consent is secured.

His statements answered Vice-President Macapagal's criticisms of the foreign affairs office decision disallowing the use of US bases here for sending supplies and materials to Laos.

Asked if the Philippines would send troops to help the embattled Laotian government against the communists, President Garcia said, "I hope it would not come to that."

However, he stressed that the Philippines will not renege on its commitments with the SEATO and recalled that the country had cooperated with the United Nations by sending troops to Korea during the North Korea-South Korea war.

Pressed for his political plans, President Garcia said that personally he had announced his preference to retire after his term in 1961.

However, he said he had assured Nacionalista Party leaders he would not shirk from the challenge to serve the country. President Garcia said he would abide by the decision of the NP if it would ask him anew to run for reelection.

In the press conference, President Garcia:

1. Derided Vice-President Macapagal for his charges doubting President Garcia's guerrilla activities, and referred the latter to the records in the US State Department;
2. Defended again the government acquisition of the yacht Lapu-Lapu and the Fokker plane;
3. Underscored nationalism as the issue of his administration as the only way of achieving economic freedom;
4. Challenged his critics mentioning Sen. M. Jesus Cuenco, to go to the courts and file corresponding charges against those indulging in graft and corruption in the government; and
5. Said Lt. Cmdr. Marcelino Calinawan's committee in the Bureau of Customs is fighting an "uphill battle" in busting the smuggling syndicate in the Philippines.

The President recalled that the death of Capt. Hector Crisostomo, member of Calinawan's team, was an aftermath of the efforts of Government agents to probe deeper into the syndicate's activities.

The Chief Executive refused to comment on the effects of his visit in Cebu and on the political situation in that province.

"It's up to the Cebuanos," he told the newsmen in reply to a question asking him to assess the effects of his arrival in Cebu.

President Garcia lashed at Macapagal for doubting his guerrilla record. He said Macapagal should consult the guerrilla records in the US State Department.

September 10.—DESPITE his hectic and gruelling schedule in Cebu, the President woke up early this morning looking fresh and rested. Together with Mrs. Garcia, aides, and some members of the party, he heard mass celebrated by Fr. Juan Tugadi before an improvised altar set up in the ship's dining saloon.

At breakfast, the Chief Executive had a hearty time recounting certain incidents that occurred during his Cebu stump.

Beaming with pride, President Garcia talked of his unscheduled rally during the fiesta last evening in Cebu City's Pasil district, a slum area, where the people insisted that he deliver a speech.

In his speech the President recalled his student days when he lived there, and told his audience that he had always won his political fights through the support of the poor people. Citing achievements of the Nacionalista regime, he said he expects the people to support administration candidates in the coming elections.

In the middle of his speech, the people clamored "Nor, Imo no, kami, balak na lang." (Sir, are already yours; just recite to us a poem!) This forced, President Garcia to abandon his speech and declaim his now famous "Ang Babaing Philipinhon."

After breakfast, the Chief Executive retired to his stateroom and remained closeted there with Palace aides most of the day, studying various state papers and documents he had taken along for consideration.

The RPS Lapu-Lapu pulled out of the port of Cebu City at 9:20 last night, shortly after the President arrived from nearby San Nicolas town where he kept the last of his scheduled speaking appointments.

As the ship steamed out of the harbor, President Garcia and his party were given a warm send-off by the people of Cebu with factory sirens and ships' horns and whistles wailing and blowing simultaneously.

President Garcia and members of his party are expected to arrive in Manila on board the RPS Lapu-Lapu late this evening after fulfilling a series of speaking engagements in Cebu and felicitating former President Sergio Osmeña, Sr., on his 81st birthday anniversary.

This morning, while the Chief Executive and the First Lady were having breakfast, the passengers noticed a sudden reduction of the ship's speed. A quick check with the bridge disclosed that the ship had to be slowed down to permit a minor cleaning job. The operation took about 15 minutes after which the vessel resumed its normal cruising speed of 18 knots.

September 11.—PRESIDENT Garcia said today the Philippine Government will support whatever decision is adopted by either the United Nations or the SEATO with respect to the Laos situation.

The President's statement came on the wake of fresh aggressive Communist moves in Laos which were thoroughly discussed by President Garcia at a conference at his Quezon City residence with Defense Secretary Alejo Santos, Lt. Gen. Manuel Cabal, AFP chief of staff, and other Army brass.

Cabal and AFP key officers briefed the President on the Laos situation as well as on matters to be taken up at the SEATO military advisers' conference scheduled from September 22 to 25 at Bangkok.

Also present at the conference which lasted for more than two hours were Navy Capt. Heracleo Alano, AFP G-2; Lt. Cols. Uldarico Baclagon, Sofio Bayron, and Deogracias Caballero; and Capt. Silverio Dalugdug.

Earlier, the President and Mrs. Garcia debarked from the RPS Lapu-Lapu where they had spent the night after their arrival from Cebu, and motored to the residence, in Quezon City of Speaker Daniel Z. Romualdez to felicitate him on his 52nd birthday anniversary.

The President and the First Lady had breakfast at the Romualdez' residence. About 9:30 a.m., the President and the First Lady motored to their own residence in Quezon City where ranking officers of the Armed Forces awaited the Chief Executive.

The President also received at his residence former Assistant Executive Secretary Sofronio Quimson, NP official candidate for senator, who reported after campaigning in six provinces of Northern Luzon that there are "encouraging signs that the Nacionalista Party will again sweep the North in November."

Quimson stumped the North together with other NP candidates for senators; namely, Senate President Protempore Fernando Lopez, Sen. Lorenzo Tañada, and former General Services Secretary Alejandro Almendras.

Other callers included Reps. Lamberto Macias of Negros Oriental, Jose Aldeguer of Iloilo, Salipada Pendatun of Cotabato, and Sen. Eulogio Balao.

September 12.—THIS morning, the President summoned Justice Buenaventura Ocampo, PCAPE chairman, to his Quezon City residence and directed him to push through with more vigor the anti-graft campaign of the Administration.

At the same time, the President appealed to everyone, irrespective of party affiliation, to come out with concrete proofs against any venal official or employee of the government.

In his directive to the PCAPE to wage an all-out campaign against graft and corruption, the President reiterated his desire that erring government officials and employees be prosecuted “no matter who gets hurt.”

Justice Ocampo submitted a progress report on the cases investigated and brought to court by his office. Of the recent cases investigated by the PCAPE, Justice Ocampo told President Garcia that seven Central Bank officials are involved in the racket of salting dollars abroad.

These seven CB officials, Ocampo further informed the President, are also facing administrative charges.

The President also reiterated his previous directive to the PCAPE to investigate the complaints of poor tenants who after cultivating portion of public lands are now facing ejection proceedings after land patents were issued to rich people.

Ocampo blamed the laxity of Bureau of Lands personnel for recommending approval of land grants where land cultivated by poor people were included.

After receiving Ocampo and his assistant, Maximo Maceren, the President motored to the Central Officers’ Club in Camp Murphy to felicitate Undersecretary Mariano A. Yenke, Jr., on the occasion of his birthday anniversary.

Earlier, the President received NP candidates for senators, Juan C. Pajo, Sofronio C. Quimson, and Alejandro Almendras; Rep. Canuto Eñero of Zamboanga del Norte; and Susan Roces, who is leaving for the United States.

THIS evening President Garcia stayed late watching the proclamation of the senatorial candidates of his party on Plaza Miranda and listened to the NP leaders rake anew the stench of the discredited Liberal Party administration.

President Garcia has been the target of political attacks of the opposition candidates from the Liberal Party and from the Grand Alliance and, for once, heard the NP senatorial stalwarts defend his administration.

The President stayed at his private residence on Bohol Avenue, Quezon City, where he watched the proclamation proceedings by television.

Official Week in Review: September 20 – September 26, 1959

September 20.—PRESIDENT Garcia today ordered an exhaustive inquiry into the resurgence of malaria in localities where it had long ago been declared freed of this dreaded disease.

The President expressed concern over reports that malaria had broken out afresh in certain sections of the country where the disease had long ago been prevalent but subsequently declared eradicated after prolonged and costly campaign. These localities include some provinces in Luzon, Mindoro, certain sections in the Visayas, and especially in Mindanao.

The Chief Executive instructed Chairman Jose C. Locsin of the National Economic Council and Secretary Elpidio Valencia of the Department of Health to have their technical men work, together with representatives of U. S. International Cooperation Administration and the World Health Organization, to undertake thorough studies aimed at preventing the recrudescence of the disease.

Chairman Locsin disclosed that his office has available P500,000 to form a counterpart fund under the NEC-ICA assistance program for this purpose.

Chairman Locsin recalled that as a special health activity, a malaria eradication campaign had been started with one pilot malaria control unit in 1953. Within one year, this one unit had been increased to 30 which has been maintained up to the present, he said.

The early average number of houses sprayed in the last four successive years is 1,179,490; and the population protected from malaria totalled 6.8 million, according to figures furnished by the NEC. The result, Chairman Locsin said, is marked reduction in both morbidity and death rates.

The death rate dropped from 32.44 per cent in 1953 to 9.74 per cent in 1958. The campaign for eradication of malaria costs the Philippine Government some P3 million every year, an average of $450,000 annually as ICA aid, and a total of P2,300,000 as assistance from the WHO, Chairman Locsin said.

The President and the First Lady heard mass said in their Quezon City residence this morning.

After breakfast the President read the Sunday papers until nearly lunch. After a short nap in the afternoon, the President went over some pending matters with his junior aide-de-camp, Maj. Jose Estrella.

September 21.—PRESIDENT Garcia today stated that the establishment of the Philippine National Cooperative Bank would go a long way towards accelerating the nationalization of the retail trade, especially in the rural areas.

The Chief Executive made this statement after the induction of the officials of the bank which had been created pursuant to the provisions of Republic Act No. 2023, better known as the Philippine Non-Agricultural Cooperative Act.

He added that in furtherance of this policy, the Administration shall exert all its efforts in the establishment of a system of co-operative banks all over the country which shall provide banking facilities and reasonable credit for non-agricultural co-operatives and encourage the distribution of consumer requiring through co-operatives by the establishment of a system of co-operative wholesale societies all over the country.

To strengthen the capital structure of the new bank, the government put up P5 million on a fund-matching basis, pursuant to the provisions of Republic Act No. 2023.

The President today received NP senatorial candidates Juan C. Pajo and Sofronio Quimson who just arrived from Leyte, Samar, and the Bicol region.

Pajo and Quimson informed the President that the Administration candidates will score a landslide victory in Leyte and Samar. They also reported enthusiastic reception from the people of the Bicol provinces. They told the President that Nacionalista senatorial and local candidates will ride to victory on the strength of the issue of nationalism sweeping across the country.

The two senatorial candidates said that they campaigned in Leyte with Speaker Daniel Romualdez. In Samar Sen. Decoroso Rosales made the tour of the towns with them. Rep. Salvador Encinas and Govs. Nicanor Maronilla-Seva of Albay and Juan Frivaldo of Sorsogon accompanied Quimson and Pajo in their respective provinces.

The President also saw Assistant Executive Secretary Enrique C. Quema with whom he discussed local appointments.

IN the evening, the President received Dr. Cesar Filoteo, acting chairman of the Board of Medical Examiners.

Dr. Filoteo asked the President's opinion on whether or not the board would give a medical examination in November.

It was learned that under a new law passed by Congress and signed by the President, the board had been reorganized with six members.

It was pointed out that the approval of the new law, virtually dissolved the old board.

Other callers were Director Celestino Cortes of the National Development Corporation and former Bulacan Gov. Arturo Samaniego.

September 22.—PRESIDENT Garcia received “encouraging reports” on the political situation throughout the country from Nacionalista solons and provincial and city bets who trooped to Malacañang this morning.

Juan C. Pajo and Sofronio Quimson, NP senatorial bets, informed President Garcia that the NP senatorial ticket will win an overwhelming majority in the Visayas and Mindanao.

Mayor Elpidio Cudio, NP official candidate for mayor of Cabanatuan City, reported that all the Nacionalista senatorial candidates are conceded to win in his city.

Rep. Benjamin T. Ligot of the second district of Cagayan informed President Garcia that the Nacionalistas will top in his district because the Chief Executive has proven his sincerity and devotion to the masses and because of the concrete achievements of the Administration.

Rep. Pedro Trono of the first district of Iloilo said, “My district is sure to give the Nacionalista Party a landslide victory from senators down to the municipal level, as in the 1957 elections. It will also give former Sen. Jose C. Zulueta, LP official candidate for governor, a rude surprise.”

Rep. Cesar Fortich of Bukidnon reported that the “Liberals are ‘dead’ in Mindanao. Their senatorial bets can hardly attract 500 people in their rallies in the metropolitan centers.”

Major Arthur Sevilla, NP candidate for governor in Marinduque, informed President Garcia of an NP overwhelming victory in his province.

Rep. Rogaciano Mercado of Bulacan also reported that “All Nacionalista candidates will win in Bulacan, except four municipal mayors.”

Other callers who reported in the same vein were Reps. Leon Guinto, Jr., of Quezon, Apolinario Apacible of Batangas, Pedro Vinida of Camarines Norte, Vicente Peralta of Sorsogon, Augusto Francisco of Manila, Justiniano Montano of Cavite, Marcelino Veloso and Dominador Tan of Leyte, Jose Legaspi of Aklan, Agaton Ursua of Camarines Sur, Domitilio Obordo of Iloilo, Eladio Balite and Valeriano Yancha of Samar, Luciano Millan of Pangasinan, Jacobo Gonzales and Wenceslao Lagumbay of Laguna, and Emilio Cortez of Pampanga.

The President today directed National Treasurer Vicente Gella to increase the maximum amount of backpay certificates for redemption from P1,000 to P2,000.

At a conference held in Malacañang this morning, President Garcia also directed that only claims that are to be fully paid should be pre-audited while partial payments may be post-audited in order to accelerate the payment of the claims.

Present at the conference aside from Gella, were former Executive Secretary Juan C. Pajo and former Assistant Executive Secretary Sofronio C. Quimson, both NP official senatorial candidates.

Meanwhile, an avalanche of telegrams and personal letters swamped Malacañang, during the last two days, lauding President Garcia and Quimson for their “very noble move to redeem backpay certificates under Republic Act No. 304 the soonest possible time” and exhorting Quimson to help push through the deposit of P26 million by Gella for the immediate and faster payments of partial and final redemption of backpay certificates.

The required amount had been set aside a few days ago by order of President Garcia for the purpose.

Col. Conrado B. Rigor, secretary general of the Veterans Federation of the Philippines, pledged in behalf of 300,000 veterans members “to rally behind the President and Secretary Quimson in their efforts to solve the backpay situation, so as to alleviate the financial plight of veterans all over the country.”

Praising the President's gesture as "not only most generous but very exemplary and indeed statesmanlike," the Defenders of Bataan urged President Garcia to effect immediate deposit of said appropriation and to accelerate payments of applications for backpay through the national treasurer.

Individual letters from various backpay claimants, mostly from farmers and war widows urging more speedy backpay redemption, also reached the President.

September 23.—PRESIDENT Garcia today reiterated his directive for the payment of strike duration pay to striking employees of the National Marketing Corporation (NAMARCO) pending resolution by a competent court of the question of whether or not the state marketing firm exercised proprietary functions.

The President previously directed the NAMARCO board of directors to pay the striking employees after having been informed by the strike leader that the Court of Industrial Relations had already decided the issue in favor of the strikers. However, at a subsequent Cabinet meeting, the President received another information that the CIR had made no such decision.

The President's directive was then held in abeyance pending verification by Secretary Castaño about the status of the controversy brought before the CIR. The President also had instructed Castaño to bring together representatives of the NAMARCO management and the striking employees to find out whether a provisional settlement could be reached whereby the strikers would return to work pending CIR decree on the controversy.

At the Cabinet meeting this evening, Secretary Castaño expressed confidence that the strike would be resolved tomorrow. He said he had already met Commerce Secretary Pedro Hernaez, chairman of the NAMARCO board of directors Edgardo de Leon, president of the strikers' union; and the CIR judge handling the case. He said that the strikers would probably return to work tomorrow.

During his conference with NAMARCO General Manager Benjamin Estrella at his Bohol Avenue residence in Quezon City this morning, the President reiterated his directive for the payment of strike duration pay to the employees subject to refund in case the court decided that the NAMARCO exercised governmental functions.

The President expressed concern that a protracted strike might prejudice the essential public service that the state marketing firm was performing. He said that provisional payment of the strike duration pay might induce the employees to return to work.

With Estrella at his conference with the President this morning was Simeon M. Gopengco, government corporate counsel; Alfredo Liboro, NAMARCO auditor; and Adolfo Feliciano, legal counsel of the firm.

The President also received Gov. Esteban Bernido of Bohol, who reported on the political situation in his province.

In the afternoon, the President motored back to Malacañang where he accepted the credentials of John Arthur Pilcher, new English ambassador to the Philippines.

After the credential presentation ceremony, the President presided over the regular weekly meeting of his Cabinet.

President Garcia expressed optimism in the ability of the Philippines to bridge any gap or misunderstanding between the East and the West at a ceremony where John Arthur Pilcher, C. M. G., presented his credentials as ambassador extraordinary and plenipotentiary of the United Kingdom to the Philippines at the Malacañang ceremonial hall this afternoon.

In presenting his credentials, Ambassador Pilcher declared that the traditional commercial ties between the two countries during the last 200 years has played an important part in the development of Philippine economy.

He pledged to do his utmost in promoting Anglo-Philippine understanding and cooperation in every field to the mutual benefit of both nations and that of other nations of the free world.

The President declared that Philippine culture and institutions have been so shaped that while the Filipinos are an Asian people, they are at the same time proud of their western cultural and religious heritage.

He recalled the cordial relationship existing between the countries and said that geography has not been a barrier in the development of mutually beneficial commercial ties and close friendship between them.

The Philippines and the United Kingdom have fought side by side in defense of democratic ideals and fundamental human freedoms, the Chief Executive said, and added that their association in the South East Asia Treaty Organization and in the Colombo Plan is an eloquent indication of the mutuality of interests of the two countries.

The British diplomat arrived at Malacañang shortly before 5 p.m., accompanied by Pedro Angara Aragon, foreign affairs protocol officer, and Capt. Eustaquio Meim, junior presidential aide.

After reviewing the military guard of honor made up of elements of the Presidential Guard Battalion, Ambassador Pilcher was met by Col. Jorge Delarmente, senior aide-de-camp to the President.

Toast in basi, were exchanged after the ceremony for the presentation of credentials. The diplomatic rite was witnessed by Cabinet members and officials of the UK Embassy.

The British envoy holds the rank of Commander in the Most Distinguished Order of St. Michael and St. George. He replaces former UK Ambassador to the Philippines George Lisle Glutton, and he has served the British foreign office in China, Japan, Italy, and Spain before being assigned to the Philippines.

The Cabinet this evening approved a plan allowing Filipinos abroad to invest in development projects in the Philippines.

The Cabinet action was prompted by the President's desire to tap all available resources to shore up the country's shaky economy.

The Cabinet finally approved the controversial plan, proposed to the President by Filipino investors late last year.

Malacañang said the Cabinet stamped its approval on the plan after it was favorably endorsed to the President's advisory body by a Cabinet committee headed by Finance Secretary Jaime Hernandez. Other members of the committee were the secretary of justice, the secretary of commerce, and the chairman of the National Economic Council.

In approving the proposal, the Cabinet also ratified the rules and regulations to govern the participation of Filipino investors abroad in the country's development projects.

The Cabinet also endorsed the plan of Foreign Affairs Secretary Felixberto M. Serrano to resolve the current controversy over the United States plan to raise the dollar equivalent from P2 to P2.50 in the acquisition of raw cotton from the U. S.

September 24.—PRESIDENT Garcia today directed Justice Secretary Alejo Mabanag to submit a complete report on the current investigations being conducted on reported dummies and delinquent forest concessionaires.

The President said that the Department of Justice faced a tough job in its current task of unearthing these malefactors but spurred the department to carry on with redoubled efforts, as these alleged irregularities were causing the government to lose several millions of pesos in uncollected concessionaires' fees.

The Chief Executive was irked on receiving reports that some 80 per cent of forest concessions all over the country were operated by alien-sponsored dummies and that delinquent concessionaires were behind in their fees could total P6 million.

The case of delinquent forest concession holders and dummies had been brought to the attention of the President by Justice Buenaventura Ocampo, chairman of the Presidential Committee on Administration Performance Efficiency.

According to Ocampo, five concessionaires alone owed the government a total of P349,398.95 representing unpaid forest charges, in spite of repeated demands for payment by the director of forestry.

The PCAPE chairman reported there were many more such delinquent concessionaires to be verified from the records of the Bureau of Forestry and the Bureau of Internal Revenue and that the estimated unpaid forest fees could total P5.6 million.

Investigations conducted by PCAPE men also disclosed that in their recent inspection trips in the field, they had actually seen aliens operating machinery and supervising workers in logging operations and that during pay days, Filipino laborers received their pay direct from aliens.

The President cancelled his scheduled callers today, as he was slightly indisposed. He spent the day in his bedroom working over some papers and conferring with various Malacañang assistants who consulted him on routine matters.

In the afternoon, he had a brief conference with Press Secretary Jose C. Nable, who found him atmerienda. Nable said that the President's simple merienda consisted of chocolate, fried camote, and some biscuits.

Asked by his press secretary how he was, the President replied: "I'm feeling fine."

September 25.—PRESIDENT Garcia this morning called upon customs collectors and appraisers all over the country to help the Administration ferret out anomalies and irregularities in the Bureau of Customs, which are entailing the government annual losses in revenue amounting to millions of pesos.

The Chief Executive made this appeal during the courtesy call in Malacañang of the customs collectors and appraisers who are in Manila for their fourth annual conference.

During the call the President urged the conferees to try their best to enforce the navigational laws of the country to avoid the unnecessary loss of lives and property by conducting a more rigid inspection of the vessels before allowing them to leave port.

Customs Commissioner Eleuterio Capapas, who accompanied the group, informed the President that there is an increase in the collection of the bureau and that "the trend indicates a better outlook in the coming years."

The Chief Executive expressed gratification over the report but urged them to continue exerting more effort to further increase the collection, which he said will help a lot in financing some of the economic projects being initiated by the government.

Also with the conferees was Deputy Commissioner Pablo Mariano.

After receiving the customs group, the President conferred with PHHC Manager Bernardo Torres and Board Member Antonio Barredo regarding the sale to tenants of the government housing firm's Baesa property and the development of the Parañaque project.

The Chief Executive told them that in the sale of these pieces of property ample safeguard must be given the tenants in order that they will not fall victims to unscrupulous middle men.

Earlier the President received the officers of the SKAL (Philippines), the local affiliate of the SKAL International, an association of travel and tourist executives all over the world, who came to pay their respect prior to their departure for Hamburg, Germany, to participate in the convention of the international organization.

The association informed the President that they will work for the holding in the Philippines of the convention of the SKAL next year.

Officers of the association who called at Malacañang were Jose O. Cobarrubias, president; Ernest Parsons of the Pan American, vice-president; Jose Rodas of the Philippine Travel Bureau, secretary; Felipe Juico of the Philippine Tourist and Travel Association, Inc.; and Commissioner Modesto Farolan of the PTTA.

Other callers of the President were Philippine Consuls Jose Teodoro, Jr., for New Orleans, and Generoso Provido for Sidney, Australia, who came to pay their respect to the Chief Executive.

President Garcia today pushed through his project for the dispersal of industrial centers by directing the National Economic Council to conduct studies that would lead to the immediate implementation of this plan.

In a directive to NEC Chairman Jose Locsin, the President was specific in stating that the people should be given a fuller participation in the economic development of the country. He mentioned in particular the employment benefits that would be enjoyed by the people in the rural areas.

President Garcia also emphasized that the dispersal of industrial centers should be based on the suitability of the natural resources of the various regions, including the available manpower.

This approach to the economic development of the country would widen the economic base of our economic life, he stated.

The President emphasized an important point, that the NEC study various methods by which the government could provide for reasonable incentive and assistance to private enterprise in order to speed up the establishment of these industrial centers in the rural areas.

President Garcia underscored the importance of his project when he asked the NEC to give these studies top priority. He also directed the NEC to submit a report as early as possible.

THIS afternoon the President lashed anew at the opposition parties and branded as “foolish” the latter’s charges that the Chief Executive has misused his P10 million contingent fund for political purposes.

At his weekly press conference, the President reacted sharply to the decision of the Commission on Elections directing the General Auditing Office to review the disbursements in the P10 million contingent fund.

President Garcia stressed that all disbursements in his contingent funds pass through the GAO for auditing and his personal reaction was that of a man whose integrity was challenged by questioning the validity of his expenditures.

In branding as “foolish” opposition charges that the President has misused his contingent fund, President Garcia said the P10 million is being utilized for financial assistance to victims of public calamities.

“We cannot schedule typhoons, fires, and floods,” the President angrily retorted during the press conference.

He pointed out that disbursements for aid from his contingent funds are not covered by the 45-day ban against public work doles.

During his press conference, the President:

1. Scotched reports that the Philippine delegation to the military advisers' conference in Bangkok of the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization has advocated an aggressive stand against the Laotian rebels;
2. Supported Sen. Arturo M. Tolentino's stand that civil service officials and employees could attend political rallies and help voters to exercise their right of suffrage during elections;
3. Admitted having been previously informed of plans to file charges against Gov. Jose Briones of Cebu and Mayor Ramon Duterte of Cebu City but denied having seen the formal indictment against these officials; and
4. Went on record against the imposition of death penalty for grafters in the government, it being "unreasonable, cruel and against the Constitution."

After his press conference, the President received the members of the presidential backpay committee composed of Pedro Aguilar, Ruben de Castro, and Rodolfo V. Ocampo.

President Garcia also received Dr. Jacob Schenkman, international aviation consultant, who is here in the course of his survey of Southeast Asian countries.

September 26.—PRESIDENT Garcia this morning conferred with Foreign Affairs Secretary Felixberto Serrano on the progress of the bases negotiations his department is undertaking with U. S. Ambassador Charles Bohlen.

Serrano formally reported to the Chief Executive that there has been an agreement in principle between him and Ambassador Bohlen on the shortening of the duration of the lease on the use of American bases in the Philippines from 99 years, as embodied in the 1947 agreement, to 25 years. This reduction agreement, he added, will be signed next week.

Other matters brought up during the two-hour conference were the question of consultation on the war time use of the American bases and other agreements which will be formally announced later.

Earlier, the President and the First Lady tendered a breakfast in honor of Philippine Minister to New York and Mrs. Raul Leuterio and Mrs. Sol Ramirez, wife of the Philippine Consul General in Los Angeles, California.

Present during the breakfast were Speaker and Mrs. Daniel Z. Romualdez, Secretary Serrano, and Mr. and Mrs. Fernando C. Campos.

President Garcia today renewed his assurance that the November elections will be clean and honest even as he issued another directive to Brig. Gen. Isagani Campo, chief of the Philippine Constabulary, to maintain his troops on the alert to prevent election frauds and violence.

The reassurance was made at a conference held at the RPS Lapu-Lapu with Speaker Daniel Z. Romualdez, general campaign manager of the Nacionalista Party.

At the conference, Speaker Romualdez reported that "in desperation, many Liberal Party adherents are resorting to violence" in some localities.

The presidential directive to Gen. Campo described the political situation throughout the country in order to insure a clean, honest, and orderly election.

Speaker Romualdez also reported that NP senatorial candidates "working as a closely-knit team" are pulling ahead in the electoral race by batting for the Filipino First policy of the NP administration.

The Speaker asserted that he was sure that six or seven senatorial bets would be elected in November and added that if all the NP senatorial bets worked harder, it would be a clean sweep in the elections.

The President then received a progress report on the bases talks from Foreign Affairs Secretary Felixberto Serrano, after which he received former President Sergio Osmeña, who was accompanied by Health Secretary Elpidio Valencia.

The Chief Executive today constituted a committee to study the proposed sale of estates acquired by the People's Homesite and Housing Corporation with the view to protecting the interest of tenant-occupants for whose benefit the estates had been expropriated.

The President directed the committee to devise ways and means of providing proper safeguards so that the tenant-occupants would not fall victim to unscrupulous speculators and middlemen.

The committee is composed of Labor Secretary Angel Castaño, Social Welfare Administrator Amparo P. Villamor, and Economic Coordination Administrator Pablo Cruz.

The President referred particularly to the Gonzales estate located in Baesa, Caloocan, Rizal, with an area of 871,982 square meters which the PHHC had acquired through expropriation in 1954.

The PHHC proposes to sell the property to tenant-occupants for whose benefit it had been expropriated and to utilize the proceeds to finance projects currently being undertaken by the state housing firm but which had been brought to a standstill owing to lack of funds.

The Chief Executive was prompted to create the committee following a report submitted yesterday noon by PHHC officials that the tenant-occupants were offering to pay the purchase price to the PHHC in cash. Considering the huge amount involved, about P3 million, the President feared the possibility that the tenants might be forced to mortgage their lots to be able to pay for them, eventually making the property, if not redeemed, to be owned by one or two wealthy persons.

"Such circumstances will give rise again to the same problem which the government tried to solve by expropriation in 1954," the President said.

PHHC officials who called on the President at Malacañang yesterday noon to consult him on the proposed sale of the estate were former Gov. Bernardo Torres, general manager, and Antonio Barredo, director.

The President this afternoon received a telegram from the Confederation of Government Employees congratulating and thanking him for his endorsement of the liberal interpretation of the Civil Service law on the right of suffrage of government employees.

The interpretation was that it was right for civil service employees to discuss the merits of political candidates without endorsing and working for their respective candidates.

Official Week in Review: September 27 – October 3, 1959

September 27.—PRESIDENT Garcia left this morning for a 10-day tour of Mindanao provinces.

Leaving on board the RPS Lapu-Lapu, the President will arrive tomorrow afternoon in Iligan City where he will confer with government officials and employees in the Iligan City auditorium. A rally is also scheduled on the same day.

President Garcia today announced REDECO discovery of oil in commercial quantities in Toledo, Cebu. He called it an initial step in the establishment of the Philippines as world producer and supplier of petroleum and petroleum products.

The revelation was made during a press conference held on board the RPS Lapu-Lapu this morning as the vessel steamed out of Manila bay on the start of a ten-day Mindanao stumping tour.

Calling it seventeenth “first” of the Nacionalista administration, the President expressed the hope the country will soon be able to write off annual importation of oil worth $76 million and even export petroleum and its by-products to neighboring states in the near future.

The Chief Executive told the press conference that he ordered Deputy Governor Andres Castillo of the Central Bank to extend all assistance to REDECO for procurement of needed materials and equipment supplies without prejudicing other oil exploration companies now engaged in prospecting for oil in other Philippine provinces.

President Garcia pointed out the great economic significance of this event to the country. He voiced his hope that further oil discoveries will be made in Panay and Mindoro.

Earlier this morning, the President and Mrs. Garcia and members of the presidential party to Mindanao heard mass celebrated before an improvised altar set up in the yacht dinning saloon.

The REDECO oil strike was the major topic of conversation during breakfast which immediately followed the mass.

After reading the morning newspapers, President Garcia called the press conference and made the announcement of discovery. The Chief Executive then proceeded to his cabin to work on pending state papers he brought along for study during the trip.

Late in the afternoon, President Garcia conferred with Sen. Lorenzo Sumulong, chairman of Senate Foreign Affairs Committee, mostly on local political situation.

The President this morning also dispatched the following message to Vice-President Macapagal: “Mrs. Garcia and I wish you many happy returns on your 49th birthday anniversary.”

After supper, the President resumed work on various official documents and state papers.

September 28.—PRESIDENT Garcia and his party arrived at Iligan City at 4 o’clock this afternoon and was met by a large crowd that jammed the wharf.

The welcome party was led by Sen. Domocao Alonto, Rep. Laurentino Badilles, Gov. Salvador Lluch, City Mayor Mariano Badilles, and labor leaders and NP followers. Placards greeting the President and his party mushroomed at the wharf just as the RPS Lapu-Lapu dropped anchor.

When the President and Mrs. Garcia appeared at the yacht’s bridge, they were roundly applauded by the huge crowd, believed to be the biggest to turn out in the city.

After disembarking, the President and his party proceeded to the St. Michael church to hear a Te Deum mass.

From the church, the President went to the auditorium for a conference with city and provincial officials.

The President is scheduled to install the officers of the Iligan Lions Club at the Bascon Hotel at 7 o'clock tonight. At 8 o'clock President Garcia will speak at a political rally.

September 29.—PRESIDENT Garcia today assured the advancement of the Philippine Muslim population and announced the establishment next year of the proposed University of Mindanao.

He lauded Marawi City as the “center of Muslim culture,” and expressed hoped that the city will become the “Cairo of the Philippines.”

The President took the opposition to task on the issue of graft and corruption and said the Administration is “exerting all efforts to ferret out venalities in the government while the opposition forces do nothing but shout about them without presenting any evidence so that parties responsible can be punished.”

Explaining the Administration's Filipino First policy, the President said, “It calls for greater Filipino participation in the economy of the country. For the last four centuries, the nation's economic policies were defined by foreign rulers and were designed to serve their own interests.”

Early this morning, the President and the First Lady heard high mass at Saint Michael church in Iligan City.

After breakfast at the residence of Gov. Salvador Lluch of Lanao del Norte, the presidential party motored 36 kilometers to Marawi City in Lanao del Sur, where he and Mrs. Garcia inaugurated the P100,000 Lanao del Sur provincial capitol.

Lunch in his honor and his party's was served at the Constabulary officers' clubhouse in Camp Keithley. From the camp, the President addressed a big rally at Plaza Cabili and then returned to the RPS Lapu-Lapu in Iligan City.

The Chief Executive had supper on board the Lapu-Lapu and then worked until late at night on state papers with the assistance of Palace aides.

September 30.—PRESIDENT Garcia this morning said at a press conference he gave on board the yacht Lapu-Lapu that the Nacionalista Party has sewed up the election in Lanao del Sur and Lanao del Norte.

President Garcia announced at the press conference he would take steps, including the possible re-examination of mining laws, to prevent the infant oil industry here from falling into alien control.

He made the announcement after he was informed of apprehensions in various quarters, including the press, that newly discovered oil wells may be gobbled up by alien monopolies.

President Garcia met newsmen aboard the RPS Lapu-Lapu adrift on Iligan Bay preparatory to steaming to Cagayan de Oro City in the third leg of his 10-day Mindanao stump.

The Chief Executive likewise defended his brother's (Cosme Garcia) possession of oil shares in the Continental Oil Co.

“This is better than giving the shares to aliens,” President Garcia said by way of replying to reports questioning his brother's acquisition of stocks in that firm.

At the same time President Garcia lashed at the Liberals whom he charged with having awarded oil concessions to foreigners in the country.

However, he admitted the timidity of Filipino investors to venture in the vital minerals industry. But he indicated he would take steps to create a “favorable atmosphere” to attract Filipino capital to the enterprise.

In the press conference aboard the yacht Lapu-Lapu, President Garcia said:

1. The Philippines has received the nomination of outgoing United States Ambassador Charles Bohlen’s successor.
2. He will take up the thorny bases issue and American pledges in the mutual assistance pact with United States Secretary of Defense Neil McElfooy, who is expected here next week.
3. He would name a new chairman of the Commission on Elections sometime in November.

The President rested the whole day in preparation for his visit to Cagayan de Oro City. The Lapu-Lapu is expected to dock at 5 p.m. today in that city’s port. After military honors, a private reception will follow on board the yacht.

At 6 p.m. the Chief Executive will hold a conference with national, provincial, and municipal officials at the Boy Scouts social hall.

It will be followed by a rally at 9 p.m. at the city kiosk, where the President will be introduced by Vice-Mayor A. Chavez.

President Garcia is expected tomorrow at Maimbung, Camiguin Island. At 7 a.m. he will have breakfast at the residence of Ricardo Reyes and, at 8:30 a.m., there will be a rally. After lunch at the Cabaujan beach resort, he will leave for Nasipit, Butuan, where he is expected to arrive at 4 p.m.

After a conference with Agusan officials on board the Lapu-Lapu, the President will speak at a rally at Nasipit and Butuan City. He is expected to return to Nasipit at 11:00 p.m.

October 1.—PRESIDENT Garcia urged the people to vote for the entire Nacionalista senatorial ticket at Mambajao, Camiguin Island; sub-province of Misamis Oriental.

Entering the fourth day of a scheduled nine-day stumping tour of Mindanao, the President compared achievements of the Nacionalista administration with those of the Liberal regime and said that more has been accomplished for the people by the NP now than by the Liberals in eight years of LP rule.

The presidential party on board the RPS Lapu-Lapu arrived at Mambajao early this morning. They were met at the wharf by government officials headed by Lt. Gov. Jose Neri and a large crowd of townspeople eager to see and meet President Garcia, the first President who is not a candidate ever to set foot on that tiny island.

After breakfast at the residence of Ricardo Reyes, the Chief Executive addressed a big rally at the plaza of Mambajao together with Sens. Lim and Tolentino. The latter is the NP assistant general campaign manager this elections.

Mrs. Garcia, Mrs. Lily Quimson, and Mrs. Caridad Almendras spoke briefly at the rally. They appealed to the people to cast their votes for the NP senatorial candidates.

After the rally, the presidential party were honored at a luncheon-picnic at Cabuaan Beach Resort.

The RPS Lapu-Lapu weighed anchor shortly after one p.m. bound for Nasipit, Agusan, next stop on the President's itinerary.

After a Te Deum at the Nasipit church, the party proceeded to Butuan City and conferred with national, provincial, and local officials.

The President spoke at a well-attended rally on the plaza of Butuan City after attending dinner in his honor at the residence of Agusan Gov. Felixberto Dagani.

From Butuan City the presidential party returned to Nasipit where they spent the night on board the yacht.

October 2.—PRESIDENT Garcia landed at Surigao, Surigao, at 5 p.m. today, his entourage still reeling from a rough, dizzying seven-hour voyage aboard the RPS Lapu-Lapu through choppy waves in the Mindanao Sea and the Surigao Strait.

The yacht rocked as it plowed through the Surigao Strait, forcing most of the passengers to slump in cabin beds. Except for the First Lady, Mrs. Amy Lim, and a few newsmen, most of the passengers failed to have their lunch.

Before taking to the shore, the Chief Executive faced newsmen and, during the interview, attacked the Liberal and Grand Alliance leaders who had charged his administration with jamming the mails to prevent circulation of their propaganda materials.

"Are the Liberals alone using the mails?" the President asked pointedly.

He also labelled as the "hypocrisy of some politicians," in spiking charges that intelligence men were being mobilized to gather information against Vice-President Macapagal for using a government car assigned to him in the latter's political stumps.

He hit back at Grand Alliance charges that he had utilized the oil strike in Cebu for political propaganda. "If the oil announcement has a propaganda value, then why blame me?" he asked.

On the fifth lap of his 10-day swing of Mindanao, the President motored to the town church for a Te Deum and then addressed a mammoth political rally in Surigao.

October 3.—PRESIDENT and Mrs. Garcia were given a rousing welcome by a huge crowd upon their arrival in Ozamis City at 4 p.m. on board the RPS Lapu-Lapu on the seventh stop of a nine-day stumping tour of Mindanao.

From the Ozamis City wharf where they were mobbed by the crowd, the President and the First Lady proceeded to the church for Te Deum. From the church, President and Mrs. Garcia inaugurated the new branch building of the Development Bank of the Philippines.

The President then proceeded to the city hall, where he conferred with local officials on the problems and needs of their respective municipalities.

In the evening, the President spoke at a well-attended rally. Other speakers at the rally were Sens. Arturo Tolentino and Rosseller Lim and Mesdames Lili Quimson and Caridad Almendras, who campaigned for their husbands, Sofronio Quimson and Alejandro Almendras, NP candidates for senator.

The President had supper at the residence of Ozamis City Vice-Mayor Rafael Gurbuxani.

At breakfast, the President noticed the conspicuous absence of several members of the presidential party. He inquired into their condition when informed that the missing passengers were still down with seasickness after a rough voyage last night across Surigao Strait.

After giving an informal press conference to newsmen members of the party, the President retired to his cabin and worked on state papers and other official documents, assisted by Palace aides.

At 10 a.m., the RPS Lapu-Lapu was cruising at 13 knots off Iligan City in calm smooth sea despite overcast sky.

Official Week in Review: October 4 – October 10, 1959

October 4.—PRESIDENT Garcia urged the people to vote for the entire senatorial ticket and local candidates of the Nacionalista Party in a grand rally in Dipolog, Zamboanga del Norte.

The President enumerated the accomplishments of the Administration in Mindanao and all over the country with facts and figures in his appeal for popular support.

The presidential party arrived in Puluan on board the RPS Lapu-Lapu at about 4:30 p.m. after a six-hour trip from Ozamis City. The President and the First Lady were met by a huge enthusiastic crowd in Puluan and in Dipolog. People several feet deep lined the street to welcome the presidential party. The party arrived in Dipolog after motoring from Puluan for less than an hour.

The President and the First Lady and the rest of the presidential party left Ozamis City about 9 a.m. after hearing mass.

After mass, the President and the First Lady led the rest of the party in singing “Happy Birthday” on the occasion of the birthday anniversary of Francisco de Leon, Manila Chronicle reporter covering Malacañang.

The President then conferred with NARIC Board Member Ramon Enriquez and Assistant General Manager Jose Drilon on offers to export rice and corn. Two offers were approved at the conference.

October 5.—PRESIDENT Garcia was awarded today a citation by Mindanao Colleges for his courageous espousal of an independent policy on foreign and economic affairs, for the Administration’s progressive program of industrialization and for more equitable distribution of wealth.

After the award ceremony, the President and the First Lady were principal guests at a cornerstone laying ceremony of the new science and technology building of the school.

Earlier this morning, President and Mrs. Garcia heard mass before an improvised altar in the dining saloon of the RPS Lapu-Lapu.

After breakfast on board the ship, the Chief Executive made a side trip to Dapitan town to view the reconstructed Rizal house. The President addressed a public rally on the town plaza before proceeding to Dipolog airport where he boarded the Fokker friendship plane for Davao City.

The presidential plane landed at Davao’s Sasa airport at 10:20 this morning, where he was met by Davao officials and people from all walks of life.

From the airport, the presidential party motored to San Pedro church in the city to attend a Te Deum.

After the luncheon given by the city and the province of Davao at the Boy Scouts building, the President conferred with national, provincial, and municipal officials.

In the afternoon, the President and the First Lady were honored at a merienda given by Kaliwat sa Bohol, an organization of Boholano residents in Davao, at the residence of Gaudioso Tiongco.

The presidential party had dinner at the residence of former General Services Secretary Alejandro Almendras. After dinner, the Chief Executive motored to the Davao City plaza where he spoke at a rally.

October 6.—PRESIDENT Garcia returned today from his 10-day inspection tour of Mindanao equipped with fresh data with which to buttress plans of his administration for the development of that second largest island in the country.

Using sea, air, and land transportation, the President in 10 days covered eight provinces, informing the people what his administration had done and intended to do for the undeveloped localities.

The Chief Executive informed the people that thousands of kilometers of highways and feeder roads have already been constructed and are being constructed, crisscrossing vast areas of virgin lands to hasten their development. He also reported on progress being made on plans to put up an integrated steel mill in Iligan and to exploit the nickel mines in Surigao.

The people in all the provinces visited responded enthusiastically and pledged their support to the program of their government to make Mindanao contribute more effectively in the Administration's efforts to stabilize the nation's economy. Provinces covered were Lanao del Norte, Lanao del Sur, Agusan, Surigao, Misamis Oriental, Misamis Occidental, Zamboanga del Norte, and Davao.

On the political aspect of the trip, which was secondary in the 10-day tour, the President expressed optimism that Mindanao is all sewed up for the Nacionalista candidates.

The President, during the tour, also took occasion to inquire into the urgent needs of the localities, and authorized the release of about P200,000 for the construction of feeder roads, puericulture centers, schools, and waterworks, and for the repair of typhoon-damaged public markets.

Landing at Nichols airbase about 1 p.m., after a two-hour plane trip from Davao, the President motored direct to Malacañang and held a series of conferences with Palace assistants who consulted him on various pending matters.

In the evening, the President received U. S. Defense Secretary and Mrs. Neil N. McElroy, who called to pay their respects following their recent arrival in Manila in the course of a tour of defense installations in the Far East.

Later in the evening, President and Mrs. Garcia honored the McElroys with a formal dinner held in Malacañang.

October 7.—PRESIDENT Garcia today closeted himself with Malacañang officials in an effort to dispose of the pending state papers which had piled up while he was on a ten-day inspection tour of eight Mindanao provinces.

In his bedroom the President received Assistant Executive Secretary Enrique C. Quema, who consulted him on several state papers, and then Judge Salvador Esguerra, Malacañang legal adviser.

He likewise received Assistant Executive Secretary Mariano R. Logarta, who also brought several papers to the President.

During his meetings with these Palace officers, the President signed several proclamations. One of the proclamations signed by the President was the extension of the anti-TB fund drive to December 31, 1959. The President extended the period of the fund campaign to be able to reach the goal set for the drive.

He had stressed the importance of the fund campaign to check the spread of the so-called "white plague" which, the President said, is the No. 1 killer in the Philippines.

IN the afternoon, the President received Speaker Daniel Z. Romualdez to take up party matters. The House leader appraised the Chief Executive of the intramural rifts within the Nacionalista Party which may endanger the changes of Administration candidates in the coming elections.

Romualdez is the national campaign manager of the NP.

The House leader also took up with the President, the latter's proposed trip to Tacloban, Leyte, to attend the annual celebration of the Leyte landing by the American forces of liberation some 14 years ago.

In the evening, the President received several Cabinet members who took up their individual problems with the Chief Executive.

Press Secretary Jose C. Nable also saw the President.

After conferring individually with the Cabinet members, the President presided over the regular meeting of the Cabinet.

The Cabinet today approved the barter of surplus rice and corn with essential and non-essential commodities as a temporary arrangement to provide added impetus in the production of these staples.

President Garcia took up with the Cabinet this evening the expected surplus rice and corn production this year, which according to present estimates may exceed last year's crops by 20 per cent.

President Garcia had previously directed the National Rice and Corn Corporation to look for permanent foreign markets for the excess rice and corn production as the local prices are reported taking a downward swing and may discourage farmers from increasing their annual yield.

Reports reaching the President said that the expected production this year in rice is 250,000 metric tons.

The President, during his tour of Mindanao provinces, found out that rice and corn plants in the fields augur well for a second bumper crop this year.

The Cabinet this evening also agreed to barter the present surplus stocks of 24,000 metric tons of rice and 8,000 metric tons of corn.

Malacañang said that the President approved the exportation of the excess stocks at P480 per metric ton of rice and P180 per metric ton of corn.

The prices as approved by the Cabinet are believed above the prevailing prices in the local markets.

In authorizing the barter of these surplus stocks, the Cabinet ruled that the incoming goods should be proportioned as follows: 40 per cent non-essential goods and 60 per cent essential commodities.

Press Secretary Nable said that the arrangement is merely a provisional system pending the cultivation of permanent foreign markets for these staples.

The President said that the country should find permanent markets in order not to discourage the local farmers, as the price of rice in the market has followed a downward trend.

President Garcia had suggested Japan for the corn stocks and Hongkong or Ceylon for the country's surplus rice.

Meanwhile, the President also created a three-man committee to study ways and means of reconciling the industrial and agricultural aspects of the fertilizer problem.

Named to the committee were Chairman Jose Locsin of the National Economic Council, chairman; and Agriculture Secretary Juan de G. Rodriguez and Commerce Secretary Pedro Hernaez, members.

The President took up the fertilizer problem, as he recalled that in his ten-day tour of Mindanao provinces he was told that farmers had protested the high prices of fertilizer.

The farmers informed him that there is insufficiency in fertilizer stocks to meet their requirements.

However, the President, in tackling this problem of high prices, found out that fertilizer producers were faced with competition from importers of the commodity.

The producers said that while they paid 25 per cent margin in the importation of the raw materials which are converted into fertilizer, the importers of the commodity are exempt from the payment of this Central Bank fee in accordance with the statute.

The President pointed out he could not totally ban the importation of fertilizer, as local production was not enough to meet the demands of the farmers.

October 8.—PRESIDENT Garcia today announced that construction of the Manila Railroad Company extension line to Matnog, Sorsogon, the southernmost tip of Luzon, will start early next year.

The announcement was made during a conference with Gov. Juan Frivaldo of Sorsogon in the President's residence on Bohol Avenue, Quezon City, this morning.

The new line, the President said, will serve the rest of the Bicol region and also the provinces of Samar, Masbate, and Leyte. At present, he added, there is already a regular daily ferry service between Sorsogon and Samar, Masbate, and Leyte.

Gov. Frivaldo reported to the President on the current political situation in Sorsogon and expressed confidence in the victory of the entire NP senatorial ticket in the province.

Earlier in the morning, the President played host to visiting executives of the Pepsi-Cola Bottling Company and their wives at a breakfast at Bohol Avenue.

Among those present were Donald M. Kendall, president, Pepsi-Cola International, Ltd.; Herbert Barnet, president, Pepsi-Cola Co., New York; Milward W. Martin, senior vice-president, Pepsi-Cola Co., N. Y.; Thomas Ebnezz, vice-president, Pepsi-Cola Co., N. Y.; Herman Schaefer, vice-president, Pepsi-Cola International, Ltd.; and William Moran, Jr., president, Pepsi-Cola Bottling Co. (Phil.) and their respective wives.

Sen. Pedro Sabido and Roberto Sabido also attended the breakfast given by the Chief Executive in honor of the visitors.

Other presidential callers this morning consisted mostly of governors and mayors who reported on their local problems, the political situation in their respective provinces and municipalities, and on the progress of their campaign for the NP senatorial candidates.

Among them were Govs. Conrado Estrella of Pangasinan, Jose Dinglasan of Capiz, Feliciano Leviste of Batangas, and Maj. Arturo Sevilla, NP official candidate for governor of Marinduque.

President Garcia commuted today the death sentence of prisoner Prisco Pesimo, who had been convicted for robbery and homicide, to life imprisonment.

In commuting the death sentence to life imprisonment, the President took into consideration the following circumstances:

- (1) The prisoner Prisco Pesimo is a first offender, having had no previous criminal record;
- (2) He is illiterate, his schooling being only five months in grade one;
- (3) He was only 24 years old when he committed the crime;.
- (4) There was no marked determination on his part to kill the victim as evidently the purpose of Pesimo and his companion was to rob only but in so doing Pesimo met the strong resistance of the victim who grappled with him, resulting incidentally in the victim's death;
- (5) If the convict only voluntarily pleaded guilty, such plea could have been considered as a mitigating circumstance in his favor, in which case the maximum penalty that could be imposed on him is life imprisonment only; and
- (6) Since his commitment to prison on October 16, 1956, Pesimo's conduct has been excellent.

The commutation was favorably endorsed by Malacañang Legal Adviser Salvador V. Esguerra. Pesimo had been sentenced to death by the Court of First Instance of Camarines Sur. On review, the death sentence was affirmed by the Supreme Court.

The prisoner had been convicted for robbery and homicide for the killing of Alfredo Cabalquinto whose store in barrio Balonbon, Calabanga, Camarines Sur, Pesimo and a companion robbed on March 18, 1955.

October 9.—THE PRESIDENT today expressed gratification over a reported announcement of the United States Department of Agriculture that it will allow the importation of raw sugar in excess of 1959 quotas starting this month for refining and storage.

The President said this new development in the American sugar market will boost Philippine economy, as it will increase the country's dollar income and volume of trade and encourage local planters to increase production of this commodity.

The announcement was conveyed to the Chief Executive by Ramon Paguia, administrator, Sugar Quota Administration, who reported this morning on his recent trip to Washington, D. C., to work for an increase in the Philippines' sugar quota.

Paguia informed the President that the Philippines had already filled its 1959 sugar quota of 980,000 short tons amounting to $110 million. In view of the announcement, the country planned to export an additional 50 to 75 thousand short tons, equivalent to $5 to $7.5 million, depending on the shipping facilities available, Paguia said.

Earlier this morning, President Garcia received Sen. Jiuji Kasai of Japan, who paid a courtesy call at Malacañang. A director of the Philippine-Japan Society, the Japanese solon was accompanied to Malacañang by Baguio City Mayor Alfonso Tabora.

A sterling silver Bible from Israel was presented to the Chief Executive by Max Abelman of Brooklyn, New York, who was another courtesy caller this morning.

Board Chairman Juan J. Carlos and Director Teofilo A. Zosa of the Manila Railroad Company reported to the President on routine matters affecting the MRR. President Garcia also received Director Manuel T. Leelin of the People's Homesite and Housing Corporation, who briefed him on the latest developments regarding the state housing firm's efforts to dispose of undeveloped PHHC property in the provinces.

Other presidential callers this morning were Cresencio Richards and Sebastian Ugarte, Agriculture Secretary Juan de G. Rodriguez, Rep. Jose Leido of Mindoro Oriental, Rep. Reynaldo Honrado of Surigao, Col. Constantino C. Navarro, and Mayor Manuel Varquez and ex-Mayor Arsenio Sayas, both of Balingasag, Misamis Oriental.

President Garcia sent today a message of felicitations to Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek on the occasion of the 48th anniversary observance of the Republic of China tomorrow.

The message was handed by Foreign Secretary Felixberto Serrano this afternoon to Ambassador Tuan Mao-Ian of the Chinese embassy in Manila for transmission to Taipeh.

President Garcia today said his anti-graft campaign will “spare neither high nor low,” as he released what he called a “record conviction of 4,099” government officials and employees since he took over the reins of the administration.

During his press conference this afternoon, the President released a tabulated summary of his anti-graft drive in an effort to “correct any false impression which may arise in the public mind owing to patent distortions by the opposition parties.”

At the same time, he reiterated his challenge to the opposition parties “to show proof that any other administration, particularly the Liberal administration, can match my record in the relentless drive against corrupt elements in the government.”

According to the tabulated summary, a total of 11,870 cases of all types were prosecuted in court or administratively and 6,715 have already been decided resulting in the conviction of 4,099 officials and employees.

In his prepared statement, the President said the investigations were conducted without fear or favor. “The Administration’s broom has spared neither high nor low in an effort to make this government as free as possible from the taint of graft and corruption.”

President Garcia said that not much publicity has been given to these investigations before they were decided to protect the innocent and to give everybody ample opportunity to defend himself in court or before competent authorities.

The President appealed to the newsmen to give publicity to his record along the phase of stamping out corruption in the government in reply to the opposition charges that President Garcia has abetted graft in his administration.

President Garcia has been informed that the opposition candidates have been harping on the graft and corruption issue in Mindanao in an effort to rally the voters behind their minority standard-bearers.

At the press conference, the President:

1. Branded as “rash” the proposal to cut off diplomatic relations with the Taipeh government for its previous refusal to accept the undesirable Chinese elements here;
2. Refused to comment on the Guerrero-Robertson verbal tiff at a United Nations luncheon last week;
3. Said he may suspend Gov. Jose Briones of Cebu and Mayor Ramon Duterte of Cebu City if they are prosecuted in court;
4. Disclosed that United States Secretary of Defense Neil McElroy has promised to re-examine the assistance program his government had committed to the Philippines;
5. Announced he may resort to “tough measures” in the event the strike in the National Marketing Corporation would prevent the distribution of essential commodities during the Christmas season; and
6. Branded as intrigues fomented by the Liberals and opposition groups the so-called “junk Rodriguez” move among the Nacionalista senatorial candidates.

October 10.—PRESIDENT Garcia set the stage for the immediate establishment of an integrated steel industry in the country at a conference with officials of the National Steel and Shipyards Corporation (NASSCO) at his Bohol Avenue residence in Quezon City this morning.

Meeting with Nassco General Manager Bernardo Abrera and Director Ramon T. Jimenez, the President directed them to accelerate the completion of the necessary preliminary civil engineering works in the integrated steel mill in Iligan City.

The order to proceed with the initial construction phases in the establishment of this basic industry was pending completion of negotiations on the government's 51%-49% proposition to private groups interested in investing in the project.

At the hour-long conference, Abrera informed President Garcia of the progress of the Administration's ship-building program and reported the growing confidence of local shipowners in the ability and skill of Filipino naval engineers and technicians.

Abrera said that during the last few months they received eight orders for the lengthening of ships and that they are now working on the feasibility of mass-producing barges for interisland trade.

He said that final delivery of the first ship launched in the Philippines, the 1600-ton M/V Gen. Roxas, will be made to the General Shipping Co. sometime next month. Early next year, he added, the Bataan shipyards of the NASSCO will launch its second vessel, the M/V Gov. Benito Lopez, for the Southern Lines, Inc.

President Garcia also received Sen. Pacita M. Gonzalez, who reported on the overall political situation in Luzon, particularly in the Bicol region. The President also discussed the political situation in Batangas province with Sen. Claro M. Recto.

Philippine Consul to Kobe Hilario Llamas, here on home leave, also called on the Chief Executive to pay his respects.

The President this day ordered the immediate release of P120,000 appropriated in Republic Act No. 2608 for the payment of salary differentials owing to the adjustment of ranks of Army retirees.

The President issued the order upon the representation made by NP senatorial candidate Sofronio Quimson, who reported on the clamor of Army retirees for the implementation of the law.

Republic Act No. 2608, which was passed by Congress in its last regular session and approved by the President, adjusted the ranks of Army retirees to one rank higher upon retirement. The amount of P200,000 was appropriated to implement the law.

Quimson personally brought the order of the President to Budget Commissioner Dominador Aytona. He was assured by Commissioner Aytona that the salary differentials will be paid as soon as a list of Army retirees is secured from Camp Murphy.

Quimson brought the matter to the President after receiving requests from Army retirees for the implementation of the law. The Armed Forces retirees requested Quimson to make representations with the President in their behalf.

Quimson said that he also made representations with the Armed Forces of the Philippines so that the list of Army retirees could be furnished the Budget Commission early next week.

PRESIDENT Garcia this evening sought the assistance of the provincial press in drumming up interest and attention to his proposal for the dispersal of industrial centers to the rural areas.

The President made the appeal when he played as host and inducted the officers of the newly formed Provincial Press Association, at his Bohol Avenue residence in Quezon City.

Heading the officers of the provincial newsmen's organization are Nick Enciso, Zoilo Dejaresco, and Manuel Mondejar.

In his appeal to the provincial newsmen and editors, the President said his proposal, when fully implemented, would distribute the country's wealth more equitably.

He pointed out that about 88 per cent of the country's dollar allocation is concentrated in Manila and only a small portion goes to a few provinces.

In terms of employment, President Garcia said, his proposal would ease the unemployment problem in the rural areas and help relieve the idle labor force in Manila and suburbs.

He said there was no reason why the manpower in the provinces should be depleted. The President also pointed out that freedom of the press in the Philippines was never higher nor more respected than now.

During his administration, he said, this principle would be safe. He recalled that during his 36 years of service in the government, he had not in one way or another curtailed freedom of the press.

Official Week in Review: October 11 – October 17, 1959

October 11.—PRESIDENT Garcia this morning declared that whatever trade and commerce agreement the Philippines concludes with Japan in the future will be one that will help boost the agro-industrial-economic progress of the Administration.

The Chief Executive made this statement to the visiting Special Committee of the Japanese Diet on the economic development of South East Asia headed by Hisato Ichimada, who called on him at his Quezon City residence, accompanied by Japanese Ambassador to the Philippines Morio Yukawa.

During the hour-long conference the President and the committee exchanged views on the economic development of their respective countries as well as the conditions obtaining locally.

The Japanese committee informed the Chief Executive that there is a mark increase in the volume of trade between Japan and the Philippines. They expressed the hope that the volume of trade will continue to increase for the mutual benefit of both countries.

After his conference with the Japanese missionaries, the President and the First Lady motored to the V. Luna General Hospital to visit Gov. Salvador Lluch, who is confined in the hospital for gangrene.

The President was informed by Majors Generoso Esguerra and Andres Montano, attending physicians, that the condition of the governor is “much improved.”

The President and the First Lady expressed gratification over the medical pronouncement and hoped for the early recovery of Gov. Lluch. On hand to greet them were Mrs. Toribio Lluch, wife of the Lanao del Norte governor.

From the room of Gov. Lluch the couple dropped at the ward where Agent Epifanio del Rio, of the Presidential Security Unit is confined for injuries he suffered in an accident.

From the V. Luna Hospital the President and the First Lady returned to their Bohol Avenue, Quezon City, residence where they had lunch.

THIS evening the President directed the Armed Forces of the Philippines to extend all possible help to the squatters of Kamuning Road and South Avenue in Quezon City who want to transfer to a new site.

In answer to the request of the squatters who were ejected from their places by court order, President Garcia instructed Col. Jorge Delarmente, presidential senior aide-de-camp, to contact AFP headquarters so that the squatters could have all the help needed.

Meanwhile, President Garcia continued working this evening on pending state matters. He signed an executive order creating the municipality of Valenica in the province of Bukidnon. He also sent a wire to the Mayor of Zamboanga City declaring October 12 a special public holiday in that City.

October 12.—PRESIDENT Garcia directed Budget Commissioner Dominador Aytona to release P20,000 in order to step up the distribution of torrens titles to about 42,000 small farmers in rural areas.

In his directive President Garcia pointed out that the distribution of titles in the barrios will bolster the credit facilities of the small farmers.

The directive was issued at a conference with Commissioner Antonio H. Noblejas, Assistant Commissioner Gregorio Bilog, Jr., and Special Investigator Cesar Vergara, all of the Land Registration Commission.

President Garcia said that with the release of the P20,000, the LRC can send field teams to distribute certificates of titles direct to the respective owners in the barrios.

The new procedure has paid off, as owners have already paid the registration fees and assurance fund premiums, with a marked increase in government revenue from P3,759,201.94 in 1957 to P4,417,944.25 in 1958, according to Noblejas.

Earlier, the President received Prince Sadrudin Aga Khan, son of the late Aga Khan and brother of Aly Khan. The Prince is representing the United Nations high commissioner for refugees and will confer with Philippine Government officials on Philippine participation in refugee problems.

Prince Sadrudin came from Geneva and arrived yesterday. He is leaving on Thursday for Tokyo to enlist also the aid of the Japanese Government on the refugee problems.

He was accompanied to Malacañang by SWA Administrator Amparo Villamor; Paul Edwards, UNICEF resident representative; and Julius Maloles of the Department of Foreign Affairs and Manuel G. Zamora of Malacañang, protocol officer.

The President also conferred with Col. Urbano Caldoza, CAA administrator, on the problem of land expropriation for the extension of the jet runway of the Manila International Airport.

Property owners affected by the extension of the runway, led by Jose Lopez, informed President Garcia that the appraised value of their land was not enough to pay their obligations with the Development Bank of the Philippines. However, they were willing to turn over their land with a little increase in the purchase price.

The President also directed Administrator Manuel Castañeda of the Land Tenure Administration to look into the petition of the occupants of the Garcia Estate in Davao City for the expropriation of the estate and its resale to the occupants.

Members of the Board of Directors of the Manila Hotel Company also saw President Garcia to bring to his attention the problems facing the state firm. Those who saw President Garcia were Sofronio G. Rivera, vice-chairman and general manager, Jose M. Roces, Geminiano Yabut, Alfredo A. Lozano, and Baltazar M. Pascual.

October 13.—PRESIDENT Garcia today was assured by Rep. Faustino Tobia that the candidates of the Nacionalista Party from the senatorial down to the municipal level have the biggest chance of winning in November in the province of Ilocos Sur.

The Ilocos Sur solon informed President Garcia that a strong factor in the NP victory in his province is the improvement of the economic condition of the masses due to the benefits they derive from the Virginia tobacco industry.

Rep. Tobia also informed President Garcia that the peace and order situation in his province “is improving.”

The Nacionalistas in Ilocos Sur are solidly behind Rep. Godofredo Reyes, who is running for the top provincial post as NP official candidate, Tobia reported.

The President also received Gov. Romulo Garrovillo of Zamboanga del Norte, Sen. Pacita M. Gonzalez, Sen. Domocao Alonto, Reps. Emilio Cortez of Pampanga, Agaton Ursua of Camarines Sur, Leon Guinto, Jr., of Quezon, Ramon Mitra of Mountain Province, Gaudencio Abordo of Palawan, Wenceslao Lagumbay of Laguna, Luciano Millan of Pangasinan, and Felix Fuentebella of Camarines Sur.

Earlier this morning, the President conferred with NP senatorial candidates who expressed optimism over the outcome of the November elections after having covered about three-fourths of the country in their campaign stump.

Their optimism was based on estimates gathered during their tour that 42 out of 56 gubernatorial posts would be won by Nacionalistas.

Senatorial candidates present at the conference which lasted about two hours were Senate President Eulogio Rodriguez, Senate President Protempore Fernando Lopez, Rep. Genaro Magsaysay, former General Services Secretary Alejandro Almendras, and Senator Lorenzo Tañada.

Former Executive Secretary Juan C. Pajo, who is currently campaigning in the North, former Assistant Executive Secretary Sofronio Quimson, who is now in Sulu, and Senator Edmundo Cea were unable to attend the conference.

Also present were Speaker Daniel Romualdez and Rep. Constancio Castañeda, campaign manager and assistant campaign manager, respectively, of the NP; Sen. Arturo Tolentino; Press Secretary Jose C. Nable; Assistant Executive Secretary Mariano Logarta; and Antonio Arquiza, NP secretary.

In the evening, the President presided over the regular weekly meeting of his Cabinet.

President Garcia today sent a message of felicitations to President Dwight D. Eisenhower of the United States on the occasion of the latter’s 69th birthday on October 14.

PRESIDENT Garcia and the Cabinet this evening blocked a new move of the People’s Homesite and Housing Corporation to dispose of its 129-hectare land in Parañaque, Rizal. The price had been set at only P3 a square meter for Earthwealth (Philippines), Inc., a subdivision firm.

The President took into account reports that there were higher offers.

He returned the PHHC plan, and told the firm to study the other offers. He also warned the PHHC against any negotiated sale.

The President also ordered an investigation of the PHHC’s housing program in Iloilo City, Roxas City, Tagaytay City, and Tacloban City, where the houses have not been occupied or bought, and are rotting.

The President and the Cabinet also took stock of the warehousing shortage in view of the expected bumper crop of rice and corn this year.

The President ordered the NARIC to make a rush study of bonded warehouses which the government may use for storing plentiful grain which will be gathered before the end of the year.

The government plans to export soon an excess of 24,000 metric tons of rice and 8,000 metric tons of corn. Owing to decreasing domestic grain prices, the President and the Cabinet are offering some incentives to prospective exporters; such as, allowing them to bring in finished goods equivalent to the dollars earned by their rice and corn.

Of the dollars earned in the rice-corn sale overseas, 70 per cent will be earmarked by the Central Bank for essential goods; 20 per cent for semi-essential; and 10 per cent for non-essential luxury items.

Malacañang received reports that in some places in the country rice that has just been harvested is being abandoned in the fields owing to lack of storage facilities.

Besides using bonded warehouses, exportation of rice and corn is considered effective measure to alleviate the situation created by bumper crop.

The Cabinet tonight paused from its deliberations on state matters to approve unanimously a resolution expressing condolence in the death of former Health Secretary Antonio Villarama.

President Garcia and Mrs. Garcia sent a separate personal note of condolence to the bereaved family.

October 14.—PRESIDENT Garcia received today a letter from Rep. Manuel A. Zosa of Cebu chiding Sen. M. J. Cuenco for the latter's stand in requesting the postponement of the investigation of the criminal charges for alleged falsification of public documents and estafa against Gov. Jose Briones and Cebu City Mayor Ramon Duterte.

"If Senator Cuenco were to live up to his reputation as a crusader for a clean and honest government, he should not ask for the deferment of the investigation," Zosa said in his letter.

The Cebu solon also said that the charges are not preconceived and its filing now is a mere coincidence. Zosa stated that formerly there was an iron curtain shielding all the public records in the Capitol and the City Hall, but recently those who were enjoying the confidence of Briones and Duterte left them.

"If Senator Cuenco, during his stay in the City of Cebu, had only taken pains and devoted part of his time to taking a look at the public documents which have been forged and falsified by both Briones and Duterte, in connivance with their co-accused, his conscience as a crusader, if a crusader he is at all, would have dictated to him not only to request for postponement but also to demand from the proper authorities for the immediate prosecution and incarceration of these public officials," Zosa said in his letter to the President.

Before receiving Rep. Zosa, the President saw U. S. Ambassador Charles Bohlen, who is leaving tomorrow for Washington via Tokyo to assume his new post as special assistant on Soviet affairs to Secretary of State Christian Herter.

Other callers were Rep. Lorenzo Teves of Negros Oriental, Mariano Perdices, NP official candidate for governor in the same province, and Sen. Eulogio Balao.

In the evening, President and Mrs. Garcia gave a farewell state dinner in honor of U. S. Ambassador and Mrs. Bohlen.

Ambassador Bohlen and his family are returning to Washington, D. C., for reassignment after the U. S. envoy had completed his tour of duty in the Philippines.

Guest list at the affair which started at 8 p.m. follows: Apostolic Nuncio Salvatore Siino, Secretary and Mrs. Felixberto Serrano, Secretary and Mrs. Alejo Mabanag, Secretary and Mrs. Florencio Moreno, Secretary and Mrs. Angel M. Castaño, Secretary and Mrs. Alejo Santos, Secretary and Mrs. Elpidio Valencia, Secretary and Mrs. Pedro Hernaez, Honorable and Mrs. Paulino Garcia, Administrator Amparo Villamor, Press Secretary and Mrs. Jose Nable.

Sen. and Mrs. Lorenzo Sumulong, Undersecretary of Foreign Affairs and Mrs. Fructuoso Cabahug, Minister and Mrs. George H. Abbott, Minister Paul D. Summers, Lt. General and Mrs. Manuel Cabal, Maj. General and Mrs. William H. Nutter, Mr. and Mrs. Henry L. T. Koron, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Brodie, Mr. Albert B. Hudes, Mr. Manuel G. Zamora, Col. Jorge Delarmente, Major Jose Estrella.

President Garcia today released the following statement on the departure of Ambassador Bohlen:

“It has been our good fortune to have Ambassador Charles E. Bohlen as the American representative to the Philippines during this significant epoch of our history when the Government has decided to clarify certain aspects of the relationship between the Philippines and the United States as reflected in the Bases Agreement. The task involved is indeed most delicate and if handled by less capable hands could have imperilled the long-standing friendship between the Philippines and the United States, a relation established through six decades by the sincere collaboration of Americans and Filipinos and which passed through the acid test during the first and second world wars.

“By bringing to bear on his task his rich diplomatic background and pleasing personality as a career diplomat, Ambassador Bohlen has played his role creditably. In his sincere desire to know more about the Philippines and better feel the pulse of the Filipino people, he has traveled widely visiting many points in the Islands of Luzon, Visayas, and Mindanao. He has made several important speeches in which he has interpreted the thought and attitude of the American people for the understanding of the Filipino people.

“Aside from official duties, Mrs. Avis Bohlen has been active in charitable endeavors and other community projects which have endeared her in the hearts of many and thus contributed to greater friendship between the Filipinos and Americans.

“It is with pride, therefore, that I recall some of the highlights of Ambassador Bohlen’s official acts:

“1. Purchase of rice under U. S. Public Law 480 amounting to $3.6 million, after the signing of the Agricultural Commodities Agreement on June 3, 1953;

“2. His affirmation by public recognition of the legitimacy of nationalism in the Philippines;

“3. Effective assistance in making the State Visit of President Garcia to the United States in June, 1958, a great success;

“4. Agreement in principle to establish the Cultural Center in Manila;

“5. Turn-over of the Manila Port Area Reservation to the Philippine Government;

“6. Creation of the Mutual Defense Board and installation of Filipino Liaison Officers in the Bases;

“7. Relinquishment of base areas, definition of metes and bonds of areas to be retained, and relinquishment of Olongapo community; and

“8. Agreement reached on the reduction of the term of lease, the system of consultation on the uses of bases, and automatic action in the event of attack.

“I take this occasion also to express the hope that the question of criminal jurisdiction may be ultimately settled in the near future to the mutual satisfaction of both the Philippine and American Governments.

“Ambassador Bohlen has contributed much in promoting closer and friendlier ties between the Philippines and the United States. He will leave our shores with the genuine satisfaction that he has done his duty well. On our part, he will long be remembered by a grateful people. I wish him continued success in his future undertakings.”

October 25.—PRESIDENT Garcia defended the “Filipino First” policy of the Administration in a keynote address at the opening ceremonies this morning of the 11th national convention of Philippine Jaycees in the St. Louis auditorium here.

The President and his party, including Rep. Ramon Mitra, Press Secretary Jose C. Nable, Gen. Pedro Q. Molina, PAF chief, and CAA Administrator Urbano Caldoza arrived in Baguio at 9:10 a.m., aboard the presidential Fokker Friendship plane.

They were met at Loakan airfield by Baguio City officials led by Mayor Alfonso Tabora, Jaycee national officers headed by Antonio Meer, Jaycee national president, and President Dionisio Claridad of the Baguio Jaycees, host organization.

After a brief rest at the Guest House, the President and his party proceeded to St. Louis auditorium for the opening ceremonies of the convention.

During the ceremonies President Garcia, assisted by Meer, presented awards to seven outstanding young men of the country who had distinguished themselves in their respective fields.

Awardees included Joaquin R. Roces—Journalism, Aurelio Estanislao—Music, Leandro V. Locsin—Architecture, Napoleon V. Abueva—Sculpture, Jose O. Juliano—Nuclear Science, and Dr. Benjamin A. Belmonte—Surgery.

Addressing the 11th national convention of the Jaycees at the St. Louis College auditorium in Baguio, the President claimed that the Nationalista Party has chalked up considerable achievements to back up his new appeal “for a re-affirmation of your confidence in this administration.”

In his speech the President listed 11 achievements of his administration, including what he called the “happy solution” to the stalemated bases question which he labelled as the “common triumph of two good friends—the Philippines and the United States.”

He was introduced by Antonio Meer, Jaycee national president.

The President listed the following achievements of his administration:

1. The recent discovery of oil mines in Cebu;
2. Increasing value of the peso indicated by its Hongkong dollar equivalent in the money counters in the Crown Colony as of October 14, 1959;
3. Rising level of the dollar reserves which was quoted at $168 million as compared to its lowest point two years ago which was assessed at $130 million;
4. Increased gross national product by over $2 billion as compared to the figures chalked up by the Liberal regime four years ago;
5. Economic growth in the fields of agriculture, manufacturing, and mining;
6. Noticeable pickup of economic activity evidenced by the establishments of new business enterprises;
7. Establishment of more commercial and rural banks which have expanded the credit resources of the country’s economy;
8. Achievement of a favorable balance of trade in the amount of P95.2 million as of July 31, 1959;

9. Attainment of self-sufficiency in food with the bumper crops in rice and corn;
10. Establishment of a Philippine merchant marine under Republic Act No. 1407; and
11. Solution of some of the major knotty issues in the long-drawn bases negotiations.

The President cited the achievements of his administration in a bid to draw continued confidence from the nation in the Nationalista Party.

“I submit,” the President said, “that the Nationalista Party has chalked up considerable achievements, the most outstanding of which I had succinctly summarized. In all humility,” he added, “I submit to you the plea for re-affirmation of your confidence in this administration which I assure you will lead our beloved country to new frontiers of progress and vaster horizons of accomplishments.”

At the same time, the President lambasted opposition quarters for their “negative thinking” which he traced as the still remaining “vestige of colonial times when many of us accepted in resignation what we were taught in all subtlety that we were capable of only so much, and so far, and that we could not stand on our own without mentor or protector.”

He branded the opposition’s bleak outlook of the country’s future as “voices of despair. They seek to weaken our faith, undermine our courage, and sap our determination. They spread dissension and promote strife in the willfull and deliberate effort to wreck the very foundations of the house of the nation,” he added.

He called these critics as “false prophets” who “find themselves fore-rebuffed by incontrovertible realities.”

After the program, the President chatted with various groups of Jaycees and jokingly remarked that the “most popular Jaycee today is Jaycee Pajo.” President Garcia was luncheon guest of the Jaycee delegates at the Pines Hotel this noon.

From the hotel, the presidential party motored to Damortis to board the presidential coach for the return trip to Manila.

October 16.—PRESIDENT Garcia today cancelled his appointments and spent the day quietly with members of his family on board the RPS Lapu-Lapu. It was the birthday of his only child, Mrs. Linda Garcia-Campos.

Early in the morning, the President and the First Lady, together with their children, Mr. and Mrs. Campos, heard mass said at the ship’s dining room. Also at the mass were a few close friends and relatives.

Later in the day, the President retired to his room and worked on some papers. He issued an executive order promulgating rules and regulations governing the investment of Filipinos residing in the United States who had signified their desire to invest their savings in the economic development program of the country.

In the evening, the Chief Executive returned to Malacañang to officiate in the kick-off ceremony marking the start of the first educational and fund campaign for the “Foundation of Gifted Children,” a project put up by civic spirited citizens to sponsor the education of talented and gifted children.

October 17.—PRESIDENT Garcia today authorized the release of P55,000 to finance the demolition of illegally constructed dams and dikes along Manila Bay which is depriving hundreds of small fishermen in Bulacan of their means of livelihood.

In a directive issued today, the President asked Budget Commissioner Dominador Aytona to appropriate the required amount out of any available fund so that demolition work could start without further delay.

The President also directed Defense Secretary Alejo Santos to utilize the engineer corps of the Armed Forces for the job. It was learned that the undertaking would be no small task, as the dikes originally made up of loose stones had been concretized by clams and other water creatures which had made the place their home for many years.

The dikes were said to have been constructed by rich fish pond owners who had been awarded leasehold rights in certain portions of the fishing areas. Some of these constructions had since been found illegal and the President had to order their demolition to restore to hundreds of families of small fishermen their means of livelihood.

The President directed the Department of Public Works to help in the work by providing whatever equipment it had for the demolition work. The money to be appropriated would be used for the purchase of explosives and other needed materials.

The President did not receive any callers today but went over pending state papers to clear his desk in preparation for his seven-day tour of Leyte and Albay province starting tomorrow night.

President Garcia is scheduled to leave tomorrow night for Leyte where he will address the annual landing rites in Tacloban City.

From Tacloban, the President is scheduled to push through the coastal towns of Leyte to campaign for Nacionalista candidates.

He conferred with Assistant Executive Secretary Mariano R. Logarta and took up political matters, including the recent attacks of Mayor H. Lacson against him and former Executive Secretary Juan C. Pajo, President Garcia's political protégé.

In the evening, the President received Benjamin F. Estrella, general manager of the National Marketing Corporation, who reported on the rising trend in the prices of essential commodities in the market.

Estrella said that there has been a pre-Christmas buying spree which has been responsible for the upward trend in the prices of essential commodities.

President Garcia directed Estrella to import additional prime commodities and, if possible, flood the market to stem the upsurge of prices of these items.

President Garcia issued the following statement on the death of General George C. Marshall;

"The Philippines joins the democratic nations of the Free World in grieving for the death of General Marshall. He served his country with distinction in times of peace as well as in war and his greatest contribution to the cause of world peace is the Marshall Plan for which he was awarded the Nobel Peace Prize. In life, he was a tower of strength whenever and wherever democracy was threatened. In death, he will be long remembered for his untiring and unselfish efforts to make this world a better place to live in."

After lunch, President Garcia went over the speech he will deliver during the program at the commemoration rites.

He retired early in the evening in anticipation of a hectic and strenuous schedule of appearances and speaking engagements during succeeding days after arrival in Tacloban tomorrow.

October 21.—PRESIDENT Garcia today disclaimed any knowledge of an alleged agreement seeking Senate President Eulogio Rodriguez to take leave as Nacionalista Party president until after the 1959 elections. Nable said President Garcia had no personal knowledge of such agreement and that if there were any it could have been possible that it was only an understanding between Senate President Rodriguez and Speaker Daniel Z. Romualdez.

President Garcia today received with jubilation the report that a second oil strike has been made in Toledo, Cebu.

Perfecto Mendoza, acting president of the Republic Resources and Development Company, reported that the second well was some 30 meters from the first oil strike and indicated it would be a bigger source of “black gold.”

Flushed by the new oil discovery, President Garcia told newsmen flippantly: “Every time I go South we always hit oil.”

He said government geologists were supervising the oil exploitation and disclosed the production test will be undertaken next week.

The President’s announcement was expected to boost the Redeco stocks which have remained at appreciable level since the original oil strike in the Manila Stock Exchange.

The second oil well was discovered after digging some 14,000 feet, a thousand feet deeper than the first well.

President Garcia said he had given the Central Bank orders to give the necessary dollar support to the oil firm to encourage it in the exploitation of the “black bonanza” discovery in hilly Toledo.

President Garcia arrived in Maasin, Leyte, at 5 p.m., after 12 hours sailing from Tacloban City where he addressed a huge political rally and defended the acquisition of the RPS Lapu-Lapu. He cited the Administration’s achievements, including the new favorable balance of trade.

In his political rally tonight, President Garcia was expected to read the telegram reporting to him the second oil strike.

He told newsmen at a press conference held after breakfast that, if he had received the report earlier last night, he would have read it at the rally in Tacloban City.

October 22.—PRESIDENT Garcia today ended a successful three-day stumping tour of Leyte after addressing public rallies in Baybay and Ormoc City.

During the past two days the President had spoken before record crowds in Tacloban City, Maasin, Matalom, and Hilonggos.

In his speeches the Chief Executive mentioned the results of the Administration’s intensive campaign against graft and corruption and defended himself against the opposition charge that he is taking advantage of his position to enrich himself.

Speaking on the allegation that the Dollar Margin Law had caused prices of prime commodities to rise, President Garcia explained that the price rise was due to the world-wide inflationary trend.

He said this condition has brought about corresponding increase in prices of Philippine exports and has benefitted local producers of copra, hemp, coconut oil, and desiccated coconut.

The President also declared that the implementation of the currency stabilization measure has resulted in bolstering the country's dollar reserves and has strengthened the peso position in the world's currency market.

Latest achievement of the Nacionalista administration, President Garcia said, was the achievement of favorable balance of trade amounting to ₱95 million for the first time since the end of the war. He stated that this amount is expected to top the ₱100 million mark before the end of this year.

As in other towns of Leyte which he had visited, President Garcia received a warm and vigorous reception in Baybay and Ormoc City from large crowds composed mostly of people who had come all the way from their homes in distant barrios just to see and listen to their President.

Among those who met the Chief Executive upon his arrival at Baybay were Leyte Gov. Ildefonso Cinco, PHHC Board Chairman and General Manager Bernardo Torres, Rep. Dominador Tan, and Baybay Mayor Paterno Tan.

After luncheon in the Baybay town hall, the President held a short conference on local administrative problems with municipal and barrio officials and then left aboard the RPS Lapu-Lapu for Ormoc City.

The presidential party then returned to Legaspi City late in the afternoon. After supper the Chief Executive addressed a huge public meeting on the plaza of Legaspi City.

President Garcia and party spent the night on board the Lapu-Lapu. They will enplane tomorrow morning for Manila to attend the thirteenth anniversary of the founding of the United Nations.

Earlier this morning the Lapu-Lapu encountered moderate swells while cruising in San Bernardino Strait, forcing many passengers to forego breakfast and stay in their cabins. The sea improved later after the ship had entered the Albay Gulf.

October 24.—PRESIDENT Garcia returned to Manila shortly before noon today bringing with him the assurance of local leaders of the victory of a straight Nacionalista Party senatorial ticket in Leyte and the Bicol region where he had conducted a five-day information campaign.

The President's party included the First Lady, Sens. Arturo M. Tolentino and Lorenzo Sumulong, and Mesdames Sofronio Quimson, Alejandro Almendras, and Roseller Lim. Places visited were Tacloban City, Maasin, Hilongos, Baybay, Ormoc City, all in the Island of Leyte, and Legaspi City and Polangui, Albay.

The President and his party landed at the Nichols Base Operations at 10:50 a.m. He was met by friends and members of the family headed by Mr. and Mrs. Fernando Campos and NP senatorial candidate Sofronio Quimson.

In the afternoon, President Garcia received the delegates to the Second Biennial Conference of the UNESCO National Commission of the Philippines at the Malacañang ceremonial hall. He congratulated the recipients of awards in cultural fields, especially impresario Alfredo Lozano, for bringing in world musicians.

The recipients of the UNESCO Cultural Awards were Alfredo Lozano, music; Fernando Amorsolo, painting; Mrs. Francisca A. Aquino, folk dancing; Lope K. Santos, literature; and Guillermo Tolentino, sculpture.

Later in the evening the President motored to the Manila Hotel to speak at the United Nations Day dinner under the auspices of the United Nations Association of the Philippines.

PRESIDENT Garcia today pledged anew the full support of the Philippines to the United Nations which he said is the "best guarantee for ultimate peace" among nations.

The President was the guest speaker at the UN dinner in connection with the fourteenth anniversary of the formation of the world organization at the Manila Hotel this evening.

He observed that UN was celebrating its 14th anniversary amid "the thickening shadows of continued mistrust among nations and the grave implication of recent incursions into outer space as part of the huge armaments race among nation's broods over the world."

However, President Garcia observed that "if one were to examine the balance sheet of the achievements of the United Nations, one is heartened by the important gains it has made in all fields of human endeavor in spite of the serious setbacks the organization has met on political levels."

He pointed out that the UN has "given meaning and validity to the true concept of universal harmony: a shared kinship among the human race irrespective of the barriers erected by men."

In pledging the Philippines' support to the UN, the President stressed that the country, being a small nation, "has special stake in the UN."

"Incapable of defending ourselves adequately in the event of a nuclear war," he added, "we look to the organization to check the evil forces that threatens our way of life."

The President also cited the UN achievements in averting the crisis in Laos, Lebanon, and Jordan from engulfing the world in a total war.

"Also relatively recent," he recalled, "was the systematic despoliation of fundamental human rights in Tibet and which moved the governments of Ireland and Malaya to sponsor a resolution condemning Communist China's violation of fundamental human rights of the Tibetan people."

He likewise averred that the UN, as "potent instrument of peace," has helped the backward areas to strengthen themselves socially and economically.

He said that the UN has drawn attention to the farsighted wisdom of removing existing trade obstacles and the development of inter-regional commercial cooperation.

He explained that the UN expanded program is geared towards helping the under-developed countries "to strengthen their national economies through the development of their industries and agriculture, with a view to promoting their economic and political independence in the spirit of the charter of the United Nations, and to insure the attainment of higher levels of economic and social welfare for their entire populations."

The President expressed the belief that UN Day is not so much an occasion for recapitulating achievements as it is for the re-affirmation of faith in the principles and objectives for which the organization stands.

“We in the Philippines,” he stressed, “are cognizant of the overriding necessity for an effective “foreign policy geared towards security and economic self-sufficiency in consonance with the principles enunciated in the charter of the United Nations. We are equally aware that as member of the brotherhood of nations, our best guarantees for ultimate peace lie in the harmonious blending of our ways of life with those of others in the spirit of tolerance and comprehensive humanity,” he added.

In defending his acquisition of the Lapu-Lapu, the President hit a member of Congress whom he called an “aged senator” for allegedly criticizing the yacht even before it was constructed.

The “aged senator,” according to the President, had compared the Lapu-Lapu with the “luxury yacht” of the Queen of England, which the latter has not yet seen.

Reyes said that President Garcia was the “main-eventer” in the series of public forums being conducted by the UP alumni to enable the public to know the issues being fought in the current political campaign.

Last week, the UP alumni had Vice-President Macapagal, LP president, as its speaker.

The President cancelled his scheduled speaking engagements tomorrow in Abra and Isabela.

October 29.—PRESIDENT Garcia returned this morning from a two-day tour of Ilocano provinces, optimistic that he had shattered the so-called “Solid North” of the opposition.

Political leaders of Cagayan province, led by Sen. Eulogio Balao, assured the President that Cagayan would give from 70 to 80 per cent of its voting strength to the Nacionalista senatorial ticket.

In the 1957 senatorial elections, this province gave the Nacionalistas 53 per cent and only 22 per cent went to the Liberals. Over 320,000 voted for senatorial candidates in this province during the 1957 polls.

In Ilocos Norte, the President said the Nacionalistas are expected to put up a better showing than the 1957 elections. In that year, 37 per cent voted Nacionalista while 45 per cent voted Liberal out of the 450,000 votes that were cast.

THIS afternoon President Garcia ordered Budget Commissioner Dominador Aytona to release immediately ₱50,000 from his contingent funds for the purchase of building materials to help rehabilitate the homes of the Malate fire victims.

The Chief Executive issued the order after making an ocular inspection of the fire area this afternoon immediately before enplaning for Mindanao for the last lap of his barnstorming tour of that region for Nacionalista candidates.

During his inspection of the fire area the President, accompanied by Mrs. Garcia and PCAPE Vice-Chairman Maximo Maceren, inquired into the conditions of the 500 families rendered homeless as a result of the conflagration. The President was informed that Social Welfare teams have been working since last night distributing rice, sardines, blankets, mosquito nets, and other badly needed items.

According to Mrs. Felicidad D. Gatos, chief of the division of field services, the Social Welfare Administration has two teams working in the area since midnight last night, and a total of 40 sacks of rice, 30 cases of sardines, 200 pieces of blankets, 100 pieces of mosquito nets, 200 pieces of assorted children's dresses have already been distributed directly to 300 families. He arrived in Pagadian at 4 p.m. today. He was met at the shoreline by a fluvial parade, as the yacht stayed out on sea unable to dock owing to shallow waters.

The Chief Executive was scheduled to leave the yacht tonight to address a big political rally at the Pagadian town plaza.

President Garcia today directed Eduardo Romualdez, Philippine National Bank president, to assume the chairmanship of the PNB board of directors.

The President told Romualdez to take over the board chairmanship pending final disposition of the resignation of former Executive Secretary Juan C. Pajo as PNB board head.

President Garcia said he has been informed of Pajo's resignation, but has not actually received the reported offer to quit the bank.

The Chief Executive told newsmen on board the yacht that he would summon Pajo, now a Nacionalista senatorial candidate, for a conference upon his return to Manila next week and discuss the latter's resignation.

Also campaigning with the President in the current stump are senatorial candidate Sofronio Quimson and Sens. Lorenzo Sumulong, Arturo M. Tolentino, and Roseller Lim.

The President is scheduled to leave Pagadian early tomorrow morning for Parang, Cotabato, where he is also scheduled to deliver political speeches for the NP candidates.

From Cotabato the President will make it to Talibon, Bohol, where he will spend All Saints' Day and visit the graves of his parents.

October 31.—PRESIDENT Garcia today eyed a malignant aspect of Philippine politics as he warned aliens against meddling in the political affairs of this country.

The President spoke out against alien intervention in PI politics in a talk with newsmen on board the yacht Lapu-Lapu which took him and his party to Parang, Cotabato, from Pagadian, Zamboanga del Sur.

President Garcia said his attention was called to alien politicking by Mrs. Remedios Fortich, a Mindanao NP leader, who denounced a certain "Yap" in Cotabato for offering his trucks to LP campaigners.

The yacht Lapu-Lapu steamed into Parang at 4:30 p.m. today. The President immediately debarked. He was met by Cotabato officials led by Rep. Salipada K. Pendatun (N-Cotabato).

The presidential party immediately proceeded to the capital town of Cotabato, some 30 kilometers away from Parang, where he addressed a political rally late this morning.

Official Week in Review: November 1 – November 7, 1959

November 1.—PRESIDENT Garcia this morning was accorded a hero's welcome by thousands of cheering Boholanos who jammed the Tagbilaran Airport to witness the arrival of the "local boy who made good."

After a brief but colorful welcome ceremony at the airport, the Chief Executive was borne on the shoulders of his welcomers, amidst the cry of "Mabuhay," to a waiting car that took him to the Tagbilaran church for a Te Deum.

On hand to meet the President were national, provincial, and local officials headed by Reps. Natalio P. Castillo and Maximo Garcia, Gov. Esteban Bernido, and Mrs. Leonila D. Garcia, who arrived earlier to join the President in his annual pilgrimage to the tomb of his parents who were buried in Talibon, hometown of the President.

The Chief Executive upon arrival in Bohol expressed optimism over the Nationalista Party's victory in the November election.

The President had to travel more than 1,500 miles by land, sea, and air since October 29 on a barnstorming tour for NP candidates that took him to La Union, Ilocos Norte, and Cagayan in the North, the bailiwick of the opposition. The President's visit is expected to minimize considerably the strength of the Liberals in those provinces, while his tour of the southern provinces, touching Zamboanga del Norte, Zamboanga del Sur, and Cotabato, will serve to solidify the already well-entrenched Nacionalista.

In the last 1957 senatorial elections, the Nacionalista Party received 56 per cent while the Liberals only got 21 per cent of Cotabato's polling strength of 590,000 votes.

In Zamboanga del Sur the Nacionalista received 67 per cent while the Liberals, 23 per cent of the province's 230,000 votes. In Zamboanga del Norte the Nacionalista fared even better by getting 74 per cent compared to the Liberals' 16 per cent of 200,000 ballots.

The President's home province, with a voting strength of almost 900,000 in the last elections, is expected to give a landslide support of the straight Nacionalista ticket.

President Garcia will spend his 63rd birthday on Wednesday, November 4, at Malacañang.

The President and the First Lady will be "at home" to receive well-wishers from 10:30 a.m. to 12:00 noon.

In order that the President and the First Lady may be able to receive all those who may wish to call on them in Malacañang, a schedule of visits has been arranged by Manuel G. Zamora, Malacañang protocol officer.

November 2.—PRESIDENT Garcia today took time out from his inspection tour of the southern provinces and visited his hometown, Talibon, to pay homage to his departed parents on the occasion of All Souls Day.

Accompanied by Mrs. Garcia, the President spent a few minutes at the local cemetery and offered prayers before the grave of his beloved forebears.

Wherever he was and whenever he could, the President always made it a point to come back to his hometown at least once a year "to spend a few moments to honor the memory of his dear predecessors."

His father was Policronio Garcia while his mother was Ambrosia Polistico, both interred in a common grave at the local cemetery. Among the relatives present at the cemetery rites were Primitiva Garcia, the President's elder sister, Rep. Maximo Garcia, Agapito Garcia, Emilio Garcia, and Talibon Mayor Lazaro Evardo, all cousins of the President.

The President and the First Lady arrived in Talibon about 8 a.m. today following a 100-kilometer motor ride from Tagbilaran. The townspeople turned out en masse, lined along the streets, and followed the President's party wherever they went, in rousing welcome to their favorite son.

The presidential party proceeded direct to the town church where a Te Deum was sung by the parish priest. After mass the President and members of the party had breakfast at the house of Inocencio Obenza, town's chief of police, where he briefly conferred with local officials. The President awaited a slight drizzle to subside before motoring to the nearby cemetery. The party took lunch also at the police chief's home after the simple rites at the cemetery.

About 1:30 p.m., the President and party left Talibon and motored back to Tagbilaran, passing along the eastern coastal towns and making unscheduled stops in a number of municipalities owing to large crowds which would not let the presidential car pass unless the President alighted and say a few words on improvised platforms set up by townspeople.

This morning, the presidential party passed along the western coastal towns enroute to Talibon. The President also had to make unscheduled stops in response to popular clamor. The President is due to arrive in Manila by plane before noon tomorrow, after a six-day information tour of Mindanao provinces. After fulfilling engagements in Manila, the President is scheduled to visit Pangasinan, Negros Occidental, and Cebu. Then he will go back to Tagbilaran where he and the First Lady will vote on election day.

November 3.—PRESIDENT Garcia returned to Manila at 1 p.m. today from a six-day inspection tour which took him as far north as La Union, Ilocos Norte, and Cagayan to the provinces of Zamboanga del Sur and Cotabato in the far south.

The President arrived on board the Fokker Friendship Plane together with the First Lady, who had joined him in Bohol where the President had taken time off from his tour to pay homage to his late parents on All Souls' Day at his hometown, Talibon.

In his Mindanao visit the President was assured by NP leaders of a landslide victory for the official candidates of the majority party.

In his tour of the Ilocos provinces the President expressed confidence that the NP will again emerge triumphant in this year's election. In Ilocos Norte he expressed confidence that the Nacionalista Party will be able to crack "the last remaining bailiwick of the Liberals."

Sen. Eulogio Balao, together with Gov. Marcelo Adduru, Rep. Benjamin Ligot, and other Northern Luzon leaders, assured the President of another victory of the Nacionalistas. They said the fight for the gubernatorial post in Cagayan is limited to Nacionalista candidates who support the NP senatorial ticket.

In all his speeches during his six-day tour, the President reviewed some of the notable achievements of the Nacionalista Party administration. He also explained the issues involved in the November elections

THIS evening, the President received I. John Billera, a business executive of the U. S. Industry. Billera was accompanied by Eduardo Romualdez, president of the Philippine National Bank, and by Gil Carlos, a Manila lawyer.

Billera, incidentally, greeted the President on the eve of his birthday.

The President likewise received a birthday greeting from Senate President and Mrs. Eulogio Rodriguez.

Malacañang was in a festive mood this evening as the government officials staged an asalto on the eve of the President's 63rd birthday at the social hall.

At the “asalto” arranged by ranking officials from the legislative, executive, and judicial branches of the government, the President was presented with a portrait of the Chief Executive and the First Lady by the Cabinet members and their ladies.

Dances were performed by a group from the University of the East that is also seeking recognition in the fashion of the Barangay and the Bayanihan troupes.

November 4.—THOUSANDS of people from all walks of life streamed to Malacañang today to greet President Garcia on the occasion of his 63rd birthday.

President and Mrs. Garcia were “at home” after hearing mass at the Manila Cathedral. Earlier, they also heard mass at the Malacañang social hall and then had breakfast with some of the callers, among them Senate President Eulogio Rodriguez.

Former President Sergio Osmeña led the well-wishers who greeted the President as well as the First Lady during the reception at the Malacañang social hall.

Following Don Sergio were members of the House of Representatives, among them Rep. Jacobo Gonzales of Laguna, Aguedo Agbayani of Pangasinan, Eugenio Baltao of Nueva Ecija, Vicente Gustilo of Negros Occidental, and Emilio Cortez of Pampanga.

Other well-wishers included Justices of the Supreme Court and the Court of Appeals with their ladies, members of the Council of State, Cabinet members and their ladies, Department Undersecretaries, members of the judiciary, ranking Philippines and United States general officers, bureau directors, and members of the Board of Regents and faculty members of the University of the Philippines.

The diplomatic corps, led by Papal Nuncio Msgr. Siino, offered a toast for the continued health and well-being of the President, who in turn responded with a toast to the health of all heads of states represented in the diplomatic corps.

Members of the Fourth Estate formed a separate delegation and greeted the President and the First Lady.

The President received gifts only from intimate friends and relatives. The First Lady gave several books, among them History of English Speaking Peoples by Sir Winston Churchill, Golden Crown—Life of Pope Pius XII, Winston Churchill—The Era and The Man, and Life of Jesus for meditative reading.

The First Lady also presented the President with a birthday card with a long handwritten inscription.

After receiving newspapermen and radiomen, the President and the First Lady received the general public, after which officials and employees of Malacañang and members of the Presidential Guard Battalion also greeted them.

A group of Boy Scouts from the Far Eastern University, accompanied by Jorge B. Vargas, gave the President a unique gift, three cheers and a birthday song Maligayang Bati.

A well-wisher who created a stir in Malacañang was a former employee of the government, Bonifacio Tecson, who was wearing a T-shirt proclaiming that he was for the reelection of President Garcia in 1961.

THIS afternoon President Garcia called on the Armed Forces to safeguard the rights of voters on election day regardless of party affiliation.

Speaking during the loyalty parade held in his honor at Camp Murphy, the President was thrice warmly applauded by officers and enlisted men in the course of his speech.

President Garcia underscored the duties of the Armed Forces and pointed out that one of their primary tasks is the guarding of the ballot boxes at the risk of their lives, if need be, to preserve the sanctity of the ballot.

The President also took occasion to announce that he had approved the payment of salary differentials to the enlisted men as recommended by the Chief of Staff and Defense Secretary Santos, and as provided for in Republic Act 1831.

Ad libbing towards the end of his speech, President Garcia also took the occasion to hand over a check to Secretary Santos for P500,000 for the construction of pre-fabricated school buildings.

Accompanied by the First Lady, the President warmly received a medley of “happy birthday” airs by the composite band of Army, Air Force, and Navy musicians. The musical show was warmly applauded.

November 5.—THIS day the President stayed in his private residence on Bohol Avenue, Quezon City, to rest after a hectic day yesterday when he observed his 63rd birthday.

However, several callers poured into the President’s private residence. Among them were Finance Secretary Jaime Hernandez, senatorial candidate Sofronio Quimson, and Gil Garcia of Cebu.

Secretary Hernandez conferred with the President over the controversial powers of Lt. Cmdr. Marcelino Calinawan, Malacañang prober of customs officials and venalities.

The President had previously been quoted as upholding Calinawan’s powers to investigate cases and “go over the department head if necessary.”

President Garcia clarified his statement and assured Hernandez that the latter should have the authority over cases in his department.

The issue flared up recently with Hernandez gaining the support of Justice Secretary Alejo Mabanag, the Bureau of Civil Service, and the commissioner of internal revenue.

Quimson also conferred with the President on the scheduled political drive to be launched tomorrow afternoon by the Chief Executive in the former’s bailiwick, Pangasinan.

Gil Garcia of Cebu discussed with the President the “fluid situation” in that province, where the President is staking his political prestige in an effort to subdue the Osmeña-Cuenco combine.

The President also received Ruperto Galvez, Nacionalista candidate for mayor of Pasay City.

Galvez reported to the President his fears that his leaders and followers might be molested on their way to the polling places during election day.

The President assured the NP mayoralty candidate that he had blue-printed a program to insure clean, free, and orderly elections throughout the country.

Galvez also expressed the fear that the snatching of ballot boxes committed during the 1953 elections might be repeated in Pasay during the Tuesday balloting.

IN the evening the President received Dennis Chavez, Jr., son of a U.S. senator of New Mexico, who arrived here recently. The young Chavez paid a courtesy call on the President.

Other callers were Victor Dahan, Frank Kastel, and C. Lorenzo.

Genaro Salvador Merino, vice-president of the Compania General de Tabacalera, also called on the President. He was accompanied by Francisco Cantarell, Fernando Gari, Ramon Barata, Alfonso Dampierre, and Ricardo Macias.

November 6.—PRESIDENT Garcia today led the nation in mourning the death of former President Jose P. Laurel, who died at 1 o'clock this morning.

Upon being informed of Dr. Laurel's death, the President and the First Lady motored to the Laurel residence in Mandaluyong, Rizal, to pay homage to his former colleague in the Senate whom he extolled as "the greatest apostle of Filipinism."

The President also signed a proclamation directing all flags to be flown at half-mast until the date of burial on Sunday.

At the Laurel residence, the President and the First Lady condoled with the bereaved widow and also with the Laurel children, including former Speaker Jose B. Laurel, Jr.

Earlier in the morning the President and the First Lady heard mass at an improvised altar at their private residence on Bohol Avenue, Quezon City. The President also had communion, having taken confession earlier.

The President usually receives communion every first Friday of the month.

IN the afternoon, the President took off from the Nichols Airbase aboard the Fokker Friendship Plane for Lingayen, Pangasinan, to fulfill his commitment to bolster the NP candidates in that province.

Before his departure, the President conferred with Carlitos P. David, independent mayoralty candidate in Quezon City.

Despite an inclement weather, the President proceeded to Lingayen, accompanied by senatorial candidate Sofronio Quimson, Benjamin F. Estrella, manager of the National Marketing Corporation, and Defense Undersecretary Mariano Yenke.

The President decided to stump in Pangasinan following reports of party dissension in that province.

President Garcia landed at the Lingayen airstrip at 3:25 o'clock this afternoon and was met by a big crowd headed by Sen. Cipriano Primicias and Gov. Estrella.

From the landing field, the President proceeded to the track and field stadium where he addressed a political rally.

The President delivered an inspired political speech, lashing at the Liberals and Grand Alliance candidates, and had to be reminded repeatedly by Appointments Secretary Agerico Palaypay that the Chief Executive was taking off for Manila before sundown.

President Garcia had to cut short his speech but took off shortly before the sun set. He returned to Manila at 6:30 p.m., and after a brief rest, motored to the Manila Hotel to address a labor convention.

November 7.—PRESIDENT Garcia today embarked on his homestretch drive to assure victory of the Nacionalista candidates in Tuesday's elections.

The Chief Executive took off from Manila for Bacolod City from where he was expected tonight to mount a drive to woo the potential sugar votes in favor of the administration candidates.

Arriving at Bacolod at 4:30 p.m. on board his Fokker Friendship Plane, the President was greeted by a big delegation of officials and NP follower led by Commerce Secretary Pedro Hernaez and Gov. Valeriano Gatuslao.

Hernaez and Gatuslao assured the President of the overwhelming NP voters in Negros Occidental. They said the NP voters had supported the Chief Executive against former Sen. Jose Yulo in the 1957 presidential elections.

In a conference with government officials, he stressed that the country's economy was improving, a favorable balance of trade.

After dinner in the governor's residence, President Garcia is scheduled to address a political rally at the plaza and then he will steam to San Carlos for another rally early tomorrow.

President Garcia arrived with Mrs. Leonila Garcia, the First Lady. They were headed for Tagbilaran, Bohol, where the President and Mrs. Garcia will cast their votes Tuesday.

President's Week in Review: November 8-14, 1959

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

November 8.—PRESIDENT Garcia made a final appeal to the country's voters to elect the candidates of the Nacionalista Party at a mammoth miting de avance held at the NP provincial headquarters of Cebu City.

The rally in Cebu Province where opposing factions are pitted in a bitter struggle marks the end of the President's personal campaign for the national and local candidates of the Nacionalista Party.

The President will proceed tomorrow to his home province of Bohol to cast his ballot in Precinct 3-A of Tagbilaran on Tuesday.

Shortly before the RPS Lapu-Lapu arrived at San Carlos, Negros Occidental, with a voting population of 14,000 voters, the President and the First Lady, as well as members of the presidential party, heard an early morning mass celebrated before an improvised altar in the dining saloon of the ship.

San Carlos Mayor Sofronio Carmona and other municipal officials headed a huge crowd of welcomers at the wharf, and spontaneous cheers and shouts of Mabuhay greeted the President and Mrs. Garcia as they stepped down the gangplank and waved at the welcomers.

After a two-hour long speech at the plaza where he clarified charges and accusations hurled by the opposition and enumerated the achievements of his administration, President Garcia returned to the Lapu-Lapu. Then the ship left for Cebu City.

The President and his party arrived at Cebu City at 7:30 p.m. and were met by a large throng of torch-bearing welcomers led by NP loyalist leaders, Reps. Manuel Zosa and Ramon Durano and Casimiro Madarang, the last two being the faction's candidates for governor of Cebu and mayor of Cebu City, respectively.

After the reception at the wharf, President Garcia headed the torch parade and marched to the NP headquarters near the wharf. After the successful rally, the President returned to the ship and conferred with the leaders of the NP Loyalist faction on the latest development in the local political situation.

President Garcia summed up the case for the Administration in Tuesday's elections in a nation-wide radio-TV chat to the nation this evening.

Prior to his departure for the South yesterday, the President recorded on film and taped a two-fisted, slashing attack against the opposition parties and a vigorous defense of his administration, particularly its bold Filipino-First orientation.

The President was seen on TV and heard on practically all radio sets all over the country in a nation-wide hook-up.

Television viewers watched him over DZAQ-TV (Channel 3) and DZXL-TV (Channel 9) from 8 to 8:30 p.m. this evening.

He was also heard over the following radio stations: DZXL, DZAQ, DZMY, DZQL, DZRH, DZMB, DZPI, DZBB, and DZFM in Manila; DZRI in Dagupan City; DZRB in Naga City; DZAA in Legaspi; DYRC and DYBU in Cebu City; DZVA in Butuan City; DYXL in Bacolod City; and DYPL in Iloilo City.

The President emphasized in his final appeal to the voters that Filipino interests can go forward; only under the Nacionalista Party while alien domination will continue if the oppositions triumphs.

In his radio address the President said: "We have laid down the issues and explained our platforms of good government. We sought overwhelming support of our economic policies which are based on our desire to break the alien strangle-hold on our economy."

The President lashed out at the opposition parties for their "do nothingness and spreading of the cancer of McCarthyism."

He made the appeal that "as our people will go to the polls Tuesday it is both my prayer and wish that they once more give the Nacionalista Party a fresh mandate."

In stressing the NP bid to achieve economic freedom, the President said that the NP stands four square on nationalism.

"The NP stands four square on nationalism and on this plank it has been upheld by our people through over half a century," he said.

November 9.—PRESIDENT Garcia today gave permission to the government employees to return to their respective provinces in order to vote on election day.

The President, however, cautioned government officials to take care that government services would not be impaired or disrupted.

The President's consent was given upon requests from government officials to allow their employees the time to return to their respective provinces on election day.

President and Mrs. Garcia arrived in Tagbilaran, Bohol, this afternoon on the eve of election. The President will cast his vote in Tagbilaran while the First Lady will motor to Talibon, the President's home town more than a hundred kilometers away, where she had last registered.

The RPS Lapu-Lapu shoved off from Cebu City wharf at 10:30 this morning for Bohol. En route, the President and Mrs. Garcia dropped in at nearby Opon, Mrs. Garcia's home town, where they spent a few hours talking with old friends and relatives at the Dimataga residence.

On being informed of a large crowd gathered in front of the house, President and Mrs. Garcia appeared at the window and each spoke a few words urging the townspeople to vote straight Nacionalista.

About 1 p.m., the Lapu-Lapu pulled out for Bohol, arriving at Tagbilaran at about 4 p.m. The President and the First Lady spent the night at their Tagbilaran residence.

TONIGHT the President urged the nation's voters to go to the polls on election day.

Arriving at Tagbilaran this afternoon to cast his own vote in his home province, President Garcia said "the right to choose our leaders is the highest privilege within our democratic form of government."

He, however, counseled his countrymen "on a norm of conduct that would assure peaceful and orderly elections."

The full text of President Garcia's statement issued on the eve of election day follows:

"I urge my countrymen to go out and vote on election day. The right to choose our leaders is the highest privilege within our democratic form of government. In sharp contrast to the millions in Communist-held countries who have temporarily lost this right and privilege, we in the Philippines have cause to rejoice over the fact that we have kept this sacred privilege through the years.

“In the exercise of their right of suffrage, I take this occasion to counsel my countrymen on a norm of conduct that would assure peaceful and orderly elections.

“On the part of the government. I reiterate that all necessary measures have been taken to assure the voter a free and honest election regardless of party affiliation. The voter can go to the polls confident that his right of suffrage will be held inviolate.”

November 10.— PRESIDENT Garcia today led the nation in going to the polls to vote for their favorite local and senatorial candidates.

Accompanied by Malacañang aides and Manila newspaper representatives on the Malacañang beat, President Garcia cast his ballot in Precinct No. 3-A of Tagbilaran located in the Tagbilaran Central School.

Other voters in nearby precincts flocked to Precinct No. 3-A to watch the President cast his vote and then shook his hands and cheered him as he came out of the polling place.

Before proceeding to his precinct, President Garcia chatted briefly with newspapermen at his residence and expressed his confidence in the victory of the NP local and senatorial bets.

Earlier this morning, Mrs. Garcia motored to the town of Talibon, birthplace of President Garcia, to vote in Precinct No. 1.

After casting his vote, President Garcia inspected feeder roads and barrio community development projects in the following barrios of Tagbilaran: Taloto, Ubujan, Manga, Taptap, and Gabok. The barrio leaders took advantage of the President’s surprise visit to present their requests for the installation of artesian wells, the construction of additional roads linking their communities to neighboring barrios, and the continuation of other self-help projects of the PACD.

After his barrio inspection trip, the President proceeded to the interior towns of Coralla and Sikatuna and then took a side road leading to Albuquerque and Paglayon, and from there motored back to his residence in Tagbilaran.

All along the way, President Garcia was cheered by the barrio people and townsfolk gathered in front of polling places.

Arriving at his residence about noon, the President had lunch and then retired to his room to rest. Later in the evening, the President awaited the arrival of partial election returns and reports from various provinces as compiled by the Commission on Elections and the Department of National Defense.

November 11.—PRESIDENT Garcia today left Tagbilaran about 4 p.m. aboard RPS Lapu-Lapu for the return voyage to Manila after five days tour of the Visayan provinces.

President and Mrs. Garcia had arrived in Tagbilaran, Bohol, Monday afternoon from Negros Occidental and Cebu.

The President voted yesterday in Tagbilaran while the First Lady motored to Talibon, birthplace of the President, more than 100 kilometers away, where she has been registered and voted since her husband was still governor many years ago.

President Garcia stayed up until 3 a.m. today as he sat beside the radio at the living room of his residence hearing broadcasts on election results. He expressed satisfaction over the large turnout of voters who had gone to the polls and over the orderly and peaceful manner with which election was conducted.

Waking up early this morning, the President had a light breakfast. Then after chatting with some friends and local political leaders who called on him at his home, the President retired to his study room where he went over some state papers he had taken along with him from Manila.

Earlier, President and Mrs. Garcia received news that they are now grand-parents, their only daughter Linda having given birth to a girl at the Manila Doctors' Hospital.

The President and the First Lady boarded the ship at the local wharf shortly before 3 p.m. He is expected to arrive in Manila tomorrow evening.

November 12.—PRESIDENT Garcia, on his return trip to Manila, kept pretty much to his cabin today to catch up on paper work he had taken along on his six-day tour of the Visayan provinces.

Waking up early this morning, President Garcia went down to the dining saloon and had breakfast with the First Lady and the few remaining members of the presidential party. Most members of the party had enplaned from Cebu last Monday to vote in Manila and suburbs where they reside.

The RPS Lapu-Lapu was encountering rough seas and heavy swells most of the day. The ship kept rocking and rolling to the discomfiture of the passengers. At 7 a.m., the passengers were awakened by an announcement put through the ship's public address system advising them to take breakfast right away.

Meanwhile, Commander Manuel Mandapat, skipper of the ship, thoughtfully slowed down the ship to a virtual standstill and maneuvered it close to a towering promontory on Tablas Island to shelter the ship from the brisk northwesterly wind, believed to be the after-effects of typhoon Emma, to enable the passengers to take their breakfast in comfort.

With breakfast over, the passengers scampered back to their cabins as the ship moved out of its shelter and resumed its battle with the steady wind and battering waves.

Again, at noontime, the passengers were given a chance to take lunch in comparative peace as the ship cruised along close to the eastern coast of Mindoro. At 1:30 p.m. the ship was proceeding at seventeen knots off Batangas and was scheduled to dock in Manila about 8 p.m.

President and Mrs. Garcia arrived at the Manila South Harbor's Pier 3 at 8 o'clock this evening on board the RPS Lapu-Lapu.

Immediately after their arrival, they motored to the Manila Doctor's Hospital to visit their daughter Linda and take their first look at their first grandchild.

Earlier this morning, President and Mrs. Garcia heard mass in thanksgiving for the safe delivery of Linda. Fr. Juan Tugadi presidential chaplain, said the mass before an improvised altar in the ship's dining saloon.

After breakfast President Garcia chatted briefly with representatives of Manila newspapers on the latest election results and said he expected the majority party candidates to pick up as soon as the rural votes and the Visayas and Mindanao returns are reported.

The Chief Executive said that former Executive Secretary Juan C. Pajo had already moved up to eleventh place and expressed confidence that Pajo will be included among the eight winners.

President Garcia retired to his cabin to work on pending state papers, pausing from time to time to listen to radio broadcasts on the latest election results. The departure of the Lapu-Lapu from Tagbilaran was delayed for a few hours to avoid the backlash of typhoon Emma. The ship shoved off at 4 p.m. and encountered only slight swells during the whole night.

November 13.—PRESIDENT Garcia stayed today in his bedroom in Malacañang and did not receive callers.

It was not because today is Friday, the 13th, but the President kept himself busy going over the stack of state papers which had piled while he was out of town last week.

He conferred with Malacañang officials, including Assistant Executive Secretary Enrique C. Quema, Assistant Executive Secretary Mariano R. Logarta, and Press Secretary Jose C. Nable.

Now and then, the President and Malacañang officials would receive reports on the trend of election returns in the senatorial race. The President was still optimistic that more Nacionalista candidates would make the grade.

President Garcia also cancelled the weekly press conference this afternoon. The President decided to cancel his weekly meeting with the press, as he wanted to finish action on several pending state papers.

As the President went over the pending state papers, he came across a letter from a poor and cancer-stricken widow, who sought presidential assistance for her medical treatment.

The widow, Mrs. Rufina S. Cruz of Pampanga who is a school teacher, appealed to the President to be given free medical treatment and care at the V. Luna General Hospital. She is teaching at the Dau Elementary School in Mabalacat, Pampanga. She said that she had spent her entire life's saving for an operation.

Touched by the letter, the President ordered his aides to arrange for the free treatment of the school teacher at the V. Luna General Hospital.

President Garcia today offered to place the entire government machinery at the disposal of the Commission on Elections to maintain the high standard of elections achieved in the November 10 polls.

In a telephone conversation with elections Commissioner Gaudencio Garcia, the President emphasized for the Commission on Elections to adopt all necessary measures to prevent the commission of election frauds and anomalies.

President Garcia's offer to the Commission was precipitated by news reports that all three political parties, Nacionalista, Liberal, and Grand Alliance had swamped the Commission with protests based on election anomalies.

So far we have conducted the most peaceful and best elections in post-years, President Garcia said. "I will not have this record smeared now" he emphasized.

The President issued today a proclamation declaring Monday, November 16 of this year, a special public holiday in Ilocos Sur, native province of the late President Elpidio Quirino, in commemoration of the latter's birthday.

The proclamation was issued on the request of the people of Ilocos Sur who had expressed their desire to be given full opportunity to celebrate the day with appropriate ceremonies.

November 14.—PRESIDENT Garcia spent the day in his bedroom in Malacañang where he awaited late tallies which might tilt the fortunes in favor of his candidates.

While awaiting for late election returns, the President received a telegram from Rep. Manuel Zosa, his chief political lieutenant in Cebu City, who reported of alleged irregularities in the reading of ballots in his area.

Zosa claimed that votes cast in favor of Casimiro Madarang and Ramon Durano were read in favor of Sergio Osmeña, Jr., and Gov. Jose Briones, respectively.

Incensed by this report, the President immediately called up Elections Commissioner Gaudencio Garcia to check on this charge.

Zosa also sought the suspension of the proclamation of both young Osmeña as mayor-elect and Briones as re-elected governor of the province.

The President also received similar reports from various areas, including Quezon City where his private residence is situated. Reports reaching the President said that there were also cases of misreading of ballots in Quezon City allegedly by henchmen of Mayor Norberto S. Amoranto.

President Garcia had offered the full resources of his administration to the Commission on Elections to check up on reports of frauds. Commissioner Garcia had assured the President that the Commission on Elections would expedite action on these reports.

The President also conferred with Max Maceren, vice-chairman of the Presidential Committee on Administration Performance Efficiency, and took ^{UP} the pursuit of the government campaign against graft and corruption.

He had previously announced that he would carry on his campaign against grafters even after the elections, as he felt that the people had reacted sharply against the issue of corruption in the government.

IN the afternoon, the President motored to Quezon City and visited his dentist, Dr. Rufino Achacoso. He saw the dentist for a routinary examination of his denture.

The President did not receive anybody the whole day. He stayed in his Private residence on Bohol Avenue, Quezon City, for the night.

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

November 15.—THIS morning the President stayed in his private residence on Bohol Avenue, Quezon City, and read newspaper reports on the political developments.

Despite the defeat of his candidates, the President sought consolation in the victory of five NP senatorial candidates as a "clear-cut endorsement of the Nacionalista administration."

The President, after reading the newspapers early in the morning, heard mass at an improvised altar at his private residence. He was joined by the First Lady and a few intimate friends.

After his breakfast with the members of his family, the President complained of a toothache. It was diagnosed as "tooth infection."

Dr. Antonio Guytingco, the President's physician, advised the Chief Executive to enter the Veterans Memorial Hospital for a thorough medical check-up.

President Garcia was also complaining of a recurrent cough. The President's physician asked the hospital doctors to give the Chief Executive a thorough medical check-up.

President Garcia is expected to stay in the hospital until tomorrow morning.

The President today issued the following statement.

"Through the ballot, our people have unmistakably registered their will for the retention of the Nacionalista Party at the helm of government and for this party to continue with its administration of the affairs of state. The victory of five Nacionalistas in the senatorial race is a clear-cut popular indorsement of the Nacionalista administration. It is also a clear-cut rejection of the sort of propaganda consisting of systematic vilification and distortion of facts.

"My warmest congratulations, therefore, goes to the five victorious Nacionalistas.

"To the three opposition winners also goes my congratulations. From them I expect the kind of criticism and fiscalizing that would redound to the benefit of the entire country. I presume that the election has taught most candidates the lesson of truth prevailing over mere mud-slinging as an election stunt.

"This election also showed that the adventure of a few political renegades who attack political bossism in one breath and in the next breath practice the worst kind of bossism by nominating themselves to senatorial posts without even the semblance of a convention can only end in failure and their popular rebuff. This election has also served to emphasize to Nacionalistas the need for better discipline and deeper sense of collective responsibility. The result of the elections reminded the Nacionalista leaders of bitter lessons in the past that lack of discipline starts the crack of division that ultimately leads to defeat.

"On behalf of the Filipino people, I take this occasion to express my thanks to the Commission on Elections and the Philippine Constabulary for their untiring efforts in assuring our people an honest, clean, and free election. But it is our people themselves who should receive the highest accolade because it was they who made possible a comparatively peaceful and orderly election.

"While the Nacionalista Party lost its foothold in some provinces, still the victory of an overwhelming majority of Nacionalistas in the local elections proves beyond doubt the solid indorsement of the rural folks.

“With the elections over, there is so much to do by way of nation building. I invite the opposition to set aside partisan sentiment and consideration and join hands with the majority party in our five major tasks which are:

“First, to minimize and if possible eradicate graft and corruption in the public service;

“Second, to complete our economic independence through the adoption of the Filipino First policy and similar measures;

”Third, to establish our dignity as a free people by dealing with sovereign powers on terms of sovereign equality;

”Fourth, to achieve a balanced economy by providing equal impetus to agriculture and industry; and

“Fifth, to promote the general welfare of the masses.”

November 16.—PRESIDENT Garcia is expected to be discharged from the Veterans Memorial hospital tomorrow morning after undergoing a thorough routine medical check-up and having been pronounced “physically fit” by the hospital staff.

The President had entered the hospital yesterday morning on the advice of his physician, Dr. Antonio Guytingco. He had complained of an abscessed tooth and a slight cough.

Routine Laboratory examinations of urine and blood, as well as an electrocardio test, were found negative. The cough which had since considerably improved was diagnosed by the medical staff as the result of numerous speeches and strenuous schedules which the President had followed during his recent trips to the provinces.

The President had shown impatience to go out of the hospital. He expressed eagerness of buckling down to work, adding that he had many things to do.

Early this morning the President ordered a wreath placed on the tomb of the late President Elpidio Quirino at the South Cemetery in Makati, Rizal. He also ordered a unit from the Presidential Guard Battalion to stand honor guard at the mausoleum from 5 a.m. to 8 p.m. today on the occasion of the late President’s 69th birthday.

President Garcia had previously proclaimed today as a special public holiday in Ilocos Sur, the home province of President Quirino, in order to give the people there an opportunity to observe the day with appropriate ceremonies.

November 17.—THE PRESIDENT sent a wire to Press Attaches Eddie Martelino and Jose Guerrero in the United States congratulating them for taking to task a New York Times correspondent for his allegedly slanted account on the elections.

The U. S. newspaper had printed a story of the last Philippine elections and pointed to the alleged “waning prestige of President Garcia.”

The President rested the whole morning preparatory to buckling down to work as soon as he leaves the hospital tomorrow morning. He had expressed impatience about leaving the hospital, saying he had many things to attend to.

IN the afternoon the President received Press Secretary Jose C. Nable who conveyed the invitation of the National Press Club to the President to address the annual awards-for outstanding journalists sponsored by the Stanvac.

The President accepted the invitation scheduled for November 26. This afternoon the President led the welcomers to the World Pilgrim Image of Our Lady of Fatima at the Veterans Memorial Hospital.

During the welcoming ceremony, the President was visibly touched on arrival of the distinguished Pilgrim Image during a lull in the strong winds that lashed the city and suburbs.

From the main entrance, the Holy Image was taken in a long process to the different hospital wards, in order to give the bedridden patients a chance to offer their prayers.

At the President's ward, the Chief Executive placed the crown on the Holy Image and offered silent prayers.

Rev. Fr. Patrick J. Moore, who is accompanying the Image of Our Lady of Fatima in her world tour, also offered prayers for the early recovery of the Chief Executive.

November 18.—THIS morning the President honored SEATO Secretary General Pote Sarasin with a breakfast at Malacañang.

Members of local diplomatic corps, as well as ranking officials of the Department of Foreign Affairs, were invited to the occasion.

Foreign Affairs Secretary Felixberto Serrano represented President Garcia, who was still confined at the Veterans Memorial Hospital.

President Garcia spent the whole day in his quarters at the Veterans Memorial Hospital despite announcements he was checking out yesterday morning. It was the second time the President was reported leaving the hospital.

From his hospital quarters, the President went over state papers.

During the day, the President also received former President Sergio Osmeña, who reported on the Cebu political developments which resulted in the victory of anti-administration candidates.

Other callers of the President were Sen. Roseller T. Lim, Major General Pelagio Cruz, acting chief of staff of the Armed Forces, and Undersecretary of Defense Mariano Yenke.

The President issued today a proclamation declaring Thursday, November 26 this year, as a special public holiday for national thanks giving.

In his proclamation the President said that it is fitting that a day be set aside on which to dedicate "our noblest thoughts in prayer and thanks giving to God for all the blessings He has showered upon us."

He called upon all the people "to turn their thoughts on that day to the Lord and offer Him a prayer of thanks for all the blessings He has bestowed upon us."

The President signed today the ad interim appointment of Ernesto R. Oxciano as assistant city fiscal of Manila.

The President also approved the promotions of eight assistant city fiscals of Manila.

Recommended by Justice Secretary Alejo Mabanag and favorably endorsed by the City Fiscal of Manila, the promotions were occasioned by the vacancy created by the recent appointment of former assistant city fiscal Guillermo Dacumos to the Court of First Instance of Cagayan.

The promoted fiscals were Eulogio S. Serrano from ₱10,000 to ₱11,000 per annum; Rafael A. Jose from ₱9,000 to ₱10,000 per annum; Arsenio B. Alcantara from ₱8,400 to ₱9,000 per annum; Artemio H. Cusi from ₱8,100 to ₱8,400 per annum; Ramon V. Jabson from ₱7,600 to ₱8,100 per annum; Bernardo G. Tiongco from ₱7,200 to ₱7,600 per annum; Rodolfo A. Nocon from ₱6,600 to ₱7,200 per annum; and Luis A. Peña from ₱6,000 to ₱6,600 per annum.

President Garcia released today the initial amount of ₱50,000 for immediate relief to the victims of typhoon Freda.

The President at the same time ordered Assistant Executive Secretary Enrique C. Quema, who is acting chairman of the Emergency Relief Coordinating Committee, to fly to Albay and Catanduanes, together with members of the committee, to make a survey of the extent of the damage.

At a meeting of the committee, presided over by Secretary Quema the Council of State Room of Malacañang this afternoon, individual report from the Social Welfare Administration, the Philippine National Red Cross and the Armed Forces, indicated that Albay, Catanduanes, Sorsogon, and Camarines Sur bore the brunt of the typhoon.

SWA Administrator Amparo P. Villamor informed the committee that emergency relief work in the areas affected was going on smoothly with the cooperation of local relief groups, PNRC chapters, and local officials.

She said, however, that actual census of sufferers will take some time owing to the wide areas hit by the typhoon, which covered 16 provinces. She requested the NARIC to make available to the SWA on credit at least, 500 sacks of rice to supplement present relief stocks.

November 19.—PRESIDENT Garcia this morning received Foreign Affairs Secretary Felixberto Serrano with whom he discussed urgent official matters, among them the present status of Chinese deportees.

The conference was held behind closed doors in the Veterans Memorial Hospital where President Garcia underwent a routine medical and physical checkup.

Secretary Serrano asked for a conference with President Garcia in view of the request of the British Government to exempt Hongkong Chinese residents from the new policy banning the entry of new Chinese visitors into the Philippines.

In the afternoon President Garcia received Senate President and Mrs. Eulogio Rodriguez, Sr., who visited the Chief Executive. During the call the President extended his personal congratulations to “Amang” for his reelection last November 10.

This is the first time President Garcia and Senate President Rodriguez met since the elections were over.

Other presidential callers this afternoon were Rep. and Mrs. Salipada Pendatun, Rep. Lorenzo Teves, and Rep. Lamberto Macias.

On the advice of attending physicians, President Garcia postponed his departure from the hospital to enable him to rest a bit more. He probably will remain there until Sunday.

The President this day designated six members of the Board of Medical Examiners as provided for in the Medical Act of 1959 passed during the last regular session of Congress.

The new law increased the membership of the medical board from three to six to be appointed by the President for a term of one year. Designated were Dr. Cesar Filoteo, Dr. Edgardo Caparas, Dr. Antonio Guytingco, Dr. Oscar Chacon, Dr. Jose Cocjin, and Col. Pedro M. Cruz.

November 20.—PRESIDENT Garcia spent his sixth consecutive day at the Veterans’ Memorial Hospital today. No announcements were available from the Malacañang press office on the date of the President’s plan to leave the VMH.

Speaker Daniel Z. Romualdez, vice-president of the Nacionalista Party, conferred with the President, and there were speculations that the House leader took up political matters with the Chief Executive.

The President also received Budget Commissioner Dominador Aytona, who returned recently with a presidential committee which surveyed the extent of the destruction wrought by typhoon Freda.

Aytona flew to Legaspi City and to Catanduanes and reported to the President the damage in those two areas.

During the conference, the President directed Aytona to release the amount of ₱200,000 from the Malacañang contingent funds for the reconstruction of houses blown down by the recent typhoon.

Reports of extensive damage in Northern Luzon were also received by President Garcia in his hospital quarters today.

Sen. Eulogio Balao and Rep. Ben T. Ligot of Cagayan informed the President on the destruction in Northern Luzon.

Sen. Claro M. Recto, president of the Nationalist-Citizens Party, also saw the President.

Sen. Cipriano Primicias likewise saw the President and reported on the results of the last elections in Pangasinan.

Primicias had denied charges hurled recently by Vice-President Macapagal, Liberal Party president, that election returns were tampered with in Pangasinan.

Other presidential callers were Capiz Gov. Jose Dinglasan and former Rep. Carmen Dinglasan-Consing.

President Garcia today declared the existence of a state of public calamity in Catanduanes as a result of the tremendous destruction wrought by typhoon Freda which is threatening the people of that province with famine, disorder, and epidemics.

The President's action steamed from his desire to protect the inhabitants of Catanduanes from unscrupulous individuals who would take advantage of the abnormal situation to profit from the disaster at the expense of the masses.

In his proclamation the President cited the provisions of Act No. 4164, entitled "An Act to prevent the excessive increase in the price of certain prime necessities of life on the occasion of a public calamity and penalizing the violation thereof." The law made it unlawful for any person, firm, or corporation in a province where a state of calamity is declared:

(1) To sell or offer for sale palay, rice, corn, cloth, milk, canned goods, sugar, and other foodstuffs, building and construction materials, at prices higher by 25 per cent or more over and above the average current local price of such commodities one month previous to the occurrence of such public calamity, and

(2) To aggravate the crisis by refusing for the purpose of profiteering to sell at the legal price or by hiding, concealing, or hoarding the goods or commodities for the same purpose.

President Garcia ordered a Philippine Navy LST to leave tomorrow for that province carrying prefabricated buildings and relief supplies.

The Chief Executive also directed the NAMARCO, through Assistant Executive Secretary Enrique C. Quema, to send NAMARCO goods to Catanduanes in order to stabilize prices of these commodities.

The President also declared a state of emergency in the province of Albay after receiving reports of the damages caused by typhoon Freda in Catanduanes and Albay from Sen. Pacita M. Gonzalez and Finance Secretary Jaime Hernandez.

Sen. Gonzalez who arrived last night from a tour of the devastated Bicol provinces reported to the President that thousands were left homeless and that damages caused to crops were estimated to run up to millions of pesos.

In Catanduanes, according to the report submitted to President Garcia by Sen. Gonzalez, houses and school buildings had their roofs blown away. The wind of gale intensity also blew away the fruits of coconut trees in the province.

President Garcia also directed the AFP Corps of Engineers to rush special units to help in the rehabilitation of houses and the reconstruction of damaged school buildings.

The President directed the corps to give top priority in rushing prefabricated school buildings to the provinces devastated by the typhoon. He expressed concern over the welfare of hundreds of children whose schooling had to be interrupted because of wrecked classrooms.

November 21.—PRESIDENT Garcia today completed a week-long confinement at the Veterans' Memorial Hospital.

He did not receive any caller, except his personal barber, who was summoned to the hospital for the routinary haircut.

The President, however, conferred with some Malacañang officials to catch up with the backlog of pending state papers which have piled up.

President Garcia stayed throughout the day in his bedroom. He had been advised to rest until tomorrow morning.

The President today issued an executive order creating provincial, city municipal, and municipal district census boards to act as consultative bodies and assist the Bureau of the Census and Statistics during the preparation and actual enumeration work within their respective jurisdictions in the 1960 census.

The provincial census board, as constituted, is composed of the provincial governor as chairman, and the provincial treasurer, division superintendent of schools, and district engineer, as members.

The city census board is composed of the city mayor as chairman, and the city treasurer, city superintendent of schools, and city engineer as members.

The municipal census board is composed of the municipal mayor as chairman, the municipal treasurer, and the supervising principal teacher as members.

The municipal district census board is composed of the municipal district mayor as chairman, and the municipal district treasurer and the supervising or principal teacher, as members.

The President, in his executive order, charged the census boards with the responsibility of recording and safekeeping of all census materials in their respective jurisdiction assembling and consolidating the census returns and forwarding them to the Bureau of Census and Statistics.

The President signed today the ad interim appointments of three justices of the peace and a chairman of the board of assistant appeals of Butuan City.

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

November 22.—PRESIDENT Garcia today received Labor Secretary Angel Castaño, who reported that striking workers of the NAMARCO will allow the withdrawal of some 400,000 cases of evaporated milk from the piers to relieve the present acute shortage of this commodity.

The President was informed that the milk had been declared as “not cargo” by the Associated Workers Union, an affiliate of the Katipunang Mangagawang Pilipino (KMP), and has been lying exposed in the piers for some time.

According to Secretary Castaño, the indentors will pick up the milk from the piers and distribute them to the different NAMARCO outlets some time this week.

Castaño also said that the early solution to the NAMARCO strike is now in sight with both parties to the controversy studying a formula submitted for consideration.

Earlier this morning President Garcia, accompanied by Malacañang aides, heard mass celebrated at the VMH chapel.

After breakfast the Chief Executive read the morning papers and later received Labor Secretary Angel Castaño with whom he conferred until almost noon.

In the afternoon Mrs. Leonila D. Garcia visited the President upon her arrival from Cebu where she had attended the town fiesta in Opon, her hometown.

The President issued today a proclamation declaring the period from December 7 to 12 this year as Government Employees' Week with the view to focusing public attention on the invaluable services rendered by government employees and encouraging them to achieve greater efficiency in the public service.

The President, in his proclamation, called upon all citizens and residents of this country, as well as all schools and civic organizations, to turn their thoughts to the honest, loyal, and devoted government employees in grateful appreciation for the services rendered by them.

The Chief Executive said that the week should likewise be devoted to the attainment of maximum service efficiency and the highest degree of harmony and cooperation between the public and the employees.

The proclamation was issued on the recommendation of the Philippine Government Employees Association.

November 23.—PRESIDENT Garcia today ordered the holding of a special election for municipal officials in Olongapo, Zambales, after the formal turnover of this US naval base to the Philippine Government soon.

The President's decision to hold a referendum in this municipality was the result of a resolution presented this morning by the heads and members of various social and civic organizations in Olongapo objecting to the choice of municipal officials recommended by Zambales provincial officials, among them Gov. Manuel A. Barretto, to the Chief Executive for appointment.

Lamberto Gomez, member of the Zambales Lawyers' League and spokesman of the group that called on President Garcia at the Veterans Memorial Hospital, emphasized that residents of Olongapo objected to the appointment of Barretto's candidates for mayor, vice-mayor, and four of the eight municipal councilors.

The President decided to let the people of the new municipality choose their own officials in a plebiscite to be held for the purpose.

Earlier this morning, the President sent a letter of condolence to the family of Mrs. Melitona Aldea Sanchez and had a wreath sent to the funeral parlor where the body lay in state. Mrs. Sanchez was the mother of Col. Joaquin Sanchez, director of the VMH.

Public Works Secretary Florencio Moreno also called on the President requesting the release of public works funds to repair the extensive damage caused by typhoons that hit the Philippines recently.

Other presidential callers this morning were Defense Secretary Alejo Santos and Reps. Maximino Garcia, Leon Guinto, Jr., and Agaton Ursua.

The President today authorized Philippine participation in the fifth session of the Facilitation Division of the International Civil Aeronautics Organization.

At a conference with Assistant Executive Secretary Enrique C. Quema held in his Veterans Memorial Hospital quarters, the President also approved the trip to Singapore of Lt. Gen. Manuel Cabal, AFP chief of staff, upon invitation of the British Far East Land Forces.

The trip will last from December 7 to 11. Gen. Cabal will be accompanied by Commodore Jose Francisco, Philippine Navy chief; Brigadier Generals Isagani Campo, Philippine Constabulary chief; Pedro Q. Molina, PAF chief; Capt. Heracleo Alano (PN) AFP G-2; and Lt. Roman Gavino, Jr.

Eduardo Crisostomo, assistant chief appraiser of the Bureau of Customs, was appointed chairman of the Philippine participation to the fifth session of the Facilitation Division of the ICAO.

Other delegates are Vicente Reyes, acting chief of the division of consular services of the Department of Foreign Affairs; Tirso Santillan, chief of the division of immigration of the Bureau of Immigration; Elias A. Vega, revenue operations executive of the Bureau of Internal Revenue; Eligio Y. Manalo, assistant chief, legal and economic affairs division and acting ICAO coordinator of the Civil Aeronautics Administrations; Leandro Tobias, Philippine Air Lines; and Jesus Razon, technical assistant of the exchange control department of the Central Bank.

November 24.—PRESIDENT Garcia stayed at the Veterans Memorial Hospital for the eleventh consecutive day today and, unless plans miscarry, he may check out tomorrow.

President Garcia is scheduled to give a cocktail party for the delegates to the world tourists conference being held in Manila. The party was originally scheduled for last Saturday, but owing to the continued confinement of the President at the VMH, it was postponed until tomorrow afternoon.

The President was still resting at the hospital. There were reports that the Chief Executive was complaining of back pains.

Dr. Antonio Guytingco has advised the Chief Executive to have some more days of rest.

At the hospital, however, the President continued receiving some callers.

Gov. Manuel A. Barretto of Zambales saw the President and requested the postponement of the proposed special elections in Olongapo and Subic towns, which are at present parts of the U.S. naval reservations.

The President had previously announced he will order a special election in these two towns as soon as they are turned over to the Philippine Government.

Barretto said that while he was not against a special election, he wanted to give the politicians of Zambales a “breathing spell” after what he called a “hotly-contested elections last November 10.”

The President seemed to be sympathetic to Barretto’s suggestion.

Reparations Commissioner Juan M. Alberto also saw the President and briefed the President on the so-called “reparations anomalies.”

Alberto has been staying in the Manila office while two other commissioners, Rodolfo P. Maslog and Gregorio Abad, stayed in Japan.

Maslog and Abad have been recalled to Manila to shed light on these reported anomalies.

Speaker Protempore Constancio E. Castañeda also saw the President and reported the victory of the Nacionalista Party candidates in Tarlac.

Other presidential callers were Sen. Roseller T. Lim; Reps. Marcelino Veloso, Francisco Sumulong, and Nicanor Yniguez of Leyte; Rep. Laurentino L. Badilles of Lanao; and Gov. Miguel Manguera and Maasin (Leyte) Mayor Alfredo Bantug.

President Garcia observed today that the provisions of the new medical act limiting the appointment by the President of members of the board of medical examiners to recommendees of the Philippine Medical Association was merely recommendatory in nature and not absolutely binding upon the President.

In a communication dispatched from Malacañang this afternoon to Dr. Alberto Z. Romualdez, PMA secretary-treasurer. Assistant Executive Secretary Enrique C. Quema said: “To accept the proposition that he (the President) cannot appoint persons outside of those proposed by the Philippine Medical Association would be reducing him to a veritable “rubber stamp” of the association.”

Secretary Quema continued: “The President’s power of appointment is not a mere ministerial act but one involving the exercise of his sound judgment and expression. The appointing power must determine the fitness of the person whom he is to appoint and not simply accept that which is foisted upon him.

“It cannot be contended that Congress limited his authority in this respect because Congress has no power to encroach upon the exercise of an executive power or deprive the President of his discretion in a matter over which he is empowered by the Constitution to act.”

He added: “To hold that Congress wanted to tie the hands of the President in the matter of choosing the six members of the board of medical examiners by simply appointing those proposed by the Philippine Medical Association would be an insult to the intelligence of that body, as it could not have contemplated any impairment or degradation of the President’s power of appointment by giving him no room for discretion in the selection of the persons who are to share with him in the exercise of the executive power of the government.”

The communication was in reply to a letter addressed to the President from the PMA official informing him of the association’s decision to go to court on the recent appointment of Col. Pedro M. Cruz, chief of the V. Luna General Hospital, as member of the board of medical examiners. The association had contended that the appointment of Dr. Cruz was contrary to Republic Act No. 2382 passed by Congress during the last session limiting medical board members to recommendees of the association. Col. Cruz was not among 12 names submitted by the association for appointment to the board.

Others appointed were Drs. Cesar Filoteo, Edgardo Caparas, Antonio Guytingco, Oscar Chacon, and Jose Cocjin. All the appointees, except Dr. Cruz has been recommended by the PMA. They took their oaths of office before Secretary Quema at Malacañang this morning.

November 25.—DESPITE speculations to the contrary, the President stayed at the Veterans Memorial Hospital today. This was his twelfth day at the hospital.

It was learned that the President's physicians had advised him to rest for some more days at the VMH. He was said to be suffering from recurring back pains.

The President, however, went over pending state papers. He was reported planning up the reorganization of the government offices under him.

Today he received the courtesy resignation of Defense Secretary Aleio Santos, Press Secretary Jose C. Nable, Justice Buenaventura Ocampo, and Assistant Executive Secretary Mariano R. Logarta.

He had previously received the verbal offer of Reparations Commissioner Juan Alberto to resign his position in the war indemnity body.

The President said he will hold in abeyance Alberto's resignation until the two other commissioners have submitted their letters offering to quit the Reparations Commission.

Shortly before noon, however, a large delegation of political leaders from Albay, including 18 victorious reelectionist mayors, turned up at the presidential quarters to renew their pledge of support to his administration following their reelection. Headed by Gov. Nicanor Maronilla-Seva, victorious reelectionist of Albay, the group was accompanied by Sens. Pedro Sabido and Pacita M. Gonzalez.

The President thanked them for their pledge.

This afternoon President Garcia gave a cocktail party in Malacañang in honor of the delegates to the International Union of Official Travel Organization (IUOTO) who had just concluded their 14th conference in Manila.

In welcoming the delegates from some 65 members nations, Foreign Affairs Secretary Felixberto Serrano, who represented the President, expressed regrets that the President could not be personally present because he was confined at the Veterans Memorial Hospital.

Secretary Serrano told the delegates that travel and tourism is the best way to promote world understanding because peoples come into close contact with each other and become more familiar with the mores and traditions of their brothers in other parts of the world.

Dr. Paul Bernecker of Australia, president of the IUOTO, thanked the President and the Filipino people on behalf of the delegates, for the warm hospitality accorded them during their stay in the Philippines, the host country for the conference this year.

Also present at the cocktails were Mrs. Serrano, who represented Mrs. Garcia, Commissioner Modesto Farolan of the Board of Travel and Tourist Industry, and others prominent in the tourist and travel industry in the Philippines.

November 26.—PRESIDENT Garcia received today the courtesy resignation of Health Secretary Elpidio Valencia to give the President a free hand in the projected reorganization of his Cabinet.

Valencia's resignation brought to four the number of Cabinet members who had placed their positions at the disposal of the Chief Executive.

The President received very few callers this morning at his quarters in the Veterans Memorial hospital in Quezon City.

Lit. Gen. Manuel F. Cabal, Armed Forces chief of staff, briefed the President on latest developments regarding the implementation of the U.S. military assistance program in the Philippines.

Gen. Cabal also reported on his observations as representative of the Philippines to the 1959 CINCPAC Weapons Demonstration in Okinawa which brought together army top brass from 16 nations, to observe the fighting power display of the United States Armed Forces, which lasted for nine days.

Other callers of the President included CAA Administrator Urbano Caldoza who briefed the President on this year's "air show" in observance of Aviation Week, which will be participated in by acrobatic teams from five nations, including the Philippines.

November 27.—PRESIDENT Garcia today received Sen. Domocao Alonto, who described the last elections in Mindanao as the most peaceful and cleanest ever held so far in the history of that island. Alonto called at the Veterans Memorial Hospital this morning.

President Garcia also received Senator-elect Alejandro Almendras, who conferred with the Chief Executive on proposed legislation to be presented at the next session of Congress.

The President today received very few callers. He spent most of his time working on pending state papers.

Among the papers which demanded the Chief Executive's attention was a petition for commutation of sentence to life imprisonment in behalf of Legario Llagos, Aniceto Marañillas, Jacinto Mejio, Paterno Adame, and Maximino Cabrera.

The accused had been sentenced to death for multiple murder committed in Bo. Lamitan, Kidapawan, Cotabato on April 23, 1950. The reprieve previously granted by the President expires on Monday, November 30.

President Garcia today received the biggest number of offers of his Cabinet members to quit their posts in order to give him a free hand to reorganize his official family.

Those who tendered courtesy resignations this day were Foreign Affairs Secretary Felixberto M. Serrano, Education Secretary Jose Romero, Justice Secretary Alejo Mabanag, Social Welfare Commissioner Amparo Villamor, Budget Commissioner Dommador Aytona, Assistant Executive Secretary Enrique Quema, and Foreign Affairs Undersecretary Fructuoso Cabahug.

Late in the evening, the President received Quema and acting Secretary of Labor Agapito Braganza.

November 28.—PRESIDENT Garcia today ordered the NAMARCO to sell imported milk to its distributors at the pre-strike price of ₱15 per case and assured the buying public that all purchases of milk from abroad will be exempt from the dollar exchange premium.

In another directive, the President instructed Central Bank Governor Miguel Cuaderno not to impose the 25 per cent premium on all foreign exchange used for the importation of milk into the country.

The state marketing firm had decided to increase the price of imported evaporated milk to ₱19.25 a case following the denial by the Monetary Board of its petition for the exemption of the corporation's milk purchases from the imposition of the 25 per cent margin.

Expressing grave concern over the adverse effects of the price increase of milk on the people, particularly those in the low-income families, the Chief Executive said the Monetary Board's action is not in keeping with the spirit in which the dollar margin bill was passed by Congress.

President Garcia cited the opinion given by the Department of Justice that local filled milk is not a substitute for evaporated milk and, as such, evaporated milk should be among the items excluded from the imposition of the margin fee.

In his room at the Veterans Memorial Hospital, the President received Lt. Comdr. Marcelino Calinawan, head of the presidential fact-finding committee, and Roberto Oca, president of the Katipunang Manggagawang Pilipino, who reported that the first of the strike-bound milk importations of the NAMARCO, totalling some 400,000 cases, had started rolling from the piers this morning.

The Chief Executive expressed his appreciation to the leaders of the NAMARCO workers' union for agreeing to a 15-day truce in the national interest, thus averting a serious crisis.

President Garcia, meanwhile, continued receiving courtesy resignations tendered by ranking government officials in order to give him a free hand in implementing his reorganization plans.

Among those who submitted their letters of resignation to the Chief Executive this morning were Ramon G. Gaviola, Jr., acting administrator of the Social Security System, and Director Martiniano Abad of the National Marketing Corporation.

Governor-elect Constantino C. Navarro of Surigao, accompanied by Rep. Reynaldo P Honrado, called on the President to request the assignment of an engineering construction battalion in his province to help the district engineer in the construction of feeder roads.

The President received resolution signed by 38 of the 53 recently elected mayors of Cebu expressing their unstinted loyalty and unqualified support to his administration.

The resolution was presented to the Chief Executive by Paul Tumacay, former vice-mayor of Miguellin, Cebu.

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

November 29.—WAKING up early in the morning, the President heard mass said by Fr. Juan Tugadi, Philippine Navy chaplain, at the ante-room of his hospital quarters.

Also at the mass were Mrs. Garcia; Major Ciriaco Hocson, junior military aide; Dr. Antonio Guytingco, the President's personal physician; and some members of the hospital staff.

On the insistence of his physicians, President Garcia continued his forced confinement at the Veterans Memorial Hospital to complete the healing of his strained back.

He was scheduled to address the opening of an air show marking the opening of this year's Aviation Week at the Manila International Airport.

President Garcia was prevailed upon to give it up and allow a representative to deliver his opening speech. The task fell on Foreign Affairs Secretary Felixberto M. Serrano.

However, Mrs. Garcia managed to attend the spectacular air show staged by crack units of air forces specially sent in by friendly foreign countries.

President Garcia spent a relatively quiet Sunday today receiving only one caller in the evening in the person of Rodolfo Andal, who offered to resign from all his government positions.

Andal called on the Chief Executive and tendered his courtesy resignation as general manager of the Government Service Insurance System, as member of the board of trustees of the same firm, and as a commissioner of the Social Security System.

November 30.—PRESIDENT Garcia received today the courtesy resignations of Public Works Secretary Florencio Moreno Board Chairman Juan Chioco of the National Rice and Corn Corporation, and Board Director Manuel Leelin of the People's Homesite and Housing Corporation to give the Chief Executive a free hand in the projected reorganization of the executive branch of the government.

These latest resignations brought up to 11 the number of Cabinet members and to seven the number of key officials of the government-owned and controlled corporations who had placed their positions at the disposal of the appointing power in connection with the general clamour for a revamp of government offices and agencies.

In submitting his resignation, Secretary Moreno emphasized that he was merely renewing the resignation he had filed on President Garcia's assumption of office in 1957. He also expressed deep appreciation for the confidence reposed in him when President Garcia allowed him to continue serving after the death of the late President Magsaysay and after President Garcia's election in November of the same year.

President Garcia did not receive any callers the whole day today. He kept himself to his quarters at the Veterans Memorial Hospital going over some important papers brought over to him from Malacañang by Lcdr. Melchor Fronda.

Waking up early this morning, the President ordered Manuel G. Zamora, Malacañang Protocol Officer, to send a wreath at the foot of the Bonifacio monument at the Rotonda in Caloocan, Rizal, where appropriate ceremonies had been held in commemoration of Bonifacio Day, with Defense Secretary Alejo Santos as the guest speaker.

Only visitor allowed to see the President today was Mrs. Garcia, who arrived at the hospital shortly after 5 p.m. The President retired early in the evening.

December 1.—PRESIDENT Garcia received today the resignation of two more members of his Cabinet, one undersecretary, four heads of government corporations, and two directors of government firms.

The two Cabinet members whose resignations were shown to the President today were Finance Secretary Jaime Hernandez and Commissioner Lugum Oka of national integration. Secretary Hernandez had wired his resignation from Naga City last Saturday, but the wire had not been shown to the President until today.

Defense Undersecretary Mariano Yenke, Jr., also offered his position at the disposal of the President in connection with the latter's desire to reorganize the executive branch of the government.

Others who submitted courtesy resignations today are Chairman Gregorio Licaros of the Development Bank of the Philippines, General Managers Bernardo Torres of the People's Homesite and Housing Corporation, Eugenio Santos of the Philippine Charity Sweepstakes Office, Bernardo Abrera of the National Shipyards and Steel Corporation, Chairman Juan J. Carlos of the Manila Railroad Company board of directors, and Col. Vicente Tiongson, member of the board of trustees of the Government Service Insurance System. Col. Tiongson also offered to resign his post as financial assistant in the Office of the President.

These latest resignations brought up to 13 the number of Cabinet members, to four the number of undersecretaries, and to 15 the number of general managers and board directors of government corporations who had decided to give the President a free hand in the projected government revamp.

Cabinet members who had previously resigned are Foreign Affairs Secretary Felixberto Serrano, Justice Alejo Mabanag, Education Secretary Jose Romero, Defense Secretary Alejo Santos, Public Works Secretary Florencio Moreno, Health Secretary Elpidio Valencia, Budget Commissioner Dominador Aytona, Chairman Jose C. Locsin of the National Economic Council, Social Welfare Administrator Amparo Villamor, PCAPE Chairman Buenaventura Ocampo, and Press Secretary Jose C. Nable.

Officials of undersecretary rank who had likewise resigned are Foreign Affairs Undersecretary Fructuoso Cabahug, and Assistant Executive Secretaries Enrique C. Quema and Mariano Logarta.

December 2.—PRESIDENT Garcia today received the courtesy resignations of two more undersecretaries, two directors of the National Development Company, and the commissioner and associate commissioners of the Veterans Claims Commission in connection with the projected revamp of government offices.

The two undersecretaries are Enrique Fernandez of the Department of Justice and Daniel Salcedo of the Department of Education. This brings to six the number of officials of undersecretary rank who have offered to place their positions at the disposal of the appointing power.

Foreign Affairs Undersecretary Fructuoso Cabahug, Defense Undersecretary Mariano Yenke, Jr., and Assistant Executive Secretaries Enrique C. Quema and Mariano Logarta had previously tendered their resignations.

Two corporate directors whose offers to resign were received by the President today were Agustin Caseñas and Genaro Sarmiento, both of the National Development Company.

Others who offered to resign today are Commissioner Margarito Torralba and Associate Commissioners Rafael R. Estrada and Francisco Ofemaria, all of the Veterans Claims Commission.

Except for former President Sergio Osmeña, Sr., who paid a social call at the Veterans Memorial Hospital this morning, the President did not receive any caller today. The Grand Old Man from Cebu was accompanied by his son-in-law, Health Secretary Elpidio Valencia.

Working on some pressing state papers at his VMH quarters today, the President issued an administrative order dismissing from office Mayor Primo Panti of Virac, Catanduanes, who had been found guilty of dishonesty and misconduct in office in an administrative investigation.

The investigation had been conducted by the provincial board and subsequently elevated to Malacañang for review. The mayor's dismissal from office was made effective as of the date of his suspension on September 5, 1957.

The President today also referred to Education Secretary Jose Romero the charge of Rep. Luciano Millan of Pangasinan against the division superintendent of his province, Marcelino Bautista, who was allegedly soliciting contributions of eggs, chickens, and pigs from teachers and school children.

The Chief Executive instructed Secretary Romero to investigate the charge and to report to him his findings as soon as possible.

December 3.—PRESIDENT Garcia is considering new measures to improve present techniques and procedures of tax collection and accelerate the present pace of tax drives for recommendation to Congress when it convenes late next month.

The proposed measures were the subject of a conference between the President and BIR Commissioner Melecio R. Domingo this morning in the presidential suite at the Veterans Memorial Hospital.

The President is taking advantage of his forced stay at the hospital to formulate a legislative program which he will incorporate in his state-of-the-nation address to Congress.

Commissioner Domingo expressed to the Chief Executive his opinion that if his proposals are implemented, government revenues would be sufficient to cover budgetary needs of the government even if the 25 per cent marginal fee on foreign exchange is scrapped.

The BIR official saw the President only briefly. He had to submit most of his proposals in writing.

Among his recommendations, Domingo said, is the need for additional personnel to replace treasurers who are not BIR employees and who cannot be forced to step up the pace of their tax collections.

It was understood that the internal revenue chief had also assured President Garcia that no new sources of taxes need be tapped and present tax rates need not be increased, if the present tax collection machinery could be improved.

The pain in the lower back which has been bothering the President for some time has eased considerably, it was announced by Dr. Antonio Guytingco today.

The President's personal physician would not, however, say when he expected the President to be discharged from the Veterans Memorial Hospital, where the Chief Executive had been under force confinement since November 15. He said that he and assisting doctors would like to have the ailment completely cured before they discharged the patient.

Attending physicians had advised the President not to move around too much to facilitate his recovery. They had urged him to cut down on paper work which had necessitated his sitting up for long periods and also to avoid receiving callers.

The President's ailment had been diagnosed as spondylolisthesis caused by a displacement of the lumbar vertebra which was said to be pressing on some nerves. The only cure prescribed is rest and to let nature make the adjustments.

Attending physicians are unanimous that, aside from this, the President is in sound physical condition.

Assisting doctors are Dr. Alejandro Gaerlan; Col. Luis Martinez, former commanding officer of the V. Luna General Hospital; Dr. Benjamin Tamesis, director of the National Orthopedic hospital; Dr. Gilberto Games, neurologist of the University of Sto. Tomas; Dr. Valentin Fidelino, chief of the medical service of the VMH; and Dr. Catalino Hocson, orthopedic surgeon of the VMH.

December 4.—THIS morning, the President received Sen. Lorenzo M. Tañada and former Public Works Secretary Sotero Baluyut.

President Garcia observed a 15-minute meditation for the Sacred Heart. He confessed and then received Holy Communion during a mass said at the Veterans Memorial Hospital by Fr. Niebres.

President Garcia today heard plans of his special public relations man in the United States for improving the Philippine information drive in the US.

He received Abelardo L. Valencia, head of the Philippine Information Services in Washington, D.C., who came home upon summons of the President for consultation.

Valencia reported to the President that a group of American newsmen will visit the Philippines soon to get a better picture of the country for relay to the US public.

Valencia conferred for well over an hour with the President. He was the only evening caller.

December 5.—PRESIDENT Garcia today took steps to insure an adequate supply of cheaper foodstuffs in the rural areas as he ordered the presidential assistant on community development to prepare the ground for the organization of barrio stores to handle the distribution of NAMARCO goods and NARIC rice.

In his conference with Ramon Binamira, PACD head, whom he had summoned to his quarters at the Veterans Memorial Hospital this evening, the President expressed his desire to have foodstuffs funneled directly to the barrios and made readily available to farmers and other low-income groups in remote communities of the country.

The President revealed that, he had previously instructed Chairman Jose Locsin of the National Economic Council to draw plans whereby sizable stocks of the NAMARCO and NARIC could be distributed directly to these barrio stores without the intervention of middlemen.

This stores, the President said, would be a project of the whole barrio and operated under the direct supervision of barrio councils headed by barrio lieutenants. He said that the plans are nearing completion by the NEC.

The Chief Executive did not receive any callers this morning. He spent most of his time inside his room at the hospital where he worked on some pending papers brought over to him from Malacañang by Lcdr. Melchor Fronda, junior presidential aide.

In the afternoon, the President received Ambassador Francisco Javier Conde of Spain, who called to say goodbye prior to his return to his home country for reassignment following his tour of duty in the Philippines. Ambassador Conde informed the Chief Executive that Minister Ramon Sanz Heredia would be charge d'affairs of the Spanish Embassy pending the appointment of his successor.

President and Mrs. Garcia honored Ambassador and Mrs. Conde this morning with a despedida breakfast at Malacañang. The President was represented by Foreign Affairs Secretary Felixberto Serrano at the affair where some members of the diplomatic corps headed by Msgr. Salvatore Siino, the Apostolic Nuncio, were invited.

President's Week in Review: December 6-12, 1959

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

December 6.—PRESIDENT Garcia kept much to himself today in an effort to have the much-needed rest which his doctors have prescribed to cure his recurring back pains.

He woke up early this morning and then heard a mass said by Fr. Juan Tugade at the ante-room of the President's suite at the Veterans Memorial Hospital.

The mass was also attended by Mrs. Garcia; Lt. Cmdr. Melchor Fronda, naval aide; and members of the hospital staff.

President Garcia did not receive any callers. He leisurely scanned the Sunday morning papers.

He took a nap after lunch and then got up to follow the proceedings of the Family Rosary Crusade at the Luneta by listening to a transistor radio at his bedroom.

The President was originally scheduled to lead the nation in attending the crusade, but it was evident he was not ready to leave the hospital as yet.

Foreign Affairs Secretary Felixberto M. Serrano represented him. Mrs. Garcia, however, attended the religious gathering in her capacity as first Lady.

December 7.—PRESIDENT Garcia today stayed at the Veterans Memorial Hospital, where he was advised to take a complete rest in order that his back ailment may heal rapidly.

There were many visitors who sought audience with the Chief Executive, but they were not able to see him. A Palace aide told them that the President was resting and could not receive callers.

Those who were able to see the President were Auditor General Pedro Gimenez and Rep. Nicanor Yñiguez.

While the President was resting at the VMH, Mrs. Leonila D. Garcia received boy and girl councilors who went to Malacañang for a call on the Chief Executive. The First Lady congratulated the boy and girl officials who took over the City Hall this day.

During the day, the President signed the appointments of Assistant Fiscal Milagros A. German and Solicitor Roman Cansino as municipal court judges.

German will take over a new court created by the new city charter. Casino, on the other hand, has been holding judicial chores in the municipal court as reliever of Manila judges who are on vacation.

In the evening, the President received Sen. Roseller T. Lim, who succeeded in getting into President Garcia's room. The conference was reported to have been brief. No details were available from Malacañang press office on the subject taken up at the meeting.

December 8.—PRESIDENT Garcia today stayed at the Veterans Memorial Hospital, was reported to have walked about, indicating that he has picked up in his fight against the mysterious back ailment which has confined him at the VMH.

As reports on the President's condition swept the city, agitation for a detailed analysis on President Garcia's state of health mounted.

It was pointed out that the state of health of the President was the nation's concern and a detailed report on his condition should be released to the public.

The President had previously told newsmen he was suffering from some back pains brought about by a dislocation in his backbone, known as the "dog collar." The dislocation was traced by X-ray films to have been caused 20 years ago.

President Garcia today received Press Secretary Jose C. Nable, who returned the other day from a five-day goodwill visit to Taipei.

Nable reported on his meetings with President Chiang Kai-shek, Vice-President and Premier Cheng Seng, the foreign secretary, and other Chinese officials. He also reported on his dangerous flying trip to Quemoy where he had a peep at the Chinese mainland through powerful binoculars.

The President today directed Justice Buenaventura Ocampo, chairman of the Presidential Committee on Administration Performance Efficiency, to submit summary reports of investigations of government offices and personnel that may be needed in the revamp of the government machinery.

In another directive, the President also ordered the PCAPE chairman to coordinate investigations of alleged ACCFA anomalies regarding the purchase of native tobacco and the upgrading of Virginia leaf tobacco.

President Garcia today gave his assurance to Japanese officials that the remains of two Japanese holdouts in Lubang Island would be shipped to Japan when found.

The presidential gesture of goodwill was made as he recalled his state visit to Japan one year ago in the implementation of his policy to bring about closer relations with the Philippines' Asian neighbors.

President Garcia emphasized that the government had extended full cooperation to Japanese representatives in their mission to locate the reported Japanese stragglers in Lubang Island.

He expressed deep sympathy to the relatives of the Japanese soldiers when he was told that the Japanese mission had officially given up all hope of finding the two Japanese stragglers in the island.

According to Japanese Embassy officials, the Japanese mission was headed by Toru Itagaki and eight others, including the brothers of the Japanese stragglers who were identified as Lt. Hiroo Onada and Sgt. Kinshicki Kotsuka. In the groups were also two close friends of the Japanese holdouts.

The mission undertook the task of locating the stragglers from May to December, 1959.

December 9.—EARLY this morning, the President went over pending state papers which were brought to his quarters by Lcdr. Melchor Fronda, junior presidential aide.

While going over the state papers, the President issued a proclamation transferring the administration of a parcel of land located in Bongabong, Nueva Ecija, previously reserved for rural reconstruction purposes, from the Social Welfare Administration to the Department of Agriculture and Natural Resources.

He said the transfer was necessary to "carry out more effectively the reconstruction and rehabilitation of the rural areas."

Shortly before noon, the President received briefly Dr. Jacob Schekman, international aviation consultant, who is in Manila for a brief visit. Dr. Schekman is an old friend of the President. President Garcia met him in Geneva, where the Chief Executive represented the Philippines in international conferences previously in his capacity as Vice-President and, concurrently, secretary of foreign affairs.

President Garcia also signed a Family Rosary card pledging to recite the Family Rosary every night with the members of his family.

A press release said that the President and the members of his family, including his son-in-law, Fernando Campos, were among the first to sign the Rosary pledge cards in the archdiocese of Manila.

The President signed the card inside his suite at the VMH.

President Garcia today ordered Justice Buenaventura Ocampo, chair of the Presidential Committee on Administration Performance Efficiency, to file charges against records custodians of the Public Service Commission for the loss of important documents.

The PCAPE Chairman reported to the President that the loss of important documents involving 434 cases was holding up the adjudication of cases and has caused a loss of several hundred thousand pesos to the government in the form of fines and penalties.

Justice Ocampo said Major Teodulo Natividad, his chief investigator and legal officer, will file charges against the records custodians involved for infidelity in the custody of public documents.

Justice Ocampo reported to the President that all efforts of the PCAPE team to locate the missing records have proved futile. He expressed fear that the records which were voluminous and involved important cases had been intentionally lifted and stolen from the files.

The PCAPE Chairman also informed the President that the Public Service Commission has a total of 37,000 cases pending and stands to collect ₱471,138.50 in fines and penalties long overdue.

In the meantime, the PSC reported to Justice Buenaventura that seven employees responsible for the loss of the documents in question had already been dismissed from the service.

December 10.—PRESIDENT Garcia today left his quarters at the Veterans Memorial Hospital for a brief stroll around the hospital grounds.

Putting on a maroon-colored robe over his pajamas, the President spent some 15 minutes walking along the hospital driveways and wandering into the nearby golf course where he surprised golfers with his sudden appearance among them.

With him during the stroll were Speaker Daniel Romualdez, President Eduardo Romualdez of the Philippine National Bank, Rep. Nicanor Yñiguez of Leyte, Drs. Antonio Guytingco and Alejandro Gaerlan, the President's personal physicians, and some members of the hospital staff.

Waking up early this morning, the President had a light breakfast. Then he spent some time reading the morning newspapers and working on a pile of state papers brought over to him from Malacañang.

Shortly before 10 a.m., the President asked his physicians whether he could go out for a walk around the hospital premises. The doctors readily consented. He was accompanied in his walk by government officials who happened to be calling on him at the time.

During the stroll, Speaker Romualdez briefed the President on what transpired at the executive session of the national executive committee of the Nacionalista Party held the day before at the office of Senate and NP President Eulogio Rodriguez, Sr.

The President did not receive any caller the rest of the day. He spent most of his time in his room where he resumed work on state papers.

In the evening, the President received Drew Pearson, noted American columnist, who called to pay his respects following his arrival in Manila yesterday noon. Pearson was accompanied to the President by Press Secretary Jose C. Nable and Al Valencia of the Philippine Information Agency in Washington.

December 11.—PRESIDENT Garcia today received the courtesy resignations of Manuel Elizalde as chairman of the Peace and Amelioration Fund Commission and Jose Corominas as treasurer and member of the Music Foundation of the Philippines.

In the course of his informal talks with Malacañang newsmen who called on him at the Veterans Memorial Hospital this morning, the President hinted the wish that he receives more such courtesy resignations soon from other ranking officials in the executive branch of the government to give him a free hand in the projected revamp of the government machinery.

Referring to those who had already tendered their resignations, the President remarked: "It is a credit to those officials that they had volunteered to resign without any prompting from the President."

The President this morning again left his quarters at the VMH and had his second stroll around the hospital premises. Accompanying him on his walk were Reps. Domitilo Abordo of Iloilo, Vicente Gustilo of Negros Occidental, and a group of newsmen covering Malacañang who turned up at the hospital early this morning to say hello to the President.

Reps. Gustilo and Abordo called to say goodbye prior to their departure on an official mission abroad. They informed the President they would be away about one and one-half months.

Other callers at the VMH this morning included Senator-elect Alejandro Almendras, Gov. Bado Dangwa of Mt. Province, Rep. Nicanor Yñiguez of Leyte, and General Manager Rodolfo Andal of the Government Service Insurance System.

In the afternoon the President had another 15-minute stroll around the hospital grounds during which he came upon another patient, Alejandro Jimenez, 60, from Mt. Province, who had sustained a gunshot wound in one arm in 1955 and had been in the hospital since then. The President had a long chat with Jimenez. The two patients called each other compañero.

In the evening the Chief Executive conferred with Education Secretary Jose E. Romero, who called at the hospital to consult him on matters pertaining to his department.

December 12.—PRESIDENT Garcia will renew his bid to Congress in the next regular session for an anti-graft measures to help eradicate venalities in the government service.

The President is now restudying the portion of his state-of-the-nation speech before Congress last year where the Chief Executive asked for the creation of an anti-graft court independent from the Executive and the Legislative branches of government. The President did not say whether he would press anew for the creation of the anti-graft court, but he made clear that he wanted a powerful and effective measure from Congress to combat the malady in the government structure.

The President is now formulating his state-of-the-nation speech which he will deliver before a joint session of Congress late next month.

The President's restudy of the proposal to create an anti-graft court is a continuing action on the Administration's campaign against graft and corruption.

It was pointed out that the victory of five Nacionalistas out of eight senatorial candidates is a categorical indorsement by the people of President Garcia's efforts towards giving the country a good government.

President Garcia today continued his early morning stroll along the driveway of the Veterans Memorial Hospital. He negotiated a distance of 1,200 yards.

It was the third consecutive day the President went to the road to shake off his bedridden feet since he was confined in his suite at the VMH last November 15.

Mrs. Garcia watched the President move about during his stroll and evoked a satisfied smile as President Garcia's steps became firmer and firmer every day.

Reports from the hospital physicians indicated that the President may leave the hospital next week.

After the stroll the President entered his room and went over state papers.

In the afternoon the President received Ramon Jimenez, director of the National Steel and Shipyards Corporation and concurrently acting chairman of the committee on Philippine omnibus claims with the United States.

Jimenez reported that Eduardo Quintero, Philippine ambassador to Korea, who is committee chairman, had already left for the United States on board the S.S. President Wilson.

It was learned that other members of the committee may follow Quintero to the United States to follow up the Philippine claims which have been rejected by the U.S. State Department.

Jimenez said that Col. Vicente Tiongson, Malacañang finance officer, is scheduled to leave shortly to help Ambassador Quintero in his mission.

The President also inquired from Jimenez about the progress of the government plans for the establishment of the multi-million integrated steel mills in Iligan City.

Jimenez said that the contract for the construction of the steel mill building amounting to ₱200,000 has been awarded to the C & A construction firm.

The NASSCO Director also said that the construction firm has already started hauling equipment to Iligan City to start work.

President Garcia said he is interested in the early operation of the steel mills, which he said would be the mother industry of the other steel factories which may crop up in the future.

He, however, said that he wanted private capital to join the government in the operation of the proposed integrated steel mill.

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

December 13.—PRESIDENT Garcia today chalked up a record of more than one-kilometer walk in his efforts to shake off his wobbly legs as a result of his long confinement at the Veterans Memorial Hospital. The President strolled along the VMH driveway.

Doctors looking after the President have prescribed the early morning walk to strengthen the presidential legs which have weakened as a result of indoor confinement since last November 15.

Earlier, the Chief Executive heard mass said at the anteroom of his suite at the VMH.

Mrs. Garcia heard the mass with the Chief Executive. Also present were Dr. Antonio Guytingco, the President's personal physician, Major Ciriaco Hocson, junior aide, and members of the VMH staff.

In the afternoon the President received only one official visitor in the person of Defense Secretary Alejo Santos. The Secretary was accompanied by his wife.

Malacañang announced it was a purely social call. However, sources close to the President indicated Santos explained his side of the controversy raging around his recent trip to Borneo.

Santos has been accused of having violated customs, quarantine, and port regulations on his recent trip to the British colony in connection with smuggling between Borneo and Philippine southern ports.

A Philippine Navy ship, the RPS Pangasinan ferrying Santos and a party of 45 persons, including three Bulacan matrons, reportedly was laden with huge purchase from Borneo when it docked at the Philippine Navy wharf last Sunday.

The opposition led by Vice-President Macapagal has demanded a full-dress investigation of the Santos case. Macapagal has addressed a letter to the President asking for the probe.

It was understood that Santos, in his conference with the President, explained his side of the controversy.

Sources indicated that the defense secretary also turned in his findings on alleged rampant smuggling going on between Borneo and the southern ports of the Philippines.

December 14.—PRESIDENT Garcia this morning received the letters of credence of the ministers of Belgium and Sweden to the Philippines at simple ceremonies held in his quarters at the Veterans Memorial Hospital.

In both occasions, toasts and the reading of prepared speeches were dispensed with.

The first envoy to be received was Albert Nys, Belgian Minister, who pointed out the excellent relations between his country and the Philippines for over a century.

Minister Nys stated that independent Belgium opened its first consular office in the Philippines in order to assist Belgian missionaries.

Minutes after Minister Nys had left, the President received Tord Goransson, who also presented his letters of credence as minister of Sweden to the Philippines.

The Swedish envoy said that the rapid progress in many fields, which has characterized the development in the Philippines in recent years, has been followed with great interest and admiration in Sweden.

In both ceremonies, Foreign Affairs Secretary Felixberto Serrano and Minister Manuel Collantes were present.

After the rites, President Garcia conferred briefly with Secretary Serrano. The Chief Executive was briefed on the latest developments on PIUS relations as well as some important matters pertaining to the Department of Foreign Affairs.

The President conferred today the personal rank of minister to Manuel G. Zamora, presidential protocol officer, in recognition of his long years of service and to give him the necessary prestige commensurate with the position he holds inasmuch as he has to deal also with members of the diplomatic and consular corps.

The conferment of the rank had been recommended by Foreign Affairs Secretary Felixberto Serrano, who pointed out that Zamora had "served continuously and with unblemished record in Malacañang under several Presidents since President Quezon."

Zamora has been in the public service for 36 years. He started in 1922 as secretary to the late Resident Commissioner Pedro Guevara in Washington, D. C., a post he held for 12 years. He studied law in Washington and was subsequently admitted to the District of Columbia bar and the U.S. Supreme Court.

In 1924, he was admitted to the practice of law in the Philippines on his return here. He has since served as Malacañang protocol officer under Presidents Quezon, Osmeña, Laurel, Roxas, Quirino, Magsaysay, and now President Garcia.

THIS EVENING the President ordered the investigation of Defense Secretary Alejo Santos on charges of smuggling dutiable goods into the Philippines from the free port of Sandakan, British North Borneo, last week.

The charges were filed with the President several days ago by Vice-President Macapagal and Rep. Antonio Raquiza of Ilocos Norte.

The President decided to have Santos investigated after receiving Santos' letter asking for an inquiry into the Vice-President's complaint.

The President was considering the formation of a Cabinet committee to hear the charges against Santos.

The President may name the following Cabinet members to the committee to investigate Santos: the secretaries of foreign affairs, finance, justice, and commerce, and the PFFC chairman.

The President was reported at first as studying an alternative plan of drafting non-partisan men of good reputation to investigate the charges.

Macapagal and Raquiza complained that Santos and the 45 members of his party who made a seven-day trip to Sandakan brought in merchandise without passing through customs and that the RPS Pangasinan, which was used during the trip, did not obtain quarantine clearance for reentry into the Manila harbor.

Santos saw the President last Sunday at the Veterans Memorial Hospital during which they discussed Macapagal's charges.

A Malacañang source said the President was apparently dissatisfied with Santos' explanation.

December 15.—THE Binga hydroelectric project in the Mountain Province will have a trial run next week, President Garcia was informed Tuesday morning December 15 by Juan J. Carlos, president of the Philippine Engineers Syndicate, Inc., contractors of the project.

The President was further informed that the project, whose completion is expected to solve the Meralco brownout in Manila and suburbs, will have an initial output of 50,000 kilowatts. Carlos also said that the project will be finished ahead of schedule.

The President was pleased to note that out of the $21 million borrowed from the World Bank to meet the dollar requirements of the project, only $18 million was spent.

The President told Carlos that with the completion of the Binga hydroelectric plant, the government will give top priority to the construction of the Angat hydroelectric project. The Angat project, the biggest in the Philippines, will provide Manila and its suburbs with 150,000 Kw.

The President was particularly interested in the construction of the Angat hydroelectric project in, order that it could supply power to new industries to be established soon in the Philippines. Among these new industries, the President told Carlos, are the Shell, Stanvac, and Philoil refineries, and the Bataan Paper and Pulp mills.

The President also received Central Bank Governor Miguel Cuaderno at his quarters at the Veterans Memorial Hospital. He discussed with the CB head the establishment of the integrated steel industry in Iligan City by next year.

The President was assured by Cuaderno that two European groups were willing to finance the project which is estimated to need $70 million for the purchase of machinery and equipment.

The President told Cuaderno to study the feasibility of the government maintaining control of the industry during its initial stage but under private management.

Other callers of the President were Public Works Secretary Florencio Moreno, who discussed with him several projects to be undertaken with a loan to be secured from the Development Loan Fund, National Defense Undersecretary Mariano Yenke, Rep. Nicanor Yniguez of Leyte, Rep. Wenceslao Lagumbay of Laguna, and Gov. Nicanor Maronilla-Seva of Albay.

December 16.—PRESIDENT Garcia was literally on his own today as his physicians removed the braces supporting his back.

Physicians attending the President were confident that he has definitely reached the road to recovery and given a few more days, he would be in "tip-top shape."

After his usual morning stroll, the President received former President Sergio Osmeña, the Grand Old Man of Cebu, who stuck it up with the Chief Executive through thick and thin in Cebu during the last elections.

The former President was accompanied by his son-in-law, Health Secretary Elpidio Valencia.

Senator-elect Alejandro Almendras also conferred with the President. It was learned that the former secretary of general services took up with the Chief Executive the proposed reorganization of the Cabinet. Almendras recommended the appointment of men from Mindanao, Sulu, and Palawan to Cabinet positions.

After meeting these callers, the President was advised to rest and was later given the Hubbard tank treatment (hot bath).

The President also received Sen. Quintin Paredes, who took up the proposed creation of Philippine Virginia Tobacco Administration.

In the evening the President did not receive any caller except Press Secretary Jose C. Nable, who discussed routine matters with the Chief Executive.

A three-man Cabinet committee to investigate Defense Secretary Alejo Santos was created by President Garcia this evening.

Composing the group are Justice Secretary Alejo Mabanag, chairman, and Foreign Affairs Secretary Felixberto Serrano, and PCAPE Chairman Buenaventura Ocampo, members.

President Garcia picked Cabinet members because, according to Press Secretary Jose C. Nable, he wants Santos to be probed by his peers.

“The President means business,” Nable said. There will be no whitewash. It will be thorough and impartial.”

President Garcia refrained from naming members of the Supreme Court or the Court of Appeals to the committee because in the event, of any finding that may warrant court action, the members of the judiciary on the committee will be disqualified to judge.

Vice-President Diosdado Macapagal and Rep. Antonio V. Raquiza of Ilocos Norte, both opposition leaders (Liberal) could not be on the committee because they are the complainants. It was explained the opposition cannot be both prosecutors and judges.

The defense chief faces raps for alleged violation of customs, quarantine trade, travel, immigration, and Central Bank laws during the trip of his party to Sandakan and Jesselton, Borneo, from November 29 to December 7.

The Santos party of 45 used the Philippine navy RPS Pangasinan. It included three matrons from Bulacan, home province of the secretary. Santos went on an official mission.

December 17.—PRESIDENT Garcia today joined the Veterans Memorial Hospital patients in listening to the Araneta University choral group which spread Christmas cheers to the inmates of the VMH.

The President was invited by Maria Lina Araneta and Tomas Avendaño of the Araneta University to witness the AU Yuletide show at the hospital.

The show was climaxed with a prayer for the early recovery of the Chief Executive, who has been confined in the hospital since November 15.

Earlier in the morning, the President conferred with Sen. Pacita M. Gonzalez, chairman of the Senate social justice committee, on the feasibility of expanding the barrio store program of the Administration in line with the Filipino First policy.

The barrio sari-sari store program entails the channelling of more goods from the different government agencies to the barrios to peg down the prices of commodities.

Utmost utilization of barrio councils to serve as the basic unit of these cooperative stores was promised by Ramon Binamira of the Presidential Assistant to Community Development Office.

This evening the President called on all Filipino citizens and residents, irrespective of race or creed, to give to the fourth Philippine Cancer Society educational, membership, and fund drive.

In his short message which was read by Health Secretary Elpido Valencia at the kick-off ceremonies in Malacañang's social hall, the President appealed to all national, provincial, city, and municipal officials to extend their full cooperation to make the drive a success.

Later during the ceremonies Mrs. Leonila D. Garcia presented the President's contribution of ₱1,000 cash to start the ball rolling for the fund drive.

The President pointed out that contrary to popular belief, cancer which ranks eight among the killer-diseases in the Philippines, is curable if detected at the early stage.

He said that usually the person who has cancer does not know it and neglects to consult his physician until the disease has become incurable.

Carlos Palanca, Jr. general campaign chairman, thanked the President for endorsing the drive and said the society is sorely in need of funds to expand its services to the cancer patients and to conduct researches to combat the disease effectively.

Palanca reported that in its two years of existence, the society has serve over 5,000 patients, without cost to them.

Donations were also turned in to Palanca by Secretary Valencia, local professionals, businessmen, civic groups, executives, and other sectors of the community at the end of the ceremonies.

The three Cabinet members headed by Secretary of Justice Alejo Mabanag saw the Chief Executive at the Veterans Memorial Hospital, where President Garcia has been confined for more than a month now.

President's Week in Review: December 20-26, 1959

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

December 20.—PRESIDENT Garcia who had been allowed by his physicians to leave the Veterans Memorial Hospital, spent the day quietly at his Bohol Avenue residence in Quezon City. He did not receive any caller.

Waking up early this morning at Malacañang where he had spent the night after the family gathering held there yesterday afternoon on the baptism of his granddaughter, Maricar, the President heard mass at the Malacañang chapel. Also at the mass were Mrs. Garcia, their children Mr. and Mrs. Fernando Campos, and a few relatives and friends.

About 9:30 a.m., the President boarded his car and motored to the V. Luna General Hospital, where he visited Gov. Salvador Lluch of Lanao del Norte. Gov. Lluch had been confined at the hospital for some time.

Then the President proceeded to his Quezon City residence where he took his regular morning stroll on the lawn of his home. He was accompanied on his stroll by Drs. Antonio Guytingco and Alejandro Gaerlan, personal physicians, and Maj. Ciriaco Hocson, junior military aide.

The doctors did not say how long the President would be on "parole" from the hospital. He is, however, required to continue with his daily exercises and to report to the hospital every other day for his Hubbard Tank water treatment (hot bath).

In the afternoon, the President had another stroll around his lawn. This time he was accompanied by Brig. Gen. Isagani Campo, who called to render further reports on his recent trip to Malaya with the group of Philippine military leaders headed by Lt. Gen. Manuel Cabal, AFP chief of staff, which had toured army, navy, and air force installations in Malaya on the invitation of the British Government.

The Chief Executive retired early this morning.

President Garcia today ordered the immediate dissolution of a Malacañang security unit denounced recently by Mayor Arsenio H. Lacson for conducting "harrassment" raids on Filipino and alien businessmen in Manila.

The President also directed Maximo A. Maceren, vice-chairman of the Presidential Committee on Administration Performance Efficiency (PCAPE) to investigate the matter and file appropriate charges against the guilty parties.

The President was incensed when, PCAPE Vice-Chairman Maceren informed him of reports about the unit's 'alleged activities, especially since this particular group had specific instructions to confine their security work to insuring the Chief Executive's physical safety.

In a letter to Mayor Lacson, Maceren sought his assistance in the investigation of the unit by furnishing the PCAPE with further particulars and more information about the alleged raids.

The President today proclaimed the period from January 1 to June 30 next year as the World Refugee Year fund campaign in the Philippines.

The President declared the period World Refugee Year in order to enable the Philippines to meet her commitment as a member of the United Nations, by contributing to the common fund for world refugees and participating in the celebration of World Refugee Year.

By resolution of the General Assembly of the United Nations of December 5, 1958, World Refugee Year was set for observance from June 1959 to June 30, 1960, in order: (1) to focus more interest on the refugee problem; (2) to encourage financial contributions • from government, voluntary agencies, and the general public; and (3) to enhance opportunities to settle refugee problems through voluntary repatriation, resettlement, or integration on purely humanitarian basis.

In his proclamation, President Garcia authorized all government officials and employees to accept fund-raising responsibilities for the fund campaign to insure the success of the celebration.

December 21.—PRESIDENT Garcia today acted to provide immediate relief to victims of typhoon Gilda in Samar, Masbate and Leyte.

Following a conference at his Bohol Avenue residence in Quezon City this morning with Sen. Decoroso Rosales and Reps. Valeriano Yancha, Felipe, Abrigo, and Eladio Balite, all of Samar, the President called up Assistant Executive Secretary Enrique C. Quema and:

(1) Instructed that a Philippine Air Force plane be readied tomorrow to ferry Speaker Daniel Z. Romualdez to Leyte, Rep. Emilio Espinosa to Masbate, and the Samar solons to their home province, together with SWA Administrator Amparo Villamor and members of the President's contingent fund committee, to help supervise the distribution of relief supplies and make a rough estimate of the damage wrought by typhoon Gilda;

(2) Authorized the NARIC to open its bodega in Laoang, Northern Samar, for requisitions of rice for relief purposes by SWA and the Red Cross;

(3) Directed SWA Administrator Villamor to meet immediately with the presidential relief committee to gather relief supplies needed;

(4) Ordered the RPS Lapu-Lapu made available for transporting the relief supplies; and

(5) Called Budget Commissioner Dominador Aytona to a conference this afternoon at the President's Bohol Avenue residence on numerous requests received from different provinces for financial releases.

The Samar legislators also informed President Garcia that approximately 30,000 persons had been rendered homeless by the storm and that many public buildings had been blown down.

Meanwhile, in a wire to the President, Masbate Gov. Jesus Almero reported that his province suffered an estimated ₱2 million damage to public and private property. In the capital alone, he said, approximately ₱500,000 was lost and 2,000 persons rendered homeless.

Gov. Almero requested the expeditious release of funds to help his province "get back on its feet."

From Bohol Avenue, the Chief Executive and Mrs. Garcia motored to the Veterans Memorial Hospital where he had a final medical check-up.

After receiving a clean bill of health from his doctors, President Garcia returned to Bohol Avenue.

A medical bulletin issued by the doctors on the discharge of the President states: "The latest clinical evaluation permits the termination of President's confinement in the Veterans Hospital. He is practically free from his low back pains and discomforts. However, it is considered advisable for him to continue physiotherapy while he gradually returns to full activity."

According to the medical records, the President had only nine days enforced rest in bed of the 25 days he had been at the hospital. He had been admitted to the hospital last November 15 and went out last Saturday afternoon, December 19.

Those who attended the President during the five weeks confinement were Drs. Antonio Guytingco and Alejandro Gaerlan, his personal physicians; Col. Luis Martinez, former commanding officer of the V. Luna General Hospital; Dr. Benjamin Tamesis, director, National Orthopedic Hospital; Dr. Gilberto Gamez, neurologist of the University of Santo Tomas; Dr. Valentin Fidelino, chief, medical service, VMH; and Dr. Catalino Jocson, orthopedic surgeon, VMH.

Among those who paid a social call on President Garcia this morning were Reps. Salipada Pendatun of Cotabato and Lucas Paredes of Abra and PHHC Director Manuel Leelin.

The President today ordered Justice Buenaventura Ocampo, chairman of the Presidential Committee on Administration Performance Efficiency, to look immediately into the case of some 80 commercial agents who refuse to turn in their used accountable forms to the central office of the Bureau of Commerce.

The President ordered the investigation upon request of Commerce Secretary Pedro Hernaez and acting Commerce Director Rizalino Pablo, whose suspicions were aroused over the firm refusal of the commercial agents to return triplicate copies of official receipts issued by them since 1951.

Acting Director Pablo disclosed that audit and check-up of discrepancies in the accounts of the agents will be completely disrupted by the absence of the triplicate copies of some 600 booklets consisting of 50 official receipts per booklet.

Each commercial agent is issued a booklet of official receipts by the bureau from time to time to receipt for collections representing registration of firms names, fees for bonded warehouses, and copra inspection fees which ran into millions from 1951 to 1953.

Each official receipt consists of three copies, the original being issued to the paying public, the duplicate attached by the commercial agent to his monthly report, and the triplicate remaining in the book to be kept at the central office for purposes of verification.

As there is no way of verifying discrepancies in the agent's collections, the Bureau of Commerce in its Circular No. 6, issued in 1955, made such non-remittance subject to administrative action and stoppage of pay of the officers concerned.

Severino Ortega, administrative officer of the Bureau of Commerce, told Natividad that he had made repeated demands on the agents to return the accountable forms to the bureau but they said that some provincial auditors called for them whenever the officers submitted their monthly collections.

Ortega, however, claimed that the officers would not explain why they would not surrender the forms after the provincial auditors had been through with them.

Ortega said it is possible some of the official receipts still in their hands had not been used at all and that they might be used later on to the great prejudice of the government and the paying public by unscrupulous agents, especially so because some of the commercial agents involved had since been out of the service.

Justice Ocampo immediately ordered Major Teodulo Natividad, chief investigator and legal officer, to work on the case without let-up during the Christmas season so that corresponding administrative action against the persons can be taken.

Working on the case with Natividad are Teodulo Bias and Alfredo G. Cruz, who had been detailed by Director Pablo to cooperate with the PCAPE in the investigation.

Meanwhile, Malacañang announced that the security unit which had been ordered disbanded by the President was a group assigned to the "outer perimeter" protection of the President headed by Maj. Leopoldo Blanco. The disbanding and investigation of this group which has nothing to do with the immediate security of the Chief Executive had been ordered after a denunciation made by Mayor Lacson of Manila of alleged irregularities being perpetrated by this group.

December 22.—PRESIDENT Garcia today received NASSCO General Manager Bernardo Abrera, who reported on his recent trip to India where he was the lone Philippine delegate to the UN-sponsored seminar on management of public enterprises among ECAFE countries held in New Delhi.

He informed the President that it is the consensus among member countries of the ECAFE that in the initial stage the government should have strategic control of basic industries like steel, power development and railways.

The private sector, Abrera said, should take the initiative in the development of secondary and tertiary industries.

The NASSCO Executive also informed President Garcia about the remarkable progress made by India in the development of its steel industry. He said that India will soon manufacture rails, locomotive, and rolling stock for domestic consumption and possibly for export in the future.

There is a plan afoot, Abrera added, to turn out a complete steel plant built by India engineers and technicians in Indian mills out of ore taken from Indian mines.

To date, this country already has six steel mills and their output next year is estimated to reach more than six million tons, he said.

The government resettlement agency head was accompanied by Vicente Taray, private secretary to Mrs. Fortich, and Bruno Apare.

Angel Santos, president of the San Jose Cement Corporation, called on President Garcia and informed him about the progress in the establishment of the firm's proposed multi-million-peso cement plant in San Jose, Mindoro.

Santos said they had hoped to be producing at the plant's peak capacity by 1961 to help in the government's economic development program and provide business and employment opportunities to the country's army of idle and unproductive labor force.

The proposed plant would also enhance the development of one of the sparsely populated provinces in the Philippines and elevate the standard of living of the residents there, he added.

Santos told the President that, according to the findings of competent local and foreign geologists, the corporation has an ideal source for raw materials, for it is located near the site of the proposed cement plant and the necessary ingredients are found in unlimited quantities.

These factors, the San Jose Cement Corporation executive said, will enable them to cut down production costs and produce high quality cement whose selling price can compete with those of other brands made in the Philippines and abroad.

Other callers this morning were Sens. Lorenzo Sumulong and Pedro Sabido, Rep. Reynaldo Honrado, and Rep. Gaudencio Abordo.

December 24.—PRESIDENT Garcia dispatched Drs. Antonio Guytingco and Alejandro Gaerlan to attend to former Japanese Prime Minister Shigeru Yoshida who fell ill after a coughing fit as he was boarding his car for Malacañang to pay a courtesy call on the Chief Executive this morning.

Members of his party, accompanied by Japanese Ambassador Morio Yukawa, were received by President Garcia at the music room in Malacañang. Ambassador Yukawa conveyed to the President the deep regrets of ex-Premier Yoshida at being unable to join the group that called at Malacañang.

Informed of the reason for Yoshida's absence, President Garcia expressed concern over the condition of the visiting dignitary and offered the facilities of the Philippine Government to insure his speedy recovery.

Members of the Yoshida party that went to Malacañang were Zentaro Kosaka, former minister of Labor; Kiichi Aichi, former minister of International Trade and Industry, former minister of justice, and ex-chief secretary of the Cabinet; Naokichi Kitazawa, former deputy chief secretary of the Cabinet; and Tominosuke Imai, a businessman.

The President also received Labor Secretary Angel Castaño, who reported on his series of conferences with U.S. officials in Washington.

In the course of his trip Castaño visited Guam, Honolulu, and California farms where Filipino workers have emigrated.

He recommended to the President the sending of Filipino farm hands to these places to relieve unemployment in the country.

Castaño was joined in his conference with the President by Ildefonso Remolona, local labor leader and commissioner of the Social Security System.

The President spent the night at his private residence.

THIS evening President Garcia gave Labor Secretary Angel Castaño the go signal to implement the program for the emigration of Filipino farm hands to California and other agricultural states of the United States, at a conference held at his Quezon City residence.

The President, however, cautioned Secretary Castaño to adopt measures to avoid private recruiting agencies to fleece applicants. In this connection he directed Castaño that recruiting of Filipino farm hands should be done directly by his department.

At a conference attended by Ildefonso Remolona, local labor leader and SSS commissioner, Secretary Castaño informed President Garcia that the first batch of emigrants has been fixed at 1,000.

The target, according to Secretary Castaño, is 10,000 Filipino farm hands a year. Secretary Castaño pointed out that about 500,00 farm hands emigrated yearly to the United States from neighboring countries to help harvest agricultural products.

The President told Secretary Castaño that, in selecting the applicants, care should be taken to pick experienced agricultural workers.

Secretary Castaño also reported the result of his series of conferences with U. S. officials at Washington. He arrived on Christmas eve.

President's Week in Review: December 27, 1959 - January 2, 1960

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

December 27.—PRESIDENT Garcia today spent a quiet day in his Quezon City residence together with Mrs. Garcia.

After breakfast, the President and the First Lady heard mass at an improvised altar set up in the hall of their residence.

Others who heard the mass were Col. Jacobo Zobel, Lt. Commander Melchor Fronda, and household help.

Then the President received Ambassador Trinidad Legarda, who was accompanied by her husband, Benito Legarda. The lady Ambassador arrived recently to spend here the Christmas season.

For the rest of the day, the President retired to his study room to go over some speeches he is scheduled to deliver soon, as well as his state-of-the-nation address when Congress convenes next month.

President Garcia today issued instructions to different government agencies for the formation early next year of non-agricultural producers and consumers cooperatives as a means of checking the rising cost of prime commodities and improving the standard of living in the rural areas.

The President underscored the need for the speedy formation of these cooperatives which will provide an effective method of distributing NAMARCO goods and NARIC rice and making cheaper prime commodities available to farmers in remote areas.

Another function of these cooperatives will be to promote the production of cottage industries and take charge of the standardization and marketing of their products, the President said, adding that the exploitation of local industries will give rural folks an added source of income and improve their standard of living.

To avoid possible anomalies in their operation and management, the cooperatives will be under the constant supervision and control of the Bureau of Public Schools and the national cooperatives office of the Bureau of Commerce, as well as provincial, municipal, and barrio officials.

As provided for under Republic Act 2033, organization of the cooperatives will be undertaken jointly by the National Marketing Corporation, the National Economic Council, and the office of the Presidential Assistant on Community Development with the assistance of the National Cooperatives Bank and the Development Bank of the Philippines.

The President had previously instructed the NEC to draft plans for the early creation of the cooperatives. The plans had subsequently been completed and submitted to the President by NEC Chairman Jose C. Locsin.

December 28.—SHORTLY before lunchtime, the President motored to Malacañang. He spent the week-end at his private residence on Bohol Avenue, Quezon City.

Before going to the Palace, the President had his daily morning stroll along the lawn of his private residence.

This afternoon the President received Eugenio Santos, general manager of the Philippine Charity Sweepstakes, and discussed the possible aid to be extended to the different hospitals and puericulture centers.

The President said that these different medical institutions have been helping the people in ministering to the needs of those in far-flung areas.

Santos said he will study possible measures in doling out some amounts to puericulture centers and hospitals.

Before receiving the PCS manager, the President conferred with Director Pedro Mayuga of the Bureau of Medical Services.

Mayuga reported on the accomplishments of his office in connection with helping the people, especially in the barrios.

This evening the President received Ambassador Carlos P. Romulo, Philippine envoy to Washington, at the music room of Malacañang.

The President exchanged views with Romulo, who returned in Manila shortly before Christmas Day to attend the coming wedding of his son early next year.

The Philippine envoy to Washington presented a Christmas gift to the President which was reported to be a portable television set.

"It's the most modern TV set in the United States, Romulo was heard to have told the President in presenting his Christmas present to the Chief Executive.

December 29.—THIS morning the President expressed gratification over a plan of Japanese and Filipino capitalists to export coconut fibers to Japan, saying that the utilization of coconut by-products will give an additional income to Filipino farmers and be an added boost to one of the dollar producing industries of the country.

At a conference held in Malacañang, the President was informed by Kunitoshi Tezuka, president of the Tezuka Hydraulic Press Co., Ltd.; Mike S. Miura of the Toho Industrial Co., Ltd.; and Francisco R. Santos, prominent Filipino businessman, that there is a ready market in Japan for coconut fibers which at present go to waste in the Philippines.

The Japanese businessman further informed President Garcia that Japan is at present importing coconut fibers from Ceylon at the rate of 50,000 tons a month. The plan to import Filipino coconut fibers is favored by Japanese interests in view of lower costs and freight charges.

The Japanese capitalists proposed to install coconut defibering plants in coconut-producing areas throughout the country.

The Japanese businessman also extended to President Garcia the personal greetings of Japanese Premier Kishi, who sent the Chief Executive a table clock.

Earlier, President Garcia received municipal officials of Quezon province who asked his support to a plan to convert the second district of Quezon into a regular province to be known as Tayabas.

The group was led by Mayor Yumul of Lopez, who is the president of the Mayors' League of Quezon. Other members of the delegation included Mayors Alpay of Alabat, Egordo of Calauag, Roldan of Guinayangan, and Tan of San Marcos.

President Garcia today appointed the members of the Philippine panel to negotiate a treaty of friendship, commerce, and navigation with Japan.

The panel which is bipartisan in nature will be composed of former Speaker Jose B. Laurel, Jr., chairman; Sen. Lorenzo Sumulong (N) and Sen. Rogelio de la Rosa (L), Rep. Ramon P. Mitra (N, Mt. Province) and Rep. Antonio V. Raquiza (L, Ilocos Norte), Commerce Undersecretary Perfecto E. Laguio, Deputy Central Bank Governor Andres Castillo, and Minister Juan Arreglado of the Department of Foreign Affairs, members.

Negotiations will start as soon as Japan has formed her negotiation panel.

Conclusion of a treaty of friendship, commerce, and navigation with Japan will mean the expansion of foreign markets for Philippine products, especially raw materials, and the establishment and maintenance of better relations between the Philippines and Japan.

Although the Philippines has already concluded trade protocols with Italy and Germany, it has failed to reach formal trade agreement with Japan.

Philippine trade with Japan under the cash-and-carry system which was adopted on August 1, 1957, totalled ₱162,345,416 in exports and ₱156,932,668 in imports, in 1958.

Previously, trade with Japan was carried on under an open account system of payment under the trade and financial agreements signed between the Philippines and SCAP, (and later Japan).

In the evening the President met the three reparations commissioners and took up proposed amendments to the law on war indemnity payments by the Japanese Government to the Philippines. Present at the conference held at Malacañang were Reparations Commissioners Rodolfo Maslog, Juan Alberto, and Gregorio Abad.

Maslog and Abad were summoned to the Philippines from Japan following a continuing expose of alleged irregularities in the transactions of the commission involving war indemnity materials. Alberto is in charge of the Manila office.

The President has asked the commission members previously to submit their courtesy resignations in order to give him a free hand to reorganize the body.

Only Alberto has so far complied with the President's request. Maslog and Abad up to press time this evening had not yet submitted their courtesy resignations.

The President discussed with the commissioners proposed amendments which the Chief Executive intends to submit to Congress at the opening session of Congress late next month.

President Garcia said he plans to submit the proposed amendments to the reparations law to plug all possible loopholes and prevent transactions from falling into the hands of middlemen.

December 30.—PRESIDENT Garcia today ordered the investigation of the charges aired directly to him by Gov. Feliciano Leviste of Batangas against Director Vicente de la Cruz of the Commission of Parks and Wildlife for alleged harassment of a landowner.

The President's order to investigate was given to the Presidential Complaints and Administration Performance Efficiency following the call at the President's residence in Quezon City shortly before noon today of Gov. Leviste, who sought the suspension of Director de la Cruz pending investigation of the charges.

The parks director allegedly caused the suspension by the Department of Agriculture of a certificate of private woodland registration issued to one Pascual M. Perez despite an opinion previously issued by the Secretary of Justice and a subsequent ruling by the court of first instance of Camarines Norte affirming the validity of the certificate of title.

The President spent the day at his residence in Quezon City. He did not receive any caller except Gov. Leviste, who found him strolling around his lawn for his prescribed daily exercise.

Waking up early this morning at Malacañang where he had spent the night, the President had breakfast with Mrs. Garcia and other members of his family. Then he stayed for some time in his bedroom where he went over the morning newspapers and some state documents which he kept at his bedside table for study.

The President also ordered an aide, Maj. Ciriaco Hocson, to contact Minister Manuel G. Zamora, Malacañang protocol officer, and check up whether the latter had already sent a wreath to the Rizal monument on the Luneta in commemoration of the death anniversary of the Philippines' martyr-hero.

About 9:30 a.m., the President put on a maroon polo shirt and motored to his Quezon City residence where he spent the day.

President Garcia today granted a 30-day reprieve to Alejandro de la Cruz, who had been set for execution on January 4 to give himself more time to study a petition for commutation to life imprisonment filed with Malacañang in behalf of the condemned prisoner,

De la Cruz had been imposed the death penalty by the Pangasinan court of first instance on February 25, 1957, for the crime of robbery with homicide and double serious physical injuries. He had been charged with the killing of one Amadeo Miranda and the wounding of two others in barrio Malabago, Calasiao, Pangasinan, on July 2, 1956.

The death sentence meted out to the prisoner was subsequently affirmed by the Supreme Court on April 30, 1959.

In issuing the reprieve order, the President said that he had just received a petition for commutation to life imprisonment of the death penalty imposed upon De la Cruz and that some time was needed for a thorough and careful consideration of the merits of the petition.

December 31.—PRESIDENT Garcia today alerted all relief agencies to be ready to extend immediate assistance to victims of typhoon Harriet reported to be raging in the Bicol region with center winds packing 140 miles an hour.

Alerted by the President were the Social Welfare Administration, the Constabulary, the Department of Health, the Department of Public Works, and the Philippine National Red Cross. Southern and Central Luzon are expected to experience stormy weather starting today.

The President spent the day at his Bohol Avenue residence in Quezon City, clearing his desk of important pending papers before the New Year comes around.

At 10 a.m. the President received Defense Secretary Alejo Santos, who brought along three Christianized Ilongots, one of them the chief of police of the Ilongot reservation in Nueva Ecija by the name of Dionisio Canauan.

The Ilongots informed President Garcia that the majority of them want to live in peace but some members of the tribe still persisted in headhunting.

President Garcia instructed Secretary Santos to look after the welfare of the Ilongots, whose main grievance is that after cultivating a piece of land it is grabbed away from them by their Christian brothers. He told the defense secretary to apply the policy of attraction, to deal with Ilongots with understanding and to avoid the use of violence if possible.

In the evening President Garcia left his Bohol Avenue residence and motored to Malacañang where he joined Mrs. Garcia and their children, Mr. and Mrs. Fernando Campos, at supper.

After supper, close relatives and intimate friends of the presidential family dropped in at the Palace for an impromptu get-together.

Shortly before midnight, President and Mrs. Garcia, their children, and guests went down to the Malacañang chapel and heard mass.

After mass the guests gathered once more in the family dining room and had light refreshments while the President retired to his room.

This evening President Garcia paid tribute to the late President Roxas, saying that the latter's birth 68 years ago had come as a precious gift to his people and as a timely response to a national need.

In a statement issued on the eve of the late President's birthday, which coincides with New Year's Day, President Garcia said:

"While the perspective of time will render a definite answer to the role of President Roxas in history, I have, as one of his contemporaries, an impelling duty to state that the patriotic virtues and achievements of this leader and friend had been motivated by his ever resolute and inspired dedication to the interest and welfare of his people.

"I am happy to join our people in remembering his distinguished life as a public servant," President Garcia added.

The President this evening ordered Minister Manuel G. Zamora, Malacañang protocol officer, to send a wreath to the tomb of the late President and have a unit of the Presidential Guard Battalion stand guard at the Mausoleum at the Manila North Cemetery, from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. tomorrow.

President Garcia is the recipient of an intricately made Christmas lantern in the form of a big green parrot sent to him by one Rogaciano C. Cuevas, an insular prisoner assigned at the AFP Disciplinary Barracks, Ft. William McKinley.

The beautiful lantern which was made in exactly 11 months during the "free" hours of the prisoner was sent to the President to show his appreciation and gratitude for the "great service our President is doing for our people and country."

In a letter addressed to Press Secretary Jose C. Nable, Mr. Cuevas expressed his faith and loyalty to the President and added that the criticisms hurled against President Garcia by his political enemies is caused by the misunderstanding of the philosophies being strictly followed by the Chief Executive both in his private and public life.

Cuevas ended his letter with the wish for the continued health and happiness of the President and his family.

The Christmas lantern is now hung at a conspicuous place at the Malacañang Social Hall.

January 1.—PRESIDENT Garcia this morning offered a toast for the success of "the universal effort for peace" at the traditional exchange of toasts with the local diplomatic corps during the New Year's Day reception at Malacañang.

The President also offered a toast for the health of the chiefs of states and the prosperity of the peoples represented by the local diplomatic corps.

In the name of the diplomatic corps, the Papal Nuncio as its doyen, in turn offered a toast for the health of President Garcia and for the prosperity of the Filipino people.

President and Mrs. Garcia were "at home" in Malacañang for official callers from 11 a.m. to past high noon.

The first callers to greet President and Mrs. Garcia were Vice-President and Mrs. Diosdado Macapagal. Immediately following the Macapagals were Senate President and Mrs. Eulogio Rodriguez, Sr., and Speaker and Mrs. Daniel Z. Romualdez, together with Sens. Lorenzo Sumulong, Pedro Sabido, and Pacita M. Gonzalez, and Reps. Salipada Pendatun, Justinano Montano, Francisco Sumulong, Inocencio Ferrer, Emilio Cortez, Pedro Trono, and Fausto Dugenio.

The diplomatic exchange of toasts were made after the President and Mrs. Garcia had received the members of the Supreme Court and the Cabinet.

Other callers included high U.S. officials led by Secretary of the Army and Mrs. Wilbur Brucker, U.S. Charge d' Affaires George Abbott, the heads of the major commands of the U.S. Armed Forces and Federal Agencies in the Philippines, and the Chief of Staff Lt. Gen. Manuel Cabal and high officers of the Armed Forces of the Philippines.

Meanwhile, President Garcia authorized the advanced spot relief of ₱50,000 for construction material for the victims of typhoon Harriet.

After the reception, President Garcia administered the oath of office to the first woman member of the provincial board of Negros Oriental, Mrs. Maria A. Diaz, in the presence of Education Secretary and Mrs. Jose Romero, Assistant Executive Secretary Enrique C. Quema, Ambassador Carlos P. Romulo, and Miguel Diaz.

The President woke up early and called for his confessor, Fr. Domingo Nebres. After a short meditation and confession, the President heard mass, together with Mrs. Garcia, relatives, and close friends. The President also received Holy Communion.

After mass the President and Mrs. Garcia had breakfast with those who heard mass with them. The same group also had lunch with the President and the First Lady.

The President ordered a wreath laid at the tomb of the late President Roxas at the new La Loma Cemetery. He also had a unit of the Presidential Guard Battalion stand guard over the late President's mausoleum from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.

President Garcia renewed his pledge for an early and definite solution to the problem of graft and corruption in the government in his remarks shortly after swearing in 10 Nacionalista councilors of Manila in Malacañang this afternoon.

Those who took their oaths before the President were Francisco D. Gatmaitan, first district; Apolonio V. Gener, Eriberto A. Remigio, and Francis P. Yuseco, second district; Vicente G. Cruz and Ernesto M. Maceda, third district; and Felicisimo R. Cabigao, Alfredo R. Gomez, Gonzalo Santos Rivera, and Pablo V. Ocampo, fourth district.

Sounding a call for the cooperation of the NP members of the Manila municipal council in the Administration's task of house-cleaning, the Chief Executive said the people of this city have reiterated their confidence in the majority party by electing to office IMP city mayor and majority of the NP candidates to the municipal board.

The ceremony was attended by relatives, of the inductees, ward leaders of the different districts, and their friends and admirers.

After the oath-taking, the new city councilors introduced their ladies to President Garcia. Councilor Ernesto M. Maceda, the youngest among the group, presented his mother, Mrs. Antonio Mecedo, to the Chief Executive explaining that he is still single.

Most of the councilors wore barong Tagalog with the exception of Councilors Francis P. Yuseco and Pablo V. Ocampo who came in dark suits. 50 points in more than an hour.

President Garcia was scheduled to administer the oaths of office to 40 “loyalist” mayors of Cebu but the ceremony was postponed until a later date, as the majority of the newly-elected town executives we’re unable to come to Manila because of typhoon Harriet.

January 2.—PRESIDENT Garcia today started playing billiards at his private residence, and from all indications the First Lady, who has frowned upon chess, is succeeding in weaning the Chief Executive away from the Kings’ pasttime.

Mrs. Garcia has purchased a billiard table and presented it to the President as her Christmas present.

The First Lady, it was learned, wanted to interest the Chief Executive in the game and make him forget chess.

Mrs. Garcia has blamed the President’s addiction to chess for his recent ailment—low back pains—which had confined him at the Veterans Memorial Hospital for more than five weeks.

“I get a kick out of it,” the President remarked as he handled the cue and played three-ball billiards.

He recalled that, when he was young, he used to play the game and could rack up a record 20 points. He believes he could still make that mark.

As he started on his new pastime, the President was able to string up 50 points in more than an hour.

Excited over the game, the President invited his only caller, Sen. Claro M. Recto, to a game of billiards.

However, the Senator excused himself by saying he did not know how to play the game.

Malacañang said the Senator’s visit was purely a social call. Recto was reported to have greeted the President, as he was not able to see him in Malacañang on New Year’s Day.

With nobody to play with, Press Secretary Jose C. Nable, who was then at the President’s private residence, came in handy as a playmate.

The President, despite his weak right leg and long lay-off from the game, was reported to have beaten the Malacañang press secretary.

In the afternoon the President motored to the Palace to induct the Cebu NP “Loyalist” mayors who won in the last election.

However, after finding out that not all the pro-Garcia mayors had arrived, the President decided to postpone their scheduled induction until some other day, perhaps tomorrow or Monday.

President's Week in Review: January 3-9, 1960

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

January 3.—PRESIDENT Garcia spent a quiet day at his residence on Bohol Avenue, Quezon City, today, working mostly on the draft of the state-of-the-nation message he will deliver before both Houses of Congress when this body convenes on January 25.

Brig. Gen. Isagani V. Ocampo was the Chief Executive's only caller today. The PC Chief briefed the President on the peace and order situation in the country during 1959 which he described as "generally satisfactory."

Earlier this morning President and Mrs. Garcia heard mass celebrated before an improvised altar in their home.

After breakfast the President went over the Sunday newspapers and then invited Dr. Alejandro Gaerlan to a game of billiards which he easily won. While they were playing, Gen. Ocampo arrived.

After the game the President and the Constabulary chief went to the library where they conferred until noon.

President Garcia started working on the draft of his speech shortly after lunch and continued until late in the afternoon. Taking a short break from his work, the President went out to the yard of his residence and strolled around the premises, inspecting the fruit trees and plants.

After partaking, of a light supper, the Chief Executive closeted himself in his room and resumed work on his speech. President Garcia today said that he may ask Congress for a more realistic program on the question of tobacco production.

Emphasizing that there is now a surplus of about 20 million kilos of tobacco, the President pointed out that a new tobacco harvest is due: from February to May this year which will add up to the surplus, on hand.

Press Secretary Jose C. Nable said the President may present this problem squarely in his state-of-the-nation speech at the opening session of Congress on January 25.

The President, according to Nable, may reiterate his recommendation to Congress to limit the production of tobacco' only to high grade Virginia tobacco, and as much as possible, to discourage the planting of low grade tobacco.

This recommendation had been mentioned by the President in his report on the nation before Congress last January, Nable recalled.

President Garcia took occasion to reiterate his stand for the continuation of price support on this commodity.

President Garcia, however, is considering seriously a proposal submitted to him which calls for the transfer of the marketing phase of tobacco to private enterprise, and pulling out of the government from this venture. It was pointed out to the President that it was precisely this problem of marketing which has given rise to the reported irregularities.

In connection with the extension of easy credit to tobacco farmers, the President is also considering a sister proposal which calls for the farmers to draw their credit through rural banks.

January 4.—PRESIDENT Garcia swore in an elected town official belonging to the opposition party in a ceremony held at his residence on Bohol Avenue, Quezon City, this morning.

Carmelo Cimafranca, Jr., duly-elected vice-mayor of Dauis, Bohol, a die-hard Liberal, took his oath of office before the President. The brief ceremony was witnessed by Mrs. Leonila D. Garcia, ex-Rep. Luis Y. Clarin of Bohol, Edilberto B. Galiates, PCAPE Vice-Chairman Maximo A. Maceren, Mrs. Felicisima Cimafranca, and Bril Clarin.

Cimafranca had figured prominently in a shooting incident between NP and LP followers in Bohol on November 1, 1957, during the height of the presidential campaign. At the time of the shooting, President Garcia had just left the Tagbilaran airport for Talibon, his hometown, to make his annual visit to his parents' graves on all Saints' Day.

After the oath-taking ceremony, President and Mrs. Garcia motored to Malacañang where the President devoted the rest of the day working on state papers that had piled up during the holidays.

In Malacañang the President again received the 39 elected Cebu mayors who ran under the pro-Garcia wing of the Nacionalista Party during the last elections.

The President inducted the mayors last night at a ceremony attended by Reps. Ramon Durano and Manuel Zoza and Assistant Executive Secretary Mariano Logarta,

The elected Cebu mayors saw President again today and renewed their pledge of loyalty to him and to his administration.

They assured the President that in the current political controversy in Cebu, they would stand behind the Chief Executive.

The President thanked them for their renewed pledge of loyalty and said he would cooperate with their administration for the welfare of their constituents.

The Cebu mayors saw the President before they left for their respective stations late this day.

The President also received Dr. Leopoldo T. Ruiz, president of the Silliman University, who is leaving for abroad shortly. The President once studied at Silliman University.

January 5.—THE Chief Executive spent the day in Malacañang working on pending state papers. He received very few callers.

Among this visitors whom he received shortly before noon included Reps, Felix A. Fuentesbella of Camarines Sur, Emilio P. Cortez of Pampanga, Fausto Dugenio of Misamis Oriental, and Agaton Ursua of Camarines Sur. The solons called to request financial assistance for the rehabilitation, of their typhoon- and fire-ravaged localities.

The last caller this noon was Rep. Luciano Millan of Pangasinan, who likewise sought relief for fire victims in his hometown, Asingan.

The President did not receive any caller in the afternoon.

President Garcia set a meeting of his Cabinet for Thursday, January 7, it was announced by Press Secretary Jose C. Nable today. It will be the first Cabinet meeting to be held by the President this year.

The Cabinet, at its Thursday meeting, will consider only those items left on its agenda last meeting with the exception of certain, urgent matters the President might want to take up with his official family.

President Garcia today also summoned five department secretaries to a conference at Malacañang tomorrow morning for the purpose of assessing the extent of damage wrought by recent destructive typhoons and discussing the immediate reconstruction of destroyed public buildings, roads, and bridges.

Cuenco wrote President Garcia recently and denounced the reparations officials for allegedly allowing the overpricing of war indemnity items.

President Garcia wrote Macapagal a long letter rejecting the Veep's petition for a complete change in the composition of the Cabinet committee created to investigate the case. The Vice-President had accused the Cabinet committee members of "partiality."

The Santos case has assumed political complexion and from all indications it would be an issue in the 1961 presidential elections.

The five prisoners had been convicted of robbery and murder in band of a Chinese storeowner and six members of his family in barrio Lamitan, Kidapawan, Cotabato, on April 23, 1953.

Llagas, alone, will be allowed to burn, as he had owned full responsibility for the crime.

In the afternoon the President motored to Malacañang to receive the credentials of John Dewey Hickerson, the new U. S. Ambassador to the Philippines, in a presentation ceremony held at the ceremonial hall.

President Garcia today expressed confidence that readjustments in the relationship between the Philippines and the United States will not affect the close friendship between the two countries.

The Chief Executive made this statement in his response to the remarks delivered by United States Ambassador to the Philippines John Dewey Hickerson after the latter had presented his letters of credence to the President in a ceremony at the Malacañang ceremonial hall this afternoon.

The new American envoy arrived in Malacañang at exactly 4: 59 p.m., with Minister Pedro Angara-Aragon, acting chief of the foreign affairs protocol division, and Maj. Ciriaco Hocson, military aide-de-camp to the President.

Members of the US Embassy staff headed by Minister George M. Abbott also came to witness the ceremony.

After acknowledging military honors tendered by an honor guard made of elements of the Presidential Guard Battalion, Ambassador Hickerson was accompanied up the Palace where he was met at the head of the stairs by Col. Jorge Delarmente, senior presidential aide-de-camp.

The Texas-born diplomat entered his name in the official guest book of Malacañang and then proceeded to the ceremonial hall, where President Garcia and the members of his Cabinet were waiting.

After the presentation ceremony, the President and Ambassador Hickerson exchanged toasts with basi, which has become the ceremonial wine in Malacañang.

A graduate of the University of Texas, Ambassador Hickerson joined the US foreign service corps in 1920 as vice-consul to Tampico, Mexico.

Rising through the ranks, he was US ambassador extraordinary and plenipotentiary to Finland before his recent appointment to represent his country in the Philippines.

From the ceremonial hall, President Garcia and members of his official family went to the state dining room for the regular weekly Cabinet meeting.

President Garcia told the Cabinet this afternoon to reduce their 1961 budgetary estimates sharply to save the nation from getting deeper in the red.

He rejected outright the budget proposals submitted by the Cabinet members as impractical, unsound and against his austerity policy.

The President warned against the danger of getting indebted to the tune of ₱132 million next year unless Cabinet members revise their figures to keep within the expected income.

The appropriations sought by the Cabinet for the fiscal year total P1,127,536,820. This represents an overall increase of P226 million over the current appropriations. This does not include the appropriation to be made by the Senate and the House.

Budget Commissioner Dominador Aytona reported during the meeting that the estimated total revenues for 1981 will be P955 million.

This expected income, set against the Cabinet proposals of P1,127,536.620 as received by President Garcia and the Budget Commission, will result in a national budgetary indebtedness next year in the amount of at least P132 million.

President Garcia and the Cabinet will resume discussion of the fiscal program next week. By that time the President expects his Cabinet to have pared down their estimates.

The departments that seek increases in appropriations are as follows: Education, P78 million increase; Finance, P43 million; National Defense, P29 million; Public Works and Communications, P21 million; Labor, P1 million; Agriculture and Natural Resources, P11 million; National Science Development Board, P1 million; University of the Philippines, P2 million; Land Tenure Administration, P8 million.

The President made this statement at a conference in the Malacañang music room following the induction this morning of PVTA General Manager Juan C. Relosa, Assistant General Manager Angel Belandres as Board Member Gualberto Besa.

In lauding the officials of the PVTA, the President said that they going in the government service “not for what they can get but for what they can give.”

Despite heavy pressure of official work, President Garcia took time out, even delaying his luncheon, to extend help personally to a dying boy. He mobilized the government agencies to help rush much needed medicine to the dying boy in Cebu City today.

The President's aid was sought by Paul Wood, president of International Harvester Company of Philippines, at noon today. A 16-year old boy, Jose Ignacio Rosello, Jr., son of Jose Rosello, an employee of the IH branch office in Cebu City was hovering between life and death as a result of an accident. The medicine needed to stop the internal hemorrhage was not available in Manila or in Cebu. Wood had phoned the IH office to be on board a PAL plane arriving in Manila in the evening.

Wood sought the help of the President to speed the release of the medicine from the Customs on the arrival of the PAL plane so that it could be placed in another PAL for Cebu at midnight.

When appraised of the situation, the President deferred his luncheon to get in touch with Customs Commissioner Eleuterio Capapas to expedite release of the medicine.

Wood said officials and employees of Harvester Philippines were deeply touched by the President's kindness and sent IH PRO Tony Arizabal to thank him for all the help he extended to save the life of the dying boy.

The Chief Executive gave this instructions shortly after administering the oaths of office to the members of the revamped ACCFA board of governors led by Vicente Araneta, administrator and chairman of the board.

Press Secretary Jose C. Nable said President Garcia's conference with the ACCFA officials immediately after they were sworn in was an unusual procedure and it showed definitely the President's keen interest in the welfare of the rural folks.

In his conference President Garcia expressed his belief that the problems facing the ACCFA are not insurmountable. He urged the officials to greater efforts in their new task.

Manager Araneta gave his assurance to President Garcia that he would do his very best. The other board governors likewise gave their individual assurances to the Chief Executive.

President Garcia thanked Manager Araneta and the board of governors for accepting their posts and new responsibilities. He referred to Araneta as the "father of the ACCFA law."

President Garcia also brought out the fact that he was being congratulated for his choice of ACCFA officials.

Others sworn in by the President at the oath-taking ceremony held in the Malacañang reception hall were Dean Leopoldo B. Uichanco, Rafael Piguing, Celestino Paulin, Lorenzo Sarmiento, and Apolonio V. Marasigan. Jose Mapa Gomez, president of the National Federation of Sugar Planters, was unable to take his oath.

Earlier this afternoon, President Garcia received Col. Generoso Tanseco, president of the Filipino Shipowners' Association, and Antonio Botelho, member, who presented problems of the Philippine shipping business.

Presidents and managers of seven local shipping companies comprising the United Philippine Lines reacted sharply to claims of alleged overpricing of reparations vessels which appeared in certain sectors of the press recently.

In their letter to President Garcia, which was delivered personally by Col. Generoso Tanseco, president of the Filipino Shipowners' Association, and Antonio A. R. Botelho, member of the FSA, the shipping executives informed the President that the difference in prices between ships built in Japan for Japanese users and reparations ships for the Philippines was justified.

They said that reparations vessels, unlike those for Japanese users, are built with the most rigid classification standards of the American Bureau of Shipping and Lloyds Register of London, as well as of the stringent revised Philippine Merchant Marine regulations.

January 15.—PRESIDENT Garcia today received a plaque of appreciation from the National Federation of Women's Clubs of the Philippines. The plaque was presented at a simple ceremony held at the Malacañang study room by Mrs. Minerva Laudico, president of the Federation.

Present were ranking officials of the Federation, including Mrs. Leonila D. Garcia, honorary president.

The plaque cited the help extended by President Garcia to the First Women's World Conference held in Asia under the auspices of the General Federation of Women's Clubs and the First Asian Women's Conference also held in Manila from June 19 to 26, 1959.

President Garcia appealed to the NFWC officials to help arouse public interests in the work of the Rizal Centennial Commission.

The President cited the role that women are now playing in the government. He mentioned the fact that the first women ambassador of the Philippines, Mrs. Trinidad F. Legarda, is acquitting herself admirably in her present post. He added that Filipino women have in the past represented the country with distinction in several world conferences.

Present at the ceremony were Mrs. Florence Cadwallader and Doña Concha Rodriguez, advisers; Mrs. Enriqueta Benavidez, first vice-president Mrs. Punfacion Lopa, treasurer; Mrs. Julita Benedicto, secretary Mrs. Paz Reyes, assistant treasurer; Mrs. Carmen Bunda, Mrs. Salud Unson Mrs. Pilar H. Lim, Mrs. Maria O. Casas, Mrs. Asuncion Asistio and Mrs. Aurelia Castro, directors; and Mrs. Paz M. Catolico and Miss Nenuca Lopez.

Earlier, the President received Chinese Ambassador Tuan Mao-Ian Gov Esteban Bernido of Bohol, Tourism Commissioner Modesto Farolan, accompanied by Miss Cita Trinidad, GAB Commissioner Manuel Nieto, Jr. Leonides Virata, Miss Conchita Sunico, Francisco Ortigas, Bob Phillips, CDA Head Alfredo Eugenio, Mr. and Mrs. Andres Mature, NARRA Board Chairman and General Manager Remedies Fortich, and NARRA board members.

IN the evening the President received officials of the Republic Resources and Development Corporation. The REDECO officials who saw the President and briefed him on the progress of oil exploration in Cebu were Jose Tiong, Austin Taylor, Dr. Perfecto Mendoza, and Robert Schnabel.

The President also had dinner with the officials and members of the Mindanao-Palawan-Sulu bloc otherwise known as Minsupala.

The Minsupala leaders urged the President to name two members of his Cabinet from their regions.

They also asked the President to give them representation in every government corporation,

Those who were invited by the President were Sens. Domocao Alonto, Roseller T. Lim, and Alejandro Almendras; Reps. Reynaldo Honrado and Gaudencio Abordo; Gov. Constantino Navarro of Surigao; and Pedro Suarez, Pablo Sarmiento, Lorenzo Sarmiento, Fernando Silvosa, and F. B. Acebedo.

January 16.—TODAY the President conferred for the second time with Congress leaders at his private residence in Quezon City to take up major administration problems, including the reorganization of the Cabinet.

In contrast with the first meeting, the President met the Congress leaders who compose the Council of Leaders of the Administration only briefly. Their first meeting lasted ten hours.

Malacañang said the President cut short the conference, as he was busy going over the draft of the speech he delivered before the members of the Manila Overseas Press Club this evening.

However, the President said he will call Congress leaders again either Tuesday or Wednesday to finalize his legislative program and the new composition of his Cabinet.

The President took up with the Congress leaders the status of government corporations.

He said he was planning to sell most of the government corporations which have already outlived their usefulness.

Present at the conference were Senate President Eulogio Rodriguez, Senate President Protempore Fernando Lopez, Senate Majority Floor Leader Cipriano Primicias, Speaker Daniel Z. Romualdez, Speaker Protempore Constancio E. Castañeda, and House Majority Floor Jose Aldeguer.

Rep. Bartolome C. Cabangbang of Bohol was also present at the conference.

After his conference with Congress leaders, the President received Sen. Eulogio Balao and Rep. Benjamin T. Ligot of Cagayan. Ligot was reported to have explained his recent tiff with Assistant Executive Secretary Enrique C. Quema. The Cagayan solon was reported to have almost come to blows with the assistant executive secretary over appointments. In the evening the President motored to the Manila Overseas Press Club, where he was the guest of the MOPC at the traditional "President's flight" dinner.

In his speech at the traditional "President's Night" dinner of the Manila Overseas Press Club on Dewey Boulevard, the Chief Executive declared:

"As long as this condition persists, we shall remain in many ways a colonial country."

President Garcia deplored that alien control of the country's economy was making a "mockery of our independence, compromising the future of our Republic, and posing an ever-present threat to the stability of the social order."

The President underscored the nationalistic policy of his administration and pledged to implement it "with malice towards none and with fairness to all."

"We will do it with full understanding of our international obligations to all our friends of the Free World with whom we have treaties of friendship," President Garcia declared.

"We will do this within the framework of our treaties with the United States to whose citizens we have granted until 1974 by constitutional provision equal rights as Filipinos in the exploitation of our lands, mines, forest and other natural resources, and public utilities to whom we also granted by the provision of the Laurel-Langley Agreement, parity with Filipinos in Philippine trade.”

“In this light, therefore, I can give full assurance that the Philippine economic nationalism as a national policy is not anti-alien, much less anti-American,” he added.

He emphasized that the policy is “an honest-to-goodness effort of the Filipino people to be the master of their own economic household for exactly the same natural reasons that Americans would be masters of the United States national economy”

He asserted that the last elections proved that “for the first time since the Philippines became independent, nationalism became a burning issue at the polls.”

The President observed that in the evolution of the economic life of the country, “we have reached the state . . . where to temporize further with our present problem would result in the perpetuation of conditions which make for economic vassalage. Unless we moved decisively today,” he added, “it would well’ mean compromising the future of our Republic.”

President's Week in Review: January 17-23, 1960

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

January 17.—THE PRESIDENT was kept busy today with a tight schedule although it is Sunday.

After hearing mass at an improvised altar at his private residence on Bohol Avenue, Quezon City, the President received an eight-man delegation of Korean community development trainees.

President Garcia told members of the eight-man delegation of the Republic of Korea community development trainees that they can make use of any government facility available to help them in the furtherance of their studies in community development.

The Chief Executive made the statement during a courtesy call by the delegation at his Bohol Avenue residence in Quezon City this morning. The trainees are under the NEC-ICA regional training program on community development.

Hyung Mo Lee, head of the delegation and a member of the Korean National Assembly, informed the President that they were very much impressed by the methods adopted in this country on community development, so much so that, upon their return to Korea, they will recommend the application of Philippine systems on community development.

Accompanied by Ramon Binamira, presidential assistant on community development, the group was composed of Hyung Mo Lee, reconstruction committee chairman of the Korean Assembly; Yong Soon Yoon, chief secretary to the minister of health and social welfare; Bom Ho Lee, economic planning official of the Reconstruction Ministry; Han Won Cho of the National Council of Community Development; Hak Chin Kim, economic editor of the Seoul Daily News; Jung Seon Seo agricultural specialist; Byung Kyoo Suh, chief of social affairs section; and Dong Sik Chae, also of the National Development Council.

President Garcia likewise received Dr. Vidal Tan, Earl Carrol, and Mrs. Oscar Ledesma, members of the Philippine-American Cultural Foundation board of trustees who called on the Chief Executive to request him to donate a parcel of land for the site of the foundation building.

In the afternoon the President received Secretary of Health Elpidio Valencia, who reported on the progress of his investigation on recently uncovered anomalous practices within his department.

In the evening the President, accompanied by the First Lady, motored to the Sky Room of the Jai Alai on Taft Avenue, where he addressed the closing conference of the Pax Romana.

President Garcia this evening justified anew the nationalism movement in the Philippines as a crusade to achieve "economic autonomy."

He defended his nationalism policy in an address before the delegates to the Pax Romana conferences at the Sky Room of the Jai Alai.

It was the second time in two days that the President defended the nationalism movement.

The President also lauded the Pax Romana movement "because it rejects the principle embodied in the atomic bomb 'that might is right'."

He said it is his personal conviction that the great drawbacks to peace are ideologies which "discard faith in God, that annul human freedom and human dignity, and those that are rooted on gross materialism."

After lauding the Pax Romana movement, the President went on to explain what he called “another crusade in our country—the nationalism movement”

He deplored the fact that the movement, has been “unjustly criticized as bigoted, nearsighted, conceived in hatred, unjust, and uncharitable.”

President Garcia stressed that his concept of nationalism is that movement which reflects the maturity of the Filipino people as a free and sovereign people.

He denied charges that it is “anti-alien.” It is not “isolationistic or chauvinistic,” he stressed.

The President explained that no nation can now live in a vacuum of economic, cultural, or political isolation.

“If we desire what is good for the country,” he said, “certainly we should strive to assimilate the best that the world has to offer in culture science, and progress. We need not be afraid that we will lose our individuality,” he declared.

January 18.—PRESIDENT Garcia will recommend the enactment of appropriate legislation to facilitate the exportation of surplus Philippine rice in his state-of-the-nation message to Congress when this body convenes early next week.

The President expressed his great concern over this problem to a large delegation from rice producing provinces in Luzon which called at Malacañang this morning to request the continued enforcement of the government price-support program in order to encourage farmers to produce more.

Dr. Florentino Chioco and ex-Gov. Herminio Algas, spokesmen for the delegation, told the Chief Executive that rice producers are losing money because of the high cost of production and the low market price of this commodity.

President Garcia explained the NARIC’s inability to continue the program because of lack of funds. At present, he said, the government rice agency owes the PNB P60 million for its operations during the past years and cannot now get additional loans until this obligation is settled.

He also said that the NARIC has three million cavanese of rice from the 1958 crop in its bodegas which it cannot dispose of except at a loss because this stock was purchased at the authorized support price of P10 per cavan. Efforts are now being exerted for the disposition of this stock through barter, he added.

Ex-Gov. Algas also submitted to President Garcia a resolution of the delegation endorsing the appointment of Juan O. Chioco as agriculture secretary and Genaro Visarra as executive secretary,

Earlier this morning, ex-Speaker Jose B. Laurel, Jr., and Batangas Gov. Feliciano Leviste called on the President at his residence on Bohol Avenue to ask for financial assistance for the repair of public works installations in their province damaged by typhoon Harriet, which hit Batangas last New Year’s eve. Also with the group were Lipa City Mayor Miguel Lina and Talisay Mayor Amando Laurel.

In Malacañang the Chief Executive received members of a South Korean educational mission to Southeast Asia who paid a courtesy call. The delegation was composed of Dr. Louise Im, president of Chungang University, Seoul; Byung No Kim, principal, Chunchun High School; Tacshki Shin, deputy dean, Kaesung College, Tsegu; Chung Woo Kim, principal, Teajon Commercial High School; Chung Dei Im, principal, Ewangju High School; Mal Am Chang, principal, Soochang Elementary School; Duk Kevin Choo, principal, Yungnam High School; Bong Joon Cha, principal, Tonghum Elementary School; Kwang Ho Pyo, principal, South Pusan Girls Commercial High School; Chung Kyung Kim, superintendent, of Samchok Education District; and Suk Bum Kang, principal, Cheju Commercial High School.

They were accompanied to Malacañang by Pompeyo Gregorio, executive assistant to the secretary of education.

The municipal council of Ilagan, Isabela, headed by Mayor Venancio P. Gangan, also paid a courtesy call on the Chief Executive and presented a request of the town council for assistance in the form of necessary equipment for essential services for the town.

Members of the council who saw the President were Vice-Mayor Pedro S. Mamuri and Councilors Nicholas P. Boggao, Bernard B. Talattad, Antonio D. Tarampi, Crispulo A. Nuñez, Teodulo E. Mirasol, and Justito Madduma.

Other callers this morning were Mr. and Mrs. Eligio Herrera, Justo Ibay, and Cipriano S. Gonzales.

THIS afternoon the President motored to the Wack Wack Golf Club to inaugurate the newly constructed clubhouse.

Upon returning to Malacañang, the President received Speaker Daniel Z. Romualdez, who accompanied leaders from Samar and Leyte. The House leader took up problems of the two provinces during his conference with the Chief Executive.

THIS evening President Garcia boarded the yacht Lapu-Lapu to put the finishing touches on his state-of-the-nation message to Congress.

Malacañang said the President will remain on the Lapu-Lapu for almost a week. He is not expected to receive any visitor during the time he is aboard the yacht in order that he could concentrate on polishing his message to Congress.

The President will also go over the names of prospective Cabinet appointees while he is in seclusion. He is expected to release the names of the new members of his Cabinet on his return from his cruise.

January 19.—THE Chief Executive granted new leases on life to three convicts who had been sentenced to die this week shortly before embarking on board the RPS Lapu-Lapu this morning.

The death penalty on Wagia Mado, who was scheduled to be electrocuted tomorrow, was commuted to life imprisonment while a 30-day reprieve was granted to Maximo Caandi and Felicisimo Cabaobao. The reprieve will end on February 21.

Mado had been found guilty of robbery and murder committed in April 1953, in Pikit, Cotabato, while Caandi and Cabaobao were convicted by the Agusan court of first instance for robbery and quadruple homicide committed on March 16, 1956.

The President signed the commutation and reprieve papers upon the recommendation of the Board of Pardons and Parole.

Lt. Cdr. Manuel Mandapat, skipper of the RPS Lapu-Lapu, gave the order to shove off at 11 o'clock this morning after Mrs. Garcia boarded the ship accompanied by daughter, Linda, and granddaughter, Maricar. The President had boarded the vessel late last night.

Also on board the ship were Legislative Secretary Vicente Logarta and a few Malacañang aides and secretaries.

The President started work on his speech shortly after breakfast and continued working on it until noontime. He returned to his cabin after lunch and resumed work on the 47-page draft of the message.

Taking a respite from his task, President Garcia went out to the deck and exercised his legs by walking briskly several times around.

After supper the Chief Executive retired to his cabin and continued working until late this evening.

January 20.—PRESIDENT Garcia remained on board the RPS Lapu-Lapu today to polish up in the quiet seclusion of his cabin the state-of-the-nation message he will deliver before a joint session of Congress early next week.

The vessel is moored to a bouy breakwater a few hundred yards behind the Independence grandstand on the new Luneta.

Helping the Chief Executive in his task of finishing this speech is former Executive Secretary Juan C. Pajo, who boarded the ship late last night.

After having early breakfast, the President went over the morning papers and then called for his former executive secretary to assist him in his work.

Going over the preliminary draft, the two kept working until shortly before noon when they took a break for lunch. They continued working after a brief rest and stopped in the late afternoon to take a walk around the ship's deck.

They returned to their task after supper and stayed up until late in the evening.

President and Mrs. Garcia today extended their condolences to Paulo Fruelan and sent a personal donation of P500 for the care of the quadruplets whose mother died of heart failure Tuesday.

Earlier, the President sent P100 worth of milk for the motherless infants and instructed the Cebu city health officer and attending physicians at the Perpetual Succour Hospital and the Cebu Maternity House to do everything to save the motherless babies.

The quadruplets, Paulo Jr., Ana Maria, Lucia Maria, and Juliana Maria were born prematurely, according to the attending physician. Two girls are still in incubators at the Perpetual Succour Hospital while the boy and another girl are being cared for at the Cebu Maternity House.

Tragedy dampened the jubilation over the birth of the quadruplets last Monday, when their mother failed to survive the labor pains and died of heart failure the next day.

A wave of sympathy over her death touched off a fund drive not only in Cebu but also in Bohol, where the body of the deceased was taken home to Talibon for burial by her husband.

THE Cabinet decided this evening to eliminate all new items proposed for the budget of fiscal year 1960-61.

This general policy was adopted to keep the budget within the estimated income and thus present to Congress a balanced budget.

The meeting was presided over by Finance Secretary Jaime Hernandez.

The Cabinet went over the proposed expenditures by departments to find out which items could be deferred. It decided to make the following exemptions to the general policy:

Finance—Items of bureaus and agencies concerned with the collection of revenues. The exemption was in line with the government plan to intensify collection of taxes.

Justice—The creation of ten additional court branches as provided in R.A. No. 2613.

Public Works—Items concerned with the expansion of the communications system.

Education—The creation of 5,000 additional elementary classes and the salary adjustments of teachers.

Agriculture and natural resources—Items for improved operations of the Bureaus of Plant Industry, Forestry, Fisheries, and Mines.

Health—Improvement of existing hospitals.

January 21.—FOR the third consecutive day President Garcia stayed today on board the RPS Lapu-Lapu cruising in Manila Bay to work on state-of-the-nation address he will deliver before Congress at its session on Monday, January 25.

Assisting him in this task are former Executive Secretary Juan C. Pajo, who has been with the President since late Tuesday evening, and Malacañang Legislative Secretary Vicente Logarta.

Waking up early this morning, the Chief Executive ate his breakfast and skimmed over the morning papers brought over to him from Malacañang.

Reminded that it was the 77th birthday anniversary of Senate President Eulogio Rodriguez, Sr., President Garcia directed Major Ciriaco P. Hocson, his military aide-de-camp, to wire his felicitations and that of Mrs. Garcia.

After taking a cold shower toward noon, he sent for Pajo and worked on the speech until lunchtime. After resting briefly after lunch, President Garcia resumed his task, stopping only late in the afternoon to stretch his legs and follow the advice of his physicians to take daily exercises.

After supper the President retired to his cabin and continued working on his message to Congress until late in the evening.

January 22.—PRESIDENT Garcia today took time out from work on his state-of-the-nation message to play host to officials of the UNESCO attending the Asian commission conference currently being held in Manila and to officiate at the cornerstone-laying ceremony held at the site of the first Nuclear Research Center in Southeast Asia to be established in Quezon City.

Disembarking from the RPS Lapu-Lapu at Pier 3 shortly before noon today, the President motored to Malacañang where he honored the UNESCO officials at luncheon. His guests included Sir Ben Bowen Thomas, chairman of the UNESCO executive board; Dr. Vittorino Veronese, director general of the board; Malcolm Adiseshia, assistant director general; and former Senator Geronima T. Pecson, head of the Philippine delegation and chairman of the UNESCO-sponsored conference.

In the afternoon the President and the First Lady motored to the U.P. campus in Diliman, Quezon City, where they were guests of honor at the proposed site of the Nuclear Research Center. They were fetched from Malacañang by Paulino J. Garcia, chairman of the National Science Development Board, Commissioner Pedro G. Afable of the Philippine Atomic Energy Commission, and President Teodoro Evangelista of the Far Eastern University.

The President woke up early this morning on board the RPS Lapu-Lapu, where he had been staying for the last three days working on the state-of-the-nation message he would deliver before Congress when it convenes in its annual regular session on Monday.

After taking a light breakfast, he started dictating an eight-page speech which he delivered at the cornerstone-laying ceremony in the afternoon.

The President was the guest of honor and principal speaker at the cornerstone-laying ceremonies of the Philippine Atomic Research Center held in Diliman, Quezon City.

For the first time in cornerstone-laying ceremonies held in the country, President used a mechanical device triggered by radioactive contraption in laying in place the cornerstone.

Members of the local diplomatic corps led by Papal Nuncio Salvatore Siino, high U. S. officials in the Philippines led by Ambassador John Dewey Hickerson, and key Philippine officials led by Foreign Affairs Secretary Felixberto Serrano and Paulino J. Garcia, chairman of the National Science Development Board, witnessed the ceremony.

The Center will house an atomic research reactor which will be used as a source of radiation for important biological and industrial experiments.

The research program of the Center gives preference on applied researches that will contribute greatly to the improvement of the Philippine economy. In agricultural research the atomic reactor will be used in the study of, and battle against, destructive plant diseases like the cadang-cadang infesting coconut plantations and the mosaic disease infesting abaca plantations, as well as in the improvement of crops by induced mutations.

The Center will be completed by the middle of 1961 at its site near the campus of the University of the Philippines by the Bureau of Public Works.

Under the Philippine-American bilateral agreement of July 27, 1955, the United States made available the amount of half million dollars for the purchase of the atomic reactor.

The Philippines, in turn, pledged to construct the laboratories and a reactor building with an initial outlay of P1.4 million, as well as provide for the annual operating and maintenance cost of about P500,000.

After the cornerstone-laying ceremony, President and Mrs. Garcia led the guests to the U.P. Asian Labor Education Center where cocktails were served.

January 23.—PRESIDENT Garcia today took time out from work on his state-of-the-nation message to sign the ad interim appointments of 24 national, provincial, and municipal officials and to officiate at the inauguration of the first of a chain of Filoil service stations to be set up all over the country by an all-Filipino multi-million-peso enterprise.

Those whose appointments were signed by the President were two directors, one provincial treasurer, a chairman and five members of city and provincial board of assessment appeals, nine justices of the peace, a clerk of court, a chairman and a member of the board of accountancy, one member of the board of examiners for customs brokers, a city assessor and an assistant director for operations of the Bureau of Plant Industry.

Aside from Rep. Natalio P. Castillo of Bohol, with whom he conferred briefly this morning, and Pakistan Minister of Education Habibur Rahman who paid a courtesy call, the President did not receive any visitor on board the Lapu-Lapu. He spent most of his time closeted in his cabin polishing off the final draft of his message with the assistance of former Executive Secretary Juan C. Pajo and Legislative Secretary Vicente Logarta.

Minister Rahman is here in the course of a goodwill tour of Southeast Asian countries. He gave President Garcia replicas of the Modenjodaro seals dating back to 2300 B.C., a gift of the Department of Archaeology of the Pakistani Government. The Pakistani Cabinet member was accompanied by Ambassador Pir Mohammed Rashdi of Pakistan.

About 5 p.m., the President disembarked from the Lapu-Lapu at Pier 3 and motored to Malacañang to fetch the First Lady. Together, they proceeded to Cubao, Quezon City where they were guests at the inauguration of the Filoil station.

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

January 24.—THE President conferred with Secretary of Commerce Pedro Hernaez this morning.

The President informed the commerce secretary of the decision of the Council of Leaders to name him Philippine ambassador to Spain.

During the conference Secretary Hernaez, wrote the President a letter giving the Chief Executive a “free hand” to “fill the post I presently occupy as secretary of commerce and industry.”

Later this morning, the President and the First Lady motored to the residence of Speaker and Mrs. Daniel Z. Romualdez to felicitate the Speaker's wife on her birthday.

From the Speaker's residence, the President and the First Lady returned to the yacht RPS Lapu-Lapu.

This evening the President inducted five new members of his Cabinet and told newsmen he was ready to give the remaining two years of his administration a “new look in public service.”

Inducted aboard the Lapu-Lapu were Finance Secretary Dominador Aytona, Commerce Secretary Manuel Lim, Administrator Juan O. Chioco of the Office of Economic Coordination, and Executive Secretary Natalio P. Castillo

A fifth Cabinet member, Rep. Cesar Fortich, failed to show up to take his oath as secretary of agriculture.

Aytona was the only new appointee who took his oath in polo shirt. The former budget commissioner said he did not know of his appointment as finance secretary. He was contacted by a Malacañang aide at the Bureau of Printing supervising the preparation of the new budget.

Before inducting the new Cabinet members, the President also swore into office the new officials of the National Marketing Corporation.

Inducted were Marcelo Balatbat as general manager of the NAMARCO and the flowing directors: Dean Belen Enrile Gutierrez, Jose Y. Orosa, Jose Fernandez, and former Rep. Felix Opimo. Two other newly-appointed directors, Crispin Malonzo and Eriberto Aguinaldo, were reported out of town.

After the oath-taking ceremonies, the President conferred with the new NAMARCO officials and directed them to look into problems confronting the agency.

The President said the main problem of the NAMARCO is the system of distribution. He said he has received complaints that NAMARCO goods were siphoned to the “wrong channels.”

January 25.—AT ABOUT 10 o'clock this morning, the President left the RPS Lapu-Lapu, where he spent the night going over the state-of-the-nation speech he would deliver at the inaugural session of Congress and proceeded to Malacañang to receive the committees of Congress to inform him that Congress had convened.

President Garcia was congratulated this morning by two minority members of the House of Representatives for selecting men of proven integrity, experience, and ability to fill important positions in the Cabinet and government corporations.

Reps. Felicisimo Ocampo of Nueva Ecija and Ramon Bagatsing of Manila informed President Garcia that there was favorable reaction not only from the press but also from the public over the recent appointments made by President Garcia.

Reps. Ocampo and Bagatsing were members of a committee created by the Lower House to inform the President that it had convened and was ready for business. Others composing the committee were Reps. Salipada Pendatun, chairman, and Wenceslao R. Lagumbay of Laguna and Eladio Balite of Samar, members.

The President received the Lower House committee at the Malacañang music room at about 10:45 am. He exchanged views for more than an hour with the congressmen.

At about 4 pm., President Garcia received the Senate committee composed of Sens. Fernando Lopez, chairman, and Lorenzo Tañada, Pacita M. Gonzalez, Rogelio de la Rosa, and Estanislao Fernandez, members.

In the afternoon the President motored to the Legislative Building where he delivered his annual message before a joint session of Congress.

President Garcia this afternoon addressed a joint session of Congress with his traditional state-of-the-nation message and recommended a 22-point legislative program which he said would give the country a “bigger tomorrow.”

The President, dressed in a white linen suit, with a blue-gray tie to match and black shoes, arrived at the session hall at exactly five o'clock in the afternoon.

Unlike on previous occasions, the President arrived alone, unescorted by members of Congress.

The First Lady, however, who motored to the Legislative Building ahead of the President, was accompanied by Mesdames Eulogio Rodriguez, Daniel Romualdez, Constancio Castañeda, and Jose Aldeguer.

It was a big day in Congress. The President delivered his message for fully an hour and two minutes.

The President's message was punctuated by 27 rounds of applause. He was cheered and congratulated by Congress leaders. However, Vice-President Diosdado Macapagal only applauded politely. He was not among those who congratulated the Chief Executive for his state-of-the-nation message.

While he advanced his legislative program, the Chief Executive also defended the enactment of the controversial dollar margin law which he said has averted a “national catastrophe” by halting the increasing momentum of last year's inflation and had “signaled away forced devaluation.”

The President exhorted the two chambers of Congress in a joint opening-day session to:

1. Enact measures implementing the “Filipino First” policy of the Administration;
2. Re-examine present statutes giving price supports to farm products, like rice, corn, and tobacco;
3. Explore the possibility of price adjustments of Philippine products in order that they could develop new foreign markets;
4. Find legislative solution to the problems posed by barter trade;
5. Consider carefully the recommendations which the Tax Commission will submit within ten days from today;

6. Give legislative support to scientific research activities brought about with the establishment of the Nuclear Research Center in the country;
7. Approve measures directed towards the multi-phase utilization and exploitation of the abundant water resources of the country not only for power but also for water supply, flood control, and irrigation;
8. Study how to facilitate laborers to participate as shareholders in the firm where they work;
9. Re-study the Civil Service Act passed by Congress in its last session which has “vague and uncertain” provisions that have given rise to conflicting interpretations;

January 27.—THIS MORNING the President said that he will submit to the Cabinet the offer of German industrialists to finance the projected integration of the Iligan steel mill.

The statement was made at his Quezon City residence at a conference with Filipino industrialists and members of a visiting German economic mission.

President Garcia was informed that Filipino capital is willing to come in the government plan to integrate the steel industry.

Present plans call for Filipino private investors to put up 49 per cent of the total capital of the project with a free hand in management while the government will retain the controlling 51 per cent.

The retention of the controlling stock by the government is considered advisable as the steel industry is regarded a vital factor in the industrialization program of the country.

The German offer includes the manufacture of the necessary machinery on a deferred payment plan, making available German technical know-how.

German steel manufacturers present at the conference pledged to train Filipinos in all levels of the industry.

They informed President Garcia that the integration of the steel industry will help exploit and develop the natural resources of the country.

Present at the conference were German Ambassador Friedrich L. Freiherr von Furstenberg, Cesar M. Lorenzo, Gaudencio Antonino, Toribio Teodoro, Dominador Cepeda, Dr. Karl-Heinz Imhausen, Dr. Hans W. Musa, Ernest L. W. Loebecke, Erich F. Bussmann, Dr. Caspar, Edward B. Unger, and Johannes Eicker.

The President motored to Malacañang from his Bohol Avenue residence in Quezon City in time for the ceremonies and immediately proceeded to the Malacañang ceremonial hall for the presentation ceremonies scheduled at 5 p.m.

In accepting Minister Thieun's letters of credence, the President pledged the sympathetic cooperation of the Filipino people and government in the maintenance of strong friendly relations with the Khmer republic.

The President also thanked the new Cambodian minister for his sincere wishes for the welfare of the Filipino people.

In his presentation address, Minister Thieun pledged the dedication of his king, country, and people to the policy of co-existence and neutrality, especially with the Philippines, which, he said, occupies a choice place in the heart of the Khmer people and country.

Minister Thieun, who was envoy extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary to Australia, succeeded Minister Ty Kim Sour, who had been recalled by the home office in Phnom-Penh for reassignment.

Present at the presentation ceremonies were high government officials led by Executive Secretary Natalio Castillo and Foreign Affairs Undersecretary Fructuoso Cabahug.

Immediately after the ceremonies, the President received Ambassador Carlos P. Romulo in his study.

Ambassador Romulo paid a call on the President for consultations, accompanied by Minister Benito Bautista who called for final instructions before leaving for his new post as Philippine consul general in Seattle, Washington.

THIS EVENING the President convened his regular weekly Cabinet meeting under what he termed "the best auspices" due to the favorable indorsement of the people of the new members of the official family.

In welcoming the new members, President Garcia expressed the hope that all of the Cabinet members, individually and collectively, will continue to receive the plaudits of the people. He urged them to continue serving the best interests of the country.

The statement of President Garcia was made before provincial, city, and town executive who called on him at Malacañang.

The President appealed to Congress for help in the prosecution of the total war against graft and corruption.

He told the provincial delegations that the approval of a graft-busting commission would greatly help the government's effort to stamp out graft and corruption in the government.

At the same time, the provincial governors and city mayors pledged support to the Filipino-First policy of the Administration.

The President gratefully acknowledged the pledge of support of the provincial and city executives in his fight to attain the economic emancipation of the Filipino people.

In an administrative order President Garcia today ordered the removal from office of a justice of the peace of Cotabato who had been found guilty on four counts in two administrative complaints upon the recommendation of the secretary of justice.

The extreme penalty in administrative cases was imposed on Vicente Fontanosa, justice of the peace of Pikit, Cotabato, in line with the Administration's policy of weeding out the unfit from the government service.

The Chief Executive concurred with the findings of the district judge and the conclusions of the secretary of justice that Fontanosa had (1) used his office to wreak vengeance on his political enemy; (2) abused his authority; (3) tampered with his official records to cover up the irregularities he had committed; and (4) failed to keep regular office hours.

The two administrative complaints were filed against Fontanosa by Datu Udtog Matalam and Pikit Mayor Doroteo Palencia.

President Garcia, moreover, designated Lt. Col. Tomas Karingal, Iloilo PC provincial commander, as acting chief of Police of Quezon City, vice Col. Bibiano Viña, who will be given a new assignment.

The President acted on the recommendation of Gen. Isagani V. Campo, chief of the Constabulary.

The new Quezon City police chief has had almost 20 years of commissioned service in the Armed Forces of the Philippines. He is a graduate of the Provost Marshall General School at Fort Sam Houston, Texas, USA, and a graduate of the advance course at Ft. Benning, Georgia, USA.

His last position as Iloilo provincial commander has been particularly noted for impartiality and the fearless prosecution of peace and order during the last election.

THIS EVENING the President called on all sectors of the population to give full hearted support to the Peace and Amelioration Fund campaign in order to insure greater success for 1960 during the PAFC presentation of awards at the Malacañang Social Hall.

At the same time, the President congratulated some 679 awardees, consisting of group and individual donors and individual solicitors for their efforts to make the last drive for funds a success.

In his brief extemporaneous remarks the President traced the creation of the PAFC from the time the country was undergoing the dangers of internal rebellion following the last world war.

The President said that while the main purpose of its creation was to help preserve peace, it was instrumental in creating internal peace by fighting poverty and penury and uplifting the living standards of the masses.

The President underscored the importance of continuing with the drive from year to year because the after-effects of the last world war, he said, were still with us although much has been achieved to alleviate the lot of the less fortunate and remove all causes of discontent; such as, poverty and penury.

The President, assisted by Manuel Elizalde, PAFC chairman, and Basilio Hernandez, executive officer and emcee, distributed the 679 certificates of merit to individual and group awardees, during the latter part of the ceremonies.

Among recipients of certificates of merit were 81 individual donors and 100 solicitors; 36 government corporations (donors) and 54 solicitors; 48 private organization donors; 25 schools and colleges, 273 business enterprises and 22 theater donors; three embassies (solicitors); seven folk dance troupes, and 30 municipal mayors and treasurer solicitors.

Present at the award ceremonies were Yu Khe Thai, vice-chairman; Francisco Delgado, secretary; Antonio de las Alas, Marcelo Balatbat, P. E. Domingo, Navalrai Jethmal, Sy En and Albino Sycip, members.

Don Manuel Elizalde, PAFC chairman, welcomed the awardees and presented them to the President.

The President this evening received Sen. Domocao Alonto, who reiterated his invitation that the President induct the officers of the Min-su-pala-(Mindanao-Sulu-Palawan) to be held after February 14.

Other evening callers were Sen. Pedro Sabido and Gov. Feliciano Leviste of Batangas.

January 29.—THIS MORNING the President came out in favor of the establishment in the Philippines of a permanent management education center as corollary of the Asian labor education center.

The President made this observation in the course of a courtesy call of Dean Stanley Teale and Professor H. Hansen of the Harvard Business School.

The Chief Executive said that, with the rapid industrialization of the country, there is a potent need to train able executives. The management education center, the President said, should be able to train for executive positions citizens not only of this country but also of neighboring Asian countries.

Present during the courtesy call were Mrs. Dorothy Teale, Larry Marquez, Oscar Arellano, Ernesto Escaler, Jose Ma. Ansaldo, and Angel Limjoco, Jr.

After the courtesy call, President Garcia motored to the Araneta University in Grace Park on the occasion of the institution's Foundation Day. He was accompanied by the AU president and former secretary of agriculture and natural resources, Salvador Araneta.

After receiving full military honors upon his arrival, the President was shown the exhibits by AU President Araneta.

The President was particularly interested in the researches being undertaken by the Araneta radio-isotope laboratory on the effects of radio-active isotopes on plants and animals.

He was also impressed by the wheat research of the Araneta Institute of Agriculture, which has been engaged in the introduction of hundred of varieties of wheat. Araneta told President Garcia that the varieties that give good performances will be used for extensive propagation and commercial production by cooperative farmers and plantation owners after they have been sufficiently multiplied.

President Garcia today ordered the Presidential Committee on Administration Performance Efficiency (PCAPE) to institute immediate criminal action against two fake Malacañang agents who were nabbed in the act of extorting money from an Army officer.

The President was angered by newspaper reports about the two Army sergeants who posed as Malacañang agents. He immediately ordered PCAPE Chairman Justice Buenaventura Ocampo to file criminal charges against the pair.

The two Army sergeants, Victor Baliong and Luis Balignasay, claimed that they were special agents detailed to Malacañang and were reported to have tried to impress their victim with their supposed Malacañang connections.

The victim of the two fake agents was Capt. Amado Pablo of the finance service in Camp Murphy. He sought police aid when the pair threatened to expose a dossier against him unless he paid for their silence.

THIS AFTERNOON the President lashed at Congress for starting too many investigations, which, he charged, merely die down with the din of fiery denunciations that go with the opening days of these probes.

At his first press conference this year the President called upon Congress to finish the investigations they have begun.

"Congress had started too many probes," the President observed, "and nothing happened after that."

The President hit at Congress after he was asked to comment on the charges aired by Rep. Manuel Cases (L-La Union) challenging the Chief Executive to investigate the alleged overpricing of landed estates purchased by the Land Tenure Administration.

Seemingly peeved by what he called "fiery speeches," the President said he wanted to see Congress bring to conclusion their investigations.

He recalled that one of the estates mentioned by the La Union solon had already been probed by the House committee on good government. He referred to Luisita estate in Isabela.

During his press conference, the President:

1. Said he was not satisfied with the explanation of the Reparations Commission officials in connection with charges of overpricing of seven vessels from the Japanese reparations;

2. Refused to comment on the sudden departure of Ambassador Jose Fuentebella for his station in Jakarta;
3. Indicated that Rep. Cesar Fortich will take his oath shortly as secretary of agriculture and natural resources after he has cleared the papers of his private land holdings in Mindanao;
- 4 Favored the establishment of more air transportation firms and the placing of commercial aviation on a competitive basis.
5. Defended the Cabinet's approval in principle of the sale of the 139-hectare estate of the People's Homesite and Housing Corporation to the Earthwealth, Inc.; and
6. Pointed out that lack of funds has stymied his campaign against grafters in the government.

After his press conference which lasted for almost an hour, the President received Ramon Jimenez, director of the National Shipyards and Steel Corporation, for final instructions before his departure for the United States.

Jimenez is joining the Philippine mission headed by Ambassador Eduardo Quintero in connection with Philippine claims against the U.S. Government.

President Garcia also received Col. Jose Lukban, director of the National Bureau of the Investigation, and conferred with him behind closed doors. No details were available from the Malacañang press office, but it was hinted that Lukban reported on the NBI findings on the case of Ted Lewin, American promoter, who is facing charges before the Deportation Board.

January 30.—PRESIDENT Garcia today took steps to provide rural areas with more and better health facilities as he ordered Philippine Charity Sweepstakes General Manager Eugenio E. Santos to build barrio community centers out of the sweepstakes proceeds.

The President took this step to implement his message to Congress in which he envisioned the wider participation of the Sweepstakes Office in the uplift of the barrio people by providing them with more artesian wells, waterworks, public toilets, and other health facilities.

This important function of the sweepstakes is provided for under its charter (R. A. 1169) which sets aside the unencumbered charity fund for use "in work for indigent Filipino masses in this country and abroad."

The President said, however, that the Philippine Charity Sweepstakes Office should continue giving financial support to Worthy charitable projects.

The plan drafted by Manager Santos and his aide, Capt. Camilo Balisnomo, upon instructions of the President includes:

- (1) A center building costing ₱2,500 and consisting of a reading room equipped with a radio set, books and newspapers, and a clinic room for the rural health officer;
- (2) An artesian well costing from ₱2,000 to ₱5,000; and
- (3) Bath house-toilet with laundry facilities, costing ₱1,500. Manager Santos said he will take personal supervision of the project in order to avoid delay and that he will send survey teams to Laguna and Pampanga next week to locate sites for pilot plants, preferably in well populated barrios with poor or no health facilities.

Santos informed the President he will extend the project to other areas as fast as sweepstakes proceeds become available, and expressed hope for the approval by Congress of a bill authorizing weekly sweepstakes draws to bolster the program.

The President stayed the whole day today at his private residence where he relaxed in the morning after a hectic week last week.

After his breakfast and reading the morning papers which carried his outbursts against Congress for its many investigations, the President shifted to his new hobby billiards.

He asked a Malacañang press office personnel to play with him. It was learned that the President has shown improvement in the game.

After a two-hour game of, billiards, the President retired to his room where he went over pending state papers.

He had lunch with the First Lady at their residence.

After a brief nap in the afternoon, the President went over pending state papers.

President's Week in Review: January 31- February 6, 1960

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

January 31.—PRESIDENT Garcia today led the nation in observing “Aid to the Blind and Other Handicapped Week” by personally sending a 12-year old blind boy to the hospital for an operation to restore his eyesight.

Breaking his Sunday rest, the President received at “his Quezon City home, Getulio Jersey, Jr., 12-year old blind boy from Casiguran, Sorsogon, together with his mother, Balamera Jersey.

Deeply touched by the presidential gesture, both mother and blind child profusely thanked the President. The boy was sent to the V. Luna Hospital on orders of the President

The attention of President Garcia was first called when he spotted Getulio singing, in a local television program.

President Garcia had recently signed an executive order proclaiming an “Aid to the Blind and Other Handicapped Week” which was formally ushered in today.

Today President Garcia commuted to life imprisonment the death penalty imposed on Alejandro de la Cruz, convicted for robbery with homicide and double serious physical injury.

In granting commutation of sentence, the President took cognizance of the findings of the Board of Pardons and Parole that the prisoner had no previous criminal record and was not a notorious criminal and that the crime was not characterized by extreme wickedness or brutality as in the case of hardened criminals.

De la Cruz was convicted of the crime charged by a Pangasinan court of first instance whose decision imposing the death penalty and an indemnity of ₱4,735 was affirmed by the Supreme Court.

The President, however, granted De la Cruz a reprieve from January 4 to February 2 to give the Board ample time to study the case.

February 1.—THIS MORNING the President held a closed door conference with Foreign Affairs Secretary Felixberto M. Serrano at his Bohol Avenue residence in Quezon City.

The lengthy conference which started at 9:30 a.m. lasted about two hours during which the President was consulted on problems of the foreign office:

Serrano also reported to the President certain points the Secretary had recently discussed with Chinese Ambassador Tuan Mao-lan on the overstaying Chinese issue.

Motoring to Malacañang after the conference, the President inducted into office the officials of the Philippine Safety Council, among them Alfredo Eugenio, president; Col. Crisanto Alba, vice-president; Horacio San Luis, secretary; Hyman M. Levine, treasurer; Frank S. Tenny, founder and executive director; and Henry A. Brimo, Victor Lim, Senen de la Costa, G. S. Hamilton, Alan M. Razovsky, and Perfecto Sison, directors.

The council which represents some 216 industrial, business, mining, and transportation Companies informed the President that they are closely cooperating with government agencies in the adoption of safety measures in factories and other establishments.

Among, the morning callers were Gov. Ali Dimaporo of Lanao del Norte, who headed a delegation of cassava growers; Maj. Fred Salcedo of the PCAPE, who. briefed the President on security measures at the pier and harbor; and Davao City Vice-Mayor Fermin Abella, who saw the President on a ₱1 million loan from the GSIS for the construction of school buildings.

Former Gov. Romulo Garrovillo of Zamboanga del Norte also called on the President to report crop failure due to rat infestation in his province.

President Garcia directed today Commerce Secretary Manuel Lim and Marcelo Balatbat, chairman and general manager, respectively, of the NAMARCO, to look into the possibility of helping farmers and millers dispose of their cassava stock in order to save the industry.

The President also asked Secretary Lim to discuss plans with Salvador Pacis on the organization of the Industrial Promotions Bureau in order to promote industries in the rural level.

In his letter to the NAMARCO officials the President stressed the necessity of helping the farmers sell their cassava produce which is far below the 10 per cent allocation in the domestic flour consumption.

The President took this step in answer to the petition of a nine-man delegation composed of cassava growers from Lanao, Cotabato, Albay, and Leyte, headed by Gov. Ali Dimaporo of Lanao del Norte.

The delegation complained to the President of laxity in the NAMARCO supervision and told the Chief Executive of rampant buying of cassava flour invoices by flour importers, particularly aliens.

Under the law, the Central Bank does not allow the importation of wheat flour unless the importer can show that he has purchased 10 per cent of his requirements in cassava flour from the local millers.

The creation of the Industrial Promotions Bureau is a pet project of the President and has been under study for sometime by Pacis, a Malacañang technical assistant,

The Industrial Promotions Bureau, according to plans, will take care of standardizing local industrial products, advertising and marketing them locally and abroad.

Pacis said that one of the drawbacks in the sale of Philippine-made products is the lack of uniformity in the quality, as well as the unsteady supply because big orders from abroad cannot be handled by one or a few home industry operators.

Pacis informed the President most of the locally-produced towels, blankets, mosquito nets, abaca, slippers, bags, ceramic products, school and office supplies, plastics, and other articles will find ready market with the establishment of this bureau.

THIS EVENING the President distributed certificates of merit to 50 deserving employees of the government, and called on all other government employees to emulate them in order to render loyal and honest service to the taxpayers.

The awards of merits were distributed at a ceremony held at the Malacañang ceremonial hall under the auspices of the Philippine Government Employees' Association (PGEA) led by Mrs. Nieves Baens del Rosario.

The President lauded the model employees and expressed the hope that their efficient, loyal, and honest work will serve as a "beacon light" to other government employees.

While lauding the model employees of the government, the President served a stern warning that his administration will intensify this year its campaign against graft and corruption in the government.

He pointed out his recommendation to Congress in his state-of-the-nation message for the creation of an anti-graft commission in order to weed out corrupt employees from the government service.

In another conference with Sen. Roseller T. Lim and Oscar Arellano, organizer of the Jaycee-sponsored Operations Brotherhood, the President expressed interest in the Jaycee plan to organize an O. B. project in Tawi-Tawi.

In his conference with Senator Lim and Arellano, the President invited the two Jaycee executives to breakfast tomorrow so that they can discuss the plan more thoroughly.

President Garcia today renewed his proposal to a group of congressmen callers to synchronize elections beginning 1965 in order to save time and money which can be devoted to more constructive work.

In his talks with group of congressmen who came to Malacañang this morning to seek fund releases and typhoon damage aid, the President stressed the importance of holding synchronized elections in order to have more time for constructive effort.

The President said frequent elections are not only costing the people too much money and effort but they have also bred “professional leaders” who do nothing the year round except to plan and campaign for favorite candidates.

The President suggested early introduction of amendments to the Constitution in Congress in order to reduce the term of senators to be elected in 1961 to four years each, and to extend the tenure in office of all elective officials due to expire in 1963 and 1965, so that all elective officials can be elected in 1965.

The President also expressed himself in favor of recreating the old senatorial districts.

Among those who called on the President were Sen. Arturo M. Tolentino, Reps. Wenceslao R. Lagumbay of Laguna, Emilio Cortez of Pampanga, Delfin Albano of Isabela, Ramon Bagatsing of Manila, Salvador Enemas of Sorsogon, Jose Alberto of Catanduanes, Jose Nuguid of Bataan, Marcelino Veloso of Leyte, Ramon P. Mitra of Mt. Province, and Manuel Enverga of Quezon.

Rep. Albano, who was accompanied by former Gov. Felix T. Caro, requested the release of ₱200,000 for payment of tobacco purchased but not yet paid by the Philippine Tobacco Administration, and ₱20,000 from the contingent fund for repair of typhoon-damaged San Agustin-Jones Bridge in Isabela.

Several other delegations called on the President to request releases of funds for repair and reconstruction of typhoon-damaged public buildings, for rural improvement and for additional school-houses.

Among these delegations was the Quezon delegation headed by Rep. Manuel Enverga, and composed of Mayors Crispulo A. Tena of Panuculan, Florentino Veloso of Dipaculao, Bernardino Angara of Casiguran, Amado A. Clemente of Mauban, and Manuel Molina of Baler.

He also received Sens. Eulogio Balao and Domocao Alonto and took up with the solons and MRR officials the proposed extension of the railroad lines to the Cagayan Valley.

President Garcia also received Brig. Gen. Isagani V. Campo, chief of the Constabulary. The meeting was held behind closed-doors. No details were released on the subject taken up at the conference.

February 3.—THIS MORNING President Garcia urged passage of a bill in the current regular session of Congress to declare all important and vital positions in the Bureau of Internal Revenue and the Bureau of Customs confidential and highly technical in nature.

In a two-hour breakfast conference at Malacañang, the Chief Executive told Sen. Reseller T. Lim, chairman of the Senate Blue Ribbon Committee, and Oscar Arellano, overall director of Operations Brotherhood, that he favored:

- (1) The early creation of the Anti-Graft Commission; and
- (2) The launching of Operations Brotherhood projects in this country, but initially at Tawi-Tawi, Sulu.

President Garcia told Sen. Lim that the executive and the legislative branches of government should collaborate in the fight against graft and corruption.

He emphasized that if all sensitive positions in the BIR and the Bureau of Customs were declared highly technical and confidential, it will be much easier to remove grafters and corrupt officials, unlike in the present set-up where technicalities hinder and delay prosecution of some guilty officials.

In the case of confidential and technical positions, the President said, all he needs for the removal of certain corrupt officials would be a declaration of loss of confidence in the person concerned.

The President told Sen. Lim of the immediate need to create the Anti-Graft Commission so that spade work preparatory to the prosecution of erring public officials could be started right away.

In the same conference the Chief Executive told Oscar Arellano to proceed with plans to launch Operations Brotherhood projects in Tawi-Tawi, Sulu.

Arellano in turn informed the President that while the primary objective of the OB project will be to extend medical aid to the inhabitants, it will at the same time carry on a survey of the socio-economic conditions of each locality served, which will be of value to the different government agencies concerned.

As envisioned by Arellano, Operations Brotherhood of the Philippines will be run and operated by civic organizations in cooperation with business firms, on a non-profit basis.

Operations Brotherhood, which gained universal recognition for its work in South Vietnam, was organized during the time of the late President Magsaysay through the encouragement given by President Garcia, who was then Vice-President of the Philippines and concurrently secretary of foreign affairs.

President Garcia today directed Public Works Secretary Florencio Moreno to give Ruben Villaluz, chief of the Motor Vehicles Office, 72 hours to answer charges of irregularities in his office.

The President was visibly irked when told by PCAPE Vice-Chairman Max A. Mecerén and the PCAPE chief investigator and legal officer, Major Teodulo Na'tividad, that Villaluz's answer to the Roces charges was not satisfactory and tended to confirm the existence of venalities in the MVO.

The President commended PCAPE Chairman Justice Buenaventura Ocampo and his assistants for their good work and said that the PCAPE will form the nucleus of the Anti-Graft Commission which he had proposed to Congress.

The President also indicated that he will use the PCAPE findings in the revamp of at least ten other offices besides the MVO, and hinted that some officials holding high positions will soon get the axe.

Villaluz had been charged by Congressman Joaquin R. Roces, chairman of the House committee on good government, with irregularities, especially in the submission of backpay certificates to the Treasury which amounted to ₱8 million, and in other venalities in the MVO.

When summoned by Justice Ocampo last week to explain his side of the case and to answer the PCAPE findings, Villaluz denied the Roces charges.

However, Villaluz admitted that the MVO had not been audited since 1912, and that an internal audit of the MVO revealed an undercollection of ₱375,973 for Bataan, Bulacan, Nueva Ecija, Pampanga, Pangasinan, Tarlac, and Zambales.

Villaluz also admitted accepting about ₱683,000 worth of backpay certificates (negotiable certificates of indebtedness) in the names of third parties, which is explicitly prohibited by a ruling of the Department of Justice.

Upon request of Justice Ocampo, the President extended full powers to the PCAPE to conduct investigations, summon witnesses, administer oaths, and take testimony on evidence in accordance with sections 71 and 580 of the Revised Administrative Code.

This day the President directed Social Welfare Administrator Amparo P. Villamor to send immediately rice, food, and clothing to some 200 Ilongot evacuees in Pantabangan, Nueva Ecija.

The President learned of the plight of the evacuees when he heard over the radio the resolution of the municipal council of Pantabangan petitioning the President to send relief to the Ilongot Christians during the current PC operations against the headhunters which are expected to last for three months.

The evacuees were forced to leave their farms in the hinterlands and move to barrios Conversion and San Juan at the height of the head-hunters' depredations.

Getulio Jersey, Jr., a blind ten-year old who had been sent by the President to the V. Luna Hospital for treatment, was sent back to school in order to complete his studies in March.

Getulio was taken to the Tamesis clinic for examination by Dr. Antonio Guytingco, the President's personal physician. Dr. Jesus Tamesis, who performed the examination, said the boy is suffering from congenital cataract of the right eye and will be able to see clearly again after undergoing an operation in March when school is over.

THE CABINET this afternoon went over proposals of private traders to export surplus rice which would give the government almost ₱1 million in profits.

The Cabinet, presided by President Garcia, also studied the proposal of the NARIC to increase the amount of surplus rice for exportation from 64,000 metric tons to 83,000.

The Cabinet had previously approved in principle the export of 64,000 metric tons of surplus rice through barter.

Under the Cabinet resolution, the exporters would be able to bring in goods from the proceeds of their exportation as follows: 40 per cent, essential goods; 20 per cent, semi-essential; and 40 per cent, non-essential.

The Cabinet had previously authorized the Producers-Philippines to export 24,000 metric tons.

The Cabinet, however, went over the offer of the Vital Enterprises which won the public bidding held last December.

The Vital Enterprise, it was learned, will be authorized to export 12,000 metric tons of rice.

It was not known where the rice would be exported to. NARIC officials told the Cabinet that the transactions would give the government almost ₱1 million in profit.

The Cabinet, up to press time this evening, was also scheduled to go over the proposals of the Demerco Enterprises, which had been awarded, through negotiations, 4,000 metric tons of rice for exportation.

President Garcia summoned retired General Leoncio Tan and Clemente Uson, NARIC officials, to the Cabinet this afternoon in order to shed light on the offers of private traders.

The President and the Cabinet recently approved the exportation through barter of surplus rice as an incentive to the farmers to increase their production of the cereal.

This is the first time the Philippines, which has always suffered from shortage of the stocks, will export the staple crop.

February 4.—PRESIDENT Garcia today said Congressman Cesar Fortich of Bukidnon would take his oath of office as Secretary of Agriculture and Natural Resources as soon as his nomination is confirmed by the Commission on Appointments.

The announcement was made following a conference between the President and the Mindanao solon at Malacañang this morning.

Fortich cannot assume the agriculture portfolio until his appointment is confirmed by the Commission on Appointments, but in the case of the other Cabinet members, their oaths were administered by the President before Congress convened for its regular session last January 25, it was pointed out.

The President had a heavy schedule of callers today, composed mostly of big provincial delegations headed by congressmen, governors, and mayors.

The President invited to breakfast this morning Senate and House reporters, an event which is now a tradition occurring shortly after Congress begins its regular session.

Romblon Gov. Antonio Mayuga and Vice-Gov. Jovencio Mayor called and complained to the President that the Governor's residence in Romblon, which had been donated to the provincial government, was transferred by the past provincial board to the municipal government of Romblon.

The Romblon executives alleged that the house which had been donated by an Englishman and proclaimed the official residence of the governor of Romblon by the late President Magsaysay, was leased to a naturalized Filipino who is utilizing it for trade and commercial purposes, contrary to the conditions of the donation.

The President instructed Judge Salvador Esguerra, Malacañang legal adviser, to study the case and report to him on the matter.

A Batangas mayors' delegation, headed by Rep. Apolinario R. Apacible, Gov. Feliciano Leviste, and Vice-Gov. Bonifacio Masilungan, also called on President Garcia to pledge their support to the President's "Filipino First" policy and anti-graft drive. They lauded the Chief Executive for his efforts in cleaning house.

Among the members of the delegation were Mayors Luis T. Ramos of Balayan, chairman of the mayors' league in the first district of Batangas, Pablo Hernandez of Calaca, Daniel de Gracia of San Luis, Olimpio Sayo of Calatagan, Pedro Tolentino of Batangas, Teodoro Mayuga of San Nicolas, Vicente Maligalig of Agoncillo, Pacito Lejano of Lian, and Mariano Venturanza of Lemery.

Another delegation composed of Davao mayors, headed by Sen. Alejandro Almendras and Rep. Gavino Sepulveda, called on the President.

They sought the President's immediate assistance against the rat and locust infestation which has been, hitting Davao for the sixth consecutive years. President Garcia told the delegation that he had precisely released funds for the purpose of combating this plague.

Members of the delegation were Gov. Vicente Duterte, Provincial Board Member Proculo Fuentes, and Mayors Nonito Llanos of Digos, Alfredo Salutillo of Hagonoy, Dominador Bendigo of Sta. Cruz, and J. Ganadi of Capulong of Dayao.

President Garcia today issued fresh orders to the Presidential Committee on Administration Performance Efficiency for a renewed drive against influence peddling even as a Manila court made its first convention of an influence peddler charged by the PCAPE.

The President specifically directed the PCAPE to concentrate along the following fields:

- (1) To look into the activities of some 450 Filipinos in Japan reportedly using his name to obtain business privileges and concessions; and
- (2) To require a former governor and Malacañang technical assistant to explain his alleged issuance of badges and identification cards bearing the President's signature, according to the findings of PCAPE and Criminal Investigation Service.

The presidential instructions were issued to Major Teodulo Natividad, PCAPE chief investigator.

Convicted by the Manila court of first instance was Inocencio Tan, who was charged with having used the name of the President and that of former Executive Secretary Juan C. Pajo in collecting ₱25,000 from the Laureano Brothers for the release of ₱250,000 loan from the Philippine National Bank.

Upon receipt of the demand made by Tan on the Laureano Brothers, the PCAPE baited him with marked money and nabbed him in the act of receiving the marked bills from Major Fernando Ricafort.

In a report submitted by Justice Buenaventura Ocampo to the President, the PCAPE chairman reported that at least seven separate groups of influence peddling had been taken to court and are pending trial.

Among the cases reported by the PCAPE were:

- (1) An army colonel charged with estafa for misrepresenting himself as technical adviser to the President and appointing many persons as his supposed special agents;
- (2) A businessman who misrepresented himself as confidential agent of the President in order to get favorable business transactions, charging ₱150 per ID he issued, supposed to be signed by the President;

(3) A former Army major using the First Lady's name to get appointments for clients, and receiving large amounts therefor;

(4) Two individuals with ID's and badges allegedly issued by a former governor and Malacañang technical assistant;

(5) A "promoter" who used the name of the President, the First Lady, and various Cabinet members to solicit funds illegally;

(6) The case of Sgts. Victor Baliong and Luis Balignasay charged with estafa; and

(7) The case of Inocencio Tan, who was sentenced to one year and one day prision correctional by the Manila court of first instance,

President Garcia ordered surveillance of the 450 Filipinos living in Japan whose activities had attracted the attention of the Japanese Government and are giving the Philippines a bad reputation in that country.

The President was informed that these Filipinos were living ostentatiously with no visible means of income. These Filipinos face cancellation of their passports upon proper recommendation by the PCAPE,

The President also directed Max A. Maceren, vice-chairman of the Presidential Committee on Administration Performance Efficiency, to check on the cassava invoice peddling racket which is adversely affecting the country's cassava industry.

The President, upon representations of a group of cassava millers from different provinces who called on him Monday, directed Commerce Secretary Manuel Lim and NAMARCO General Manager Marcelo Balatbat to crack down on the culprits and exercise closer supervision in the distribution of flour.

Under Republic Act 657, which was enacted to encourage growth of the cassava industry, all wheat flour importers are required to purchase at least ten per cent of their normal requirements in cassava flour.

However, it was found that cassava invoices being submitted to the Central Bank, which normally should reflect the total production of cassava, showed that cassava purchases were far greater than local cassava flour production.

The cassava millers who called on President Garcia said that the cause of this discrepancy, was the rampant buying of cassava flour invoices from non-producers by alien wheat flour importers.

February 5.—THIS MORNING the President explored the possibilities of saving the Philippine sugar industry through increased U. S. sugar quota and opening new markets in Asia.

In a long conference with officials of the Philippine Sugar Association, the President suggested a general discussion of the problems of the industry with all the other agricultural and industrial groups in the next few days.

Rep. Vicente Gustilo, who had just returned from a survey of sugar possibilities in the United States, informed the President that the U.S. sugar quota system faces an immediate overhaul owing to increasing sugar consumption, and that this was the best time for the Philippines to request an increased sugar quota.

Jose Mapa Gomez also informed the President that a Japanese sugar purchase mission is coming to the Philippines next week to explore the possibilities of concluding a long-term arrangement whereby the Philippines will export to Japan 200,000 tons of sugar on a regional trade basis.

Another solution to the problem proposed by the President is the utilization of sugar cane by-products in other industries; such as, bagasse, vinegar, and wine. ,

Among those who called on the President were Gerald Wilkinson, Arsenio Jison, Gerry Rodriguez, Ramon Nolan, and Ernesto Escaler.

The President also approved the sending of a Philippine delegation to the 12th Congress on Scientific Management to be held in Melbourne and Sydney, Australia, beginning February 22.

In giving his approval, the President told the delegation that there is a big need for management experts due to the rapid industrial and economic development.

He said managerial skill is something that can be attained only through years of experience and training, and that the availability of young men with managerial skill must keep pace with the rapid strides the country has gained in industry.

Three Filipinos have been recommended for international award during the Congress, for their achievements in scientific management:

- (1) Dr. Cesar H. Concio, chairman of the delegation and president of the Philippine Council on Management;
- (2) Maj. Fernando E. Ricafort, secretary of the delegation and vice-president of Laureano Brothers; and
- (3) Antonio Delgado, president of the Management Association of the Philippines and Delgado Brothers.

The delegation which was accompanied to Malacañang by Commerce Undersecretary Perfecto E. Laguio included Hilarion Henares, Jr., Edgardo Villavicencio, Pablo Gabriel, Joaquin Gonzales, and Artemio Raymundo.

Earlier in the morning the President had a briefing on the Cabinet technical committee deliberations on the proposed establishment of an integrated steel mill in Iligan City.

Public Works Secretary Florencio Moreno also briefed the President on:

- (1) Peso financing of major public works projects supported with foreign loans which the President obtained from the U. S. and Japan in his state visits, among which are the Manila International Airport modernization for the jet age and the nationwide telecom network obtainable from Japan;
- (2) Marikina multi-purpose project; and
- (3) Mindanao highways network and completion and paving of seven highways connecting all parts of Mindanao. The paving of the Sayre highway has already begun.

Secretary Moreno was accompanied in his call by Rep. Jose D. Moreno and Romblon Mayor Isidro Mallorca, who presented his side in the alleged transfer of the official residence of the provincial governor to the municipal government.

The President had summoned National Economic Council Chairman Jose C. Locsin, Economic Coordination Administrator Juan O. Chioco, GSIS General Manager Rodolfo P. Andal, PHHC General Manager Bernardo Torres, and NARIC General Manager Leoncio S. Tan to a conference.

Owing to the big number of callers, however, the President was able to see only NEC Chairman Locsin, who briefed the President on NEC assistance to industry.

In the evening the President inducted the newly elected officers of the Press Photographers Association of the Philippines headed by Jose Dungo.

President Garcia also received the five congressmen of Iloilo who briefed the President on the political situation in their province. Those who saw the President were Reps. Jose Aldeguer, Ricardo Y. Ladrado, Pedro Trono, Pascual Espinosa, and Domitillo Abordo.

Allen Kline of the Committee on American Remittance Everywhere saw the President and reported that the government of Columbia has been impressed by the self-help projects in the Philippines.

February 6.—PRESIDENT Garcia and the Council of Leaders this morning ruled out the holding of a constitutional convention and instead decided to convene a joint session of Congress for the purpose of amending the Charter.

In a conference which lasted through breakfast and luncheon in the President's Quezon City residence, the congressional leaders voiced their support of President Garcia's proposed six constitutional amendments which he enumerated in his state-of-the-nation address.

While the exact date of the joint session was not fixed, the conferees agreed that the historic meeting will be held at anytime during the current regular session of Congress.

The conferees also discussed the different aspects of several offers made by American and European financial groups which speed up the implementation of the Administration's major industrial and economic projects.

The American and European offers include loans, credit lines, and deferred payment plans.

Four major projects of the Administration would be favorably affected by these, namely:

- (1) Completion of the railroad lines north and south of Manila to stimulate commerce, and the opening up of new agricultural lands, not to mention the improvement of transportation facilities;
- (2) Construction of modern airports to take in commercial jet airplanes thereby stepping up the tourist trade in this country;
- (3) Financing and development of the proposed gigantic steel industry which will in turn give birth to allied smaller industries which depend on the basic steel industry; and
- (4) Financing of the National Waterworks and Sewerage Authority's projects.

President Garcia told congressional leaders he would submit to them the full details of the American and European offers.

He emphasized that these offers from abroad are highly significant because it means confidence in the stability of the government, in our finances, and, more important still, confidence and trust in our economic policies and planning.

Moreover, Congress leaders had agreed to push through the overhaul of government corporations in support of the President's campaign against graft and corruption in the government service. The conferees did not single out any specific government corporation, but the discussion was rather made on a general tenor.

Senate President Rodriguez and Speaker Romualdez congratulated President Garcia on his current campaign against graft and corruption. They also express their support of the President's campaign.

In the course of the conference President Garcia briefed the solons on the annual and confidential report of the Presidential Committee on Administration Performance Efficiency on its accomplishments for 1959.

President Garcia likewise informed the Congress leaders that Rep. Cesar Fortich of Bukidnon had accepted to take over the secretaryship of agriculture and natural resources as soon as his nomination is confirmed by the Commission on Appointments.

The Chief Executive read a telegram from Rep. Fortich. His announcement spiked reports that Fortich had rejected the agriculture portfolio. Rep. Fortich was reported in Cagayan de Oro.

As enunciated by President Garcia in his state-of-the-nation address the following are the proposed amendments to the Constitution:

- (1) The synchronization of national and local elections every four years to halt the holding of frequent and expensive election campaigns which detract from, rather than add to, the stability of our democratic institutions;
- (2) The election of senators on the basis of specific senatorial districts and the extension of the terms of its members to eight years, one half of whom shall be elected every quadrennial election;
- (3) The creation of a Presidential Electoral Tribunal, to be a constitutional body completely independent from the Executive and the Legislative branches of our government, to hear and decide protests that may arise as a result of presidential elections;
- (4) The 30 day period within which time the President vetoes or approves a certain bill should be counted from the date of the bill's submittal to the President and not from the date marking the adjournment of Congress;
- (5) In the event the annual appropriation act for an ensuing year is not approved, the general appropriation act for the current fiscal year should be deemed continued in force until such time as the new fiscal year's budget is passed; and
- (6) The provision on the suspension of the writ of habeas corpus may be reexamined to attune it more to the spirit of democracy.

In the evening the President directed the Airforce to rush a mercy plane to Cagayan de Oro City and airlift to Manila 25 sick delegates who attended the National Public Schools Secondary Press conference held in that city.

The President issued the directive upon being informed that the 25 student delegates were bedridden owing to flu.

At the same time, President Garcia directed the authorities of the North General Hospital to prepare accommodations for the sick delegates.

The secondary' school press conference ended today and the delegates were supposed to return to Manila by boat.

Request for the mercy flight was made in a telegram to Press Secretary Jose C. Nable from Mrs. Luz R. Melendrez, official of the secondary press conference.

President's Week in Review: February 7-13, 1960

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

February 7.—PRESIDENT Garcia today expressed gratification over the report that members of the three-man mission of the International Monetary Fund which came to the Philippines last month had been much impressed with the economic progress of the country.

According to a report submitted to the President this morning by Gov. Miguel Cuaderno of the Central Bank, the IMF mission during its stay here had arrived at the following over-all conclusions:

- (1) That a very favorable environment exists for the rapid economic development of this country;
- (2) That the Philippine economy during the last year showed significant gains in production;
- (3) That the Administration had successfully reduced expenditures from planned levels by postponing several public projects and by other forced savings;
- (4) That in spite of the restrictive credit measures imposed by the Central Bank, credit to private sector has increased by nine per cent in the nine months ending October 1959, a rate about twice that of 1958; and
- (5) That the external position of the country improved greatly during 1959.

The mission observed that the Philippines has an abundance and a large variety of natural resources for both industry and agriculture. It saw the emergence of a vigorous business leadership and believed that the economy seemed poised for a take-off into a period of particularly rapid economic development.

The mission found that the rate of growth had increased and that supplies available from domestic sources had risen sharply. Unemployment decreased, the improved supply of domestic foodstuffs lowered food prices significantly and was responsible for keeping the general price level relatively stable during the year by offsetting increases in other prices.

The three-man IMF consultation team was in the Philippines last month. Headed by Tun Thin, assistant director of the Asian department of the IMF, the mission was composed of Hohn Woodley, chief of the multiple currency practices division of the Asian department of the IMF, and Ching-Gwan Chang, economist of the fund.

President Garcia singled out Secretary Aytona, who he said, has started cleaning the mess in the two vital collecting agencies of the government; namely, the Bureau of Internal Revenue and the Bureau of Customs.

He urged the different Cabinet members to conduct parallel investigations in their own offices in an effort to purge those who have been recreant to the public trust.

The President transmitted all requests for aid due to damages caused by typhoons to the Presidential Rehabilitation Committee headed by Finance Secretary Dominador Aytona with instructions to expedite the release of available funds.

The President accepted the invitation extended by Rep. Nicanor Yñiguez of Leyte to be guest of honor at the inauguration of the new province of Southern Leyte scheduled for July 1, 1960.

Rep. Yñiguez was accompanied by six mayors of Leyte; namely, Nemesio Mosqueda of Pintoyan, Conrado Gompendio of Macrohon, Graciano Capili of St. Bernard, Alfredo Bantug of Maasin, Gil Japson of Hinundayan, and Teodorico Esclamado of Padre Burgos.

February 12.—PRESIDENT Garcia today conferred with foreign affairs officials and the chairmen of the committee on foreign affairs of both Houses of Congress to take up the raging controversy over the Philippine war damage claims.

The conflict arose from the decision of the U.S. State Department to give the Philippines only $73 million as balance of the Philippine claim for war damages.

Present at the conference were Foreign Affairs Secretary Felixberto M. Serrano; Sen. Lorenzo M. Sumulong, chairman of the Senate committee on foreign relations; Rep. Ramon P. Mitra, chairman of the House committee on foreign affairs; and Ministers Juan Arreglado and Manuel Collantes.

The President was told that the Senate and the House would pass a joint resolution fixing the Philippine claim at $154.1 million.

President Garcia cancelled all his morning engagements in order that he could meet the foreign affairs officials of both the Congress and the executive department. In the afternoon the President received Sen. Pedro Sabido.

At 5 o'clock, President Garcia presided over his weekly press conference. However, at 5:45 o'clock, the President cut short his press conference and announced he was meeting another engagement to open the floating exposition of the Industrial Development Center aboard the presidential yacht Lapu-Lapu.

Upon arriving at Pier 3, the President found out that because of a slight drizzle he could not address the crowd at an improvised stage. So he discarded a prepared speech and give a brief extemporaneous speech at the dining saloon of the RPS Lapu-Lapu.

President Garcia today relieved Isidro C. Angangco as collector of customs of Manila after finding him guilty of "gross abuse of authority and discretion" in the release of controversial Pepsi-Cola shipments in 1956.

The Chief Executive announced his decision on the five-year old case during his regular press conference this afternoon, and dramatically climaxed his week-long drive for a "thorough house-cleaning."

The President, however, exonerated Angangco's co-respondent, Aquiles J. Lopez, former barter trade supervisor of the former No-Dollar Import office. Lopez was sternly warned against a repetition of his actuaciones in connection with the release of the Pepsi-Cola concentrates in 1956.

During the regular press conference, the President:

1. Said he was waiting for the explanation of Ruben Villaluz, chief of the Motor Vehicles' Office, before acting on the recommendation of government investigators to suspend him from office;
2. Explained his proposal to amend the Constitution by requiring congressional concurrence before he could suspend the writ of habeas corpus;

3. Stated that the reorganization of the Cabinet is a “continuing process,” indicating he would change department secretaries as he sees fit; and

4. Absolved the Central Bank from blame for the plight of a Filipino student in New York, who was reported to have run into debt and expelled from school for lack of dollars, saying it was the fault of her parents for failure to remit the corresponding peso counterpart.

Asked on the war damage claims at his press conference, the President answered:

With respect to the question of additional war damage compensation now pending before the American Congress, it is my honest belief that there is no disagreement between the two governments that war damage claimants whose rights have already been established by the American War Damaged Commission years ago are entitled to additional war damage compensation. This had been recognized even at the time the American Congress enacted the Philippine War Damage Compensation law. If there is any disagreement at all, it is only in the amount of that war damage compensation. I sincerely hope that by friendly discussions an agreement would soon be reached to the satisfaction of the two governments. At a time when the friendship of America and the Philippines is put to a test, a sober, dispassionate discussions on a high plane is called for.”

President Garcia granted today 30 days’ reprieves to four convicts who are scheduled to die on the electric chair on Sunday, February 15.

The reprieves were granted in two separate orders after President Garcia received the convicts’ petitions for executive clemency. President, Garcia said that some time was needed for a thorough and careful consideration of the merits of the petitions.

February 13.—PRESIDENT Garcia spent the whole morning this day at his private residence in Quezon City where he received former President Sergio Osmeña.

The Grand Old Man of Cebu arrived recently and is planning to return to Cebu. He called on the Chief Executive and discussed the political developments in his province, where the President lost in the last elections in his fight against the political alliance of Rep. Sergio Osmeña, Jr., and Sen. Mariano Jesus Cuenco.

This morning the President played billiards and was reported enjoying his new pastime.

In the afternoon the Chief Executive motored to Malacañang, and later in the evening, returned to his private residence in Quezon City, where he went over pending state papers. The President wanted to catch up with his backlog of state papers, including the results of several investigations of venalities in the government.

He had wanted to finish going over the papers in order that he could dispose of them before the end of this month.

President's Week in Review: February 14-20, 1960

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

February 14.—PRESIDENT Garcia this afternoon inaugurated the 50,000-watt transmitter of the Far East Broadcasting Company at Bocaue, Bulacan, and expressed hope it will give encouragement to the less fortunate peoples of this region.

The new transmitter will be utilized by American missionaries to broadcast English programs to countries in Southeast Asia, including those behind the Iron Curtain.

It was one of the original transmitters of KGER in San Francisco, over which the Voice of Freedom was beamed to the Philippines during the three years of Japanese occupation.

In his brief remarks the President said that the Philippines, because of her unique experience as a successful American experiment, had taken into herself the mission of leading other peoples of Asia to a full understanding of the ways of democracy.

He said that neighboring countries which have had sad experiences with past colonizers are slow to understand the noble intentions of America and her self-effecting task of bringing greater understanding, freedom, and peace to other peoples.

“These countries,” the President said, “need the Philippines to lead them to the ways of democracy which she herself inherited from the United States, and in her humble task of bringing these countries to the ways of democracy, your station will be a most effective implement.”

The President also recalled the hardships, sacrifices, and sufferings of the Filipinos during the dark days of the war and the voices of Mariano and William Winter, who sustained the fire of resistance and brought hopes to the guerrilla fighters.

The President was introduced by Defense Secretary Alejo Santos, who fetched him from his Bohol Avenue residence in Quezon City, as the “Number One Missionary of the country.”

Other speakers in the program were Rev. William J. Roberts, secretary-treasurer; John C. Broger, president, who welcomed the President; and Roberto H. Bowman, who thanked the President for coming.

The President, accompanied by Secretary Santos, left Bohol Avenue at 3:45 p.m., arriving at Bocaue at 4:20. After the program, the President motored back to Bohol Avenue, accompanied by Secretary Santos and Leon O. Ty, arriving there at a little past 6 p.m.

Earlier in the morning the President and the First Lady heard mass at their residence. Also present at the mass was Brig. Gen. Isagani Campo, PC chief.

About noon time their children, Fernando C; Campos and Linda, had luncheon with the President and the First Lady.

February 15.—EARLY in the morning the President and Mrs. Garcia gave a breakfast in honor of Mr. and Mrs. John D. Rockefeller, III, who are in the Philippines to visit the Rockefeller Rice Research center in Los Baños.

The Rockefellers were accompanied to Malacañang by Dr. and Mrs. Robert F. Chandler of the Rockefeller Foundation, Dr. Paulino D. Garcia, chairman of the National Science Development Board, Ex-Justice Secretary Pedro Tuason, chairman of the Magsaysay Award Foundation; Mrs. Paz Marquez-Benitez, vice-chairman; Mr. Francisco Ortigas, Jr., treasurer; Dean Leopoldo Uichangco and Jesus Magsaysay, of the Magsaysay Award Foundation; and Christian Larsen, general manager, STANVAC.

The Rockefellers two years ago donated ₱500,000 to the Magsaysay Award Foundation, which gives away five awards annually of ₱10,000 each.

After visiting their rice research center in Los Baños, which is making studies on improved rice breeding for Southeast Asia in conjunction with the U. P. College of Agriculture and the National Science Development Board, the Rockefellers will leave Manila Wednesday.

The President this morning conferred with Secretary Felixberto Serrano of the Department of Foreign Affairs and Chairman Lorenzo Sumulong of the Senate Committee on Foreign Relations at Malacañang.

The closed door conference which lasted for almost three hours, was convened by the President to draft final directives to Ambassador Carlos P. Romulo on the Philippine war damage claims in Washington.

President Garcia today designated Deputy Budget Commissioner Faustino Sy-Changco as acting budget commissioner, vice Dominador Aytona, who had been appointed finance secretary.

The President at the same time signed the nomination of Commissioner Sy-Changco as budget commissioner and forwarded it to the Commission on Appointments for confirmation.

Sy-Changco has been in the government service for more than 40 years, having started as clerk in the Bureau of Health in April 1919. Later he was transferred to the Budget Commission, where he successfully filled the position of special agent, accounting officer, and chief of division.

The President today curtly rejected a reconsideration move by Isidro G. Ang-Angco to remain as collector of customs for the port of Manila.

Acting through Executive Secretary Natalio P. Castillo within 12 hours from receipt of Ang-Angco's letter, the President extensively refuted the allegations made by Ang-Angco that it is the Commissioner of Civil Service who should pass judgment on his case and not the Chief Executive.

President Garcia sternly reiterated his contention and held his ground that, since he is authorized to initiate investigations of misconduct of personnel in the executive branch, he therefore has the right to render decisions after such investigations.

The Chief Executive emphasized that this power and authority is clearly vested upon him by the Constitution.

He also quoted extensively from a legal opinion rendered by then Secretary of Justice Pedro Tuason, to strengthen his stand against Ang-Angco. Tuason recited a litany of legal authorities in support of his opinion that the President has the constitutional power to investigate and render decision.

Justice Tuason submitted his memorandum on the case on February 3, 1958.

President Garcia also emphasized in his reply to Ang-Angco that the results of the investigation clearly showed that former Secretary of Finance Jaime Hernandez, never consented nor gave authority to Ang-Angco to release the Pepsi-Cola concentrates.

President Garcia dismissed Ang-Angco last Friday for grave neglect of duty and conduct prejudicial to the best interest of the customs service in the illegal release of a huge shipment of Pepsi-Cola concentrates or extracts last 1956.

THIS EVENING President Garcia called upon responsible leaders of commerce, industry, and the government to work together in restoring "relative stability to the country's economy."

He sounded the appeal at his address before a big crowd at the annual awards dinner of the Business Writers Association of the Philippines held at the Manila Hotel this evening.

A big crowd of leaders in business, industry, commerce, and finance, and ranking government officials, were on hand to hear the Chief Executive's views on the current government thinking on private business and industry.

At the same time, the President scored what he called "negative thinkers" who have not only belittled the country's economic progress but also paint a distorted picture of the local economy.

"There are, indeed," the President said, "some negative thinkers, distant descendants perhaps of Ichabod Crane of Sleepy Hollow, who want the people to believe that our economy is actually deteriorating."

He cited the annual awards dinner of the BWAP to belie the claims of the negative thinkers. He pointed out that by the BWAP's affair, "the association of journalists . . . make public their recognition of the fact that the nation's economy has continued to advance, honoring those who have significantly contributed to such a gratifying event."

The President cited facts and figures to indicate that the country has a "continuing upswing of the national economy."

February 16.—THIS MORNING the President discussed local problems of some ten Congressmen, most of whom requested financial aid.

Rep. Guillermo B. Sanchez of Agusan, accompanied by Agusan Vice-Governor Teofilo D. Curato Board Members Francisco M. Alaba and Ramon Rosales, and Mayors Tito Salabo of Nasipit and Esteban Degamos of Carmen, asked the President for the releases of funds for public works projects.

Rep. Marcelino Veloso of Leyte called on the President to request investigation of certain officials in certain government agencies for anomalies and irregularities in the performance of their duties. Veloso specifically requested that the investigation be carried out by the Presidential Committee on Administration Performance Efficiency.

Rep. Jacobo Z. Gonzales of Laguna appealed to the President to stop the closing of the Philippine Charity Sweepstakes office in Santa Cruz, Laguna. Pie said that the office was the most productive of all PCSO branches and that there was no reason for closing it.

Other callers who asked the President for public works fund releases and for relief for fire and typhoon victims, were Reps. Wenceslao R. Lagumbay of Laguna; Laurentino LI. Badelles of Lanao del Norte; Francisco Licaroz of Marinduque; Faustino Dugenio of Misamis Oriental, accompanied by Mayors Julio Ganaban of Gingoog, Esmeraldo Chavez of Guinsiliban, and Epifanio Jacot of Catarman; Luciano Millan of Pangasinan; Jose B. Legaspi of Aklan; and Faustino Tobia of Ilocos Norte.

President Garcia today directed four members of his Cabinet to initiate an all-out drive to stop wanton destruction of Philippine forests by illegal timber cutters.

Participating jointly in the drive are the Departments of National Defense, Finance, Agriculture and Natural Resources, and the Presidential Committee on Administration Performance Efficiency.

The President was deeply perturbed by reports that the Ambuklao hydroelectric plant was not generating power as expected and that irrigation systems, especially the ₱1.5 million Colo Irrigation System and two others in Bataan, have failed to increase the acreage of irrigated lands.

Gov. Pedro T. Dizon of Bataan, one of those who complained against laxity in the enforcement of forestry rules in his province, offered to help in the drive. He told Justice Ocampo that for all practical purposes Bataan has no more forests to speak of.

Dizon said he had tried to put a stop to illegal timber cutting since January when he assumed office but that his efforts had been thwarted by certain forestry officials who continued to issue licenses for timbermen and who put up the same excuse that they were powerless to cope with the situation.

THIS evening the President formally launched the 1960 annual fund campaign of the Philippine National Red Cross at appropriate ceremonies held at the Malacañang social hall.

President Garcia launched the fund drive with a personal contribution of ₱1,000. Advance gifts were also turned over by those present.

Members of the local diplomatic corps, high government officials, and prominent businessmen were among those present at the ceremony.

Mrs. Luz Magsaysay, in representation of Mrs. Leonila D. Garcia, honorary chairman of the 1960 PNRC fund campaign, accepted the advance gifts.

Defense Secretary Alejo Santos, Bulacan Gov. Tomas Martin, and Tomas de Castro led a delegation from Bulacan who turned over the biggest advance provincial donation amounting ₱27,000, which according to Alfonso Calalang, chairman of the advance gifts division, represents an oversubscription of the quota for Bulacan.

Earlier in the afternoon the President received Hiro Hiyama, managing director; R. Murofushi, general manager; and K. Nakanishi, supervisor, respectively, of the Marubeni-Iida Co., Ltd. The Japanese businessmen called at Malacañang to pay their respects.

The President today proclaimed 1961 as the “Visit Philippines—See Orient” year in a bid to increase the Philippines’ share of the world tourist trade in the jet age.

The President signed the proclamation on the eve of the departure of Commissioner Modesto Farolan of the Philippine Tourist and Travel Agency for New Zealand to attend the 9th annual meeting of the Pacific Areas Travel Association (PATA).

The President’s proclamation serves as an open invitation to millions of tourists from across the seas to visit the Philippines and enjoy the vacation spots, the cultural and historical attractions, and the unique travel experiences that the country and the Orient can offer.

In his proclamation the President underscored the need for promoting mutually beneficial relations among all countries and nations in order to bring about peace, security, and prosperity.

The President said that one way of achieving peace, security, and contentment is through encouragement of travel between countries.

To insure maximum satisfaction to foreign guests, the President called upon all government officials and agencies to cooperate in extending utmost courtesy and hospitality to tourists. The President also appealed to all business, civic, educational, cultural, religious, and labor groups to assist in the preparation of programs and activities to show the Philippines at her best, especially in the field of culture.

February 17.—PRESIDENT Garcia this morning received Al Tegan, president of General Public Utilities of New York, at Malacañang.

During his more than an hour call, the GPU executive told President Garcia that the “Filipino First” policy was fully justified and that the management of the MERALCO, a subsidiary of the GPU, was considering the widespread participation of Filipinos in the corporation.

Tegan told the President that the exploitation of oil in Cebu will appreciably lower the cost of fuel to change materially the picture of Philippine economy.

The President said he was optimistic about the economic picture because the report of the International Monetary Fund committee, which had made a survey of the Philippines some months ago, had been laudable and spoke pretty well of the Philippines.

This was confirmed by Tegan who said that this progress can be gauged by the increasing demand for electric current from the buying public.

Tegan extended an invitation to Filipino atomic scientists to visit the GPU atomic plant which is being set up in Pennsylvania to increase their technical know-how and keep abreast of developments in nuclear fission.

President Garcia received a limited number of callers this morning. He spent much of his time in his private study, going over pending papers brought over to him by Malacañang assistants. He also went over the agenda of the regular Cabinet meeting scheduled this afternoon.

The President convoked his Cabinet at 5:30 p.m.

THIS EVENING the President and the Cabinet began implementing the policy of transferring government enterprises to private parties when they decided to sell the Cebu Portland Cement Co. in Naga.

The firm was the first to be considered under this policy which was enunciated by President Garcia’s budget message to Congress early this month.

President Garcia told the Cabinet that the Naga cement factory, the main factory of the CEPOC, “has ceased to be a pioneering venture” and can be taken over by private capital.

After approving the sale, the President named a committee to appraise the value of the factory and set the conditions to govern the public bidding which will be held shortly.

The committee is composed of Juan O. Chioco, economic coordinator, as chairman, Labor Secretary Angel M. Castaño, National Economic Council Chairman Jose Locsin, a representative of the General Auditing Office, and a representative of the CEPOC board, as members.

The Cabinet also approved the sale of the Gonzalez estate in Baesa, Rizal, to tenants and other parties.

The estate of 971,982 square meters, was ordered expropriated by the Supreme Court. In the projected resale of the land, the Cabinet decided to give priority to present tenants, but likewise planned to spread the benefits by selling some to outside parties.

If the land is to be divided and sold to actual occupants only, each housing lot owner would get some 1,000 square meters, which would be too heavy for a low income family to purchase. It would also be contrary to the government policy of helping small-income groups, such as those already living as tenants on the estate.

February 18.—PRESIDENT Garcia this morning asked provincial and municipal executives to launch a concerted information drive to make people bond-conscious in order to secure financing for local development projects.

In his talks with visiting local officials at Malacañang this morning, the President asked them to appeal to the people's civic spirit and to inform them of the benefits that will be derived, if they invest their money in bonds instead of in savings banks.

The President said that bonds earn four per cent interest while bank deposits earn only two and one-half per cent.

At the same time that they will be earning more, the President said, they will be helping the government to carry on development programs for their welfare.

"People should know," the President emphasized, "that bonds are as good as cash and can be discounted at the Central Bank any time the buyers need cash."

The President said that if a bond-market could be generated throughout the country, there would be less need for securing development loans from abroad.

He said the government would contribute moderate capital while the bond sales could furnish a steady capital for operating such projects as that envisioned to develop the ₱279 billion nickel deposits in Nonoc Island, Surigao.

Exasperated by reports that farmers in the Lanao provinces are facing difficulties owing to the destruction of their rice crops by rats, the President told Govs. Madki Alonto of Lanao del Sur and Ali Dimaporo of Lanao del Norte to take up with the secretary of agriculture and natural resources the problem of gradually exterminating the pest.

The President said that over ₱200,000 were spent for the control of rats in Mindanao last year, but there seemed to be no tangible results. He said he would be willing to raise more funds to control the pest because he was determined to see the self-sufficiency food drive succeed.

In his talks with callers the President also stressed his proposal to synchronize all elections by 1965, and to restore the senatorial districts through constitutional amendments.

Earlier in the morning the President had a long conference with Finance Secretary Dominador R. Aytona and Central Bank Governor Miguel Cuaderno, Sr., over budgetary and financial matters.

Among those who called on the President this morning were Rep. Gerardo Roxas of Capiz and Roxas City Mayor Lorenzo Arnaldo, who paid their respects; Cabanatuan City Mayor Mario S. Garcia, who thanked the President for various community development projects in his city; Govs. Ali Dimaporo of Lanao del Norte and Madki Alonto of Lanao del Sur, who requested relief from rat infestation.

Rep. Reynaldo P. Honrado and Gov. Constantino C. Navarro of Surigao headed a delegation which requested early development of the Surigao nickel mines in Nonoc Island. With the delegation were Vice-Governor Recaredo B. Castillo, Board Members Montano B. Ortiz, Jr., Jose C. Sering, and Vicente Murillo; and Provincial Treasurer Panfilo Dunque.

The President today weakened the opposition ranks in Nueva Ecija when he administered the oaths of affiliation to the Nacionalista Party to 40 top leaders of that province, including a co-founder of the Liberal party, and the president of the Grand Alliance.

Speaking for the LP group, former Nueva Ecija Gov. Jose Robles, Jr., explained the reason for their defection. "We found out that your (President Garcia's) administration is leading our country to progress."

Robles was co-founder of the Liberal Party, together with the late President Roxas and former Senate President Jose Avelino.

Accompanied by Senator Quintin Paredes, the Grand Alliance defectees was led by Carlos Mañalac, president, and Juan Carambas, Liberal Party chairman and president of the barrio lieutenants' league.

Before their oath-taking, the President asked the defectees individually whether their act "came from the heart." He later welcomed them into the ranks of the Nacionalista Party.

The delegation, composed of political and civic leaders in their respective communities, included:

Delfin Rivera, Gualberto Corpus, Mariano Tomas, Igmidio Cachuela, Mariano Bumanlag, Victorio Cabanes, Sotero Domine, Emeterio Solis, Marcos Dano, Matias Timoteo, Hermeriegildo Gines, Pedro Jacobe, Fabian Palac, Pascual Caritativo, Dionisio Datawin, Fermin Domine, Nicolas Evangelista, Manuel Tejo, Domingo Estrella, Juan Castro, Mrs. Juliana de Fiesta; Mrs. Flordeliza Corpuz, Canuto Calina, Mrs. Carmen Verzola, Domingo Abalos, Alberto Cadorna, Merardo Musne, Hermogenes Cappal, Dominador Dolor, Juan Posadas, Sinfroso Delia, Maximo V. Dona, Marcelino Datuwin, Amado Pascual, Angel Manikis, Perfecto Gabanting, Enrique Mendoza, and Ricardo Robles.

IN the evening the President exchanged views with foreign students currently taking courses hi the University of the Philippines under Fulbright scholarship. Those who called on the President were Dr. James Storer, Mr. and Mrs. Oral Park, Larry Stifel, Jean Grozbolts, Majorie Storer, Shyriel onde, David Stenberg, and Mrs. John Kurtz.

Former Agriculture Secretary Juan de G. Rodriguez conferred with the President this evening and discussed the proposed establishment of the National Research Center to be financed by the Ford and Rockefeller Foundations.

Caltex officials also called on the Chief Executive. They were R. J. Monical, W. E. Menefee, R. R. Tillotson, R. E. Beasely, and J. P. Roxas.

February 19.—THIS MORNING the President received fresh encouragement in his fight for the economic independence of the Philippines from David E. Lilienthal, famous American industrialist and economist.

Mr. Lilienthal, who was the first chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission and formerly of the vast Tennessee Valley Authority, is the house guest of the Republic Flour Mills. Together with Mrs. Lilienthal, Mr. Lilienthal was honored with a breakfast by the President in Malacañang.

Mr. Lilienthal said that he had gone around the country visiting the Ambuklao, Maria Cristina, and Binga hydroelectric power projects in the last two weeks;, and was amazed by the rapid industrialization of the country.

He said he had seen the painful efforts of the Filipino people to undertake the development of the country and added that it was a healthy sign that the people have come to realize that the economic wellbeing of their country depended on their own efforts.

The Lilienthals, who are leaving for Bangkok tomorrow, were accompanied to Malacañang by Finance Secretary Dominador Aytona, Sen. Pedro Sabido, Dr. and Mrs. Salvador Araneta, Mr. and Mrs. Alberto, Col. Jacinto Gavino and Lorenzo Alberto.

PRESIDENT Garcia this morning told the Korean Goodwill Mission to the Philippines that the Filipino people will remain true and loyal friends of the free people of Korea.

The President said that, like all free peoples the world over, the Filipinos have a stake in the preservation of the independence of that country which had been sanctified by the blood of Filipino soldiers spilled on Korean soil during the Communist invasion.

The Korean Goodwill Mission called on the President at Malacañang to express the gratitude of their country for the Philippines' contribution in the preservation of their independence, and to request an exchange of leaders in business, cultural, commercial, and industrial fields for the mutual benefit of the Philippines and Korea.

The Korean Goodwill Mission was headed by former Vice-Minister of Foreign Affairs Dong Jo Kim, and composed of Dr. Kyun Hee Tcha of the Ministry of Reconstruction and Kwang Soo Choi of the Ministry of Foreign Affairs.

The missionaries were accompanied to Malacañang by Korean Ambassador to the Philippines Lincoln Kim and Assistant Protocol Officer Rod Nazareno of the Department of Foreign Affairs.

The President also received Dr. Daniel Boorstin, American author, who is touring Southeast Asia to gather materials for a forthcoming book.

Dr. Boorstin was accompanied by J. C. F. Kasten, vice-president and managing director of Muller and Phipps.

Among the other callers who paid their respects were Rear Admiral Clifford C. Deford, chief of the U.S. Naval Dental Service, who is on an inspection trip in Sangley Point, Cavite, and Prof. Myers McDougal.

Admiral Deford was accompanied to Malacañang by U.S. Minister George Abbot, Dr. Dominador G. Santos, president of the Philippine Dental Association, Capt. Anthony K. Karis, and USN Lt. Commander R. E. Ricker.

Prof. McDougal was accompanied to Malacañang by Social Security System Commissioner Gonzalo Gonzalez; Josefina P. Ambrosio, president of the International Federation of Women Lawyers; Dean Jovito Salonga of the FEU law institute; D. B. Ambrosio, president of the Quezon City Bar Association; and Prof. Enrique Fernando.

The President later received Genaro Sarmiento, director of the National Development Company, who briefed him on the launching of the first vessels acquired from Japan by the Philippine Government under the Overseas Shipping Act.

A 12-man delegation also saw the President to protest in behalf of the Orraca Tenants' Association the lease of the government-owned Orraca building in Divisoria to a single person.

President Garcia today suspended Ruben Villaluz and Aurelio de Leon, chief and assistant chief, respectively, of the Motor Vehicles Office, pending their investigation on a four-point administrative complaint.

The Chief Executive announced the suspension of the two top MVO officials during the regular press conference in Malacañang this afternoon.

He said he will name an acting MVO chief next week to take over the administrative supervision of the office during the period of the suspension of the two officials.

The President suspended Villaluz and De Leon "to safeguard the hundreds of documents in that office which are vital pieces of evidence from being tampered with, destroyed, or hidden."

He said he also wanted to insure "freedom of testimony of subordinate employees and officials."

Villaluz and De Leon will be investigated by the Integrity Board of the Department of Public Works and Communications. The President, however, stated he was ready to name a "stronger presidential committee from other departments should "it be desired."

Villaluz and De Leon were charged administratively by Rep. Joaquin R. Roces, chairman of the House Committee on Good Government, in a letter sent to the President last January 28.

The President today upheld the deportation board's refusal to act on a motion of Theodore Lewin, American sports promoter, seeking permission to leave the country pending decision on his ouster case with that body.

At his regular press conference, the President said, "The point of the Deportation Board is well taken."

The Chief Executive said the authority to act on Lewin's petition to leave the country "is incumbent upon other government offices." The President, however, did not specify the offices.

The President had previously turned down Lewin's appeal to Malacañang seeking a reversal of the Deportation Board's resolution rejecting the American promoter's motion to dismiss the charges against him.

President Garcia presided over his regular press conference at the Council of State room, which made the newsmen feel they were Cabinet members in session. Cabinet meetings are held at the Council of State room in Malacañang.

For the second time, the President experimented on his new method of giving a press conference, by reading prepared answers to a few questions which had been submitted in writing a few hours earlier.

February 20.—PRESIDENT Garcia this morning motored to the head quarters of the National intelligence Coordinating Agency in the Port Area and received his regular, periodic briefing on assessments of current local and foreign activities as it affects national security.

The President was briefed by Cols. Nicanor Jimenez and Rafael Ileta, director and senior staff member, respectively, of the NIC A. The briefing lasted from 10 a.m. to 12 noon.

The President woke up early this morning at his Bohol Avenue residence in Quezon City, where he had spent the night. After a light breakfast, he stayed at his private study where he read the morning newspapers and went over some state documents he had brought over from Malacañang.

About 9:30 a.m., the President boarded his car and motored to the NIC A headquarters in the Port Area. He was accompanied by Lieutenant Commander Melchor Fronda, naval aide.

Arriving at the headquarters shortly before 10 a.m., the President found Rep. Vicente L. Peralta of Sorsogon being briefed at the office of Col. Jimenez on latest evaluations on economic subversion. This briefing which also included the organization of the NICA had started at 8:30 a.m. Rep. Peralta is chairman of the House committee on civil service and member of the committee on economic affairs.

The briefing was forthwith suspended and the President invited the Bicol solon to sit in at his briefing.

In the afternoon the President and the First Lady motored to the Jose Rizal Memorial Stadium, where the President was guest speaker at the opening of the Bureau of Public Schools inter-scholastic athletic meet.

Later, at 6 p.m., the President was again guest speaker at the inauguration of the Philippine National Cooperative Bank at the Department of Commerce and Industry building in Port Area. He was accompanied to the affair by Mrs. Garcia.

The President was the principal speaker at the inauguration of the Philippine National Cooperative Bank and Mrs. Garcia cut the ceremonial ribbon.

In his speech this evening the President expressed the hope that the establishment of the Philippine National Cooperative Bank will prove that the Administration is bent on facilitating the acquisition of capital by Filipino retailers in order to give substance to its Filipino First policy.

The President stated that with the determination of the officials and employees of the bank and the full backing of the Administration, the new banking institution will become one of the biggest in the country in the future.

President and Mrs. Garcia were the first depositors of the bank, opening a joint account with PNCB teller Maria Carmen S. Roque.

The President was introduced by Commerce Secretary Manuel Lim, president of the bank.

The PNCB is a cooperative enterprise. To give it an auspicious start, the Philippine Government has contributed an initial amount of ₱1,000,000 to its capital.

President Garcia today designated Manuel K. Torres as acting administrator of the Motor Vehicles Office, vice Ruben Villaluz, who was suspended yesterday by the Chief Executive.

Until his appointment to the MVO, Torres was head executive assistant in the office of Public Works Secretary Florencio Moreno. Born May 12, 1897 in Balayan, Batangas, he is an alumnus of the former Philippine School of Commerce and is a member of the bar, having passed it in 1925.

He has represented the Department of Public Works and Communications and the Philippines in several international conferences abroad and is also the department representative to the inter-departmental committee that studies bills passed by Congress before it is submitted to the President for consideration.

President's Week in Review: February 21-27, 1960

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

February 21.—PRESIDENT Garcia today took steps to arrest the reported rising of prices of corn meal in corn-eating regions in, the Visayas as he directed the National Rice and Corn Corporation to purchase sufficient quantities of corn grain in Mindanao for immediate shipment to these regions.

The President this morning was disturbed by reports that the price, of corn meal had jumped to as much as ₱0.75 a ganta. The increase had been attributed to hoarding by unscrupulous merchants who sought to manipulate local prices by creating scarcity of the staple commodity.

Gen. Leoncio Tan, NARIC general manager, was directed to effect prompt acquisition of sufficient stocks for distribution in the affected areas, particularly in towns of Northern Cebu. The NARIC manager was also instructed to give priority in the distribution to workers and other low-income groups who cannot afford to pay high prices for the commodity.

The Chief Executive spent the day at his Bohol Avenue residence in Quezon City. He did not receive any caller.

The President started the day by hearing mass said at his living room. After breakfast the President retired to his study where he went over the Sunday morning newspapers and some state documents he had brought along with him from Malacañang.

Shortly before noon, the President went to his playroom at the back of the house and played a few sets of billiards with some aides.

Later in the afternoon, after a brief rest, the President again retired to his study where he stayed the rest of the day.

February 22.—PRESIDENT Garcia today hailed the decision of visiting members of the Japan Sugar Import and Export Council to support the demand of the Philippines for an increase of the sugar quota of the country for the world market.

The visiting Japanese council members who are at present in the Philippines on a survey trip to explore the possibility of buying more Philippine sugar, made known their decision in the course of a courtesy call on President Garcia this morning.

The Council is composed of Japanese importers and sugar refiners who annually import one million tons of sugar, with Taiwan and Cuba practically supplying the entire amount.

The Japanese callers informed President Garcia that their country imports only 15,000 tons of Philippine sugar. They unanimously endorsed the plan of the Chief Executive to ask for an increase of the world market sugar quota of the country from 45,000 to 300,000 tons.

The Philippine request for an increased world market sugar quota will be presented next year at the International Sugar Conference.

Council members who saw the President were Sotaro Yoshida, council chairman, Iwami Sato, Morihisa Emori, Ichiro Kashiwagi, Eitaro Moriya, Kyoichi Nakamura, Hajime Hayashi, Minoru Tanaka, Juntaro Adachi, Sozo Okuda, Yao Shen, Toshio Ikushe, and Kiyomi Nagatani.

They were accompanied to Malacañang by Ramon Nolan of the Philippine Federation of Sugarcane Planters, Eufemio Musa of the Philippine Sugar Association, and Aquiles J. Lopez of the Sugar Producers' Cooperative Marketing Association.

The President also received Harold Gomes, junior lightweight champion of the world, who is staking his title in March 16 at a local stadium against a leading Filipino contender, Flash Elorde. Gomes was accompanied by his manager, Frank Travesano, trainer Whitey Bimstein, and Jorge Araneta, Jose Avelino, Jr., and Joe Climanco.

Other callers included former U.S. Postmaster General James Farley, now chairman of the Board of Directors of the Coca-Cola Export Company, who was accompanied by Hal Roberts of the Far East Coca-Cola Export Company and Miguel Noel; Lord Tedder, former commander-in-chief of the allied air forces in Europe during World War II, who was accompanied by British Ambassador A. Pilcher; G. A. Leiper, general manager of the Chartered Bank of London; John Pipe of the Chartered Bank; former Secretary Mariano Garchitorena and Board Member Vicente Bonot of Camarines Sur; and Rep. Tobias Fornier of Antique.

This afternoon President Garcia sent a message of congratulations to Queen Elizabeth of the United Kingdom for the recent arrival of another prince to her majesty's royal family.

The telegram was handed this afternoon to Ambassador John Arthur Pilcher of the United Kingdom through the Department of Foreign Affairs.

The President also sent a message of congratulations to the officers-elect of the National Press Club headed by Ernesto O. Granada of the Manila Chronicle, who had been elected new president of the club last Sunday.

February 23.—PRESIDENT Garcia suffered from a slight case of indigestion and cancelled his scheduled appointments for today, mostly with congressmen and provincial governors.

The Chief Executive signed an executive order extending the prohibition to slaughter carabaos up to December 31, 1960, in order to preserve the country's work animals for agricultural purposes.

Permits to slaughter carabaos may, however, be issued by the provincial commander subject to the following conditions:

- (a) That the carabao is 20 years old or over;
- (b) That the carabao is unfit for work;
- (c) That the carabao must be inspected by the provincial veterinarian and the provincial commander, or their authorized representatives; and
- (d) That the provincial veterinarian and the provincial commander shall make a joint certification that the carabao is 20 years old or over and unfit for work.

The President experienced slight stomach pains. Upon examination by Drs. Antonio Guytingco and Alejandro Gaerlan, the President's personal physicians, his ailment was diagnosed as a slight case of indigestion. They ordered the Chief Executive to rest and cancelled his appointments for the day.

Among those scheduled to see President Garcia this morning were Sens. Domocao Alonto and Pacita M. Gonzalez, Reps. Vicente Peralta of Sorsogon, Jose Nuguid of Bataan, Pedro A. Venida of Camarines Norte, Augusto Fancisco of Manila, Canuto Enerio of Zamboanga del Sur, Rogaciano Mercado of Bulacan, Leonardo Perez of Nueva Vizcaya, Reynaldo Honrado of Surigao, Faustiho Tobias of Ilocos Sur, Wenceslao R. Lagumbay of Laguna, and Guillermo Sanchez of Agusan.

In the afternoon President Garcia was scheduled to meet Pangasinan Gov. Conrado Estrella and Vice-Governor Nancy Sison, and Rep. Inocencio Ferrer with Gov. Valeriano Gatuslao of Negros Occidental.

Unable to see the Chief Executive, most of the solons and provincial executives sought out Executive Secretary Natalio P. Castillo to whom they presented their problems, most of them pertaining to fund releases for their respective provinces and districts.

President Garcia spent the day in his room going over state papers. After partaking of a light supper early in the evening the President retired.

February 24.—THIS MORNING, the President honored Prince Dhani Nivat, former regent of the King of Thailand and president of the Thai Privy Council, at breakfast in Malacañang. Present at the breakfast were members of the diplomatic corps representing the SEATO member-nations congressional leaders and foreign affairs officials, and Executive Secretary Natalio P. Castillo.

Implementation of the order of Education Secretary Jose E. Romero which requires all fourth year high school students in public and private schools throughout the country to take examinations will be carried out next month as agreed upon at a conference called by President Garcia this morning.

Present at the conference were Education Secretary Romero and ranking members of the Philippine Association of Colleges and Universities and the Catholic Education Association of the Philippines.

After a frank exchange of views and the withdrawal of some objectionable features of the order, the PACU and CEAP officials interposed no further objection to the implementation of the order.

Secretary Romero stated that the required examination to be given by his department will be used as (1) basis for determining the efficiency of instruction and the promotional standard of the schools; (2) for diagnosing by the department of students' weaknesses in each subject; (3) for the purpose of classifying schools for the information of the public; and (4) for taking appropriate action against the authority of a school to operate the course.

The Education head allayed the fears expressed by some conferees that his order will ultimately lead to control by the government of the curricula, textbooks, and syllabi of all private schools which they claimed was "derogatory to democratic principles."

Present at the conference were Pablo Meer, acting president, PACU; Dean Feliciano J. Ledesma, CEAP president; Francisco Dalupan, University of the East president; Domingo Jocson, National University president; and Norberto Ramos, representing the University of Sto. Tomas; Ramon Recio, representing the Far Eastern University; and Amado Dizon, PACU,

In the afternoon the President presided over the regular weekly meeting of his Cabinet.

Later in the evening he honored at dinner members of the provincial governors and city mayors league currently on the three-day convention at the G.S.I.S. building in Manila.

During the affair the President inducted the new officers of the league elected on the opening day of the convention this morning.

THIS AFTERNOON the President gave the Cabinet technical committee on the projected establishment of an integrated steel mill the go-signal to accept bids from private sectors which are willing to enter into the venture on a partnership basis with the government.

Title go-signal was given following approval by the Cabinet of the committee report, containing guiding principles under which all proposals should be submitted for a final selection as to who among the bidders may be awarded the private participation in the financing and implementation of the project.

Among the bases of the joint venture are:

(1) The government shall initially own 51 per cent of the capital stock and the private sector the remaining 49 per cent, with management left to the private sector and the government interfering only when the public interest so requires;

- (2) The joint venture shall have an authorized capital of about ₱120 million;
- (3) The government shall invest in the project through the National Shipyards and Steel Corporation, with the present assets of its Iligan Steel Mill Operations to be turned over to the new corporation at a mutually acceptable price, which shall form part of the government 51 per cent share in the equity capital;
- (4) The government shall provide the necessary peso financing for the power requirements of the Steel Mill project;
- (5) A pre-incorporation agreement embodying the terms and conditions under which the joint venture shall operate shall be drawn up, in the formulation of which the private groups will be given opportunity to offer suggestions; and
- (6) Incentives such as tax exemptions, control of competitive imports, and priority in raw materials shall be extended to the corporation, consistent with existing laws and regulations.

The integrated steel mill as planned by the NASSCO will have an initial annual capacity of 245,000 metric tons of finished products, estimated to be worth $43 million. When the capacity reaches 400,000 tons, the gross income will be about $57.8 million.

President Garcia ordered this afternoon the prosecution of a private person for falsification of public document and the taking of disciplinary action against two NAMARCO officials for negligence in connection with the illegal allocation of flour.

The order was issued upon recommendation made by Chairman Buenaventura Ocampo of the Presidential Committee on Performance Efficiency contained in a memorandum sent to the Chief Executive this morning.

The alleged fraud involves the amount of ₱61,395.60 representing allocation in excess allowed by law made as a result of misrepresentation by a certain bakery association president from Batangas.

It was discovered by a PCAPE team sent to the NAMARCO upon instructions of President Garcia to intensify the campaign against "ghost firms" which are obtaining dollar allocations to the prejudice of legitimate business firms.

The case was discovered when the PCAPE agents conducted an investigation on the allocation of 166,000 bags impounded by customs authorities. The bags of flour of 50 pounds each were placed under the control of the NAMARCO which was given the right to allocate the same to bakeries.

THIS EVENING the President mobilized provincial and municipal executives to join him in his anti-graft campaign in order to bring about good government.

Speaking extemporaneously during the formal dinner in the Malacañang state dining hall given in their honor, the President emphasized the vital role of the provincial and municipal executives in the anti-graft campaign.

He pointed out that these executives know their respective localities more than anyone else and that their all-out cooperation would spell success of the campaign.

The President said he had thrown the weight of the entire government machinery behind this drive, mentioning in particular the Presidential Committee on Administration Performance Efficiency and the National Bureau of Investigation.

President Garcia also:

1. Sought the all-out cooperation of the governors and mayors to the Administration-sponsored campaign against illegal and indiscriminate cutting of timber which is threatening to wipe out our forests and to turn the fertile countrysides into barren wasteland;
2. Solicited the assistance of the governors and mayors to the current campaign to sell bonds in order to finance principally vital public works projects;
3. Asked for the support and indorsement of the governors and mayors to his proposal to Congress for the adoption of six constitutional amendments during the current regular session; and
4. Sought the cooperation of governors and mayors in the Administration's program for increased tax collection, emphasizing that the needs of the national government have increased.

President Garcia recited the record of his administration on the anti-graft campaign, pointing out that at the close of 1959, a total of 12,233 cases of corruption in office had been investigated of which about 50 per cent were decided and 4,024 respondents found guilty.

He emphasized that this record cannot be surpassed by previous administrations. The sincerity with which the campaign is being conducted has brought about the dismissal of top government officials. He mentioned his action on the cases of Isidro Ang-Angco, who was considered resigned as collector of customs for the port of Manila, and Constancio Trias, who was considered resigned as chairman of the special inquiry of the Bureau of Immigration.

The Chief Executive also gave the governors and mayors a preview of his legislative program wherein he asked Congress for the creation of a graft-busting commission empowered to conduct investigations of all cases of graft and corruption in all government offices, and to bring such cases before the courts of justice for prosecution.

He also recalled that Cabinet members were recently directed by him to redouble their efforts in purging their respective offices of grafters and crooks. A progress report will be submitted quarterly by the Cabinet members, he stated.

In warning provincial and municipal executives against the dangers of illegal and indiscriminate cutting of timber, President Garcia pointed out that he had mobilized the resources of four government agencies to conduct an all-out war against this dangerous practice. Mentioned were the Departments of National Defense, Finance, and Agriculture and Natural Resources, and the PCAPE.

February 25.—PRESIDENT Garcia today was presented with a resolution approved by Nacionalista provincial and city executives asking that the national directorate of the majority party be called to a meeting in order to discuss the proposed constitutional amendments now being considered by Congress.

In proposing the meeting of the NP national directorate, the Nacionalista governors and city mayors alleged that it is imperative that their views be also heard.

The resolution was presented to President Garcia by Iloilo City Mayor Rodolfo Ganzon, vice-chairman of the League of Governors and City Mayors, at the luncheon tendered by Senate President Eulogio Rodriguez, Sr., in honor of the officials and members of the league at the Manila Hotel.

Earlier this morning President Garcia received a pledge of support to the proposed constitutional amendment providing for the election of senators by district. The pledge was given in Malacañang by a newly-formed group of Bicol congressmen and provincial governors led by Rep. Vicente Peralta of Sorsogon.

The Bicol group also pledged their personal loyalty to the President. Nacionalista solons who composed the Bicol group were, aside from Rep. Peralta, Reps. Justino Nuyda of Albay, Salvador Encinas of Sorsogon, Jose Fuentebella and Agaton Ursua of Camarines Sur, and Pedro Venida of Camarines Norte.

Kenneth N. Cundall, president of the International Bitumen Emulsions Corporation, also called on President Garcia to inform him of the operation beginning next year of a Stanvac asphalt plant here.

The new dollar-saving plant will produce asphalt in time for the next dry season, utilizing the newest technology developed by American know-how. Cundall also informed President Garcia that the Philippines will be the first country outside the United States to utilize the new asphalt technology.

Cundall was accompanied by Public Works Secretary Florencio Moreno; Cliff M. Wimberly, Far East representative of IBEC; Raul S. Zamora, Stanvac assistant to the general sales manager; Benjamin Tambunting; and Maj. Arturo D. Sevilla.

Other callers this morning included Speaker Protempore Constancio E. Castaneda, Reps. Jose Aldeguer and Justmiano S. Montano, who discussed with the President several proposed legislative measures; Rep. Francisco Ortega and several municipal officials of La Union who discussed local problems; and Reps. Jacobo Gonzales and Wenceslao Lagumbay of Laguna, who headed big delegations from their respective districts.

After receiving scheduled callers at his study in Malacañang, the President motored to the Manila Hotel about 12:30 p.m. to attend the luncheon given by Senate President Rodriguez in honor of the governors and city mayors who are now in the second day of their three-day convention at the GSIS building in Manila.

The Chief Executive returned to Malacañang about 2:30 p.m.

The President today created a committee to investigate the charges leveled by the House committee on good government for alleged anomalies in the Motor Vehicles Office.

The committee is composed of Justice Undersecretary Enrique Fernandez, chairman; and Assistant Postmaster General Belarmino P. Navarro, representing the Department of Public Works and Communications, and Leureano Ferrer of the General Auditing Office, members.

The President recently suspended MVO Chief Ruben Villaluz and Assistant Chief Aurelio de Leon as a result of the charges.

The committee is vested with all the powers of an investigating body, including the power to summon witnesses, to administer oaths, and to take testimony or evidence relevant to the case.

February 26.—PRESIDENT Garcia this morning served notice to electric plant owners that he will never allow higher electric rates, especially in the provinces, in view of a widespread complaint of consumers against the “already high rates.”

The President disclosed that he has received a constant stream of letters from consumers and even resolutions from provincial boards and municipal councils complaining against the high rates and recommending that the franchise of the electric companies concerned be revoked.

The Chief Executive made known his stand at a conference with members of the Philippine Electric Plant Owners Association led by Gonzalo Abaya at Malacañang.

The plant owners pointed out that the electric rates as approved by the Public Service Commission are practically the same as the pre-war rates in spite of the fact that fuel, lubricating oil, skilled labor, and spare parts have increased in prices from 200 to 400 per cent.

President Garcia told the plant owners to exert efforts to reduce their cost of production. However, he agreed in principle to their petition that they be allowed to requisition capital goods from reparations.

The President also favored the grant of more liberal credit facilities to the electric power industry which represents an investment of about ₱64 million wholly Filipino.

The electric plant owners alleged that the increasing cost of raw materials like fuel, as well as of capital goods like engines, wires, and transformers, is a serious threat to the stability of the industry and are retarding the expansion and modernization of private power plants.

Other members of the association who accompanied Abaya were Victoriano Yenko, Agustin Caseñas, Salvador Sala, Antonio Castillejos, Jose Sanvictores, Jr., Bienvenido Cabrera, and Ponciano Angara.

Jose S. Rodriguez, president of the Rural Bankers Association of the Philippines, led prominent members of the association who asked President Garcia for the release of about ₱5 million which represents the counterpart fund that the government is required by law to contribute to the capital of rural banks.

The rural bankers pointed out that under the Reparations Law, the rural banks are entitled to receive from its economic funds the sum of ₱20 million. They requested that ₱5 million be made available from the funds for distribution to the rural banks.

Other members of the bankers' group were Jose Desiderio, Nestor Jalandoni, Ceferino Eugenio, Virgilio Garcia, Alfonso Tabora, Ernesto Villareal, Jose Platon, Godofredo Monxisinis, Dr. Procopio Reyes, and Sergio R. Ortiz.

Members of the Philippine delegation to the International Telecommunication Union conference to be held soon in Geneva also called on President Garcia to receive last-minute instructions and to brief him on the agenda of the conference. The delegates are Telecommunications Director Juan Alfonso, chief delegate; and Guillermo Canon, Francisco Trinidad, Lt. Col. Angelo P. B. Frago, and Max D. Atienza, members.

The President inducted the following officials of National Association of Government Public Relations Office of the Philippine (NAGPROP): Domingo Garcia, president; Ben Alcantara, vice-president; Ramon Romero, Jr., executive secretary; Leandro S. Pelayo, treasurer; Virgilio Santos Cruz, business manager; Salvador Elizalde, PRO; Lt. Col. Luciano Gunabe, auditor; Isidoro Concon, liaison officer; and Froilan Bacuñgan, Esmeraldo de Leon, and Jose Tumbokon, directors.

THIS evening the President said he will call Public Works Secretary Florencio Moreno shortly to explain reported charges of an $8 million "windfall in kickbacks and overpricing" in the financing of the ₱108 million Marikina multi-purpose project.

Disturbed by reports of a simultaneous inquiry poised by separate committee in both chambers of Congress, the President told newsmen at his regular press conference this afternoon that he was expecting "Secretary Moreno to state his side."

"Should he keep silent," the President added, "I would require him to make a statement of his side."

The President denied official knowledge of the charges aired the other day by Rep. Raquiza, who accused the Cabinet member of pulling out a suspicious deal in connection with the financing of the Marikina dam.

However, shortly after the press conference, Sen. Roseller T. Lim, chairman of the Senate Blue Ribbon Committee, which is one of the bodies probing the Marikina dam financing, called on the Chief Executive presumably to report on the development in the Senate.

It was indicated that the President pledged his cooperation with the Congressional inquiries being poised against the Cabinet member in connection with the Marikina project.

The President said he was not yet prepared to answer the question as to whether or not he would allow Secretary Moreno to appear before the congressional committees.

“I will have to reserve my opinion on the matter, depending on how the resolution of Congress will be worded. It is of course my general policy,” he pointed out, “to cooperate with congressional investigations.”

During the press conference, the President:

1. Branded as “unfair” plans to deduct the $24 million Philippine loan from the proposed $73 million war damage claims of the country with the U.S. Government;
2. Stood pat on his decision in relieving Isidro C. Ang-Angco as collector of customs, saying that his verdict was final;
3. Indicated he was still going over the records of cases of fake officers in the Armed Forces, including that of Lcdr. Marcelino Calinawan; and
4. Favored any plan of redistricting the country as long as senators are elected by districts in his proposed amendments to the Constitution.

Sen. Lim, Blue Ribbon Committee chairman, this evening conferred with the President presumably on the Marikina dam case which his committee would probe beginning Monday.

It was believed that Lim appraised the Chief Executive on the report which had been furnished the Senate Blue Ribbon Committee denouncing Moreno’s allegedly irregular actuations in the dam project.

Spurred by the Raquiza expose, the Lower Chamber had constituted a committee to investigate formally the solon’s charges.

The President also conferred with Reparations Commissioner Juan Alberto, who pressed his resignation from the body. The President, however, counseled the commissioner to stay on his job, and directed him to adopt safeguards to prevent the overpricing of reparations materials.

This could be done, the President told Alberto, by inserting a provision in the contract allowing government auditors to investigate the cost of production of reparations items.

President Garcia also received the members of the Philippine Association of Assessing Officers headed by Jose R. Collante.

February 27.—REITERATING his standing policy that “people who have less in life should have more in law,” President Garcia ordered today Apolonio S. Padua to resign from office as justice of the peace of San Mateo, Isabela.

The President ordered Padua to resign on the basis of an administrative case filed against the latter by two poor tenants who had failed to deliver the share of their landlord in their crops.

Complainants Celestino and Arcadio Mercurio of San Mateo alleged that for this failure, the landlord filed with the JP a case for estafa against them, as a result of which they were summarily arrested and thrown into jail.

Investigation of the case revealed that the JP had committed an error in law when he ordered the arrest of the tenants without first summoning witnesses and ascertaining the existence of estafa.

Moreover, report of the secretary of justice said the tenants could not have been guilty of estafa under the Revised Administrative Code, for the alleged violation was merely that of a tenancy contract, and at most the tenants' liability was only civil in nature.

In ordering involuntary resignation, the President said the acts of the respondent justice of the peace were so serious and the consequences so grievous as to deserve more than mere warning or suspension.

Besides, the President said, such actuations were hardly in line with the policy of giving people who have less in life more in law.

At noon today the President underlined seven guiding policies in accelerating the pace of the industrialization and economic development program of his administration, in his speech at the testimonial luncheon held at the Manila Hotel on the occasion of the final plenary session of the 7th National Convention of Manufacturers and Producers.

The President was introduced by Fernando E. V. Sison, PCI president.

Special guests of the occasion were Finance Secretary Dominador Aytona, Commerce Secretary Manuel Lim, Public Works Secretary Florencio Moreno, SWA Administrator Amparo Villamor, General Services Undersecretary Serafin Salvador, Rep. Jose Roy, and leading businessmen.

The President spent the morning writing his speech at his Quezon City residence with only Conrado Montales, a stenographer, assisting him.

About 11:30 a.m., the President was fetched from his residence by Sison and Teofilo Reyes, Jr., first vice-president of the PCI and chairman of the convention. He arrived at the Manila Hotel about 12 noon.

The President spent the afternoon at his Bohol Avenue residence, where he worked on some papers he brought with him from Malacañang.

President's Week in Review: February 28- March 5, 1960

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

February 28.—PRESIDENT Garcia gave another indication of his concern for the rapid development of the nation's cottage industries as he directed the Reparations Commission this day to grant cottage industries a bigger share in the allocation of reparations goods from Japan.

In a conference with Reparations Commissioner Juan Alberto at his Bohol Avenue residence in Quezon City this afternoon, the President expressed his desire to see cottage industries equipped with needed machinery to increase their output and facilitate their expansion.

The President pointed out the potentialities of these small enterprises as a means of easing up the nation's unemployment problem, of improving the living standards of people in the rural areas, and of saving dollars for the country.

He asked Alberto to transmit his thinking to the commission, particularly his desire to formulate a plan whereby the cottage industries could be allocated at least $7.5 million worth of reparations machinery every year.

The President spent the day at his Quezon City residence. Waking up early this morning, the Chief Executive started the day by hearing mass at the living room of his home. Also at the mass were Mrs. Garcia, Maj. Ciriaco Hocson, junior aide, and members of the household staff.

In the evening, the President was guest of honor at the annual Gridiron Dinner given by the National Press Club of the Philippines at the social deck of the NPC building.

The President was fetched from his residence in Quezon City by Ernesto O. Granada and Johnny Perez, Jr., incoming and outgoing presidents of the NPC, and by Press Secretary Jose C. Nable.

President Garcia hailed the Philippine press for its efforts to report the truth, and expressed the hope that this trend would pave the way for a new epoch in journalism in this country.

The President addresses the big crowd that attended the annual gridiron dinner at the National Press Club after inducting the new NPC officers headed by Ernesto O. Granada, columnist and editorial writer of the Manila Chronicle.

He said he has observed that newspapermen have "kept faith with their responsibility to the country." However, he pictured newspapermen as "happy-go-lucky."

The installation ceremony followed the traditional Gridiron dinner during which off-the-record comedy skits "roasting" the President and other high government officials were presented by members of the NPC.

The President was roasted anew at the traditionally "acidic" Gridiron Dinner of the National Press Club. He, however, took the remarks directed against him in stride and managed to smile to show his sportsmanship.

He had previously shunned Gridiron dinners, having been lampooned by Time magazine on an off-the-record skit which was shown in a similar occasion two years ago.

The President motored to the NPC shortly after 8 o'clock this evening, prepared for the worst.

February 29.—PRESIDENT and Mrs. Garcia this morning led the nation in commemorating the death anniversary of the late President Elpidio Quirino.

Early in the morning the President and the First Lady attended a requiem mass for the late Chief Executive at the San Antonio Catholic Church in Forbes Park.

President Garcia later laid a wreath at the tomb of President Quirino in the Manila South Cemetery.

After the wreath-taking ceremony, the President and the First Lady spent a few solemn minutes in silent prayer for the dead while the local parish priest intoned his blessings during the commemoration rites.

Also present were Vice-President Diosdado Macapagal, Mr. and Mrs. Chito Gonzalez and Mr. and Mrs. Tomas Quirino, ex-Governor Eliseo Quirino, Judge Antonio Quirino, and close relatives and friends of the late President.

Earlier the President ordered the Presidential Guard Battalion to mount an honor guard at the tomb. He had declared February 29 a special public holiday in Ilocos Sur to afford the people of that province the opportunity to commemorate fittingly the death anniversary of their favorite son.

From Makati the President motored to his residence in Quezon City, where he received a big group of governors and city mayors who had just ended their three-day convention in Manila. They paid their respects to the President.

The provincial and municipal officials also discussed local problems with the Chief Executive until past one o'clock in the afternoon. The President said he would receive the provincial and city executives next week to discuss unfinished business.

Among those who called on the President were Govs. Isidro Rodriguez of Rizal, Delfin Montano of Cavite Bado Dangwa of Mountain Province and Baguio City Mayor Luis Lardizabal, Manuel Barretto of Zambales, Fernando Veloso of Samar, Madki Alonto of Lanao del Sur, Ali Dimaporo of Lanao del Norte, D. O. Plaza of Agusan, Constantino Navarro and Rep. Reynaldo P. Honrado of Surigao, Vicente de Lara of Misamis Oriental, together with Li. Gov. Jose Neri of Camiguin and Cagayan de Oro Mayor Justiniano Borja, and Quezon City Mayor Norberto Amoranto.

In the afternoon the President received at his private residence the new officers of the American Chamber of Commerce. They were Richard Pockmire, Paul Wood, Stanley Fischer, Robert Monical, Harry Ritz Miller, and Washington Sycip.

In that evening the President received Secretary of Public Works Florencio Moreno, who had been charged by Rep. Antonio Raquiza of Ilocos Norte with stage-managing the Marikina dam project. During the conference Moreno handed a 15-page report justifying his actions.

The CONDA officials were Titong Imperial, president; Andres Reyes, vice-chairman of the press bureau; Silas Laurio, PRO; Epifanio Jacosalem, co-president, PLS; Alfredo Uy, chairman of the press bureau; and Ben Atienza, director of the internal affairs bureau.

President Garcia today summoned Customs Commissioner Eleuterio Capapas to a conference in Malacañang to discuss ways of putting a stop to copra smuggling in Balabac, Palawan.

In another directive the President instructed Justice Secretary Alejo Mabanag to expedite trial of the alleged killers of the late Mayor Vicente Formoso of Vigan, who was murdered in 1958.

The conference with Capapas which is scheduled at 5 o'clock tomorrow afternoon, is prompted by the request of Rep. Gaudencio Abordo of Palawan and Balabac Mayor T. Aban, who informed the Chief Executive that the rampant smuggling activities had wiped out the small producers resulting in the loss of an estimated ₱70,000 in revenues from copra export permits.

The President told Rep. Abordo that he was well posted on the smuggling activities and that adequate remedies will be applied at the proper time depending on the recommendations of the investigating agencies.

The President directed Secretary Mabanag to expedite the case of the late Mayor Formoso upon petition of Mayor Lorenzo Formoso, Jr., who was elected in the last elections to succeed his late father, and Rep. Faustino Tobia and Gov. Godofredo S. Reyes of Ilocos Sur.

The late Vigan mayor was allegedly murdered in 1958 in front of the Constabulary barracks in Vigan, but until the present his killers have not been brought to trial.

Earlier the President had a closed door conference with Sen. Quintin Paredes on administration sponsored bills, particularly the creation of the Anti-Graft Commission and the Information Department.

Serrano, Philippine Air Lines President Andres Soriano, PAL Executive Vice-President Daniel Me. Gomez, PAL, Executive Rafael Ygao, and Minister Juan Arreglado.

The President was informed that formal negotiations had been underway with the United States Government without success from 1950 to 1957, during which time four missions were sent to the U. S.

The President expressed his desire to have this negotiation concluded before the expiration of the deadline four months from tomorrow.

"In a conference between the President, the Secretary of Foreign Affairs, and the management of the Philippine Air Lines, it has been agreed, in view of the termination of the Air Transport Agreement between the United States and the Philippines March 3 that a new air transport agreement be negotiated between the Philippines and the United States governments with the view to concluding the negotiations in four months from the date of termination.

“During the interregnum of four months, the American airlines may apply for temporary permit to continue their operations, to the Civil Aeronautics Board (CAB). The line operating under special franchise will continue their operation for the duration of and within the terms of franchise.

“The negotiations for the revision of the U.S.-P.I. Air Transport agreement had been going on from 1950 to the end of 1957, without concrete success having been achieved. During this period four missions had been sent to the United States for the negotiations. After such a long and unfruitful negotiations, it was believed necessary that the new agreement if at all concluded, should be achieved in four months time.

“It was of course assumed that after the termination tomorrow (March 3) of this agreement, the other international air services will continue in operation to maintain on even keel air services between the Philippines and the rest of the world.”

From the Cabinet meeting the President proceeded to Tutuban railroad station and left for Damortis at exactly 1 o'clock, arriving at the destination at 5:30 p.m. From Damortis the President motored to Baguio, arriving there a little before 7 o'clock in the evening.

The President was accompanied by the First Lady, Rep. Ramon Mitra of Mt. Province, Social Welfare Administrator Amparo Villamor, Mr. and Mrs. Fernando Campos, Press Secretary Jose C. Nable, and newsmen covering Malacañang.

At the city gate the President was welcomed by a big delegation of officials headed by Gov. Bado Dangwa and City Mayor Luis Lardizabal. The President is scheduled to address the Filipino businessmen at the Pines Hotel at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning.

THE Cabinet this noon approved a proposed administrative measure revising the new civil service law to nip nepotism completely and place department secretaries in a stronger position to curb irregularities in their respective offices.

President Garcia told newsmen the new civil service bill would expedite administrative investigations and prevent insubordination by lower officers.

In a brief news interview, the Chief Executive:

1. Announced the extension of the Philippine-United States air transportation agreement by four months from tomorrow which is the date of expiration of the present bilateral pact;
2. Said he would order the servicing and improvement of facilities in the Manila International Airport to accommodate jet planes; and
3. Announced relief measures for fire victims in Tondo. President Garcia met the Cabinet in Manila shortly before boarding the train for Baguio. During the meeting, the President and Cabinet members approved a plan drafted by a committee headed by Justice Secretary Alejo Mabanag revising the civil service law Congress passed last year but the effectivity of which was suspended, as rules and regulations for its enforcement could not be drafted.

Under the proposed revision department secretaries would be authorized to decide administrative cases while bureau directors and division chiefs would hear cases of men under them.

Decisions of Cabinet members, however, are appealable to the Civil Service Commission which will be composed of commissioner and two deputy commissioners.

A conflict over the decision of the Commission and department secretaries will be decided by the President.

Another provision in the proposed measure is the banning of the appointment of a member of the family of an employee in the same office. This would curb nepotism in the public service.

Members of the Mabanag body are Education Secretary Jose Romero and Budget Commissioner Faustino Sychangco.

President Garcia said the Philippine Air Lines has started negotiations for the purchase of new planes, including two or three Fokker Friendship aircrafts.

He also said the government started the purchase of land for the use of the extended MIA to accommodate jet landings.

President Garcia said the Philippine Government will give mail service exclusively to PAL for foreign countries touched by the local airline.

March 3.—PRESIDENT Garcia this morning assured well-meaning friends abroad of fair and hospitable treatment but at the same time warned those who try to undermine the major economic policies of the country of sure and swift justice.

Speaking before some 500 Filipino businessmen at their 6th annual contention at the Pines Hotel, Baguio, the President told foreign capitalists to attune themselves to the changing mental and moral attitudes of Filipinos because the imperatives of economic survival “have brought us to a point “where we can no longer tolerate alien domination of our economy.”

The President thanked the Chamber of Commerce of the Philippines and that of Baguio which are jointly sponsoring the convention for spearheading the “Filipino First movement, which, he said, is bound to succeed because it has found general acceptance here and abroad, the detractors and critics of the Administration notwithstanding.

In his much-applauded speech, the President cited facts and figures as well as reports of the International Monetary Fund Commission and the U. S. Department of Commerce as very encouraging signs that the resurgent Filipino spirit of nationalism cannot but succeed.

After his speech the President was presented with a camagong shirt by J. and R. Shirt Manufacturing Co., producers of the typical Filipino national wear.

Also present at the convention were Commerce Secretary Manuel Lim; Rep. Rabon V. Mitra of Mt. Province; NAMARCO General Manager and CCP president Marcelo S. Balatbat; CCP Chairman Jose Y. Orosa, president; Cecilio D. Cid, president, Baguio Chamber of Commerce; Baguio City Mayor Luis Lardizabal; convention officials Primitivo Lovina, Domingo C. Abadilla, Ramon V. del Rosario, Ben R. Medrano, Juan J. Carlos, H. R. Reyes; and prominent businessmen from all over the country.

Early this morning the President and the First Lady heard mass at the Guest House. After hearing mass the President went over the final draft of his speech. He ate his breakfast at past 10:00 o'clock.

At 10:30 the President, accompanied by officials of the convention, motored to the Pines Hotel to deliver the main address. He returned to the Guest House a little past noon.

IN THE EVENING the President received Pangasinan Gov. Conrado Estrella and Mayors Hilarion Romero of Ozamiz City, Cesar Dunsalagun of Plaridel, Liberato Bacayo of Aluran, Patricio Atay of Calamba, and Jose Ochape of Clarin, Misamis Occidental.

Gov. Estrella came to ask for fund releases for irrigation projects, and discussed problems concerning his province, while the Misamis Occidental Mayors requested the conversion of military reservation proclaimed by the President for the city hall of Ozamis City into a warehouse and asked for funds for the improvement of athletic facilities in preparation for the Mindanao meet in 1961.

March 4.—PRESIDENT Garcia today predicted the early realization of the vast industrialization program of the country with the completion of the Binga Hydro-electric project in northern Luzon.

The President after an early conference with Rep. Ramon V. Mitra of Mt. Province and Juan J. Carlos, president and general manager of the Philippine Engineering Syndicate, which directed the Binga plant, decided to make an on-the-spot inspection of the project early tomorrow morning.

The President decided to see for himself the extent of deforestation areas because of reports he had been receiving, especially from the PCAPE and the Armed Forces, on the slackening of the water power running the Ambuklao and other hydro-electric projects owing to widespread deforestation.

The President expressed great concern over this report because of the harmful effects on the budding industrialization program and rural electrification. He also expressed fear that the people may be faced with floods and draughts in the near future should this practice continue.

The President said he is determined to push through his rural electrification program to cover every barrio in order to promote cottage industry to afford every family a decent income.

The Binga Hydro-electric project was the first project of such magnitude to be started and completed by one administration, thanks to the capability and ingenuity of Filipino engineers composing the Philippine Engineering Syndicate.

The Binga plan, according to Juan J. Carlos, has already generated roughly 50,000 kw of power since December last year and is expected to generate another 50,000 kw this month.

The President told Congressmen Mitra and Carlos that an intensive drive against timber smugglers and illegal logger is being waged by four departments of the government—the Departments of National Defense, Finance, and Agriculture, and the PCAPE.

The President had breakfast with Carlos at the Guest House. During the breakfast he congratulated Silvino Caparas of the Daily Mirror, who was celebrating his birthday.

The President gave Caparas a birthday cake and the First Lady gave him a bouquet of roses.

After breakfast the President and the First Lady, accompanied by Rep. Mitra and Carlos, strolled around the Mansion House and took a brief rest at the picnic grove.

The President is expected to get a briefing from Justice Buenaventura Ocampo and Max Maceren, chairman and vice-chairman of the PCAPE, respectively.

This morning the President ordered the suspension of Commissioner Miguel T. Valera of the Agricultural Tenancy Commission pending investigation of the charges leveled against him by Rep. Marcelino R. Veloso.

Eleven separate charges against Valera were received and investigated by the PCAPE last month,

According to Rosalino Abaya, assistant PCAPE chief investigator, of the 11 charges against Valera, four so far could be substantiated by strong evidence while the others are being looked into by the committee.

This evening the President expressed satisfaction over the progress of his anti-graft drive which is being launched by the Presidential Committee on Administration Performance Efficiency (PCAPE).

The President told Justice Ocampo, chairman of the PCAPE, and other officials, that the increasing concern being shown by the public in the prosecution of crooks and graters is sufficient reason to press the drive with greater vigor.

After his three-hour briefing which was conducted by Justice Ocampo, Vice-Chairman Max A. Maceren, Majors Teodulo Natividad, and Federico Salcedo, PCAPE investigation and intelligence chiefs, respectively, the President gave the PCAPE the power to summon witnesses take testimonies, and administer oaths in order to be more effective.

The President expressed hope that the Congress will approve an increased appropriation for the Office in accordance with his recommendations.

March 5.—PRESIDENT Garcia today hailed the completion of the Binga Hydro-electric project as a definite manifestation of the high degree of skill and proficiency that Filipino planners and engineers have attained. He predicted that the 100,000 kilowatts power project would be a tremendous boost to Philippine industries generated by the housing project that is equal Situated at the foot of the giant spillway which drains

The Binga project, which was completed three months ahead of schedule by the Philippine Engineering Syndicate, cost the government ₱105 million.

David Lilienthal, former chairman of the Tennessee Valley Authority and the Atomic Energy Commission, had told the President a month ago ‘ that the Binga project was a feat the Philippines or any other country could well be proud of. The President said he was happy to see that Binga proved Dr. Lilienthal’s opinion right.

Binga boasts of a Marian village, a modern housing project that is equal if not better than any housing project in the country

It is complete with chapel, dispensary, intermediate school, supermarket, playgrounds, bakery, and laborers quarters hills, the village is a safe distance from the giant spillway which drains excess water to prevent floods.

President Garcia left the Guest House, accompanied by Public Works Secretary Florencio Moreno, Secretary Serafin Salvador, Rep. Ramon Mitra, INPC General Manager and Chairman Filemon Zablan, and Juan J. Carlos, president of PES, at a little past 9 a.m. After traveling 30 kilometers over dusty and bumpy road which kept winding at every turn, the party arrived at Binga at exactly 10 a.m.

The President proceeded to St. Ignatius chapel and then to the administration building for briefing by Secretary Moreno and Zablan. Then the t party proceeded on an observation tour to the spillway.

After a light snack and press interview, the party left Binga at 11:30 a.m. The party was delayed by loose gravel being laid by workmen repairing the road, and the President had to take another car. He arrived at the Mansion House past 1 p.m.

The President was scheduled to receive Secretary Salvador and confer with top economists.

President Garcia today said he will continue to draw from the ranks of highly qualified men to fill key positions in government corporations to insure the success of his program of economic development.

During a two-hour bull session with business leaders of the country, the President also announced that the stringent credit restrictions instituted two years ago during critical times may now be relaxed to some extent to encourage production.

The President recalled that he had been severely criticized for not having a permanent economic program.

He said he and his top economic and fiscal advisers had adopted a dynamic and flexible economic policy so that changing conditions can be met with a pliable policy because what may be true today may not be the situation two or three years later.

During his conference with business leaders, at which his top economic advisers were also present, the President conducted a frank and realistic discussion of the overall economic situation with both government and private sectors.

Among the topics discussed were:

- (1) More vigorous prosecution of “Filipino First” policy;
- (2) Relaxation of credit restrictions to induce production;
- (3) Philippine participation in the Marikina dam project;
- (4) Adverse effects of capital and credit lack on retail trading and industry;
- (5) Protective tariff to assist local industries;
- (6) Abolition of capital gains tax;
- (7) Private participation in low cost housing program; and
- (8) Encouragement of endowments by making them deductible from taxes.

The President assured business leaders who had expressed doubts as to the sincerity of certain sectors of government in the Filipino First policy, that his administration will pursue this policy with the same vigor and determination with which it was started.

The business leaders informed the President that industries are handicapped by tight credit restrictions and lack of capital and had only two alternatives: close shop or continue incurring huge losses.

Secretaries Dominador Aytona and Manuel Lim and NEC Chairman Jose C. Locsin agreed with the President that a thorough examination of the problem should be made to determine just how far relaxation of credit restrictions can be made in order to help boost production.

When informed that the Cebu Portland Cement could not dispose of its more than one million bags surplus because of low prices, the President announced that the Marikina dam project which will commence soon is a very good opportunity for Philippine cement factories to participate because it would eat up six million bags of cement.

The President said Filipino businessmen have two advantages: They don’t have to worry about shipping bottoms or freight expenses, and they don’t have to pay taxes.

The President indicated that foreign bidders will have to pay the usual duties should they win have contract for cement.

The President also reiterated his recommendation to abolish the tax on capital gains on condition that the money be plowed back to industry.

The President had announced his desire to abolish this tax in his state-of-the-nation message to Congress because the reluctance of financiers with big capital assets to transfer their assets is holding up the rapid pace of industrialization.

During the conference the Filipino businessmen pledged their support to his economic policies and offered to sacrifice time and effort if the President wanted to avail of their services.

At the end of the conference, the President told businessmen that all their suggestions will be carefully studied by his top advisers and proper action will be taken as soon as he is convinced that changes can be made for the better.

Present at the conference were Secretaries Aytona and Lim, OEC Administrator Juan O. Chioco, NAMARCO General Manager Marcelo Balatbat, ACCFA Administrator Vicente Araneta, NEC Chairman Locsin, PNB President Eduardo Romualdez, DBP Chairman Gregorio S. Licaros, and Monetary Board Member Gaudencio Antonino.

The private sector was represented by Primitivo Lovina, Dr. Salvador Araneta, Jose Y. Grosa, Aurelio Montinola, Alfredo Montelibano, Ramon V. del Rosario, H. R. Reyes, Teofilo Reyes, Jose Desiderio, and others.

The President arrived at Damortis at ten o'clock this morning and arrived in Manila at 2 o'clock this afternoon.

While in Baguio the President was loaned a billiard table by Mayor Jose Lardizabal in order to dissuade him from going back to chess. The President alternated from billiards to chess and occasionally received callers. Among those who conferred with him were Vicente G. Sinco, president of the University of the Philippines, Acting Secretary of General Services Serafin Salvador, and Rep. Ramon P. Mitra.

President Garcia today directed Malacañang Protocol Officer Minister Manuel Zamora to place a wreath at the tomb of the late Senator Jose P. Laurel on Wednesday on the occasion of the latter's birth anniversary.

The late Senator was interred in his home town, Tanauan, Batangas.

President Garcia today assured the members of the Bus Operators Association of the Philippines that the Administration will extend all possible assistance in solving the problems of TPU operators in the country.

The presidential assurance was given at a conference with a delegation from the Bus Operators Association of the Philippines (BOAP) led by its president, Geminiano F. Yabut at Malacañang

The President came out in favor of giving direct to TPU operators the bulk of the $2 million allocation of the NAMARCO earmarked for the importation of spare parts for automobiles and trucks, and the rest going to legitimate spare parts dealers.

In this connection the President authorized BOAP members to confer with NAMARCO officials in order to present their needs.

The President urged BOAP members to patronize as much as possible locally produced spare parts. He was gratified when informed that TPU operators are big buyers of Philippine made spare parts. The Chief Executive also suggested that TPU operators study the possibility of venturing into the manufacture of other spare parts.

Yabut informed President Garcia that the NAMARCO importation, tax-free, of spare parts will help solve part of the problems facing TPU operators. At the same time, he urged the repair of roads throughout the country, particularly Mindanao, Cagayan Valley, and in several parts of Southern Luzon and Visayas, as well as the construction of new roads by the following BOAP officers Justo de Dios, vice-president; Rafael Gonzales, treasurer; Pedro E. Meneses secretary; Bienvenido P. Buan, Antonio V. Heras, J. Kaplin, Exequiel Santos, Jose M. Silva, Eugenio D. Trinidad and Dr. Jose Villarama, directors and Manuel Vijungco, executive secretary.

This evening the President again showed his determination to make 1960 a clean-up year as he reiterated his order for the intensification of the drive against graft and corruption.

Speaking before regional directors of the Bureau of Internal Revenue and later before the league of government prosecutors, the President declared that his policy to make 1960 the clean-up year should be the guide post in the implementation of the present anti-graft and corruption drive.

The BIR regional directors had just concluded a two-week conference with Finance Secretary Dominador Aytona and BIR Collector Melecio R. Domingo. They called on the President to pay their respects before returning to their respective posts.

During their call on the President the BIR officials reported that collections during the first semester of the current fiscal year amounted to ₱242,373,593.84, exceeding the budget estimate by over ₱12,237,000. Domingo reported that this represented only 43 per cent of the total estimate for the whole fiscal year, and added it would be safe to assume that collections will exceed the budgetary estimate for the whole year by over ₱25 million.

Among the collections which showed big increase were those on business and occupation taxes, income tax, documentary stamp tax, and forest charges.

Domingo also reported to the President that the tax census taken in 1957 showed some 112,000 potential tax payers who had failed to file income tax returns.

The BIR collector reported that a comparison between the 340,000 income tax filers and the 1,700,000 tax census filers showed that 112,000 had incomes exceeding the minimum set for income tax filers and were therefore liable to pay penalties for non-filing.

Accompanied by Executive Secretary Natalio P. Castillo, Commissioner Domingo, Deputy Commissioner M. Vega, and Coordinator M. Santiago, the group included G. Domagas, R. Bacareza, B. Carpio, J. Araneta, and G. Angeles.

Later in the evening the President impressed upon some 150 members of the League of Government Prosecutors the necessity of pursuing relentlessly the drive to weed out undesirables from the government,

The President said the enthusiastic support the campaign is receiving from the public is very encouraging, and the least that the government prosecutors can do is to justify the trust and confidence that the public has reposed in them by giving them active support.

The league is currently holding its five-day convention in Manila which was called precisely to coordinate plans for the total implementation of the anti-graft drive.

The conventionists who called on the President were headed by Justice Secretary Alejo Mabanag, Undersecretary Enrique Fernandez, Chief Prosecutor Baldomero Villamor, and Manila City Fiscal Hermogenes Concepcion; City Fiscals Alfredo Noel of Davao, Gregorio de la Pena of Basilan, and Pascual S. Atilano of Zamboanga; Provincial Fiscals Nicanor Nicolas of Rizal, Gabriel Valerio of Laguna, Nestor Alumpia of Antique, Union Kayanan of Pampanga, Fernando Cruz of Bulacan, Rufino Marasigan of La Union, Himerio Garcia of Bukidnon, Anatalio Amarga of Negros Oriental, and Juan Salazar of Catanduanes.

The prosecutors pledged their utmost in the prosecution of erring government officials and undesirables in line with the President's desire to make 1960 a clean-up year.

The President also received ACCFA Administrator Vicente Araneta, who discussed problems pertaining to the operations of the government agency.

March 8.—THE President this morning ordered the Armed Forces to take part in a more active participation in the Administration's nationwide campaign against graft and corruption and to go after all forms of venalities in the government "no matter who gets hurt."

The President gave the order in the course of his conference with Defense Secretary Alejo Santos, whom he had summoned to Malacañang early this morning to render a report on the activities of the Customs-Revenue-Constabulary (CRC) team and the Criminal Investigation Service (CIS) of the Constabulary.

The President also ordered the immediate disbandment of the CRC for having failed to discharge its assigned task of apprehending and prosecuting "economic saboteurs." He said that the illegal practices of some of its members constituted a distinct deservice to the country.

He instructed Secretary Santos to coordinate with Finance Secretary Dominador Aytona for the implementation of the disbandment order. Prosecution of cases already filed in court on the basis of evidence gathered by the CRC will be continued by government prosecutors.

The conference which started at about 8 a.m. lasted more than 30 minutes during which Santos also reported on the over-all peace and order situation in the country.

President Garcia today directed the Department of Agriculture and Natural Resources to dispatch certified palay seeds to Zamboanga del Sur, in view of the rat infestation which has destroyed the rice crop in the province.

The directive was given at a conference with Rep. Canuto Enerio, who informed the President that the farmers in his province who are finding difficulties in purchasing seeds, would like to have the certified seeds in time for the coming planting season.

The President also received Rep. Tobias Fornier, chairman of the House committee on appropriations, who informed him that his committee will submit the budget for the consideration of the House before the Holy Week.

The Antique solon assured the President that all money bills of the Administration will also be submitted by that time.

Rep. Vicente Peralta of Sorsogon conveyed to the President the gratitude of the people of his province for the aid they had received after the typhoons.

As a result of the typhoons, Rep. Peralta informed the President that the farmers in his province are having a hard time. Abaca farmers will have to wait for a year before they can produce while the coconut planters will have a longer wait before they can sell copra.

The Sorsogon solon was accompanied by Mayor Celso Tabuena of Sorsogon, Sorsogon, who requested aid in view of the lack of funds in the municipal treasury, reportedly caused by heavy expenses incurred by the former LP mayor whom he defeated last elections.

Other companions of Rep. Peralta were Mayor Melchor Aquino, Vice-Mayor Briccio Madrid, and councilors Sabino Merciales and Ricardo Rabulan, all of Donso.

Earlier, after his conference with Defense Secretary Santos, the President had breakfast at the Malacañang porch with Reps. Jose Aldeguer, Pedro Trono, Pascual Espinosa, Domitilo Abordo, and Ricardo Ladrado, all of Iloilo, who briefed him on the political situation in their province.

Sen, Decoroso Rosales and Labor Secretary Angel Castaño also conferred with President Garcia.

This evening the President conferred with Sen. Lorenzo Sumulong, chairman of the Senate committee on foreign relations, on proposed amendments to the reparations law to avoid possible anomalies in the acquisition of reparations goods.

During the conference held at Malacañang, the President underscored the importance of administering reparations goods properly because of their value to the nation's economy.

Among the points considered during the conference were the reported over-pricing of reparations items, speculations on the part of procurers who have no actual need of reparations goods except to sell them to third parties, and direct dealing by the suppliers in Japan and end-users in the Philippines.

Three proposed measures were considered during the discussion; namely, (1) the bill sponsored by Sen. Sumulong, (2) a similar bill sponsored by Sen. Arturo Tolentino, and (3) a proposed bill submitted by Minister Caesar Lanuza.

March 9.—PRESIDENT Garcia early today thanked Pope John XXIII in the name of the Filipino people for the appointment of Archbishop Rufino Santos as cardinal of the Roman Catholic Church.

The presidential message was personally given to Cardinal Santos during a courtesy call of the latter in the President's Quezon City residence this morning.

President and Mrs. Garcia received the new Cardinal, who came with the Apostolic Nuncio, Msgr. Salvatore Siino; Col. Nicolas Ortega, chief of the chaplain service of the armed forces; and Minister Manuel Zamora, Malacañang protocol officer.

In a light vein President Garcia congratulated the Apostolic Nuncio for cooperating with the Filipino First policy. He explained that during the short incumbency of Msgr. Siino as Apostolic Nuncio to the Philippines, the first Filipino cardinal was elected.

Archbishop Santos expressed his gratitude to President and Mrs. Garcia for their congratulatory messages upon being elected cardinal. The messages had been sent from Baguio, where the President and the First Lady were at the time the news of his election was first announced by the Vatican.

Cardinal Santos informed President Garcia that he will leave for Rome on March 15 or 16 in order to arrive at the Vatican in time for the solemn consistory at the end of the month when he will formally receive the red cap, symbolic of his elevation.

Genaro Sarmiento, director of the National Development Company, and Jose R. Platon accompanied Philip W. Mason and E. R. Sanderson, both of the Lloyd's Register of Shipping, who paid a courtesy call on President Garcia at his Quezon City residence.

Mason is returning to London today after an 11-day visit here to find ways by which his firm could be of assistance in the proposed expansion of the Philippine merchant marine.

Among the last callers of the President this noon was former President Sergio Osmeña, Sr.

THIS afternoon the President directed Justice Buenaventura Ocampo, PCAPE chairman, to forward to the city fiscal's office the findings of his committee on 10 new cases of "dollar salting" so that appropriate criminal action could be instituted against the parties involved.

According to Major Teodulo Natividad, PCAPE chief investigator, Macaurog de Guia, the same person named in the more than 60 cases filed earlier, appears to be the alleged author of overvaluation of importation, bringing to total of 72 separate cases of dollar salting so far filed against him. The total amount involved is some $4 million.

The 10 new cases against De Guia, unearthed during the examination and appraisal of abandoned cargoes of hospital supplies conducted by the CAPE in the Bureau of Customs, appears to have been imported by one Virginia Quiambao. This is shown by the 10 letters of credit granted to her by the Central Bank with an aggregate amount of $300,867.

Available records of a local banking institution indicated that the 10 letters of credit opened for the account of Quiambao were all negotiated as evidenced by the liquidated bank drafts and other shipping documents and. It was also shown in the marine manifest filed in the marine division of the Bureau of Customs that the cargo of hospital supplies consigned to Quiambao were discharged at the port of Manila on various dates, the latest being on December, 1958.

After notices were served to the consignee, the crates were opened and appraised in the presence of representatives from the Bureau of Customs, Central Bank, BIR, PFFC, and the PCAPE.

The appraisal report submitted by Customs Examiner P. Cuartero shows at the six crates consigned to Virginia Quiambao with an invoice value of ₱183,114.23 were appraised at $996.09 involving an overvaluation of ₱182,118.14.

Inspector Rosalino Abaya, who investigated the case for the PCAPE, revealed that the testimony given by Quiambao allegedly pointed to Macaurog de Guia as the person who could have schemed the anomalous transaction in connivance with foreign suppliers. The supplies, according to the records, have been sold to, and paid for, by him.

In the testimony of Quiambao before the PCAPE, she also declared that De Guia supplied her with all the firm's offers and represented himself as the indenter of the foreign drug supplies.

Other firms whose cases have already been filed with the fiscal's office and to which De Guia is held answerable are local drug firms owned by Francisco Herrera, Urbana Sebastian and the Ace Drug House, Inc., Gonzales Trading, and the Remedios Little Market.

IN the evening the President cancelled his regular Cabinet meeting but received the officials of the Reparations Commission.

The reparation commissioners have been reported at loggerheads; so the President took up with them the possibility of harmonizing the trio in order that they could step up their efficiency.

Present at the conference with the President were Commissioners Rodolfo Maslog, Juan Alberto, and Gregorio Abad.

From his Quezon City residence, the President motored to Malacañang, where he was fetched by Sen. Pedro Sabido, former Speaker Jose B. Laurel Jr., and former Justice Secretary Pedro Tuason, to the Laurel dinner at the Manila Hotel. With the President was the First Lady.

March 10.—PRESIDENT Garcia received provincial and municipal officials who called at Malacañang this morning to consult him on pressing problems and seek assistance for the construction of pet projects in their respective localities.

Gov. Pedro Dizon of Bataan called to express his gratitude for a presidential directive placing the police force of Dinalupihan town under Constabulary control. Gov. Dizon reported that the campaign against kaingin and illegal cutting of timber in his province was being waged successfully with the help of PC troops.

Gov. Eulogio de Guzman of La Union informed the President that there were still some Virginia tobacco farmers in his province who had not been paid for purchases made by the Agricultural Financing Administration.

The President said he would look into the matter, as the ₱20 million he had previously directed the Central Bank to release was supposed to have covered those purchases.

Vice-Governor Benigno Aquino, Jr., of Tarlac accompanied mayors from his province who took their oaths before the President as officers of the province's league of mayors.

Manila Councilor Gonzalo Santos Rivera called to request that a lot and building now occupied by a branch of the Social Welfare Administration in Singalong be converted into an annex of the Epifanio de los Santos Elementary School in order to accommodate more first grade pupils expected to seek admission next school year.

General Manager Jose Panganiban of the National Development Company reported on the progress of construction of the 12 ocean-going vessels ordered from Japan to form a nucleus of the Philippine merchant marine. He reported that the first two deliveries would be made in July 1961, a third delivery in August of the same year, and monthly deliveries thereafter.

While receiving his callers the President showed slight annoyance when a provincial official approached him to recommend the employment of a political protegee as janitor in the Central Bank. The President informed the provincial executive that a President does not sign recommendations for job placements as janitor.

The Chief Executive received his visitors at the study room of Malacañang Palace from 9 a.m. to 1:30 p.m.

Other callers included Govs. Felipe Garduque of Cagayan and Atila Balgos of Capiz, and Mayors Alfredo Salulilla of Hagonoy, Antonio Pace of Sulop, Santiago Silverio of Cati-il, and Severino Lacson of Monkayo, all of Davao province.

This afternoon the President expressed gratification over the successful start of the World Refugee Year fund drive in the Philippines during the kick-off ceremony at the Malacañang Social Hall.

At the close of the launching ceremony, donations turned in to Mrs. Garcia, honorary chairman, totaled ₱89,591, roughly 11 per cent short of the ₱100,000 goal set for the fund drive.

In his address before a crowd of 500 in the Malacañang social hall, the President appealed to the masses, businessmen, employees, professionals, and government officials to support the drive so that the Philippines can live up to its pledge as a free nation and help those less fortunate than our people.

The President started the hall rolling with a personal contribution of ₱500 which he handed over to Central Bank Governor Miguel Cuaderno, general campaign chairman of the drive.

In the evening President Garcia received American steel industrialists who are negotiating for the establishment of the Philippine integrated steel mills in Iligan, Lanao.

Those who paid their respects were Fred C. Foy, chairman and president of Koppers, Inc.; A. B. McCloskey, vice-president of Westinghouse International; C. V. Schelke, director-general of General Electric; and Jacques W. Lourie, director of Baldwin Lima-Hamilton Corporation.

Earlier the President received Richard W. Renter, executive director of CARE, New York; and Dr. Allan Kline, CARE director in the Philippines.

The CARE officials were accompanied to Malacañang by Ramon Binamira, Presidential Assistant on Community Development.

The President thanked the CARE officials for the contributions the Philippines has been receiving in the form of transistor radios and milk and other food items from the CARE.

March 11.—PRESIDENT Garcia expressed determination to push through his program of harnessing the potential power resources of the country and the Administration's campaign against illegal cutting of timber, in two separate conferences held at Malacañang today.

At a conference with executives of the International Bank for Reconstruction and Development, better known as the World Bank, the President made known his desire to go ahead with the Angat hydroelectric project in Bulacan, for which purpose the Philippine Government will apply for a loan of $25 million to cover the dollar requirements of the project.

The proposed Angat hydroelectric project is expected to produce 146,000 kilowatts at a total cost of ₱129 million.

The determination of the President to proceed with the construction of the Angat project was spurred by power market studies made by the National Power Corporation, which show that even with the completion of the 100,000 kilowatt Binga plant, there will still be a critical shortage of electric power by 1962. The shortage will be relieved in a small way by the Marikina multipurpose project, which will have a capacity of only 68,000 kilowatts.

The President conveyed to the visiting World executives his appreciation to the institution for its help in the development program of the country.

Present at the conference were Jorge Mejia Palacio and Ian P. Cargill, executive director and loan officer, respectively, of the World Bank, Central Bank Governor Miguel Cuaderno, Finance Secretary Dominador Aytona, Public Works Secretary Florencio Moreno, Senator Gil J. Puyat, NPC General Manager Filemon Zablan, and NASSCO General Manager Bernardo Abrera.

At another conference, the President reiterated his determination to take drastic action against illegal timber cutting and to push through the reforestation program of his administration to preserve Philippine forests. He urged legitimate lumber concessionaires to help the government in the apprehension of illegal loggers.

Present at the conference were Jorge Mejia Palacio and Ian P. Cargill, president and general manager, respectively, of the Insular Lumber Company, and Reps. Vicente Gustilo, Inocencio Ferrer, and Agustin Gatuslao of Negros Occidental.

The President cancelled all appointments hi the afternoon. The President today directed Brig. Gen. Isagani Campo, chief of the Constabulary, to spare neither friends nor relatives in his investigation of the reported series of raids and extortions in which businessmen in Quezon province were allegedly victimized.

The President earlier had ordered the outright dismissal of a nephew who was reportedly involved in the raids. Dismissed was Elpidio Garcia, son of the President's eldest brother, Leoncio, and an assistant in the Palace confidential staff on field assignment.

The series of extortions had been denounced to Malacañang by Quezon Gov. Claro Robles, who also implicated one Macario Borile, an agent of the defense department and several PC officers and men, among them Lt. Col. David San Juan, PC provincial commander in the province.

Upon the request of Gov. Robles the President summoned Gen. Campo to Malacañang and had the case investigated.

The President gave explicit directions to Gen. Campo to go after the malefactors and to spare neither friends nor relatives who may have anything to do with the incident or any other incident.

As an offshoot of the findings of Gen. Campo, several PC officers and men headed by Col. San Juan had been ordered relieved and investigated. President Garcia today ordered the immediate transmission of the findings of the Presidential Committee on Administration Performance Efficiency for appropriate action by the Cebu Portland Cement Company on the case of CEPOC employees charged with having illegally enriched himself in office Rodolfo V. Ocampo, PCAPE investigator who handled the case, said that the employee is a purchasing agent at the Cebu branch of the government firm with a salary of ₱190 a month. He is charged with having suddenly acquired properties totaling ₱77,000.

The respondent had endeavored to explain his present assets as, due to the joint industry and frugality of himself and his wife. He also stated that he was able to acquire additional property and improve the ones he already had from his father-in-law who, he said, had helped him financially in some ventures.

The PCAPE investigator observed that most of the property of the respondent were acquired approximately at the time when he became a purchasing agent of the company and are manifestly out of proportion to the joint income of the husband and wife.

March 12.—PRESIDENT Garcia today directed Board Chairman and General Manager Vicente Araneta of the Agricultural Credit Financing Administration to investigate some provincial directors of the state firm for alleged non-payment of Virginia leaf tobacco purchased up to June last year.

The President issued the directive on receiving complaints from farmers that they have not received payment for Virginia tobacco purchased by the previous ACCFA administrator up to June 19, 1959.

About the middle of last year, the President directed the release of P5 million and specified that it should be used to pay for the Virginia tobacco purchases made by the previous ACCFA administration up to June 19, 1959.

However, some provincial directors of the state firm were able to intervene in the payment of later purchases in open violation of the presidential directive and caused the non-payment of purchases made before June 1959.

The amount was considered sufficient by the previous board to pay its obligations to the farmers up to the date fixed by the President.

Non-compliance of his directive drew the ire of President Garcia, as he had been previously assured that all purchases made up to June 19, 1959, had been paid.

The President, meanwhile, received in his Quezon City residence former Gov. Salvador Lluch and Rep. Laurentino Badilles of Lanao del Norte. The former Lanao executive expressed his gratitude to the President and Mrs. Garcia for the help extended him during his recent hospitalization.

The President did not receive any other caller during the day. He spent most of his time at his private study in his residence going over some papers he brought over from Malacañang.

President Garcia today focused the national effort on increased production as he created the Productivity Commission charged with coordinating the activities of all agencies in promoting increased production in all sectors of the economy.

Named to the commission as members were the chairman of the National Economic Council, the Secretary of agriculture and natural resources, the secretary of commerce and industry, a representative of labor to be chosen by the President, and the presidents of the Philippine Chambers of Commerce, of Industries, and of Agriculture and Natural Resources.

The NEC chairman was designated commission chairman for a year after which the commission shall elect its chairman, while the director of the Industrial Development Center was designated executive director.

In his executive order the President gave the Commission the power and duty to coordinate the activities of all agencies in the promotion and application of the concept of increased productivity along all sectors of the economy, and to make recommendations maximizing such efforts.

The Commission was also authorized to act as liaison between local entities and the Asian Productivity Organization in matters of technical information and research on specific productivity projects.

The President today issued an administrative order considering Assistant Fiscal Carlos Goco of Rizal as resigned from his post for breach of trust and conduct unbecoming a public official.

The President's action was taken on the recommendation of the Department of Justice,

In issuing the administrative order the President expressed surprise over the fact that a public official sworn to protect the poor should be instrumental in their exploitation, as in the case of the tenants of Hacienda Tulay, in Malabon, Rizal.

Sometime in 1949 the tenants of Hacienda Tulay formed a committee to negotiate the purchase of the estate from the Archbishop of Manila in order to avoid paying high rentals,

Fiscal Goco, although not a tenant, was included in the committee owing to his knowledge of the law. Upon being named to the tenants' committee, Goco immediately required the payment of ₱20 per square meter for expenses and required each prospective buyer to deposit 30 per cent of the value of the lot as earnest money.

Subsequently, although participating actively in the negotiations, respondent hired the services of three brokers and another attorney and succeeded in effecting the sale of the estate not to the tenants but to his wife, Leonila Siochi, for a total sum of ₱149,000, of which ₱19,000 represented back rentals.

Later on, respondent organized a real estate partnership under the name of A. M. Raymundo & Co., and conveyed the estate from his wife to the partnership for ₱1.00 in a simulated sale.

As soon as the property was conveyed to the partnership, the latter began indiscriminate sale of the lots to both tenants and outsiders at very exorbitant prices, giving bona fide tenants only five days within which to signify their intention to purchase their lots.

Thereupon the tenants filed civil actions in court against respondent and his wife as well as the partnership.

In his defense respondent claimed that he had ceased to have anything to do with the transaction, that he did not profit from the sale, and that he could not be dealt with administratively for acts not connected with the discharged of his official duties.

The President, however, found respondent to have violated Executive Order No. 103, s. 1913, and Rule XIII, section 5, of the Civil Service Rules by engaging in outside business and professional activities without permission from his superiors.

The President said that what made his actuations condemnable were the consequences which arose therefrom because by his actuations he had caused hundreds of people to be exploited by Unscrupulous persons, forcing them to seek redress.

President's Week in Review: March 13-19, 1960

March 13.—PRESIDENT Garcia today gave Director Vicente dela Cruz the Parks and Wildlife Commission 72 hours within which to explain why no administrative charges should be filed against him.

The President's action was prompted by a complaint filed before the PCAPE by a certain Pascual Perez, a land owner from Camarines Norte, accusing the Director of demanding from him ₱100,000 in consideration for the former's withdrawal of his objection to the exercise of Perez' right of ownership over 2,500 hectares of land in barrio Tuaca, municipality of Basud, Camarines Norte.

According to Matias Ranillo, special PCAPE investigator, Perez presented evidence showing that he bought the parcel of land from the successors in-interest of Don Paulino Badiao, the latter as owner by virtue of a Spanish title (Titulo Information Possessoria) granted him on March 11, 1895.

Investigation further disclosed that on February 13, 1934, Presidential Proclamation No. 637 was issued and later amended by another proclamation, dated December 23, 1940, declaring 1,650 of the 2,500 hectares to form a part of the Bicol National Park. Said proclamation however contains a proviso respecting already existing rights prior to the promulgation of the proclamation.

On the strength of this provision respecting existing private interest in the land, Perez on May 7, 1958, sought the registration of his title to the property with the Bureau of Forestry, which application was subsequently approved and a certificate of Private Woodland registration was issued to him.

At this juncture the office of the Parks and Wildlife Commission protested to this registration, and brought the matter to the attention of the Secretary of Justice, who in, October 1959 rendered an opinion upholding the validity of the issuance of the certificate.

Director de la Cruz, not satisfied with the opinion rendered by the Secretary of Justice, filed a complaint with the Court of First Instance of Camarines Norte to prohibit Perez from exercising his right of ownership over the land, which complaint was later dismissed for lack of merit.

Despite the court decision upholding the right of Perez over the land in question, De la Cruz made representations with the Secretary of Agriculture and Natural Resources to suspend the effect of the certificate of Private Woodland Registration. This suspension was granted and remains in force up to the present.

Major Teodulo Natividad, PCAPE chief investigator, said that Director de la Cruz will be summoned sometime this week to appear before the PCAPE to explain his side to the complaint.

The President signed today the nomination of the assistant director of the Bureau of Census and Statistics and 17 other minor officials for confirmation by the Commission on Appointments.

After breakfast the President: went to his study room and worked on pending state papers until lunch time. Late in the afternoon he resumed going over pending state papers.

March 14.—PRESIDENT Garcia this morning urged strict enforcement of Republic Act 1379, providing for forfeiture to the state of any property found to have been unlawfully acquired by any public official or employee in office.

During his morning conference with Leonardo R. Lucena and NBI Assistant Director Natividad de Castro, chairman and member, respectively, of the Anti-Graft Committee, the President reiterated his determination to push through his campaign against graft and corruption and to rid the government of undesirable.

The Anti-Graft Committee had been created by the President last February 22 to investigate, gather evidence, and initiate prosecution of officials and employees who have acquired property or other forms of wealth in public office.

The other member of the Committee, Lt. Col. Daniel M. Iway, was not present during the conference.

Earlier the President received Paul Reeves and Gen. Alfonso Arellano (ret.). Reeves paid his respects to the President after his arrival recently from abroad, while Gen. Arellano discussed matters pertaining to the integrated steel mill project with the President.

The President affirmed today the death sentence imposed by the courts on a “death row” convict, and commuted to life imprisonment the death penalty imposed on two others.

The Chief Executive decided not to disturb the decision of the courts against condemned prisoner Domingo Salazar upon the recommendation of the Board of Pardons and Parole.

Salazar had been found guilty by the Palawan court of first instance of multiple murder, frustrated murder, and attempted murder. He was accused of having murdered a total of 16 persons, including some children and three women in the family way.

He was sentenced by the lower court to a total of 13 death penalties, one life imprisonment, and a prison term of from four years and 10 months to 24 years.

The President commuted to life imprisonment the death sentence imposed by the Leyte court of first instance on Antonio Cruz and Baldomero Rubillos, who had been found guilty of robbery and homicide.

Salazar, Cruz, and Rubillos had been scheduled to die last February 15 but were granted a 30-day reprieve which expires tomorrow. President Garcia today directed Justice Buenaventura Ocampo, chairman of the Presidential Committee on Administration Performance Efficiency, to look in to charges aired by Sen. Genaro Magsaysay against Zambales Gov. Manuel Barreto.

The President also referred to the PCAPE similar charges leveled by Sen. Magsaysay against Vice-Mayor Vicente Novales of Quezon City and the Mayors of Candaba, Pampanga, and Laur, Nueva Ecija.

In his directive to Justice Ocampo, the President told the PCAPE chairman to submit his findings and recommendations for the purpose of determining whether there are grounds for placing the erring officials on preventive suspension pending formal investigation.

Sen. Magsaysay in his privileged speech before the Senate had charged Gov. Barreto with utilizing the name of the provincial government of Zambales in purchasing heavy equipment from the U. S. Navy at Subic and later on selling the equipment at huge profit to himself.

Sen. Magsaysay later on requested the PCAPE to look into the case and promised to appear before Justice Ocampo tomorrow morning to present evidence.

Meantime Max Maceren and Maj. Teodulo Natividad, vice-chairman and chief investigation of the PCAPE respectively invited Gov. Barreto, Quezon City Vice-Mayor Novales, and the mayors of Candaba and Laur, to present their sides.

In referring the charges to the PCAPE, the President stressed that nobody, will be spared in the prosecution of the anti-graft campaign.

THIS evening President Garcia expressed gratification that claims for more benefits to Filipino veterans have received the full backing of the American Legion and certain congressional circles in the United States.

High ranking officers of the Philippine Department of the American Legion informed President Garcia that three proposed legislations have been submitted to American Congressman Olin Teague, chairman of the House Veterans Affairs Committee of the United States.

The proposed legislations if approved by the American Congress would make available about $75 million to Filipino veterans and their dependents, according to Alberto R. de Joya, department commander, and Robert Phillips, national executive committeeman.

As a result of the enactment of several laws concerning benefits for Filipino veterans, there emerged two categories of veterans. U. S. veterans consist of Filipino veterans who have served in various elements of the regular U. S. Armed Forces, and Commonwealth Army veterans are those who served with elements of the Philippine Armed Forces which were federalized by order of the President of the United States on July 26, 1941. De Joya claimed that the equalization of the rates of payment for compensation for service-connected disability for Commonwealth Army veterans and dependents will remove a long-time irritant and would cost annually more than $29 million.

The extension of the benefits of the War Orphans Assistance Act of 1956 to dependents of veterans of the Commonwealth Army would cost $32 million over a 9-year period, De Joya said.

The Filipino First policy of the Administration gained added adherents when members of the Philippine Association of Clothing Manufacturers unanimously approved a manifesto supporting this policy.

The manifesto was presented this evening to President Garcia in Malacañang by officers of the association.

The President later directed Finance Secretary Dominador Aytona to look into the problems of the local garment manufacturers after he was told of their need for more dollars.

He was informed that Filipinos now have the technical knowledge to produce better-looking and higher quality garments than those imported including those from the United States.

The manifesto was signed by Roberto S. Rivera, as president and Miguel Lavente, as secretary. Other association officials who accompanied them to Malacañang were Angel Syyp, Mrs. Gliceria Tantoco, Alfredo Kairuz, Mrs. A. B. Pozon, Delfin Laudato, Jose Gutierrez, Enrique Custodio, Alberto Estacio, Juan Miguel V. del Rosario, Ray Calleja, Bert del Rosario and Mrs. Lydia Tensuan.

Other callers included Davao Vice-Gov. Manuel Sotto, Cipriano Malonzo and Ruperto Villamin.

Weisblatt arrived in Manila last March 6 for a two-week survey trip and was accompanied to the President by Rep. Vicente L. Peralta of Sorsogon.

Weisblatt informed the President that the improving Philippine financial and economic situation, as well as the current anti-graft campaign, were receiving favorable comments and reaction in the United States.

Rep. Peralta, who is a member of the legislative-executive tax commission, informed the President that the draft of a proposed bill had already been prepared to abolish the tax on capital gains, which has caused hesitancy on the part of the foreign capital to invest in the Philippines.

The President also received Sen. Domocao Alonto and Modesto Farolan, commissioner of the Philippine Tourist and Travel Bureau.

Sen. Alonto called on the President in connection with the proposed establishment of a Muslim cultural center in Manila, the purchase of rice seedlings for rat-infested Lanao del Sur, and the proposed creation of the municipality of Balabagan in that province.

Sen. Alonto was accompanied by Lanao del Sur Vice-Gov. Mamintal Tamano, Datu Pangadapan Benito, Datu Liwalug Manding, Datu Kali Bumbula, and Ambog Pangandaman, secretary to the governor.

Commissioner Farolan reported to the President that the establishment of a Muslim cultural center would revive interest in the old Muslim influence in Manila and provide another tourist attraction in the city.

Farolan also informed the President that the presidential proclamation to make 1961 a “Visit the Philippines—See the Orient Year” was unanimously approved at the Pan Asia Tourist Association (PATA) conference in New Guinea.

Earlier this morning the President had breakfast with Sen. Decoroso Rosales and Reps. Eladio Balite, Valeriano Yancha, and Felipe Abrigo of Samar. They discussed pressing problems of the province which had been ravaged, by recent typhoons.

Other callers were Reps. Jose Laurel IV and Apolinario Apacible of Batangas, Manuel Enverga of Quezon, and Guillermo Sanchez of Agusan, who requested typhoon and fire relief as well as releases of public funds.

President Garcia today proclaimed Thursday, March 17, a special public holiday in Zambales and Cebu City in commemoration of the third anniversary of the death of the late President Magsaysay.

The proclamation was issued in response to the wishes of the people of the late President’s province of Zambales and the City of Cebu, where he met his untimely death. The President said he would like to give the people in those localities full opportunity to observe the anniversary with appropriate ceremonies.

President Garcia also ordered the posting of an honor guard from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. on that day and the placing of wreath at the mausoleum of the late President at the North Cemetery. The honor guard will be formed a unit of the Presidential Guard Battalion.

This evening the President directed Customs Commissioner Eleuterio Capapas to expedite studies being made on the practicability of re-converting Aparri, Cagayan, into a port of entry.

The presidential directives was given at a conference held in Malacañang with officials from Cagayan led by Sen. Eulogio Balao and Rep. Benjamin Ligot.

At the same time, President Garcia directed the district engineer of the province, Hilario Pulido, to rush the preparation of plans for river control of the Cagayan River in order to arrest erosion which has washed away several barrios near the mouth of the river.

Municipal officials of Aparri requested in this connection an aid of ₱300,000 in view of the immediate threat to several barrios along the western bank of the river.

March 16.—PRESIDENT Garcia this morning told Land Tenure Administrator Manuel Castañeda to give more emphasis on the social problems of tenants in the implementation of the government land-for-the-landless policy.

The President, in a conference with Castañeda and LTA Commissioner Julian V. Vera at his residence on Bohol Avenue, Quezon City, expressed concern for the well-being of some 9,000 poor families who will be adversely affected by the proposed widening of Dewey Boulevard extension and other roads in the Tondo foreshore land.

Castañeda informed the President that the land is already titled and in the process of subdivision by the Bureau of Lands for sale at ₱5 per square meter to tenants in accordance with Republic Act 1597.

Castañeda informed the President that the LTA is planning to buy and” resell to tenants:

- (1) The Pujalte lumber property in Taytay, Palawan;
- (2) An hacienda in Catbalogan, Samar, where 500 families are living; and
- (3) Another hacienda in Tanauan, Batangas.

The President later conferred with Customs Commissioner Eleuterio Capapas on the plan to make Aparri, Cagayan, a port of entry.

The President expressed the conviction that Aparri, being a natural outlet for the rich Cagayan valley, would contribute to the economic development and well-being of the people, especially those living in the Cagayan Valley.

The President told Capapas to study the matter further for future consideration.

The President, earlier, had a long interview with Jacques Nevard, visiting New York Times correspondent, who was accompanied by Press Secretary Jose C. Nable to his Bohol Avenue residence.

President Garcia today sought the assistance of President Eisenhower for the increase of the Philippine sugar quota in any amount that the latter may “deem just and fair.”

In a cablegram to the American Chief Executive President Garcia pointed out that present production of sugar in the Philippines could very well absorb an increase of 300,000 tons over that of the present quota.

The Philippines’ sugar quota as provided for in the Laurel-Langley agreement and incorporated in the U.S. Sugar Act provides for 980,000 short tons raw value.

Speaking in behalf of the Filipino people, particularly those engaged in the sugar industry, President Garcia emphasized that the “generous action on this request will give a tremendous boost to our economy which needs further stabilization.” The President also assured Mr. Eisenhower of the Philippines “lasting gratitude.”

The President today dispatched a message of congratulations on behalf of the Filipino people to Dr. Syngman Rhee for his recent reelection as President of the Republic of South Korea.

March 18.—PRESIDENT Garcia this morning received reports on the favorable reaction among American business circles in Washington to the improving economic conditions obtaining in the Philippines.

The information was gathered by Gilberto Teodoro, International Monetary Fund economist, who gave the Chief Executive a fill-in on the Washington attitude.

The President was gratified over the information received. He ascribed the unprecedented economic growth of the country mainly on several stabilizing measures adopted earlier which he said helped considerably his Administration's economic program. He expressed hope that the favorable economic stride the Philippines is now achieving will continue in its growth.

The Chief Executive after conferring with the IMF economist, received members of the California-Nevada state Lions delegation headed by Maurice Perstein, director of the Lions International, and Mrs. Perstein, who were accompanied to Malacañang by Eugenio Eusebio of the local Lions Club. The group presented to the President a glass base as a gift of the California-Nevada Lions Club to him and Mrs. Garcia.

Later the President Administered the oaths of office of Zosimo R. Falcon as board chairman and president of the Manila Gas Corporation, Ernesto Habacon as Namarco corporate counsel, and Mrs. Amy Lim as member of the Board of Censors for Moving Pictures.

Earlier the Chief Executive had breakfast with 17 Labor leaders during which they discussed various labor problems. Among those present were Ignacio Lacsina, Felixberto Olalia, Geronimo Cuadra, Alejandro Lazaro, Mariano Espiritu, Bonifacio de Luna, Mrs. Felicidad Villanueva, Mrs. Ester Tolentino, Antonio Ancheta, Pedro Castro, and Andres Dinglasan.

Other Malacañang callers were Italian Ambassador Alberto de Clementi and Dr. Glenn R. Winters, executive director of the American Judicature Society, who was accompanied by Drs. Arturo A. Alfariz and Tomas V. Bernes of the Philippine Lawyers Association.

Commodore Jose Francisco also called on the President to inform him of the arrival and turnover ceremony on March 24, of the two new gunboats for the Philippine Navy, as part of the U.S. Military assistance to the Philippine Government.

Later Juan Orendain interviewed the President for a book he is writing.

IN THE AFTERNOON the President held his weekly press conference.

President Garcia has ordered Defense Secretary Alejo Santos and Brig. Gen. Isagani V. Campo, PC chief, to stop their feud to prevent endangering the national security through the exposure of intelligence plans.

The Chief Executive announced his action at his press conference this afternoon. He said he issued his order to Santos and Campo "four days ago."

The President said he had called Santos and Campo to a closed-door conference and rebuked them for feuding in public. He added he had not yet acted on Santos's recommendation to retire General Campo as of March 7, 1960. Santos claimed Campo's retirement was automatic after completing 30 years of service in the Army.

President Garcia said that Santos's recommendation was routinary as the chief of staff of the Armed Forces should inform the President as commander-in-chief, of the list of officers who are retireable.

At the press conference the President:

1. Said he would proceed with the bidding of the multi-million-peso Marikina project unless there are serious objections that may arise from the current investigations;
2. Expressed the hope that congressional bodies would be able to decide on the cases they are now investigating;
3. Disclosed he had already decided the case of Lt. Cmdr. Marcelino Calinawan, Jr., involving his rank in the Philippine Navy; and
4. Accused Vice-President Macapagal of sabotaging the Administration's anti-graft campaign for "selfish political motives."

The President surprised the newsmen when he announced he had already mediated in the Santos-Campo controversy before it could get out of hand.

The President also expressed the hope that his recent statements calling for congressional committees to terminate their investigations would have an effect on present probes being conducted by legislative bodies.

He observed that congressional investigators "are more conscientious in their investigations, and I hope they will finally render a report to Congress, itself on these "different investigations they are now conducting."

He deplored, however, that "up to this time, I am not aware of such report having been sent to Congress."

On his own anti-graft campaign, the President pointed out that Cabinet members have rendered verbal reports on their drive against corruption in the public service.

He mentioned Finance Secretary Dominador R. Aytona and Justice Buenaventura Ocampo of the; Presidential Committee on Administration Performance Efficiency as furnishing him with periodic reports of their anti-graft drives.

"My promise to our people to conduct an all-out war against graft and corruption stands. Since then, the campaign has resulted in the dismissal and suspension of some important men in the public service. My instruction," he added, "is to spare no one regardless of kinship or political color."

At the same time the President lashed at Vice-President Macapagal who was quoted as having dismissed the Administration's anti-graft campaign as "phony."

"Let the record stand and speak for itself," the President stated.

Commenting on his announcement the other day when he stressed an appeal to the U.S. President for an increased sugar quota for the Philippines, the President expressed optimism that President Eisenhower would help the Philippines.

"The U.S. President has on previous occasions promised to increase the Philippine quota at the proper time, and I have deep feeling that he will redeem this promise when the opportunity to do so presents itself," he added.

March 19.—THIS morning President and Mrs. Garcia tendered a breakfast in honor of Gabriel "Flash" Elorde, the newly crowned junior lightweight champion of the world. During the breakfast the Chief Executive expressed his own personal gratification and that of the Filipino people for putting the Philippines in focus in the boxing world. Flash Elorde recently dethroned the World junior lightweight champion, Harold Gomes.

Also present at the breakfast were Mr. and Mrs. Fernando Campos, Games and Amusement Board Commissioner Manuel Nieto, J. Amada Araneta, Jorge Araneta, Lope Sarreal, manager and father-in-law of Flash Elorde, Mrs. Elorde, Mrs. Gerardo Roxas, and Minister Manuel Zamora.

Today being Saint Joseph's feast day, the Chief Executive, Mrs. Garcia, Mr. and Mrs. Campos, and members of the household heard mass early this morning at the President's residence.

The President did not receive any caller the rest of the day. He spent most of his time at his study going over some documents he had brought over from Malacañang

President Garcia this morning set firm the bond issue ceiling at ₱100 million after a three-hour conference with his fiscal policy council in his Quezon City residence.

The new ceiling of ₱100 million discards a tentative ceiling of ₱75 million which had been agreed upon before the implementation of the margin law.

It also paved the way for the release of ₱1.8 million for the extension of the railroad line to Cabanatuan City; earmarks about ₱20 million for community projects in rural areas and the construction of school buildings; prepares for immediate implementation of the electrification project for Central Luzon provinces; and places ₱3.2 million in the hands of the NAWASA.

The President agreed to make permanent the ₱100 million as the bond ceiling after advisers had informed him of the much-improved fiscal and economic situation pervading in the country today.

They attributed this rosy situation as principally due to the implementation of the margin law and to the attainment of a favorable balance of trade.

NEC Chairman Jose C. Locsin, Central Bank Governor Miguel Cuaderno, and Rep. Jose J. Roy took turns in briefing the Chief Executive on the fiscal and economic situation.

The conferees recalled that the bond ceiling had been tentatively set at ₱75 million. They withheld the setting of a permanent bond ceiling until after they had keenly watched the results of the implementation of the margin law.

The permanent bond ceiling of ₱100 million is deemed safe and even conservative.

Speaker Daniel Z. Romualdez said his presence in the conference together with Rep. Roy, chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, and Rep. Vicente L. Peralta, chairman of the House Committee on Economic Affairs, was due to their desire to be familiar with the Administration's policy in setting a permanent bond ceiling.

He said that information on this matter was vital because the House of Representatives is poised to legislate on the 1960-61 public works bill.

Others present were Public Works Secretary Florencio Moreno, Executive Secretary Natano P. Castillo, Acting Budget Commissioner Faustino Sy-Changco, PNB President Eduardo Z. Romualdez, and DBP Chairman Gregorio S. Licaros.

President's Week in Review: March 20-26, 1960

March 20.—PRESIDENT Garcia this morning issued a proclamation declaring Saturday, April 9, as Bataan Day and proclaiming it as a special public holiday throughout the Philippines.

The President said in his proclamation that the fall of Bataan on April 9, 1942, had become a shining symbol of courage and heroism to all freedom-loving peoples of the world and had strengthened the everlasting bonds of friendship and cooperation between the Philippines and the United States.

He said that its commemoration was a fitting homage to the heroism of Filipino and American Forces who had fought side by side against overwhelming odds in the epic struggle for democracy and freedom.

The President called upon all public officials and citizens, and invited all American nationals in this country to observe the day with a one-minute silence at 4:30 p.m. of that day and to hold appropriate religious rites in honor of the heroic defenders of Bataan.

The President spent the morning at his Bohol Avenue residence in Quezon City going over some state papers he had brought over from Malacañang. He did not receive any caller.

President and Mrs. Garcia started the day by hearing mass at their residence.

Shortly before noon the President motored to the Ateneo de Manila in Quezon City to accept a long-standing invitation to have an informal luncheon with the Jesuit fathers. He was fetched from Bohol Avenue by Chairman Paulino D. Garcia of the National Science Development Board.

After lunch some of the priests challenged the President to a few games of chess. As a result the President spent the whole afternoon taking all comers, with some 10 fathers taking their turn and pitting their skill with the Chief Executive.

Later in the afternoon the President proceeded to the New Selecta Restaurant on Dewey Boulevard to join the First Lady, who was attending a birthday party being given in honor of Mrs. Cosme Garcia, his sister-in-law.

In the evening the President and the First Lady motored to San Juan, Rizal, to attend another birthday party at the residence of Rep. Benedicto Padilla.

The President spent the night at his Quezon City residence.

March 21.—THIS morning President Garcia expressed gratification over the mounting pledges of support he had been receiving from local officials in his all-out campaign to rid the government of graft and corruption which he had carried down to the provincial and municipal levels.

In his conference with provincial and municipal officials who called at Malacañang this morning, the President said he needed the support of everyone in order to succeed in his desire to make 1960 a really "cleanup year."

Mayor Marciano Linis of Jose Panganiban, Camarines Norte, presented the President with a resolution unanimously approved by his municipal council pledging full cooperation to the Administration's anti-graft drive.

Calling with Mayor Linis at Malacañang this morning were Councilors Filemon Panol, Antonio Ramos, Mario Ragos, Felino Schneider, Jr., Gaudioso Araña, Domingo Emano, Andres Regal, Simon Evia, ex-councilor Dionisio Marasigan, and Juanito Subia.

Later, President Garcia administered the oath of affiliation to the Nacionalista Party to former Maribojoc (Bohol) Mayor Felicisimo Echaves, one of the LP stalwarts in his home province.

Present were the First Lady, German Neri, Mayor Venancio Inting of Tagbilaran, Jacinto Robillaro, Mrs. Consuelo Aranas, and Zoilo Dejaresco

The President also received U.S. Secretary for the Navy William B Franke, who was accompanied to Malacañang by Ambassador John Hickerson; Rear Admiral J. M. Carson, commander of the U.S. naval forces in the Philippines; and Capt. William P. Mack and Col., Edwin P. Wheeler, naval and marine aides, respectively, at the U.S. Embassy.

During his call Sec. Franke presented the President with a souvenir plaque. The President reciprocated by giving the visiting U.S. official a box of fine Philippine cigars.

The President received callers at his study from 9:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m.

President Garcia today laid aside for a while vital state matters in order to communicate with a small American school girl who wanted to know more about the President's thinking on important world affairs.

Writing to 10th grader Janet Moses of Warren high school, 5460, Arden street, Warren, Michigan, the Philippine President pointed out patiently his suggestions to preserve the world peace.

In answer to a letter from Janet, President Garcia listed three steps that would "help ease tensions and pave the way to peace";

- (1) Generate mutual general appreciation between peoples;
- (2) Encourage more frequent cultural exchanges between peoples; and
- (3) Strengthen the United Nations Organizations.

Wrote the Philippine President: "The three steps, Janet, do not constitute, shall we say, a sure-fire solution to the present world ills, but I imagine they will help ease tensions and pave the way to peace."

The President today directed Justice Buenaventura Ocampo, chairman of the Presidential Committee on Administration Performance Efficiency, to inquire formally into charges filed by the Iloilo Press Club against Iloilo Mayor Rodolfo Ganzon.

Mayor Ganzon was charged specifically with "illegally arresting and arbitrarily detaining" Naciancino Rico, a member of the Iloilo Press Club. The protest of the Iloilo newsmen was contained in a telegram to Press Secretary Jose C. Nable.

According to Arturo Samonte, president of the Iloilo Press Club, Mayor Ganzon deliberately refused to implement a court order by Judge Pantaleon Pelayo ordering the immediate release of newsman Rico. Ganzon was reported to have filed "trumped up charges" against Rico.

In denouncing the Iloilo mayor, Samonte emphasized that Ganzon's act "is contrary to President Garcia's program for officials to protect instead of abuse the citizens."

The President conferred this evening with Foreign Affairs Secretary Felixberto M. Serrano behind closed doors. It was indicated that Serrano briefed the Chief Executive on the latter's plans to go on a state visit to Taipei in May.

Gov. Jose Briones of Cebu also called on the President on plans of the Chief Executive to go to Cebu City to address the commencement exercises of the University of the Visayas and the University of San Carlos.

March 22.—PRESIDENT Garcia this morning assured coconut-producing provinces that priority consideration will be given to the release of adequate funds for the development of the coconut industry if the fiscal position of the government continues to improve next fiscal year.

In his conference with congressmen at Malacañang early this morning the President gave assurance that Republic Acts Nos. 1369 and 2282, which provide appropriations to assist the coconut industry, will be duly implemented as soon as the government is financially capable of doing so.

He said that the coconut industry is one of the nation's foremost dollar-producing industries and deserves priority attention by the government.

Republic Act 1369 authorizes the appropriation of ₱30 million out of the proceeds from the sale of bonds or from any loan for the purpose of financing the manufacture of coconut products and by-products and the component parts of coconut trees.

Republic Act 2282 provides for the appropriation of a similar sum to constitute a Coconut Financing Fund to be used as loans to coconut cooperatives for initial capital; for meeting long-term needs for the financing of replanting programs; for industrialization and standardization of coconut products, wastes, and by-products; and for the construction or acquisition of fixed assets, such as warehouses, driers, or moisture meters.

The President today took steps to guard against introduction and spread of destructive plant diseases and pests in this country by approving Philippine participation in a regional plant protection agreement.

In another directive the President authorized the National Power Corporation to float 30-year, four per cent NPC bonds in order to liquidate its indebtedness to the Central Bank and other government lending agencies in the total amount of ₱82 million.

In order to guard against plant diseases in this country, the President approved Philippine adherence to the Plant Protection Agreement for Southeast Asia and Pacific region which was enunciated by the International Plant Protection Convention of 1951.

The President pointed out that adherence by the Philippines to the PPASAP will not entail additional expenses by the Philippines but would bring concerted effort by signatories to stamp out destructive plant diseases wherever reported areas covered by the agreement.

In granting the NPC authority to float bonds the President merely authorized the NPC to liquidate its indebtedness of P82 million, which was part of advances made for the Marikina and Ambuklao hydroelectric projects.

The floating of bonds by the NPC will not entail additional outlay and will have no inflationary effects.

This afternoon President and Mrs. Garcia received the Lady of Fatima at Malacañang Palace as a guest for a day.

Upon arrival at Malacañang, the Queen Lady was crowned and installed by the President at the Malacañang chapel after which the Act of Consecration led by the President was recited by all those present.

The delegates were headed by Jose Mapa Gomez, president of the National Federation of Sugar Cane Planters, and Gerald Wilkinson, vice-president of the Philippine Sugar Association, who represented Manuel Elizalde, president.

Later in the evening the President received a delegation from Negros Occidental headed by Gov. Valeriano Gatuslao and Reps. Vicente Gustilo and Inocencio Ferrer.

The delegation requested the release of public works funds for construction of irrigation projects, public roads, and hospitals.

Other members of the delegation were Provincial Board Members Ben Gaston, Narciso Jocsori, and Mario Pena; and municipal mayors Ben Gomez, P. Yulo, D. Infante, and L. Paglomotan.

March 23.—THIS morning the President had breakfast with Sen. Rogelio de la Rosa with whom he discussed problems in the rural areas. The Pampanga solon said that the President was sympathetic to the cause of the rural masses.

After breakfast the President received the officers of the Far East Bank and Trust Company who invited him to the inauguration of the institution on April 3.

The bankers were Jose B. Fernandez, president; Aurelio Montinola, board chairman; Senen Gabaldon, board vice-chairman; and Dr. Jose Soriano, Fernando E. V. Sison, Mariano Cacho, Leonides Virata, Carlos Palanca, Daniel Vasquez, and Ramon V. del Rosario, directors.

Lord Selkirk is the United Kingdom Commissioner for Singapore and Commissioner-General for Southeast Asia, with permanent station in Singapore.

As Commissioner of Singapore, Lord Selkirk discharges the responsibilities of the United Kingdom government under the Constitution of Singapore for the external defense and relations of the island. As Commissioner-General for Southeast Asia, he is the senior UK authority in Southeast Asia and the UK Prime Minister's personal representative. He has the rank of ambassador, and represents the UK council in the SEATO.

The Earl of Selkirk is the younger brother of the Duke of Hamilton. On the formation of Prime Minister Harold MacMillan's government in 1957, he was appointed First Lord of the Admiralty, holding the post until the general election of 1959.

President Garcia this afternoon expressed satisfaction over the designation of Manuel Nunes da Silva as Portuguese minister to the Philippines during presentation ceremonies at the Malacañang ceremonial hall.

The President said the designation of a Portuguese chief of diplomatic mission here presaged the promotion of closer ties friendship between the Philippines and Portugal.

Da Silva takes over from Dr. Emilio Patricio, Portuguese ambassador to Japan and concurrently accredited envoy to the Philippines.

The President assured the new minister-designate of the continued cultural, historical, and religious ties binding the two countries and at the same time conveyed his best wishes and those of the Filipino people for the continued wellbeing and prosperity of the people of Portugal.

In his presentation address Da Silva told the President that his assignment here in the Philippines was a great honor and privilege and that he will do his utmost to justify the trust and confidence of his head of state and people in giving him such a distinguished assignment.

After the presentation ceremonies, the President and Minister Da Silva exchanged toasts to the lasting friendship of the two peoples over cups of native basi wine.

Rep. Pendatun informed the President that the Filipino First policy was at first misunderstood by some industrial sectors in the United States, but that later these sectors were convinced that the policy was not directed indiscriminately against American interests. He said that a good number of these American industrialists are coming over sometime next month to see for themselves how they can participate in a joint venture to help improve the economic situation in the Philippines.

PRESIDENT Garcia this afternoon directed Cabinet members to submit at the end of this month their quarterly report in their respective campaigns against graft and corruption in the public service.

The Chief Executive sternly warned that the campaign should be pursued without let up. "He also took occasion to reiterate his instructions that the total war against all forms of graft should spare neither kinsmen nor party considerations.

He reminded the Cabinet men that the campaign was a promise and at the same time an assurance for good government to the people, mentioned specifically in his state-of-the-nation speech before the joint session of Congress last January.

In bringing up this matter at the start of the weekly Cabinet meeting, President Garcia emphasized that he desired to have an overall picture of the effects of this campaign.

He observed that 1960 started off auspiciously with the dismissal from the public service of important key men who were found guilty of malfeasance or misfeasance, contrary to what the opposition has claimed that only minor government employees have been dismissed from the service.

President Garcia and his Cabinet this evening approved separate off of two firms to barter a total of 8,000 metric tons of surplus Philippine rice stored at the National Rice and Corn Corporation.

The firms are the EPC Trading and the Davao Merchandising Corporation which the Cabinet allowed to barter 4,000 metric tons of rice each. They will buy the cereal from NARIC.

The government rice-corn agency, it was explained, stands to gain ₱80,000 by selling the rice to the two firms.

In exchange for their rice export, the Cabinet allowed the two firms to import goods, 40 per cent of which are essentials, 20 per cent semi essentials and 40 per cent non-essentials.

The President directed the NARIC to work out the barter agreement with the two firms, and instructed the agency to look into the financial capability of the traders to go through the deal.

Two other matters taken up by the Cabinet were:

1. The PHHC proposal to sell its 201 hectare property in three Rizal towns to contractors Emilio Caruncho, Jr., and Bayani Chua Guan (both Filipinos) to pay off its contractual debts to the two; and
2. The proposal of the Philippine Sugar Institute to sell its sugar refinery to private investors.

The two PHHC contractors had offered to buy the land at ₱0.41 a square meter or at ₱826,728.51. But acting Secretary Serafin Salvador of general services told the Cabinet that the value of real estate around the PHHC property in Rizal has risen from ₱3 to ₱14 a square meter.

In view of Salvador's information, the Cabinet deferred action and the President directed Juan O. Chioco, economic coordinator, to make inquiries.

The PHHC bought the property for ₱500,000 in 1957.

Laborers of the two contractors have complained to Malacañang of unpaid wages because of the failure of the PHHC to pay its indebtedness in tract fees to Caruncho and Guan.

PHILSUGIN has offered to sell its refinery which, it said, is able to operate for only two months ever since 1951 when it was bought from the NDC because of lack of funds.

The firm, a government research center, said it was operating the refinery at a ₱3 million loss which is the same amount it still owes the National Development Company.

The Cabinet put off action on the PHILSUGIN proposal, pending study by a committee named by the President to work out an arrangement for the payment of Philsugin's indebtedness to the NDC.

March 24.—PRESIDENT Garcia this morning continued receiving pledges of support to his all-out campaign against graft and corruption in the government.

Mayor Ramon Duremdez of Dumangas, Iloilo, said that he was 100 per cent for the Filipino First policy. He said that in his town there is not a single alien merchant "since time immemorial." Duremdez was accompanied in his Malacañang visit by Rep. Ricardo Y. Ladrado and Mayor Augusto Araneta of Barotac Nuevo, Iloilo.

Also received by the President were former Gov. Rafael Lazatin of Pampanga, Commissioner Juan Alberto of the Reparations Commission, Rep. Canuto Enerio of Zamboanga del Sur, and Sydney Berens, visiting American businessman accompanied by Francisco Calinawan, assistant general manager of the Manila Railroad Company.

The President today launched a massive population dispersal program, as he directed the Budget Commission to release available funds to support the resettlement projects of the NARRA aimed at relieving congestion of population in cities and suburbs.

The President at the same time set aside four large tracts of land in Lanao provinces to accommodate the steady flow of settlers, particularly from Luzon and the Visayan provinces.

In a proclamation released by Malacañang today the President placed at the disposal of the NARRA some 14,000 hectares of land in the towns of Kolambugan, Munay, Pantao-Ragat, Tubod, and Baroy for development and settlement.

The lands will soon be made available to fresh settlers by the NARRA, with the exception of timberlands which will remain under the control and administration of the Bureau of Forestry, and certain portions of the area where private rights now exist.

The President also instructed Acting Budget Commissioner Faustino Sy-Changco to look for funds that could be made available for the purchase of equipment, carabaos, and other basic needs of the settlers.

The four parcels of land were declared reserved for settlement purposes upon the recommendation of the secretary of agriculture and natural resources.

President Garcia this afternoon reiterated the Philippines' determination to stand by the United States in the cause of peace, freedom, and democracy.

The President expressed this determination during the turn-over of two modern gunboats to the Philippines by the United States Government under the provisions of the Mutual Defense and Assistance Pact, during colorful ceremonies held at the Philippine Navy headquarters.

In accepting the vessels from American Ambassador John D. Hickerson the President said the Philippines is ready once more to stand by her ally, the United States, as she did on Corrigidor and Bataan, to demonstrate to the world that the Philippines is ready to ward off aggression to maintain her freedom.

The President thanked the United States Government for once more demonstrating her abiding loyalty to the cause of freedom and democracy, and said the significance of the mission of these vessels can never be overestimated.

The President accepted the gunboats "on behalf of the Filipino people and the Philippine Government."

In turning over the vessels to the Philippine Government, Ambassador Hickerson told the President that the ships are the only two of their kind in the world because they are built for ideal operation in tropical waters with specifications furnished by the U.S. Navy and the Philippine Navy.

Hickerson said the transfer of the boats symbolized the lasting friendship and loyalty of the United States to the Philippines, and added they are but part of a continuing program of assistance under the mutual defense pact between the two countries.

The two gunboats, christened RPS Agusan (G-61) and RPS Catandunes (G-62), will be placed on active police work after a shake-down cruise.

Each ship has an overall length of 100 feet, a displacement of 108 tons and maximum speed of 18 knots. They were Built at a cost of $400 000 by the U.S. Tacoma Boat Building Company, with specifications furnished by the Philippine and the U.S. Navies.

The President arrived at the Philippine Navy headquarters at 5 p.m and was greeted by a 21-gun salute. After reviewing a Philippine Navy unit, the President accompanied by Defense Secretary Alejo Santos, Commodore Jose Francisco, and Lt. Gen. Manuel F. Cabal, AFP chief of staff boarded and inspected the RPS Agusan.

The RPS Agusan was placed under the command of Lt. Simeon Alejandro (PN) while the RPS Catanduanes was put under Lt. Pablo Sarre.

After the ceremonies, merienda was served at the Philippine Navy clubhouse.

Present at the ceremonies were Executive Secretary Natalio P. Castillo PC Chief Brig. Gen. Isagani V. Campo, Maj. Gen. William Nutter (JUSMAG)' Rear Admiral Arthur Spring (commander of the U.S. Navy base at Subic), and some two hundred officers and men of the Philippine and the U.S. Navies.

From the Navy headquarters, the President motored back to Malacañang.

This afternoon the President directed the filing of a criminal charge against the owner and operator of Chinese-owned sawmill in Bataan for defying an order suspending the operation of the mill.

The order suspending the operation had been issued by the Director of Forestry yesterday upon recommendation of Justice Ocampo, PCAPE chairman, whose committee investigated and found that the logs being sawed in the mill were not “verified” in violation of forestry regulations.

The President’s directive sent to Maj. Wilfredo Encarnacion, Bataan provincial commander, was prompted by a report from former Gov. Emilio Naval informing the President that despite the order of suspension the sawmill persisted in its operation.

According to Major Teodulo Natividad, PCAPE chief investigator, there are about 30,000 board meters of timber involved in this case whose origin is questionable. The logs found in the lumberyard do not show any sign that they had been scaled, marked, and counted by the district forestry office of Bataan.

Forestry regulations require that every timber cut must undergo such process to determine the forest and reforestation charges of the loggers. Since the timber in question did not show any sign of compliance with the regulation, it was presumed that they had been cut from either the naval reservation or the Limay forest reserve.

The order of suspension was in connection with the campaign against rampant illegal cutting launched earlier in Bataan which resulted in the cancellation of several licenses to cut timber and the revocation of concession.

March 25.—THIS morning the President had a breakfast conference with * the members of the Philippine panel to the Philippine-Japan commercial treaty negotiations. Speaker Daniel Z. Romualdez, Executive Secretary Natalio P. Castillo, Foreign Affairs Secretary Felixberto Serrano, and the technical staff of the panel were also present.

The group extensively discussed the Japanese stand which had been presented in previous trade talks with the Japanese panel, as well as the stand to be taken by its Filipino counterpart in future meetings. No further details were released about this morning’s conference which lasted from 8:30 to 10:30 a.m.

Present at the breakfast conference were Speaker Romualdez, Secretary Serrano, Secretary Castillo, former Speaker Jose B. Laurel, Jr., chairman of the Philippine panel, Sens. Lorenzo Sumulong and Rogelio de la Rosa, Reps. Ramon Mitra and Antonio Raquiza, Commerce Undersecretary Perfecto Laguio, Deputy CB Governor Andres Castillo, and Minister Simeon Roxas.

Also present were Monico R. Vicente, executive secretary, and Jose Laurel, III, technical assistant.

President Garcia today expressed the gratitude of the Filipino people to the West German Government and to the family of the late Carl Ullmer, a friend of Dr. Jose Rizal, upon receiving in the name of the Philippine Government the Rizaliana collection of Ullmer from his great grandchildren, Hans and Fritz Hack.

The turn-over ceremony was held this morning at the Malacañang study room in the presence of German Ambassador Friedrich, Freiherr von Furstenberg, Dr. Leoncio Lopez-Rizal, Education Secretary Jose Romero, Luis Montilla of the Jose Rizal Centennial Commission, Mrs. Nita Berthelsen, Dr. Jose A. de Jesus, and Miss Popsy Mendez and Carlo Mendez.

Before the ceremony the Hack brothers presented to Mrs. Garcia a bouquet of carnations picked from Heidelberg, recalling that Dr. Rizal was so inspired by the flowers of the town that he wrote a poem entitled “A las flores de Heidelberg.”

Hans Hack said that the collection was considered by his family as a treasure because it was a symbol of “a very cordial friendship that had existed at a time between our great grandfather and your hero, Jose Rizal.”

Then he proceeded to described the summer vacation that Rizal spent in “the Ullmer residence. “We are well acquainted with it owing to the fact that our grandfather, Frederick Ullmer, a lawyer, told us much about your hero in our childhood. At the time of Rizal’s stay in Germany our grandfather was 15 years old and a cordial friendship existed between them.”

When Rizal went to Germany, according to Hans Hack, he had hardly a knowledge of German but “within a very short time he acquired a very good knowledge of the German language.”

At that time Rizal was still writing the Noli Me Tangere, and for relaxation, he took long walks in the Odenwald as well as in the valley of the Vecker River, Hans continued.

“Everybody was full of regret when Rizal moved away from Heidelberg. That what remained was a link of wonderful friendship that continued until his tragic death. Evidence of it are the letters we hand over now and the many reports received from our grandfather. Needless to mention, our grief for Rizal’s tragic death was indescribably deep. We would still add that the collection referring to Rizal’s stay at Heidelberg and Wilhelmsfeld, inherited by us from our grandfather has always been kept with great love and care and we have been always very, very proud of possessing it, remembering thereby our dear friend, Dr. Rizal, your famous hero.” Hans Hack said.

The President turned over the collection to Secretary Romero for safekeeping in the National Museum.

Other callers included Henry Scudder, president of the International Standard Electric Corporation, accompanied by C. C. Chapman, manager of the local office of the corporation, and Johnny Orendain; Mayor Moises Escueta of Tiaong, Quezon; and Dr. Louis W. Gehring, executive director of the World Neighbors, Incorporated, accompanied by Rep. Antonio Raquiza of Ilocos Norte.

The President also granted a petition of the association of Elementary School Principals of Manila that City School Superintendent Abdon Javier be retained in the service for one year, Javier is due for retirement on July 31, 1960.

The proclamation also exempts from duty during this feast day the Muslim officials and employees of the government, both national and local, who are performing their functions outside these provinces and cities, and declares that the day shall be considered as a special public holiday for them in their respective stations.

In issuing the proclamation the President explained that he would like to give the Muslim population of this country all the opportunity to observe the day fittingly in accordance with their religious custom.

President Garcia today expressed deep concern but warned against undue alarm over the report of the Committee on Anti-Filipino Activities on communist activities in the country.

In cautioning the people against undue alarm, the President emphasized that he is kept well posted by the different intelligence agencies in the government on the extent of communist activities in the Philippines.

The President said he had instructed Col. Nicanor Jimenez, director of the National Intelligence Coordinating Agency, to study the report of the CAFA and report as soon as possible on the result of his study.

President Garcia also took the occasion to commend the officials and members of the CAFA for their untiring efforts in helping safeguard the national interest and security.

Press Secretary Jose C. Nable pointed out that the President had not received the CAFA report contrary to what had been reported by newspapers earlier in the day.

Nable also quoted Col. Jimenez as stating that the CAFA report as published is an old case which was published many months ago, and that this is the first time that the CAFA has rendered its official report to Speaker Romualdez.

In the evening the President received the members of the U.S. Trade Mission who paid a courtesy call on the Chief Executive.

Members of the mission were Eugene M. Braderman, Walter G. Johansen, Robert F. Kendall, Dwight E. Neill, and Fred Wright. They were accompanied by U. S. Ambassador John D. Hickerson.

March 26.—PRESIDENT Garcia today removed from office the register of deeds of Isabela and the justice of the peace of Jolo, Sulu, for acts of malfeasance in office.

Both erring officials were removed from office in line with the President's current drive to rid the government of undesirables. The removal of the two officials was recommended by the secretary of justice.

Removed from office as register of deeds of Isabela was Vicente M. Capellan, who was found to have committed grave violation of duty when he delivered a certificate of title to another person without the knowledge or consent of the registered owner.

In the other case the President removed Ricardo T. Garcia as justice of the peace of Jolo on the ground of grave dishonesty and unfitness for office.

The President said 'that Capellan's action in delivering to a third person a certificate of title without the consent of the owner constituted dishonesty or serious negligence and would materially undermine the people's confidence in the honesty and efficiency of the government.

Moreover, respondent's failure to give his side after being repeatedly asked by the Land Registration Commission to do so was to be a waiver and an implied admission of the charges against him.

Respondent's failure or refusal to answer official communications on the matter were also deemed acts of wanton neglect, deliberate disregard, and open defiance of office regulations.

Capellan was charged with having delivered to a third party the owner's copy of Certificate of Title No. 54, covering Lot. No. 4030 of Filemon de la Cruz, on July 20, 1958.

De la Cruz charged that when he came to respondent's office to register a deed of sale of the lot in favor of Tomas Aggasig, he found the owner's copy of the title in the hands of one Atty. Alcid, who offered to sell it to him for ₱300.

In the case of Ricardo T. Garcia, justice of the peace of Jolo, the President found respondent JP guilty of grave dishonesty and unfit for office in receiving and keeping for himself ₱200 which was allegedly intended for the offended party.

In investigating the case the district judge said that the ₱200 was received by Garcia in consideration of the dismissal of the case and was in fact in the nature of a bribe, because the dismissal of the case was deemed arbitrary and unjustified.

Moreover, the respondent JP had allowed his wife to receive the sum of ₱180 from the accused in consideration of the filing of a bail bond for them.

The administrative case against the respondent JP was filed by Hadjali Jumaide, who charged the JP with bribery on two counts in connection with the conduct of Criminal Case No. 431 by the respondent in Patikul, Sulu.

The President today issued an executive order fixing the office hours in all government offices during the summer season from 7:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. from April 1 until June 15.

The five-hour office hours from Monday to Friday will apply to all departments, bureaus, offices, agencies, and instrumentalities of the government, including the provincial, city, and municipal governments, and all corporations owned or controlled by the government. The executive order, will not apply, however, to the government offices in the city of Baguio.

It is also specified in the executive order that the head of any department, bureau, or office is not obliged to reduce the office hours as provided, but is given the discretion subject to the requirements of the service and provided that the usual volume of work is not diminished by the reduction of office hours.

President's Week in Review: March 27 - April 2, 1960

March 27.—PRESIDENT Garcia today directed Acting Agriculture Secretary Jose M. Trinidad to look into the report that a majority of the applicants for the 30,000-hectare government land located in Tabuk, Mt. Province, are fictitious.

The presidential directive was prompted by the report of a team of the Presidential Committee on Administration Performance Efficiency, composed of Capt. Gonzalo Misa and Benjamin Perez, who had been sent to Tabuk last week on a fact-finding mission, following the complaint filed by Gov. Bado Dangwa of Mt. Province that government land was being disposed of to fictitious persons or to parties who had no intention of developing them.

Preliminary findings submitted to Major Teodulo Natividad, PCAPE chief investigator, revealed that:

- (1) Records in the public land office of Tabuk showed that the entire area had already been allocated to private parties;
- (2) Although the public land was opened for cultivation by private persons upon approval of their applications since 1952, almost all the area of fertile agricultural land remained uncultivated up to the present.
- (3) The awardees of the government lands are unknown in the locality;
- (4) The area is very fertile and rice could be planted there twice a year; and
- (5) The applicants could not be reached in the addresses given by them in their applications.

Maj. Natividad observed that Commonwealth Act 141, as amended, relating to the disposition of public lands requires that the applicant should reside continuously in the municipality or municipal district where the land subject of the application is located, for at least one year within the period of five years immediately following the date of approval of the application and should cultivate at least one-fifth of the land applied for.

Despite this condition, Natividad said, it appears that the land had remained idle for the last eight years.

Justice Buenaventura Ocampo, PCAPE chairman, recommended to the Chief Executive the cancellation of all questionable applicants and the awarding of the land covered by them to more deserving applicants, with priority given to inhabitants of the municipality or districts who are willing to cultivate the area.

President Garcia heard mass early this morning at his residence on Bohol Avenue, Quezon City. After breakfast the Chief Executive began working on the speeches which he is scheduled to deliver in Cebu City early this week.

In the evening the President motored to Malacañang to fetch the First Lady before proceeding to the Manila Hotel, accompanied by Sen. Domocao Alonto, MINSUPALA president.

March 28.—PRESIDENT Garcia welcomes the establishment of the ₱3.5 million plant as another milestone in Philippine-American business partnership in a conference today with Hugh A. Davies, vice-president of International Harvester Export Company of Chicago.

The plant, which will employ American technical know-how and all-Filipino labor, will utilize 63.4 per cent local raw materials and only 36.6 per cent American component parts which cannot be procured locally.

Davies, who paid his respect to the President, said it is the policy of his company to procure locally tractor parts in order to encourage small producers. He also said it does not pay to put up costly machinery when the demand for such items is not big enough to warrant it.

Davies arrived in Manila recently in the course of an inspection of IH installations and subsidiaries in the Far East.

He was accompanied to Malacañang by Paul H. Wood, IH president, and former Press Secretary Antonio L. Arizabal.

Earlier this morning, before motoring to Malacañang to receive his scheduled callers, the President received Don Andres Soriano at his Bohol Avenue residence in Quezon City.

The President also received in Malacañang a 14-man delegation of the Manila Public School Teachers Association which requested, among others:

- (1) The extension of the term of Manila Superintendent of City Schools Abdon Javier, who is due for retirement June 30, 1960, so as not to disrupt the school year activities;
- (2) The allocation of a portion of the PHHC Parañaque property for public school teachers; and
- (3) The installation of NAWASA facilities at Teachers' Village behind the PHHC building in Quezon City.

The teachers' delegation was composed of Santos Pascual, president; Antonio Bernardo, incoming president; William Estrada, incoming vice-president; Esteban Carlos and Dr. Herminio Sorilla, elementary group; Hermogenes Quiazon, high school group; Clehenia San Juan, secretary; Augusto Alzona and Domingo Tan, principal and assistant principal, respectively, Manila High School; Misses Rosalina T. Reyes, Clarita Nolasco, and Angelina Abesamis, Mrs. Flora Hocson-Padilla, and others.

President Garcia and the first Cuban Ambassador to the Philippines Sergio Perez y Perez pledged this afternoon to exert efforts to maintain the cordial relations between the two countries, whose fight for liberty and democracy for more than 450 years are almost parallel.

The pledges were exchanged after the Cuban diplomat presented his credentials to the President at a simple but impressive ceremony held at the Malacañang ceremonial hall in the presence of Cabinet members.

The President traced the growth and development of both nations and expressed the wish that they would remain united, both loyal to the cause of liberty and democracy.

The Cuban Ambassador bared in his remarks, his determination to work for the same objective, taking into account that both countries have had practically the same historical background in political, economic, and cultural aspects.

Ambassador Perez received full military honors upon his arrival at Malacañang at 5:00 p.m. Then he was escorted by Col. Jorge Delarmente, senior aide-de-camp of the President, to the ceremonial hall to present his credentials to President Garcia.

Present at the ceremony were Executive Secretary Natalio P. Castillo, Commerce Secretary Manuel Lim, Education Secretary Jose Romero, Defense Secretary Alejo Santos, Chairman Jose C. Locsin of the National Economic Council, PCAPE Chairman Buenaventura Ocampo, Finance Secretary Dominador Aytona, Press Secretary Jose C. Nable, acting General Services Secretary Serafin Salvador, Public Works Undersecretary Marciano Bautista, and Foreign Affairs Undersecretary Fructuoso Cabahug.

The newest addition to the local diplomatic corps participated actively in the revolutions against Cuban dictators Machado and Batista and was imprisoned and exiled for political reasons.

The President also received Laurence Snyder, president of the University of Hawaii. While in Hawaii, on his way from the United States after a state visit, President Garcia received the Degree of Doctor of Humanities from the University of Hawaii. Snyder was accompanied by U.S. Ambassador John Hickerson.

Later, the President granted an interview to Dr. Klaus Mehnert, a German journalist.

President Garcia was informed today that in the first three months of 1960 there was a marked decrease in fire losses compared to the same period in 1959.

In a report to the President, Administrator Alfredo Eugenio of the National Civil Defense Administration said that a total amount of ₱6,951,200 was lost in fires all over the country from January to March, 1960, as compared to ₱13,952,800 lost over the same period in 1959.

Eugenio also reported that during the same period, only 15 lives were lost compared to 80 in 1957, 80 in 1958, and 72 in 1959. Eugenio submitted the report following the recent observation of the Fire Prevention Week.

Eugenio said that the decline in fire losses was due to the alertness and help of provincial, city, and municipal governments; the 7,000 public schools and 2,000 private schools which disseminated fire-prevention instructions; the 300 fire departments which were placed in a state of alertness; and the Press and the Radio which gave full cooperation to the fire-prevention campaign.

March 29.—THIS morning President Garcia expressed eagerness to have the integrated steel mill in Iligan rolling in order to keep pace with the rapid industrialization program.

In a conference with Jesus Cabarrus and Ricardo Ledesma, president and vice-president, respectively, of Acoje Mining Company, at Malacañang, the President said the industrialization program has gained momentum and the steel mill is badly needed to keep the wheels of industry rolling.

The President urged Filipino businessmen to get together and pool resources and know-how with the government in the management of the huge project.

The mining officials also discussed with the President an offer to purchase the Maria Cristina hydroelectric plant in Iligan to be converted into an integrated copper and zinc mill.

Cabarrus informed the President that only 32,000 out of the 50,000 kilowatt generated by Maria Cristina are utilized by the fertilizer plant, the rest of it going to waste. Under this setup, they told the President, the Maria Cristina twin-project cannot hope to produce fertilizer that can compete with imported products.

On the other hand, Cabarrus said, the proposed integrated copper and zinc mill will manufacture not only for local consumption but for export, Copper and zinc pipes and tubings and a line of other products like ferro-chrome (stainless steel) and dichromin (base for dyes), as well as fertilizers from the by-products.

The two Acoje officials presented the President with a beautiful dining service set for six, manufactured in Japan from Philippine chromium as most of them, have from the same region.

The 24-piece set described as 18.8 (longest rust-resistant) was manufactured by Nanyo Busan, Ltd., of Tokyo, Japan to commemorate the 100th shipment of chrome ore from Acoje Mining.

Earlier, the President had breakfast with congressmen from the First Military Area, during which he discussed with them problems such as public works fund releases, irrigation projects, and the peace and order situation.

The President announced that henceforth he will receive congressmen every Tuesday morning and by groups according to the four military areas.

The President made this innovation after receiving complaints from some congressmen who had failed repeatedly to talk with him because some of their colleagues were allegedly monopolizing the President's time.

The President also believed this innovation would enable him to have a broader discussion of national issues and problems, similar or common problems, especially if they come

Among those who had breakfast with the President were Speaker Protempore Constancio Castañeda of Tarlac, Reps. Emilio Cortez of Pampanga, Faustino Tobia of Ilocos Sur, Ramon P. Mitra of Mt. Prov. Manuel Agudo of Batanes, Cipriano Primicias Jr., of Pangasinan, Jose Nuguid of Bataan, Leonardo Perez of Nueva Vizcaya, Benjamin Ligot of Cagayan, Jose Roy of Tarlac, Luciano Millan of Pangasinan, Francisco Ortega of La Union, and Aguedo Agbayani of Pangasinan.

Later the President received a plaque of appreciation from the barrio councils of Nagcarlan and Lilio, Laguna, for the development of the Lagulo Spring waterworks in that province.

The delegation which was accompanied by Rep. Wenceslao R. Lagumbay was composed of barrio councilors and barrio lieutenants of barrios Calumpang, Silangan, Kabubuhayan, and Sta. Lucia of Nagcarlan and barrio Calumpang, Lilio.

The members of the delegation were Hugo Gate, Ambrosio Mercado, Generoso Manalo, Hilario Arjona, Eleuterio V. Suerte, Anselmo de la Cruz, Angel P. Orlada, Sergio Bungo, Ciriaco Matienzo, Saturnino Mitra, Beatriz Dawa, Deogracias Orlada, Emilio Uria, Nemesio Platero, and Mrs. Ambrosio Mercado.

The President also received Reps. William Chiongbian of Misamis Occidental, Ramon Bagatsing of Manila, Maximino Noel of Cebu, and Tobias Fornier of Antique, who discussed with him problems in their respective jurisdictions.

This afternoon the President ordered the PCAPE to file criminal charges against one Nazarip C. Sayson of Zamboanga del Norte for falsely representing himself as a "confidential assistant of the President.

Upon verification made by PCAPE with Fernando C. Santico, administrative assistant in the Office of the President, it was found that no such person was employed in Malacañang.

Major Teodulo Natividad, PCAPE chief investigator, revealed that Sayson offered to work for the approval of the petition of more than 100 homestead applicants of the municipality of Salog, Zamboanga del Norte.

Believing him to be a representative of the President, the applicants paid him the amount asked and gave him documents supporting their claim to the land.

March 30.—WAKING up early this morning, the President and the First Lady heard mass at the dining saloon of the yacht Lapu-Lapu. Novena for Our Lady of Perpetual Help immediately followed after the mass.

About 9:30 a.m. President and Mrs. Garcia had breakfast with newsmen covering his trip, with whom he exchanged impressions on a variety of subjects.

The Chief Executive then retired to his cabin where he was closeted the rest of the day with a stenographer working on his state papers speeches and other state papers.

The President spent the day today dictating two speeches he will deliver in commencement exercises of two universities in Cebu tomorrow, and working on state papers he took along in his current trip to the Visayan port city.

President Garcia received a wire from former President Osmeña, Sr., now in Baguio, who expressed regrets over his inability to be in Cebu during the President's visit, and offered the use of his car while the Chief Executive is in the city. The President thanked the former President for the offer, adding that he would place himself at the disposal of the local reception committee.

The President assured President Osmeña that he need not worry because of the well-known hospitality of the Cebuanos.

The presidential party pulled out of Pier 3 in Manila at 12:45 a.m. today. It was fine sailing most of the way, with the ship cruising slowly at half its performance speed on glassy cold waters.

The party is scheduled to dock at the Cebu wharf at 8 a.m. tomorrow.

PRESIDENT Garcia virtually cleared Public Works Secretary Florencio Moreno today of charges of having received "kickbacks" in connection with the Marikina dam project.

In an informal press conference aboard the yacht, the President discounted the possibility of the alleged anomaly since bidding for the $108 million multi-purpose dam had not yet been opened.

Questioning the logic of the claim that Moreno had received kickbacks, the President asked: "How can there be kickbacks when actual bidding on the project has not even started?"

The President also pointed out that money could not be offered since nobody knew who would win the bid and the government retained the right to reject any or all bids.

President Garcia indicated that Congress investigations initiated chiefly by the Liberals were attempts to delay construction of the dam.

The Senate blue-ribbon committee, headed by Nacionalista Sen. Roseller Lim, is currently probing the project following charges by Rep. Antonio Raquiza of Ilocos Norte that Moreno had received ₱8 million in kickbacks.

Although the President admitted that it was still too early to pass judgment on the Congress probes, he said that so far no concrete evidence of irregularity had been unearthed.

The President also doused cold water on a proposal that the Angat dam in Bulacan be constructed ahead of the Marikina project in Montalban, Rizal. He called such a proposal "illogical."

The Angat project, he said, was still on the phase of technical studies while the Marikina dam was already ready for bidding and has two and one half years planning and technical studies behind it.

The President had said in the past that unless something serious develops in the Congress investigations, the bidding would be held as scheduled. President Garcia said the government could not afford a delay in the construction of the dam. He said that if the bidding were put off, one year and a half would be lost.

The President said Manila and environs would continue to experience acute water shortage unless the Marikina project was built soon.

THE President today declared April 2 as a special public holiday in the provinces of Bulacan and Bataan to commemorate the birthday of Francisco Balagtas.

Balagtas is the Prince of Filipino Poets. He was born in Bulacan and died in Bataan.

In declaring Saturday, April 2, a special public holiday in the provinces of Bulacan and Bataan, the President said that he wishes to give full opportunity to the people of the two provinces to celebrate fittingly and properly the birthday of Balagtas.

A commemorating ceremony will be held this evening at the Malacañang Social Hall under the auspices of Ang Taniw. President Garcia will be the guest of honor.

March 31.—PRESIDENT Garcia was accorded a warm welcome this morning upon his arrival in Cebu at 8 a.m. on board the RPS Lapu-Lapu to fulfill speaking engagements.

A fluvial parade met the yacht at Bantolinao Point in Liloan. The welcomers were led by Cebu Gov. Jose Briones and Rep. Manuel Zosa, and Don Gil Garcia, overall chairman of the reception committee. Other welcomers included 42 Cebu Mayors, San Carlos University Rector Fr. Harold Rigney, University of Visayas President Vicente Gullas, and Ramon Durano.

From the RPS Lapu-Lapu, the President received full military honors. He proceeded to the City Cathedral for a Te Deum said by Archbishop Julio Rosales.

From the church President Garcia and his party proceeded to the University of Visayas, where the President was a guest speaker at the 36th commencement exercises held at the Jampacked Cullas Coliseum.

Among the candidates for graduation leading to Master of Arts in Education degree was Mrs. Augusta Dimataga, wife of Mayor Mariano Dimataga of Opon, brother of the First Lady.

After the exercises Mrs. Garcia went to Opon for lunch at the residence of Mayor Dimataga, while the President proceeded to the RPS Lapu-Lapu for lunch, after which he took a short nap.

The President today issued a proclamation extending the thirteenth annual fund campaign of the Philippine National Red Cross until April 30, 1960. The original fund campaign period was from February 14 to March 31 this year.

The President's action was prompted by the advent of the three big year-end typhoons that hit the country last year.

April 1.—PRESIDENT and Mrs. Garcia today sent their heartfelt condolences to the people of Malaya and the widow of the late Paramount Ruler Tungku Abdul Rahman, Raja Permaisuri Agong.

The President expressed a deep sense of personal loss over the death of Abdul Rahman because he had been looking forward to his projected visit to Malaya to strengthen the ties of kinship and friendship between the peoples of that country and the Philippines.

Meanwhile, Minister Abubakar was designated by Foreign Affairs Secretary Felixberto Serrano as President Garcia's special envoy to attend the funeral rites of the Malayan ruler.

President Garcia today spent most of his time in his cabin working on some state papers he had brought along and conferring with some officials who had joined him in Cebu for the return voyage to Manila.

Among the officials he conferred with were Public Works Secretary Florencio Moreno and Public Highways Commissioner Nicolas Cuenca, who reported on the progress of the government's highway program; Press Secretary Jose C. Nable, who briefed him on various matters; and PCAPE Vice-Chairman Max Maceren, who submitted progress reports on the number of administrative investigations being conducted by the PCAPE.

The President woke up early this morning despite a strenuous schedule he had followed yesterday, addressing two commencement exercises and conferring with national, provincial, city, and municipal officials, as well as delegations from civic organizations in Cebu who had called on him aboard the ship.

He started the day by hearing mass celebrated at the ship's dining saloon on the occasion of first Friday of the month. Also at the mass were Mrs. Garcia and other members of the presidential party.

After a light breakfast the President stayed for some time at the dining room, exchanging views with members of his party. Then he went up to his cabin where he stayed the rest of the day.

RPS Lapu-Lapu pulled out from Cebu pier at exactly 12 o'clock midnight for the return voyage to Manila. There has been fine sailing weather with the sea very calm and only slight easterly breeze blowing the whole day; The ship is proceeding at a leisurely pace of twelve knots, about half of its performance speed, in order to arrive in Manila at about 8 a.m. tomorrow instead of at midnight tonight.

April 2.—PRESIDENT Garcia returned at 9 o'clock this morning from a five-day trip to Cebu City, where he addressed the commencement exercises of two universities. He also received an honorary degree—doctor of laws—from the University of San Carlos.

With the President were the First Lady, Secretary of Public Works Florencio Moreno, Highways Commissioner Nicolas Cuenca, Brig. Gen. Isagani V. Campo, chief of the Constabulary, and Vice-Chairman Max Maceren of the Presidential Committee on Administration Performance Efficiency.

The President was met at Pier 3 by Executive Secretary Natalio P. Castillo, whom the Chief Executive congratulated for the confirmation of his nomination to the Cabinet.

Others who met him at the wharf were Commodore Jose Francisco, Philippine Navy chief, Reps. Wenceslao Rancap Lagumbay, Leon Guinto, Jr., and Rogaciano Mercado.

In the afternoon the President received Major General William F. Nutter, outgoing chief of the Joint U. S. Military Advisory Group. General Nutter introduced to the President his successor, Major General Derrill Daniel.

Nutter and Daniel were accompanied to the President by Minister George Abbott of the U.S. Embassy.

After receiving Nutter the President with Mrs. Garcia went down to the social hall, where they presided over the ceremonies held in connection with Balagtas Day.

The President later motored to Intramuros where he inaugurated the Far East Bank and Trust Company.

In the evening the President motored to Congress to attend the oratorical jousts of solons in connection with Balagtas Day.

President Garcia today led the nation in commemorating the 172nd birthday anniversary of the great Filipino poet, Francisco Baltazar (Balagtas).

The President was the main speaker at commemoration ceremonies held at the Malacañang Social Hall this afternoon under the auspices of the Taliba ng Inang Wika (TANIW), during which he also distributed awards given by the Kapisanang Aklat Wika at Panitik (KADIPAN) for the best stories and articles in Tagalog.

In the evening the President gave the opening address during the Tagalog oratorical tilt held at the Hall of Congress, where winning orations were also awarded prizes by Rep. Rogaciano Mercado of Bulacan.

In his speech in Tagalog in the evening the President counseled the people to draw inspiration from the nationalistic tradition of Filipino heroes to sustain them in the present struggle for economic emancipation.

The President told the people to display steel courage in the face of adversities and to discard imagined fears.

A surprise feature of the program at the Malacañang Social Hall was the singing of Ang Babaing Pilipina, the words of which (Cebuano) were written by President Garcia and translated into Tagalog by Servando de los Angeles.

President Garcia today gave Iloilo City Mayor Rodolfo Ganzon 72 hours within which time to answer the charges of alleged oppression and grave misconduct in office filed against him by Iloilo City Councilor Naciancino G. Rico.

The presidential directive, which was issued through Executive Secretary Natalio P. Castillo, requires Mayor Ganzon to submit within 72 hours after receipt of the order a written answer to the charges filed against him.

President Garcia gave this directive on the recommendation of Justice Buenaventura Ocampo, chairman of the Presidential Committee on Administration Performance Efficiency, who is looking into the case upon orders of the President.

A team of PCAPE investigators was formed by Justice Ocampo and directed to proceed to Iloilo City on a fact-finding mission. The team is composed of Major Teodulo Natividad, chief investigator; Major Federico Salcedo, chief intelligence; and Mario Balmaseda, investigator.

The President today resumed his clean-up drive in the judiciary branch of the government when he signed an administrative order considering Justice of the Peace Vicente T. Real of Manjuyod, Negros Oriental, as resigned effective upon receipt of the order, after having been found guilty of serious abuse of authority, malicious persecution, and borrowing money from one of the parties in a pending case in his court.

Three administrative cases were filed against Real, and the district Judge who investigated the cases recommended that Real be suspended from office for 15 days in one case and in the other that he "be enjoined to desist from obtaining loans from persons who are parties in cases pending before his court, in order to obviate any suspicion on the part of the public as regards his integrity." The third case was dismissed on motion of the complainant.

Real was charged by Sofia Blazo de Kadusalo with serious abuse of authority and malicious persecution. The complainant charged that Real tried to compel her to sign a deed of sale against her will and threatened her with criminal prosecution should she refuse to sign the document.

The following day after her refusal, a complaint for estafa was filed against Sofia by Filemon Blazo and she was arrested upon a warrant issued by Real.

In his administrative order the President said that he is “convinced that the respondent really tried but failed to coerce Sofia Blazo de Kadusalo into signing the document and vindictively abused the power of his office by immediately giving due course to the complaint for estafa, which he himself caused to be prepared and filed against the complainant.”

In the other administrative case, Victorio Uy complained that Real acted hastily in dismissing a criminal case for light threats and that he (Real) borrowed money from Alipio Sy, who was the offended party in said case. A perusal of the proceedings of the criminal case did not indicate any irregularity nor abuse of discretion committed by Real in dismissing the case.

The evidence presented showed that Real borrowed ₱130 from Alipio Sy when a criminal case in which Sy was the offended party was then pending in his court.

President Garcia also ordered today the dismissal from the service of two Army captains whose commissions were found to be fake.

Ordered dismissed were Capts. Jose P. Ponce and Jose S. Limson, both assigned in Ft. McKinley.

The President ordered AFP authorities to revoke the orders confirming their commissions, calling them to active duty and promoting them to their present ranks.

The President is still studying six other cases of alleged fake officers, including that of Lt. Cmdr. Marcelino E. Calinawan, PFFC chairman.

Calinawan's case was given to the President six months before those of Limson and Ponce.

Eight more cases are still under study by Lt. Gen. Manuel F. Cabal, AFP chief of staff; 17 being heard by the three boards of officers; and 15 under evaluation.

The President entered the Veterans Memorial Hospital last night for his annual medical check-up.

This evening the President underwent routine dental X-ray and blood chemistry examinations. Tomorrow the doctors will finish the check-up after which he is expected to leave the hospital.

Drs. Alejandro Gaerlan and Antonio Guytingco, presidential physicians, issue this evening a medical bulletin saying that so far the medical examinations show that the President is "normal."

During a break in the examinations this morning the President and the First Lady heard mass at the presidential suite in the hospital.

The President drank only water with a little sugar the whole day today. This diet will continue until the second week when he will drink milk and fruit juices. His period of fasting will last 14 days, ending on Easter Sunday.

The President started fasting 28 years ago upon the advice of a German doctor who had treated him for a liver ailment. He usually reduces by about ten pounds at the close of his period of fasting.

April 4.—PRESIDENT Garcia this morning was declared in excellent physical condition after he had undergone the last phase of his medical examination at the Veterans Memorial Hospital.

A panel of specialists found the President normal in the general medical check-up. The panel was composed of Drs. Antonio Guytingco, Alejandro Gaerlan, Angel I. Reyes, Valentin Fidelino, Apolinar de Leon, and Amelia Garcia.

Owing to the check-up, the President did not receive any caller the whole morning.

This afternoon the President left the Veterans Memorial Hospital for his residence on Bohol Avenue, Quezon City, with a clean bill of health.

The President entered the Hospital Saturday evening for a routine physical and medical check-up to determine his fitness to undergo his annual two-week fast which started yesterday.

Dr. Gaerlan said the curative value of fasting has long been recognized by the medical profession because it not only clears the system but also lowers the cholesterol (fatty) contents of the body.

Mrs. Leonila D. Garcia, who entered the hospital with the President and also underwent a routine medical and physical check-up, left the hospital earlier in the morning.

The President left the VMH at 5 p.m. and proceeded to his Quezon City residence.

The expropriation of the Muñoz estate and its resale to present occupants will benefit about 500 heads of families, according to Sen. Rosales.

The visiting Chinese general was accompanied by Ambassador Tuan Mao-lan and Brig. Gen. Isagani Campo, chief of the Philippine Constabulary.

Other high-ranking Chinese officials who accompanied Gen. Huang were Gen. L. P. Lee, deputy commander of the Taiwan garrison; Gen. G. Yen, chief of Military Police; Gen. Y. Kuo, commissioner of the Taiwan police; Col. C. S. Chien, G-3; Col. T. S. Tan, military attache of the Chinese Embassy in Manila; and Lt. Col. H. Tuan, GHO battalion commander.

In his brief exchange of pleasantries with the visiting Chinese top brass, the President stated that he looks forward to his forthcoming state visit to Taiwan at the invitation of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek.

General Huang presented to President Garcia four Chinese porch lanterns and an embroidered silk painting of a lion as his personal gift.

General Huang arrived in Manila yesterday afternoon and will return to Taiwan on Saturday. He is returning the visit that Gen. Campo made recently to Taiwan.

Other callers included Rep. Fausto Dugenio of Misamis Oriental and Rep. Reynaldo Honrado of Surigao, accompanied by Mayor Serro Ty of Tandag and other municipal mayors of Surigao.

The President did not receive any caller in the afternoon. Now on the third day of his 14-day annual fast, he spent most of his time in his study clearing his desk of important papers preparatory to the Holy Week vacations.

April 6.—THIS morning the President limited himself to a few callers, as he went over the agenda of the Cabinet meeting. He also went over pending state papers in order to clear his desk before he goes to the second week of his fasting.

The President received, however, Msgr. Salvatore Siino, papal nuncio who invited the Chief Executive to a dinner he is giving for Rufino Cardinal Santos on Sunday. The President said he will keep the nuncio's invitation under advisement, for the Chief Executive would be on the second week of his fasting.

The President also received Minister Eduardo Rosal of the Philippine consulate general in Hongkong. Rosal saw the Chief Executive for final instructions before the minister leaves for his station today. The minister arrived last week and is leaving today for Hongkong.

President Garcia also conferred with political leaders of his province, Bohol, who saw him on local problems.

Those who saw the President were Rep. Maximino Garcia, Board Member Benedicto Enerio, and Mayors Ricardo Boyles of Ubay and Teodoro Galaga.

THE Chief Executive presided over the regular meeting of his Cabinet this afternoon. Despite his fasting, the President stayed long at the Cabinet meeting.

President Garcia and his Cabinet agreed to give labor preferential treatment in the bidding for state firms which the government proposes to sell to private investors.

The terms which the Cabinet laid down are:

1. Laborers of a state firm offered for sale who organized themselves into a corporation to take part in the bidding, will be given 15 per cent "preferential difference."

This means that the laborers' group will be awarded the bid even if its offer is 15 per cent less than the highest bid by any other party.

2. The same privilege will be given to workers of the government firm on sale if they tie up with outsiders, provided the laborers retain 12.5 per cent interest in the resulting combination.

The Cabinet policy applies to all government corporations which the Administration may put on the block in line with its policy of gradually withdrawing from private business.

Its first application is in the sale of the government-owned plant of the Cebu Portland Company at Naga, Cebu, which is now offered for public bidding.

The Cabinet was prompted to adopt the policy because of the interest of CEPOC laborers to take part in the bidding.

The CEPOC has been offered for sale at a floor price of ₱12.5 million.

Another government corporation on sale is the Maria Cristina fertilizer plant with a book value of ₱11 million.

Bids have been offered but the offers were much below the desired price.

April 7.—PRESIDENT Garcia today directed Lt. Gen. Manuel Cabal, AFP chief of staff, to find ways and means of providing adequate arms for the municipal police forces of the province of Iloilo in an effort to help solve the deteriorating peace and order situation, especially the mounting cases of cattle rustling.

The President was informed by Iloilo officials, led by Gov. Jose C. Zulueta, that the poorly armed policemen of the towns of Iloilo are no match to the well-armed rustlers who usually are armed with high powered rifles and submachine guns.

The Iloilo governor also informed the President that about 20 per cent of the policemen of his province are armed with pistols. In some cases, however, the Constabulary has lent some carbines to police forces but even then, the rustlers continue their depredations.

The other Iloilo officials who saw the President were Vice-Governor Guadalino Mosqueda, Board Member Rafael Palmares and Mayors Susano Tayo of Buenavista, Potenciano Imperial of Lucena, Luis Palmares of Passi, and Leodovico Cabardo of Leon.

Earlier this morning, at a breakfast conference, the President gave last minute instructions to the Philippine panel negotiating with Japanese representatives for a Philippine-Japan trade treaty.

The panel chairman, Jose Laurel, Jr., briefed the President on the progress of the negotiations. The Philippine panel is scheduled to leave next week for Tokyo, where the negotiations are to be resumed on April 18. Other negotiators and panel staff members present at the conference were Sen. Lorenzo Sumulong, Rep. Ramon Mitra, Sr., Minister Enrique Garcia, Jose Laurel, III, Monico Vicente, and Teodoro Marquez.

The President also received Rafael Almacen, a lawyer from Iloilo.

Meanwhile, the President sent his condolences to the bereaved parents of Natividad Tanteo, a 4 ½ years old prodigy who died of meningitis at the San Lazaro hospital last night.

The President at the same time directed Social Welfare Administrator Amparo Villamor to facilitate the transfer of the remains of the deceased to her hometown in Quezon, Quezon, and to extend every possible assistance to her parents, Damian and Florentina Tanteo.

The President also sent a wreath to the Funeraria Vasquez, where Natividad's remains lie in state pending shipment to Quezon province.

The child prodigy first attracted the President's attention some six months ago when, as a crowd pleaser from the Nacionalista Party stumpers in Quezon province, she sang and danced her way into the hearts of the people.

At the age of four, when most children are just beginning to express themselves incoherently, Natividad had already a whole repertoire of songs, dances, poems, and declamations which she delivered with ease and facility to provide the spice to the otherwise drab and bitter fare of political talks.

The President today denounced communist atrocities committed against Catholic Sisters running a leprosarium in South Vietnam.

In a cable to Vietnamese President Ngo Dinh Diem, President Garcia modestly contributed ₱1,000 to help replace medical equipment and supplies stolen by the communists from the leprosarium.

The President considers the attack of the communists as inhuman and senseless which should receive universal condemnation.

Reports received by the President stated that a group of armed communists attacked a leprosarium in the province of Bien-Hoa, destroyed images and statues held sacred by the natives, and stripped the leprosarium of all medical equipment and supplies.

The report stated that the leprosarium is managed by Catholic Sisters for the benefit of around 400 Vietnamese and Chinese lepers.

April 8.—PRESIDENT Garcia this morning told the board of directors of the National Development Company to complete negotiations for direct sale of NDC-owned ocean-going vessels ordered from Japan to form the nucleus of the Philippine merchant marine.

The President told the NDC board that there was no time to be lost in negotiating the sale, considering the proximity of their scheduled delivery to the Philippine Government.

The President said the board should accept offers for sale to divide the vessels into three or more groups with four new vessels and one Dona vessels in one package sale.

A total of 12 ocean-going vessels had been ordered by the NDC from Japan and half of them are scheduled to be delivered to the Philippines this year. Three Dona vessels now in the service are also scheduled to be sold along with these new ships.

The board informed the President that prospective buyers have expressed inability to make the 25 per cent of cost down payment and that this provision of the law was holding up negotiations.

The board members also reported to the President that the installation of the ramie processing plant in Daliao, Davao, will start this month.

The plant will be put up for degumming, drying, card-spinning, weaving, and finishing ramie fiber to obviate the necessity of shipping it to Japan for processing and then importing it as finished ramie textile.

The board, however, was pessimistic about the success of the Cotabato cotton experimental station. Director Panis said that adverse climatic conditions and cotton weevils have adversely affected the experiment.

Panis said there was drought when the cotton plants needed water badly, and there were rains when the cottons balls were just opening, thus ruining the cotton fiber.

Those who conferred with the President were Jose Rodriguez, NDC board chairman; and Directors Eugenio Puyat, Joaquin L. Panis, and Agustin Caseñas.

Earlier this morning, the President received Donald F. Peppers, incoming administrator of the U.S. Veterans Administration in Manila.

Peppers was presented to the President by Henry Moore, outgoing USVA administrator who is leaving Thursday, April 14, after a 2 ½ year stint in the Philippines.

The new USVA chief had come to the Philippines during President Quirino's time as member of an American mission which surveyed the proposed site of the Veterans Memorial Hospital in Quezon City.

The President received callers at Malacañang until 1 p.m. Later in the afternoon, he motored to his Bohol Avenue residence in Quezon City, where he received the publisher and editors of the Manila Daily Bulletin, which celebrates its 60th anniversary on Monday, April 11.

President Garcia and American President Eisenhower exchanged greetings today on the eve of Bataan Day as both leaders recalled the sacrifices and hardships during the war days from which sprung a strong bond of comradeship and determination between the two peoples to defend the principles of democracy.

In a cable letter to President Eisenhower, President Garcia greeted the former on behalf of the Filipino people. He also extended his greetings to General Douglas MacArthur as well as to the members of the American forces of liberation.

President Garcia recalled that the passing years have not dimmed the, blood compact of friendship between Filipinos and Americans.

He took the occasion to express his determination in the name of the Filipino people to strengthen the common ramparts of freedom and keep the human spirit free and undaunted.

In his letter to President Garcia, President Eisenhower said Bataan Day should help remind both Americans and Filipinos that liberty and justice are worth defending at all cost.

Like President Garcia, the American Chief Executive expressed his determination to defend the principles of democracy.

President Garcia this morning directed the PCAPE to look into the newspaper report that a Malacañang technical assistant from Mindanao is tie alleged owner of 72 crates of luxury items impounded in the Manila International Airport.

The order given to Max Maceren, PCAPE vice-chairman, also include the filing of criminal or administrative case against the Malacañang official if the report linking him to the irregularity is found to be true.

Vice-chairman Maceren, upon receiving the instruction, conferred immediately with Finance Secretary Dominador Aytona, Bureau of Internal Revenue Commissioner Melecio Domingo, and Regional director Misael Vera, the three officials who allegedly received the information linking the alleged Palace official to the irregularity.

The three officials issued a statement denying having received such information, much less an anonymous letter furnishing the clue to the identity of the Malacañang official.

Justice Buenaventura Ocampo, PCAPE chairman, when interviewed this afternoon said that his committee is conducting a thorough investigation of the case as per instructions of the President, to see if there is truth to the news report. If it is true, and the Palace official is definitely identified, Justice Ocampo continued, proper charges will be filed against him.

President Garcia said today that the military honors given at the airport to Rufino J. Cardinal Santos on his return from Rome this afternoon were in line with protocolar courtesies since the Philippines maintained diplomatic relations with the Vatican.

In a wire sent this evening to Dr. Gumersindo Garcia, Sr., president of the Philippine Federation of Christian Churches, the President added: "Moreover, they are honors given to Cardinal Santos as a Filipino, the first to be elevated to the cardinalate, and not as head of the local Catholic Church hierarchy."

The President's statements were in reply to a message received from Dr. Garcia "humbly protesting" the 19-gun salute accorded to the new prince of the Catholic Church as a violation of the principle of the separation of church and state.

The President concluded: "I assure you that as President of this Republic, I have sworn to uphold the Constitution which recognizes the principle of the separation of church and state."

Dr. Garcia, when contacted by telephone late tonight, said that he was satisfied with the President's explanation.

April 9.—PRESIDENT Garcia and His Eminence Rufino J. Cardinal Santos exchanged toasts to each other's health and success at the Malacañang ceremonial hall when the latter paid his first formal courtesy call this morning as a Prince of the Church.

The first Filipino Cardinal received full military honors upon his arrival at Malacañang from a crack unit of the Presidential Guard Battalion under the command of Lt. Col. Patero V. Oppus.

After reviewing the guard of honor, Cardinal Santos was met at the head of the Palace stairs by Minister Manuel G. Zamora, Malacañang protocol officer, and Col. Jorge Delarmente, senior aide-de-camp, who ushered him to the ceremonial hall where President and Mrs. Garcia received him.

The Cardinal was accompanied by the Apostolic Nuncio, Msgr. Salvatore Siino, Cebu Archbishop Julio Rosales, Vigan Archbishop Juan Sison, Bishops Hernando Antiporda and Vicente Reyes, Papal Knights Dr. Ramon Campos, Justo Lopez, and Dr. Augusto Cortes, and others.

Present at the ceremony were Executive Secretary Natalio P. Castillo, Mr. and Mrs. Fernando Campos, and former Executive Secretary Fortunato de Leon.

The Cardinal, in his conversation with the President, gave his impressions of the ceremonies which elevated him as a Prince of the Church.

The Cardinal and his group left Malacañang at 10:30 a.m. The visit lasted about 30 minutes.

After the call the President had his regular monthly briefing by NICA officials headed by Col. Nicanor Jimenez.

In the afternoon the President received Don Manolo Elizalde, president of the Philippine Sugar Association who had just returned from abroad.

Elizalde informed the President that the Philippines is still fighting for an increase in the sugar quota in the United States but is encountering stiff opposition, especially from the American tobacco producers.

The President later received Stanley M. Swinton, general news editor, World Service of the Associated Press, who is in Manila looking up old friends and renewing family ties.

Swinton's family had been in the Philippines before the war and his father and mother were interned at Santo Tomas University by the Japanese. His father later became a professor at the University of the Philippines, and served until his death.

Swinton, who is visiting the AP bureau in Manila, was accompanied to Malacañang by Jim Becker, local AP representative. He is leaving for Singapore Monday morning.

In the evening the President gave a state dinner in honor of His Eminence, Rufino J. Cardinal Santos in Malacañang.

Among those invited were chiefs of foreign diplomatic missions, members of the Cabinet and other high government officials, members of the Catholic hierarchy, and heads of local Catholic colleges and universities.

The President today ordered Dr. Loreto Mirasol-Magsuci and Randolph Flor, chairman and member, respectively, of the Board of Examiners for Optometry, to answer within 72 hours charges of irregularities allegedly committed by them in connection with the optometrist examination given by the board in July last year.

The President, at the same time, created a committee to investigate the two officials as soon as their answers are received by Executive Secretary Natalio P. Castillo. The committee is composed of Justice Undersecretary Enrique A. Fernandez, chairman, and Civil Service Deputy Commissioner Fausto Varela, and Major Teodulo Natividad of the PCAPE, members.

The President is considering whether or not to suspend the said officials. He said he would decide the question when their answers are received in Malacañang.

Secretary Castillo had previously directed the National Bureau of Investigation to inquire into reports of anomalies allegedly committed in connection with the optometrist examination last July.

According to the NBI report which was submitted to Malacañang this afternoon, Chairman Mirasol-Magsuci appeared to have gone to the examination room during the written examinations, approached certain selected or favored candidates, and “secretly told” or gave them “whispered instructions” to place on their answer sheets identifying marks or signs.

The most common of those signs were said to be in the form of dots inside the letters “O”, “P”, “T” and “E” and retracings purportedly made on words and numerals.

In the case of one candidate, Dr. Mirasol-Magsuci, herself, was said to have taken hold of the candidate’s pen and placed dots inside the letters “P” and “O” in the names of the subjects of “Pathology” and “Physiologic Optics”. She was also said to have asked specimens of the handwriting of another candidate which were allegedly furnished her by the candidate’s mother without the knowledge of the candidate.

Board Member Flor, on the other hand, was charged with having made false statements in his personal record filed under oath with the board. In answer to questions whether he had ever been accused of, indicted for, or tried of any crime, he was said to have answered “No” when in fact the records of the Court of First Instance of Manila show that in Criminal Case No. 5360, he had been charged with attempted arson although the case was subsequently dismissed. This charge was also referred to the fiscal’s office.

Another charge against Dr. Flor is that he was supposed to have changed the rating on the examination papers of Candidate No. 201 in the subject of Practical Optics from 83 to 92 per cent and in the subject of Economics, Ethics, Jurisprudence, and Hygiene and Sanitation, he was said to have changed the grade of a candidate from 87 to 92 per cent without the knowledge of the corrector.

President's Week in Review: April 10-16, 1960

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

April 10.—PRESIDENT Garcia started today on the second week of his 14-day Lenten fasting. In the second week of his fasting, the President changes his water-and-sugar diet to milk and fruit juices.

Early in the morning the President and the First Lady heard Palm Sunday mass at their private residence in Quezon City.

After hearing mass the President received Miss Rukmini Devi Arundale, woman member of the Indian Parliament who paid her respects to the Chief Executive at his residence. The President chatted briefly with the visiting Indian dignitary.

Later the President retired to his study room, where he went over pending state papers to clear his desk before he goes to Baguio tomorrow morning where he will spend the Holy Week.

Later in the evening the President, accompanied by the First Lady and their daughter Linda, motored to the Apostolic Nunciature on Taft Avenue, where he attended the reception given by the Apostolic Nuncio Salvatore Siino in honor of Rufino J. Cardinal Santos.

From the Nunciature, the President motored to Bohol Avenue where he spent the night.

President Garcia today received the report of Justice Secretary Alejo Mabanag on the case of the four dead prisoners who had been granted pardons.

Investigation was ordered by the President recently to fix responsibility for failure to inform Malacañang of the deaths of Felipe Guarin y Villamore, Saridula Ajad, Luis Obella y Inonado, and Juan Arce, all recommendees for pardon, as a result of which executive clemency was granted to them needlessly.

In his report to the President, Secretary Mabanag blamed the Bureau of Prisons officials for not reporting their deaths to the Department of Justice, the Pardon and Parole Board, and Malacañang, and recommended administrative action against Vicente B. Arciaga and Federico B. Ama, chief and assistant chief, respectively, of the Documents Section and Pre-Pardon and Parole Section of the state prisons, "for negligence in the performance of their duties."

Arciaga and Ama admitted to Secretary Mabanag that they had received the notices of death of the four prisoners but that, although it is a practice to note such deaths in their respective carpetas, such deaths are not reported to the Justice Department unless they are due to un natural causes.

Alfredo Velasco, administrative officer of the state penitentiary, corroborated this claim and alleged that this practice has been obtaining since the creation of the prisons.

In the case of prisoner Obella, Ama admitted that on Jan. 16, 1956 he received Special Order No. 199, s. 1955, of the Davao Penal Colony reporting the death Obella but that he misplaced it and was not able to note it in Obella's carpeta.

Secretary Mabanag said the practice of not reporting all deaths to the Department of Justice should have been abandoned a long time ago, because, if the department had been notified in time, it could have withdrawn its recommendation for pardon of a prisoner who has died.

Secretary Mabanag also bit the practice of certifying to the excellent conduct of a prisoner simply because there was no misconduct reported on his part for while the prisoner may not have committed any misconduct, his conduct and behaviour might still be poor to render him unfit to rejoin society.

April 11.—PRESIDENT Garcia this afternoon figured in a near mishap when his car broke down along the treacherous winding road going to Baguio.

The clutch of the No. 1 Malacañang Cadillac became overheated and burned up. The driver had to apply the brakes quickly to stop the car.

The President had to transfer to the car being driven by his son-in-law, Fernando Campos, while Mrs. Garcia and Mrs. Campos transferred to another car.

The near-accident happened as the presidential motorcade coming from Damortis went past the zigzag road a few kilometers from the summer capital.

The cars had picked the presidential party in Damortis after arriving on a special train from Manila at around 1 p. m. today.

The President and his party pulled out of the MRR Tutuban station aboard a presidential special at 8 a.m. and arrived at Damortis at 12:40 p.m.

Along the way near Moncada, Tarlac, the President viewed six MRR coaches which had been derailed early morning.

The incident delayed the President's arrival at the Guest House in Baguio for half an hour. The President is staying in the Summer Capital until Tuesday for a Holy Week vacation.

Entering the second week of his Lenten fast, the President has lost six-and-a-half pounds, according to Dr. Antonio Guytingco, his personal physician. Pie will end the fast on Easter Sunday.

PRESIDENT Garcia today brushed off Red China's warning to the Philippines on the establishment of US missiles bases here.

The Peiping government issued the warning in commenting on an Associated Press story that President Garcia had invited the US to station nuclear missiles in the Philippines. Red China said the Philippines was courting disaster.

"That is their own thinking," the President said, by way of comment of the Communist Chinese reaction. The President added.

"If we have to fight another world war, we must fight it with modern weapons."

The President clarified an interview with the AP given during the Bataan Day anniversary, saying he had not issued any invitation to the US to station missiles here.

He said he was in favor of missiles if these are deemed the best available weapons for the defense of the country.

He recalled stressing the need for modern and adequate weapon when queried on US military assistance to the Philippines.

"If ever there is going to be a third world war, we cannot fight if the weapons are of the second world war," the President recalled having told the AP.

The President also stressed that nuclear bases were not mentioned during the interview.

THE President today ordered the separation from the service of a reserve Army captain on active duty with the 17th BCT in Batangas.

Ordered separated from the service was Capt. Maximo B. Perez, who was found to have never been commissioned as third lieutenant in the reserve force in March 27, 1942, as he claimed.

Perez is the third officer ordered separated from the service for having a spurious source of commission. The first two orderd separated were Capts. Jose P. Ponce and Jose Limson.

There are still 11 alleged fake officers cases in the hands of the President, including that of a chief prober, Lt, Cmdr. Marcelino E. Calinawan, awaiting action.

A total of 40 officers have been cleared by the AFF probers, six are being heard by three boards of officers, 11 in the active service under investigation, 10 cases under evaluation, and 390 cases of those in the in active status being scrutinized.

April 12.—PRESIDENT Garcia invited the members of the Council of Leaders and the chairman of the House committee on foreign affairs and immigration to a conference in Baguio on Sunday afternoon.

The President announced that he will hold a separate conference with top fiscal advisers Monday afternoon to discuss particularly the results of the margin law implementation.

The President slated the conferences after holding a lenthly meeting at the Guest House with Foreign Affairs Secretary Felixberto Serrano during which vital matters on foreign affairs were discussed.

President Garcia also conferred this morning with Sugar Quota Administrator Ramon Pagua, who broached the plan to allow the importation of 3,000,000 pounds of Virginia leaf tobacco in exchange for the exportation of a similar amount of filler and scrap tobacco which he said might lead to an increase of the Philippine sugar quota in the American market by 50,000 tons.

Pagua said that the plan has the backing of American Rep. Harold Cooley, chairman of the agricultural committee, and Keough, who had been opposing increases in sugar quotas, and also of local Virginia leaf growers who will not be adversely affected because they supply only two thirds of the local demand.

On the other hand, Serrano pointed out to the President the big risk involved and added that although the plan might work out with the support of sugar and tobacco farmers, there is no assurance of an increase in the Philippine sugar quota.

Later, the President received former President Sergio Osmeña, who paid his respects, and Defense Undersecretary Mariano Yenke, who discussed the acquisition of a lot in Diliman, Quezon City, as site for the Department of National Defense building.

President Garcia, showing no ill effects after losing nine pounds since he started fasting, took his first glass of milk this morning and afterwards strolled around the Mansion House grounds with the First Lady, admiring the myriad flowers now in full bloom and chatting with newsmen who had followed him to Baguio.

After his conference with Serrano, Pagua, and others, the President took another glass of milk for luncheon and then retired to his room for spiritual meditation by reading religious books, among them the Holy Bible, The Last Four Things, Life of Christ, and Imitation of Christ.

President Garcia today declared April 16, a special public holiday.

The President said in view of the two public holidays, Holy Thursday and Good Friday, preceding Saturday, April 16, the day may be declared a public holiday without prejudice to the public interest.

In his conference with Secretary Castillo, the President directed to strike up the payment plan to be adopted in order to settle the unpaid accounts on the Virginia leaf tobacco purchases made last year as recommended by the ACCFA Administrator Vicente Araneta.

The President also instructed Secretary Castillo to look into the feasibility of importing high-grade American Virginia tobacco to meet the reported shortage.

Among matters discussed with conferees was the sending of Gen. Cabal and six others to the SEATO military advisers' conference in Washington, D.C., to attend the twelfth meeting and also discuss with the Pentagon the Philippine military needs.

The President, feeling fine, took an early stroll and had milk as well as water slightly sweetened for his breakfast, lunch, and supper.

Accompanying the President in his early morning stroll were the First Lady, Gen. and Mrs. Cabal, Secretary and Mrs. Castillo, and former Assistant Executive Secretary and Mrs. Sofronio Quimson.

The President also congratulated Fiscal Lucena for his initial success and urged him to continue relentlessly the fight against graft.

The President amended today the old proclamation declaring the period from the first Monday to the succeeding Sunday of May of every year as National Traffic Safety Week and the Monday following as Safe Driving Day.

The President was informed by telegram by Cleto Penales, father of the victims, that the incident occurred on the evening of April 13 at the town plaza with Vice-Mayor Boy Cimafranca as alleged assailant.

The father of the victims requested the airlift on the suggestion of the director of the Bohol Provincial Hospital who said that the victims needed treatment in Manila badly.

President's Week in Review: April 17-23, 1960

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

April 17.—PRESIDENT and Mrs. Garcia heard an early morning mass at the Guest House. Both received holy communion.

Also present were Speaker and Mrs. Daniel Z. Romualdez, Foreign Affairs Secretary and Mrs. Felixberto Serrano, and Mr. and Mrs. Fernando Campos. After taking his first solid meal since he started fasting, the President, accompanied by his guests, drove around Baguio on his first tour of the city since he arrived on April 11.

During the two-hour trip the President visited the GSIS housing project at Leonila Hill Drive around Burnham Park, then proceeded to the Baguio Country Club. On hand to greet the President and his party was Mrs. Keith Reed, club manager.

From the clubhouse, the President motored to the Guest House, arriving there at 11:30 a.m. He then received Msgr. William Brasseur, Mountain Province Apostolic Vicar, and Rev. Fr. Mariano Gaviola of the Catholic Welfare Organization, who came to pay their respects.

At noon the President and the First Lady took the guests to the picnic grove where luncheon was served to some 300 government officials, prominent citizens, newspapermen, and friends. The luncheon was half through when a heavy downpour forced President and Mrs. Garcia and their guests to seek shelter at the Guest House.

THE COUNCIL of Leaders this evening endorsed President Garcia's stand on the raging controversy over the stationing of nuclear weapons and missiles in the country.

The President called the Council of Leaders to a conference primarily to take up the 10-year-old question of overstaying Chinese.

However, the meeting was dominated by discussion on the missiles question.

Earlier, President Garcia rejected a suggestion that the National Security Council be convened to resolve the controversy.

The plan was broached by majority and minority legislators led by Rep. Ramon P. Mitra of Mountain Province, chairman of the House committee on foreign affairs, and Senate Minority Leader Ferdinand E. Marcos.

President Garcia discounted the plan even as Administration leaders prepared the ground to reconcile the view of the President with that of Senator Claro M. Recto, who had differed with the Chief Executive on the question.

After the conference, Press Secretary Jose C. Nable issued the following statement:

"The President informed the Council of Leaders of his interview with the 'Associated Press' and his subsequent clarification thereof.

"After a careful exchange of views, the Council of Leaders decided to endorse the President's position."

Present at the conference were Senate President Protempore Fernando Lopez; Speaker Daniel Romualdez; Senate Majority Floor Leader Cipriano Primicias; Sen. Gil Puyat, vice-chairman of the Senate committee on foreign affairs; Sen. Roseller Lim, chairman of the Senate committee on immigration; Speaker Protempore Constancio Castañeda; House Majority Floor Leader Jose Aldeguer; and Rep. Nicanor Yñiguez, chairman of the House committee on immigration.

The President told newsmen the proposal to call the National Security Council is “unnecessary.”

He broadly hinted that he was amenable to meeting Recto to resolve their conflict of views over the presidential bid for conventional nuclear weapons for the country’s defense.

President Garcia indicated that Recto’s views would crystallize only after the approval of the disarmament question at the May summit conference of the Big Powers.

THIS evening the President also conferred with leaders of Virginia tobacco growers on the problem of exporting surplus low-grade Virginia tobacco and reconciling the problems of the sugar and the Virginia tobacco industries.

Present at the tobacco conference were Sens. Cipriano Primicias, Quintin Paredes, and Ferdinand Marcos; Reps. Lucas Paredes, Francisco Ortega, Manuel Cases, and Faustino Tobia; and Govs. Godofredo Reyes and De Guzman.

Members of the Council of Leaders who conferred with President Garcia were Senate President Protempore Fernando Lopez and Senators Cipriano Primicias and Gil J. Puyat, Speaker Daniel Z. Romualdez, and Reps. Jose Aldeguer and Nicanor Yniguez. Foreign Affairs Secretary Felixberto Serrano was also present.

MEANWHILE, President Garcia congratulated BIR Commissioner Melecio Domingo, who reported an increase ₱38 million in collections of the Bureau of Internal Revenue during the period from July of 1959 to January of 1960 over the collections made during the corresponding period the previous fiscal year. Domingo reported that the collections amounted to ₱377.4 million compared to ₱339.4 million the previous year.

He also reported to the President that of this amount the BIR collected ₱247.5 million and the Bureau of Customs, ₱45 million. Compared to budget estimates for the same period, Domingo said that the BIR collections shows an increase of ₱14 million while Customs collections surpassed the estimates by ₱4.4 million.

Domingo informed the President that substantial increases came from income tax collections (₱18 million) and business tax (₱10.7 million).

Actual receipts through Customs from compensating and advance sales tax also showed an increased of ₱7.3 million. Domingo added that the tax collection campaign can be more successful if people can be made more tax conscious.

April 18.—PRESIDENT Garcia today gave his fiscal advisers ten days within which to submit a satisfactory gradual decontrol plan.

At a conference which took place from breakfast to noontime, the President told the fiscal advisers to study thoroughly certain features of the plan, particularly those pertaining to labor and new industries.

Present at the conference were Finance Secretary Dominador Aytona, PNB President Eduardo Romualdez, Governor Miguel Cuaderno of the Central Bank, NEC Chairman Dr. Jose Locsin, and Chairman Gregorio Licaros of the Development Bank of the Philippines.

At noon the President was given luncheon at the presidential suite of the Pines Hotel by officials of the Reparations Commission. After lunch the President discussed the scheduling of reparations items for next year. Those who had lunch with the President were Chairman Rodolfo Maslog and Commissioners Juan Alberto and Gregorio Abad.

Before his conference with the reparations officials, the President received a resolution from the provincial board of Pangasinan endorsing and giving full support to the Chief Executive’s campaign against graft and corruption. Pangasinan officials who handed the resolution to the President were Gov. Conrado F. Estrella, Vice-Governor Nancy Q. Sison, and Mrs. Dolores Acuña, Cesario Tigno, and Adriatico Golea, board members.

After his conference with the reparations officials, the President received Enrique Bouffard. Then he proceeded to the Guest House where he arrived about 3 p.m.

The President did not receive any callers in the afternoon. He went over the final draft of the speech to be delivered before school superintendents early tomorrow morning. He is scheduled to return to Manila immediately after delivering his speech.

April 19.—THIS morning the President told Filipino educators to keep up the role played by institutions of learning in the rapid advances achieved in the fields of business and industries.

Addressing some 500 school officials at the 51st annual convention of superintendents of schools at the Teachers' Camp in Baguio, the President said that "the advances we have so far achieved must go on and on because to stop now would mean stagnation and retrogression."

The President emphasized before the school officials the need to stress instruction in vocational competence and productivity and to give due emphasis on science and technology.

The Chief Executive also cited the need for educating the people on the proper exploitation and utilization of the country's vast mineral resources.

The President said that proper exploitation and utilization of natural resources God has endowed the country, such as the iron deposits in Zamboanga, the Sierra Madre, Rizal, Camarines provinces, Samar, and Marinduque, and the ₱270 billion laterite reserves, the world's biggest, in Surigao, the oil, rubber, fish, and forest resources, will insure for the Philippines "an impregnable industrial position in this age of the machine and the atom."

The President, however, deplored the fact that despite incessant campaigns by government agencies, the people through obvious ignorance cause undue destruction to the fish and wildlife, and so much denudation to forests which may some day bring about a national catastrophe.

The Chief Executive called on the Filipino youth to "look forward to greater participation in the fields of science to make life in this country abundant, creative, and ennobling."

On the part of the government, the President assured the people that the serious effort to promote scientific research will continue. The President said the Science Act of 1958, which created the National Science Development Board, is aimed to achieve this end through a nationwide search for scientific talent among the young.

"Let me give my full encouragement to this activity," the President said. "For I believe that, without in any way underestimating the potentialities of the common man who is, after all, the sinew and strength of the nation, we have to discover the talented among our school children—such as those talented in science—and accord them every possible opportunity to develop their gift."

The President also expressed the desire to increase economic-mindedness among the youth in school. He said that whether they are decided to pursue vocational or academic courses, the curriculum must be built on the principle that work and toil—at times mental and at times manual—are part of general education.

Touching on a well-rounded educational system in the Philippines, the President told the educators that as Filipinos the youth should know more of things Philippines and that any deficiency in this direction should be minimized by the adoption of the "Filipino First" policy in the school.

The President was fetched from the Guest House by Secretary Romero and Abdon Javier, president of the Philippine Association of School Superintendents.

After delivering his 40-minute speech and posing for a few pictures with school officials, the President returned to the Guest House to fetch the First Lady, and then motored to Damortis for the return trip to Manila.

The presidential train pulled out of Damortis at 11:50 a.m. and arrived at Tutuban Station at 4:25 in the afternoon.

The President today assured the release of an initial outlay to help the coconut industry and for the implementation of Republic Act No. 2282, otherwise known as the Coconut Financing Act.

The President gave this assurance in an interview with Congressman Leon Guinto, Jr., of Quezon, who interceded for coconut planters who are being exploited by alien middlemen and usurers.

Rep. Guinto, who rode to Manila aboard the presidential train which left Damortis at noon, reminded the President during the train interview that the law will go into effect in August this year.

Republic Act No. 2282, which was signed into law by President Garcia last August sets up a ₱30 million fund to extend credit facilities to coconut planters at the low rate of 2.5 per cent interest per annum.

The President told Rep. Guinto that the coconut planters should form cooperatives and associations as a requisite for the extension of credit facilities because, under R. A. 2282, loans will not be granted to individual planters but to groups or associations of planters.

President Garcia today flayed Liberal Party leaders for their "wild guess and assumption" as he assured that no secret pact has been entered into with the United States on the establishment of nuclear and missile bases in this country.

After returning from Baguio and shortly before sailing for Bacolod City this evening, the President expressed surprise at the attitude that the Liberals had taken on this score, especially since they are aware of a constitutional provision that no treaty or pact can be approved unless ratified by the Philippine Senate.

President Garcia emphasized that in a democracy like ours there cannot be a so-called secret pact or agreement because a pact is a government-to-government negotiation needing approval and consultation with Congress.

The President said that despite this knowledge of state matters and procedure the Liberals have apparently made a wild guess and assumption.

He reiterated his previous decision that there is no reason to convene the National Security Council.

April 20.—PRESIDENT Garcia this morning sought seclusion in his cabin aboard the Lapu-Lapu to study pending state matters.

The Chief Executive deplored the delay which he said would affect Manilans and residents in the suburbs who have been suffering because of the water and power shortage.

The President and the First Lady heard mass aboard the presidential yacht at 8:30 a.m. They had breakfast and lunch alone in their cabin.

After lunch the President conferred with Rep. Inocencio Ferrer on important projects in the second district of Negros Occidental.

In the afternoon, President Garcia received Public Works Secretary Florencio Moreno and discussed the postponement of the Marikina Multipurpose project from April 22 to May 24.

The Lapu-Lapu plowed through practically calm waters and was expected to be 15 miles west of Panay at 8 in the evening. Lt. Cmdr. Manlapit, skipper of the yacht, estimated that the ship would reach Cauyaun at 7:30 a.m. tomorrow. Cauyaun is some 130 miles south of Bacolod.

April 21.—PRESIDENT Garcia disclosed today a plan to establish a coconut mill in Cauyaun, in Negros Occidental, to boost the coconut industry in that province.

The President promised that upon his return, to Manila, he will direct the Philippine Coconut Administration to put up in Cauyaun a coconut mill. It will be the first coconut mill in the province.

The occasion was the inauguration of the ₱338,000 bridge and the ₱47,000 municipal building of Cauyaun.

The President arrived in Cauayan at 7 a.m. with the First Lady on board the RPs Lapu-Lapu for a series of inauguration ceremonies in Negros Occidental and Bacolod City.

This is the first time a President ever visited the sleepy-town of Cauyaun, and townfolks celebrated the occasion of President Garcia's arrival with a fluvial parade complete with brass bands from the wharf to the town church where the President and party heard Te Deum.

President Garcia and the First Lady offered flowers after the Te Deum to St Paul, patron saint of the town, and then led a motorcade to barrio Isio for the inauguration of the ₱338,000 bridge, together with Gov. Valeriano Gatuslao, Reps. Inocencio Ferrer, Vicente Gustilo, and Agustin Gatuslao, and town Mayor Clodualdo Perez.

From barrio Isio, the President and party returned to town for the inauguration of the Cauyaun municipal hall where the First Lady cut the ceremonial ribbon.

The President addressed in the Cebuano dialect the townspeople and delegations coming from all towns of the third district. He was roundly applauded.

After the municipal hall inauguration, President Garcia and party boarded the Lapu-Lapu and proceeded to Pulupandan where he was scheduled to arrive at 3 p.m.

The President later motored to Bacolod to inaugurate the ₱3 million waterworks system which will greatly alleviate the acute water shortage in that city.

April 22.—PRESIDENT Garcia disclosed today that he will call Congress to a special session for constitutional changes he had proposed in his state-of-the-nation address to Congress.

He has abandoned previous plans of asking Congress to discuss amendments to the Constitution before adjourning its current session next month, for lack of time.

In an interview aboard the yacht Lapu-Lapu enroute to Manila from Bacolod City, the President also:

1. Said he was calling ACCFA Administrator Vicente Araneta and the governors of the state corporation next week to settle their policy differences which threaten to disrupt ACCFA operations.
2. Announced he was extending his forthcoming state visit to Taipei by one day on a request of the Chinese Nationalist government. The original trip schedule is May 2-7.

During his Taipei stay the President will be conferred an honorary degree—his ninth—by the University of Taiwan.

The presidential party will be composed of about 12 to 14 members.

The President declared he would skip the question on the 10-year-old problem involving 2,700 overstaying Chinese in the Philippines during his state visit to Taipei.

The Chief Executive said he has decided to keep silent temporarily on this issue, as it would not be conducive to his projected goodwill visit to Formosa.

President Garcia appeared in buoyant spirit this morning apparently as the reception in Occidental Negros far exceeded his expectations.

After breakfast he met newsmen and chatted with them up to lunch-time. After lunch he retired to his cabin for rest.

The ship left Bacolod at 6 a.m. and, in spite of choppy sea and rain, it raced to avoid the depression reportedly in Surigao.

Heavy sea kept most of the presidential party in their cabins and very few ventured to lunch.

However, at 8 p.m., the waves subsided and the yacht proceeded smoothly up north of Dumalig, Mindoro, leaving the depression about 200 miles behind.

April 23.—PRESIDENT Garcia returned from a four-day trip to Bacolod City, where he inaugurated several projects in Negros Occidental in a fresh bid to strengthen his political position in that sugarland.

The yacht Lapu-Lapu, which withstand the effects of a trailing tropical storm, docked at the Manila harbor at 8:30 o'clock this morning.

The President was met at the pier by Executive Secretary Natalio P. Castillo and Brig. Gen. Isagani V. Campo, chief of the Constabulary.

The President, upon landing in Manila, proceeded to his private residence on Bohol Avenue, Quezon City.

The President was in a light mood after his successful trip, during which he conferred with Public Works Secretary Florencio Moreno on the Senate Blue Ribbon Committee's proposal to delay the construction of the Marikina multi-million project.

Moreno also discussed with the President the implementation of Reorganization Plan 60, which may revamp the Public Service Commission.

The President assured Secretary Moreno he would study the reorganization plan first before he starts implementing the proposal.

President Garcia also discussed with newsmen varied subjects, including his decision to send Brig. Gen. Alfredo Santos to the United States to study the intricacies of missiles and nuclear weapons. However, the President carefully referred to nuclear and missiles as "modern weapons."

"If one wants to study the antiquated forms of arms," the President told newsmen, "he should go to a museum."

IN the evening he received Ambassador Narciso Ramos, Philippine envoy to Taipei, who returned today to confer with the President on the latter's projected state visit to Taipei.

Ramos assured the President that there was high enthusiasm in the projected visit of the Chief Executive to Formosa early next month.

President's Week in Review: April 24-30, 1960

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

April 24.—EARLY this morning the President and the First Lady were fetched from their Bohol Avenue residence in Quezon City by Lt. Gen. Manuel F. Cabal, chief of staff of the Armed Forces, and Brig. Gen. Pedro Q. Molina, chief of the Philippine Air Force, to the Araneta Coliseum where they heard a welcome mass celebrated by Rufino J. Cardinal Santos.

After the mass the President and the First Lady returned home for breakfast.

He spent most of the day at his study room where he went over the draft of his many speeches which he will deliver during his state visit to Taipei.

PRESIDENT Garcia today issued Executive Order No. 391, declaring Mangagoy, in Bislig, Surigao, open to both foreign and coastwise trade.

In declaring Mangagoy a subport of entry, the President took cognizance of the necessity to stimulate commerce and trade in Surigao and nearby provinces by providing an outlet for their products.

The subport of Mangagoy will be administratively under the jurisdiction of the collector of customs of Tacloban, who shall assign the necessary personnel and prescribe rules and regulations for the conduct of business at such port, with the approval of the secretary of finance.

The commissioner of immigration and the director of quarantine will also assign personnel from their offices to take charge of immigration and quarantine matters at said port.

April 25.—THE President directed Quezon City Mayor Norberto Amoranto and Councilor Conrado Benitez to confer with General Manager Bernardo Torres of the People's Homesite and Housing Corporation on the problem of relocating ousted squatters from the Quezon Memorial Park. The two officials saw the President to find ways and means of relocating squatters at the Quezon Memorial Park.

The President also told the Quezon City officials to coordinate plan with Labor Secretary Angel Castaño on the creation of an employment service and construction of tenement houses for laborers in Quezon City.

The QC officials told the President that while Quezon City is growing and expanding, its housing and unemployment problems are growing more acute.

Mayor Amoranto said that the demolition of squatter houses in the national park in Quezon City has already started with 50 houses already demolished. He said some 2,000 families will be displaced by the demolition order which will pose a serious social problem in that city.

The President also received William Hunt, chairman of the Security Columbian Banknote Company, who took up with the President the plan to set up a $7 million security printing plant in the Philippines to print Philippine currencies.

Hunt told the President the plant will ultimately print in addition stamps, stocks and bonds, and other business forms utilizing local raw materials for the purpose.

The President told Hunt to discuss the plan thoroughly with Secretary Serafin Salvador of the General Services.

Hunt was accompanied by Rep. Salipada Pendatun of Cotabato.

President Garcia today assured officials of the Philippine Long Distance Telephone Company that the government telephone system would not compete with the PLDT.

The President expressed belief that the two systems can co-exist and suggested that the PLDT officials discuss arrangements with Public Works Secretary Florencio Moreno to effect close coordination.

The President gave this assurance during an official call this morning in which the PLDT officials told the President that the Company will soon undertake a ₱107 million modernization and expansion program in the country.

The PLDT officials who called on the President were H. W. Reed, general manager; R. Hugh, vice-president and comptroller; and Gabriel Daza, vice-president and treasurer.

The President today said five Cabinet members and three Congress members, including one representing the opposition, will accompany him in his six-day state visit to Taipei, Formosa. The First Lady will accompany the President.

The presidential party is scheduled to leave on the morning of May 2, 1960, and will return to Manila on May 7, 1960. The presidential trip is purely one of goodwill and in acceptance of an invitation formally sent in by Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek.

President Garcia today approved the opening of bids for telecommunications equipment in Tokyo for the expansion and improvement projects of the Bureau of Telecommunications.

In a communication sent to the General Auditing Office, the President decided that the procurement of capital goods and services for financing the expansion and improvement of the Bureau of Telecommunications shall be effected in the manner provided for the procurement of any reparations goods by any government agency as provided in Republic Act No. 1789, as amended by Republic Act No. 2611.

The General Auditing Office had previously sent an inquiry to the President.

President Garcia today granted a 24-hour extension to Bureau of Supply Director Aguedo Y. Gepte within which to answer charges of gross negligence, dishonesty, and incompetence filed against him.

The President denied Gepte's petition for a one-week extension. The 24-hour extension will expire tomorrow, April 26. The 72 hours previously given Gepte expired last Friday, April 22.

April 26.—TO RESIDENT Garcia today instructed Ambassador Jose Ma. Delgado to convey personally to Pope John XXIII the gratitude of the Filipino people for the naming of the first Filipino cardinal.

Ambassador Delgado, who had accompanied Rufino J. Cardinal Santos from Rome to the Philippines, came to say goodbye before returning to the Vatican tomorrow to resume his post after a brief stay here.

The President also received Enrique Bouffard, who is embarking on a project to provide barrio people and poor fishermen with cheaper lamps which will be mass-produced in the Philippines.

The President devoted most of his time clearing his desk of important matters and preparing some speeches which he will deliver during his state visit to Taipei next week.

April 27.—PRESIDENT Garcia today told the officials of the Agricultural Credit and Cooperative Financing Administration to reconcile their differences of opinions and work together for the interest of farmers.

The President summoned the ACCFA officials to a conference in Malacañang this morning after he had expressed grave concern over reported wranglings between the administration and the management which, he said, “might hamper ACCFA operations.”

After hearing both sides during the lengthy session, the President concluded that there were no fundamental differences involved and that management and administration should maintain close harmony to make the ACCFA succeed in its mission.

The bone of contention between Administrator Vicente Araneta and the Board was a contract entered into between the old board and a private contractor for the hauling of hogshead of tobacco at ₱14.85 per hogshead when the ACCFA could have obtained it at ₱11.50 under a special rate.

Administrator Araneta had questioned its legality and wanted the contract abrogated.

The ACCFA Board, however, informed the President that the Department of Justice had laid down a ruling declaring the contract legal and that the corporation could not unilaterally abrogate it.

Araneta was later able to obtain a reduction of the rate stipulated in the contract to ₱12.85 per hogshead, effecting a total saving of ₱63,000 for the ACCFA.

The President told the ACCFA officials that since the corporation had relinquished its tobacco operations to the Philippine Virginia Tobacco Administration, it was up to the PVTa to decide whether or not to abrogate the contract.

The President said the ACCFA activities need the full attention of both management and administration and that it would do well for them to cooperate and maintain harmony within the corporation.

Among those present during the conference were Administrator Araneta, ACCFA Governors Celestino Paulin, Jose Ma. Gomez, Apolinario Marasigan, Leopoldo Uichangco, Lorenzo Sarmiento, and Rafael Piguing.

Earlier, the President received a delegation from Leyte, headed by Speaker Daniel Z. Romualdez and Gov. Ildefonso Cinco.

The delegation requested the release of funds for aid and the reconstruction of provincial and national roads destroyed by the last rains and typhoons.

Gov. Cinco said that it would need at least ₱1.6 million to repair the roads by landslides and floods caused by the heavy rains in Leyte.

Those who called on the President with Speaker Romualdez and Gov. Cinco were Vice-Governor Ramon Torres, Jr., Board Member Emiliano Melgazo, Tacloban City Mayor Artemio Mate, and others.

The President also received Ex-President Sergio Osmeña, who called to say goodbye before returning to Cebu after spending a few weeks vacation in Baguio and Manila.

Another morning caller was Bohol Gov. Esteban Bernido.

PLEDGES to intensify and broaden the base of friendship, trade, and cultural relations already existing between the Philippines and the Netherlands were exchanged this afternoon by President Garcia and the New Netherlands Ambassador Reinhard Neuerburg at the Malacañang ceremonial hall.

The pledges were exchanged when Ambassador Neuerburg presented to the President Garcia his letter of credence signed by Her Majesty Queen Juliana, accrediting Neuerburg as the Netherlands ambassador.

For the past two years, the new ambassador had been accredited to the Philippine Government as envoy extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary of the Netherlands to the Philippines. His government promoted him in rank.

Upon arrival at Malacañang, Ambassador Neuerburg received full military honors from a crack unit of the Presidential Guards Battalion.

Present at the ceremony were Executive Secretary Natalio P. Castillo, Foreign Affairs Undersecretary Fructuoso Cabahug, representing Secretary Felixberto Serrano, Commerce Secretary Manuel Lim, Public Works Secretary Florencio Moreno, PCAPE Chairman Buenaventura Ocampo, Administrator Juan O. Chioco of the Economic Coordination, Finance Secretary Dominador Aytona, SWA Administrator Amparo Villamor, Labor Undersecretary Agapito Braganza, Malacañang protocol officer Manuel Zamora, Minister Manuel Collantes, DFA protocol officer Rodolfo Nazareno.

President Garcia today extended the tour of duty of Brig. Gen Isagani V. Campo, PC chief, beyond last March 7 when he was supposed to have retired for completing 30 years of service.

The Palace directives signed by Executive Secretary Natalio Castillo and addressed to Defense Secretary Alejo Santos, said Campo's tour was extended "until further advice."

A copy of the directive was hand-carried to Campo's residence by a military assistant of Secretary Castillo.

Campo headed a list of several officers scheduled to retire within the first six months of this year. However, it could not immediately be determined whether the President acted on the others' retirement.

THE banning of moving pictures produced in communist countries was decided this evening by President Garcia and his Cabinet.

The ban was prompted by reports that a current movie in a downtown theater was produced in Russia-controlled East Germany.

President Garcia explained the Philippines has neither diplomatic nor trade relations with communist countries.

He directed Executive Secretary Natalio Castillo to investigate reports that the showing of the film was approved only by one member of the movie censor's board. The usual board practice is to review a film by at least a committee of three.

The Cabinet also discussed the question of whether the government should allow persons other than the tenant-occupants to buy subdivided lots of a 45-hectare portion of the San Pedro Tunasan estate in Laguna which the Land Tenure Administration is buying from Zoilo Alberto, its present owner. Alberto is said to be willing to sell the property.

The question cropped up because the land has been converted into residential after the Supreme Court decision in 1954 allowing the government to expropriate the property.

Mabanag told the Cabinet that, if the sale of the lots were limited to the tenant-occupants, they would be occupying portions as big as four hectares.

No decision was reached by the Cabinet pending further study of the question.

The President adjourned the Cabinet meeting shortly after 8 o'clock and motored to the Far Eastern University auditorium, where he addressed the Tenth Asian Conference of Jaycees.

In his speech the President extolled the valuable role of the Jaycees in fostering friendship, mutual understanding, and mutual help among nations of Asia in order to promote trade and political stability.

April 28.—PRESIDENT Garcia this morning boarded the yacht Lapu-Lapu to give him ample time to go over the draft of his speeches which he intended to deliver during the course of his six-day state visit to Taipei early next week.

Before going to the boat, the President conferred with Executive Secretary Natalio P. Castillo on pending state problems needing the attention of the Chief Executive.

The President saw Castillo first before he went into isolation aboard the yacht. He had been going over the draft of the several speeches and he wanted them completed before the week-end.

The President returned to Malacañang in the afternoon where he received a big delegation of fishermen affiliated with the Federation of Free Farmers.

This afternoon the President pledged all possible government assistance to improve the economic situation of small fishermen to about 3,000 members of the Federation of Free Fishermen of the Philippines who went to Malacañang in a flotilla of small motorized fishing bancas.

The President pointed out that he had issued a directive to Chairman Gregorio Licaros of the Development Bank of the Philippines to set aside the sum of ₱50 million annually for small character loans to fishermen as one of the measures adopted by the Administration in its efforts to promote the well-being of the fishermen.

He also explained the efforts of the government in stamping out fishing with dynamite in order to conserve the marine resources of the country. He pleaded for the support of the fishermen in this regard.

The Chief Executive said that the small fishermen should not shirk from their duty to expose illegal dynamite fishermen who are rapidly depleting the fishing areas.

With respect to the request of the fishermen for more dollars for the importation of kerosene lamps, outboard motors, and other fishing paraphernalia, the President said it would get top priority from the Central Bank.

He told the fishermen to improve their fishing techniques in order to catch more fish and in this way help the country preserve dollars which are being used for the importation of canned fish products.

The President expressed the fear that once the importation of canned fish products is stopped as requested by the fishermen, the price of fish in local markets would start to rise because the local catch is not sufficient at present to feed the whole country.

The demolition of illegally constructed dykes in Pampanga and Bulacan, as ordered by the President and the Cabinet, is being delayed by affected landowners who have resorted to court actions, the President explained.

The President also said he would direct the dredging of the canal leading to the Fishermen's Village in Tondo, as petitioned by Arcadio Nuestro, president of the Samahang Mangingisda.

Former Agriculture Secretary Juan de G. Rodriguez, who spoke before the President, cited the efforts of the government to encourage deep sea fishing and establish more canneries.

April 29.—PRESIDENT Garcia today reiterated his determination to pursue relentlessly the campaign against graft and corruption in the government.

Speaking before some 160 city and provincial treasurers and assessors this morning aboard the yacht Lapu-Lapu, the President assured the local fiscal officials that the government was in earnest and that they can do a lot to make the campaign a success by making themselves the first line of defense.

The President pointed out that most malversation and misappropriation acts are committed where public money is handled, such as in the treasurers' offices, and that it is always better to prevent a crime at the source than to impose punishment after it had already been committed.

The President appealed to the treasurers and assessors to apply the old adage an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure," which he said, is realistically correct in this case.

The treasurers and assessors who called on the President aboard the RPS Lapu-Lapu to wish him bon voyage on his trip to Taiwan were led by, Albay Provincial Treasurer Jorge Labayo, president; Rizal Assessor Jose Perez, vice-president; Pampanga Provincial Treasurer Ambrosio Canivel, treasurer; Quezon Provincial Assessor E. Antona, secretary; Wilfredo Chiong, PRO; and Candido Enriquez of Bataan, Doroteo Joson of Nueva Ecija, Juan Taala of Negros Occidental, Hadji Urang Naga of Lanao del Sur, Amado Oliveros of Caloocan, Rizal, Sergio Calizo of Mambusao, Capiz, and Manuel Pacana of El Salvador, Misamis Oriental, representatives.

Earlier, the President received another big group composed of municipal and city court judges who are currently holding their convention in Manila.

The members of the Association of City and Municipal Judges petitioned the President to certify to Congress the urgency of a bill including them in the retirement law.

The local judges told the President that as a result of the grant of more local autonomy, they are now handling over 50 per cent of cases which formerly were handled by the courts of first instance, and that they are now courts of record.

The President was applauded when he assured them that he will certify to the urgency of the retirement bill to Congress so that they can also avail of the benefits of the Retirement Law.

The 40-man delegation was headed by Judge Andres Sta. Maria of the Manila municipal court, president, and Judge Generoso A. Buendia of Baguio City, treasurer.

Another caller on the President was Finance Secretary Dominador Aytona, who briefed the Chief Executive on the progress of the clean-up drive of the Department of Finance and the initial effects of the decontrol plan.

The President also received SEATO naval officers who are in Manila with a 43-ship flotilla to put into effect Operation "Sea Lions" designed to improve defense coordination and training in naval tactics.

The officials who were accompanied by Commodore Jose Francisco, chief of the Philippine Navy, were Rear Adm. W. H. Harrington, flag officer and in command of the Australian fleet; Rear Adm. V. C. Begg, flag officer and second in command of the British fleet in the Far East; Rear Adm. J. D. Black, commander of the U.S. 17th carrier division; Commander R. A. Muntaz, commander of the anti-submarine brigade, Pakistan; Gapt. J. M. Goutier, French anti-aircraft destroyer commander; and Lt. T. B. Florendo, commander of RPS Zamboanga, Philippines.

The President also received Sens. Alejandro Almendras, Roseller T. Lim, and Domocao Alonto, who discussed MINSUPALA affairs with him.

A group of Japanese businessmen also called on the President and presented the Chief Executive with a transistorized, wall clock manufactured in Japan.

Those who called on the President, accompanied by PHHC Gen. Manager Bernardo Torres, were Y. Yoshioka and M. Matsuda, president and sales manager, respectively, of Tokyo Electric; Mike S. Miura and Toshio Iguchi, of Toho Industrial Co.; and Juan P. Juan and V. Labayong, president and vice-president, respectively, of the J. P. Juan and Co., local distributors of Toshiba transistors, transistorized clocks, and fluorescent lamps.

President Garcia today conveyed to Japanese Emperor Hirohito “warmest greetings and sincerest felicitations” on the occasion of the latter’s 59th birthday anniversary.

April 30.—THIS morning the President received a delegation of schools superintendents headed by Fructuoso Yanson of Negros Occidental. Yanson is the new president of the association of school superintendents.

The schools superintendents were accompanied to Malacañang by Education Secretary Jose E. Romero.

After receiving the superintendents, the President motored to Caloocan, Rizal, where he opened the newly-constructed ₱1.3 million hospital of the Manila Railroad Company.

After coming from the MRR hospital in Caloocan, President Garcia inducted the new officers of the Government Prosecutors League of the Philippines and found it a fitting occasion to enlist the government fiscals behind his anti-graft campaign.

The President was fetched from Malacañang by Solicitor General Edilberto Barot and Chief Prosecutor Baldomero Villamor.

Early this morning the President boarded the yacht Lapu-Lapu, where he went over the final drafts of his speeches which he will deliver during the course of his six-day state visit to Taipei.

President's Week in Review: May 1-7, 1960

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

May 1 —THIS morning the President motored to the Nichols Airport where he was honored by the Philippine Air Force on the occasion of the silver jubilee ceremonies of the PAF.

In a brief speech the President reiterated his policy of supporting any move to prevent another world war.

He deplored war as a dissipation of huge amounts appropriated for armaments which he said could have been channeled to more useful and peaceful means.

This afternoon the President led the nation in paying tribute to labor and the workingman.

In a prepared address which he read at the New Luneta, the President said his administration was supporting any move to help labor and explained further his Filipino First policy to wrest control of the local economy from aliens.

The President motored to the Luneta at 4:30 o'clock and delivered a 30-minute address.

He expounded on the need of utilizing Filipino workers in factories and other fields of enterprise as he underscored the full implementation of his policy of economic nationalism.

Significantly, the President harped anew on his Filipino First policy on the eve of his departure for a six-day state visit to Taipei where he will surely face the issue of economic nationalism in Taipei.

In the evening the President conferred with former Executive Secretary Juan C. Pajo, who returned the other day from Taipei where he supervised preparations by Philippine embassy officials for the six-day state visit of the Chief Executive beginning today.

Pajo was reported to have told the President of the general enthusiasm in Taipei for President Garcia's coming visit.

This enthusiasm was believed generated by the numerous problems confronting the relations between the Philippines and Taipei.

May 2. —THIS morning President Garcia flew to Taipei for a six-day state visit in acceptance of a long-standing invitation of the Chinese Nationalist Government.

Accompanying the Chief Executive on his visit were the First Lady, Foreign Affairs Secretary Felixberto Serrano, National Defense Secretary Alejo Santos Public Works Secretary Florencio Moreno, Commerce Secretary Manuel Lim, Sen. Gil J. Puyat, Reps. Ramon P. Mitra of Mt. Province and Benedicto Padilla of Rizal, Fernando Campos, and Col. Jorge Delarmente, senior aide.

Before leaving for Taipei, the President issued an executive order laying down the procedure to be followed in the conduct of public affairs during his week-long absence from the country.

The order provides that the Chief Executive shall continue to exercise the functions of his office in the same manner as when he is in the Philippines.

The order empowers Executive Secretary Natalio P. Castillo to sign all papers that are ordinarily signed by him by or under the authority of the President. It also authorized the holding of meetings of the Cabinet with the Secretary of Finance presiding.

The President and the First Lady, after hearing an early mass and receiving Holy Communion, left Malacañang for the airport at 7:30 am accompanied by friends and well-wishers, and preceded by a motorcycle escort.

The motorcade passed through Ayala to Dewey Boulevard where two bamboo arches, one put up by the Chinese community, bade the President and his party bon voyage and success.

Along Pasay streets, the presidential route was lined with some 30 streamers giving the President and his party a warm send-off.

At 8 a.m., as soon as the presidential party reached the Domestic airport, a 21-gun salute boomed in welcome, after which the President reviewed a composite battalion of the Army, Constabulary, Navy, and Airforce which formed his guard of honor.

After the review the President ascended the ramp of the sleek PAL Viscount plane (PI-C772) that was to take him and his party to Taipei.

At the last minute before take-off (8:30 a.m.), upon the repeated clamor of his well-wishers, the President appeared again at the plane's door and waved good-bye to the big crowd.

The crowd of well-wishers who saw the President off at the Manila International Airport were led by Senate President Protempore Fernando Lopez, Mrs. Luisa Rodriguez (wife of Senate President Rodriguez who was indisposed) Sen. Ambrosio Padilla, Justice Sabino Padilla, Apostolic Nuncio Salvatore Siino, Lt. Gen. Manuel F. Cabal, AFP chief of staff, and other ranking officials of the executive, legislative, and judiciary branches of the government.

The President waited for a member of his official party, Mrs. Paz Romualdez, who arrived at the airport at exactly 8:29 o'clock. Mrs. Romualdez was accompanied by the Speaker.

Reports reaching Manila from Taipei said the usually bad weather which had imperilled plane flights to the Taiwan capital cleared this day to give the presidential aircraft a safe landing.

However, an hour after the President's arrival, weather worsened anew in Taipei preventing the return flight of the PAL plane.

Generalissimo and Madame Chiang Kai-shek were on hand at the Sung-shan military airport to greet personally President and Mrs. Garcia.

The Generalissimo and Madame Chiang walked up the red carpet to the ramp of the President's plane as the President and Mrs. Garcia descended from the PAL plane.

President Garcia and the Generalissimo mounted a red-covered dais while a military band played the Philippine and Chinese national anthems. A 21-gun salute boomed to greet President Garcia.

Following the airport ceremonies, Generalissimo Chiang rode with his distinguished visitor to the Golden Dragon wing of the Grand Hotel along a processional route teeming with throngs waving Chinese and Filipino flags.

The President and the First Lady had lunch at the Yuan Shan, which will be their residence while in Taipei.

Vice-President and Madame Chen Seng greeted the President and Mrs. Garcia at their quarters.

President Garcia and Generalissimo Chiang exchanged decorations. The day's schedule was capped by a state dinner given by Generalissimo and Madame Chiang at the presidential office building last night.

May 3.—PRESIDENT Garcia, on the second day of his six-day state visit to Taipei, visited Taoyuan, some 28 miles away from Taipei, to view the land reform and rural reconstruction program.

The land reform program in Taoyuan has been one of the important visitors' spots Taiwan always lines up to its guests.

President Garcia lauded the Chinese Nationalists' land reforms as "one of the most successful in the world."

He observed that the land reforms in Taoyuan has eased the population pressure in the island of Taiwan.

Before motoring to Taoyuan, the President received Mayor Huang Chi-jui of Taipei. Mayor Huang was recently re-elected mayor of the Taiwan capital. He presented to the Philippine President the symbolic key to the city.

The Taipei mayor was a recent Manila visitor and recalled his visit to the Philippines. He is Mayor Arsenio H. Lacson's friend. He also recalled that he had also met Mayor Macario Asistio of Caloocan, Rizal.

Before receiving the Taipei mayor, the President motored to the martyr's shrine and laid a wreath at the tomb of 500 soldiers who gave their lives defending the last citadel of Taoyuan, capital of Shensi province.

In his trip to Taoyuan the President was favored by clearer weather. The thick fog which had imperilled air travel in Taiwan had dissipated.

The President also visited the China Artificial Fiber Corporation in Toufeng.

The President had lunch at Toufeng and then motored to the Institute of Nuclear Science of the National Sing Hua University.

The President followed a tight schedule, unaware that routinary military alert in South Formosa had caused a furor in the Philippines.

May 4. —UNDAUNTED by the "red alert" in Formosa, President and Mrs. Garcia went through their schedule this day and flew to Kangshan in Central Taiwan to review the vaunted Chinese Nationalist Airforce. At the airbase the President witnessed performance of air acrobatics of Chinese Nationalist flyers.

From Kangshan, the President flew to Kaohsiung to view the base of the Chinese Nationalist Navy. The President was accompanied on this tour by Chinese Vice-President and Premier Chen Cheng.

The President was impressed by the air and naval forces of the Chinese Nationalist Government and their indoctrination rallying them behind their leader, Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek.

Before leaving for these two military bases, the President was briefed by military officials at the Ministry of National Defense. He was cautioned against getting alarmed at news reports of a "red alert." Military officials in Taiwan told the President that Formosa has always been on "red alert" since the Communists took over the China mainland.

President and Mrs. Garcia are scheduled to visit the Kaohsiung Refinery of the Chinese Petroleum Corporation.

After receiving military honors at the Chinese naval base, the President and the First Lady were scheduled to stay overnight at the Taipei Lake Hotel. But before retiring for the night, the President will visit the Kaoshiung harbor aboard a launch. Then they will visit the Taiwan Aluminum Corporation plant, the Fusing Lumber Mill, and later return to the Tapei Lake Hotel.

May 5. —PRESIDENT Garcia spent the four days of his six-day State visit to Formosa visiting places in that Chinese Nationalist island stronghold. He stayed overnight at the Grand Hotel in Kaohsiung, Central Formosa, and visited Pintung where he inspected units of the Chinese Nationalist Army this morning.

After spending 20 minutes in Pintung, the President boarded a plane for Taichung, Central Formosa, where he had lunch with Gov. Chow Chih-jou of Taiwan province.

The President was originally scheduled to spend last night at the Tapei Lake Hotel. However, he spent the night at the Grand Hotel in Kaohsiung after he was informed that the lake hotel did not have air-conditioning facilities. It was hot and humid in Central Formosa.

From Taichung, the President flew back to Taipei and arrived at the Formosan capital in mid-afternoon. President Garcia rested at the Yuan Shan, his quarters in Taipei, which is at the Dragon Court of the Grand Hotel.

After resting at his quarters, the President addressed the Sino-Philippine Cultural and Economic Association and other Chinese civic organizations. The affair was given in honor of the visiting Philippine Chief Executive.

President Garcia, in his first public address, traced the friendly relations between the Philippines and China.

He recalled from Philippine history that Chinese sampans and traders had reached the Philippine archipelago even before Magellan discovered the islands.

The President also informed his listeners that Dr. Jose Rizal, the foremost Filipino hero, and former President Sergio Osmeña have Chinese blood. It was a revelation that had assured his listeners of more substantial gains in the President's scheduled talks with Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek today.

In his speech before the Sino-Philippine Cultural and Economic Association, the President assured his Chinese Nationalist audience of the Philippine position to oppose Communism. He recalled that the Philippines has always voted against the seating of Communist China in the United Nations.

EXECUTIVE Secretary Natalio P. Castillo today ordered the immediate termination of the services of all municipal, barrio, and rural policemen and special agents working without compensation or with the nominal salary of one peso per annum, in compliance with a provincial executive order signed by President Garcia before his departure for Taipei.

The order was issued in view of reports that certain municipal executives had appointed special policemen and agents and granted them all powers and privileges of police officers, including the power to possess high-powered firearms.

Secretary Castillo expressed the fear these temporary policemen might become a serious problem in the future and that they may be utilized by unscrupulous persons for terrorist and other illegal activities to promote political or private ends.

The Executive Secretary advised officials of cities and municipalities in urgent need of more policemen to cope with adverse conditions of peace and order in the barrios to create additional positions of policemen at the authorized rate of compensation.

He said that all requisites applicable to the creation of positions of regular members of the local police force should be complied with, such as, the adoption of a duly approved budget and plantilla.

Secretary Castillo added that all appointments to such duly created positions will be subject to civil service rules and regulations.

May 6.—PRESIDENT Garcia achieved a singular achievement today by being the first visiting head of state to address the Legislative Yuan in a regular session.

President Garcia delivered his major address this morning and discussed various topics, namely on issues which have plagued the relations between the Philippines and Taiwan.

The President also conferred with Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek. It was believed the two heads of state discussed broadly the question of 2,700 overstaying Chinese temporary visitors in the Philippines.

The President and the First Lady heard mass today at St. Christopher Catholic Church, it being the first Friday of the month.

While the President followed a separate schedule, the First Lady also went through her own itinerary.

As President Garcia was addressing the Legislative Yuan, Mrs. Garcia visited the Veterans Hospital, the Hua Hsin Nursery, Yang Ming Shan, and the Chinese Women's Anti-Aggression League.

Mrs. Garcia was also honored with a reception by the National Pharmaceutical Association.

President and Mrs. Garcia this morning gave a state banquet in honor of President and Madame Chiang.

The Philippines' First Lady, Mrs. Leonila D. Garcia, shared the public spotlight during President Garcia's fourth-day stay in Taipei.

Reports reaching Manila said Mrs. Garcia took advantage of free schedule last night and went dancing at Taipei's popular Hotel ballroom. The place is noted for its excellent music furnished by Filipino musicians and vocalists.

It was a proof that becoming a First Lady in the Philippines does not give one certain false detachments. And that democratic ways in the Philippines are not lost even in a state visit to a foreign country.

May 7.—UPON arrival from Taipei this afternoon, President Garcia expressed confidence that the problems irritating Philippine-Chinese relations will be solved "very promptly" as a result of his state visit to Taipei.

Reporting to the people immediately upon stepping down from his plane at the Manila Domestic Terminal, the President said that they come home happy in the knowledge that he and his delegation "had accomplished some service for the country abroad."

The President said that in his discussions with President Chiang Kai-shek and other leaders of the Chinese Republic, he has found common agreement on almost 90 per cent of the topics discussed and that he feels confident that the "republic to the north is a rampart of freedom where men have the capacity to rise equal to any challenge in defense of the principles of freedom."

The President also reported to the nation that he had left Public Works Secretary Florencio Moreno in Taipei to study the power projects being undertaken in that country so that the construction of the Marikina multipurpose dam can be benefited by some suggestions or ideas he may gather there.

The President arrived from Taipei at 5:30 p.m., accompanied by Mrs. Garcia, Mrs. Daniel Romualdez, Foreign Affairs Secretary Felixberto Serrano, Commerce Secretary and Mrs. Manuel Lim, National Defense Secretary Alejo Santos, Senator Gil J. Puyat, Rep. Benedicto Padilla, and Rep. and Mrs. Ramon P. Mitra.

On hand to meet the President and his party at the airport were some 30,000 government officials, laborers and employees, students, boy scouts, veterans, provincial delegations, and a big delegation from Chinese community.

The welcomers were headed by Senate President Eulogio Rodriguez, Speaker Daniel Romualdez, Executive Secretary Natalio P. Castillo, Labor Secretary Angel M. Castaño, PCAPE Chairman Buenaventura Ocampo, Acting Health Secretary Rafael Tumbokon, Finance Secretary Dominador R. Aytona, Sens. Fernando Lopez and Cipriano Primicias, and Assistant Executive Secretary Enrique C. Quema;

Members of the diplomatic corps headed by Papal Nuncio Msgr. Salvatore Siino, Reps. Emilio Cortez of Pampanga and Miguel Cuenco of Cebu, AFP Chief of Staff Lt. Gen. Manuel F. Cabal, PC Chief Brig. Gen. Isagani Campo, and PN Chief Commodore Jose Francisco.

The PAL viscount plane bearing the presidential party appeared over the airport at 5:25 p.m. escorted by four sleek jet fighter planes of the Philippine Air Force.

As the President alighted from the ramp of the plane, he was given welcome kiss by daughter Linda, and a lei by Mrs. Luisa Rodriguez.

The President and his party were given the “Red Carpet” as they proceeded to shake the hands of the welcomers. Then the President went to the reviewing stand and saluted the flag as the Philippine Constabulary Band played the National Anthem and the 21-gun salute boomed.

After reviewing the composite battalion commanded by Lt. Col. Faustino R. Sebastian, the President walked to the fence railing and acknowledged the cheers of the general public. Then he ascended the improvised platform and delivered his brief extemporaneous speech.

After the ceremonies at the Domestic Airport, the President and the First Lady motored to Malacañang, passing through a gay decorated route thickly lined with people who were anxious to get a glimpse of their President and First Lady.

President's Week in Review: May 8-14, 1960

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

May 8.—PRESIDENT and Mrs. Carlos P. Garcia this morning heard a Thanksgiving mass at the Malacañang chapel. The mass was celebrated in thanksgiving for the safe return of the President and his party from their six-day state visit to Taipei.

After hearing mass which started at 8 a.m., the President and the First Lady entertained friends and relatives at a breakfast in Malacañang.

Present at the mass and breakfast were Finance Secretary and Mrs. Dominador R. Aytona, Executive Secretary and Mrs. Natalio P. Castillo, Assistant Executive Secretary and Mrs. Enrique C. Quema, Mr. and Mrs. Fernando Campos, PC Chief Brig. Gen. Isagani Campo, and others.

After breakfast the President closeted himself with Executive Secretary Castillo and went over important pending state papers.

Then the President motored to his Bohol Avenue residence in Quezon City for a much needed rest.

May 9.—PRESIDENT Garcia today ordered the airlifting to Manila of Andres Maxi of Calauag, Quezon, who is suffering from a gunshot wound in his lungs.

Maxi had been treated at the Lopez Emergency Hospital, and was airlifted to Manila by a U.S. Air Force helicopter and brought to the Philippine General Hospital for operation following the President's order.

The President also directed that Susana Odone, a mental case, of Silang, Lopez, Quezon, be brought to the National Mental Hospital for treatment.

Both Maxi and Odone are indigents and were brought to the attention of Miss Remy Aguila, PCAPE field operations officer, in the course of her inspection of local governments in Quezon, by the barrio lieutenants of Calauag and Lopez.

President Garcia today stayed in his private residence on Bohol Avenue, Quezon City, where he went over pending state papers which had piled up during his six-day state visit to Taiwan. The President did not receive callers in the morning as he devoted the whole day to going over pending papers.

In the afternoon the President received Foreign Affairs Secretary Felixberto M. Serrano and the members of the Philippine delegation to the Council of Minister conference in Washington of the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization early next month.

With Serrano were Lt. Gen. Manuel Cabal, chief of staff of the Armed Forces, and Col. Nicanor T. Jimenez. The President briefed the PI delegation before its departure for Washington this week.

Serrano also took up with the President the rumpus raised by former Speaker Jose B. Laurel in protesting the radio statements of the foreign affairs secretary which had allegedly embarrassed and weakened the position of the Philippine panel in Tokyo negotiating for a treaty of amity, commerce, and navigation with Japan.

Laurel cabled the President in Taipei resigning the chairmanship of the PI delegation in Tokyo. He accused Serrano of "meddling."

The President assured Serrano that he was considering the “case as a closed matter.” He issued a statement on the matter reiterating his confidence in his foreign affairs secretary and in Laurel.

The President also conferred briefly with Legislative Secretary Vicente Logarta, who brought with him a thick pile of pending measures for the certification of the Chief Executive.

The President has to certify the urgency of bills before Congress could act on these measures 15 days before adjournment of the current session.

May 10.—PRESIDENT Garcia imposed today what his aides called a “visitors’ blackout,” which means that he was not disposed to receive his callers until after the end of the regular session on May 19.

The President stayed in his private residence on Bohol Avenue in Quezon City and later motored to Malacañang where he conferred with Executive Secretary Natalio P. Castillo on pending state papers.

It appeared that the President wanted to clear the backlog of state papers which had piled up during his six-day state visit to Taipei.

President Garcia also received Legislative Secretary Vicente Logarta, who briefed the President on the status of administration measures which have so far failed to pull through the legislative mill.

The President went over a thick pile of bills requiring Malacañang certification before Congress could act on them. Under the law, 15 days before adjournment of the regular session, Congress could not act on bills unless they have the President’s certification to their urgency.

In the evening the President returned to his Quezon City residence, where he had scheduled a dinner conference with the members of the Council of Leaders.

The President called the council to a dinner conference in a move to enlist stronger support to administration measures which have been hanging fire in either chamber of Congress or both.

Present at the conference were Senate President Eulogio Rodriguez, Senate President Protempore Fernando Lopez, Senate Majority Floor Leader Cipriano Primicias, Speaker Protempore Constancio E. Castañeda, House Majority Floor Leader Jose Aldeguer, Assistant House Majority Floor Leader Justiniano S. Montano, and Rep. Lorenzo Teves.

At press time Speaker Daniel Z. Romualdez had not yet shown up. Romualdez said he would attend the conference after meeting a previous engagement.

The President and the Council of Leaders took up various bills, including the budget and the anti-graft measures which he wanted pushed through before the adjournment of the regular session of Congress on May 19.

Congress leaders this evening assured President Garcia of the passage of important administration measures, including the $12 billion budget and the anti-graft bill, before the adjournment of the regular session on May 19.

Senate President Eulogio Rodriguez and Speaker Romualdez assured the President that the budget will go through both chambers before adjournment time on May 19.

The budget had passed the lower house and is scheduled to be reported on the Senate floor today.

Rep. Montano also assured the President of the passage of the House version of the anti-graft bill, which seeks to punish influence peddling.

Montano said the anti-graft bill, which has been pending in Senate-House conference committee, may be reported for ratification of both houses this week.

Speaker Romualdez also said that his chamber would act on proposed amendments to the Reparations Law and implement President Garcia's state-of-the-nation message calling for legislative remedies to plug the loopholes in the war indemnity act.

The proposed amendments seek to exclude the participation of middlemen in applications for the purchase of reparations goods from Japan.

The revision would authorize end-users to deal directly with suppliers.

Reparations Commission officials claimed the existing statute on the acquisition of war indemnity goods allows the intervention of brokers, and this has reportedly spawned cases of overpricing in the purchase of reparations goods.

Another measure which Congress leaders said they would pass before adjournment time is the bill seeking to amend the civil service law.

Among the proposed amendments are the creation of a three-man board of commissioners to run the Civil Service Commission.

The chairman of the board will be given a Cabinet rank and will be assisted by deputy commissioners.

With the creation of the three-man commission, the Board of Civil Service Appeals will automatically be abrogated.

President Garcia stressed the need of amending the civil service law which was approved by Congress last year.

He said the new civil service law has been suspended, as its implementation may throw out several thousands of unqualified employees in the public service.

The Chief Executive also urged Congress leaders to approve the anti-graft bill in order to provide his administration with the necessary vehicle to step up his campaign against graft and corruption in the government.

The President pointed out that the Presidential Committee on Administration Performance Efficiency (Pcape) was created only by means of an executive order. He said the Pcape is being subsidized from the President's discretionary fund.

President Garcia plans to utilize the Pcape as the nucleus of the anti-graft body of the Administration. He had proposed bi-partisan participation in his anti-graft drive.

May 11.—EARLY this morning President Garcia retired to bed from a marathon conference with the Council of leaders in a bid to salvage administration bills which were reported to have been hanging fire in Congress.

The President explained to the Congress leaders who compose the Council of Leaders his interest in the passage of the anti-graft bill which he said would be the cog of his intensified campaign against graft and corruption.

Present at the meeting were Senate President Eulogio Rodriguez, Senate President Protempore Fernando Lopez, Senate Majority Floor Leader Cipriano Primicias, Speaker Daniel Z. Romualdez, Speaker Protempore Constancio E. Castañeda, House Majority Floor Leader Jose Aldeguer, Assistant Majority Floor Leader Justiniano S. Montano, and Rep. Lorenzo G. Teves.

Legislative Secretary Vicente Logarta and acting Press Secretary Elpidio de Peralta were also present at the conference which ended shortly before 4 o'clock this morning.

President Garcia conferred with Executive Secretary Natalio P. Castillo and took up pending state problems.

The President also took up with Castillo the agenda of the Cabinet meeting scheduled later in the afternoon.

President Garcia received Legislative Secretary Logarta, who briefed him on the status of administration bills in Congress.

THIS evening the President presided over the weekly meeting of the Cabinet. He took up with the members of his Cabinet the budgetary expenditures of the government.

He pointed out that the government has improved its fiscal condition and can afford to relax its program of frugality in an effort to avert a huge overdraft.

The Cabinet relaxed the Administration's retrenchment program and authorized an increase in the current budgetary expenditures of the government by ₱37,662,893.

The Cabinet action was spurred by the report of Secretary of Finance Dominador Aytona that revenue collections by the Bureau of Internal Revenue and the Bureau of Customs exceeded the estimated amount by ₱40.3 million.

The Cabinet merely restored some of the items knocked off from the current budget before the start of the present fiscal year last year to head off an expected deficit of about ₱74 million.

President Garcia and the Cabinet, allocated the ₱37 million increase in budgetary expenditures to the different executive departments, including the office of Vice-President Macapagal. Macapagal's office will get an additional outlay of ₱23,251.

The Department of Public Works will get the biggest share. It was authorized to draw an additional amount from the general fund amounting to ₱16,625,000.

The public works department needs the amount to finance the repair of public buildings and projects damaged by typhoons and fire in several places throughout the archipelago.

At its meeting this evening, the President and the Cabinet;

1. Denied the petition of Producers Philippines to allow the firm to bring in Virginia leaf tobacco from the 40 per cent proceeds in exporting 24,000 metric tons of surplus rice; and
2. Approved a resolution expressing its condolence to Justice Endencia for the death of his wife this afternoon. Endencia is a former member of the Cabinet.

The President met his Cabinet for the first time since he left for a six-day state visit to Taipei.

He said he was gladdened by Secretary Aytona's report which proved that the fiscal condition of the government was improving.

May 12.—PRESIDENT Garcia this morning conferred with Public Works Secretary Florencio Moreno on pending public Works bill and the latter's impressions on the progress of power development in Taiwan.

It will be recalled that the President had instructed Secretary Moreno, who had been with him during his state visit in Taiwan to remain a few days there to study better methods that may be adapted in the development of power projects in the Philippines.

Secretary Moreno informed the President that most of the engineering and financing arrangements employed by the Philippines are the very same principles employed in Taiwan, among which is that the type of dam adopted is always governed by engineering geological studies and the economy that would make the project feasible.

Secretary Moreno said that the implementation of the Marikina multipurpose project should proceed without delay.

Secretary Moreno said Taiwan enjoys the cheapest cost of electric power, compared to even the most industrialized countries like Japan and the United States. He said the cost of electricity in Taiwan is 12 mills compared to Japan's 15 ½ mills, and the United States' 18 mills.

The President and Secretary Moreno during their conference also discussed pending bills on development loans, and a new proposal to augment the authority of the President to incur additional loans under certain conditions for various categories of projects intended to promote industrialization.

Later the President received Jonathan Rinehart of the Honolulu bureau of Time Magazine, who had been in Manila for four days.

President Garcia today received a few callers who had pressing matters to take up with the Chief Executive.

In the evening the President received Secretary of Commerce Manuel Lim, who is leaving on Saturday as guest of the government of Great Britain.

Lim will be the second Cabinet member to leave this week. Foreign Affairs Secretary Felixberto M. Serrano left today for Washington.

With Lim's official party to London are Vicente G. Sinco, president of the University of the Philippines, and Vicente Araneta, administrator of the Agricultural Credit and Cooperative Financing Administration.

The Chief Executive also received John McDiarmid, senior director of the Technical Assistance Board of the United Nations, He was accompanied by John Corry, director of the UN office in Manila.

The President later conferred with Rep. Lorenzo Teves of Negros Occidental on various administration measures still pending in Congress.

Legislative Secretary Vicente Logarta said that so far 23 administration measures had already been certified as urgent by the President and sent to Congress for enactment.

President Garcia this morning received Vice-President Diosdado Macapagal, who had just returned from a month-long observation trip abroad.

During his courtesy call, Vice-President Macapagal gave President Garcia a fill-in on his observation, especially in India and West Germany, which he said would be very beneficial to the Philippines.

The Vice-President who was accompanied by his son, Arturo, conveyed to the Chief Executive the warm and cordial greetings of the chiefs of states whom he had met during his travels to the different countries.

President's Week in Review: May 15-21, 1960

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

May 15.—PRESIDENT Garcia today summoned Brig. Gen. Isagani Campo, chief of the Constabulary, for the purpose of receiving the latter's progress report on alleged terroristic activities perpetrated by hoodlums of Caloocan, Rizal, on jeepney drivers plying the Malabon and Navotas routes.

The Chief Executive expressed gratification over latest reports that the troubled area had quieted down and that jeepneys could now ply their routes unmolested. He directed, however, that the investigations should continue without let-up and the wrong-doers brought to justice with the least possible delay.

Up to press time tonight, the President was still at Malacañang waiting for the congressional committees representing both chambers of Congress.

Earlier, the President conferred anew with Legislative Secretary Vicente Logarta, who reported that the budget finally succeeded in "breaking through" serious barriers posed by so-called riders.

Fortich had delayed his induction as a member of the Cabinet, resulting in inefficiency in the Department of Agriculture. Undersecretary Amando G. Dalisay had also tendered his irrevocable resignation.

Fortich had previously been reported as seeking some "terms" for his acceptance of the Cabinet portfolio. He had delayed his assumption of office until his confirmation as agriculture secretary. His nomination was confirmed by the Commission on Appointments.

In a conference with Capt. Rodolfo Andal, GSIS general manager, at Malacañang this morning, the President recalled that most of the casualties of the recent destructive flood had been due to indiscriminate squatting on treacherous creeks and rivers, and often extremely unhealthful conditions.

“These poor people should be given a chance to raise their children in safer and more wholesome atmosphere,” the President said. “Steps must be taken to prevent the recurrence of the recent tragic disaster.”

The relocation program which the President ordered implemented without delay will be under the administration of the People’s Homesite and Housing Corporation in cooperation with the Social Welfare Administration, the Department of National Defense, and the Department of Health.

The President wrote a letter to Maj. Gen. Merrill M. Daniel, chief of the Joint United States Military Advisory Group, expressing his appreciation for the mass action of JUSMAG officers and men, as well as of members of their families, who had helped in the evacuation and care of flood victims.

“This humanitarian action that was so generously demonstrated does justice to the Christian virtue of helpfulness,” the President said in his letter. “It points out the typical American readiness to help at the spur of the moment those who need help most. The world has seen this fine American virtue lavishly demonstrated, especially in calamities of the kind that recently rendered Manila prostrate.”

The President started the ball rolling by handing his personal contribution of ₱1,000 to Speaker Daniel Romualdez, general chairman of the campaign. At the same time he appealed to all government agencies and business and commercial firms, to give their share to the Community Chest.

By the end of the kick-off ceremony, a total of ₱104.805 in cash and pledges had been turned in by different donors.

Among the donors were the Manila Electric Company, ₱17,000; American community, ₱20,250; National City Bank of New York, ₱2,500; Filipino division, ₱21,000; Pasay City, ₱2,000; and Chinese division of Filipino nationals, ₱27,100.

Officials of the 1960 fund campaign of the Community Chest who have set a goal of ₱600,000 for this year are Speaker Romualdez, general campaign chairman; Mrs. Leonila D. Garcia, honorary, president; Mrs. Luz B. Magsaysay, honorary campaign chairman; and Labor Undersecretary Agapito Braganza president of the Community Chest for Greater Manila.

The affiliated agencies to benefit from the fund drive are Abiertas House of Friendship, Asilo de San Vicente de Paul, Association de Damas Filipinas, Good Shepherd Convent, American-Philippine Guardian Association, Free Legal Aid Clinic, National Federation of Women's Clubs, Philippine Association of the Deaf, Philippine Band of Mercy, La Proteccion de la Infancia, Free Medical Clinics (Patronatos), Philippine Mental Health Association, Catholic Youth Organization, Girl Scouts of the Philippines, Young Men's Christian, Association, Young Women's Christian Association, and the Council of Welfare Agencies.

This evening the President warned against "the stark reality of communist threat" and appealed for a united campaign against communism.

The Chief Executive addressed a symposium on communism sponsored by the Philippine Anti-Communist Movement at the session hall of the House of Representatives.

"For the sake of our children," the President stressed, "our whole nation, in concert with the other free nations of the world, must unite in fighting this atheistic ideology."

He expressed optimism that "the inherent strength of the Filipino people which has sustained them in their darkest hour" (during the last war), would save them when challenged by adversity."

The President lauded the PACOM members for involving themselves "zealously in the struggle against the forces of tyranny."

He observed that the PACOM is "an answer to the shift of Communist expansionist attention to this area by exploiting the Asian aspiration of freedom, dignity, and national identity."

He also warned that communist encroachments in Asian countries have assumed frightening proportions when taken in context with the overall Red drive now feverishly in progress in all parts of the world.

President Garcia observed that the collapse of the recent summit talks "was but one of the preconceived designs in the overall Soviet blueprint to divide the free world."

He said the latest world development proved that the Communist bloc will continue to make the most out of the Summit fiasco to keep Western powers off-balance and the small nations confused.

The symposium, observed as orderly despite hundreds of spectators who intently listened to the different speakers, started at 7:30 and dragged on until 10 o'clock in the evening, with an open forum participated in by some members of the crowd who shot questions at the speakers ranging from highly intelligent to rather rib-tickling ones.

Conspicuously present among the spectators that gathered at the legislative building during the symposium were American military and embassy officials and their ladies and representatives of the local military community.

The other speakers during the occasion were Dr. Jose Ma. Hernandez, vice-president of the Philippine Anti-Communist Movement; Brig. Gen. Alfredo M. Santos, AFP deputy chief of staff; Dr. Teodoro Evangelista, president of the Far Eastern University; and Rep. Leonardo Perez, chairman of the House committee on anti-Filipino activities.

Secretary of Defense Alejo S. Santos delivered the closing remarks. Rep. Ramon D. Bagatsing, president of the PACOM, introduced the President, while Antonio Meer, acted as moderator.

June 3.—THIS MORNING the President administered the oaths of office to former Commerce Secretary Pedro C. Hernaez as ambassador to Spain, Deputy Commissioner Faustino SyChangco as commissioner of the budget, and Col. Margarito S. Torralba as brigadier general in the retired roster of the Armed Forces.

Present at the ceremonies held at Malacañang this morning included Speaker Daniel Z. Romualdez, Senate Majority Floor Leader Cipriano Primicias, Govs. Valeriano Gatuslao of Negros Occidental and Jose C. Zulueta of Iloilo, Board Member Benjamin Gaston of Negros Occidental, Iloilo City Mayor Rodolfo Ganzon, Bacolod City Mayor Teopisto Cordova, relatives, admirers, and other friends of the new appointees.

Ambassador Hernaez succeeds Manuel Nieto, Sr., retired while Commissioner SyChangco takes the place vacated by Secretary Dominador Aytona, who had been elevated to the Department of Finance.

After the oath-taking ceremonies, the President received top officials of the Federation of Chinese Chambers of Commerce in the Philippines, led by president Yu Khe Thai, who turned over the sum of ₱34,720 in checks and ₱15,650 worth of goods as their donation for the relief and assistance of the victims of the disastrous flood which hit Manila and suburbs recently.

The donation was in response to the President's appeal for more contributions for the benefit of thousands of indigent sufferers.

Other members of the FCCCCP group were Peter Lim and Antonio Roxas Chua, vice-president; Eddison Cheng, chairman, public relations committee; and Tang Tack, secretary-general.

Before going to his room to work on his speech before the members of the American Legion, the President received the wives of U. S. Navy officers assigned in Sangley Point who earlier had met Mrs. Garcia.

This evening the President left for Subic naval base where he will address the 40th convention of the American Legion which started yesterday.

The President, accompanied by the First Lady, boarded the yacht after coming out from the third and last concert of the Boston Symphony Orchestra at the Rizal Coliseum.

President Garcia faces a tight schedule during his stay at the U.S. naval base. He will address the convention at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning.

June 4.—PRESIDENT Garcia this morning underscored the absolute necessity of strengthening and maintaining American bases in the Philippines as a deterrent to Communist aggression and activities in the Far East.

Speaking before the 40th annual convention of the American Legion, Philippine Department, at Subic Naval Base in Zambales, the Chief Executive said "we who have tasted the ordeals and sufferings of war should be more disposed to undergo personal sacrifices for the sake of peace."

The President also reminded the Filipino and American veterans of the last world war that recent developments such as the failure of the Summit Conference have brought a fresh challenge for them to strive with increased vigor and enthusiasm to keep the peace of the world.

The President emphasized that the Philippines as a member of the United Nations, is pledged "to support any just, reasonable, and honorable move to promote the ends of peace," and that this country believes in the efficacy of the United Nations, the potency of the SEATO as an instrument of security and progress, and in the leadership and sincerity of the United States as a true friend and ally.

The Chief Executive also lauded Ambassador John D. Hickerson and other American Army and Navy top brass' for their efforts to promote better understanding between Americans and Filipinos.

Ambassador Hickerson, who was also guest speaker during the opening ceremonies, said that America and the Philippines stand solidly together for international security but that "in their day to day activities some differences of opinion are bound to arise."

However, he said, "with patience, tolerance, and understanding, such differences of opinions can be solved with justice and equity to both the American and the Filipino peoples.

Ambassador Hickerson pledged to the Filipino people that as long as he remains in the Philippines, he will not permit veterans payments to be considered as assistance or aid to the Philippines. He said these payments are being made for services already rendered and received and that while they may help in the economic development of the country, that is not the primary purpose for which they are made.

The American ambassador expressed belief that the acceptance by United States President Eisenhower of President Garcia's invitation to visit the Philippines will touch a responsive chord in the hearts of the Filipino people, not only because of the close ties of friendship between the two peoples but because Eisenhower had spent over four years of his career here during the formative years of the Philippine Commonwealth.

Rear Admiral Arthur F. Spring, Commander of the U. S. Naval Base at Subic, who keynoted the convention, sounded a warning against a future fraught with anxiety brought about by the continuing cold war.

Admiral Spring appealed to the veterans to do their bit in what he described as a fourth dimensional war being waged by the communists on the Free World.

He told the veterans that it was their duty to combat the insidious effects of the psychology of fear being foisted on all free men by communist agents in the hope of dividing and conquering the rest of the free world.

He said that Subic Base is of vital importance to the security of the free world in this area. He remarked that veterans have the responsibility to combat people who would rather crawl on their knees to Moscow than fight for the preservation of freedom.

President Garcia left Manila aboard the RPS Lapu-Lapu at 3 o'clock this morning, arriving at Subic three hours later.

After an early mass, the President and the First Lady ate breakfast aboard the yacht, together with the members of the party, among them Defense Secretary Alejo Santos, Foreign Affairs Acting Secretary and Mrs. Fructuoso Cabahug, Maj. Gen. Pelagio Cruz, Rep. Ramon Bagatsing of Manila, and Mrs. Rosie O. Valencia.

At 8:20 a.m. Ambassador Hickerson, Rear Admirals Joseph M. Carson, commander of the U. S. Navy in the Philippines, and Admiral Spring and their ladies boarded the Lapu-Lapu and greeted the President and the First Lady.

The President was escorted to the Officers Club House, where he was given a 21-gun salute and full military honors, after which he proceeded to the reviewing stand to witness the parade composed of different posts of the American Legion, Philippine and American military and naval units, and Boy Scouts of the Philippines.

After the parade the President went on foot to inspect the radio KCMB installations nearby, then motored to the Baseball Court for the ceremonies.

United States marines and. sailors who had lined the route and others who participated in the parade were drenched to the skin by an incessant downpour which lifted as soon as the President stepped on the gangplank.

As mysteriously as the rain had stopped when the president stepped on land, the rain came down again in heavy volume after he had delivered his speech, evoking comments from reporters about the President's "lucky weather."

After the ceremonies, the President and his party were honored with a luncheon at the Officers Mess, after which they boarded the Lapu-Lapu for a brief rest.

In the afternoon the President and the First Lady gave cocktails aboard the RPS Lapu-Lapu in honor of American and Filipino legionnaires and Subic Base top brass and their ladies.

The President cancelled his scheduled tour of Cubi Point owing to the inclement weather, leaving Subic Bay at about 6 p.m. and arriving in Manila late in the evening after encountering a choppy sea.

President's Week in Review: June 5-11, 1960

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

June 5.—PRESIDENT Garcia today received Executive Secretary Natalio P. Castillo at his Bohol Avenue residence in Quezon City and discussed with him preparations for the coming three-day state visit of President Eisenhower.

Secretary Castillo, who is the chairman of the PI committee undertaking preparations for the Eisenhower visit, reported that the three-day itinerary of the visiting Chief Executive has been drafted.

Castillo assured the President that a red carpet reception awaits President Eisenhower, whose coming visit here has been soured by reports that the US President decided on the PI trip only as "a second thought" after his scheduled tour of Russia was cancelled by Premier Khrushchev.

The President and the First Lady spent the day today at their private residence in Quezon City. They heard mass earlier in Malacañang.

After breakfast in Malacañang, the President and the First Lady motored to their Quezon City residence.

June 6.—PRESIDENT Garcia today ordered Brig. Gen. Isagani Campo chief of the PC, to send a special unit to apprehend the murderer of the late Mayor Fortunato Lagarde of San Miguel, Leyte, and to confiscate loose firearms in that area.

The President gave this directive upon receiving reports that the alleged murderer of Ex-Mayor Lagarde who is said to be enjoying the protection of local officials, had reportedly vowed to liquidate 14 more before planning to surrender.

Earlier, the President directed Finance Secretary Dominador R. Aytona and Central Bank Governor Miguel Cuaderno to act promptly on the petition of the Filipino Traders Association and the Filipino Remnants and Retailers Association to include remnants goods in the preferred rate of ₱2 to $1, instead of the free rate of ₱4 to $1.

The petitioners informed the President that remnant goods are the only clothing the poor people could afford because the local textile mills cannot supply local demand to bring down prices within the low-income level.

It will be recalled that the President had several weeks ago ordered Secretary Aytona to make a re-study of the decontrol plan as regards remnant goods on representation of a big group of clothing manufacturers.

The delegation which represented over 1,700 retailers and remnants importers, was headed by Leandro Canlas, president of the Filipino Traders Association; and Jose Ocampo, Ricardo Silverio, and E. R. Pascual, directors.

Before receiving his regular callers, the President received former President Sergio Osmeña, Sr., who came to witness the signing of H. B. No. 4950, by the President changing the name of Doña Pepang Street to Jones Street, in Cebu City.

Among the other callers were Charlton Heston, accompanied by Bron Landau, general manager of the MGM in the Philippines, Marcos Roces and Rafael Roces of the Roces Enterprise, and Tony Lagos, PRO, who paid his respects to the President and invited him to the premiere showing of Ben-Hur in a local theater on June 8;

Health Secretary Elpidio Valencia, who paid his respects to the President and made a verbal report on his seven-week trip abroad to attend the 13th WHO Assembly in Geneva, Switzerland;

Doña Victoria Araneta, accompanied by Gregorio Y. Zara, who proposed to buy the Bureau of Commerce building in order to facilitate the expansion of the FEATI institution in downtown Manila. (She handed in a check ₱10,000 as the donation of the Republic Flour Mills to the fund for the victims of the recent flood in Manila and suburbs.) and United Philippine Lines officials, who requested the President for other arrangements, such as agency or lease, in the operation of NDC vessels which are due to arrive from Japan beginning July.

The President said that he is for the original plan to sell the NDC and Dona vessels and that no other plans will be considered until after it has been proved that the present plan is not feasible.

The UPL officials who called on the President were James Chiongbian, Generoso Tanseco, Rebert Ho, and Gil Garcia.

Later the President also received a delegation of Central Bank employees headed by Rodolfo H. Luis, who petitioned the turnover of a lot earmarked for them by the GSIS for administrative purposes.

After calling PHHC General Manager Bernardo Torres by phone, the President told the delegation that the property was being turned over to the GSIS as payment for certain obligations of the PHHC and that they could deal with the GSIS directly.

The President mobilized today the Emergency Relief Coordinating Committee to assess the heavy damage to life and property caused by the early morning fire which hit Cebu City's commercial district and to extend, immediate assistance to indigent homeless victims.

The President ordered Executive Secretary Natalio P. Castillo to direct the detail of PC men to maintain peace and order in the area, and Social Welfare Administrator Amparo Villamor to send immediately relief personnel and supplies to take care of the immediate needs of the fire victims.

In the meantime, Mrs. Leonila D. Garcia sent a donation of ₱1,000 for the purchase of relief goods intended for indigent Cebu fire victims.

An Air force plane has been ordered to stand by at Nichols Airbase for take-off early Tuesday morning loaded with the initial relief goods to be dispatched to Cebu.

The President said that in view of reported heavy looting in the area, enough PC men should be dispatched to the area to maintain peace and order.

The Emergency Relief Coordinating Committee has also standing orders to send medical personnel and supplies to the area to forestall the outbreak of epidemics which usually follow such disasters.

Secretary Castillo, who is in the midst of making preparations for the coming state visit of U. S. President Dwight D. Eisenhower, said he will convene as soon as possible the Emergency Relief Coordinating Committee of which he is chairman, to take up further relief measures for the Cebu fire victims.

President Garcia honored Ambassador Tuan Mao-Ian of Nationalist China with a testimonial dinner held in Malacañang at 8:00 o'clock this evening in appreciation of the royal reception accorded him and members of his party during his recent state visit in Taiwan.

June 7.—PRESIDENT Garcia this morning received a check for $10,000 representing the personal donation of the U.S. President Dwight D. Eisenhower for the Manila flood victims.

In accepting the check from Ambassador John D. Hickerson, the President expressed gratitude for the noble gesture of sympathy from President Eisenhower. He said that the amount will go a long way towards helping rehabilitate the poor victims.

Along with the check, Ambassador Hickerson also conveyed to the President the deep sympathy of the American people and their hopes for the early rehabilitation of the flood sufferers.

As Ambassador Hickerson turned to leave after taking only a minute of the President's time in presenting the check, the President remarked in a light vein, "That was a very costly minute for our friends, the American people. But they can rest assured that they will not regret it because every cent of it will be for the benefit of the poor," he added.

After receiving the donation, the President received scheduled callers, among them Reps. Tobias Fornier of Antique, Wenceslao R. Lagumbay of Laguna, Pedro Venida of Camarines Norte, Guillermo Sanchez of Agusan, and others.

Most of his callers requested releases of funds for public works and other development projects, as well as relief funds.

The President directed this morning Social Welfare Administrator Amparo P. Villamor to fly to Cebu immediately to apprise and determine the extent of damage wrought by the recent fire.

The President is sending Villamor to the Cebu fire area with foodstuffs, medicine, clothing material, and other relief goods for distribution to the indigent victims.

This morning the President ordered the immediate prosecution of erring government officials involved in the alleged mishandling of public funds in 148 offices and agencies.

The President gave Justice Buenaventura Ocampo, chairman of the Presidential Committee on Administration Performance Efficiency, and a GAO investigation team, two months within which to ferret out said officials who failed to "liquidate their accounts with the national government or to collect debts due and payable in the total amount of ₱483 million."

On orders of the President, the joint PCAPE-GAO investigation team will poise administrative charges against these erring officials for gross negligence, laxity, mismanagement, and culpable ignorance. The joint PCAPE-GAO investigation team will likewise study and recommend to President Garcia the possibility of overhauling or abolishing the government offices or agencies involved in the irregularity.

Reported government losses in this flagrant government irregularity include credits amounting to ₱218 million due from government bureaus and agencies; ₱208 million uncollected debts of private persons or firms; ₱9 million unliquidated accounts of 18 government-owned or state-controlled firms; and ₱45 million debts due and uncollected by the said 18 firms from private persons.

The government offices under fire are the Bureau of Lands; Bureau of Customs, Bureau of Forestry, Motor Vehicles Office, Bureau of Agricultural Extension, National Rice and Corn Corporation, Public Service Commission, Land Tenure Administration, Department of Labor, Bureau of Mines, and Bureau of Telecommunications.

In the afternoon the President also directed Justice Buenaventura Ocampo, chairman of the Presidential Committee on Administration Performance Efficiency, to conduct a full-dress investigation on alleged irregularities in the Sugar Quota Administration.

The President had acted in the wake of reports that 50,000 tons of sugar had been over shipped to the United States which is prejudicial to the interest of legitimate sugar quota holders.

Jose Mapa Gomez, President of the National Federation of Sugar Planters, denounced to the PCAPE that the overshot of sugar shipments creates a “bleak future” for Philippine sugar planters.

Justice Ocampo directed Major Teodulo Natividad, PCAPE investigator, to conduct an on-the-spot inquiry on the alleged deprivation of the quotas of legitimate sugar quota holders. Major Natividad will send a team of PCAPE investigators headed by Inspector Rosalina Abaya and Antonio Lopez to Negros for the purpose of checking the records of sugar companies.

PRESIDENT Garcia this evening said that when he meets President Eisenhower, he will ask the US President to provide the Filipinos with adequate weapons with which to fight a modern defensive war.

In an extemporaneous speech before the Veterans Federation of the Philippines, President Garcia said that it would be criminal negligence to make Filipinos fight a modern war with antiquated weapons.

Officers of the veterans federation headed by Brig. Gen. Dionisio Ojeda (ret.), president, were inducted by the President at the Manila Hotel this evening.

The President also said that he would try to reopen the veterans’ claim against the United States Government. He said that he would appeal to the sense of justice and fairness of the American people.

On the subject of modern weapons, he said that it would be a mistake to forget the lessons of Corregidor and Bataan during the last world war. He stressed that he was asking only for modern weapons for defense, not for offense.

President Garcia expressed gratification over the unification of veterans so that they could present their claims more effectively.

June 8.—PRESIDENT Garcia today announced he will convene the Philippine Congress to a special session starting June 14 for the enactment of six proposed amendments to the Constitution.

The presidential call will also, enable the Senate and the House of Representatives to sit in joint session to hear a major address by visiting American President Dwight D. Eisenhower on June 15.

In a special caucus with Nacionalista senators at his Bohol Avenue residence in Quezon City, President Garcia and the senators agreed unanimously on the following points for discussion during the special session:

- (1) Synchronization of national and local elections every four years beginning 1965;
- (2) Election of senators on the basis of regions—20 from Luzon, 12 from Visayas, and eight from Mindanao;
- (3) Creation of a Presidential Electoral Tribunal, a constitutional body independent of the executive and the legislative branches, to hear and decide protests arising from presidential elections;
- (4) The 30-day period within which the President has to veto or approve a bill to be counted from the date it is submitted to him and not from the date Congress adjourns;
- (5) Reexamination of the provision on the writ of habeas corpus to attune it more to the spirit of democracy; and
- (6) Adoption of the general appropriations act for the current fiscal year in the event the annual appropriation for the ensuing year is not approved.

In deciding to make a re-study of the frequency of elections, the conferees agreed that elections every two years are not only costly to the people and the government, but they distract officials from the performance of their duties and endanger the stability of democratic institutions.

The conferees also took into consideration a proposal to hold elections in June instead of November of each election year, and to hold sessions in Congress starting July of each year.

Members of the House of Representatives were not invited to the caucus, as they had already voted on a resolution indorsing President Garcia's proposal to call Congress to a special session. This resolution was approved during a joint caucus held in Malacañang last May 25.

In proposing synchronization of elections in 1965, President Garcia pointed out that he will not author any proposal that would benefit him personally, and 1965 as the start would not affect his term of office.

Present at the caucus which started at 10 a.m. and ended at about 3 p.m. were: President Garcia, presiding; Senate and NP President Eulogio Rodriguez, Sr., Speaker. Daniel Z. Romualdez, and Sens. Quintin Paredes, Cipriano Primicias, Pacita M. Gonzalez, Gil J. Puyat, Eulogio Balao, Arturo M. Tolentino, Alejandro Almendras, Pedro Sabido, Oscar Ledesma, Domocao Alonto, Decoroso Rosales, and Claro M. Recto.

THE Cabinet approved this evening a plan to relocate squatters in two areas outside Manila, one to be at the Sapang Palay estate at San Jose del Monte, Bulacan, and the other in the suburbs to the south of the city.

The Sapang Palay site was agreed upon after many squatters interviewed indicated willingness to be relocated to that area.

The relocation site south of Manila will be in the towns of Parañaque and Las Piñas in Rizal and Bacoor in Cavite.

The method of financing the projected relocation of the squatters was also discussed but no decision was reached. However, the plan which found most favor among the Cabinet members was the floating of bonds by the People's Homesite and Housing Corporation.

The charter of the P.H.H.C. allows the issuance of bonds. Under the plan, the Government Service Insurance System would absorb most of the bonds.

The Cabinet also discussed the redemption of backpay certificates. Finance Secretary Dominador Aytona reported that the backpay division still had no figures on unredeemed certificates.

He said that the suspension of the payment of claims for six months was made so that the records of this division would be straightened out.

The government slum clearance committee had recommended to President Garcia the acquisition of the Sapang Palay farm and the development of the Camarin area at Caloocan, Rizal, for the resettlement of squatters in the Greater Manila area.

The group headed by Social Welfare Administrator Amparo Villamor also told the President that the ₱2 million allocation for the purchase and development of relocation sites was inadequate.

June 9.—PRESIDENT Garcia administered the oath of affiliation to the Nacionalista Party to two mayors, one vice-mayor, and two municipal councilors of Laguna who had been elected under the banners of the Liberal Party and the Grand Alliance.

The ceremony was held at the Malacañang study room in the presence of Rep. Wenceslao R. Lagumbay and several municipal mayors of Laguna.

The new Nacionalistas are Mayors Elpidio Asedillo of Kalayaan and Geminiano Gualberto of Pangil, Vice-Mayor Quiterio de la Rosa of Siniloan, Councilors Domingo Cabati of Pangil, and Deogracias Cabugason and Cresencio Acuera of Kalayaan.

The President also inducted the new officials of the Reserve Officers Legion of the Philippines at the Malacañang social hall.

National president of the legion is Ernesto Golez. The Board of Advisers include Economic Coordination Administrator Juan O. Chioco, Defense Secretary Alejo Santos, and Rep. Salipada Pendatun.

Earlier this morning the President received former Undersecretary of Foreign Affairs Raul S. Manglapus, who left for Berlin, West Germany, at noon.

The President asked Manglapus to convey his personal greetings to former President Theodor Heuss and to Chancellor Konrad Adenauer of the Federal Republic of Germany.

Manglapus is a Philippine delegate to the Congress on Cultural Freedom in Berlin and is a guest of the German Government, after which he will go to England as a guest of the British Government.

The President considers the congress very important in the war of ideas between democracy and communism, especially because Berlin itself, where the congress is to be held, is a focal point for both ideologies.

The President did not receive any other callers aside from holding conferences with Executive Secretary Natalio P. Castillo, Press Secretary Jose C. Nable, and Minister Manuel G. Zamora on preparations for the state visit of President Eisenhower to the Philippines next week.

In the evening President and Mrs. Garcia motored to the Manila Hotel to attend the appreciation dinner given by the Federation of Chinese Chambers of Commerce for the President's trip to Taipei recently.

The President issued today a proclamation designating the period from June 13 to November 19 this year within which the National Economic Protectionism Association will hold national products contests for children and students of public and private schools all over the country, it was announced by Malacañang.

The objectives of the contests as enumerated in the proclamation are:

- (1) To arouse and instill in the minds of the youth the love of things Philippine and the necessity of patronizing the products of local industries;
- (2) To encourage school children and students to engage in scientific research and create new products from local raw materials;
- (3) To encourage them to produce or invent more efficient, satisfactory, and suitable tools, machinery, and equipment so as to facilitate faster, cheaper, and more economical process of production; and
- (4) To improve the design, workmanship, quality, and finish of existing products and articles so as to make them appear more beautiful, attractive, and appealing.

The President, in his proclamation, enjoined all students and school children to participate in the contests, and all teachers, public officials, individuals and social, civic, business, and other organizations, to extend their active support to the NEPA movement.

He also designated the NEPA to take charge of the various contests in collaboration with the Bureaus of Public and Private Schools, with the NEPA providing all prizes to be given as incentives to the contestants.

June 10.—THIS morning the President conferred with Executive Secretary Natalio P. Castillo, who reported on completed plans for President Eisenhower's visit.

With Secretary Castillo were Press Secretary Jose C. Nable, Assistant Executive Secretary Enrique C. Quema, and Minister Manuel Zamora.

"Good afternoon, Mr. Secretaries," President Garcia jokingly greeted some 30 newsmen who were at the Council of State room this afternoon waiting for the press conference.

The Council of State room has been the scene of Cabinet meetings, and President Garcia, apparently in high spirit, jokingly greeted the newsmen in the way he greets Cabinet members.

When he saw a newsman, he asked "Are you ready for the big day?"

He obviously was referring to the coming visit of President Eisenhower Tuesday afternoon.

President Garcia told the press conference at Malacañang this afternoon that he is available for re-election. He appeared unfazed by reports that Senate and Nacionalista Party President Eulogio Rodriguez is also a candidate for President next year.

"My personal desire is to retire in 1961," President Garcia declared, "but I have also said my personal interest is subordinate to the national interest. If there is a call, you can be sure I will respond."

The Chief Executive met local and foreign newsmen this afternoon for the first time in two months.

Asked to comment on reports that Senate President Rodriguez will seek the presidential nomination, the President said, "Anybody who wants to aspire for any position is free to do so. Well, this is a free country."

The President discounted the possibility of a split in the majority party and expressed optimism that the NP would be able to make the decision "as to who will be its candidate."

President Garcia directed the Philippine National Bank today to reduce the rates of interest for agricultural and industrial loans.

In a letter to the bank's board of directors he read at his press conference, the President also asked the government bank to help in the dispersion of industrial establishments away from Manila and the suburbs.

He was directing the reduction of the rates of interest, the President said, because of the "satisfactory results of operations" of the bank.

"In the light of the buoyant position of the bank and in line with the policy of the Administration to give all possible assistance and incentives to producers, and to insure to our people a happier, fuller, and more rewarding life it may be timely now to consider the reduction of interest on agricultural and industrial loans," the President said.

Asked at his press conference what he thought should be the new rates of interest for such loans, the President said he did not fix them.

He said, however, that he expected the rates reduced from four to six per cent in agricultural loans and from six to eight per cent in industrial loans.

He said the reduction of the rates for agricultural loans should be given priority by the bank.

During the press conference the President also expressed gratification over the results of the decontrol, measures he instituted recently.

As of the last day of last May, he said, the dollar reserves had reached the $118 million mark.

Aside from this, he said, there was an excess of $27.2 million set aside for the free market. This amount, he said, was in excess of the dollar demands of the country.

“All these things are very heartening for the economy of the country,” he said.

In his letter to the P.N.B., the President said that the bank could be and should be an effective instrumentality in the intensification of the agricultural and industrial development programs of the country.

“I am happy to note that it has been, and is, fulfilling its mission wonderfully during my administration,” he said.

The President said the bank could also help in the dispersal of industrial establishments to the provinces. Dispersion of industry was not only advantageous economically and socially, he said, but would be necessary in the event of a global war.

“A program to direct loan operations for productive purposes in the other provinces of Luzon, Visayas, and Mindanao may well be considered by the bank,” the President said.

With the branches and agencies well scattered throughout the country, he added, the program could easily succeed.

From the press conference, the President motored to his private residence in Quezon City where he was reported to have gone over the draft of a speech he will deliver at the airport upon the arrival of President Eisenhower Tuesday afternoon.

June 11.—PRESIDENT Garcia conferred today with his foreign policy advisers; namely, Secretary of Foreign Affairs Felixberto M. Serrano and Ambassador Carlos P. Romulo.

Serrano and Romulo returned yesterday to brief the Chief Executive on prevailing sentiments in the U.S. on a number of pending issues between the Philippines and the United States.

In his scheduled conference with President Eisenhower Wednesday morning, President Garcia will touch on various PI-US issues, including a request for an updated arms programs.

In a recent speech at the Manila Hotel the President told a veterans federation that the first thing he would ask President Eisenhower in Manila is the speeding up of arms assistance program by sending to the Philippines modern weapons to replace surplus World War II arms.

With Serrano and Romulo was former President Sergio Osmeña, who was invited as an elder statesman.

The President also received Executive Secretary Natalio P. Castillo, who reported to the Chief Executive on the preparations for the coming Eisenhower visit.

The President spent the night at his private residence in Quezon City.

President's Week in Review: June 12-18, 1960

Official Week in Review

June 12.—PRESIDENT Garcia today stayed in his private residence in Quezon City, where he received unscheduled guests the whole day. Several of the visitors were political leaders who pledged to support him in the event of a clash with Senate President Eulogio Rodriguez.

The President issued a proclamation declaring the period from June 13 to 19 as Rizal Week.

In his proclamation the President said he designated the week to commemorate the 99th birthday of Dr. Jose Rizal.

President Garcia also commended Mrs. Joan R. Smith of the Joint United States Military Advisory Group in Quezon City for her heroic deed in rescuing a number of women and children from the raging torrents of the recent flash floods which virtually submerged Manila and the suburbs.

"Feminine courage is rare but you are certainly rich in this virtue," the President wrote Mrs. Smith.

June 13.—THIS morning the President received Lt. Gen. Manuel Cabal, AFP chief of staff, who reported on the recently concluded SEATO Military Advisers' conference held in Washington and on his talks with U.S. defense officials regarding U.S. military assistance to the Philippines.

New and exhaustive appraisals of the nature and extent of the military and subversive threats to the treaty area were made in the SEATO conference, Gen. Cabal informed the President.

The AFP head also informed the President that existing defensive plans for the military security of Asia, including the Philippines, were reviewed and updated in the light of current situations, and a program of military exercises for the next several years was considered.

The President was informed on U.S. concurrence in general to the necessity for greater AFP participation in planning for, and programming of, U.S. military assistance to the Philippines.

American authorities have also agreed, according to the report of Gen. Cabal to the President, on the Philippine bid for sidewinders for the use of the Philippine Air Force, for all-weather interceptors and for more substantial and suitable equipment for the Philippine Navy, Air Force, Army, and Constabulary.

With regard to the Philippine bid for new weapons and equipment, including conventional missiles for, purely defensive purposes as recently announced by President Garcia, Gen. Cabal reported that he had held initial and explanatory talks with U.S. defense authorities.

The President also received Eduardo Romualdez, president of the Philippine National Bank, who arrived last Saturday from Washington where he served as a member of the Philippine panel negotiating with U.S. authorities for a P.I.—U.S. Air Treaty.

Ambassador Carlos P. Romulo also called on President Garcia to discuss several pending P.I.—U.S. matters, especially pending legislations in the U.S. Congress.

June 14.—PRESIDENT and Mrs. Garcia received their house guest, U.S. President Eisenhower, who arrived at the MIA at exactly 4:45 o'clock this afternoon.

President Eisenhower returned to Malacañang, where he worked from 1935 to 1939 as senior assistant to General Douglas MacArthur.

“It’s a homecoming for me,” President Eisenhower said as he landed at the Manila International Airport aboard the Colombine III.

President Garcia received the visiting American President at the domestic terminal of the MIA. President Eisenhower is the first American President to visit the Philippines.

Mrs. Garcia, on the other hand, stayed in Malacañang and waited for President Eisenhower at the stairs of the Palace.

President Eisenhower was given the room which was occupied by the late Presidents Quezon, Quirino, and Magsaysay.

The visiting U.S. Chief Executive will stay in Malacañang for three days until he leaves midnight Thursday for Taipei.

American security officers from the Federal Bureau of Investigation virtually took over Malacañang today.

A security officer was seen to have stopped a press office movie cameraman who was assigned by the press secretary to take pictures of President Eisenhower’s arrival at the Palace.

President Garcia motored to the airport at 4:30 o’clock this afternoon to lead top government officials and foreign dignitaries in welcoming President Eisenhower.

President Garcia and President Eisenhower trooped the line of a composite battalion which gave the visiting Chief Executive full military honors.

President Garcia then led the U.S. President to an improvised stage where the PI Chief Executive personally welcomed Ike. Ike responded extemporaneously. (See Historical Papers, pp. —, for texts of welcome speech and extemporaneous response of the Chiefs of State.)

From 1.5 to 2 million people turned out into the streets this afternoon to give President Eisenhower an unprecedented welcome on his arrival for a three-day goodwill visit.

The welcoming throng at the Manila International Airport (domestic) was estimated at less than 20,000, principally as a result of strict enforcement of rules to ensure security. But a huge crowd, never before seen in Manila and environs, clogged the ten-mile route from the airport to Malacañang Palace and spilled out into the streets in the most spontaneous welcome ever accorded a visiting dignitary.

For President Eisenhower, it was actually an emotional homecoming to a country where he lived for four years before the war as special assistant to Gen. Douglas MacArthur.

“As I looked at these familiar sights there was one thing, of course, that was missing,” he told a welcome crowd at the airport. “So many of my old friends of the years just preceding World War II are gone. So many of them paid the price free men have been called upon to pay again and again for the defense of freedom...”

Then President Eisenhower touched briefly on the more serious aspect of his three-day visit to the Philippines. Referring obviously to some irritants in the Philippine-American relations, he said:

“Among us, between us, just as it has always been the case between members of the family, are some problems to be discussed, to be talked about, to negotiate, but that negotiation and conference take place in a spirit of common dedication to the ideals that make us true partners.”

He said no party difference could tear apart his country and the Philippines.

Both President Garcia and President Eisenhower in their separate remarks at the airport reiterated the special ties that bind their countries together, particularly in the present time of world stress and strain.

It was a reception as wide and sincere as President Eisenhower's famous grin which he turned on at the cheering crowds that lined his route from the Manila International Airport to Malacañang.

The spontaneous show of affection by some two million Filipino welcomers at times gave some frightening moment to the visiting Chief of State's security detail.

In some streets in downtown Manila, like Rizal Avenue, the massed humanity pressed-forward close to the open car carrying the U.S. President and President Garcia.

Filipino and American security agents jumped from their cars and jogged alongside the presidential vehicle through most of the downtown route as a protective shield and to keep the motorcade from being stalled by the crowds.

President Eisenhower waved his arms and smiled while standing in the open Cadillac as he rode through a thick ticker tape reception on the Escolta.

Some crowds stood ten to twenty-five deep in Manila to get a glimpse of the visiting dignitary, who had described his trip earlier at the airport as "indeed a homecoming." Thousands of others perched on rooftops and balconies, while a forest of miniature Philippine and American flags fluttered from waving hands.

Applause broke out from the massed crowd pressing against the railing of the airport's domestic terminal as President Garcia greeted President Eisenhower at the foot of the plane ramp.

He was introduced to high Philippine officials waiting near the plane and to members of the diplomatic corps while an artillery unit boomed out a 21-gun salute.

After the ceremonial trooping the line, President Garcia led President Eisenhower to an improvised platform where both delivered brief remarks.

The American President listened solemnly while President Garcia read a message of welcome from a prepared text. "When we welcome you," the Philippine President said, "therefore, at this time, we feel and we wish you to feel that it is a welcome home."

"We are with you, Mr. President," President Garcia said, as your friend and your ally in the great cause that as free men, we are pledged to defend with all our might and main in complete identification with the rest of the freedom-loving and peace-loving humanity."

In a clear and even tone, the American President recalled his stay in the Philippines 25 years ago and pledged the U.S. "to live with you as a true partner in defense of those ideals of liberty and human dignity, in which we alike believe."

June 15.—PRESIDENT Eisenhower woke up about 6:30 a.m., ordered a cup of coffee, then read the morning papers. After reading all the morning papers, President Eisenhower dressed up and waited for his son John and daughter-in-law Barbara before going to the Malacañang music room where President and Mrs. Garcia, together with daughter Linda and son-in-law Fernando C. Campos, had arrived earlier.

After chatting for a while President and Mrs. Garcia led their guests for a family breakfast at the Malacañang dining hall, where the hosts presented gifts consisting of piña barong Tagalogs for President Eisenhower and his son John.

For Mrs. Barbara Eisenhower, the President and the First Lady gave a jusi terno, and for Mrs. Mamie Eisenhower, an embroidered jusi shirtwaist.

After breakfast Presidents Eisenhower and Garcia with high PI and US officials met in conference at the Malacañang music room.

Shortly after the conference, President Eisenhower, left Malacañang for the Luneta to lay a wreath, at the monument of the Filipino hero, Dr. Jose Rizal.

Lt. Col. and Mrs. John Eisenhower, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Fernando C. Campos and Dr. Antonio Guytingco, President Garcia's personal physician, left Malacañang to visit the Maternity and Children's Hospital, North General Hospital, National Orthopedic Hospital, and National Mental Hospital before going to Las Piñas to see the famous bamboo organ. Then the group went to the Moon Gate, where Mr. and Mrs. Campos gave a birthday party in honor of Mrs. Barbara Eisenhower.

Leaving Malacañang and arriving at the Luneta, President Eisenhower was lustily cheered by people who waited four hours just to see him. The American President drew burst of applause when he waved at the huge crowd with his famous "V" for victory gesture.

Returning to Malacañang, President Eisenhower rested for a while and then proceeded with the rest of his party to the Malacañang ceremonial hall, where he met with President Garcia, former President Osmeña, and leading members of all political parties before going to the Malacañang state dining hall for an informal luncheon given in his honor by President Garcia.

Present were leaders of the Nacionalista Party and the Liberal Party, among them were Vice-President Diosdado Macapagal, Senate Minority Floorleader Ferdinand Marcos, and Senator Mariano Jesus Cuenco.

Before going to the state dining hall, President Garcia gave President Eisenhower all the issues of the Manila Tribune in bound volumes from January 1, 1942, up to February 3, 1945, when Manila was liberated by the American forces.

Informed of President Eisenhower's liking for mangoes, President Garcia ordered a big basket of mangoes and mangosteens sent to the U.S. Embassy for the use of his guest on his trip to Taiwan.

President Eisenhower this afternoon had a nice reunion with old friends at Malacañang Palace.

For more than an hour, the visiting American Chief of State had a pleasant time reminiscing "old times" with close friends and people he had known during the four years that he served with the Philippine Commonwealth Government as a ranking member of the staff General Douglas MacArthur, then military adviser of the Philippine Government.

Those who saw President Eisenhower were Jorge Vargas, executive secretary of the late President Quezon; Antonio de las Alas; Generals Basilio Valdez and Guillermo Francisco; Mrs. Angela Butte, accompanied by her daughter, Mrs. Ramon Papa, Jr.; Maj. Two Malacañang oldtimers also had a chance to see President Eisenhower. They were Modesto Bantola, Malacañang Press Office photographer who was one of the Malacañang photographers during the late President Quezon's time; and Justino Lebarido, a driver of Malacañang, who used to drive the car of Eisenhower during his inspection trips to Northern Luzon.

President Eisenhower received old friends immediately upon his arrival at Malacañang from the U.S. Embassy, which he visited after delivering an address before a special Joint Session of the Senate and the House of Representatives. The reunion lasted from 4:50 to 6:09 p.m.

After meeting old friends, President Eisenhower received the members of the Municipal Board of the City of Manila who presented a resolution unanimously approved adopting him as a Son of the City of Manila.

The American President was surprised and was grateful for the honor. It is the first time he had been adopted by a city as a son. In the past he had been adopted as a citizen of various cities.

The councilors, led by Vice-Mayor Antonio Villegas, presiding officer of the municipal board, were Gonzalo Santos Rivera, Eduardo Quintos, Alfredo Gomez, Vicente Cruz, Jose Sembrano, Francisco Varona, Francis Yuseco, Mariano Magsalin, Martin Isidro, Pablo V. Ocampo, and Ernesto Maceda.

President Garcia introduced President Eisenhower and presented him with the highest presidential award.

From the Luneta, the President returned to Malacañang and rested briefly. He left with President Eisenhower and the First Lady for the U.S. Embassy, where the U.S. Chief Executive gave a dinner in honor of President Garcia.

After an exchange of toasts, the two Presidents motored to the Philippine Navy landing, where President Garcia personally saw President Eisenhower off.

“The time of parting always makes the visit of a friend too brief,” President Garcia said.

June 17.—PRESIDENT Garcia boarded the presidential yacht Lapu-Lapu this morning and sought seclusion in order to study the approved bills.

The President was accompanied by aide, Major Ciriaco Hocson, who brought a big pile of pending state papers.

The President wanted to catch up with the backlog which had piled up during the three-day state visit of President Dwight D. Eisenhower.

Speaking before a big assemblage at the Ateneo de Manila in Loyola Heights, the President warned that scientific progress has placed within the reach of man the weapon which could destroy the world civilization. The President, after tracing the growth of universities throughout the world, expressed firm belief that universities should not confine their activities to teaching, but must also devote part of their time to basic research to develop a well-balanced man and at the same time contribute to the basic progress of the nation economically.

The President paid tribute to the Ateneo de Manila for producing great men who have rendered their greatest service to the country, especially the greatest Filipino hero, Dr. Jose Rizal, who graduated from the Ateneo in 1877, with the degree of Bachelor of Arts.

The President was guest speaker at the inauguration of the Ateneo de Manila as a full-fledged university.

The date was doubly important because it marks the conclusion of 100 years of service to the country of the Ateneo and the 99th birthday anniversary of Dr. Jose P. Rizal, whose talents and talent energy were developed in that institution, and which he devoted to the service of the country.

During the ceremonies, Teodoro Evangelista, president of the Far Eastern University and chairman of the Ateneo Centennial Conference on Education, presented the President; with a study of the growth of higher education in the Philippines, its problems and suggested solutions which, he said may be utilized by the officials of the government responsible for the educational policies of the government.

Named to the investigating committee are Justice Undersecretary Enrique Fernandez, chairman; Education Undersecretary Daniel Salcedo and President Francisco Dalupan of the University of the East, members.

In his report to the President, Justice Buenaventura Ocampo, chairman of the PCAPE, made the following allegations against Velilla:

- (3) Wilful failure to pay just debts and conduct prejudicial to the public service;
- (4) Borrowing money and accepting gifts of substantial value from subordinates;

President Garcia requested today Auditor General Pedro Gimenez to expedite approval of payment of Virginia leaf tobacco purchases from the current crop by the Philippine Virginia Tobacco Administration.

Gov. Madki Alonto of Lanao del Sur conferred with the President and opposed plans to send a BCT to Jolo where peace and order was reported to be deteriorating.

Gov. Ali Dimaporo of Lanao del Norte also saw the President. He took up the problems facing his province.

Gov. Valeriano Gatuslao of Negros Occidental also saw the President this evening and denounced alleged over-shipment in sugar to the foreign markets.

Other callers were Antonio Diaz, Vice-Gov. Greg Dalongan of Zambales, and James Gordon, president of the Rotary Club of Olongapo.

June 24.—PRESIDENT Garcia this morning held a long closed-door conference with Manuel Elizalde and Jose Ma. Gomez, presidents of the National Federation of Sugar Planters and the Philippine Sugar Association, respectively.

Immediately after his conference with the sugarmen, the President summoned Justice Buenaventura Ocampo, Max A. Maceren, and Major Teodulo Natividad, PCAPE chairman, vice-chairman, and chief investigator and legal officer, respectively, and asked them to submit as soon as possible their findings and recommendations on the sugar over-shipment squabble.

Earlier the President had a breakfast conference with Assistant Executive Secretary Mariano Logarta, Al Valencia, Eddie Martelino, and Teodoro F. Valencia.

Major Jose Ma. Guerrero, of the Philippine Information Agency in Washington, who had been recalled to Manila to assist during the visit of President Eisenhower, was unable to attend the breakfast because of an official conference with Foreign Affairs Secretary Felixberto Serrano.

The President also received Acting ACCFA Administrator Leopoldo Uichangco and members of the ACCFA board who sought presidential assistance in the refinancing activities of this government agency.

Present at the conference were ACCFA Governors Celestino Paulin, Apolonio Marasigan, and Rafael Piguing.

Later the President received a big delegation led by Rep. Fausto Dugenio of Misamis Oriental which called to thank the President for signing the bill converting Gingoog into a city.

The 15-man delegation included Mayor Julio Ganaban, Vice-Mayor Arturo Lugod, the municipal councilors of Gingoog, Jorge J. Tagandong, editor of Tingog Misamisnon, and Washington Brodith.

The President today directed PCAPE officials to submit as soon as possible their findings and recommendations on the alleged over-shipment of sugar to the United States which, according to reports, prejudiced thousands of sugar planters who have no market for their produce.

During an hour-long conference at Malacañang, the President told the PCAPE officials to prosecute and terminate all administrative cases without fear or favor, and with the least possible delay.

The President was disturbed by reports that the alleged over-shipment of sugar had adversely affected thousands of sugar cane planters all over the country who, because the sugar quota had already been filled, could not ship produce abroad.

The President asked the PCAPE chairman, Justice Buenaventura Ocampo, to submit his recommendations and to pinpoint responsibility for such overshipment so that the guilty parties can be prosecuted.

Likewise, the President expressed grave concern over the report that some 148 government agencies have to date failed to liquidate accumulating debts amounting to over ₱483 million, owing to alleged mismanagement, gross negligence, laxity in the performance of duty or corrupt practices.

The report submitted by the auditor general, indicated that loss of records and official documents was the chief cause for inability to collect accumulated debts owing the government by several government agencies.

In the meantime, the President indicated he will expand the PCAPE investigation and legal division by making available to it the services of all Malacañang technical assistants whose services may be needed.

The PCAPE officials who conferred with the President, were Justice Ocampo, Vice-Chairman Max A. Mecerren, and Maj. T. Natividad.

June 25.—PRESIDENT Garcia stayed in his private residence in Quezon City the whole day today.

Malacañang said this evening the President did not receive any caller except Secretary of Foreign Affairs Felixberto M. Serrano, who saw the Chief Executive for consultation.

It was learned the foreign affairs secretary took up with the President implementation of the Garcia-Eisenhower agreement which was forged during the meeting of the two Presidents in Manila two weeks ago.

Secretary Serrano had met with U.S. Ambassador John D. Hickerson and laid the groundwork for the re-opening of negotiations between representatives of the Philippines and the United States on U.S. bases and the drafting of an air treaty.

Serrano also took up with the President the possibility of bringing to Manila current negotiations in Tokyo for a Philippine-Japan treaty of friendship, commerce, and navigation.

The President also received Executive Secretary Natalio P. Castillo, who took up some pending state questions.

President Garcia also received Press Secretary Jose C. Nable and they discussed the so-called third "White Paper" as reported by the newspapers this afternoon.

The President this day directed Reparations Commission officials to explain the reported charge of overpricing on ships acquired through reparations payments.

Acting through Executive Secretary Natalio P. Castillo, the President sent a cable earlier this afternoon to Reparations Chairman Rodolfo Maslog, who is now in Tokyo, Japan, attending to the schedule of reparations payments for 1961.

Press Secretary Jose C. Nable said the holding of a formal investigation of the charges will depend on the explanation that will be submitted by the Reparations officials.

Nable said he was not aware of any report submitted to the President on this matter, but the President's quick action was based on press reports.

It is possible, Nable said, that this may be the same charge of overpricing claimed by some members of the Senate Blue Ribbon committee.

He recalled that the Senate Blue Ribbon committee had never submitted its findings for the approval of the entire Senate. Legislative procedure demands that a report must first be approved by the committee involved and later on adopted by the Senate in formal session and from hereon such findings may be submitted to the President for executive action, Nable said.

The press secretary also took occasion to emphasize the President's insistence for Congress to plug what has been described as loopholes in the reparations law. In his state-of-the-nation speech last January, the President specifically asked Congress to look into the revision of the reparations law which allows end-users to deal directly with manufacturers, Nable said.

This procedure of acquiring reparations goods is suspected highly of being the cause of overpricing, Nable said.

President Garcia today suspended from office Aguedo Y. Gepte as director of the Bureau of Supply Coordination, Department of General Services.

Gepte's suspension will remain in force pending the investigation and disposition of an administrative case against him involving the allegedly anomalous purchase of supplies worth over ₱1 million in his bureau.

In the administrative case filed against him, Gepte is charged with "gross negligence, incompetence, dishonesty, misconduct in office, and acts prejudicial to the public service."

The suspension was recommended by Acting Secretary Serafin Salvador and legal counsel Pedro P. Suarez of the Department of General Services, under Section 34 of Republic Act No. 2260, to enable witnesses to testify freely and without fear and the possible loss or tampering of evidence in the case.

President's Week in Review: June 26 – July 2, 1960

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

June 26.—PRESIDENT Garcia alerted today government relief agencies to extend immediate assistance to thousands of sufferers expected as a result of typhoon Olive, which was reported to have been roaring through Eastern Visayans and Southern Luzon with center winds of cyclonic proportions.

Calling from his Bohol Avenue residence in Quezon City where he spent the week-end, the President instructed Executive Secretary Natalio P. Castillo, chairman of the national relief coordinating committee, to keep him posted on reports of damages from the affected areas and on the needs of typhoon victims.

The President also issued directives to SWA Administrator Amparo Villamor, Health Secretary Elpidio Valencia, and Brig. Gen. Isagani Campo on the prompt dispatch of foodstuffs, clothing materials, medical supplies, and other needs of the ravaged regions, as well as the maintenance of peace and order in the localities.

The Chief Executive did not receive any caller at his Quezon City residence today. With the rains falling continuously as a result of typhoon Olive, he spent most of the day in his private study where he worked on papers he had brought along from Malacañang yesterday.

The President started the day by hearing mass said at the living room of his home. Also at the mass were LCdr. Melchor Fronda, naval aide, and members of the household.

After a light breakfast the President immediately repaired to his study, where he spent some time reading the Sunday morning papers. He started telephoning members of his Cabinet concerned as soon as he read about the typhoon with powerful center winds said to be raging at 140 miles per hour.

June 27.—EARLY this morning the President harnessed all government emergency and relief agencies to give immediate assistance to residents in Manila, Quezon City, San Juan, Caloocan, and the provinces hit by the typhoon.

The President also directed Executive Secretary Natalio P. Castillo to allow all government employees to return to their respective homes, giving them the day off because of the typhoon.

The Chief Executive specifically asked the Constabulary and the Army to rush to flooded areas in Manila, Quezon City, and Caloocan in order to assist residents whose homes have been immersed, under water.

Also alerted were the Department of Public Works, the Social Welfare Administration, and the Department of Health.

The President motored early this morning from his Quezon City residence and proceeded to Malacañang to direct personally typhoon assistance. He passed through the Aurora Boulevard, including San Juan districts, where he saw the flooded areas.

President Garcia was reported to have developed a slight temperature; so he cancelled all engagements for today. Before he went to bed by the advice of Palace doctors, the President was able to give personal instructions for the relief and assistance of typhoon victims.

June 28.—PRESIDENT Garcia this morning expressed the hope that in signing the bill creating a Women and Minors Bureau in the Department of Labor, greater protection will be afforded to more than 2.5 million women and thousands of minors now gainfully employed in various fields of industry.

The President this morning reenacted the signing of the bill at Malacañang before a delegation of women led by Sen. Pacita M. Gonzalez, who sponsored the bill in the Senate.

The Chief Executive also reenacted the signing of House Bill Numbered 3271, which was amended by substitution drafted by the Senate committee on, social justice, community development, and welfare chaired by Sen. Gonzalez.

The act plugs loopholes in the SSS Charter by providing tremendous increases in all benefits to employee-members of the System who now number 413,000 without substantially increasing their premium contributions.

Retirement benefits are increased by over 60 per cent; death and disability benefits now average about 20 per cent and sickness benefits range from 40 to 50 per cent.

Coverage is also widened and extended to all industrial laborers, subject to exemptions in the existing law. The six-employees and six-months waiting period requirements have been eliminated by the new act. Agricultural workers who work on a base or salary pay for an uninterrupted period of at least six months in a year are also covered now.

Present when President Garcia reenacted the signing of the SSS bill were, aside from Sen. Gonzalez, were Reps. Benjamin T. Ligot, Ricardo Yap Ladrido, Faustino Tobia, acting SSS Administrator Higinio R. Francisco, and SSS division chiefs led by Ananias Garcia.

Other callers were Sen. Pedro Sabido, Reps. Vicente Peralta, Vicente Gustilo, Laurentino Badelles, and Tobias Former, Ambassador Pedro C. Hernaez, Gov. Josue Cadio of Antique, Consul General Jose Fornier, and Drs. Jose Barcelona and Reginaldo Pascual, director and assistant director, respectively, of the Philippine General Hospital.

The Philippines today extended formal recognition to the new Mali Federation in line with the government's policy in giving support to the aspiration of colonial people for independence and self-determination.

In a note forwarded this evening by the Department of Foreign Affairs, President Garcia formally informed President Modibo Keita that the Philippines heartily welcome the new state to the community of free and independent nations, and conveyed his best wishes for the success of the federation and for the happiness and prosperity of the Mali people.

President Garcia called a caucus of Congress leaders, including Senate President Eulogio Rodriguez, this afternoon. The caucus was held at the music room in Malacañang, and the Senate Leader, who had previously challenged President Garcia to the presidential nomination, showed up.

Malacañang was silent on the Garcia-Rodriguez meeting. Those present, however, said the President and the Senate President did not discuss politics, but the fact that Rodriguez appeared at the caucus was believed a step towards the possibility of a rapprochement between the two NP leaders.

Those who attended the caucus, aside from Rodriguez, were Senators Cipriano Primicias, Arturo M. Tolentino, Gil J. Puyat, Pedro Sabido, Quintin Paredes, and Domocao Alonto; Speaker Daniel Z. Romualdez; and Reps. Jose Aldeguer, Justiniano S. Montano, and Dominador Tan.

June 29.—PRESIDENT Garcia today directed Secretary Natalio P. Castillo to release an initial ₱160,000 from the contingent funds for the devastations wrought by typhoon Olive in the provinces of Albay, Sorsogon, and Tarlac.

Acting on the report on the extent of the damage submitted by Gov. N. Maronilla-Seva of Albay, the President earmarked ₱100,000 for that province.

The President also directed the release of ₱40,000 for Sorsogon and ₱20,000 for Tarlac.

Secretary Castillo is scheduled to enplane for Legaspi City tomorrow to present the check to Albay provincial officials and at the same time conduct an on-the-spot survey of the damage caused to other provinces along the path of the storm.

Before his departure for Tacloban, Leyte, this afternoon, President Garcia directed Secretary Castillo to visit the areas laid waste by the typhoon.

More releases from the President's contingent funds are expected as soon as reports from other hard-hit provinces in Luzon reach Malacañang.

Meanwhile, Secretary Castillo reappointed several members of the board of the National Resettlement and Rehabilitation Administration, including Mrs. Remedios O. Fortich, board chairman.

Among those reappointed were Valeriano Plantilla, Rafael Hilao, Angelino Banzon, and Severo Yap. One position still remains to be filled, the one vacated by ex-Gov. Perfecto Faypon, who resigned to join the board of directors of the Philippine Virginia Tobacco Administration.

THIS afternoon the President gave Sugar Quota Administrator Ramon. Paguia 72 hours within which to explain why he should not be charged with administrative disciplinary action.

The President gave the order before leaving on board the Lapu-Lapu for Tacloban, Leyte, to inaugurate the new province of Leyte del Sur and the Hilongos airport.

Paguia is under investigation for his alleged negligence that resulted in the reported over shipment of 50,000 tons of sugar in 1959 which was charged to the 1960 quota. The over shipment caused the shutting out from the 1960 U.S. market of $1,600,000 worth of Philippine export sugar owned by legitimate quota holders.

The President's action was prompted by the recommendation submitted to him by Justice Buenaventura Ocampo, chairman of the Presidential Committee on Administration Performance Efficiency, to effect formally the administrative charges against Paguia. Justice Ocampo, together with PCAPE Vice-Chairman Maximo Maceren and Major Teodulo Natividad, chief PCAPE investigator, had earlier briefed the President in his study room in Malacañang about the charges against Paguia filed by Jose Mapa Gomez, President of the National Federation of Sugarcane planters.

Paguia admitted an over shipment of 17,515 short tons in 1959 which was charged to the 1960 Philippine national quota but claimed that this was merely a balance of an over shipment of 23,518,20 in 1958 which he inherited from his predecessor, Vicente Bunuan. He claimed further that the 13,783 short tons of overshipment of the 1960 Philippine sugar quota reported by Dr. Zafra to PHILSUGIN in a cablegram dated June 15, 1960, is a further reduced balance of the overshipment he inherited from his predecessor.

Paguia also denied that there is any export sugar here in the Philippines which cannot find a buyer, claiming that up to the time of his appearance before the Presidential Committee that investigated him on June 23, 1960 he had not received a single complaint from any sugar quota holder on this matter.

Justice Ocampo pointed out that according to the report of the United States Department of Agriculture there was still an unfilled balance of our quota for the year 1958 in the total amount of 69,751 short tons, three months after Paguia assumed office and six months after Vicente Bunuan resigned. This same U.S. report contradicts Paguia's claim that he cannot be blamed for the overshipment which he said he had merely inherited from his predecessor.

June 30.—UPON his arrival today at Tacloban City on board the RPS Lapu-Lapu, President Garcia was accorded a warm reception by Leyteños led by Speaker Daniel Z. Romualdez, Gov. Ildefonso Cinco, and Tacloban City Mayor Artemio Mate.

Thousands lined up the wharf to greet the President and his party, including the First Lady, Mrs. Daniel Romualdez, Mrs. Marcelino Veloso, Mrs. Joaquin Roces, and Rep. Valeriano Yancha. The Lapu-Lapu was escorted to the wharf by a fluvial parade. After disembarking the President was accorded full military honors by a PC unit.

From the wharf, the President and party proceeded to the residence of Mayor Mate, where cocktails was served. After cocktails the President and the First Lady went back to the RPS Lapu-Lapu to see the fluvial procession in honor of Santo Nino, patron saint of Tacloban City.

This evening the President was scheduled to attend a dinner conference at the residence of Gov. Cinco, where Leyte mayors were invited to attend.

At 11 p.m., the President and party boarded the Lapu-Lapu for the trip to Maasin for the inauguration of Southern Leyte province.

President Garcia today discounted the possibility of calling Congress to a second special session, should the current meeting fail to enact into law the administration-sponsored bills.

The President emphasized that the special session of Congress had been called primarily to act on the proposed amendments to the Constitution.

After Congress acts on these charter amendments, the President will rush over to Congress the anti-graft bill, the nationalization of the rice and corn industries, and the proposed amendments to the reparations law.

The President's statement was issued by way of rectifying press reports that he will call Congress to a second special session for sole purpose of legislating on the amended bills vetoed by the Chief Executive.

The presidential rectification was relayed from aboard the RPS Lapu-Lapu, which was taking the Chief Executive to Tacloban City to inaugurate the new province of Southern Leyte tomorrow.

July 1.—PRESIDENT Garcia stressed that the inauguration of Hilongos airport is a progressive step in the field of civil aviation and expressed the conviction that it will bring economic benefits to Western Leyte which will be brought closer to Luzon, other parts of the Visayas, and Mindanao.

The President added that the airport marks another milestone in the progress of Western Leyte in all aspects of economic and agricultural development.

The President spoke at the Hilongos airport inaugural program after being introduced by Speaker Daniel Z Romualdez.

At noon in Maasin, the capital of Southern Leyte, the President inaugurated the new province and inducted former Maasin Mayor Alfredo Bantug as governor, former Mayor Graciano Capili of St. Bernard as vice-governor, and Isabelo Caindoy and Generoso Herrera as provincial board members.

The Maasin town plaza was filled with people coming from all towns of Southern Leyte to hear the President extol the leadership of Speaker Romualdez in Leyte and Rep. Nicanor Yñiguez in Southern Leyte. The President cited the progress achieved by Leyte during the NP administration.

After the inaugural ceremonies, the President and his party attended a banquet at the St. Joseph College auditorium, where a conference was held with municipal mayors who brought to President Garcia's attention local problems.

The President and his party arrived at Maasin on board the RPS Lapu-Lapu from Tacloban and were received with a fluvial parade.

Disembarking by motor boat, the President was accorded a rousing welcome by Maasin folks and delegations from all towns of Southern Leyte.

Immediately after disembarking the President walked from the wharf to the Catholic church, to attend a Te Deum.

At the banquet the President installed the officers of the Southern Leyte Mayors League; namely, Mayors Roman de Jesus of Anahawan, Emeterio Escano of Malitbog, Jose Veloso of Sogod, Damiano Puray of Cabalian, Valeriano Tomol of Silago, and Nemesio Mosqueda of Pintuyan.

After the airport inauguration, the presidential party proceeded to Hilongos town hall for merienda, together with Speaker Romualdez, Rep. Dominador Tan, Gov. Ildefonso Cinco, and others.

President Garcia visited today scenes of his wartime activities and met with guerilla comrades-at-arms. About one kilometer from the inaugural site of the new airport, the President again saw the swampy land where for three months he had successfully eluded Japanese patrols.

The President recalled an unforgettable event when he attempted to cross the channel over to Bohol, while trying to escape the Japanese, and his boat capsized. The then guerilla leader, Carlos P. Garcia, clung to the half-submerged boat and was tossed around by strong winds and huge waves the whole night until the next morning.

President Garcia renewed acquaintances with his guerilla comrades. With the President was Emiliano Melgazo, Leyte provincial board member, who had successfully helped hide the President during the war years.

President Garcia this afternoon extended diplomatic recognition to the three new-born Republics of Congo, Somalia, and Madagascar, Malacañang announced.

In his message welcoming the birth of the new independent nations, the President expressed his most sincere wishes for their success and prosperity.

July 2.—THIS morning, after breakfast, President Garcia conferred with Reps. Felipe Abrigo, Valeriano Yancha, and Marcelino Veloso over problems of their districts.

Then President Garcia called the newsmen for a press conference during which he read a telegram from Ambassador Carlos P. Romulo informing the President of the approval by the agricultural committee, of the increase by 15 per cent of the Philippine sugar quota to be taken from the big quota of sugar-producing companies. He also read a speech by Rep. Joseph Martin, minority, floor leader in the US lower House, extolling the leadership of President Garcia and the reiteration of his policy of closer PI-US friendship.

President Garcia in his message read this morning by Executive Secretary Natalio P. Castillo, announced that over ₱12 million has been appropriated this year to cover the five-year lump gratuity payments to retiring government employees. He also stated that ₱47 million has been earmarked for the implementation of the 65 per cent WAPCO salary adjustment proposal.

The message to the delegates was read during the opening session of the two-day convention of the Confederation of Government Employees Organization (COGEO) at the Philippine Normal College auditorium this morning.

President Garcia in his message mentioned the grave concern of the government for the welfare of, its employees, and enumerated its efforts to improve the lot of civil servants.

Discussing the civil service program, the President underscored the importance of striking a balance between the need for protecting the public interest and the need for competent, honest, and reliable personnel. He urged the thorough review, systematization, and consolidation of all civil service laws into an integrated unit.

President Garcia spent the whole afternoon undisturbed in his cabin going over his speech for July 4.

The RPS Lapu-Lapu, lifted anchor from Hilongos, Leyte, at 11 p.m. yesterday after the President had inaugurated the airport and conferred with local officials at the town hall.

While President Garcia worked, the rest of the presidential party were at lounge playing parlor games as the Lapu-Lapu cruised serenely.

July 6.—PRESIDENT Garcia today expressed his thanks to the United States Navy for the “wonderful experience” he had aboard the USS Swordfish on the invitation of Rear Admiral Arleigh Burke, chief of operations of the United States Navy.

On disembarking at pier 13 about 4 p.m. today, after a seven-hour day-light demonstration cruise on board the first atomic submarine ever to visit Manila, the President expressed deep interest on how “so much power could be packed into such a small craft.”

The President spent suspenseful hours aboard the Swordfish, cruising on the surface and underwater in the Manila Bay area.

A firm advocate of modern defensive weapons for the Philippines, the President enjoyed taking over the controls from skipper Comdr. Roth S. Leddeck and putting the heavy steel monster through its paces like a trained circus pony.

The President described this feat as “having surpassed all expectations.”

According to Secretary Aytona, last year’s collections of the Bureau of Customs amounted to ₱390.6 million, surpassing by ₱17.8 million the estimated collection of ₱372.8 million for that year. There was also an increase of ₱101.5 million over the actual collections in 1959 which reached ₱289.1 million and exceeded by ₱18.8 million the collections made during, the banner year of 1957 amounting to ₱371.8 million.

The Bureau of Internal Revenue, on the other hand, had collected during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1960, ₱481.5 million as compared to the 1958-1959 collections of ₱433.9 million, or an increase of ₱47.6 million.

Aytona said the improved collections were reflected in the cash position of the Bureau of Treasury which showed an increase of ₱95.9 million from ₱188.8 million to ₱284.7 million over that of the previous year.

Furthermore, Secretary Aytona said, there was a balance of ₱26.1 million in the general funds at the end of the 1960 fiscal year as against the deficit of ₱20.1 million at the end of the previous fiscal year, or a difference of ₱46.2 million.

This did not include, he added, proceeds totalling ₱49 million from the 25 percent marginal fee from the Central Bank nor the ₱47 million proceeds from the payment of the gold devaluation claim from the United States which was secured by President Garcia during his state visit to the U.S. in 1958.

July 7.—PRESIDENT Garcia today directed Budget Commissioner Faustino Sy Chanco to make the necessary arrangements to enable government employees to receive 65 per cent of their WAPCO-readjusted salaries before July 15, this year.

The order to the budget commissioner was an implementation of his pledge recently given to the Confederation of Government Employees Organizations (COGEO) to give them full value for their work.

The President received Archbishop Jose Ma. Cuenco of Jaro at the Malacañang music room this afternoon.

Archbishop Cuenco paid his respects to the Chief Executive preparatory to his departure Saturday for Munich, Germany, to attend the International Eucharistic Congress.

Later, the President administered the oath of affiliation with the Nacionalista Party to Mayor Amadeo Almadrones of Perez, Quezon province.

Mayor Almadrones, a former Liberal, was accompanied to Malacañang by Rep. Numeriano Babao of Batangas, Rep. Leon Guinto, Jr., of Quezon, Batangas, Mayor Pedro Tolentino, and other local officials.

In the afternoon the President and the First Lady were guests of honor at the inauguration of the Republic Glass Plant at Pinagbuhatan, Pasig, Rizal.

President Garcia reiterated his pledge to combat graft and corruption in all its forms as he sought from Congress an effective anti-graft bill that would justly and fairly weed out undesirables from the government service, in an extemporaneous speech before the Manila Rotary Club at the Manila Hotel’s Winter Garden this noon.

In his one-hour extemporaneous speech the President justified his veto of three controversial measures, the Anti-Graft Bill, the Rice and Corn Nationalization measure, and proposed amendments to the Reparations Act all of which, he said, contained objectionable provisions that must be corrected.

Discarding a prepared speech, the President told the Rotarians that his veto of the three measures had been misunderstood, especially by those who wanted to place him in a bad light before the public. He was roundly applauded by the Rotarians.

The President told the Rotarians that he is in full accord with the idea of nationalizing the rice and corn industry but expressed a conviction that the transition periods set forth are too short for an effective and smooth take-over of the industry which is mostly alien capitalized by some ₱500 million.

The bill as approved by Congress provided for only six months in the retail trade, one year in the wholesale, and two years in the processing (milling, warehousing, etc.) during which time aliens will have to liquidate their assets for Filipinos to take over.

The President emphasized that this would hardly be enough time to train the necessary personnel in the proper know-how in the various phases of the industry.

The President also pointed out that thousands of Filipinos employed by alien trades, such as laborers, accountants, and ordinary farmers, should be given, the time to adapt themselves to changing situations when their employers are displaced by Filipino citizens.

The President voiced vigorous objection to the manner of financing the project, which in effect, would force the Government Service Insurance System and the Social Security System to invest trust funds in the industry.

Rice and corn crops, are risky business because they are easily destroyed by droughts, floods, locusts, typhoons, and other national calamities, he said, adding that this would force government insurance corporations to invest sizeable amounts of their trust funds, thereby endangering the welfare of some 300,000 government employees who are members of the GSIS and many thousands more private employees who are members of the SSS and are entitled to sickness, death, or unemployment benefits which are guaranteed by these funds.

The President emphasized the fact that government employees pay part of their earnings as soon as they enter the government service up to the time of their retirement in the hope that when old age catches up with them, they would have something to fall back on, because by that time they will be too old to earn their living and that for, their families.

The President said that crop failures will certainly deal a serious blow to the welfare of these employees and those covered by the Social Security System and will shake their faith in the government seriously.

In explaining his veto of the anti-graft bill, the President made specific mention of Sections 4, 5, and 6 of the proposed measure.

The President pointed out that Section 6 of the bill is unfair to the President because it virtually removes his immunity from court processes by making him liable for acts committed by any member of Congress which he had no way of knowing or preventing.

Section 6 would make the President liable to prosecution if by a bill which he certifies to Congress, the congressman who sponsored it benefits personally, or receives pecuniary interests through it.

The same section would also hold liable any Cabinet member who recommends the same bill to the President for certification to Congress.

The President argued that he would have no way of knowing, or preventing a senator or congressman from receiving money in the grant of a franchise sponsored by them.

He then cited a specific example during the time of the late President Magsaysay when a congressman obtained a franchise in the name of his wife (maiden name). The franchise came to the knowledge of Congress when the congressman was defeated by his rival, who successfully brought about the repeal of the franchise which was unconstitutional.

The President pointed out that under the proposed act, President Magsaysay would have been held liable although in certifying the bill to Congress, he had no way of knowing that the grantee was the wife of the congressman-sponsor of the bill.

The President received a prolonged applause when he said, "If we want to stamp out graft and corruption, let us stamp it out without committing unnecessary injustice to a group of our populace. After all, we cannot choose our relatives."

The President explained that Section 5 of the bill seeks to prohibit spouses and relatives within the third civil degree of consanguinity or affinity of the President, Vice-President, President of the Senate, and Speaker of the House of Representatives from having any dealings with the government, directly or indirectly, or in any capacity whatsoever.

The President said that section 4 of the proposed measure should also define "closeness" to a public official and make it an element of the crime in order to make the act punishable.

In explaining his objections to the proposed amendments to the Reparations Act, the President emphasized that the limit of $1.5 million set for each applicant would be detrimental to the development of chemical and steel industries in the Philippines because it would be inadequate for them.

The limit is applicable to small industries but not to the rapidly expanding industries like the urea industry, which calls for $12 million allocation, he said.

President Garcia expressed the hope that his observations would be given careful consideration by Congress in the passage of substitute measures during the current special session.

The President's one-hour extemporaneous speech was well received by the Rotary Club members and guests, most of whom are prominent in the business, industrial, and commercial circles. Before addressing the Rotarians, the President inducted the newly-elected officers of the organization.

Among those inducted were Jose M. Barredo, Sr., president; Jose Y. Orosa, vice-president; Ralph G. Hawkins, secretary; Jesus Jacinto, treasurer; Rafael S. Dedal, assistant treasurer-secretary; Emili Abello, Roberto Villanueva, Richard Pockmire, Rafael Anton, and immediate past President Ramon C. Ordoveza, directors.

The President was introduced by Jose Barredo, who gave his introductory remarks after receiving the gavel from his predecessor, Ramon Ordoveza.

July 8.—PRESIDENT Garcia met today House members in a conference in Malacañang reportedly on the agenda of the current special session.

However, the Malacañang press office was silent on this conference, prompting speculations in the Palace that the President had taken up the proposal to investigate charges of bribery against the Chief Executive as ventilated recently by Rep. Sergio Osmeña, Jr.

The President had conducted separate conference with the solons and was believed to have expressed his willingness to be impeached if the bribery rap is substantiated.

"It is the most serious charge," the President was reported to have told the House members angrily. The solons were headed by Speaker Protomopre Constancio E. Castañeda. The other solons were not identified.

The President also received Minister Eduardo Rosal, who was accompanied to the Chief Executive by Assistant Executive Secretary Mariano R. Logarta.

Rosal called on the President for final instructions before returning to the Crown Colony aboard the S.S. President Hoover last night.

In the evening the President conferred with two senators and a House leader and took up his plan to certify to Congress during its special session a modified version of the vetoed measure which sought to nationalize the rice and corn industry.

At the Malacañang conference were Sens. Gil J. Puyat and Alejandro Almendras and Rep. Vicente Peralta. The senators assured the President they would sponsor the measure in the Senate on Monday, while Peralta would handle the House chores.

Also at the conference were Chairman Gregorio Licaros of the Development Bank of the Philippines and Central Bank Governor Miguel Cuaderno. Press Secretary Jose C. Nable was also present.

July 9.—THE President received Sen. Claro M. Recto, president of the Nationalist-Citizens Party, at breakfast this morning at the President's private residence in Quezon City.

It was learned that the President and Sen. Recto exchanged views on a number of subjects and issues. Sen. Recto also informed the President of his projected tour of Spain and other Latin-American countries next month after the current special session.

After his breakfast with Sen. Recto, the President retired to his private room, where he went over state reports.

President Garcia and Senate President Eulogio Rodriguez almost came face to face with each other this afternoon as the Chief Executive and the First Lady decided to visit the remains of the Senate leader's youngest sister at a funeral parlor in Manila.

The deceased, Mrs. Rafaela Rodriguez-Bautista, was reported lying in state in a city funeral parlor.

When the report was passed around to the Chief Executive, President Garcia asked Mrs. Garcia to accompany him to the funeral parlor.

When the aides checked on the report, the Malacañang officials were told that Mrs. Bautista's remains had been taken to Montalban, Rizal.

The President dictated a telegram to the Senate President expressing his condolence for the death of Senate President Rodriguez' sister.

He pointed out that the expansion of the PANTRANCO answers one of the urgent needs of the country in transportation. He said that the improvement of the transportation company directly affects social expansion. The President emphasized that the PANTRANCO has helped much in the solution of the unemployment problem.

The ceremonial ribbon was cut by the First Lady. She was assisted by Mrs. J. L. Klar and Mrs. Rafael Gonzalez, wives of the president and the general manager of the PANTRANCO, respectively.

Meanwhile, the President released ₱50,000 from his contingent fund for the rehabilitation and reconstruction of public schoolhouses and public buildings in the 2nd district of Albay. Presidential action was based on the recommendation of Rep. Justino Nuyda of Albay.

This evening the President expressed complete satisfaction over increasing participation of American investments in the Philippines.

He said the mushrooming industries, many backed by foreign capital, all over the Philippines can mean only one thing—their confidence and conviction that the Philippine economy is sound and stable.

The President made these statements before visiting officials of the International Telephone and Telegraph Corporation and its affiliate, the International Standard Electric Corporation, who presented the Chief Executive at his Bohol Avenue residence in Quezon City, a plan to expand, update, and modernize Philippine telecommunications system on an economical easy-payment plan.

The ITTC-ISEC executives also informed the President of the organization of a local corporation to handle present and future Philippine requirements in telephone and telegraph units and components which can be produced locally.

The President assured the American executives that they are welcome, but added he will study their plan carefully, in consultation with his economic and fiscal advisers.

Those who paid their call on the President were John T. Naylor, ITTC vice-president; C. C. Chapman, ISEC (Philippines) representative; and M. Burns and E. Luzurriaga, technical men of the affiliated organizations.

The plan, which had been submitted to the President as a proposal by officials of the International Telephone and Telegraph Corporation and International Standard Electric Corporation Monday evening, was referred to Director Alfonso for study and recommendation.

During their visit, the ITTC-ISEC executives also informed the President of the setting-up of a local factory to manufacture present and future Philippine requirements in telephone and telegraph equipment.

At that conference the President thanked the American executives for their offer which, he said, indicated strong confidence and firm conviction in the soundness and stability of the Philippine economy.

Director Alfonso informed the President that the ITTC and some of its 23 affiliated organizations have been participating successfully in the establishment of modern telecom exchanges in the Philippines, and that their equipment, such as the Penta Conta and the Crossbar type, are giving satisfactory performance,

The President told Alfonso that the offer deserves careful consideration, because it would mean not only modern telecommunications but also more employment opportunities and an overall contribution to the country's economic progress.

Gov. Esteban Bernido of Bohol also called on the President to report on his trip abroad. Gov. Bernido spiked press reports on his illness.

“I was given a clean bill of health by the doctors and I never felt better in my life,” Bernido said.

Defense Secretary Alejo Santos today recommended the increase of the Philippine Constabulary in Sulu to maintain peace and order.

In his report to President Garcia, Secretary Santos, who had just returned from a three-day survey of peace and order conditions in that province, noted a general clamor for additional troops to conduct punitive operations against outlaws.

Santos pointed out that the enforcement of law and order in that province is a difficult task owing to : (1) presence of large number of loose firearms in the hands of bandits; (2) reluctance of witnesses to testify in court and case fixing by local politicians; (3) lack of judges and fiscals to handle cases; and (4) illiteracy and economic backwardness on the part of the large portion of the populace.

Secretary Santos informed President Garcia that a special task force of four PC units, one BCT from the 1st Infantry Division and a team each of the CID and Rangers, plus available PC lawyer-officers, would be detailed in Sulu to gather loose firearms and conduct operations against outlaws.

Santos also recommended socio-economic steps; such as, the early start of Operations Brotherhood in Tawi-Tawi, the encouragement of farming and community development, and the construction of feeder roads. He also recommended the release of all funds for public works projects for the area authorized in the different appropriation laws.

Secretary Santos left on his inspection trip on July 8, accompanied by Brig. Gen. Isagani V. Campo, PC chief; Sulu Gov. Benjamin Abubakar, Sophia Miciano of the National Integration Commission, and others.

The party visited Jolo, Parang, Maimbung, Talipao and Seit Lake, Luuk, and Karungdung.

Among the other callers of the President at his Bohol Avenue residence in Quezon City was Commerce Secretary Manuel Lim, who reported on his tour of the United Kingdom on the invitation of Her Majesty's Britannic Government. Secretary Lim was abroad for 45 days.

Col. V. O. Tiongson, Malacañang financial assistant, also called on the President to render a report on his trip abroad to observed financing operations and practices in foreign government agencies.

In the afternoon the President motored to Malacañang to preside over the regular weekly Cabinet meeting.

President Garcia and his Cabinet authorized the flotation of bonds amounting to ₱7 million for the immediate purchase of relocation sites for squatters in Manila and suburbs.

The projected sites are an unoccupied portion of Hacienda Sapang Palay in San Jose del Monte, Bulacan, consisting of 638,494 hectares at ₱0.45 per square meter for squatters who may desire to move north of Manila; and another area either in Las Piñas and Parañaque, Rizal, or in Cavite for those who prefer to resettle south of Manila.

It was emphasized that action on this matter solved a perennial problem which had beset previous administrations.

Bonds for an additional half million pesos were also authorized for the purchase of some 114 hectares of the Sapang Palay hacienda to accommodate 114 tenant-occupants of the estate who had earlier petitioned President Garcia to include the areas they are working on in the government purchase for resale to them at low cost and in small monthly installments.

In compliance with the President's desire to have the relocation of squatters expedited, a survey party from the Army and the People's Homesite and Housing Corporation which will administer the resettlement program, had started survey work on the Sapang Palay and drawn plans for the development of that area.

Former Gov. Bernardo Torres, PHHC general manager, who had been summoned to the Cabinet meeting, assured the President that squatters could begin moving into the area in about 20 days after acquisition of the property.

The committee constituted to select relocation sites is still working on the choice of suitable areas from among many that are being offered south of Manila. , Gov. Torres, committee chairman, reported that the ones in Bacoar and Dasmariñas, Cavite, appear to be the most desirable.

Other members of the committee are Rodolfo P. Andal, general manager of the Government Service Insurance System, which had been committed to absorb more than ₱5 million worth of the bonds, and former Gov. Juan Q. Chioco, economic administrator.

It was pointed out at the Cabinet meeting that Republic Act 1322 authorizes the flotation of bonds up to ₱20 million to be utilized by the PHHC for low cost housing projects for destitutes and paupers, as well as for slum clearance.,

The Cabinet approved the sale of the Maria Cristina Fertilizer plant to the Marcelo Tire and Rubber Company on condition that the buyer guaranteed the retention of all employees and laborers of the plant.

Other conditions of the sale are (1) that Marcelo pays a down-payment of 25 per cent of ₱12 million, which is the value of the plant, and (2) payment of stock inventories at production cost estimated at ₱1.2 million.

The balance of ₱10.2 million after payment of the 25 per cent down-payment is payable in 30 equal semi-annual installments at six per cent interest.

Sale of the plant is another implementation of President Garcia's policy to dispose of government corporations and give way to private enterprise in the industrial field.

The sale of the plant was awarded to Marcelo, for the other bidder, the Marinduque Iron Mines, could not guarantee the retention of all the plant personnel. It instead asked the right to select whom to retain.

The President directed Justice Secretary Alejo Mabanag to draft the contract of sale and present it for further discussion at the next meeting of the Cabinet.

President Garcia today congratulated the Bayanihan Folk Dance Troupe for winning a special award in an international contest held in Paris, France, recently.

In a contest where 22 nations participated for honors, President Garcia pointed out that the "Filipino ambassadors of goodwill have placed the Philippines high in the ranks of the free world in the field of culture."

The President congratulated the Philippine Women's University's Folk Dance Troupe, better known locally and abroad as Bayanihan, in the name of the Filipino people.

"To the members of the Bayanihan," President Garcia concluded, "I say well done."

July 14.—PRESIDENT Garcia today moved to extend all-out help to provinces devastated by typhoons and calamities. At separate conferences with solons and provincial executives in Malacañang, he gave the green light to Rep. Justino Nuyda, assistant majority floor leader, to work for congressional approval of his bill appropriating ₱5 million for typhoon aid.

The President directed Budget Commissioner Faustino Sy-Changco to release all funds pertaining to the construction or repair of school buildings for the province of Albay, in view of the extensive damages caused by typhoons.

The President was informed by Senator Pacita M. Gonzalez, Rep. Justino Nuyda, and Gov. Nicanor M. Seva that practically all the school buildings in Albay were destroyed by typhoons.

The President directed Defense authorities to rush 125 pre-fabricated schoolhouses to Sorsogon, to replace those that were totally destroyed by typhoon Olive, after a conference with Gov. Juan Frivaldo.

In another directive to Commissioner Sy-Changco, the President authorized the released of ₱75,000 from his contingent funds for the reconstruction of the Arayat Pampanga public market which was razed to the ground by fire in the morning of June 30, 1960.

At a conference with Governor Francisco Nepomuceno of Pampanga, the President stated that when it comes to public service, "let's forget party lines and work together for the common good."

Mayor Marciano Lines of Jose Panganiban, Camarines Norte, called and presented to the President a resolution approved by the Mayors League of the Philippines petitioning Sen. Gil Puyat to run for vice-president if President Garcia runs for re-election in 1961.

The resolution pointed out that Puyat is a recognized exponent of economic endeavors in the country who has shown by his work in and outside Congress his capacity for leadership, understanding, and comprehension of the problems of the country as a whole.

The President also received Mayor Claro Ibasco of Mercedes, Camarines Norte, and former Mayor Ramon Adea of Jose Panganiban, Camarines Norte, who wanted to take their oath of affiliation to the Nacionalista Party before him. Both are local presidents of the Liberal Party in their respective towns.

Mayor Jose B. Madriaga and Vice-Mayor Eusebio Cacayuran of Rosario, La Union, also called on President Garcia to pledge their support to him in the 1961 elections. Both officials belong to the Liberal Party but supported President Garcia in the 1957 elections.

Others who saw the President were Rep. Lamberto Macias of Negros Oriental, Iloilo City Mayor Rodolfo Ganzon, Gov. Jesus Almero of Masbate, and Gov. Conrado Estrella of Pangasinan.

President Garcia officially commended today BIR Commissioner Melecio Domingo and Customs Commissioner Eleuterio Capapas for the outstanding increases of ₱149.1 million in actual collections from customs and internal revenue.

In separate commendations to Commissioners Domingo and Capapas, the President said their efforts are "remarkable accomplishments" leading to a marked improvement of the cash position of the National Treasury in the amount of ₱46.2 million over that of last year.

President Garcia said he will address a convocation of customs and internal revenue officials and personnel which will be held in the Malacañang Park tomorrow afternoon.

The Bureau of Customs alone registered a remarkable increase of ₱101.5 million in collections for fiscal year 1960 over the same period in 1959.

Speaking extemporaneously during the ceremony in Malacañang's music room, the President emphasized that the major problem of textbook shortage had been solved with this project.

The ceremony was highlighted by President Garcia's signing of his message to the school children which will go with every copy of the textbooks.

In commenting on the joint project, American Ambassador John D. Hickerson said that the project is "an investment for the future." He also pointed out that the project is significant of the close and warm relations between his country and the Philippines.

The joint project will be for a period of five years. It includes printing and distribution of textbooks for primary, elementary, and secondary schools. Priority, however, will be given to the printing of textbooks for primary grades during the first year of the project.

The project will cost $5 million worth of printing materials from the United States through the International Cooperation Administration (ICA), and ₱23 million as Philippine counterpart fund through the National Economic Council (NEC) and the Department of Education.

Of the 25 million textbooks to be printed, 80 per cent will be in English. The first batch is expected to be out by next January.

Among those present during the ceremony were Education Secretary Jose E. Romero, Paul Summers of ICA, Cornelio V. Crucillo, director of NEC foreign aid coordination, and Dr. Earle Hoshall, chief of the ICA education division.

President Garcia today denied the petition for reconsideration of the decision on the administrative case against Isidro C. Ang-angco, dismissed Manila collector of customs.

The denial, contained in a letter signed by Executive Secretary Natalio P. Castillo, was delivered this morning to Juan T. David, counsel of Ang-angco.

Ang-angco had been found guilty of conduct prejudicial to the best interests of the service and was considered resigned with prejudice to reinstatement in the Bureau of Customs.

In denying the petition, the Executive Secretary said the record shows that then Secretary Hernandez did not direct the respondent to release the concentrates in question.

The former Finance Secretary had stated that he knew that he could not direct the respondent to do so and, that if the respondent had refused to release the concentrates, he could not have compelled him.

President Garcia today appointed Commander Hector Moya, PN, chairman of the presidential law enforcement unit in the Southern Philippines, vice Capt. Santiago C. Nuval, PN, who recently completed a one year's tour of duty in that position.

The appointment was signed by Executive Secretary Natalio P. Castillo by authority of the President, upon recommendation of Lt. Gen. Manuel F. Cabal, AFP chief of staff.

The President this afternoon urged the Internal Revenue and Customs officials to intensify their tax-collection, saying that their record achievement this year can still be surpassed.

The President, in extending his congratulations to the BIR-Customs officials at their convocation at Malacañang Park, said that one thing stands out as a result of the large increase of collections, and that is the successful prosecution of the campaign to rid these offices of undesirables.

"Your accomplishment is the effacement of the rather unsavory reputation that the Bureau of Customs had attained. Now by this record, you have redeemed it," the President said.

The President said that what was true with the Bureau of Customs was also true with the Bureau of Internal Revenue. He said that both bureaus have successfully busted big and small rackets in and around them and have increased their collections by their success.

On his part, the President pledged that the fight against all forms of graft and corruption will march on unrelentingly until it is finally eliminated.

In his extemporaneous address the President took occasion to assure some 500 field men gathered in the convocation that the Philippine Republic “is the best democracy in all of Asia.” He said this was borne out by facts and figures of the United Nations, the International Monetary Fund, the Economic and Social Council, and even the United States Department of State.

“I am proud to say,” the President continued, “that the Philippines stands out as the most progressive and the strongest of these democracies that it has become the envy of every South American country.”

The two most important tax-collecting agencies of the government were commended by the President for an increase of collections by the Customs of ₱101.5 million, and by the BIR, of ₱47.6 million for 1960 over those of 1959.

The President pointed out that this resulted in the improvement of the cash position of the National Treasury by ₱46.2 million over that of the previous year.

Present at the convocation were Executive Secretary Natalio P. Castillo, Finance Secretary Aytona, Commissioner Domingo, Acting Customs Commissioner Timoteo Y. Aseron, Acting Deputy Customs Commissioner Rolando Deotina, and other ranking officials of the government.

July 16.—PRESIDENT Garcia did not receive many callers today. He saw some members of Congress who discussed with him pending legislative measures.

The President also received former Ambassador Joaquin M. Elizalde, who reported that the warm reception accorded President Eisenhower here has generated tremendous good will in the U.S. for the Philippines.

Elizalde, who returned recently from the U.S., saw the President at the latter’s residence in Quezon City.

The President was also informed by Elizalde that the visit of President Eisenhower to the Philippines was given the widest publicity in the United States through the press and the radio.

The American people, Elizalde also informed the President, were amazed that Eisenhower was almost smothered by the Filipinos during his stay in the Philippines.

President Garcia was the happy consort this evening to the First Lady, who received a large group of well-wishers in an expected asalto on the eve of her birthday anniversary.

President and Mrs. Garcia stayed at the window overlooking the front door and greeted those who came to Malacañang to felicitate the First Lady.

Congressional and Cabinet ladies and members of the diplomatic corps formed the nucleus of those who joined the asalto.

Speaker and Mrs. Daniel Z. Romualdez headed the guests from Congress. Still absent up to press time were Senate President and Mrs. Eulogio Rodriguez.

The President and Mrs. Garcia went up Mrs. Rodriguez’s residence recently to felicitate the latter on her birthday.

A party with musical numbers was held at the Malacañang social hall. The Congress and Cabinet ladies performed some dance numbers.

President's Week in Review: July 17-23, 1960

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

July 17.—PRESIDENT and Mrs. Garcia were “at home” today in Malacañang to receive friends and well-wishers who greeted the First Lady on the occasion of her birthday.

One of the early well-wishers was Mrs. Eulogio Rodriguez, who greeted the First Lady with a bouquet at the state dining room.

Senate President Eulogio Rodriguez did not show up. Mrs. Rodriguez said that Amang had a previous engagement.

Even Mrs. Rodriguez, after a brief exchange of greetings and after delivering the bouquet to the First Lady, left Malacañang. She did not join the First Couple at breakfast.

The congressional ladies gave a dance number which was participated in by Mrs. Paz Romualdez and Mrs. Claro M. Recto.

Speaker Daniel Z. Romualdez paired with the celebrant in a guaracha, while the Chief Executive paired with Mrs. Recto.

Others who joined the President and the First Lady at the thanksgiving mass were Mr. and Mrs. Fernando Campos.

After the mass the President and the First Lady received their guests at breakfast. During the breakfast the President gave the First Lady a solid triple-braided necklace with the medallion of St. Christopher with an inscription at the back: “To my Inday. From Caloy.”

Linda and her husband also gave their mother a birthday gift consisting of a beautiful desk set.

The President was so busy attending to the First Lady's guests that he asked Finance Secretary Dominador Aytona to read his speech at the Wack Wack Golf and Country Club, at the concluding ceremonies marking the end of the National Science and Technology Week.

July 18.—PRESIDENT Garcia stayed up until the wee hours this morning, as he waited for developments in Congress which closed the special session sine die.

The President had called the special session for the purpose of adopting proposals to amend the Constitution. However, Congress junked these proposals and went on. instead to go over three controversial measures which President Garcia had vetoed; namely, the anti-graft bill, the measure seeking to nationalize the rice and corn industry, and proposed amendments to the Reparations Law.

But what personally concerned the President was the charge of bribery hurled against him by Rep. Sergio Osmeña, Jr. The charge had spawned an inquiry which developed later into a move to suspend the Cebu solon. Until press time this evening no definite action had been voted upon by the House of Representatives.

The President stayed in his private residence in Quezon City the whole day. The President did not have any scheduled callers, although he made himself available to senators and congressmen to thresh out difficulties in the legislative agenda.

July 19.—FLUSHED by his victory in Congress, President Garcia today issued a statement congratulating the members of the House of Representatives for having disciplined Rep. Sergio Osmeña, Jr., who had assailed the Chief Executive in connection with his veto of the rice and corn bill.

In his statement President Garcia said the House decision was “justice tempered with mercy,” as the Cebu solon deserved sterner punishments. He said he was happy that he was vindicated by the House inquiry.

President Garcia this afternoon stated that his administration will continue to build up the Philippine merchant marine in implementation of the Philippine Overseas Shipping Act.

The President made this statement in an extemporaneous speech at the inauguration and blessing of the motor vessel Philippine President Quezon at Pier 3, South Harbor.

The President recalled that the Filipinos were known as daring sailors in sailboats before the advent of the Spanish conquistadores. Now, “we can be proud that we sail the seven seas with bottoms carrying the Philippine flag,” he added.

He said that it is but fitting that the first ship of the Philippine merchant marine be named after the late President Quezon, who “has been the inspiration and hope of the Filipino people for more than a quarter of a century.”

At present, Philippine foreign trade, both outgoing and incoming, are carried by foreign shipping up to 97 per cent.

With the twelve ships ordered by the National Development Company, plus the vessels acquired under the reparations act, the President said that the Philippines can expect to participate in foreign trade up to 35 per cent of what is at present being spent for freight of Philippine exports and imports.

The program to build a Philippine merchant marine was started, according to President Garcia, when the country initiated its economic stabilization program. It is now being realized when the country is well on the way toward prosperity, he added.

Secretary Juan O. Chioco, Administrator of the Office of Economic Coordination, in his introductory remarks, called President Garcia the Father of the Philippine merchant marine.

July 20.—PRESIDENT Garcia today instructed the Philippine panel negotiating a treaty of amity, commerce, and navigation with Japan to fly to Tokyo to discuss suggestions he had made on the proposed draft.

The President made the suggestions in the course of a whole-day conference with the Philippine panel at his Bohol Avenue residence in Quezon City, which started at breakfast and lasted through luncheon to 4 p.m.

The panel chairman, former Speaker Jose B. Laurel, Jr., said after the conference that in view of changes suggested by the President, the panel will have to fly to Tokyo to hold consultations with its Japanese counterpart which had already approved the original proposed draft.

Laurel said the panel members are leaving for Tokyo tomorrow morning via a Philippine Air Lines plane, arriving there in time to meet the Japanese panel Monday of next week.

Laurel said in view of the suggestions made by the President, the treaty draft cannot be submitted for approval to the Cabinets of both countries, and later to the upper chambers of the legislative bodies of the Philippines and Japan for ratification.

Chairman Laurel said he will keep the President posted on the progress of negotiations in Japan.

The proposed draft of the treaty with Japan had previously been discussed in two long conferences between the President and the panel members last week, after which it was to have been submitted by the President to the Cabinet.

Those present at the conference, including technical staff, were Sens. Lorenzo Sumulong (N) and Rogelio de la Rosa (L); Reps. Ramon P. Mitra (N, Mt. Prov.) and Antonio V. Raquiza (L. Ilocos Norte), Immigration Commissioner Francisco de la Rosa, Amado Brihas of the Central Bank, Jose Laurel III, Monico Vicente, Securities and Exchange Commissioner Mariano Pineda, Salvador Mascardo of the Bureau of Customs, Tariff Commissioner Montano Tejam, and others.

Foreign Affairs Secretary Felixberto Serrano and Chairman Jose C. Locsin of the National Economic Council were also at the meeting.

About 5:30 p.m., the President motored to Malacañang to preside over the weekly meeting of his Cabinet.

THE CABINET this evening unanimously agreed on a rebidding for the lease of 12 ocean-going ships to be acquired from Japan by the government through the National Development Company.

The Cabinet action was a reversal of its decision last week when it granted a request of the NDC board to negotiate with only two of the bidders, the A. V. Rocha and Company and the Compañía Maritima, to give the two an opportunity to improve on their bid offers.

The Cabinet reversed itself after considering the petitions of two other bidders, the United Philippine Lines and the Philippine Ace Lines.

They charged discrimination by allegedly being deprived of a similar opportunity given to the Rocha and the Maritima firms.

The acquisition of the 12 vessels, which form the nucleus of the Philippine merchant marine, is authorized by the Philippine Overseas Shipping Act.

The first of the vessels, the m.v. President Quezon, has been delivered. Another is expected from Japan this month.

July 21.—PRESIDENT Garcia today ordered the speedy construction of projects at the Manila International Airport to cope with the start of jet plane operations this year.

During his two-hour conference with Finance Secretary Dominador R. Aytona, Undersecretary Marciano Bautista of Public Works and Communications, and Civil Aeronautics Administrator Urbano Caldoza, the President emphasized the need for finishing all jet facilities under construction, especially the runways and communications facilities, in time for the start of jet operations.

The President pointed out that the Philippines must be prepared to handle faster and bigger volume of air traffic with the advent of the jet age, because it will not only mean more revenues but a better way of publicizing the Philippines in foreign countries through tourism.

The President also emphasized the importance of being able to handle with efficiency the expected boost in air traffic as a result of the proclamation of 1961 as “Visit Philippines—See Orient Year.”

In another directive the President told Defense Secretary Alejo Santos to send two companies of the 10th Battalion Combat Team to press the drive against lawlessness and loose firearms in Sulu. The President also directed the sending of an engineer company of the Armed Forces of the Philippines to help the people of Sulu fight poverty by providing them with feeder and barrio roads which, according to Secretary Santos, are partly responsible for the economic and social backwardness of the people.

In his conference with Secretary Santos and Director Oscar Arellano of Operations Brotherhood, the President told Secretary Santos to implement the drive against poverty and lawlessness in Sulu as early as possible.

Secretary Santos told the President that he is sending tomorrow two companies of the 10th BCT to reinforce the law enforcement agencies in Sulu, and an engineer company with heavy equipment to build barrio and feeder roads for the people.

Arellano, who called on the President to say goodbye before leaving for Laos in the afternoon, informed the Chief Executive that the Operations Brotherhood pilot project in Tawi-Tawi, Sulu, has already been set up and has already received pledges of aid from governmental agencies and civic organizations, in the form of supplies and equipment.

Among the agencies collaborating with Operations Brotherhood in Tawi-Tawi are the International Cooperation Administration, National Waterworks and Sewerage Authority, Armed Forces of the Philippines, JUSMAG, Social Welfare Administration, Departments of Education, Health, and Public Works and Communication, and the PACD.

Commander Hector Moya, chairman of the Presidential Law Enforcement Unit in Southern Philippines (PLEUSP), also called on the President for instructions. Moya took over the PLEUSP chairmanship from Capt. Santiago Nuval.

The President also received Senate Majority Floor Leader Cipriano Primicias and Reps. Tobias Fornier of Antique and Salipada Pendatun of Cotabato, who discussed with him party matters.

The President, unable to receive his scheduled callers, requested Executive Secretary Natalio P. Castillo to receive the governors and mayors who had been waiting for him at his study room.

Among those who were received by Secretary Castillo were Govs. D. O. Plaza of Agusan, Delfin Montano of Cavite, Constantino C. Navarro of Surigao, Godofredo Ramos of Aklan, Felipe Garduque of Cagayan, Johnny Frivaldo of Sorsogon, and Arsenio Lugay of Tarlac; Mayors Pedro Tolentino of Batangas, Batangas, and Arsenio Lugay of Tarlac; Mayors Pedro Tolentino of others.

President Garcia formed a three-man committee to look into the administrative charges against Salvador Narcelles, chief of the Quezon City Fire Department, for alleged misrepresentation and misconduct in office, Malacañang announced this afternoon.

The committee is composed of former Judge Jesus Paredes, chairman, and Malacañang Technical Assistants Juan Arbisu and Ramon Masa, members.

The President's action was prompted by the report of Judge Salvador Esguerra, Palace legal adviser, denouncing Narcelles' explanation as unsatisfactory. Narcelles had previously been given by the President a 72-hour ultimatum to answer why he should not be charged for administrative disciplinary action for disorderly conduct in office.

The complaint against Narcelles was brought to the Presidential Committee on Administration Performance Efficiency by Quezon City Councilor Carlos Albert, who apprised the PCAPE authorities about Narcelles' alleged misconduct in office which, Albert claimed, is "prejudicial to public interest."

Acting on this complaint, Justice Buenaventura Ocampo, PCAPE chairman, and Major Teodulo Natividad, chief PCAPE investigator, personally looked into the case. The ranking PCAPE officials found that Narcelles had entered into a contract with one Francisco Bocobo to promote the QCFC benefit fund drive. The contract allowed a 15 per cent share from the gross proceeds of the benefit fund drive for the QCFC while a standing SWA regulation allows 70 per cent share from the gross proceeds of the sale of tickets accruable to the QCFC Trust Fund.

President Garcia expressed his sincerest gratitude to United States Congressman Adam C. Powell for the latter's glowing tribute to the progress the Philippines has attained. Rep. Powell's remarks were made on the occasion of the 14th anniversary of Philippine Independence last July 4.

The President's gratitude was expressed in a letter to Rep. Powell dated July 19. The President wrote: "Your generous reference to my leadership has touched me deeply, indeed, and has in fact immensely encouraged me to work with greater devotion towards making my country a bastion of democracy and a stumbling block to international Communism in this part of the world.”

July 22.—PRESIDENT Garcia woke up this morning as the RPS Lapu-Lapu cruised on its way to Mindanao, where he will inaugurate the newly created city of Gingoog in Misamis Oriental.

Among the members of the presidential party were the First Lady, Rep. Bartolome Cabangbang of Bohol, former Assistant Executive Secretary Sofronio Quimson, and newsmen on the Malacañang beat.

After lunch the Chief Executive held a press conference while the Lapu-Lapu was just off Romblon. He told the newsmen that suspended Rep. Sergio Osmeña, Jr., had forfeited his right to assume the Cebu City mayoralty with his attendance of the first session of Congress last January.

After the press conference the President went over state papers.

July 23.—PRESIDENT Garcia today declared that Gingoog City in Misamis Oriental was launched under the most auspicious economic conditions and faces a bright future.

The President was guest of honor and principal speaker at the inauguration rites this morning held at the city bandstand. Pointing out that the dollar reserves of the country, which dipped the lowest in 1957, soared to about $200 million last July 15, the President said that, if the present trend continues, the dollar reserves in the future will increase to $250 million by the end of the year, which should be a new record. The President also cited the present favorable balance of trade.

President Garcia reacted to local problems affecting the coffee industry upon seeing placards urging him to stop coffee importations. He said that in the future coffee might equal the copra industry if guided in the right direction.

In his address during the inauguration the President said he signed the bill creating Gingoog City in answer to the clamor of its residents. He gave credit to Rep. Fausto Dugenio for sponsoring the bill in Congress.

Residents of Gingoog and other Misamis towns led by national, provincial, and city officials gave President Garcia and his party a warm reception upon arrival aboard the RPS Lapu-Lapu. Upon debarking, the President was given full military honors before proceeding to St. Rita church for the Te Deum. He then led a motorcade around the city plaza to the city bandstand for the inauguration rites.

During the inauguration ceremonies the President handed to Gov. De Lara a check for ₱100,000 as initial aid of the National Government for the reconstruction of Gingoog public market which, was razed by the recent fire.

President's Week in Review: July 24-30, 1960

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

July 24.— AFTER the ball held in celebration of the inauguration of Gingoog City, the President and party boarded the RPS Lapu-Lapu, which sailed for Manila at midnight.

The President left Gingoog City, pleased with the reception accorded him and his party by residents led by Mayor Julio Ganaban, with the cooperation of the members of the Order of Dagohoy.

The President and the First Lady heard mass at the dining hall of the yacht before taking breakfast. They chatted with the members of the presidential party until lunch hour.

The Lapu-Lapu had an uneventful voyage except for a short while in the Sibuyan Sea on the way to Mindoro when it encountered rough seas. However, this did not affect the passengers.

The President stayed in his cabin the whole afternoon. He went over pending state matters.

July 25.— THIS morning the President administered the oath of affiliation to the Nacionalista Party to Vice-Gov. Hadji Arsad Sali of Sulu immediately after the President arrived from a four-day trip to Gingoog City.

The President and his party arrived at Pier 3 about 8 a.m. from Gingoog City, where he inaugurated the new metropolis of the South.

The former LP stalwart in Sulu was accompanied to Malacañang by prominent Sulu political leaders, among whom were Mayor Aminkadra Abubakar of Jolo, Abraham Rasul, and Manguma Abubakar.

The President also conferred with Brig. Gen. Tirso Fajardo, Philippine Army chief.

President Garcia commended Gen. Tirso Fajardo for the latter's 30 years of dedicated service to the country and people.

The President received Gen. Fajardo in Malacañang shortly after his arrival this morning from a trip to Misamis Oriental, where he was the guest of honor during the official ceremonies converting Gingoog into a regular city.

A letter of official commendation from the President was being prepared today for his signature. President Garcia expressed his satisfaction over Gen. Fajardo's service and emphasized that the general had dedicated the best years of his life in the service of the Filipino people.

The President thanked Gen. Fajardo in the name of the Filipino people

A Malacañang spokesman called the attention of defense officials for an apparent oversight in the manner Gen. Fajardo's retirement was made public.

The normal procedure is for the publication of the officer's retirement before the order for his relief is sent to the officer in question.

President Garcia recently justified the retirement of Army officers by stating that promotion should be given to deserving officers down the Army roster of officers. An exception in the case of officers in major commands was made by the President.

THIS evening the President asked Sen. Gil J. Puyat to take advantage of his two-month tour abroad to observe world economic conditions in relation to Philippine economic measures.

Sen. Puyat called on the President for instructions preparatory to leaving tomorrow morning for Europe and the United States on a combined business-pleasure trip. Puyat is scheduled to give the opening remarks at the Far East Council of Commerce and Trade in New York.

The Far East Council is composed of leading business firms in Asia and the Far East and usually devotes the first few days of its meeting to a discussion of the Philippines.

Sen. Puyat said he will also compare notes with Prof. Raffé who formulated De Gaulle's decontrol plan for France on the progress of the Philippine decontrol program. Puyat will also appear before business and economic groups where he is expected to explain the necessity of adopting the Filipino First policy in the light of existing economic conditions in the country.

While in Europe, Sen. Puyat will also observe the rapid industrial development of Switzerland and Germany and pay particular attention to the effects of the European Common Market Union, which has been in existence for almost one year. Puyat said that this has direct bearing on the plan of President Garcia to set up a common market in Southeast Asia.

Puyat will also study the free trade area around Great Britain and determine which of the two plans, the common market plan and free trade, is more practicable for the Philippines and in what manner the Philippines can tie with each plan.

President Garcia this evening directed the National Development Company board to submit its recommendation to the Cabinet as soon as possible on the results of the bidding for the 12 NDC vessels coming from Japan,

The President, after being briefed by the board on the merits and defects of each bid, told the board to study them further and submit its recommendations before the Cabinet convenes at its next regular meeting.

The board informed the President that, of the 20 shipping companies invited, only six submitted their bids before the deadline Saturday, July 23; namely, Laureano Bros., Ace Lines Inc., Liberation Shipping, Southeast Shipping, United Philippine Lines, Maritime Company of the Philippines.

Those who conferred with the President were Jose S. Rodriguez, chairman; Isabelo Sales, assistant general manager; and Eugenio J. Puyat Protacio Licsi, Joaquin Panis, Genario Sarmiento, and Celestino Cortez directors. Also present were Simeon Gopengco, government corporate counsel and Jose R. Platon, technical assistant.

The President also received Sen. Lorenzo Sumulong, who is leaving for Tokyo tomorrow to join the Philippine panel negotiating the treaty of amity, commerce, and navigation between the Philippines and Japan. Sen. Sumulong called on the President to exchange views on the treaty provisions and to receive final instructions.

July 26.—PRESIDENT Garcia today acted to save the Philippine flywood industry from possible collapse and took another step toward implementation of the "land for the landless" policy of his administration.

At a conference with Rep. Benjamin T. Ligot of Cagayan, the President directed the Central Bank to study the complaint of the Plywood Manufacturers' Association of the Philippines against the exportation of veneer and corestock exceeding 51 inches along the length of grain, and submit its finding to him as soon as possible.

At the same time, at the request of Reps. Jose Laurel IV of Batangas and Gaudencio Abordo of Palawan, President Garcia directed the Land Tenure Administration to proceed with the purchase of the Ambulung estate in Tanauan, Batangas, and of the Pujalte estate in Taytay, Palawan, for distribution and resale to present tenants.

Rep. Ligot pointed out that Philippine veneer and corestock are being utilized abroad for the manufacture of plywood which compete with locally-made plywood. He requested the immediate restriction of the exportation of both raw materials.

He added that dollar earnings of the plywood industry has been reduced by 75 per cent in direct ratio to the exportation of face and the so-called underlayment veneer.

Citing data obtained by the PMAP, Ligot informed the President that the American market had an absorption factor of $80 million of Philippine mahogany plywood in 1959, of which $60 million was imported from Japan and $20 million from the Philippines.

As the decontrol program is further implemented, the deficit balance will gradually swing in favor of the Philippines until the American market will have no place for Japanese-produced Philippine mahogany, Ligot contended.

Rep. Leon Guinto, Jr., of Quezon sought financial aid from the contingent funds of the President for the repair of the Atimonan sea wall which was heavily damaged by typhoons.

Other presidential callers this noon included Reps. Dominador Tan of Leyte, Laurentino Badelles of Lanao del Norte, Francisco Lecaroz of Marinduque, Faustino Tobia of Ilocos Sur, Apolinario Apacible of Batangas, Defense Secretary Alejo Santos, and Lt. Gen. Manuel Cabal, AFP chief of staff.

The President reiterated today his confidence in former Speaker Jose B. Laurel, Jr., as chief of the Philippine mission negotiating a treaty of amity, commerce, and navigation with Japanese officials in Tokyo.

The President's statement was issued to spike reports that the Chief Executive was contemplating to recall the entire Philippine panel for their alleged failure in securing a favorable draft of the treaty.

President Garcia emphasized that press reports appearing recently in metropolitan newspapers are purely speculative in nature and have no official basis whatsoever.

President Garcia assured Senate President Eulogio Rodriguez, Sr., today that the presidential fact-finding committee does not have any one-peso-a-year man in its roster nor was the committee authorized to employ them.

This assurance was contained in a letter signed by Executive Secretary Natalio P. Castillo in reply to the Senate President's letter dated July 23, 1960, stating that the PFFC, headed by Marcelmo E. Calinawan, Jr., was hiring many such agents and employees.

The Executive Secretary admitted that there are employees from the Office of the President detailed with the PFFC but added that they are receiving regular salaries.

Secretary Castillo stated that under the provisions of Administrative Order No. 276, dated August 28, 1958, the committee has the power to call upon any department, bureau, offices, agency, or instrumentality of the government for such assistance or information as the committee will need in the performance of its functions. The detail of Malacañang employees to the PFFC was also authorized under Administrative Order No. 42, series of 1937, he added.

THIS evening President Garcia signed H. B. 5026, making the allocation of sugar quotas a joint undertaking of the Sugar Quota Administrator and a representative each of the sugar cane planters and millers.

Under the new law the President will appoint a representative of the Philippine Sugar Association and another representative of the National Federation of Sugar Planters to sit with the Sugar Quota Administrator for the purpose of issuing rules and regulations governing the allocation of sugar quotas.

The representatives of the PSA and NFSP will be appointed by the President for a term of three years subject to the consent of the Commission on Appointments. Their tenure may be shortened by the President, however, upon recommendation of the respective associations they represent for loss of confidence.

Disagreements or conflicts between the three officials will be forwarded to the secretary of commerce and industry for decision but may be appealed to the President whose decision is final Present at the signing of the bill which was held at the President's residence in Quezon City were Executive Secretary Natalio P. Castillo; Legislative Secretary Vicente Logarta; Education Secretary Jose E. Romero; Commerce Secretary Manuel Lim; Sen. Pacita M. Gonzalez; Manolo Elizalde, president of the Philippine Sugar Association; Jose Mapa Gomez, president of the National Federation of Sugar Planters; Jose Aldeguer, Ricardo Y. Ladrido, and Domitilo Abordo of Iloilo; Inocencio Ferrer and Vicente Gustilo of Negros Occidental; Lorenzo Teves of Negros Oriental; Salipada Pendatun of Cotabato; Jacinto Gonzales of Laguna; and Bartolome Cabangbang of Bohol.

Also present was a big group of prominent sugar millers and cane planters from Negros, Pampanga, Tarlac, and other sugar producing provinces.

July 27.—THIS morning the President conferred with the officials of the National Development Company regarding the bids for the operation of 12 ocean-going vessels which were purchased from Japan.

The public bidding was conducted by the National Development Company.

Present at the conference were NDC Board Chairman Jose Rodriguez, and Directors Eugenio Puyat, Protacio Licsi, Joaquin L. Panis, C. C. Cortes, and Genaro Sarmiento.

Also present at the conference were Simeon Gopengco, government corporate counsel; J. B. Sales and Jose R. Platon, assistant general manager and technical assistant respectively, of the NDC.

The President also received former President Sergio Osmeña, who paid a courtesy call on the Chief Executive.

President Garcia and his Cabinet gave the board of directors of the National Development Company authority to award the 12 ocean-going vessels ordered from Japan to two companies which submitted the highest offers at a recent re-bidding.

The awardees are the Maritime Company of the Philippines, which will be given five vessels, and the United Philippine Lines, which will be allocated the remaining seven vessels. The NDC board had recommended only five ships for the Maritime Company, as the company already had two vessels of the same type.

During the Cabinet meeting this afternoon the President emphasized the importance of balancing the number of ships operated by the two companies to encourage a healthy competition so that the people may be afforded better service at lower rates.

The President directed the NDC board to draft the final contract awarding the ships, subject to the final approval of the Cabinet. He also instructed that the two contracts should be drawn under the same terms and conditions for both companies.

The NDC board, in recommending the award to the two shipping firms out of six bidders, informed the Cabinet that they were guided not only by the price consideration but also by the following criteria: (1) relative financial resources of the bidders; (2) their credit standing; (3) extent of organizational and operational setups at home and abroad; and (4) experience and technical know-how in overseas shipping business.

The board members explained that these criteria are necessary in order that there shall be a reasonable expectation and assurance, of successful operation of these vessels by the recipient firms.

The bids were evaluated by a special committee composed of the following: Protacio C. Licisi, chairman; and Joaquin L. Panis, Eugenio J. Puyat, and Genaro R. Sarmiento, members. The recommendation of this committee was adopted by the NDC board and was the basis of the Cabinet's action on the awarding of the bids.

Other firms which had submitted bids were the Laureano Brothers, Inc., Southeast Pacific Lines, Inc., Liberation Steamship Co., and the Philippine Ace Lines.

This afternoon the President directed Commerce Secretary Manuel Lim to work in coordination with Ambassador Carlos P. Romulo for the early release of the increase in Philippine sugar quota in the United States.

In his 30-minute conference with Secretary Lim before the Cabinet meeting, the President emphasized the necessity of taking advantage of increased sugar quota as soon as possible in order to show the United States that the Philippines can produce enough sugar to meet increased demands.

Secretary Lim assured compliance with the presidential directive. He would canvass sugar planters and millers to determine their capacity in meeting the quota increase.

Secretary Lim informed the President that some ₱4 million worth of refined sugar in, NAMARCO bodegas may be used to fill up the quota of 56,000 metric tons for refined sugar. This ₱4 million worth of refined sugar, Lim said, was bought by former Secretary Hernaldez in 1957 to stabilize prices.

Secretary Lim also said that he had received an inquiry from London on whether the Philippines can supply additional sugar allocations beyond the quota of 51,000 tons in the world market.

Another request, according to Secretary Lim, was for the exportation of over half-million dollars worth of Philippine monkeys of a rare species. Lim said that last year's total export of monkeys amounted to only $1 million, and this large offer might be a prelude to the extinction of this rare species which is badly needed in scientific laboratories here and abroad.

Also present during the conference was Acting Sugar Quota Administrator J. V. Buenaventura.

The President later received Henry Bouffard, Jr., who took up with him the diversion of $9 million from the allocations for sardines and canned fish to the manufacture of fishing paraphernalia, to boost the country's fishing industry.

President Garcia this afternoon renewed ties of friendship and collaboration between the Philippines and France at Malacañang.

In accepting the letters of credence of French Ambassador Francois Briere and the recall of his predecessor, Georges Cattand, at a ceremony held before the Cabinet meeting this afternoon at the spacious ceremonial hall, the President assured the French official of full cooperation of the Filipino people and government in the task of promoting closer ties between the two republics.

The President pointed out that the Philippines and France share a common dislike for, and have allied themselves together against, the common danger in Southeast Asia.

The President also said that there are distinct similarities which draw the Filipinos and the French closer together; such as, religious, cultural, and political principles.

Ambassador Briere took occasion to laud the efforts of Filipino artists for the revival of Filipino folklore and said that the grace and perfection of Bayanihan had captured Paris by storm.

Ambassador Briere said he will encourage French industrialists and technicians to participate in the remarkable industrial progress of the Philippines. He urged a cultural and intellectual exchange between the two countries.

Ambassador Briere replaces Georges Cattand, who had been called to his home office in Paris some two months ago.

The French ambassador was accompanied to Malacañang by Henri Toupet and Jean Puaux, counselor and third secretary, respectively, of the French embassy, and Major Ciriaco Hocson, presidential aide.

Upon arrival at Malacañang at 4:20, he was given full military honors by a company of the Presidential Guards Battalion, after which he proceeded to the ceremonial hall where the President, members of his Cabinet, and other high ranking officials were assembled.

Present at the presentation ceremonies were Foreign Affairs Secretary Felixberto Serrano, Executive Secretary Natalio P. Castillo, Finance Secretary Dominador R. July 28.—THE President congratulated Eugenio E. Santos, chairman and general manager of the Philippine Charity Sweepstakes, for the success of the barrio improvement projects which were launched only last January.

President Garcia told Santos that he has been receiving radiograms from the provinces expressing gratitude for the self-contained barrio reading centers being established and maintained by the sweepstakes office throughout the Philippines.

Santos reported that a total of 273 barrio projects, each containing a reading center, health clinic, public bathhouse, and laundry have been established at cost ranging from ₱3,800 to ₱5,000 per project.

The Chief Executive also received Col. Edwin Ramsey, wartime guerrilla leader, who paid a courtesy call on the President before leaving for his post in Tokyo.

Commissioner Oscar Calvento of the Home Financing Commission also called on the President and discussed with him the low-cost housing financing operations of the HFC.

A delegation from Calauag, Quezon, also called on the Chief Executive to request typhoon aid from the presidential contingent funds. The delegation was composed of Rep. Leon Guinto, Jr., Mayor Marcelino Paracero, and councilors of the town.

President Garcia today stated that he will push through the lost-cost housing projects to enable the laboring class and low-income employees to own their own houses. The President made the statement at a conference with Rep. Augusto Francisco and six councilors of Manila.

At the same time, the President assured the solon and aldermen that he favors the construction of tenement houses in crowded places like Tondo.

In this connection, President Garcia appointed Councilor Francisco Gatmaitan of Tondo as a member of a special presidential committee to study the relocation of squatters. The group was informed by President Garcia that the site reserved by Malacañang in Punta, Santa Ana, is reserved for indigents, the project to be administered by the Social Welfare Administration.

The Manila councilors proposed that model tenement houses be constructed in Punta in order to accommodate the squatters in Manila.

The President told the aldermen that the acquisition of the Sapang Palay estate in Bulacan is nearing the last stage. He added that it will be subdivided into lots for the squatters of Manila and suburbs.

The Manila councilors, who saw the President aside from Gatmaitan, were Gonzalo Santos Rivera, Alfredo Gomez, Felicisimo Cabigao, Apolonio Gener, and Eriberto Remigio.

Earlier, Vicente Villamin took his oath of office as economic consultant to the President at the Malacañang study room in the presence of Rep. Rogaciano Mercado of Bulacan, Executive Secretary Natalio P. Castillo, and Jose Ma. Rocha, presidential executive assistant, and Mrs. Villamin.

Bartolome Cabangbang and Manuel (Dindo), Gonzalez. The Filipino amateur golfers were Agustin Coscolluela, Alex Prieto, Luis Silverio, and Mel Gana.

Other callers were Gov. Fernando Veloso of Samar, Arsenio Lugay of Tarlac, Claro Robles of Quezon, Felipe Garduque of Cagayan, Miguel Manguerra of Marinduque, Ali Dimaporo of Lanao del Norte, Rep. President Garcia ordered the suspension of Salvador Narcelles, chief of the Quezon City Fire Department, pending administrative charges filed against him for alleged dishonesty in the service, Malacañang announced today.

The fire chief is also facing a criminal complaint filed in the Court of First Instance in Quezon City.

The suspension order was embodied in a letter signed by Executive Secretary Natalio P. Castillo and served to Narcelles through Quezon City Mayor Norberto Amoranto.

The President formed a committee of three with former Judge Jesus Paredes as chairman and Leocadio Lucena and Agapito Cobacha, members, to investigate the administrative charges against the suspended Quezon City fire chief.

Narcelles is facing administrative charges for alleged dishonesty on two counts: (1) use of government employees for private purposes, and (2) excessive issues of gasoline to vehicles of the fire department of Quezon City.

Narcelles is also under investigation for conduct prejudicial to the best interest of public service on two counts (1) entering into an illegal contract with Mr. Francisco Bocobo to put up a benefit show for the promotion of the QCFC Trust Fund, and (2) for failure to account for the proceeds from said benefit show.

The complaint for alleged misconduct in office against Narcelles was brought to the attention of the President by the Presidential Committee on Administration Performance Efficiency. Justice Buenaventura Ocampo, chairman of the PCAPE, informed the President that Narcelles' had allegedly entered into an agreement with Mr. Bocobo under the terms of which the QCFC Trust Fund shall receive only 15 per cent of the total gross sales contrary to the expressed provision of an SWA law which requires 70 per cent share from the gross proceeds of the sale of tickets accruable to the QCFC Trust Fund.

July 29.—THIS morning the President allayed fears that continued over-production of rice might depress the prices of the cereal to the prejudice of the producers, pointing out the efforts being exerted by the government to find outlets in the world market, especially in rice-deficient countries in the Far East.

The President was the principal speaker at a program held at the Malacañang Park in connection with the awards of prizes to winners of the Second National Rice and Corn Production Contest.

He stressed the fact that several Asian countries like India and Japan, which annually are importing rice to feed their people, are the most likely outlets for Philippine rice owing to their proximity to this country. When he was still the vice-president and concurrently secretary of foreign affairs, he said, Japanese authorities had expressed their willingness to import rice from the Philippines to economize on freight charges, instead of purchasing the staple from the United States and other far countries.

India is still importing rice from neighboring countries to feed her underfed population, he added.

The President said that he will sign the rice and corn bill approved by Congress during its special session in view of the workable transition and financing system incorporated in the revised bill to meet the objections he raised in vetoing the original bill.

He lauded the winners of the contest, especially the rice producers for surpassing the record production in Valencia, Spain, and the Po Valley in Italy. The winner of the first prize this year, Serafin Jardiola of Pavia, Iloilo, had a record yield of 281.32 cavans per hectare.

The President also lauded the officials of the Department of Agriculture and Natural Resources for the successful prosecution of the rice production campaign, which made the Philippines self-sufficient in rice for the first time since time immemorial. This feat alone, he said, can be considered a landmark in the agricultural history of the Philippines.

Back in Malacañang about 11 a.m. the President received Australian Ambassador Alfred Stirling, who is returning to his country for consultations, and Philippine Ambassador Pullong Arpa to the United Arab Republic, who is going back to his post after a few weeks' vacation here.

Other callers were ACCFA Administrator V. Araneta, QC Mayor Norberto Amoranto, Rep. Benedicto Padilla, Gov. Ali Dimaporo of Lanao del Norte, and Al Valencia of the Philippines Information Agency in Washington, D.C.

President Garcia, who had skipped his weekly appointment with members of the press, found out this afternoon that student editors were more unbridled and sometimes undiplomatic in their questions. This, he found out at the press conference he presided with members of the College Editors Guild.

Members of the metropolitan press were invited as "observers", and even the veteran newsmen were seen blanching at the pointed and sometimes embarrassing questions fired by college editors.

Observers found out that most of the college editors were well abreast of the Garcia-Osmeña controversy, and the students pulled no punches in espousing the cause of the suspended solon. The press conference was a real "bull session". The students raked up questions "on the top topics of the day, like the case of Lt. Cmdr. Marcelino Calinawan, Jr., the President's tiff with Mayor Arsenio H. Lacson, and with the suspended solon from Cebu. The questions were tougher and more blunt than if they had been fired by newsmen.

The President received Rep. Salipada Pendatun and Sen. Pacita M. Gonzalez in the evening.

President Garcia today dispatched a mercy plane to Culion, Palawan, to rush to Manila a dying 12-year old boy.

An Army plane will arrive in Culion tomorrow morning at 5 o'clock to pick up the 12-year old son of Dr. Alberto Sandoval, director of the provincial hospital in Culion. The boy is suffering from meningitis.

Presidential action on the mercy flight was based also on a telegram received by Rep. Jose J. Roy of Tarlac, asking for his intercession to the President.

July 30.—AFTER a wild bout with college editors yesterday afternoon, President Garcia stayed at his private residence today. He is expected to stay there for the week-end.

The President did not receive any caller, as he wanted to rest in his private residence and at the same time go over the pending state papers which had piled up during the week.

This evening President Garcia ordered the dismissal from the service of Ruben Villaluz, administrator of the Motor Vehicles Office, and the suspension for six months of Aurelio de Leon, assistant administrator, following their conviction of administrative charges filed against them.

Both Villaluz and De Leon had been found guilty of the general charge of gross mismanagement, inefficiency, and negligence by a presidential investigating committee composed of Justice Undersecretary Enrique Fernandez, chairman, and Laureano Ferrer of the General Auditing Office and Belarmino P. Navarro of the Department of Public Works, members.

The President had replaced the two MVO officials on preventive suspension on February 22 this year upon the institution of administrative charges against them jointly by Rep. Joaquin R. Roces, chairman of the House committee on good government, and Public Works Secretary Florencio Moreno.

The special investigating committee which was subsequently formed by the President, however, found that the guilt of De Leon was "of a lesser degree" and had recommended a penalty of lighter gravity.

The President, in his administrative order, directed that the penalties imposed on the two MVO officials be made effective on February 22 this, the date of their preventive suspension. In its report to the President, the investigating committee had observed that this was not the first time that both respondents had been charged and investigated administratively.

The presidential committee recalled that in 1955, shortly after he had been appointed MVO chief, respondent Villaluz was found guilty of gross negligence, misconduct, mismanagement, and inefficiency and was suspended from office for several months.

In a subsequent case Villaluz was reprimanded and warned that commission of another offense in the future would be dealt with more severely, according to the committee.

The investigating body also recalled that about a year and a half ago, Villaluz was summoned by the House committee on good government and was advised to take immediate steps to remedy the reported negligence, inefficiency, and mismanagement in the MVO, "but he continued in his listless, unsystematic, and inefficient handling of MVO affairs."

Respondent De Leon, too, had been found guilty of an administrative charge by the commissioner of civil service for which he was suspended for 15 days without pay, reprimanded, and warned that the commission of another offense would be dealt with more severely, according to the committee.

In a brief impromptu remarks during breakfast in celebration of the famous BCT's founding anniversary, the President said that PEFTOK has not only fulfilled the commitments of the Philippines to the United Nations but has laid a stake in the preservation of freedom of South Korea.

He said the achievements of the Philippine expeditionary forces to Korea, of which the 14th BTC holds signal distinction, have once again demonstrated the steadfastness of Filipino valor under fire, and their unshakable faith in democracy.

In response, Ambassador Lincoln Kim conveyed the gratitude of the people of Korea to the Philippines for its valuable contribution in the defense of South Korea against communism.

U.S. Ambassador John D. Hickerson also sent a message which was read by Lt. Col. G. V. Tobias, lauding the 14th BTC for its achievements.

Jimenez, 14th BCT commanding officer; Brig. Gen. Dionisio Ojeda (ret.), 10th BCT commanding officer; and many others.

The President woke up early and heard mass at his residence on Bohol Avenue, Quezon City.

Immediately after the mass the President motored to Fort Wm. McKinley, where he had breakfast with the officers and men of the 14th BCT.

After giving a few remarks, the President motored back to his residence where he went over pending state papers.

The President did not receive any callers the whole day.

August 1.—PRESIDENT Garcia pinned the Presidential Award Medal on Dr. Jesus V. Tamesis for giving the Philippines the distinction of being "the first in eye surgery," in a ceremony held at Malacañang this morning.

In pinning the award, the President said Dr. Tamesis' outstanding discovery in the treatment of hitherto hopeless cases of retinitis pigmentosa has revolutionized eye operation and constitutes a breakthrough in one of the barriers in medical practice.

Dr. Tamesis' success in the treatment of retinal degeneration by supra-choroidal implantation of the oblique muscle in the eye affected, has projected the Philippines into international focus and attracted patients from as far as the United States.

Among his recent patients from abroad was the father-in-law of President Achmed Sukarno of Indonesia, who was accompanied to the Philippines by Mrs. Sukarno for the operation.

Dr. Tamesis is also one of the founders of the Philippine Eye Bank and one of the architects of the Asia-Pacific Academy of Ophthalmology, which will hold a conference in Manila from October 10 to 13 this year.

Dr. Tamesis was accompanied to Malacañang by Dr. Paulino J. Garcia, chairman of the National Science Development Board, and Dr. Geminiano Ocampo and Dr. Emmanuel Almeda, fellow ophthalmologists.

Later, the President received elected officials of the Philippine Historical Association who requested financial aid for the holding of the International Convention of Historians in Manila in November, and for the operation of the Association which is receiving an annual ₱10,000 subsidy from the government.

The President indicated that he will increase the annual subsidy, but impressed upon them the necessity of being impartial and objective in their writing because "history is the verdict of time."

Replying to their request for the creation of a Historical Commission, the President said, "You cannot make a historian by appointment."

He pointed out that it is necessary to keep the organization out of politics so that the cause of truth will be served.

The historians presented the President with a historical book on Rizal and a compact volume (1 year) of the historical bulletin published quarterly by the association.

Earlier in the morning, the President ordered Minister Manuel G. Zamora, Malacañang protocol officer, to send a wreath at the Mausoleum of the late President Quezon and to post a guard of honor composed of a contingent of the Presidential Guard Battalion from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. on the occasion of the death anniversary of the departed leader.

Then the President received callers at his study in Malacañang.

A veterans' group discussed with him a new bill in the United States Congress, for Filipino veterans, sponsored by Rep. Olin Teague (D-Texas) which is up for hearing this month.

Members of the Historical Association who called on the President were Profs. Gabriel F. Fabella, ex-president; Esteban A. de Ocampo, president; Celedonio Ancheta, vice-president; Jorge L. Revilla, secretary; Sixto Y. Orosa, auditor; Prof. and Mrs. Domingo Abella; Pacifico Domondon; and Celedonio Resurreccion.

The veterans who saw the President were Brig. Gen. Dionisio Ojeda, Brig. Gen. Margarito Torralba, Col. J. Razon, and R. O. Philipps. They were accompanied by former Ambassador Joaquin Elizalde.

President Garcia today endorsed the plan of the Manila Lions Club to set up a student government along Manila's "University Row" (Azcarraga) to improve conditions and relations among the students.

The Lions officials, headed by Andrew Gruber, president, informed the President that some 150,000 university students pose a serious problem to city authorities and that matters can be improved by setting up a student government to be financed partly with subsidies from the Philippine Charity Sweepstakes Office.

The plan is intended to keep the student population from, gambling, heavy drinking, and other vices; to help solve traffic congestion during class intermissions; and to prevent mauulings and beatings owing to school rivalries.

The student government will set up rules and regulations to be followed by the student population of the universities concerned, and will elect their own officials to enforce and prosecute the regulations, subject to decision and review by the university presidents.

The President told the Manila Lions officials to confer with the university presidents and Education Secretary Jose Romero, and then confer with him again when a definite plan will have been approved by the officials concerned.

During the call the President accepted the invitation tendered by the Manila Lions to be guest speaker at 7:30 p.m. of August 20, at the Jade Room, Aristocrat Restaurant, in Quezon City, at the Quezon Day dinner of the Manila Lions.

The Manila Lions officials who called on the President, besides Gruber, were Domingo Guevara, Clemente Abella, Hal Linn, Wm. Li Yao, Modesto Ventura, Eduardo M. Sison, Alfredo Lozano, Sotero H. Laurel, Marcial Villacorte, Perfecto Mañalac, Francisco Nicolas, and Jose Florentino.

The President today accepted the honorary chairmanship of the Friends of Roxas, Inc ; saying he is a profound admirer of the economic statesmanship of the late Chief Executive.

The President was made honorary chairman of the Friends of Roxas during their call at Malacañang to express their gratitude for his approval of the Roxas Memorial Building, which will rise on a piece of government land near Roxas Memorial.

The President also signed two copies of HB No. 4754, one of which will be preserved in the Roxasiana and the other will go into the cornerstone of the Roxas Memorial Building which will rise on a piece of government land near plaza Militar.

HB No. 4754, which became Republic Act No. 2715 last June 18, empowers the Chief Executive to transfer to the Friends of Roxas, Inc., a piece of land on which to build the Roxas Memorial Building at nominal cost.

The President accepted tentatively the invitation to be present during the signing of the deed of conveyance so that he will have a chance to meet all the members of the organization sometime next month.

Speaking for Doña Trinidad de Leon-Roxas, who could not join the group, Rep. Gerardo Roxas, son of the late President, extended the “sincerest and deepest gratitude of the family” to the President for making possible the early realization of the Roxas Memorial plan.

Those who called on the President were Rep. and Mrs. Gerardo Roxas, Mr. and Mrs. Vicente Roxas, Mrs. Medina Lacson-de Leon, Miss Rosario Picazo, Evaristo Picazo, Manuel V. Gallego, Placido L. Mapa, Pio Pedrosa, J. C. Orendain, Rep. Jose J. Roy, Alfonso Calalang, and Bert Bustos.

August 2.—PRESIDENT Garcia today adopted definite steps to expedite action on all deportation cases pending before the Deportation Board, including those on communist suspects.

In a conference with Justice Undersecretary Enrique Fernandez early this morning, the President asked that he postpone taking his seat in the Court of Appeals to render a full time job with the Deportation Board.

The President directed Fernandez to avail himself of all the assistance that would be needed from the different intelligence agencies in the government, the NICA, and the NBI.

Fernandez said there will be no change in the composition of the Deportation Board. Defense Undersecretary Mariano Yenke and Solicitor General Edilberto Barot are members.

Fernandez assured the President that by working overtime, including evenings, he intends to clear the dockets, of the Board in about three months time.

President Garcia thanked Fernandez for the latter's devotion to duty and service to the people and country. Fernandez, who had not yet taken his oath as member of the Court of Appeals, stands to lose in compensation by choosing to stay as justice undersecretary.

About 100 cases for deportation of undesirable aliens are pending decision with the Board, including four cases on subversive activities affecting about 120 communist suspects.

The importance of deciding these cases was emphasized during the conference between the President and Fernandez. It was pointed out that action on these pending cases affect national security.

This morning the President signed S. B. No. 574, nationalizing the rice and corn industry and creating the Rice and Corn Board for the purpose.

In signing the revised version of the bill, the President expressed satisfaction over the removal of the erroneous provisions of the bill which would have adversely affected all officials and employees covered by the Government Service Insurance System and the Social Security System.

The new bill which was signed into law also' gave the people in the industry affected, enough time to adjust themselves to the effects of the measure-and to liquidate their business gradually.

Under the law, non-Filipinos engaged in the rice and corn industry in general are required to register their business within 60 days upon approval of the law and to continue in business for purposes of liquidation, as follows: (1) two years for those engaged in retail, wholesale, culture, transportation distribution, or acquisition of rice and corn; and (2) three years for those engaged in milling and warehousing of the cereals.

The nationalization measure which was co-authored by Rep. Jacobo Gonzales of Laguna in the House and Sen. Alejandro Almendras in the Senate, appropriated the sum of ₱500,000 from funds of the national treasury not otherwise appropriated for the organization and maintenance of the Rice and Corn Board.

The board shall consist of the secretary of commerce and industry as chairman and the secretary of agriculture and natural resources as vice-chairman with the following as members: the governor of the Central Bank, the president of the Philippine National Bank, the chairman of the Philippine Development Bank, one representative each from the planters, the producers, the millers, the warehousemen, the consumers' cooperatives, and labor; and representatives from the private sector who may be appointed by the President with the consent of the Commission on Appointments.

The Act authorizes the Development Bank of the Philippines to create a ₱50 million revolving fund to be made available for loans at 7 per cent per annum and the Philippine National Bank for a like sum at 6 per cent interest which may be discounted by the Central Bank at the lowest rate possible.

Preference for loans will be given to FACOMAS, cooperatives, individual farmers, small landowners, and tenants.

The law also provides stiff penalties with immediate deportation in the case of non-Filipinos, as (follows: (1) Imprisonment from five to ten years and fines from, ₱5,000 to ₱10,000 to all violators of this law and Filipinos violating, the Anti Dummy Law;

(2) Cancellation of certificates of naturalization and immediate deportation in addition to penalties, in the case of naturalized citizens; and

(3) Dismissal and perpetual disqualification from holding public office, in the case of public officials.

The Act shall, however, not impair or abridge the rights granted to citizens and juridical agencies of the United States under existing, treaties and agreements.

Among others, present at the signing were Senators Alejandro Almendras, Pacita M. Gonzalez, Eulogio Balao; Commerce Secretary Manuel Lim; OEC Chairman Juan O. Chioco; PCAPE Chairman Buenaventura Ocampo; NAMARCO Chairman and General Manager Marcelo Balatbat; Reps. Jacobo Gonzales of Laguna, Emilio Cortez of Pampanga, Rogaciano Mercado of Bulacan, Ligot of Cagayan, Domitilo Abordo of Iloilo, Marcelino Veloso of Leyte, Miguel Cuenco of Cebu, Pedro Venida of Camarines Norte, Lorenzo Teves of Negros Oriental, and Jose B. Legaspi of Aklan; and Filipino farmers and landowners.

The President this morning also directed the Monetary Board of the Central Bank to take up the petition of the Plywood Manufacturers Association for the stoppage of fake veneer exportation by a local manufacturer.

In his telephone conversation with Finance Secretary and MB Chairman Dominador Aytona, the President expressed fear that the export of fake Philippine plywood as reported might ruin the prestige of Philippine wood products abroad and result in the ultimate loss of the $80 million plywood trade affecting no less than 100,000 Filipino laborers.

The President gave his order upon representations made by the PMA officials to the effect that Filipino plywood manufacturers are losing their trade owing to the ruinous competition, and may be forced to close up.

They claimed that local factory utilize Philippine mahogany for the “cover” only of the plywood, using cheap American fir veneer for the core. The product is then passed off as Philippine plywood in the United States.

They pointed out that this product is much cheaper but also much inferior in quality and durability to Philippine plywood.

The PMA officials who were accompanied to Malacañang by Rep. Benjamin Ligot of Cagayan were Artemio Lobrin and Benigno Lim, counsel and secretary, respectively.

President Garcia today received the congratulations of a large group of congressmen for having been able to strengthen the cash position of the Philippines and for nationalizing the rice and corn industry.

The President, however, in acknowledging their appreciation, gave full credit for the outstanding achievement to Finance Secretary Dominador Aytona and to LCdr. Marcelino Calinawan, who, he said was able to break a series of rackets at the customs bureau, contributing in a large measure to the increase of ₱101 million in customs revenue collections this year.

The congressmen, led by Reps. Lorenzo Teves of Negros Oriental and Jacobo Gonzales of Laguna, said the cash position of the Philippines was never stronger than it is today.

Early this morning the President held a closed door conference with Justice Undersecretary Enrique Fernandez.

After his conference with Fernandez, the President proceeded to the reception room to sign the Rice and Corn Nationalization Bill, which was attended by a good number of senators, Cabinet members, representatives, farmers, and planters.

After the signing of the bill, the President began receiving his congressmen callers at his study. Most of the congressmen who were accompanied by their respective delegations, came for relief funds, public works fund releases, roads, schoolhouses, and other public improvement project in their respective provinces.

Among the callers were Reps. Emilio Cortez of Pampanga, who led a delegation of barrio lieutenants from Arayat, Rogaciano Mercado of Bulacan, Pedro Venida of Camarines Norte, Benjamin Ligot of Cagayan, Jacobo Gonzales of Laguna, Jose Moreno of Romblon, Lorenzo Teves of Negros Oriental, Dominador Tan of Leyte, Ramon Durano of Cebu, and Marcelino Veloso of Leyte.

The President received his last caller at about 1:30 p.m. after which he took his lunch.

Members of Congress led by Speaker Daniel Romualdez, hailed President Garcia’s signing into law this morning of the bill nationalizing the rice and corn industry.

Speaker Romualdez emphasized that the President's positive action on the bill should be interpreted as a categorical denial of charge aired by suspended Congressman Sergio Osmeña, Jr., that there was bribery involved in the presidential veto of the rice and corn bill as approved during the regular session of Congress.

It was pointed out that the presidential veto of the first rice and corn bill was based on certain objections which were eliminated in the second rice and corn bill.

Romualdez recalled that President Garcia had expressed approval in principle of this bill in several conferences held with members of the House of Representatives.

Romualdez made his press statement on the rice and corn bill shortly after attending the oath-taking ceremonies of Rep. Cesar M. Fortich as secretary of agriculture and natural resources.

This afternoon the President expressed his confidence that Secretary Cesar Fortich of Agriculture and Natural Resources, as guardian of the natural patrimony of the country will discharge the responsibilities of his new position to the satisfaction of the Filipino people.

The President administered the oath of office to the new member of his official family at the Malacañang reception hall in the presence of Speaker Daniel Z. Romualdez, members of both chambers of Congress, high DARN officials, and bureaus and corporations under the department, Minister Paul D. Summers of the ICA, and close friends and relatives who practically filled the hall.

In his extemporaneous speech after signing the oath of office of Secretary Fortich, the President said that he considers the appointment one of the most important in this period when the country is putting more emphasis on the development and utilization of its natural resources.

The President added that the appointment of Fortich is significant because he comes from Mindanao where Divine Providence has placed infinite wealth.

The President pointed out the vast laterite deposits in Surigao and neighboring islands, the extensive rubber plantations, and the tremendous iron ore deposits in Zamboanga which could be fully exploited.

In this connection the President stated that the construction of 800 kilometers of the so-called development roads through the cooperation of the National Economic Council and the International Cooperation Administration has opened heretofore unsettled and uncultivated regions of Mindanao to exploitation.

Present at the oath-taking ceremony were Sen. Pedro Sabido, Sen. Domocoa Alonto, Executive Secretary Natalio P. Castillo, Acting Secretary Marciano Bautista of the Department of Public Works and Communications, Reps. Justiniano S. Montano of Cavite, Faustino Tobia of Ilocos Sur, Francisco Ortega of La Union, Lorenzo Teves of Negros Oriental, Benjamin T. Ligot of Cagayan, Marcelino Veloso of Leyte, Delfin Albano of Isabela, Manuel Zoza of Cebu, Vicente Gustilo of Negros Occidental, Benedict Padilla of Rizal, Lucas Paredes of Abra, Laurentino Badelles of Lanao del Norte, Pedro Trono of Iloilo, and Canuto Enerio of Zamboanga del Sur.

Other callers included Vicente Sinco, President of the University of the Philippines; Sen. Sabido, Rep. Montano, Rep. Jose Leido of Mindoro Oriental, former Gov. Francisco Infantado, former Rep. Conrado Morente, and Rodolfo T. Andal, general manager of the Government Service Insurance System.

August 3.—THE President this morning woke up at his Bohol Avenue residence in Quezon City with a headache and a little dizziness. A prompt examination showed that the President's blood pressure had gone up slightly.

On the advice of his doctor, the President was taken by Mrs. Garcia to the hospital at 10 a.m. today where he could have some rest. Dr. Guytingco attributed the President's ailment to overwork. He said the President had been very busy the past weeks, working from early morning up to very late at night, attending to numerous papers, receiving callers, and presiding over many conferences.

Dr. Guytingco is being assisted by Dr. Valentin Fidelino, chief of the VMH medical department.

The regular weekly meeting of the Cabinet which was scheduled for this evening had been postponed, as all the matters listed in its agenda needed the presence of the President. Only routine matters may be taken up by the Cabinet in the President's absence when the finance secretary or some other ranking Cabinet member presides.

President Garcia is resting well at the Veterans Memorial Hospital, Dr. Antonio Guytingco, the President's personal physician, announced this evening.

Dr. Guytingco said that although the President's blood pressure is still "slightly elevated," his temperature is normal, and all he needs is rest after having spent a hectic month.

A criminal complaint against three importers for alleged violation of the central bank law has been filed with the Court of First Instance of Manila on recommendation of the Presidential Committee on Administration Performance Efficiency.

Indicted after a joint PCAPE-CB investigation were Virginia Quiambao of 133-12th Street, New Manila; Macairog de Guia of 2125 Sto. Niño, Pandacan; and Natividad Cruz of 2020 Rizal Avenue, Manila.

The PCAPE alleged that the accused had obtained allocations for foreign exchange from the Central Bank for the importation of hospital supplies, goods, commodities, merchandise, and drugs but such allocations were used for their "personal benefit."

The irregularity is said to have caused the salting away of dollar reserves in the amount of $1,271,883.59.

The irregularity was discovered sometime in 1957 when hundreds of imported crates were opened in the piers and found to have contained scrap newspapers and stones instead of the stipulated hospital supplies and surgical instruments.

Meanwhile, President Garcia instructed Justice Buenaventura Ocampo, PCAPE chairman, to verify reports received by the Chief Executive that certain fictitious importers have again renewed business, making the suburbs as the center of their modus operandi. The President's action was the result of a report submitted by Major Teodulo Natividad, PCAPE chief investigator, who found that a teenager was named consignor of goods in a recent import anomaly.

August 4.—"WISHING your early recovery," read a citygram delivered today to the presidential suite at the Veterans Memorial Hospital,. addressed to President Garcia from Senate President and Mrs. Eulogio Rodriguez.

It was one of those greetings which have started to clear the political atmosphere, presaging a successful rapprochement in a meeting between the President and Senate President Rodriguez on Tuesday. With the citygram was a bouquet.

The President spent his second day today at the presidential suite of the Veterans Memorial Hospital, where he may stay for some days on account of a "slightly elevated" blood pressure.

Drs. Antonio Guytingco and Valentin Fidelino, his physicians, said the President was no longer complaining of dizziness and headache and was well on the road to recovery. However, the physicians recorded the President's pressure at 146 over 80 which they said was generally normal, but believed the figures may go down some more.

The physicians asked the President to take a complete rest at the VMH. The President received very few callers.

Executive Secretary Natalio P. Castillo saw the President and discussed with him urgent state papers.

It was not known what subjects Secretary Castillo took up with the Chief Executive. It was indicated, however, that Secretary Castillo may have briefed the President on local political developments, including the outcome of Speaker Romualdez's talk with Senate President Rodriguez at the Manila Hotel the other day.

The President also received Defense Secretary Alejo Santos, who reported on the Sulu situation where several troopers were thrown in an effort to maintain peace and order.

Press Secretary Jose C. Nable saw the President in the evening.

August 5.—PRESIDENT Garcia rested well today in the Veterans Memorial Hospital, where he performed his novena by attending mass and receiving holy communion on the first Friday of each month.

The President was swamped with telegrams and get-well cards and flowers from well-wishers, among them top executive, judicial, and Congress officials, as well as civic organizations officers.

The President was taken to the Veterans Memorial Hospital Wednesday morning, after complaining of a dizziness and a headache and a slight rise in his blood pressure, which his personal physician attributed to overwork and lack of rest. Doctors prescribed rest for the President.

The President, together with the First Lady, heard mass early this morning at his ward room.

A stream of callers arrived at the hospital to wish him well and a speedy recovery. Among his well-wishers were former Executive Secretaries Fortunato de Leon and Juan C. Pajo, and Quezon City Mayor Norberto Amoranto.

De las Alas also thanked President Garcia for the many things he has done to promote the cause of athletics in the country.

Among the members of the delegation are 43 athletes and 17 officials. The first batch will leave for Rome tomorrow.

The President ordered the airlifting of emergency patients from the provinces for treatment and confinement at the Philippine General and National Orthopedic Hospitals.

The President gave the order in the Veterans Memorial Hospital, where he was resting.

The patients will be air-lifted from the Roxas Memorial Hospital in Roxas City and the Calamaniugan Emergency Hospital in Cagayan and Polillo, Quezon Province, by a Philippine Air Force plane.

The patients are Pedro Duran, Salvador Sevilla, Claudio Aquilino, Leopoldo Villaruz, Jose Bauron, Claudio Vicente, Cesar Oblicion, Loida Sevilla, Quirico Ubana, and Trinidad Bucayan. Most of the patients are victims of accidents in Aklan.

August 6.—THE President this day upheld the decisions of the Civil Service Board of Appeals dismissing from the service a barrio school teacher in Cebu and a chauffeur-examiner of the Camarines Sur agency of the Motor Vehicles Office.

Gregorio Flores, a classroom teacher in the Hilantagaan Barrio School, Sta. Fe, Cebu, had been found guilty of immorality while Oscar O. Alvarez, chauffeur-examiner, was found guilty of misconduct in office and abuse of authority.

Flores, it was charged, had induced a barrio belle to elope with him on a promise of marriage and later left her purportedly to get a change of clothes but did not return to the girl.

Alvarez, on the other hand, issued certificates without authority from the Public Service Commission and allowed trucks to operate as public utility vehicles.

The letter to the appellants affirming the decisions of the Civil Service Board of Appeals was signed by Executive Secretary Natalio P. Castillo by authority of President Garcia.

The President rested well last night and the whole day today at the Veterans Memorial Hospital as his doctor continued to prescribe complete rest.

A number of visitors tried to see the President this morning, but Dr. Antonio Guytingco, Palace physician, did not permit him to receive anyone. The callers were received by the First Lady and her daughter, Mrs. Linda Campos, at the waiting room of the President's hospital suite.

The President had ordered the airlifting of these patients upon the request of Gov. Lope Damasco of Bukidnon, who wired the Chief Executive about the plight of these victims.

President Garcia today directed Executive Secretary Natalio P. Castillo to release initially ₱20,000 from, the President's contingent fund for the repair of roads destroyed by heavy rains in Zambales.

Gov. Manuel Barretto of Zambales reported an estimated damage of about ₱1. 5 million, to provincial properties wrought by the heavy downpour and landslides in Zambales.

Minister Pinay told Secretary Castillo that he was here in 1957 and was witness to the precarious economic and fiscal position then obtaining in the country. He added that the rapid strides attained since then were short of miraculous and could have been achieved only through the extreme sacrifice of the people whose very survival was threatened.

Minister Pinay, who was responsible for the imposition of austerity measures when General De Gaulle took over the reins of government in France, recalled that the situation in France then was similar to the situation in the Philippines in 1957.

Minister Pinay will meet local economic and fiscal experts and conduct a study of the fiscal and economic set-up of the country for the Philippine National Bank during his stay here.

President Garcia dispatched mercy planes to airlift three more emergency patients from Zamboanga del Sur, Iloilo City, and Palanan, Isabela, for hospitalization in Manila.

The mercy flights returned to Manila today and the patients were taken to the San Lazaro and the North General Hospitals for treatment.

The rescue missions, despite inclement weather, were undertaken success-fully by Philippine Air Force and U.S. Navy planes. The U.S. Navy mercy plane flew from Palanan and landed at Sangley Point in Cavite, where the patient was picked up by a local Air Force rescue plane.

Airlifted from Palanan by a U.S.N. plane upon the President's request was Catalina Flores who is suffering from "lockjaw, backbone curving with general pains and muscular cramps." She was rushed to the San Lazaro Hospital upon arrival.

The other two patients who were also airlifted from Iloilo City and Zamboanga del Sur were Zacarias Miravite and Rebecca Chiong.

Local doctors said the patient was "highly febrile with dysphagia and paralytic symptom on her upper extremities." She was taken to the San Lazaro Hospital.

President's Week in Review: August 14-20, 1960

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

August 14.—PRESIDENT Garcia was reported today disturbed by the continuous heavy rains caused by the seasonal southwest monsoon which have inundated several sections of Manila and the suburbs.

Reports reaching the President indicated that the floods this day had paralyzed vehicular traffic in many busy sections of the city.

He contacted Executive Secretary Natalio P. Castillo and directed him to adopt measures to extend immediate assistance to flood victims.

The President said he wanted an early assessment of the damage in life and property in order that proper relief could be administered as soon as possible.

President Garcia spent his eleventh consecutive day at his suite at the Veterans Memorial Hospital, where he was confined last August 3.

The President heard mass this morning before an improvised altar inside his suite. With the President were the First Lady, Mr. and Mrs. Fernando Campos, and Dr. Antonio Guytingco, the President's physician.

August 15.—THIS morning the President mobilized the National Emergency Relief Coordinating Committee and ordered the initial release of ₱100,000 for the relief of typhoon-flood victims in Central Luzon towns.

In an early morning conference with Executive Secretary Natalio P. Castillo at his Veterans Memorial Hospital suite, the President ordered the use of Army helicopters and Navy flat boats to reach marooned people in the flooded areas, wherever trucks cannot be used.

The President also directed Secretary Castillo, NERCC chairman, to move relief supplies and personnel into the disaster areas as fast as the flood waters receded, and to conduct a general survey of the damages wrought by the floods with the view to effecting the rehabilitation of the flood victims, most of whom not only lost their homes but their crops for this year.

Secretary Castillo will go to the field tomorrow morning and conduct on-the-spot inspection of the flooded areas. He will be accompanied by Sen. Pacita M. Gonzalez.

The President expressed concern over the loss of lives and the heavy damage to crop and property.

Only casualties reported so far involved one who was electrocuted by a live wire in the flood and a truck driver who jumped off the vehicle and was carried away by the swift current.

At Malacañang, Secretary Castillo directed:

- (1) Suspension of all classes in the flood areas to prevent loss of life, particularly among school children;
- (2) Budget Commissioner Faustino Sy-Changco to make immediately available for relief purposes the ₱100,000 ordered released by President Garcia;
- (3) Assistant Executive Secretary Enrique C. Quema to make a survey of the disaster area by helicopter; and

(4) An emergency meeting of the Emergency Relief Coordinating Committee at the Malacañang Council of State room to carry out the President's order.

During the meeting at Malacañang, Secretary Castillo expressed to the committee the President's desire to render full and immediate assistance to avert loss of life and outbreak of epidemics, and the institution of rehabilitative measures to restore normalcy in the area.

To determine the extent of damage and the amount of funds needed for rehabilitative work, Secretary Castillo invited the members of the NERCC to go with him to conduct an ocular survey of the damage tomorrow morning.

The NERCC survey team which will be headed by Secretary Castillo will leave Malacañang 7:30 a.m. tomorrow and will motor to Malolos, Calumpit, San Fernando, and Lubao in Pampanga, and probably Concepcion in Tarlac.

Secretary Castillo pointed out during the meeting that almost all of the flood victims will not be able to harvest their crops this year, and that a big majority of them will have to rebuild their houses, if not construct new ones.

Acting Defense Secretary Mariano Yenko, Jr., who attended the meeting, reported that Pampanga, Tarlac, and Bulacan were hardest hit.

Secretary Yenko said that personnel of the Social Welfare Administration, the Philippine National Red Cross, the Philippine Constabulary, the Philippine Army, and the Clark Air Force Base were cooperating in evacuating and rendering relief to the flood victims.

Secretary Yenko reported that naval assault boats and amphibious trucks had been moved into the area to evacuate flood victims and that three helicopters and 15 heavy army trucks have been assigned to haul relief goods and personnel.

Yenko reported that as of 10:30 this morning, the following towns were still under water as a result of the breaching of the Arnedo dike in several places: Concepcion, Tarlac, Arayat, Candaba, San Luis, San Simon, Masantol, Apalit, and Guagua in Pampanga.

Also badly affected were Hagonoy, Calumpit, and Paombong in Bulacan; and Aliaga, Cabiao, and Zaragoza in Nueva Ecija where damage crops was reported to be heavy.

Dr. Elena Perez-Ompoc, representing SWA Administrator Amparo Villamor who is abroad, reported to the committee that a total of 322 sacks (100 kg each) and canned sardines had been sent to several towns in Tarlac, Pampanga, and Bulacan, but that some trucks had to turn back because the roads were impassable.

Among the towns for which SWA relief had already been sent were Concepcion in Tarlac; Bahay Pare, Calumpit and Hagonoy in Bulacan; Punta in Sta. Ana, San Simon and other towns in Pampanga; Pateros, Pasig, Navotas, and Malabon in Rizal.

Mrs. Ompoc requested the Committee to authorize the immediate purchase of 1,000 sacks of rice (56 kg each), 250 cases of sardines, and a large stock of ready made clothing to meet immediate and expected demands from the flood victims. Mrs. Ompoc said the SWA has virtually no stock of clothing.

Present at the Malacañang conference which started at 10:30 and ended at 12 noon were Secretary Castillo (presiding), Press Secretary Jose C. Nable, Acting Defense Secretary Mariano Yenko, Jr., Sen. Pacita M. Gonzalez, Dr. Ompoc, Estelito Emboltora of the SWA, Col. V. O. Tionson, and Capt. Auxencio Peharanda of the Armed Forces.

President Garcia today appointed Assistant Executive Secretary Enrique C. Quema as acting Social Welfare Administrator, vice Mrs. Amparo P. Villamor, who is abroad.

The President appointed Secretary Quema as social welfare administrator in order to effect a speedier and more effective relief program for the flood victims in Pampanga, Bulacan, Tarlac, and Rizal.

Secretary Quema took his oath of office as acting SWA Administrator before Executive Secretary Natalio P. Castillo this afternoon.

Secretary Quema earlier had been directed by Secretary Castillo to make an aerial survey of the inundated area in an Army helicopter.

After his trip, Secretary Quema reported that he had not been able to land in any town along the route because most of the towns were still under water.

Secretary Quema landed at Camp Olivas in San Fernando and at Clark Field and made the return flight to Manila non-stop, arriving at Nichols Air Base Operations at 2 p.m.

Secretary Quema suggested that the survey team which is scheduled to leave for the flooded area tomorrow morning make the survey on helicopters to be borrowed from the United States Navy.

He informed Secretary Castillo, who is heading the survey team, that from what he had seen, roads will still be impassable early tomorrow because the water is still too deep in places and the roads may have been cut in many places.

This afternoon the President honored the delegates to the 11th session of the Regional Committee of the World Health Organization with cocktails in Malacañang.

Executive Secretary Castillo, who received the delegates on behalf of the President welcomed them to the Philippines and thanked them for the benefits that the Philippines has been receiving from the world organization.

Secretary Castillo expressed regret that the President, who is still confined at the Veterans Memorial Hospital, could not be personally present to meet them but conveyed to them the President's sincere wishes for the success of their meet in Manila.

The delegates to the 11th session of the Regional Committee of WHO are holding their meeting in Manila on August 12-17, 1960.

Represented in the conference are 18 countries, two United Nations specialized agencies, and 12 inter-government and non-government organizations.

August 16.—PRESIDENT Garcia today declared Pampanga and Bulacan under a state of emergency as he harnessed the entire government machinery to rush aid to thousands of homeless flood victims in four other provinces.

Presidential action swiftly came close at the heels of a report made by Executive Secretary Natalio P. Castillo, who together with national and provincial officials, made on-the-spot investigations of conditions in Bulacan. The President at the same time directed the officials of the Manila Railroad Company to double their schedule of trips in Central Luzon provinces principally for the purpose of rushing relief work and assistance to flood victims in Pampanga, Bulacan, Tarlac, Nueva Ecija, and Pangasinan.

He also made public his appreciation and thanks to officials of Clark Air Force Base and the United States naval station in Olongapo for their help and contribution of relief goods to flood victims.

President Garcia expressed deep concern over the plight of thousands of flood victims. He specifically directed Secretary Castillo to submit progress reports on the extent of relief work accomplished by the government agencies.

In a detailed report to President Garcia, Gen. Manuel Cabal chief of staff, said the Armed Forces were doing their utmost to help flood victims.

He specifically reported that medical teams were dispatched early today specially equipped with halazone tablets to watch out in particular against possible outbreak of epidemic. He said the shortage of potable water in the flooded areas could give rise to epidemic. He, however, allayed fears of its breaking out, as he pointed to Army water trucks sent to the flooded towns for the use of residents.

In places where communications have been cut off, the Army has put up temporary signal communications, Gen. Cabal said.

In Camp Olivas alone there were about 1,000 refugees housed in Army barracks, he said.

President Garcia received detailed reports from fieldmen on relief work in six provinces, including emergency activities of social workers and red cross personnel.

In Tarlac, the towns of Paniqui and Concepcion were reported under water. Clark Field authorities sent 24 trucks to assist in the evacuation of flood victims. Constabulary officials also borrowed commercial trucks to help in relief work and in the evacuation of flood victims.

In Pampanga, all towns were reported under water except Angeles, and the Angeles-Magalang bridge was reported destroyed. Relief work, including distribution of foodstuff, started in this province.

In Bulacan, the towns of Bocaue, Marilao, Calumpit, Hagonoy, Paombong, Meycawayan, and Pulilan were reported under water. Twelve Army trucks helped evacuate flood victims. Social Welfare and red cross personnel distributed relief goods and foodstuff.

In Pangasinan, the following towns suffered losses (partial) in public works and buildings: Asingan, ₱36,090; Binalonan, ₱20,000; Pozzorubio, ₱13,000; Tayug, ₱15,000; Natividad, ₱56,000; Villasis, ₱14,000; Alcala, ₱6,000; Bayambang, ₱18,000; and Bautista, ₱20,000. The report submitted were based on partial estimates and did not include damage on private properties and crops.

In Bataan, Dinalupihan, Hermosa, Orani, Samal, Abucay, and Balanga were reported under water. Reports said the water level was still rising.

President Garcia also authorized Secretary Castillo to release initially ₱20,000 from his contingent funds for the emergency repair and reconstruction of public works projects in Pangasinan. The President yesterday released ₱100,000 for purchase of foodstuff and their distribution to flood victims.

Emergency measures for Pangasinan were made upon request of acting Governor Nancy Q. Sison, who personally reported to Malacañang the extent of damage sustained in her province.

Governor Sison said thousands of hectares of ricelands were inundated in her province because of the breakage in the Arnedo flood control dike. She also said that several concrete boulders built on the river beds along Pangasinan towns broke owing to heavy pressure of flood waters.

The flood destroyed about 85 per cent of the province's staple crops, Governor Sison reported.

Six lives were reported lost in Pangasinan and the flood left in its wake an extensive damage to public roads and public buildings as well as private buildings.

THIS afternoon the President formally opened the 1960 National Fund and Educational Drive of the Philippine Tuberculosis Society with a personal contribution of ₱1,000 at the kick-off ceremonies held in the Malacañang Social Hall.

At the ceremonies, Dona Julia Vda. de Ortigas, PTS president, received a Golden Heart presidential award of the first degree “in recognition of her meritorious and distinguished services to the Republic and in the amelioration and improvement of the moral, social, and economic conditions of the masses of our people.”

In his speech read by Assistant Executive Secretary and concurrently acting SWA Administrator Enrique C. Quema, the President pointed out that the Philippines is set back every year by an amount estimated to be not less than ₱800,000 as a result of the depredation tuberculosis has wrought upon the population.

The President added that now when much of the national effort is devoted to productive enterprises to the end that a progressive economy shall be developed in the Philippines, death and disability caused by the White Plague have accounted for such a heavy drag on the Philippine capacity for productive effort.

Mrs. Ortigas, the moving spirit behind the Philippine Tuberculosis Society for the last 31 years, was awarded the Order of the Golden Heart “not only for her leadership in the prevention and control of TB but for having devoted the best years of her life to the service of her fellowmen.”

Francisco Delgado, general chairman of the fund and educational drive, received the collections and pledges made by the division chairmen and other volunteers.

August 11.—PRESIDENT Garcia this evening, on the recommendation of the Cabinet, adopted massive measures to extend immediate and maximum relief to thousands of flood victims in Pampanga, Bulacan, and other Central Luzon provinces laid waste by the recent typhoons.

The President authorized an unprecedented release of one million pesos from his contingent fund for the immediate relief and rehabilitation of the flood victims.

Called to an emergency session by President Garcia, the Cabinet also:

Mrs. Linda G. Campos, daughter of the President, this afternoon visited flood victims in Malolos and Calumpit, Bulacan, where she distributed sandwiches and other cooked foods for the sufferers in the inundated areas. Mrs.

Campos was accompanied by Gov. Tomas Martin, local Red Cross and SWA officials, and some personnel from the social secretary's office in Malacañang. Canned goods and rice were also distributed to the needy families, most of whom had been temporarily housed in public school buildings.

On the recommendation of his Cabinet which met by his order, the President approved the additional and immediate release of ₱200,000 for the purchase of relief supplies by the Social Welfare Administration. This latest release from the President's contingent funds brings the total fund releases for flood victims to ₱470,000.

The Cabinet received the reports of Secretaries Castillo and Quema, who had made on-the-spot survey tours of the flooded localities the whole day yesterday and later reported to the President on their observations.

The two officials also discounted reports of the outbreak of epidemics in some localities, saying that neither of them ever received such information from the field. Brig. Gen. Isagani V. Campo, Constabulary chief, who had been invited to the Cabinet meeting, also said he had not received any word about epidemics from his provincial commanders.

Secretary Elpidio Valencia earlier today spiked reports of an epidemic outbreak. He said health conditions were being strictly observed. He has been on field inspection the whole day today.

Secretary Quema, who had been designated acting administrator of social welfare, informed the Cabinet that the relief supplies being dispatched to the critical areas included 36,000 tablets of Halizone and a water purifier, one of the measures taken to obviate the possibility of epidemics.

The Cabinet also:

- (1) Directed the chief of the flood control division, the chief of the AFP engineer corps, and a representative of the railroad to determine ways of hastening the receding of flood waters which was said to be very slow owing to elevation of railroad tracks; and

- (2) Re-examine the government policy regarding the exportation of rice to insure an adequate supply of this staple commodity after the crop-destroying flood waters in Central Luzon;

Col. Eugenio Acab, deputy PC chief, also reported that Highway 5 which passes through Nueva Ecija is now passable. However, according to reports as of 2 p.m. today, Highway 3 which passes through Pampanga and Bulacan is still not passable.

Under study by the Cabinet is the feasibility of evacuating some 5,000 families in Apalit and San Simon, Pampanga, to dry towns of nearby Bulacan, if necessary.

Col. Acab also reported that vehicles being used in the relief work included 72 trucks, three of which are amphibians, six C-47 planes of the Air Force, four helicopters from the Philippine and U.S. Armed Forces, 20 navy assault rafts, and six navy boats. The deputy PC chief said that there are 10 medical teams on a 24-hour alert on duty in the area.

Chairman Paulino Garcia of the National Science Development Board who is also chairman of the board of governors of the Philippine National Red Cross, also reported to the Cabinet that the Red Cross had released ₱25,000 so far from its total appropriation of ₱100,000 for the flood victims. He said that Red Cross workers in the field had not reported the outbreak of any epidemic in the area.

Secretary Quema said that although the visited areas were inundated, not much destruction had been sustained by buildings. Most of the rehabilitation to be undertaken by the Department of Public Works and Communications would probably be on roads and bridges.

The Cabinet meeting was presided by Executive Secretary Natalio P. Castillo.

Meanwhile, during a half-hour conference between PCAPE chairman Justice Buenaventura Ocampo and Gen. Leoncio Tan, NARIC general manager, this afternoon at the office of Justice Ocampo, the PCAPE chief informed Gen. Tan that from reports received by his office from the PCAPE survey team in the flooded areas, the prices of prime commodities had risen to prohibitive levels and that profiteering and hoarding was prevalent, especially in remote and isolated places.

Gen. Tan informed Justice Ocampo that the NARIC has over one million cavans of palay stocked in various NARIC warehouses in Bulacan, Pampanga, Tarlac, and Nueva Ecija and that reports received said more than 16,000 cavans of palay were damaged in the province of Bulacan alone and that probably hundreds more were expected damaged in Pampanga, Tarlac, and Nueva Ecija.

The NARIC manager further reported that six NARIC rolling stores each in Bulacan, Pampanga, and Nueva Ecija were selling rice at ₱.85 a ganta. Tan added that at this cost the government corporation is already losing thousands of pesos.

President Garcia today dispatched a mercy plane to Cagayan de Oro City to airlift Salvador Virtudazo, a laborer, for emergency treatment at the National Orthopedic Hospital.

Virtudazo is suffering from a two-inch open fracture on the head and had been confined at the Cagayan de Oro provincial hospital before he was airlifted to Manila.

August 18.—PRESIDENT Garcia signed into law the bill appropriating ₱10 million for the rehabilitation of the damages caused by typhoons and floods, Malacañang announced today.

The new law was among the measures passed by Congress in the recent special session. The law provides that ₱5 million of the amount will be expended in the Bicol region, including Masbate. Albay will get ₱3 million of the ₱5 million.

Disbursements of the balance of ₱5 million will be made in accordance with certifications of the district engineers as verified by the Department of Public Works and Communications on a pro rata basis on the damage suffered by the provinces and cities affected by typhoons and floods.

The ₱10 million will be used for the rehabilitation, construction, or replacement of public buildings, including temporary and P.T.A. school buildings, roads, bridges, installations, and other public services damaged by typhoons and floods in the fiscal years 1959-1960 and 1960-1961.

The President this day was assured by Lt. Gen. Manuel Cabal, AFP chief of staff, that the conditions in the flooded areas of Pampanga and Bulacan were under control.

Cabal's report to the President was in line with the latter's instructions that progress reports be submitted regularly.

In his report to the President, Gen. Cabal said that the water in the flood areas have receded considerably. Gen. Cabal also reported that the new leak in the Arnedo dike southeast of Arayat, Pampanga, did not develop into a breakage. He said that the portion of the flood control dike will hold on and does not pose a serious treat to the townspeople.

He listed the problems in the flood-stricken towns in Central and Northern Luzon as follows: (1) the need for more relief goods and a more effective manner of distribution; (2) lack of potable water; and (3) prevention of possible outbreak of epidemic as indicated by isolated breaking out of cases of measles and dysentery in the flood areas.

Gen. Cabal reported to the President that he had authorized the issuance of additional transportation facilities to help ease the problem of distributing emergency relief goods. He also reported that Army guards in the inundated areas have been reinforced to see to it that relief supplies reach the destination.

As to the water problem, Gen. Cabal said that he had deployed all available water purification units and water trailers of the AFP for the use of needy victims in the flooded places. He said that water purification units were also loaned from the United States Armed Forces by the AFP to supplement their equipment now in use in the said areas.

All medical units helping thwart any possibility of an epidemic have been dispatched to the flood areas, Gen. Cabal added.

President Garcia this morning sent a congratulatory message to Gabriel Flash Elorde for his second decisive victory over Harold Gomez, in a championship fight in San Francisco.

President Garcia signed into law the anti-graft bill approved by Congress during the last special session as he beat the deadline for presidential action on bills enacted by Congress, Malacañang announced this afternoon.

The new law deals severely with public officials as well as private individuals by providing for their perpetual disqualification from public office and criminal prosecution.

It also strictly requires all public officials to file their statement of assets and liabilities before and after their terms of office as well as in January of every year.

The amended anti-graft bill as approved by the President meets the Chief Executive's objections raised in the veto of the original bill. In a memorandum for the President, the legal staff of Malacañang led by Judge Salvador Esguerra emphasized the following:

(1) The original bill which the President vetoed did not clearly define the term "close personal relations" which the offender may have with any public official to serve as the primary consideration in receiving any favor from another person who has certain dealings with the government.

The vetoed bill did not also clearly require as an element of the crime that such person shall have capitalized or exploited those close personal relations, or should have prevented such close relation, to induce another person to engage him to intervene in his dealings with the government.

The new bill as approved by the President now clearly defines the term "close personal relations" to include close personal friends, social or fraternal connections, and professional employment as giving rise to intimacy which assures free access to such public officer.

The new bill also clearly defines the term "family relation" to include spouses or relatives by consanguinity or affinity within the 3rd civil degree; and by requiring as element of the crime that the family or close personal relations be capitalized or exploited.

(2) The second ground for the veto of the original bill is the provision making it unlawful for the spouses and for any relative within the 3rd civil degree of consanguinity or affinity of the President, the Vice-President, the President of the Senate, and the Speaker of the House of Representatives, to intervene in any manner or capacity, directly or indirectly, in any business, transaction, contract, or application with the government.

The main objection to this provision is that a relative of the above-mentioned officials who practices his profession before any government office other than the courts or who himself personally applies for any grant or rights, privilege, or concession commits an unlawful act punishable by law.

The new bill corrects this objection by providing that it shall not apply to any application the approval of which is not discretionary- on the part of the official or officials concerned but depends upon compliance with the requisites provided by law, rule's, or regulations nor to any act lawfully performed in an official capacity in the exercise of a profession.

(3) The original bill as vetoed by the President provides it unlawful for any member of Congress, during his term, to acquire or receive any personal pecuniary interest in any specific business enterprise which will be directly and particularly favored or benefitted by any law or resolution authored by him or adopted by Congress during his term.

This provision makes applicable to the President who recommended to Congress the enactment or adoption of such law or resolution, as well as to members of the Cabinet who recommended to the President the approval of such law.

The new bill eliminates the objections raised by the President on certain objectionable features embodied in the original bill.

(4) The original bill would make the President liable to criminal prosecution during and after his term for an offense committed during his incumbency.

It is a well-settled principle of political law that the head of state is immune from court processes during his term. This immunity he carries with him even after the expiration of his term, unless in an impeachment proceedings instituted during his incumbency he is found guilty and convicted; Impeachment proceedings may result in his removal from office and disqualification to hold any office of honor, profit, or trust in the Philippine Government without prejudice to criminal prosecution if the act for which he was impeached constitutes a offense. But if no impeachment proceedings were instituted during his incumbency, it is doubtful if he can be prosecuted subsequently for acts done during his term. To hold the President so amenable would be destructive of the honor and dignity and authority that go with the high office of head of state.

President Garcia vetoed House Bill No. 5021, passed in the recent special session of Congress, proposing amendments to the Reparations Law.

This is the second reparations amendment measure disapproved by the President in view of substantial objectionable features he found in the bills. The first was House Bill No. 4467, passed during the regular session of Congress, which the President had returned with his veto message pointing out his objections to the bill.

The President said that the one ground for his veto of the first bill was that its Section 2 imposed additional burden on applicants by requiring them to canvas world prices in order to have a comparative statement of the value of Japanese goods and those of other nations. He had pointed out in his veto message that, this was an obligation of the Reparations Mission and should not be thrust upon applicants.

The second bill had not corrected this objectionable provision. On the other hand, it imposes another additional burden; namely, the submission of an evaluation report under oath on the estimated cost of the consumer goods, including a study of the itemized cost of the goods in relation to the prevailing export and domestic prices for like products in Japan to accompany every application for goods other than capital goods.

Another ground for the veto of the previous bill was that Section 4 limited the tentative schedule to the funds available to the corresponding reparations year plus one-half of those available for the succeeding year. The President's veto message had stated that the limitation in effect reduced the present tentative schedule to $17 million a year which was not enough to meet current obligations and commitments, and omitted the most important items, including allocations for small industries.

The second bill, on the other hand, limits the tentative schedule to funds available for the corresponding reparations year, plus one-half of the funds available for one reparations year, instead of the succeeding reparations year as provided in the previous bill. The correction, however, was not considered substantial.

A further ground for the disapproval of the first bill was that Section 8 provided for requirements that are already embodied in the Commission rules and regulations. It also required additional but unnecessary publications of procurement orders and their amendments, thereby adding more expenses and prescribing more red tape without giving any public benefit or service. The President believes that the second bill has not corrected these defects.

In vetoing the second reparations amendments measure, the President emphasized his desire to have the benefits of reparations spread to as many people as possible, giving preference to small applicants. A provision in the second bill, however, requires “a down-payment of not less than ₱5,000 nor more than one per cent of the value of the project whichever is the higher.” The President considers this requirement too harsh for small applicants.

House Bill No. 5021 is the only one vetoed of the five measures passed during the special session of Congress.

August 19.—PRESIDENT Garcia, through Executive Secretary Natalia P. Castillo, this morning posthumously conferred a “Golden Heart” award to the late President Manuel L. Quezon for his invaluable work in combating the dreaded disease of tuberculosis in the Philippines.

In bestowing the award, the Chief Executive also cited President Quezon’s humanitarian efforts in the promotion of the social as well as economic advancement of the country and people.

President Garcia said that the brand of leadership displayed by the late Filipino statesman is an inspiration and a guiding ideal of our people.

The award was received by the only living children of President Quezon, Mrs. Zeneida Q. Avanceña and Manuel, Jr.

The simple award rites were held at the ceremonial hall in Malacañang, highlighting President Quezon’s 82nd natal day.

Drs. Basilio Valdez and Bienvenuto Diño, official and private physicians, respectively, of President Quezon, ranking public officials, close friends, and relatives of the recipients of the award were present during the occasion.

This evening the President warned profiteers in foodstuff in flooded areas that they would be severely dealt with.

He directed Executive Secretary Natalio P. Castillo to enforce strictly the presidential proclamation placing under a state of emergency Pampanga and Bulacan.

The governors of Pampanga and Bulacan are authorized to enforce strictly the price control law and to seek the immediate assistance of the Philippine Constabulary if necessary, the President said.

He emphasized that taking advantage of the misery of fellow countrymen is the most un-Christian act that may be committed.

Mrs. Leonila D. Garcia visited flood-stricken areas in Central Luzon today to see for herself the extent of damages wrought in the localities and personally supervise the distribution of a third batch of relief supplies sent to needy sufferers by Malacañang to supplement the efforts of various relief agencies in the field.

The First Lady sent last Thursday her daughter, Mrs. Linda G. Campos, who distributed sandwiches, cooked foods, clothing, and medicines in evacuation centers set up in different towns in the area. Last Wednesday, a team of Malacañang household personnel also took truckloads of foodstuffs and distributed them to hungry families rendered homeless by the floods.

Mrs. Campos spent the whole day Thursday touring flooded areas in Pampanga and Bulacan, distributing relief goods donated through her mother by civic-spirited citizens and organizations. The President’s daughter rode on an amphibian truck during her tour.

The First Lady was accompanied by Mrs. Daniel Z. Romualdez and some Cabinet and congressional ladies in her tour this day.

Mrs. Garcia and party left Manila about 8 o'clock this morning. She took a special train at the Tutuban Railroad Station.

At Apalit, the party boarded three amphibian trucks and penetrated deep into the interior towns and barrios. They lunched from lunch boxes as they went along.

Returning to Apalit at 3:40 p.m., Mrs. Garcia boarded the train and proceeded to San Fernando in order to be able to extend relief to as many flood victims as possible.

Upon arriving at San Fernando, the First Lady accompanied by Rep. Emilio Cortez, Health Secretary and Mrs. Elpidio Valencia, and others, proceeded to the Provincial Hospital where she delivered a large quantity of medicines for respiratory and intestinal ailments.

At the hospital, the First Lady visited the various wards accompanied by Dr. Angel C. del Corro, chief of the hospital.

Dr. Del Corro told Mrs. Garcia that the hospital has been made ready to accommodate flood victims who had been exposed to the floods so long and may be suffering from ailments, and that all hospital personnel had been alerted to cope with the emergency.

From the hospital, the First Lady changed to a six by six truck and proceeded to Camp Olivas, the only evacuation center nearby, traveling over roads under three feet of water.

Upon arrival at Camp Olivas, the First Lady was greeted by some 1,000 evacuees with lusty shouts of "Mabuhay!"

The First Lady, assisted by Mesdames Valencia, Daniel Romualdez, Jose Aldeguer, and others started distributing food packages to the evacuees, each package containing two hard-boiled eggs, rice, a sandwich and hopia as well as separate packages of biscuits and loaves of bread.

Nene Licasno, a SWA special assistant who was with the party, estimated that no less than 5,500 sufferers were benefited by the distribution of relief goods by the First Lady.

After making a tour of the towns of San Simon, Apalit, and San Fernando, Mrs. Garcia, upon representations made by Rep. Cortez, decided to allocate another 1,000 sacks of rice for the Pampanga flood sufferers.

Among those with the First Lady were Secretary and Mrs. Valencia, AFP Chief of Staff Lt. Gen. Manuel F. Cabal, PC Chief Brig. Gen. Isagani V. Campo, Mesdames Daniel Z. Romualdez, Dominador R. Aytona, Natalio P. Castillo, Lita Rocas, SWA Regional Director Silvia Monte, and a special assistant, Nene Liscano, and many others.

The First Lady took along for distribution besides medicines, 3,500 individual food packages, three heavy crates of cooked rice, ten crates of camotes, 29 cartons of biscuits, and four bales of clothing from Malacañang; and 25 cases of sardines, 2,000 loaves of Tasty bread, 2,500 packages of biscuits, 1,800 pieces of assorted clothing, and ten sacks of rice from the Social Welfare Administration.

The party left San Fernando about 6 p.m. and arrived at the Manila Railroad station at Tutuban at about 7:30 p.m.

Justice Buenaventura Ocampo today recommended to the President a one-year moratorium on crop loan payments and the condonation of unpaid real estate taxes by the flood victims in Bulacan, Tarlac, Pampanga, and Nueva Ecija.

The PCAPE chairman made these recommendations after returning from an ocular survey of the flood relief situation where he had been sent by President Garcia earlier to assess the condition and to coordinate all relief activities.

In his recommendations to the President, the PCAPE chief said that the water had started receding the peace and order situation was under-control. He also informed the President that relief work was proceeding smoothly although some isolated barrios have not yet been reached by either Social Welfare Administration or Philippine National Red Cross relief.

Justice Ocampo also informed the President that after his conference with Bulacan Governor Tomas Martin and PC Provincial Commander Major Laureaga, who had told him that most of the sufferers had lost their crops, he was convinced that the flood sufferers will not be in a position to meet their crop loan amortization due government lending institutions, nor to pay their real estate taxes at least for the current year

Justice Ocampo pointed out that if this holds true in Bulacan which fared better than Pampanga, it may also holds true in the case of Pampanga, Tarlac, and Nueva Ecija.

August 20.—THE President today ordered the immediate payment of retired government officials and employees who had not received their full pensions.

The President issued the order on hearing reports that a considerable number of retired government personnel had not been paid their pensions owing to the failure of the national government to remit to the Government Service Insurance System the premiums corresponding to these retirees.

In a memorandum directed to Budget Commissioner Faustino Sy-Changco, the President said:

“I want you to look for funds and remit immediately to the GSIS a sufficient amount to enable these pensioners to be paid the amounts due them. As long as I am President, I want no suspension or reduction in the payment of these pensions.”

The President dictated his memorandum in the course of his conference with Executive Secretary Natalio P. Castillo, who called at the Veterans Memorial Hospital this afternoon to consult him on urgent state matters.

On receipt of the memorandum later this evening, Commissioner Sy-Changco promised he would raise the necessary funds which he estimated at about ₱9 million and remit them to the GSIS immediately.

The Budget Commissioner explained that no remittances could be made in the past owing to lack of funds. He said that with the very much improved fiscal position of the government, it would be easier for him to look for the required amount.

Commissioner Sy-Changco said that there are more than 12,000 government retirees, about 2,300 of whom are waiting for their five-year lump sum payment after having retired at the age of 65. The amounts to be paid these retirees will depend on their length of service and the amount of their salary, he said.

The President this day set the government machinery working for the immediate implementation of the new Anti Graft Law.

He directed three Cabinet members, Executive Secretary Natalio P. Castillo, Justice Secretary Mabanag, and PCAPE Chairman Justice Buenaventura Ocampo, to discuss ways and means on how the new law can reinforce the Administration's current campaign against graft and corruption. Secretary Castillo scheduled the conference to take place early this week.

Simultaneously, acting through Executive Secretary Castillo, the President directed Finance Secretary Dominador Aytona to submit early this week his recommendation on the proposal to grant a one-year moratorium on crop loan payments and the condonation of unpaid real estate taxes by flood victims in Bulacan, Pampanga, Nueva Ecija, Tarlac, and Pangasinan. Deadline for the Aytona recommendation is August 24.

The original proposal for a moratorium on crop loan payments and condonation of unpaid real estate taxes was submitted to the President by PCAPE Chairman Ocampo after an on-the-spot investigation of conditions in the flooded areas late last week.

President Garcia also directed Secretary Castillo to look into the reported non-coordination of government agencies in the distribution of relief goods to flood victims. Secretary Castillo's report is scheduled to be submitted Monday morning.

The President took the occasion to warn that politics should in no way deter the distribution of relief to the flood victims.

He emphasized that relief work should be the rallying point for all officials regardless of political color to join hands and serve the people at this time of dire need.

Official Week in Review: August 21 – August 27, 1960

August 21.—PRESIDENT Garcia this morning received Mayor Florencio Carlos of San Luis, Pampanga, who asked for the use of an amphibian truck to accelerate the distribution of relief goods in his flooded town.

The San Luis town executive was accompanied by Provincial Fiscal Nicanor Nicolas of Rizal and Mrs. Teresita Alcantara.

Mrs. Garcia gave Mayor Carlos rice, clothing, and other relief goods for distribution to the flood victims.

Executive Secretary Natalio P. Castillo, by authority of the President, directed Brig. Gen. Isagani V. Campo, PC chief, to furnish the needed amphibian truck to Carlos.

Assistant Executive Secretary Enrique C. Quema, concurrently acting SWA Administrator, was directed by the President to rush relief goods to San Luis.

The President did not receive any other caller the whole day.

The President with the First Lady heard mass said in his room at the Veterans Memorial Hospital.

August 22.—PRESIDENT Garcia today branded his critics as demagogues distorting the problems that beset the incumbent public officials.

The President's statement was part of his message which Executive Secretary Natalio P. Castillo read during the opening ceremony of the second public relations week held in the Malacañang Social Hall this morning.

The greater disservice, the President emphasized, is found in the fact that they (the critics) bring about the "erosion of the people's faith in their government which is a basic ingredient for our continued stability and progress."

In his message the President also called upon the people to insist from his administration their right to avail of the highest possible level of public service.

The President also strongly urged the development of a civil service that will be very highly respected, adding that he has earnestly tried to place our civil service outside the sphere of influence of politicians.

The Chief Executive reiterated the Administration's continued efforts towards the attainment of "that kind of public service that will make each citizen feel that, indeed, sovereignty resides in the people and that government is constituted to promote their welfare and well-being.

"I have just described," the President explained, "what I consider as the basic aspect of our public relations program in the government—that of truly rendering efficient public service to the people."

Touching on government expenditures in the public relations offices, the President warned against concealing from the public eye and from corrective administrative action, acts of malfeasance that discredit the sincerity and devotion which characterize the actions of a large majority in the government service.

The President also advised the public relations men to be prompt, courteous, and imaginative in attending to the needs of the people.

"We should make the lazy, incompetent, discourteous, and dishonest public officials a faded thing of the past," the President asserted.

In his message to the public relations men, President Garcia also reiterated his personal support to programs aimed at achieving the highest possible level of public administration.

The President recalled that he had relentlessly prosecuted a campaign to weed out of public service incompetent and corrupt officials.

“Of course,” the President said, “in the process of weeding out undesirables in the government, I have always respected their constitutional rights and have done it with due process of law.”

The President’s message sought to establish a pattern of good and effective public relations in the government service by telling the people of what is being done for them and the problems that are faced by the government in the implementation of programs for their welfare.

The President interpreted the importance of telling the people about the problems faced by the government in the implementation of programs for their welfare as an urgent one.

Equally significant, he said, is the role of public relations men to let the people understand the validity of an advice for patience. It is in this area, the President observed, where the bitter critics of my administration are rendering disservice to our country.

THIS evening Mrs. Leonila D. Garcia launched “Operations Puso”, a nationwide effort to bring immediate relief to the thousands of flood victims in Central Luzon, and appealed to all the people for wholehearted support.

At a special press-radio-TV conference which was held at the Malacañang state dining hall this evening, the First Lady enlisted the support of the press, radio, and television to spearhead the drive for relief because “their (flood victims) relief must be the primary concern of the rest of our countrymen.”

The First Lady announced at the conference that she had wired all provincial governors, presidents of the different chambers of commerce, heads of religious organizations, and presidents of the Rotary, Lions, and Jaycee clubs, and trade organizations in Manila and the provinces not affected by the floods to help in the all out drive for donations.

Mrs. Garcia personally started the drive, aptly called “Operations Puso” from the heart-shaped package of rice cooked and wrapped in palm leaves. Besides supervising the cooking preparation, and packaging of the “puso” rice with the help of her daughter Linda, the First Lady had also personally donated 1,000 T-shirts, 2,000 pieces of “puso” rice, 4,000 bananas, and 5,000 matchboxes to the flood victims.

“Operations Puso” will receive donations; such as, foodstuff, clothing, medicine, matches, and other necessities. The donations may be transmitted directly to “Operations Puso” Coordinating Center, Malacañang. Donations from the provinces may be given to the provincial governors, PC provincial commanders, or the local SWA branch, who in turn will transport the commodities to the coordinating center in Malacañang.

Mrs. Garcia urged that all immediate relief donations be transmitted within the emergency period to Dr. Feliciano Cruz, case of “Operations Puso” Coordinating Center, Malacañang.

Among those present at the conference were Executive Secretary Natalio P. Castillo, Labor Secretary Angel Castaño, Gen. Cabal, Brig. Gen. Isagani Campo, acting SWA Administrator Enrique Quema, Teofilo Zosa, MRR director, Miguel Noel of the Philippine Air Lines and Soriano y Cia., Col. Generoso Tanseco of the Filipino Shipowners Association, Jose Escallante, representing the Bus Operators Association of the Philippines, Isidro Tayag of the Public Service Commission, Dr. Feliciano Cruz, Navy Capt. Heracleo Alano, Col. Caballero, and others.

August 23.—PRESIDENT Garcia today directed different government agencies to rush immediate aid and determine the extent of damage caused by the eruption of Hibok-Hibok volcano in Misamis Oriental.

An observation plane of the Philippine Air Force will survey the area early tomorrow morning and transport a medical team from the Health Department to the island of Camiguin, Misamis Oriental.

The President specifically instructed Executive Secretary Natalio P. Castillo for regular briefings on the conditions in that volcanic island in order to determine the extent of government assistance that will be needed.

Philippine Navy and Weather Bureau personnel will determine the extent of damage in the area.

The President also instructed Justice Buenaventura Ocampo, PCAPE chairman, to send a PCAPE team to the area to take emergency measures in coordination with local officials and IV Military Area authorities.

According to Vice-Governor Alfonso Dadole of Misamis Oriental who sent a telegram to the President, through Justice Ocampo, the Hibok-Hibok volcano “exploded with fire and lava landslides which horrified the residents of Catarman, from 7 p. m. to 2 a. m. of August 22.”

Vice-Governor Dadole further reported that the local residents spent a sleepless night Monday waiting for the worst to come.

In his instructions to Navy and Air Force officials, the President through Secretary Castillo, told them to send survey teams to Camiguin and to have all Navy ships in the vicinity to be on the alert.

The Weather Bureau, on the other hand, prepared to dispatch a team of seismographic experts to the area to determine the intensity of the reported eruption with the view to recommending evacuation of the population if necessary.

Mrs. Leonila D. Garcia this evening underscored the important role women are playing in the administration of public affairs and justice in the world today.

Speaking before some 100 delegates to the 11th Convention of the International Federation of Women Lawyers at a reception tendered by President Garcia at Malacañang, the First Lady said women can do better than men in the administration of justice because they possess “an understanding heart.”

In accepting a plaque of appreciation in behalf of the President the First Lady said that Malacañang was truly honored by the presence of so many prominent women leaders from 23 countries.

During the reception, the federation presented the President a plaque of appreciation “for his enlightened statemanship and leadership, his devotion and concern for the realization of international goodwill.”

The plaque was signed by Josefina Phodaca Ambrosio, international president, and Rosalind Goodrich Bates, president emeritus, and attested by Isabel Siero, general secretary.

Another plaque was presented to Rep. Tecla San Andres Ziga of Albay for being among the top ten congressmen.

The plaque for the President was presented to the First Lady, who was made honorary member of the organization, by Dr. Rosalind Goodrich Bates, while the plaque for Congress was given to Rep. Ziga by T.T. Chien of Taiwan.

Among the countries represented in the convention, together with their chief delegates, were Australia, Norma Winifred Levis Roma; Brazil, Diva Maria Salvatore; Burma, Daw Mya Mya Aye; Canada, Rytsa Finkelstein; Ceylon, Madame Tatnayake; Taiwan, Madame Chien; Dominican Republic, Senator. Milady Felix De L’ Official; England, Lady G. M. Chatterjee; Japan, Madame Terutso; Korea, J. Yoon Suk Whang; Malaya, Mrs. B. H. Oon; Mexico, Esther Talamantes; Pakistan, Begum Safiya Agha; Peru, Susana R. Solano; Sweden, Advokat Margit Althin; Thailand, Chuabha Onruang; United States, Rosaline G. Bates with 37 members; and the Philippines, Josefina P. Ambrosio, president of the FIDA (Federacion Internacional de Abogadas).

The convention which began on August 19 will end tomorrow. This is the first time that the convention was held in Asia.

August 24.—PRESIDENT Garcia today directed different government agencies to rush immediate aid and assistance to flood victims of Nueva Ecija as he received fresh reports of the extent of damages wrought by the recent typhoon and heavy downpours in Central Luzon.

Justice Buenaventura Ocampo, PCAPE chairman, in his report to the President stated that several towns of Nueva Ecija are still under water and that damages to crops and properties worth thousands of pesos alarmed the townspeople who feared that in their plight, hoarders and profiteers might take advantage of the situation.

The PCAPE team in Pampanga reported to the President that boatmen operating in the flooded areas of Pampanga and Bulacan were demanding high fees for transporting passengers to bus and jeep terminals.

The President upon being apprised of the situation immediately directed PCAPE and Constabulary authorities to adopt whatever measures necessary and to appeal to bangka owners and operators to lower the fares charged to passengers and not take advantage of the misery of their fellow countrymen.

The Chief Executive, in his desire to alleviate the plight of the flood victims, approved the following recommendations made by the PCAPE team assigned in the area: (1) that flood victims be allowed to stay in evacuation centers pending reconstruction of their houses; and (2) that material help be sent to these people who remain prey to starvation, disease, and poverty.

The President today directed Secretary Florencio Moreno of Public Works and Communications to release P100,000 for the repair and reconstruction of the national roads in Bulacan.

The directive, sent to Secretary Moreno through Executive Secretary Natalio P. Castillo, was given after Gov. Tomas Martin of Bulacan reported that the national roads were already passable.

The Bulacan provincial executive further reported that provincial and rural roads are still under water. He added that the towns of Hagonoy, Paombong, and Calumpit were still neck-deep in water.

Gov. Martin lauded the efforts exerted by Mrs. Leonila D. Garcia in initiating “Operations Puso”, a nationwide drive for donations in cash or in kind for the relief of flood victims.

In connection with the drive, Gov. D. O. Plaza contributed P10,000 while Gov. Esteban Bernido of Bohol wired the Vice-Governor of his province to send dried fish and camotes to Malacañang.

Meanwhile, Pedro Manayon and Zosimo Falcon were inducted this morning by Secretary Castillo as chairman and member, respectively, of the Board of Mechanical Engineering Examiners in the presence of former Chairman Luis A. Flores; Chairman Vicente Chatto of the board of examiners for electrical engineers; Jose Zafra, chairman of the board of directors and general manager of the Cebu Portland Cement Company; and George M. Sandoval and Manuel Concio, directors of the Philippine Society of Mechanical Engineers.

August 25.—THE start of a massive rehabilitation program for thousands of flood victims in five central Luzon provinces was directed by President Garcia as he received reports today that flood water was receding.

Acting through Executive Secretary Natalio P. Castillo, the President directed the amount of P500,000 as initial release for the purchase of rice seedlings and their distribution to flood victims.

President Garcia directed the National Waterworks and Sewerage Authority to conduct inspection of artesian and liberty wells and assure consumption of potable water to the flood victims.

The President also directed Health Secretary Elpidio Valencia to adopt strict health measures in order to prevent the possible outbreak of epidemic in the flooded areas.

The President directed Secretary Castillo to confer with Public Works Secretary Florencio Moreno to speed up the repair of national highways and roads destroyed by the flood.

The President received a report from Col. Eugenio Acab, Constabulary deputy chief, that there were no subversive activities in the flooded areas and that continued smooth distribution of relief goods were accomplished by government agencies.

In a conference between Secretary Castillo and Agriculture Secretary Cesar M. Fortich late this afternoon, it was agreed that an initial amount of P500,000 will be made immediately available for the purchase of rice seedlings and their distribution to farmers in flooded areas, after the waters have completely receded.

The amount will be released in two or three installments depending on the immediate need. A larger amount will be made available if needed, it was agreed upon.

The extent of damage to agricultural crops was reported to be extensive, particularly in Pampanga and Bulacan and certain towns in Nueva Ecija, Tarlac, and Pangasinan.

In a report to the President, Health Secretary Valencia discounted the danger of an epidemic breaking out because of the strict health measures that have been adopted by medical teams on the field. He said almost all towns affected by the flood have been visited by medical teams of the health department, the United States Veterans Administration, and a combined Jaycee-Philippine Medical Association group.

These teams have been distributing medicine and giving immunization shots to flood victims.

Secretary Valencia also reported he may put into use two mobile water purifiers offered by Clark Air Force Base authorities. According to Valencia, these water purifiers can convert muddy flood waters into potable water.

President Garcia today rallied all government employees and workers to the support of Operations Puso for the relief of the flood victims in Central and Northern Luzon provinces.

In his appeal before officers and members of the Confederation of Government Employees Organizations (COGEO) during the induction of officers at the Manila Hotel this noon, the President traced the circumstances which led to the launching of Operations Puso by the First Lady last Monday.

In his message which was read by Executive Secretary Natalio P. Castillo because the President was still confined at the Veterans Memorial Hospital, the Chief Executive said that "there is so much to do for the living victims of the disaster, both from the official and humanitarian points of view."

"They have been reduced to such misery that anything at all, however little, that can be given them will be of some help—cash, food, clothing, medicine," the President said.

The President said that the First Lady had the harrowing experience of seeing for herself the dire sufferings of the flood victims when she toured Pampanga and Bulacan, and that from this experience was born a firm determination to help her fellow countrymen.

From this experience, the President pointed out, the First Lady initiated an unprecedented campaign to gather the food, medicine, and clothing from civic spirited citizens and business firms for distribution to the victims.

The President also reiterated his gratitude to the Armed Forces, the Philippine National Red Cross, the Social Welfare Administration, the great number of civilian volunteers, and friends from the United States military bases.

The President said that out of the desperate situation, one can derive great pride and satisfaction in the herculean efforts of civic-minded individuals, civic organizations, and friends from the United States military to pitch in wherever a helping hand was needed.

Secretary Castillo, who had also surveyed the flood during its early stage, told the COGEO that it was the worst single natural disaster to hit the Filipino people and that losses to life and property kept mounting.

Secretary Castillo inducted the new officers of the COGEO, and later presented President Garcia's personal check for P1,000 as his contribution to the construction of the Community Center for the over one half million state employees.

August 26.—PRESIDENT Garcia was reported to be recovering speedily from his recent ailment which sent him to the Veterans Memorial Hospital on August 3.

In his suite at the VMH, the President received Executive Secretary Natalio P. Castillo and Press Secretary Jose C. Nable.

Secretary Castillo informed the President of the outcome of his second meeting with the special committee which studied the provisions of Republic Act No. 3019, otherwise known as the Anti-Graft Law.

Castillo informed the President of the need of accepting the resignations of two appointive members of the Monetary Board; namely, Roberto T. Villanueva and Gaudencio Antonino.

Villanueva tendered his resignation yesterday while Antonino forwarded his letter to Malacañang this afternoon. The third appointive MB member, Jaime Velasquez, has not submitted his resignation up to press time this evening.

Secretary Castillo informed the President that it would be unlawful for the three MB officials to continue participating in the deliberations of the Central Bank ruling body on the basis of the Anti-Graft Law.

Mrs. Leonila D. Garcia also reported to the President that donations poured in to the Operations Puso headquarters in Malacañang today. She told the Chief Executive she was going to Tarlac tomorrow morning to supervise the relief operations for thousands of flood victims in that province.

August 27.—THE PRESIDENT today signed a proclamation declaring Monday, August 29, 1960, as special public holiday in the municipality of San Juan, Rizal, in commemoration of the 64th anniversary of the battle of Pinaglabanan.

The President said that the battle of Pinaglabanan is an important event in the struggle for freedom and should be observed with fitting ceremonies.

President Garcia today ordered the release of P270,000 for various public works and community projects of Sulu, designed primarily for socio-economic upliftment of this trouble-wrecked archipelago.

Col. Vicente Tiongson, Malacañang financial assistant, was directed to fly to Sulu and handcarry the much-needed appropriation.

The amount was released upon the representation of Gov. Abubakar, Vice-Governor Salim, and Integration Commission Assistant Rasul.

Tiongson, upon presentation of the treasury warrant to Gov. Abubakar in the presence of Rep. Salipada Pendatun of Cotabato, provincial and municipal officials, and civic leaders, stated that it was the desire of the President that immediate construction of the project be started and that as much as possible local labor be utilized.

Those present, led by Abubakar, expressed their gratification for the release of the fund, although somewhat surprised, for they did not expect that Sulu, a Liberal Party, province, to be the recipient of the President's favorable action.

Tiongson answered that President Garcia wants it understood that party affiliation was not taken into account but only public benefits.

The President also directed AFP contingents in the area to aid and cooperate with the civilian authorities in the various construction projects. He urged them to have a sympathetic understanding of the customs and problems of Sulu residents and to pursue vigorous and sustained efforts for the socio-economic uplift of the masses.

By order of the President, Tiongson conferred with provincial, municipal, and military officials on ways and means to bring the Sulu pacification campaign to a successful conclusion.

This evening the President listened to the report of Mrs. Garcia, who had made today a 12-hour tour of four towns and several barrios in Tarlac.

Mrs. Garcia, upon arrival at Manila, went to the Veterans Memorial Hospital, where she relayed her relief operations to Concepcion, Gerona, Paniqui, and Moncada.

The First Lady boarded a special train from the Manila Railroad Company station at Tutuban at 7:30 o'clock this morning for a 12-hour sweep of four towns and barrios in Tarlac. With her were Mrs. Eulogio Rodriguez, Mrs. Daniel Z. Romualdez, Social Welfare Administrator Amparo P. Villamor, and Mesdames Jose Aldeguer, Jose J. Roy, Lita Rocas, Macario Asistio, Rosie Valencia, and Conchita Serrano.

President's Week in Review: August 28- September 3, 1960

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

August 28.—PRESIDENT Garcia today proclaimed Friday, September 2, this year as a special public holiday in 11 provinces and seven cities in the South in connection with the feast of Naulid-on-Nabi, one of the most important holidays of Muslims.

In another proclamation, the President also declared Wednesday, August 31, as a special public holiday in Zambales to afford the people of the birthplace of the late President Ramon Magsaysay “full opportunity to celebrate his birthday with appropriate ceremonies.”

Provinces affected in the holiday proclamation in connection with the Muslim feast are Sulu, Cotabato, Zamboanga del Norte, Zamboanga del Sur, Davao, Lanao del Norte, Lanao del Sur, Bukidnon, Palawan, Agusan, and Surigao. The cities affected are Zamboanga, Basilan, Davao, Iligan, Marawi, Cotabato, and Butuan.

According to the proclamation, Muslim officials and employees of the government, both national and local, performing functions outside of these provinces and cities, shall also be exempted from duty during the feast day; which shall be considered as a special public holiday for these officials and employees in their respective stations.

In proclaiming a special holiday in Zambales, President Garcia took occasion to recall that in the few years that the late President Magsaysay served the people, he had made himself “a true brother and earnest defender of the common man, dedicated himself to his official tasks with an exemplary zeal and did everything he could for the glorious future of our Republic.”

He concluded: “It is but fitting that at least the people of his birthplace be afforded full opportunity to celebrate his birthday with appropriate ceremonies.”

August 29.—PRESIDENT Garcia today was elated upon receipt of reports on the improving general situation in Sulu, particularly peace and order situation. He expressed hope that normalcy will be established so that the Muslims could devote more of their time in the socio-economic development of their province.

Col. Vicente O. Tiongson, Malacañang financial assistant, sent on a special mission to make an on-the-spot survey of the Sulu situation, reported to the President that the people welcomed the Administration's policy of sending the Army for peace and pacification campaign in Sulu contrary to reports in the newspapers.

Tiongson further informed the Chief Executive that in his conferences with provincial and municipal officials, civic leaders, and military officials entrusted with the task of restoring peace and order, he found out that land problem, loose firearms, and delayed administration of justice are the root causes of all the trouble besetting Sulu. To help solve these problems, Tiongson recommended:

- (1) The assignment of more fiscals to strengthen the prosecuting arm in Sulu;
- (2) Increase of personnel in the undermanned local Bureau of Lands; office to speed up survey and eventual award of title to owners; and
- (3) Intensification of the drive to curb smuggling and piracy.

Early yesterday morning, Col. Tiongson turned over to the local SWA office a plane-load of clothing and other relief supplies, sent over by the President, for distribution to indigent families and victims of lawless elements.

Col. Tiongson returned to Manila after a two-day observation tour of Sulu and immediately reported to the President the outcome of his mission, one of which was the delivery of a treasury warrant for ₱270,000 intended for various public works and community projects to improve the socio-economic conditions in Sulu.

A poor patient, who is suffering from “hypertrophy of prostate gland,” was airlifted to Manila today for emergency treatment at the North General Hospital following an order of President Garcia. The patient, Julio Solo of Catanduanes, is now confined at the NGH.

Solo was being treated at the Catanduanes Provincial Hospital before he was fetched by a PAF plane. He was taken to the NGH by a PAF ambulance.

The President also dispatched a mercy flight to Iloilo City to airlift a four-month old child who is suffering from “hydrocephalus,” or enlargement of the head. The emergency patient is the son of George Santisteban, a telegraph operator in Iloilo City. The child is now being treated at the NGH where he was rushed upon arrival in Manila.

The President ordered his airlifting to Manila after Dr. Victoria Pineda-Ramos, PCAPE medical consultant, had interceded with the President to send a mercy flight in behalf of the young patient.

August 30.—THE PRESIDENT today conferred with Executive Secretary Natalio P. Castillo, who briefed him on some pending state papers.

Informed sources said the President may start receiving a few callers sometime next week in his suite at the Veterans Memorial Hospital.

Castillo briefed the President on relief operations, while the First Lady motored anew to the flooded areas, this time to Pangasinan, which was reported to be heavily hit by floods.

Mrs. Garcia was accompanied by Mrs. Eulogio Rodriguez, Mrs. Daniel Z. Romualdez, Mrs. Dominador Aytona, Sen. Pacita M. Gonzalez, Mrs. Lita Roces, Mesdames Alejo Mabanag, Conchita Serrano, Cipriano Primicias, Salud Mitra, Elpidio Valencia, and Macario Asistio.

The First Lady, on her third errand of mercy to the flooded areas, left Manila aboard a special train at 7:30 o'clock this morning with a big bulk of relief supplies, including 745 sacks of rice.

The First Lady and her party were met at Moncada, Tarlac, by Pangasinan provincial officials headed by Gov. Nancy Q. Sison.

Two Pangasinan solons accompanied the First Lady. They were Reps. Luciano Millan and Aguedo Agbayani.

The First Lady was met by a large crowd in several Pangasinan towns and had to stop the train to greet them. She debarked at barrios Poponto and A. Diaz, which had railroad stations. She also debarked at Bayambang and went deep into several barrios to distribute relief supplies.

Mrs. Garcia returned to Manila at 7:30 o'clock this evening after another 12-hour tour of the flooded areas.

August 31.—PRESIDENT Garcia today led the nation in commemorating the fifty-third birthday anniversary of the late President Ramon Magsaysay.

From his room at the Veterans Memorial Hospital in Quezon City, the President directed his senior aide, Col. Jorge Delarmente, to lay a wreath, and Col. Paterno Oppus, Presidential Guards Battalion commanding officer, to mount an honor guard from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m., at the Tomb of President Magsaysay at the Cementerio del Norte.

The President had previously proclaimed the day a special public holiday in Zambales to afford the people of his birthplace an opportunity to observe properly the natal day of their favorite son.

In the afternoon Mrs. Leonila D. Garcia and Education Secretary Jose Romero, representing the President, led the guests of honor during the conferment of the Magsaysay award on four awardees at the auditorium of the Government Service Insurance System building.

Other guests at the ceremonies are Mrs. Luz B. Magsaysay, widow of the late President, Winthrop Rockefeller and step-daughter Anne Bartley, who had come all the way from the United States for the occasion.

The awardees were Sir Henry Holland and Dr. Ronald Holland of Britain, who will split the $10,000 award and receive individual certificate in the field of public service; Malayan Prime Minister Tungku Abdul Rahman Putra Al-haj, represented by his son, Lt. Tungku Ahmad Nerand, who received the award in community leadership; and Dr. Y. C. James of China, who received the award for the promotion of international understanding.

In the afternoon the President received news and radio representatives covering Malacañang who paid him a social call at the Veterans Memorial Hospital.

The President today ordered a full dress investigation of the reported “rampant cheating” in the electrical and mechanical examinations held in Cebu City. He directed Civil Service Commissioner Amado del Rosario, through Executive Secretary Natalio P. Castillo, to conduct a thorough probe of the incident and to submit a full report and his recommendations to the President as soon as possible.

The President told Secretary Castillo that such unsavory incidents, if true, would greatly weaken the foundations of the civil service causing the people to lose their faith and confidence in it. For this reason, the Chief Executive told Castillo, they should be investigated thoroughly and the culprits punished.

The President this day received the resignation of Jaime C. Velasquez as member of the Monetary Board of the Central Bank.

In his letter of resignation, Velasquez informed the President that he may be “immobilized” for sometime owing to a serious ailment which required a series of plastic operations.

Velasquez had been in ill health since 1955, and on May 2, 1957, had requested permission to go abroad for a general check-up and medical treatment in the Cancer Memorial Hospital of New York. Velasquez then also suggested that his nomination as Monetary Board member which was then pending in the Commission on Appointments be withdrawn.

The President granted him permission to secure treatment abroad but turned down his resignation because of the “invaluable services he had been rendering to the Monetary Board.”

In submitting his second resignation, Velasquez assured the President of his readiness to serve at any time in any way he can and conveyed his gratitude for having been given the opportunity to serve the country.

September 1.—EXECUTIVE Secretary Natalio P. Castillo today paved the way for the early construction of the Roxas Memorial Building with the formal conveyance of a piece of government land in Plaza Militar, to the Friends of Roxas, as site for the building.

In formally signing the deed of conveyance at Malacañang, Secretary Castillo said he was merely implementing the desire of President Garcia, who had signed into law Republic Act 2715, authorizing the transfer of the land for the nominal price of ₱1.00 to the Friends of Roxas, Inc.

Secretary Castillo recalled that the President had always admired the economic statesmanship of the late President Roxas and had always said that his economic leadership would have been a valuable asset to the country in the present era.

Former Executive Secretary Emilio Abello, acting president and concurrently executive vice-president of the corporation, who signed for the FORI, thanked the President and Secretary Castillo for the conveyance of the property and said that the objectives of the corporation to propagate the economic policies and teachings of the late President Roxas had been given impetus.

With the signing of the deed of conveyance, a piece of government land consisting of 2,788 square meters, located in Plaza Militar, Malate, Manila, was transferred to the Friends of Roxas, Inc., as site for a permanent building to house the Roxas Memorial.

The deed, however, stipulated that the property transferred may not be leased, although space in the building to be erected may be leased to third parties if the proceeds will be used to promote the aims and purposes of the corporation.

Title to the land cannot be transferred to any person without previous authority from the President, and in case of dissolution of the corporation or the death of the last surviving member of the FORI, the land and all improvements thereon shall revert to the national government.

Present at the signing of the deed of conveyance, besides Secretary Abello, were Dr. J. C. Orendain, vice-president and legal counsel; Delfin Buencamino, vice-president and treasurer; Luis Montilla; Felixberto G. Bustos, executive secretary; Rep. Augusto Francisco (Manila); Rep. Emilio Cortez (Pampanga); Manila city councilors Alfredo Gomez, Francisco Gatmaitan, and F. Reyes Cabigao; and Andrew Escalona president of Roxas club of America.

President Garcia today conveyed the gratitude of the Filipino people to the United States President Eisenhower for making available $1,365,740 for the construction of a Philippine-American Cultural Center in Quezon City.

In a message to President Eisenhower, President Garcia said that the center will be "a living proof of the strong ties that bind our governments and the Cultural Center will serve as a lasting monument to the friendship between our two peoples."

President Garcia also thanked today Congressman Olin Teague for his sponsoring a bill in the U.S. Congress providing for equal pay to Filipino veterans of the U.S. and the Philippine armed forces.

The Chief Executive in a cable to Ambassador Carlos P. Romulo congratulated the Ambassador for the good work he had done in the passage by the U. S. Congress of a bill amending Title 38, of the U. S. Code, with respect to payment to Philippine pensioners.

With the approval of the Teague Bill the disparity in the payment of various types of veterans' benefits to Filipino veterans of U.S. services, including Filipino citizens, will be remedied. The bill amends the provision of law limiting, the rate of one peso for every dollar in the payment of Filipino veterans' benefits.

General Romulo, in his cable to the President, said that the U. S. State Department endorsed Congressman Teague's bill to the Chairman of the House Veterans Affairs Committee to "remove a long standing irritant to US-Philippine relations granting eligible Filipino veterans the same treatment in the payment of veterans benefits in and out of the Philippines."

Romulo added in his wire to the President that it was through the indefatigable efforts of Congressman Teague to assert the rights of the Filipino veterans that this issue has been kept alive in the U. S. Congress.

President Garcia this evening pointed to the fine record of the Philippine General Hospital as “a durable symbol of the people’s progress and faith.”

In his after-dinner speech which was read by Dr. Paulino J. Garcia at the Golden Jubilee celebration of the PGH held at the nurses’ home this evening, the President took occasion to point out that the people were “no longer as courageous, as self-sacrificing, or as wise as our forefathers and that “we despair too easily and are fast forgetting the importance of being noble.”

The President also reminded the large group of physicians, surgeons, and nurses during the celebration that in the busy work-day world of today, they must consider the patients’ welfare as the paramount concern and the focus of all attention.

“In the PGH as in any other medical work, the most important person is not the doctor, not the government official directly supervising it, not the doctors, important as they may be, but the patient who comes for medical care,” the President said.

A feature of the Golden Jubilee celebration was the awarding of certificates of appreciation to parties who had extended generous help to the patients, staff, and personnel of the Philippine General Hospital.

Among those given certificates of appreciation was the Malacañang Unit’s production service of the Philippine National Red Cross chairmanned by Mrs. Leonila D. Garcia.

September 2.—PRESIDENT Garcia dispatched messages of condolence to Kuala Lumpur following receipt of official confirmation from the Malayan legation in Manila today on the death of Hisamuddin Alam Shah, Paramount Ruler of Independent Malaya.

The President’s messages were sent to Her Majesty, Raja Permaisuri Agong, the widow; Prime Minister Tengku Abdul Rahman Putra Al-Haj; and the Pimabalan Yang Di Pertuan Agong, deputy paramount ruler.

President Garcia today thanked the various civic organizations for their voluntary relief work in Central Luzon and appealed for greater aid in rehabilitating the thousands of flood victims in the area.

The President’s appeal for assistance to the rehabilitation efforts of the government was made as the end of relief measures to flood victims loomed in sight.

The President sounded this appeal through Executive Secretary Natalio P. Castillo at a meeting in Malacañang this morning, at which the various organizations participating in flood relief work were represented.

The International Cooperation Administration (ICA) and its Philippine counterpart, the National Economic Council (NEC), also sent representatives to the meeting in order to give advice and draft plans for the long-range program of rehabilitation.

Secretary Castillo, told the conferees that the government alone is not in a position to sustain the vast relief and rehabilitation work and that major portion of the job would inevitably fall upon the shoulders of private, and civic organizations and civic-spirited citizens.

Secretary Castillo said that so far the President had already released ₱1 million for relief work and ₱500,000 for the purchase of non-seasonal rice seedlings to help put back the poor farmers on their feet.

Even the efforts of “Operation Pusong” which the First Lady launched recently and which is receiving wonderful support everywhere will not be enough to cope with the gigantic task of rehabilitating them, Secretary Castillo said.

Secretary Castillo said the President had called the conference to appeal directly to them because he was deeply concerned over the welfare of the farmers while they were rebuilding and replanting.

He said that although the emergency was over, the after-effects of the floods will remain for months, perhaps even years, because what has always been considered "the rice granary" of the country will not be able to harvest this year unless effective rehabilitation measures are undertaken.

The President commended the various relief organizations for their voluntary and unselfish efforts to alleviate suffering and misery in Pampanga, Tarlac, Bulacan, Pangasinan, and Nueva Ecija during and after the series of floods which inundated almost the entire central plain of Luzon.

Cited for their valuable services were the Philippine National Red Cross (PNRC), Catholic Relief Services (CRS), Cooperative for American Relief Everywhere (CARE), Catholic World Services (CWS), and the Seventh Day Adventists.

Secretary Castillo also commended the various government agencies and military personnel of the United States in the Philippines who responded to the call in the spirit of world brotherhood during the calamity.

September 3.—THE President is expected to walk about next week at the Veterans Memorial Hospital as he enters the final stage of his recovery from his ailment. He is expected to check out from the VMH in two weeks' time.

As usual, the President conferred with Executive Secretary Natalio P. Castillo, who briefed him on pending state matters, topped by the resignations of three appointive Monetary Board members.

The President decided to refer the resignations to the Department of Justice in order to have a legal basis for whatever he may take on their cases.

The three MB officials are Roberto T. Villanueva, Gaudencio Antonino, and Jaime Velasquez.

While the President stayed at the VMH, Mrs. Leonila D. Garcia went the rounds this morning and brought cheer to hundreds of patients at the V. Luna General Hospital on the occasion of the 14th anniversary celebration of the Army hospital.

The First Lady inaugurated the main gate to the hospital, while Ms. Eulogio Rodriguez, Sr., opened the X-ray ward and Mrs. Daniel Romualdez, the medical library.

During her tour of the different wards, the First Lady was touched by the case of Pfc. Narciso Drillo, who is waging a losing battle against unusual ailment called Beorger's disease.

The First Lady arrived at the hospital at 9:50 a.m. accompanied by Lt. Gen. Manuel Cabal, chief of staff of the Armed Forces, and Mesdames Rodriguez, Romualdez, and Lita Rocas.

President's Week in Review: September 4-10, 1960

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

September 4.—THE President, through Executive Secretary Natalio P. Castillo, today urged active participation in the voluntary payroll savings plan established for the benefit of government officials and employees who may wish to invest in public works and economic development (PW & ED) bonds.

In a memorandum circular issued through Secretary Castillo, the President enjoined government personnel to subscribe to government bonds and public securities, saying that this investment would not only work towards the employees' welfare but also assist in the effective prosecution of the nation's investment program and contribute to the solid security of the government.

Secretary Castillo in his memorandum circular recalled that the PW & ED bonds had recently been increased from ₱70 million to ₱100 million in order to accommodate more government personnel who may desire to save and invest in the government bonds which, by all standards, are sound and safe. It was pointed out that these bonds being issued by the government carry the full guarantee of the Philippine Government.

Payroll savings plans for these bonds may be arranged with the Securities Market Department of the Central Bank of the Philippines, the memorandum circular said.

President Garcia today ordered the airlifting of three more patients from Masbate, Roxas, and Davao Cities for emergency treatment and further hospitalization in Manila.

The needy patients who were airlifted on a Philippine Airforce plane were Ereto Asuncion of Masbate, Leonardo Daliva of Roxas City, and Mora Ibon of Davao City.

Asuncion is suffering from an infection of tetanus and was taken to the San Lazaro Hospital upon his arrival in Manila. The other two emergency patients, Daliva and Ibon, were taken to the National Orthopedic and Philippine General Hospitals, respectively.

Daliva is reported suffering from a "fracture of the neck, numerous right shoulder, inability to open both eyes, vomiting blood, and scrutal lacerites." Ibon, on the other hand, is suffering from "cerebro vascular, accident traumatic in origin."

September 5.—PRESIDENT Garcia today spurred full compliance with the Anti-Graft Law by enjoining all public officers to file sworn statements of assets and liabilities before September 16, the deadline set by Republic Act No. 3019, otherwise known as the Anti-Graft Law.

The President also enjoined all department heads, chiefs of bureaus, offices, government agencies and instrumentalities, and government-owned or controlled corporations to furnish their respective employees with sufficient copies of the new prescribed form and to see to it that they file their statements before the deadline and every January thereafter.

The President emphasized that non-filing of said statement on time, if proven in proper administrative proceedings, is sufficient cause for removal or dismissal of the subject public officer even if no criminal action is instituted against him.

The true, detailed, and sworn statement required of every public officer under the law to be filed before September 16 for the one-year period ending August 31, and for every calendar year thereafter in January.

The President today lauded the launching of the "Seeds for Survival" project by the Philippine National Red Cross and congratulated the organization for its splendid work during the floods in Central Luzon.

The President told the PNRC board of directors, through Executive Secretary Natalio P. Castillo at a conference in Malacañang this afternoon, that the “Seeds for Survival” project provides the best answer to the mounting clamor for seedlings from the farmers who had already prepared their lands to be replanted after the last floods.

The project launched by the PNRC will be a joint effort of the public schools which will provide the garden nurseries, the schoolchildren who are members of the Philippine Junior Red Cross and who will tend the seedlings, and the PNRC which will provide the seeds.

Dr. Calasanz, PNRC director, told Secretary Castillo that part of the donations received by the PNRC from the Manila Times readers will be earmarked for the procurement of sitao, cabbage, eggplant, pechay, and other native seeds for the project.

The Presidential Assistant on Community Development last week had also revealed the launching of a barrio adoption project to help stock the flood victims with pigs, chickens, goats, and other animals for breeding.

Ramon Binamira, PACD chief, had told Secretary Castillo that his appeal to barrio councils all over the Philippines for donations was warmly received and that donations has been coming to his office in increasing volumes.

The President this day sternly warned traders and merchants against profiteering in the sale of rice seedlings to farmers who lost their crop as a result of the devastation caused by the recent flood in central Luzon. He emphasized the profiteers will be dealt with severely.

The President at the same time directed Secretary Natalio P. Castillo to step up the distribution by government agencies of selected rice seedlings to farmers in the flooded areas as a substitute to crops which were destroyed by the flood.

Secretary Castillo reported to the President that provincial seed committees have been formed to assist in the distribution of the selected rice seedlings.

A directive was issued by Secretary Castillo calling on the Bureau of Plant Industry and the Presidential Assistant on Community Development (PACD) to cooperate and coordinate their work. Both government agencies will help in the distribution of the rice seedlings.

The seedlings will be distributed through the barrio councils in Pampanga, Bulacan, Tarlac, Nueva Ecija, and Pangasinan.

President Garcia had previously authorized the amount of ₱500,000 for the purpose of purchasing selected rice seedlings and their distribution to farmers in the flooded areas.

President Garcia today approved the release of ₱686,000 for the reconstruction of the heavily damaged irrigation and flood control dikes and other public works wrought by the recent typhoon and heavy downpour that inundated five provinces in Central Luzon.

The President, through Executive Secretary Natalio P. Castillo, directed the Budget Commission to release immediately the funds for these purpose so that the thousands of people rendered homeless and destitute may be afforded the opportunity to reconstruct and return to their normal chores in the fields and other means of livelihood.

The release of funds was made upon representation of Public Works Secretary Florencio Moreno, who had earlier directed public works and district engineers to survey and assess the extent of damages and to determine the project or projects that needed immediate action.

Earlier, Secretary Castillo administered the oath of office to Esteban Mayo, GAB commissioner, as acting chairman of the Games and Amusement Board, vice Manuel Nieto, Jr., who is now abroad on official mission.

Albay Gov. Nicanor M. Seva, accompanied by Mayors Antonio Berces of Tabacco and Teodoro Regalado of Malinao, called on Secretary Castillo to request aid for his province under the typhoon aid bill enacted by Congress and signed into law by the President, setting aside ₱10 million as aid to provinces laid waste by recent typhoons.

September 6.—PRESIDENT Garcia today was pronounced physically fit and may start walking out into the open sunshine today preparatory to his checking out of the Veterans Memorial Hospital by the middle of the month.

He conferred briefly with the First Lady, who entertained this day for Nueva Ecija in her final mission of mercy to the flood victims of Central Luzon.

The President then received Executive Secretary Natalio P. Castillo, whom he designated to represent him at the inauguration of the Universal Cement Company in Cebu City next Friday. The President had been invited to inaugurate the new cement firm.

As the President stayed in his suite at the hospital, the First Lady left for Nueva Ecija where she toured several barrios of heavily-flooded towns.

With her were Press Secretary Jose C. Nable; Dr. Paulino J. Garcia, chairman of the National Science Development Board; Lt. Gen. Manuel Cabal, chief of staff of the Armed Forces; Brig. Gen. Isagani V. Campo chief of the Constabulary; Sen. Pacita M. Gonzalez; and Mesdames Daniel Z. Romualdez, Lita Roces, Salud Mitra, and Dolores Nable.

Economic Coordinator Juan O. Chioco, who arrived late at the Tutuban railroad station, caught up with the First Lady's party at Bigaa. With Chioco was Mrs. Conchita Serrano.

The First Lady toured on bumpy roads, damaged by the floods. In Aliaga the road was still under water.

After touring several towns and barrios, the First Lady returned to Gapan where she took the special train, arriving in Manila at exactly 7 o'clock in the evening.

She immediately reported to her mission to the President at the VMH.

September 7.—THIS day the President started strolling inside the Veterans Memorial Hospital compound. He spent half an hour walking around, shaking his leg which had been flabbied by over a month-long confinement at the VMH.

The Chief Executive was accompanied by Dr. Antonio Guytingco and Dr. Valentin Fidelino, his physicians. The President went to some hospital projects and inspected the rehabilitation center of the VMH.

Malacañang said the President was feeling fully recovered. He is expected to continue his strolling exercises daily.

After his morning walk, the President received Secretary of Foreign Affairs Felixberto M. Serrano, who consulted him on some appointments in the Department of Foreign Affairs.

Serrano also discussed plans of going to the United Nations to head the Philippine delegation to the General Assembly sessions. The President did not make any decision on Serrano's trip.

It was learned that the President and Serrano conferred for only 12 minutes. After his conference, the President rested inside his suite. He listened to his hi-fi and played his favorite records.

September 8.—PRESIDENT Garcia this noon directed the Presidential Committee on Administration Performance Efficiency to study other means by which the government could extend full assistance to poultry farmers whose flocks are being dwindled by a “mysterious” fowl disease.

Justice Buenaventura Ocampo, PCAPE chairman, and upon receiving the directive, immediately summoned Animal Industry Director Anacleto Coronel who apprised him on the different steps his bureau had taken to establish definitely the cause of the disease and on other measures adopted for the protection of the consuming public, as well as the poultry raisers.

Director Coronel reported that his office is conducting a 24-hour laboratory test in order that a definite conclusion as to the cause could be established. So far, they had eliminated almost all the possible sources of food poisoning resulting from poultry feed, by performing chemical analysis, bacteriological and pathological examination of different food specimens gathered during the survey, and field investigation conducted by the bureau, Coronel stated.

The only possible source of food poisoning left, are Botulinus toxin, and ptomaine poisoning due to protein split product. The examination and chemical analysis on these two possible causes, will be undertaken by the bureau as soon as the anti-toxin drug needed will be available, Director Coronel said.

Director Coronel estimated the damage caused by the chicken disease at ₱800,000, and he believes that it might reach the million mark if the disease remains unchecked.

Major Teodulo Natividad, PCAPE acting vice-chairman, informed Director Coronel of the intention of several poultry farmers from 33 municipalities affected, to sue the manufacturer of the feed product for complete indemnity for damages.

Mayor Alberto V. Biologo of San Ildefonso, Bulacan, also informed the director that a certain manufacturer of feed products from whom they purchased the feed and whose product might have been the cause of the losses to poultry raisers is extending cash loan and poultry feeds on credit.

President Garcia was reported today to have recovered fully from his ailment and has scheduled his first caller this morning.

Since his confinement at the VMH last August 3, the President has never scheduled visitors to his suite except government officials with urgent matters to discuss with him.

However, after his daily strolls on the VMH grounds, the President said he could start resuming his daily chores.

Malacañang said the President went on an hour-long stroll this afternoon. It was his second stroll in the open sunshine. He started his daily stroll yesterday when he went walking for about 30 minutes. With the President were his physicians; namely Dr. Antonio Guytingco and Dr. Valentin Fidelino.

During the course of his stroll, the President mingled with the other patients of the VMH and. discussed with them their problems. Most of the patients were veterans.

While the President stayed at the VMH, the First Lady went to Malolos, Bulacan, where she launched “Operations Bagang Buhay,” a campaign intended to resettle deserving families to settlement farms of the National Resettlement and Rehabilitation Administration in Palawan and Mindanao.

Mrs. Garcia motored to Malolos starting from Malacañang at 11:15 o’clock this morning. She was accompanied by Mrs. Daniel E. Romualdez and Sen. Pacita M. Gonzalez.

In Malolos the First Lady was welcomed by a large crowd headed by Gov. Tomas Martin and Mayor Felix Reyes.

September 9.—PRESIDENT Garcia today appealed to businessmen to help keep down the price of prime commodities in central Luzon provinces which reportedly increased as a result of a shortage created in the flooded areas.

In a conference with Commerce Secretary Manuel Lim in the Veterans Memorial Hospital, the President directed Lim to refrain from using force in the pegging of prices.

Two laws, Public Act 4146 and Republic Act 2610, gives the President full powers to control prices and to declare an emergency in any given area of the country.

President Garcia and Secretary Lim agreed that both laws should be enforced only as a last resort, after an appeal to the business sectors have failed.

The President's appeal was directed at the humanitarian and Christian spirit of local businessmen to extend their full cooperation in alleviating the sufferings and hardships experienced by thousands of flood victims in Pampanga, Tarlac, Bulacan, Nueva Ecija, and Pangasinan.

President Garcia also directed Secretary Lim to avail himself of all government transportation facilities in order to transport prime commodities to central Luzon thereby increasing the depleted stock of prime commodities in the flooded areas. The President specifically mentioned the use of Army planes and Navy boats to transport prime commodities from surplus stocks in Mindanao and Visayas.

President and Mrs. Garcia led the nation in extending felicitations to former President Sergio Osmeña, Sr., on the occasion of the latter's birthday anniversary today.

The President and the First Lady also felicitated Sen. Quintin Paredes whose birthday anniversary falls on the same day.

President Garcia today hailed the Universal Cement plant in Danao, Cebu, as a positive step in the dispersal of industries enunciated by him.

In a speech which was read at UNICECO inauguration by Executive Secretary Natalio P. Castillo, the President said the modern plant would contribute to the rapid growth and progress of the country's economy and the enjoyment of greater benefits by a wide sector of the population.

This, the President said, would in turn pave the way for the even circulation of money and remove the top-sided feature of the economy of extreme wealth and extreme poverty now obtaining. Ultimately, the President said, this means better employment, more benefits to the people, and better education of their children.

The President said that in addition to preventing total destruction of industries in case of atomic war, he aims to stop also the influx of population to cities which may leach dangerous proportions and prevent economic dislocation in some parts of the country.

The President this day ordered the airlifting of two emergency patients, a poor mother from Bayombong, Nueva Vizcaya, and another patient from Botolan, Zambales, for immediate hospitalization in Manila.

Airlifted were Teresita Lopez, who is suffering from an acute complication of "liver cholelithiasis," and Serafin Rabaca, afflicted with tuberculosis of the bone.

The mercy flights were undertaken by a Philippine Air Force plane and a U.S. Marine helicopter. The PAF rescue plane brought Lopez from Bayombong and was later admitted for hospitalization at the V. Luna General Hospital.

The other patient, Rabaca, was flown from Botolan by a U.S. helicopter which the President had requested. He was fetched on his arrival by a PAF ambulance which took him to the National Orthopedic Hospital.

Rabaca had been confined at the Zambales provincial hospital before he was airlifted to Manila for further medical treatment.

September 10.—PRESIDENT Garcia today ordered the suspension of the exportation of rice as a means of averting possible shortage of this staple commodity as a result of the destructive flood which swept the nation's rice granaries in Central Luzon recently.

The order was given to Commerce Secretary Manuel Lim in the course of the call of members of his Cabinet at Veterans Memorial Hospital this noon.

The President said that although technical surveys undertaken by the Department of Agriculture showed that crop losses had been negligible, it was always best to take all precautions to insure an adequate supply of food for the people the whole year.

Agriculture Secretary Cesar Fortich reported to the President that the total production of the areas affected in six provinces of Central Luzon was estimated at 1,578,885 cavanos of rice valued at ₱6,406,120. The provinces are Bataan, Bulacan, Nueva Ecija, Pangasinan, Pampanga, and Tarlac.

Secretary Fortich also reported that Cotabato and some other southern provinces had recently reaped their best rice crops which could be transported to Luzon in the event of any shortages in this part of the country.

Most of the flooded areas in Central Luzon had already replanted with seedlings distributed by the government in connection with President Garcia's program of rehabilitation in the stricken localities. Fortich said that many farmers in Bulacan and Nueva Ecija had already replanted even without the assistance of the government.

Executive Secretary Natalio P. Castillo recommended the funneling of 10,000 kilowatt of electric power from Maria Cristina to Cagayan de Oro to help new industries rising in that city.

The Executive Secretary made these recommendations to President Garcia at the Veterans Memorial Hospital immediately upon his return from a four-day official tour in the South.

Secretary Castillo informed the President that after conferring with the district engineer and the provincial and city officials at Cagayan de Oro, he was convinced that the harnessing of the Bunuan waterfalls to furnish electricity for the city was costly and impracticable.

This conclusion supported the previous recommendation of the National Power Corporation which had made surveys of all available water resources for possible exploitation around Cagayan de Oro.

Secretary Castillo said sprouting industries, such as coffee and chocolate processing, hollow block manufacturing, meat packing, and refrigeration need far more power than the Bunuan waterfalls could provide.

He also informed the President that the strategic location of the city and the completion of the Mindanao highways network have made it a natural manufacturing and shipping center for the entire island of Mindanao.

President's Week in Review: September 11-17, 1960

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

September 11.—PRESIDENT Garcia today lauded the determined efforts of the provincial officials of Zambales to cooperate in the implementation of his avowed policy of carrying the all-out war against government graft and corruption down to provincial and municipal levels.

On being presented with a copy of an executive order issued by Gov. Manuel D. Barretto of Zambales creating a Governor's Committee on Administration Performance Efficiency (GCAPE), a counterpart of the presidential committee in the province, the President said that other provincial and municipal executive might find a similar agency worth-while organizing.

The President said that such agencies in provinces and municipalities would be an effective arm in assisting the National Government in its efforts to promote efficiency in the public service.

Gov. Barretto, in creating the GCAPE, said in his executive order that the main purpose of the organization was to carry out the announced policy of President Garcia of ferreting out inefficiency, graft, and corruption in the provincial and municipal levels, and to coordinate and collaborate with competent authorities in the enforcement of Republic Act 3019, otherwise known as the Anti-Graft and Corrupt practices law.

The President, meanwhile, spent his Sunday quietly at the Veterans Memorial Hospital with members of his immediate family.

Waking up about 7 a.m., the President started the day by hearing mass at his room in the hospital. Present at the mass were Mrs. Garcia, Maj. Jose Estrella, junior aide, Drs. Antonio Guytingco and Valentin Fidelino, and a few members of the hospital staff.

About 9 a.m., the President went out to the hospital grounds for his daily stroll. He stayed out more than one hour, chatting with fellow patients and visitors whom he came upon in the grounds.

Returning to his room shortly after 10 a.m., the President found Finance Secretary Dominador Aytona and Executive Secretary Natalio P. Castillo waiting for him. The two officials had not been with their fellow Cabinet members who nailed as a group at the VMH yesterday morning.

Other callers this morning were Conrado Sevilla and Fortunato de Leon of the Philippine National Bank and former Chief of Staff Alfonso Arellano, who paid him a social call.

Shortly before lunch the President called up by telephone Speaker Daniel Romualdez, whom he felicitated on his birthday.

The Chief Executive did not receive any other caller the rest of the day.

September 12.—THREE members of the Philippine panel negotiating with Japan for a treaty of friendship, commerce, and navigation strongly denied today the reported dissension among members of the panel.

Sen. Lorenzo Sumulong, chairman of the Senate committee on foreign affairs; Rep. Ramon Mitra, chairman of the House committee on foreign relations; and Deputy Governor Andres Castillo of the Central Bank today called on President Garcia in the Veterans Memorial Hospital to render a factual report on the progress of the negotiations.

Their coming to Manila together and on the same plane was purely a coincidence, each returning for a different reason. Sen. Sumulong and Rep. Mitra returned for personal matters, while Governor Castillo will take over the Central Bank upon the departure of Governor Miguel Cuaderno for the forthcoming conference of the International Monetary Fund in Washington.

Sumulong, Mitra, and Castillo deplored speculations that they submitted a joint memorandum to Foreign Affairs Secretary Felixberto M. Serrano on their reported disagreement on substantial provisions of the proposed treaty with Japan. There is no such thing, they stated.

President Garcia today directed Public Works Secretary Florencio Moreno to continue with the preparation of the construction of the Marikina multi-purpose project subject to the recommendation of an international body of consultants which will study the safety angle of the dam construction.

In his conference with Secretary Moreno at the Veterans Memorial Hospital, the President directed Moreno to confer with the proposed members of the international body in Tokyo, where Moreno will attend the 27th Executive meeting and conference on concrete for large dams.

The members of the international group to study the safety angle of the proposed dam includes leading geologists and engineers from different countries, among which are the United States and France. Secretary Moreno submitted a list of five members of the international board of consultants.

President Garcia conferred lengthily with Secretary Moreno and threshed out unresolved problems affecting the Marikina project, the National Integrated Steel, and the Telecommunications Expansion and Improvement projects.

The President authorized Moreno to make a 15-day trip to Tokyo to attend the 27th Executive meeting and conference on concrete for large dams.

Incidental to this trip, the President also authorized Moreno to take up with the Reparations Mission and the Japanese Government, unresolved questions on the Marikina project, to wit:

1. The reparations procurement for transmission line materials and explosives to be used for the access road and power supply at the Marikina dam site; and
2. Discussion of a few remaining stumbling blocks in the cooperative arrangements between the Japanese and the Philippine contractors to undertake the joint civil works of the project in the construction of the main dam.

The President also directed today officials of the Department of Agriculture and Natural Resources to redouble their efforts in implementing the massive reforestation program of the Administration.

As a first step, the President directed the implementation of Republic Act No. 2706, which creates the Reforestation Administration to take over the functions of the Reclamation and Reforestation Division of the Bureau of Forestry.

The presidential directives were transmitted by Executive Secretary Natalio P. Castillo to Agriculture Undersecretary Jose M. Trinidad at a conference held this day in Malacañang

The President expressed the hope that with the P2 million appropriated by Congress for reforestation, and the reforestation funds collected pursuant to R. A. No. 115, the reforestation program will get a good boost. The program is intended to avoid the destruction caused by floods, preserve watersheds, and avert erosion.

Aside from the regular forests charges provided for under the National Internal Revenue Code, R. A. No. 115 provides for the collection of the amount of fifty centavos on each cubic meter of timber for the first and second groups and forty centavos for the third and fourth groups cut out and removed from public forests for commercial purposes.

All reforestation funds will have to be turned over to the Administrator of the Reforestation Administration to be spent exclusively for reforestation purposes, subject to the approval of the Secretary of Agriculture. All areas reforested shall be considered as permanent forest reserves.

For the current year, all appropriations under the budget which pertains to the Division of Reclamation and Reforestation of the Bureau of Forestry are transferred to the Reforestation Administration.

September 13.—PRESIDENT Garcia received today former President Sergio Osmeña, Sr., principal mediator in the controversy between the Chief Executive and Senate President Eulogio Rodriguez.

The Grand Old Man of Cebu saw the President in his suite at the Veterans Memorial Hospital, and raised speculations that the former President had sought to bring together President Garcia and Senate President in an effort to thresh out their political rivalry for the Nationalista presidential nomination. Press Secretary Jose C. Nable said that Osmeña's visit was a "purely social call."

In spite of the Malacañang announcement that the visit was a social call, it was believed that Osmeña apprised the President of the conditions imposed by the "Senate President before a new "gentlemen's agreement" is drafted.

Rodriguez had spurned the previous draft of a proposed gentlemen's agreement which would impose a moratorium on political attacks against each other.

The President also received Reps. Wenceslao Rancap Lagumbay of Laguna and Nicanor Yñiguez, it was learned, informed the President of his plans of revamping the immigration laws in order to put to a stop the entry of "pre-arranged alien employees." Lagumbay took up problems of his district with the Chief Executive.

President Garcia continued his daily stroll along the hospital grounds. He may check out this Saturday from the VMH.

September 14.—PRESIDENT Garcia today directed the National Rice and Corn Corporation to utilize all available funds to stock up palay in order to stabilize the price of rice and place this staple commodity Within the reach of the poor at all times.

The President this afternoon also approved the appointment of Jose Viado, chief of the reclamation and reforestation division of the Bureau of Forestry, as administrator of the newly-created Reforestation Administration, to start a massive reforestation program and make up for the widespread reforestation of the country's watersheds.

During a conference with NARIC Chairman Jose V. Rodriguez and Assistant General Manager for Operations Luis Quebranza, Executive Secretary Natalio P. Castillo expressed the President's deep concern over the reported gradual rise in the price of rice.

Secretary Castillo conveyed the President's desire for the NARIC to take immediate steps to stabilize the price of rice before it got beyond the reach of low-income groups. The President directed the purchase of palay from Mindanao provinces which had been reported to have recently harvested bumper crops.

NARIC officials assured the President that some ₱5 million is available for immediate palay purchases. They agreed, however, that alien price manipulators had already jacked up the price of palay from ₱6.50 to ₱9.50 or ₱10 a cavan in their effort to corner the cereal.

In approving the appointment of Viado, the President stressed the necessity of setting up the new Reforestation Administration as soon as possible. He called attention to the mounting danger from floods and droughts caused by indiscriminate deforestation.

Secretary Castillo, who had conferred with Agriculture Secretary Cesar Fortich on the matter, said that the recent series of floods in Manila and Central Luzon areas were directly traceable to wide deforestation.

Viado will take his oath tomorrow morning before Secretary Castillo at Malacañang.

President Garcia today received Speaker Daniel Z. Romualdez in his suite at the Veterans Memorial Hospital.

Although Malacañang billed the Romualdez visit as “a purely social call” informed sources said the House leader took up proposals to mediate the worsening rift between the President and Senate President Eulogio Rodriguez.

Nacionalista leaders are worried that unless the Garcia-Rodriguez row is patched up soon, it might split the party and insure the victory of opposition candidates in the 1961 elections.

President Garcia also received Rep. Ramon D. Bagatsing Manila, who reported to the Chief Executive on the progress of the sixth conference of the Peoples’ Anti-Communist League held in Taipei. Bagatsing was head of the Philippine delegation that attended the conference.

With Bagatsing in his visit to the President today were Dr. Jose M. Hernandez, Major Medardo Justiniano, Capt. Carmelo Quiban, and Cesar B. Templo, who were members of the Philippine delegation. The group was accompanied to the President by Defense Secretary Alejo Santos.

President Garcia said he will utilize the group’s report in the present campaign against Huk resurgence in the Central Luzon areas.

Before receiving his callers, the President went on his daily strolling exercise.

He was accompanied by his physicians, Dr. Antonio Guytingco and Valentin Fidelino, and Major Jose Estrella, his military aide.

Malacañang today received a formal administrative complaint against City Mayor Arsenio H. Lacson for grave abuse and misconduct in office.

The complaint which was filed With the Office of the President by Lt. Commander Marcelino Calinawan, Jr., chairman of the Presidential Fact-Finding Committee, asked the immediate investigation of Mayor Lacson on three counts; namely, (1) unauthorized and illegal inquiry into the status of complainant’s naval rank for evil and illegal purposes; (2) unauthorized, unlawful, and confidential investigation of studies undertaken by the complainant abroad, and into his educational qualification for office; and (5) illegal imputation and condemnation of crime without investigation, trial, or evidence.

Lt. Commander Calinawan alleged that Mayor Lacson “by taking undue advantage of his official capacity as mayor of Manila, undertook to attain his unlawful, nefarious, and evil purpose of exposing complainant to public hatred and shame.”

The complainant sought (1) formal investigation of his charges by any official or committee designated for the purpose, (2) respondent’s preventive suspension pending investigation of the charges, and (3) eventual removal from office.

September 15.—PRESIDENT Garcia today directed Justice Buenaventura Ocampo, PCAPE chairman, to confer with forestry and parks officials to check on the reported wanton destruction of forests and the illegal cutting of timber in national parks and reservations.

The President’s move was motivated by his desire to avoid, as much as possible the recurrence of the destructive floods that rendered thousands of people in Central Luzon homeless and miserable.

Justice Ocampo immediately called Forestry and Parks Officials to a conference to find ways and means for the strict enforcement of forest laws and the preservation of timber lands.

Meanwhile, the PCAPE chief requested the Department of Foreign Affairs to expedite the formal turn-over of the U. S. military reservation in Mariveles, Bataan, which was cited in Memorandum of the US-PI Military Bases Agreements in 1947, wherein an estimated 43,000 hectares of rich virgin forest will be turned over to the Philippine Government.

Executive Secretary Natalio P. Castillo today took the first concrete step towards a program of countrywide reforestation by inducing into office Jose Viado as chief of the Reforestation Administration.

Secretary Castillo told Viado after his induction at Malacañang that the President was impatient to see his massive reforestation program started and that he expected Viado to immediately organize the Reforestation Administration and to spearhead the drive.

Viado was, until his induction, chief of the Reclamation and Reforestation Division of the Bureau of Forestry, which will form the nucleus of the new administration created by Republic Act No. 2706.

The President had time and again voiced concern for the start of his massive reforestation drive owing to the increasing danger of floods and droughts as a result of large-scale deforestation throughout the country.

Present at the induction ceremonies were Agriculture Secretary Cesar M. Fortich, Sen. Quintin Paredes, Reps. Faustino Tobia of Ilocos Sur and Benjamin Ligot of Cagayan, Ilocos Sur Gov. Godofredo S. Reyes, and relatives and close friends of the inductee.

Secretary Castillo later received French Ambassador Francois Briere at the Malacañang Council of State room.

The French dignitary called at Malacañang to convey personally his felicitations to the President for his recovery, and to thank the Philippine Government for the cordial reception and cooperation extended to former French economist Antoine Pinay during his visit here.

Ambassador Briere informed Secretary Castillo that although the results of Pinay's extensive studies are not yet known, he was of the belief that economic conditions obtaining here are conducive to larger participation of French business interests.

The President this day directed the Department of National Defense to provide Philippine navy boats to the National Rice and Corn Corporation for the effective stabilization of the price of rice.

The President gave this order through Executive Secretary Natalio P. Castillo upon the request of NARIC Acting Chairman and General Manager Jose V. Rodriguez, who informed the Chief Executive that the NARIC needed shipping bottoms to ship rice stocks to critical areas in order to maintain the price level.

Defense Undersecretary Mariano Yenko, Jr., told Secretary Castillo that he will make available to the NARIC a Philippine Navy vessel to enable it to meet expected rise in prices or artificial shortage of the cereal.

Some 20,000 sacks of palay in the NARIC bodegas in Cotabato will be shipped to Manila and the Bicol region so that they will be ready for immediate sale to the public.

Secretary Castillo said that the President desired the government corporation to take immediate steps to stabilize the price before it gets beyond the reach of the poor.

The NARIC officials assured the President that some ₱5 million is available for the purpose. They warned, however, that alien price manipulators had already jacked up the price from ₱6.50 to ₱9.50 and ₱10.00 per cavan in their effort to corner the cereal.

President Garcia today authorized the release of ₱190,000 from his contingent fund for the purchase of cables to replace the old and badly battered ones damaged during the last four typhoons and floods that hit Manila and the provinces.

The President had previously directed the Budget Commission to release ₱290,000 from the reserved fund of the Bureau of Telecommunications for telephone, telegraph, and radio systems requirements of the government.

The President's authority was given upon request of Telecommunications Director Jose S. Alfonso, who presented the Chief Executive with a summation of the extent of damage to various telecommunications facilities in Manila and 33 other provinces.

Director Alfonso also reported to the President that owing to extensive damage to cables and wire facilities of the telephone systems in Manila and the provinces, there were more than 3,000 telephones out of order and line interruption was noted in several localities.

Among the provinces and cities where damages to telecommunications facilities were reported are Manila, Cebu, Aklan, Antique, Albay, Bataan, Batangas, Bohol, Cagayan, Camarines Sur, Camarines Norte, Catanduanes, Ilocos Sur, Ilocos Norte, Isabel Iloilo, Laguna, La Union, Mindoro, Mt. Province, Leyte, Negros Occidental, Nueva Ecija, Nueva Vizcaya, Pampanga, Pangasinan, Quezon, Surigao, Sorsogon, Romblon, Tarlac, and Zambales.

Executive Secretary Natalio P. Castillo said today that the prescribed form released by the Office of the President requiring government employees to submit their assets and liabilities not later than tomorrow is a faithful implementation of the anti-graft law.

Secretary Castillo's statement was made to correct misimpressions that the prescribed form is incorrect-and will therefore need to be amended.

"The form prescribed by the President in Administrative Order 334 will remain in force and unaffected by opinions to the contrary," he said.

Castillo emphasized that the President believes the prescribed form to be a faithful implementation of the anti-graft law. He reiterated the warning of President Garcia for the strict compliance of the anti-graft law, emphasizing that government employees who fail to meet the deadline tomorrow will be dealt with severely in accordance with the penalties provided for by the new anti-graft law.

"The legislative and judicial branches of the government," Castillo continued, "may adopt their own forms, they being separate and independent of the executive."

According to Secretary Castillo, the new prescribed form of assets and liabilities merely amends a previous administrative order issued by the late President Magsaysay and implemented by President Garcia which required government employees to file a report on assets and liabilities.

The new prescribed form, however, is more strict and embraces a wider field of information, Castillo said. He also mentioned the fact that the prescribed form of assets and liabilities strengthens the report submitted annually to the Bureau of Internal Revenue.

September 16.—PRESIDENT Garcia today received members of the diplomatic corps who called on him at the Veterans Memorial Hospital to express their most profound satisfaction at your Excellency's complete recovery of health."

In brief remarks delivered on behalf of the corps, Msgr. Salvatore Siino, apostolic nuncio and dean of the group said: "While the Chiefs of Mission congratulate you and thank God that your Excellency has completely recovered from such a long illness, it is their earnest desire that your renewed strength will enable you to carry on the duties of your office for the welfare of your country and your people."

The President thanked them for their solicitude over his physical well-being. He also took advantage of the occasion to convey personally his gratitude for the numerous letters, telegrams, and other get-well messages he had received from them and from the heads of their respective countries.

The Chief Executive expressed hope that he would be able to assume fully his official duties soon.

He also expressed his desire to catch up on international developments.

The diplomatic call lasted about an hour with each of the 26 chiefs of missions present given a chance to speak with the President for one minute.

Ambassador Pir Ali Muhammad Rashdi of Pakistan and Ambassador Ransiyakorn Aphakorn of Thailand were not with the group because they were indisposed. Ambassador Morio Yukawa of Japan who is in Tokyo was represented by Minister Shigezo Yoshikawa, charge d' affaires of the Japanese embassy in Manila.

Earlier this morning the President had his usual one-hour stroll around the premises of the hospital. He received members of the diplomatic corps at about 10 a.m. He did not receive any other caller the whole day.

The President today authorized the release of ₱90,000 for the construction of a grandstand and school building at barrio Bagong Pook, San Pablo City. The grandstand will be used in the Southern Tagalog Athletic Association meet which will be held next year in San Pablo City.

Executive Secretary Natalio P. Castillo released three checks from the Philippine Charity Sweepstakes for charity aid and maintenance of PCSO barrio projects launched sometime ago. The checks were for ₱7,462.50 for the Asilo de la Milagrosa in Cebu City, which was turned over to Sister Natividad Abella of Sta. Isabel College; and ₱2,449 for the construction of the health center building in barrio Junstion, Cavinti; and ₱4,975 for maintenance and operation of the Laguna Chest Center, which were received by Rep. Wenceslao R. Lagumbay of Laguna.

September 17.—THE President is scheduled to have the Veterans Memorial Hospital on Wednesday, September 21, after six-week confinement for hypertension.

Dr. Antonio Guytingco, the President's personal physician, said that the President's discharge from the hospital which had been tentatively scheduled for this week was postponed a few more days to insure that the President was fully rested and completely recovered before "exposing him once again to the cares and manifold problems of his office."

The President, meanwhile, issued a proclamation declaring Monday, September 19 this year, as Law Day to bring to the attention of the people the vital role played by lawyers in the administration of justice which, he said, is "indispensible to a sound and vigorous democracy."

The Chief Executive receive a few callers at his hospital room today. Sen. Quintin Paredes, who had not seen the President since his confinement, called to felicitate him on his recovery. The senator had just come from the wedding of the President's nephew, Manuel Garcia, and Edith Strauz of Baliuag, Bulacan, at the St. Paul Church on San Marcelino in Manila where he and the First Lady stood sponsors.

The President took a long stroll around the hospital grounds this morning accompanied by friends and attending physicians. Dr. Guytingco felt that the President was already in fine shape.

During his stroll the President received Speaker Protempore Constancio Castañeda, who came to pay his respects after a month's sojourn abroad.

Among those who accompanied the President in his stroll were Gov. Madki Alonto of Lanao del Sur, Gov. Jose Dinglasan of Capi, Vice-Gov. Inday Melencio of Nueva Ecija, MRR General Manager Teofilo Zosa, Dr. Guytingco, and Dr. Valentin Fidelino, chief of the VMH medical services department.

President's Week in Review: September 18-24, 1960

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

September 18.—PRESIDENT Garcia today gave another indication of his determination to enforce strictly the anti-graft law as he urged the public to take advantage of a “10-centavo telegram” made available to them to send complaints direct to Malacañang against any erring government personnel.

The President reminded the people that this cheap and expeditious method of communication may also be availed of in case assistance is needed to meet an emergency beyond the capacity of local authorities to cope with.

Telegraphic offices all over the country had been circularized since the time of the late President Magsaysay to charge only ₱0.10 for these public service telegram. They should be addressed to the chairman of the Presidential Committee on Administration Performance Efficiency (PCAPE) and the message should begin with the word, “Complaint.”

The President, meanwhile, spent a quiet Sunday at the Veterans Memorial Hospital. He did not receive any caller. Waking up early in the morning, he started the day by hearing mass said at his hospital room. “With him at the mass were Dr. Antonio Guytingco, the President’s personal physician; Dr. Valentin Fidelino, chief of the VMH medical services department; Miss Benedicta Dignadice, nurse; and Major Ciriaco Jocson, junior military aide.

Mrs. Garcia, who usually hear mass together with the President on Sundays, had left earlier in the morning for Naga City on a pilgrimage to Our Lady of Peñafrancia, the miraculous patroness of Bicolandia whose feast day is being celebrated today.

After a light breakfast, the President went out of his room for his usual hour-long morning stroll around the hospital grounds. He was accompanied on his stroll by Executive Secretary Natalio P. Castillo, Brig. Gen. Isagani V. Campo, chief of the Constabulary; General Manager Teofilo Zosa of the Manila Railroad Company, and aides.

The President retired early in the evening.

September 19.—PRESIDENT Garcia this morning ordered the PCAPE to investigate and file criminal and administrative charges against government employees found guilty of collecting “overtime” pay without actually rendering service.

The President issued the order upon being informed that thousands of government employees are collecting the additional compensation, resulting in depredation of government funds estimated roughly at half a million pesos a year.

Justice Buenaventura Ocampo, PCAPE chairman, upon receiving the order, created a special inspection team to conduct surprise visits to all government agencies to check on the attendance, whereabouts of each employee if not found in the immediate premises of the office, and to dig deeper into the records to verify the information.

Rodolfo Ocampo, secretary to the chairman who made special studies along this line at the U. S. Federal Bureau of Investigation in Washington, was designated to head the special team.

Preliminary PCAPE findings reveal that many government employees are habitual absentees but their time records are marked to show that they are present and rendering work for the government, or are rendering overtime services for which they are being paid additional compensation, when in fact they are attending classes in some schools or attending to outside jobs, instead of rendering proper work in their respective offices in violation of the law.

President Garcia today appealed to both the public and the government personnel, especially those in areas affected by the recent calamities, to refrain from extravagant spending and lavish display of same during the period of reconstruction and rehabilitation.

Later, he spearheaded the passage of an effective anti-graft law designed to protect the deserving and remove the unfit from the service.

The President pointed out that extreme care had been taken so that the process of purification can be both thorough and fair and that the removal of the dishonest personnel be itself an honest process, free of malice and unjust premeditation.

The President this morning ordered the filing of criminal action against a second lieutenant of the first infantry division at Fort Magsaysay, Laur, Nueva Ecija, for allegedly having criminally forced a 14-year old girl to submit to his carnal desire.

The Chief Executive who was irked by the alleged criminal act of 2nd Lt. Bonifacio Singson, Jr., and the alleged delay in the prosecution of the erring officer ordered Justice Buenaventura Ocampo, PCAPE chairman, to dispatch immediately by special messenger the pertinent papers and assist in the filing of the corresponding criminal action against the lieutenant with the proper court in Nueva Ecija.

Major Teodulo Natividad, PCAPE acting vice-chairman said that Sergeant Alfonso Talop, and his wife, Mrs. Perfecta Rosales y Talop, step-father and natural mother of the victim, respectively, appeared before him this morning and complained about the alleged delay in the prosecution of the case by the military authorities. The complaint was filed September 8, this year.

The victim related to Major Natividad that last August 23, at about 1 p.m., the lieutenant and a driver by the name of Sergeant Muli invited her for a jeep ride. She consented to the invitation considering that the lieutenant is a family friend. They drove as far as Cabanatuan City and on their return trip, after reaching a certain place, the lieutenant asked the sergeant to wait for him at a corner.

Despite her protest the lieutenant drove to an isolated place and at the point of a dagger forced her to submit to his desire. Then they returned to where the sergeant was waiting, and the three of them drove to barrio Militar where she and her parents are residing. She was dropped near her home at about six o'clock that afternoon.

At first she tried to hide the incident from her parents but the parents that evening noticed the apparently uneasy feeling of the child. The mother then asked the child what was bothering her, and she started relating to her the experience she had earlier with Lt. Singson.

The parents to avoid a scandal, talked to the lieutenant to make good his promise to marry their daughter. They discovered later that the lieutenant was a married man.

They filed the complaint with the provost marshal of the Fort. The military authorities after conducting an investigation of the charge, placed the lieutenant under technical arrest; nevertheless he was able to come to their residence and threatened them to withdraw the complaint or else he (the lieutenant) would file a civil action for damages against the family.

The PCAPE conducted a preliminary investigation of the case and, at this writing, are still consolidating the verified statements of the complainants, to be forwarded to the provincial fiscal of Nueva Ecija for immediate action.

The President this afternoon ordered the Director of Forestry to suspend the logging operation of timber license holders who failed or neglected to settle their accounts with the bureau.

The Chief Executive issued the order after having been informed by Justice Buenaventura Ocampo, PCAPE chairman, that the loggers are still continuing their logging operation in full blast despite the fact that their licenses have not yet been renewed by the bureau.

The reason for the non-renewal of their licenses is the failure of the loggers to settle their accountability in forests charges and other fees with the Bureau of Forestry, which has reached the staggering amount of ₱4 million as of June 30, 1960, Ocampo said.

September 23.—EARLY in the morning, the President took a 40-minute stroll at the Malacañang Park grounds, accompanied by Dr. Antonio Guytingco, Dr. Valentine Fidelino, Col. Mamerto Montemayor, and a VMA nurse.

The three vacancies were occasioned by the recent resignations of three members of the board; namely, Roberto Villanueva, Jaime Velasquez, and Gaudencio Antonino.

September 24.—THE President this morning received Rep. Ramon P. Mitra of Mt. Province, Rep. His recommendation had been based on the report of a fact-finding committee created by the department which undertook preliminary investigations in the Bureau of Printing.

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

September 25—PRESIDENT Garcia this morning was pleased to see the myriad flowers blooming in his garden when he visited for the first time his Quezon City home since his return to Malacañang from the hospital.

Among the many plants which were in full bloom were the Indian guavas heavy with their first fruits. The President sampled a ripe, juicy guavas the size of caimitos.

The President, together with his children and close relatives, heard an early morning mass at the Malacañang chapel.

After taking his breakfast, the President accompanied by Dr. Antonio Guytingco, his personal physician, and Major Ciriaco Hocson, his aide, motored to his Bohol Avenue residence in Quezon City, where he took his daily stroll.

After admiring his plants, the President played a round of billiards before leaving for Malacañang at 11 a.m. for lunch.

The President rested the whole day and did not receive any callers.

September 26.—PRESIDENT Garcia this morning expressed his full confidence in the integrity and ability of Marcelo Balatbat and Mariano Peñaflorida, who were inducted as members of the Monetary Board of the Central Bank.

In his short extemporaneous remarks after inducting the two officials, the President said that Balatbat, as general manager and chairman of the NAMARCO, had completely removed all criticisms against the state corporation during his brief incumbency of six months.

In the case of Peñaflorida, the President said that on his record alone as a three-term governor, he can be considered a man of executive ability as a public official.

The oath-taking ceremonies were held at the spacious Malacañang ceremonial hall at 10 a.m. in the presence of high government officials, business leaders, close relatives, and friends of the inductees.

Among those present at the induction were Commerce Secretary Manuel Lim, Executive Secretary Natalio P. Castillo, Sens. Fernando Lopez and Alejandro Almendras, Reps. Domitilo Abordo and Jose Aldeguer of Iloilo, and Manuel Zosa and Ramon Durano of Cebu, PNB President Eduardo Z. Romualdez, Capiz Gov. Jose Dinglasan, NDC Chairman Jose Rodriguez and Assistant Manager Isabelo Sales, CB Deputy Governor Andres V. Castillo, former Assistant Executive Secretary Sofronio C. Quimson, Jose Y. Orosa, Teofilo Reyes, Alfonso Calalang, Hilarion G. Henares, Sr., Alfredo Montelibano, Dr. J. C. Orendain, and Francisco Delgado;

Immediately after the induction, the President received a 30-minute briefing from CB Deputy Governor Andres V. Castillo;

Later in the afternoon the President motored to the Manila International Airport to greet President" Sukarno of Indonesia who was on a one-hour stop-over in Manila en route, to New York to attend the United Nations General Assembly. (See separate release.)

In his closed-door conference with Deputy Governor Andres V. Castillo of the Central Bank at Malacañang, the President was informed that there was remarkable progress in all sectors of the Philippine economy which was reflected by greater, employment and better living standards for the people.

Castillo reported to the President that the international reserve rose by $60 million during a 12-month period, from $141.9 million in June 1959 to $201.89 in June 1960. Castillo pointed out that this increase in the country's balance of payments was due mainly to increased exports as well as to increased prices of Philippine export products in the world market. He said that foreign receipts exceeded disbursements by $14.53 million during the first quarter of 1960, despite reduction in United States Government expenditures in the Philippines.

Governor Castillo also reported that the rigid economic and fiscal policies adopted by the government had completely averted inflation which had threatened the country since 1957. He emphasized that, without the corrective measures to stop inflation, prices of commodities would have increased drastically above the 3.7 per cent for wholesale and 6.4 per cent for retail between June 1959 and June 1960.

Another result of these measures, according to Castillo, was the moderate rise in the money supply level from ₱1,790.5 million in June 1959 to ₱1,799.99 million in June 1960, or only ₱9.49 million. He said this is far below the ₱152.5 million increase during the June 1958-59 period.

In production, Castillo said, the index of physical volume of production in 1959 was 124.5 compared to 117.1 in 1958, and only 62.4 in 1950. Agricultural production was 5.3 points higher in the crop year 1959-60 than it was in 1958-59, while manufacturing made an impressive showing of 153.7 in the first quarter of 1960 against 137.9 for the same period the previous year, or a rise of 11.5 per cent.

Governor Castillo reported to the President that the only drawback in production was in mining. He said there was a cutback of 11.1 per cent in mining production, but this was due to a general slump in the world market. He pointed out that this general trend in economic improvement was also reflected by an increase of 2.1 per cent in the level of employment in the first semester of 1960 over the same period in 1959.

President Garcia today appointed Jose Y. Orosa as general manager of the National Marketing Corporation to replace Marcelo Balatbat, who was appointed by the President as member of the Monetary Board of the Central Bank.

President Garcia this afternoon accepted a personal invitation to visit Indonesia from Indonesian President Sukarno, who made a brief stopover at the Manila International Airport on the way to the United Nations in New York. No date has been fixed for the projected state visit of President Garcia to Indonesia.

President Garcia motored from Malacañang to the Philippine Air Force headquarters in Nichol's Air Base at about 12:35 p.m., where he waited for the Indonesian President. National Defense Secretary Alejo Santos, AFP Vice-Chief of Staff Maj. Gen. Pelagio Cruz, and Gen. Molina accompanied the President.

President Sukarno arrived at the MIA at 1:15 and was met by Foreign Affairs Secretary Felixberto Serrano, Indonesian Ambassador to the Philippines Nazir D. T. Pamontjak, and the chiefs of diplomatic missions in the Philippines.

The Indonesian Chief Executive, dressed in his uniform as Supreme Commander of the Indonesian Army, was whisked to the PAF headquarters in a No. 1 presidential car.

He was met at the door of the PAF headquarters by Malacañang Protocol Officer Manuel Zamora, Presidential Senior Military Aide Col. Jorge Delarmente, and Dr. Antonio Guytingco, personal physician of President Garcia.

After exchanging greetings, the two Presidents sat down and exchanged pleasantries. The half-hour conference was held in an atmosphere of warm cordiality and friendship.

During the meeting President Garcia and his guests were served with typical Philippine refreshments by Indonesian girls dressed in their native costumes. President Sukarno mistook one of the girls for a Filipino. When told that the girls were Indonesians, President Sukarno talked to one of them in the Indonesian language.

The two Presidents parted at about 1:50 p.m. President Garcia escorted the Indonesian Chief Executive to his car parked in the driveway of the PAF headquarters. President Sukarno was escorted to the International Air Terminal by Secretary Serrano.

President Garcia this afternoon ordered a full-dress investigation of alleged irregularities being committed in the purchase of supplies by the Armed Forces of the Philippines.

The President issued the order after he was informed by Justice Buenaventura Ocampo, PCAPE chairman, that a complaint was lodged with the PCAPE by former Nueva Vizcaya Gov. Demetrio Quirino charging a certain top AFP Quarter Master official with irregularities in the purchase of printing ink.

September 27.—PRESIDENT Garcia this morning had his first heavy schedule of callers since his return from the hospital last week. Callers included senators, congressmen, and town mayors.

During a conference with Sen. Arturo M. Tolentino, the President expressed the view that the anti-graft law should be given a chance to work and that if there were any defects, Sen. Tolentino, author of the act, could introduce amendments at the next regular session of Congress.

In another conference with Rep. Tobias Fornier of Antique, the President was informed that Philippine embassy and consular establishments in the United States were overstaffed while those in Europe were short-handed.

Rep. Fornier, who returned recently from an inspection tour of Philippines embassies and consulates abroad, informed the Chief Executive that new diplomatic establishments can be put up by appointing only the principal officials and drawing from the excess personnel from Philippine offices in the U.S. Rep. Fornier pointed out that the San Francisco consulate personnel can be reduced by 10 and that of New York can be cut by one-third of the present force without adversely affecting their efficiencies.

On the other hand, Rep. Fornier said that the Paris, Rome, and Madrid establishments were staffed by only eight employees each. The Philippine Embassy in Rome, according to him, had a tough time taking care of Filipino visitors during the last Rome Olympics.

The President received a request from Rep. Fornier and Antique Gov. Josue Cadio for the release of ₱100,000 for the reconstruction of the Antique provincial capital which was burned down in 1957.

The President referred to Budget Commissioner Faustino Sy Changco the request of Rep. Felipe Abrigo of Samar for ₱50,000 for the TB pavilion in Guiuan and ₱350,000 authorized under Budget B for a pearl culture and tuna canning pilot plant in Samar.

Other presidential callers included Reps. Pedro Venida of Camarines Norte, accompanied by Mayors Felix Tenorio of Labo and Nicolas Herico of Paracale; Rep. Rogaciano Mercado of Bulacan; and Rep. Benjamin Ligot of Cagayan.

Rep. Venida requested the release of ₱100,000 from the Typhoon Aid fund, and asked for more prefabricated schoolhouses, while Rep. Ligot sought early construction of four major bridges in his province at a cost of ₱8 million which, according to him, the Central Bank's monetary board was willing to underwrite.

Meanwhile, President Garcia summoned Andres V. Castillo, deputy governor of the Central Bank, to a conference tomorrow morning to discuss financing arrangements for the proposed integrated steel plant in Iligan, Lanao. Also invited to the conference was Public Works Secretary Florencio Moreno.

September 28.—PRESIDENT Garcia woke up before sunrise this morning for a surprise visit at the Manila International Airport to find out the progress in the construction of the terminal building.

Surprising officials and laborers, the President left Malacañang by car 6:30 a.m. and personally inspected the progress on the construction project at the MIA. The presidential car bogged down twice before reaching the new MIA building because of the thick mud, and the President had to transfer to a jeep.

"This project will be a big boon to our tourist industry," the President said after he had been around the new MIA terminal building, the jet runway and apron and after going through the old MIA terminal building.

The President left Malacañang with Press Secretary Jose C. Nable, his personal physician, Dr. Antonio Guytingco, and Major Ciriaco Hocson, presidential aide. Transferring to a jeep after his car bogged down twice at the MIA grounds, the President motored directly to the new MIA terminal building.

The Chief Executive caught everybody by surprise at the new MIA building. The foreman and the laborers were just beginning to start work on the almost completed project. Construction foreman Ponsiano Gallardo accompanied the Chief Executive around the construction project.

Following his inspection of the project, the President ordered the completion of the "International Finger" wing of the new MIA terminal building advanced by one month. The wing was scheduled to be ready for use by December this year. With the President's order, the wing will be made ready for use by the end of November this year.

From the new MIA terminal, the President walked extensively to and around the 14 inch-thick cement apron of the jet runway which is being expanded from its present length of 7,500 feet to 11,000 feet at a cost of ₱3 million.

The Chief Executive crossed the runway during his stroll. While walking around, the President's foot sunk in the muddy grounds several times. During his inspection tour of the MIA project, the President saw for the first time a Pan-American jetliner coming in for a landing on the newly-lengthened runway.

After walking around the apron of the runway, the President crossed a talahib field in order to reach a runway. He boarded his car for the return trip near the MIA tower after walking around quite a long distance.

On his trip home, the President passed by the old MIA terminal building and was able to compare with it the new building.

Before returning to Malacañang, the President motored to Pier 3 where he met the First Lady, who just returned on board the RPS Lapu-Lapu from Mindanao where, together with Speaker Daniel Z. Romualdez, she attended the inauguration of the new province of Surigao del Sur.

President Garcia today formed a Cabinet committee to study the proposed floatation of bonds to finance, initial steps for the establishment of the projected integrated steel mill.

The proposal was to sell these bonds to private investors interested in entering into a joint venture with the government in the operation of the steel mill. The bonds will be converted into shares of stocks which will form part of the capital of the new corporation.

This ad interim step was deemed advisable in view of the absence of a law authorizing the National Shipyards and Steel Corporation to enter into such joint venture with private entities/ Proceeds from the sale of bonds will be utilized for the initial payment of machinery and other equipment necessary to start the project.

The committee is composed of Public Works Secretary Florencio Moreno, chairman; and Finance Secretary Dominador Aytona, Education Secretary Jose Romero, Foreign Affairs Secretary Felixberto Serrano and Justice Secretary Alejo Mabanag, members. Simeon Gopengco, government corporate counsel, was designated technical assistant of the committee.

Earlier this morning, the President directed Public Works Secretary Florencio Moreno to explore all means of getting the integrated steel mill in Mindanao started immediately.

During their lengthy conference at Malacañang, at which Central Bank Deputy Governor Andres V. Castillo was also present, the President said the steel mill project should be given top priority because it is the biggest contribution factor in the growth of heavy industries in the country.

According to Secretary Moreno, early implementation of the project hit a snag when Congress failed to amend the charter of the National Shipyards and Steel Corporation (NASSCO) during its last session, in order to authorize the corporation to invest with private groups in the huge steel processing project.

Secretary Moreno had proposed two alternatives in view of the failure of Congress to empower the NASSCO to spearhead the project; namely, (1) utilization of Central Bank resources for the project's dollar needs totalling $70,274,000; and (2) sale of NASSCO through public bidding to help finance government participation in a joint venture.

Under the plan, the government will initially control and own 51 per cent of the subscribed capital stock of the corporation while a private group will control the remaining 49 per cent, with the understanding that the government will gradually dispose of its shares retaining only 34 per cent.

Secretary Moreno said the government has already advanced $1,696,000 on NASSCO machinery requirements under existing contracts, and that some of these were ready for installation and delivery.

This morning the President administered the oath of office to Jose Y. Orosa as general manager of the National Marketing Corporation (NAMARCO) at Malacañang. In congratulating Orosa, the President expressed confidence that the good reputation of the state corporation which it has earned during the last seven months would continue or be even surpassed.

The President pointed out that Manager Marcelo Balatbat had effectively stamped out all criticisms against the NAMARCO because he had the strong support of the NAMARCO board, of which Orosa was an active member.

Present at the induction ceremonies were high government officials; business leaders; relatives and friends of the new NAMARCO manager, including Executive Secretary Natalio P. Castillo, Commerce Secretary Manuel Lim,

Public Works Secretary Florencio Moreno, PCAPE Chairman Justice Buenaventura Ocampo, Court of Appeals Presiding Justice Dionisio de Leon, Justice Bonifacio Ysip; Monetary Board Members Mariano Peñaflorida and Marcelo Balatbat; CB Deputy Governor Andres V. Castillo; Iloilo Gov. Jose C. Zulueta; MRR Chairman Juan J. Carlos; NAMARCO Assistant Manager Juan Noble; NAMARCO Directors Eriberto Aguinaldo and Felix Opimo, Primitivo Lovina; Hilarion G. Henares; Gil Carlos; Francisco Delgado; and Mrs. Orosa, wife of the inductee.

President Garcia was informed today that government agencies led by Army engineers successfully plugged leaks in the Arnedo dike, thereby preventing the flooding of seven towns in Pampanga.

In a report to the President, Defense Secretary Alejo Santos said government agencies worked overtime and continuously for 36 hours to restore washed away portions of the Arnedo dike.

On receipt of a report of impending threat to the dike, President Garcia directed government agencies to rush to the threatened areas to prevent further damage. Rising waters threatened to break through the Arnedo dike at Apalit, Pampanga. Seven towns were in danger of being flooded; namely, San Simon, Apalit, San Fernando, Bacolor, Guagua, Masantol, and Macabebe.

Licsi explained that the charter rental for each of the 12 ships for a period of five years will not be less than the highest bid which was more than ₱511,000 a year. However, he added, the charterer will be given concessions in the first two years to pay less, but the rentals will be increased in later years so that the total rentals will amount to more than ₱511,000 a year.

After the lease period, the five-year rentals, will be considered as the 25 per cent down payment to the total cost of the vessels as required by Republic Act No. 1407.

The President expressed his desire that the contract be signed as soon as possible so that the vessels could start earning dollars. Seven vessels have already been delivered to the NDC. Of these vessels, three are in the port of Manila and four are still in Japan. The remaining five are expected to be delivered within this year.

The United Philippine Lines will be awarded seven vessels and the Maritime Company of the Philippines will get five, as it already has two vessels of the same type.

The President emphasized that the industrialization of Mindanao will be carried out along his policy of dispersal of industries in order to make the benefits of development available to as wide a sector of the population as possible.

In a directive dispatched this afternoon to Commerce Secretary Manuel Lim and NARIC Chairman and Acting General Manager Jose V. Rodriguez, the President called their attention to news reports about certain officials in Bulacan who allegedly claimed that the price of rice was spiralling in all towns of that province.

The President directed the two officials to check the report, not only in Bulacan but also in other provinces, and to take prompt steps to stabilize the price of rice as well as of other prime commodities for the benefit of the lower-income of the population.

The Chief Executive had previously ordered the NARIC to utilize all available funds to stock up on palay for price stabilization purposes. He had also ordered the suspension of the exportation of the commodity as a means of averting possible shortage as a result of the destructive floods which swept the nation's rice granaries in Central Luzon recently.

The President said that although technical surveys undertaken by the Department of Agriculture showed that crop losses in Central Luzon had been negligible, it was always best to take every precaution to insure an adequate supply of food for the people the whole year round.

The President's approval was based on the recommendation of Finance Secretary Dominador R. Aytona during the Cabinet meeting last week, and on an encouraging reports from NASSCO General Manager Bernardo Abrera that the plan to sell bonds to finance the project was received by the public enthusiastically.

Manager Abrera reported at the regular weekly Cabinet meeting this evening that since the publication of the proposal to sell bond in the local papers, he had been receiving many telephone inquiries as to the terms and conditions of the sale and as to whether the general public will be allowed to purchase the bonds.

The proposal to sell bonds to the public was being taken as an ad interim arrangement pending congressional action during its regular session next year to amend the NASSCO charter to authorize, the government corporation to participate in a new corporation to set up an integrated steel industry.

The Cabinet committee, created by the President last week to study the Aytona proposal, recommended the sale of ₱50 million worth of bonds to meet the NASSCO peso requirements to pay existing obligations, especially on machinery and equipment.

Headed by Public Works Secretary Florencio Moreno, the committee, in its report, pointed out that the Aytona proposal is a better approach to the financing of the project than the outright sale of the NASSCO which may not yield sufficient proceeds to meet the requirements of the project.

The committee said that the NASSCO is authorized under Republic Act No. 1000 to float public works and economic development bonds such as contemplated in the Aytona proposal.

Private participants or bond holders will be privileged to name a representative to the Board of Directors of the NASSCO who will be appointed by the President pending the organization of the corporation.

Among the relief agencies alerted by the President were the Social Welfare Administration, the Department of National Defense, the Department of Health, the Philippine National Red Cross, and local police agencies.

The President also advised residents along the probable path of the typhoon to take precautionary measures and stay in safe places to prevent possible loss of life and property.

Executive Secretary Natalio P. Castillo received assurance from General Manager Susano R. Negado of the National Waterworks and Sewerage Authority that the water supply in Manila and suburbs is safe.

The assurance was given this afternoon in response to an inquiry made by Secretary Castillo as to the potability of the city's water supply.

President Garcia had directed the Executive Secretary to look into the current controversy between the NAWASA general manager and Dr. Mariano D. Icasiano, city health officer, over the city's water supply.

Negado, in his report to Secretary Castillo, said that the water is safe for human consumption and that the NAWASA had sufficient supply of chlorine.

THIS evening the President directed the Philippine National Bank to extend crop loans to farmers on the most liberal terms to accelerate the return of the flood areas in Central Luzon to their previous productive levels.

In his conference with Eduardo Z. Romualdez, president of the Philippine National Bank, the President inquired into the money-lending policies of the government bank in his desire to alleviate the plight of the victims of the recent floods.

Earlier in the day, the President had directed Jose V. Rodriguez, general manager of the National Rice and Corn Corporation, to expedite the movement of rice stocks from areas of production to areas of critical supply in order to stabilize prices of the cereal.

In another conference with Administrator Juan O. Chioco of the Office of Economic Coordination, the President inquired into the status of government corporations, and into the feasibility of the government's withdrawing from business and the readiness of private enterprise to take over.

The President released today ₱705,000 for the immediate repair of the Manila north road and for repair of public works in Tarlac and Masbate.

The President, in his directive to Public Works Secretary Moreno, stressed the necessity of undertaking the prompt repair of the National highway which is the main artery from Manila to central and northern Luzon provinces.—He said the present condition of the road is hampering the smooth flow of traffic in one of the nation's busiest highways. The highway was badly damaged by the flood.

Executive Secretary Natalio P. Castillo transmitted the President's directive to the Department of Public Works this afternoon.

President Garcia also directed the release of ₱175,000 for Tarlac province. On representations made by Gov. Lugay, the President earmarked ₱100,000 of this amount for the repair of the Parua River dikes, and the balance of ₱75,000 for the repair of the feeder roads destroyed by the recent flood in Tarlac.

In another directive President Garcia ordered the release of ₱30,000 for the repair of the sea wall in Masbate which was destroyed partially by recent typhoons. The financial assistance to Masbate was made by the President following representations made by Governor Almero.

The President this day directed Assistant Executive Secretary Enrique C. Quema to confer with public works and Armed Forces officials on control measures against the floods in Cotabato.

The President had earlier released ₱280,000 for the immediate aid and assistance to flood victims of Cotabato following a conference with Secretary Quema, who reported to the Chief Executive on conditions in the flooded areas. Secretary Quema had just returned from an on-the-spot survey of Cotabato.

Secretary Quema called to a conference Public Works Undersecretary Marciano Bautista, Col. Eleazar Pinto of the AFP corps of engineers, and Col. Vicente O. Tiongson, Malacañang financial assistant, to study ways and means to alleviate the plight of the flood victims and to adopt remedial measures to avoid further damage to lives and property.

The conferees, agreed to send immediately flood control experts from the Department of Public Works and an underwater demolition team from the Navy with the view to blasting off certain portions of the Rio Grande River bank to provide additional outlets to waters overflowing its embankment.

October 7.—THIS morning the President administered the oath of office to Associate Justice Dionisio de Leon as presiding justice of the Court of Appeals to take the place of Justice Jose M. Paredes, who was elevated to the Supreme Court.

Immediately after the induction of De Leon, the President inducted Bonifacio Isip and Francisco Capistrano as associate justices of the Court of Appeals.

The induction ceremonies were held at the Malacañang reception hall and were witnessed by a large crowd made up of members of the judiciary, friends and admirers of the three inductees, headed by Chairman Buenaventura Ocampo of the Presidential Committee on Administration Performance Efficiency, and Administrator Juan O. Chioco of the Office of Economic Coordination.

Justice Isip, a native of Cabiao, Nueva Ecija, was a member of the Constitutional Convention, and prior to his promotion a judge of the Court of First Instance of Manila.

Justice Capistrano, a native of Cagayan de Oro City, was until his new appointment an associate commissioner of the Code Commission.

After the induction ceremonies, the President held separate conferences with PCAPE Chairman Ocampo, Reps. Francisco Lecaroz of Marinduque, Wenceslao Lagumbay of Laguna, and Jose Nuguid of Bataan, who was accompanied by former Gov. Adelmo Camacho.

President Garcia this morning alerted the National Emergency Relief Coordinating Committee (NERCC) to extend immediate relief and rehabilitation measures to provinces hit hard by typhoon Kit.

The President also ordered the release of ₱100,000 from his contingent fund for the purchase of relief supplies for distribution to typhoon and flood victims in nine provinces visited by typhoon Kit and by the two-week old flood in Cotabato.

The President's action was prompted by an information given by Executive Secretary Natalio P. Castillo, NERCC chairman, on the extent of destruction sustained by various provinces from the typhoon. The information was based on the reports submitted by Assistant Executive Secretary Enrique C. Quema and Social Welfare Administrator Amparo Villamor.

Secretary Quema had been directed by the President to make an on-the-spot survey of the flooded areas of Cotabato while Administrator Villamor, had just arrived from the field directing the distribution of relief supplies and assistance to flood victims.

Secretary Quema reported that public works and Armed Forces personnel were working round-the-clock in order to alleviate the plight of the flood victims and to adopt remedial measures to avoid further damage to crops, lives, and properties. The President had earlier released ₱280,000 for this purpose.

Mrs. Villamor reported that a total of 6,927 families or about 29,000 persons were affected by floods in Cotabato City and five towns of the province, including Tumabao, Datu Piang, Pikit, Pagaluangan, and Dinaig.

The SWA administrator, added that she had released ₱10,000 from SWA funds for the immediate purchase of relief supplies for distribution to victims, as all crops in the area were totally destroyed.

The Chief Executive also ordered Secretary Castillo to render progress reports on damages sustained and the extent of relief and assistance needed by the provinces affected by the typhoon.

The provinces reported to have suffered from typhoon Kit are Camarines Sur, Camarines Norte, Catanduanes, Zamboanga del Norte, Masbate, Marinduque, Mindoro Occidental, Samar, and Romblon.

The President late last night also released ₱705,000 for the immediate repair of the Manila North Road and public works projects in Tarlac and Masbate. Of the amount, ₱175,000 will go to Tarlac and ₱30,000 to Masbate, while the balance will be used to repair the national highway linking Manila to Central and Northern Luzon provinces, which was badly damaged by the recent flood.

President Garcia today directed the Department of Education to investigate complaints from public school teachers in remote municipalities of Mindanao and Northern Luzon that insurance premiums payable to private companies were being deducted from their salaries without their consent,

The complaints were received by the Presidential Committee on Administration Performance Efficiency and reported to the President by PCAPE Vice-Chairman Maximo Maceren.

The teachers claimed that they were being insured with private insurance companies without their prior knowledge and authority.

The President, in his directive, told the Department of Education to look into the possibility of connivance between insurance agents and officials handling the pay checks of teachers in the commission of the reported irregularity.

This afternoon the President directed the board of directors of the National Development Company to sit with representatives of the United Philippine Lines and Compania Maritima on Monday to make the final draft of a charter contract in order to expedite the sale of 12 NDC ships.

In an effort to iron out differences between the NDC and end-users over the charter for the twelve vessels ordered from Japan to form the nucleus of a Philippine merchant marine, the President held two separate conferences with the two parties at Malacañang.

The President emphasized to the shipping officials that while the government is interested in the success of their operations under Republic Act 1407, the primary concern of the government is to protect the interest of the people.

Under Republic Act 1407, otherwise known as the Philippine Overseas Shipping Act of 1955, the government is pledged to help, assist, and encourage private investors to enter the overseas shipping business.

The shipping officials maintained that while they agreed to the general provisions, the provision in the charter empowering the NDC to terminate the contract if “in its opinion” the charterer had violated certain agreements, is unilaterally against them.

The President held, however, that the government should have the right to decide when a violation is committed, but agreed to the creation of a three-man arbitration board to decide any dispute between them.

The arbitration board shall be composed of one representative each from the end-users and the NDC and a third neutral member to be elected by the other two.

The shipping officials who conferred with the President were Ambrosio Magsaysay, Roberto Ho, and Antonio Rocha, Jr., representing the United Philippine Lines, which will get seven vessels, and Jose P. Fernandez and Abelardo Dolehdo, representing Compania Maritima, which will purchase five vessels.

The NDC directors who conferred with the President were Protasio Licsi, Celestino Cortes, and Genaro Sarmiento. Also present were Corporate Counsel Simeon Gopengco and NDC Technical Assistants Jess Platon and Francisco Agoncillo.

In the evening the President directed Chairman Leonardo Lucena of the Anti-Graft Committee to forward the cases of ten officials to the Department of Justice for prosecution.

The President gave this order after a long briefing given by Fiscal Lucena, who informed the President that the ten officials and employees were found to have acquired unexplained wealth, beyond their legitimate incomes.

The officials involved were three from the Bureau of Internal Revenue, two from the Bureau of Customs, one from the Bureau of Supply Coordination, two from the Agricultural Credit and Cooperative Financing Administration, one from the Bureau of Immigration, and one from the National Bureau of Investigation.

October 8.—THE President and the First Lady motored this morning to the Recto residence on Leveriza Street, Pasay City, to view the remains of the departed Senator. Leaving Malacañang at 9 o'clock, they arrived at the Recto residence half an hour later.

It was the first visit for the Chief Executive and the second for the First Lady. Mrs. Garcia visited Mrs. Aurora Recto, the bereaved widow, Friday morning and condoled with her. She had previously planned to meet the widow at the airport, but a slight indisposition prevented her from meeting the latter.

The President condoled with Mrs. Recto and recalled his last meeting with the Senator. That was when the President was confined at the Veterans Memorial Hospital. Sen. Recto paid the President a courtesy visit preparatory to his scheduled world tour.

The President recalled that Senator Recto had given him a book of Spanish poems.

Among those at the Recto residence at the time of the President and the First Lady's visit were Secretary of Defense Alejo Santos and former Secretary of Labor Primitivo Lovina.

On his return to Malacañang, the President received Dr. Rafael Samper and Octavio Arizmendi, two pensionados from Columbia, South America.

They were accompanied by Ramon Binamira, chief of the Presidential Assistant on Community Development; Dr. Alan Kline and Roberto Lmder, outgoing and incoming CARE chiefs, respectively.

Also present during the call were Jose Ma. Rocha, presidential special assistant, and Alvaro L. Martinez, PACD senior executive assistant.

President Garcia today, received a wire from Generalissimo Francisco. Franco of Spain extending condolence for the death of Senator Claro M. Recto.

"I have learned with deepest sorrow of the passing of Senator Claro M. Recto," Gen. Franco said in his message in Spanish and addressed to the President. "In the name of my government and my own, I wish to convey to Your Excellency our sincerest condolence over a loss which means for the Philippines the disappearance of such an eminent and illustrious personality."

Spain was among the countries Senator Recto intended to visit in his cultural world tour as personal representative of the President of the Philippines with the rank of ambassador.

The President also received a similar message from Minister Yehiel Ilzar of Israel, which said:

"Deeply grieved by untimely death of Senator Recto. The people of Israel mourn with me the bereavement of the Filipino nation for its great son. The loss of this outstanding Filipino is a loss to mankind and to the world conscience."

This afternoon the President ordered the filing of criminal and administrative charges against 81 officials of the National Rice and Corn Corporation for failure to account for some ₱12 million worth of corporate assets.

The order was issued to Secretary Natalio P. Castillo, who appraised the Chief Executive on the findings of an Inter-Departmental Committee composed of Ben, Hur Balboa, special prosecutor of the Department of Justice, Mario Camacho of the PCAPE, and Rolando R. Andaya, accountant of the Budget Commission.

The basis of the findings is the General Auditing Office report that ₱7 million worth of rice and corn purchases of the NARIC, and some ₱5 million of corporate funds could not be accounted for by the corporation.

The committee observed that some of the accountable officers were officials whose appointments were temporary in nature.

PCAPE Vice Chairman Maximo Maceren and Major Teodulo Natividad, PCAPE chief investigator, said the report, is the first submitted by the Inter-Departmental Committee created in September this year for the purpose of verifying the GAO report, and filing corresponding charges against the erring officials as cited by the report which cover the fiscal year 1959-60, submitted to the President by Auditor General Pedro Gimenez sometime last August.

President Garcia, after ordering the creation of the special committee, directed Justice Ocampo to tackle first the NARIC case because of the alleged serious deficiencies discovered in its fiscal operation, which he believed might affect adversely the supply of rice in the country, Natividad said.

The President upon receiving the report also ordered the PCAPE to “double-check” whether remedial measures had already been introduced by the corporate authorities to stop once and for all the repetition of the alleged irregularities and minimize the resulting losses, and to dig deeper into the records on the so-called “Operation Cotabato,” a joint venture of the NARIC and the ACCFA, where the GAO report stated, cash advances totaling P618,786.07 had not been fully accounted for despite the fact that NARIC had already closed the account. The money represents the difference between the amount advanced and the fair valuation of the stocks actually received.

Dr. Jose Rodriguez, newly appointed manager and chairman of the board of directors of the NARIC, when informed of the charges against the 81 officials, said that he will immediately create a committee to conduct the hearing of the charges against them, and that he will extend full cooperation to the PCAPE fact-finding committee with respect to other officials who might be linked to the alleged-irregularities.

The President today placed all available facilities of the Army, Air-force, and Navy to help transport rice from places of plenty to areas of critical supply.

The President’s action was prompted by a report that temporary shortages in areas which had been hit by calamities like floods and typhoons were generated by lack of transportation facilities and destruction of roads and highways.

The President was informed by Social Welfare Administrator Amparo Villamor that even the NARIC could not meet the demand in many localities owing to failure to ship its rice stocks to places of scarcity.

Earlier in the week the President had ordered the NARIC to ship its stocks from centers of production to critical areas, especially Manila and the Bicol region, but typhoon Kit had considerably delayed shipments.

Mrs. Villamor informed the President that the problem of meeting the demand for rice, especially in Albay, Naga City, and Legaspi, was difficult because there were no transportation facilities and the roads were badly cut up.

President's Week in Review: October 9-15, 1960

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

October 9.—PRESIDENT Garcia today directed the Department of Labor to expedite the settlement of the strike in the Superior Gas and Equipment Company (SUGECO) and to submit the labor dispute for compulsory arbitration if necessary.

The President issued the directive to Labor Secretary Angel Castaño on being informed that the strike-bound firm is the only plant producing chlorine locally. The month-old controversy, which had reduced the plant's operation to a standstill, covered the recent shortage of the water-purifying chemical in Manila and suburbs.

"Everything must be done to safeguard the people's health," the President said in his directive to Secretary Castaño.

The Chief Executive received Health Secretary Elpidio Valencia at his Bohol Avenue residence in Quezon City this afternoon.

Secretary Valencia, who recently arrived from Nigeria, together with Mrs. Valencia, as Philippine representative at the recent Nigerian independence celebration, gave his impressions on the aspirations of African nations for independence and their desire for aid through the United Nations.

The President, together with Mrs. Garcia, Mr. and Mrs. Fernando Campos, and close friends and relatives, heard an early mass at the Malacañang chapel this morning.

After breakfast the President accompanied by his aide, Major Jose Estrella, motored to his residence on Bohol Avenue for his weekend stroll. The President also took his daily lessons in golf from Felix Tugot and played a round of billiards before lunch.

The President received no callers other than Secretary Valencia today. He returned to Malacañang in the evening.

October 10.—PRESIDENT Garcia today directed the Department of Labor General Manager Susano R. Negado of the National Waterworks and Sewerage Authority that Manila's water supply was safe and fit to drink.

Manager Negado gave this assurance upon being summoned to Malacañang by the President this morning to clarify press reports that the water supply was not chlorinated and was unsafe to drink unless it was first boiled.

The President recalled that he had authorized the importation of 60 tons of chlorine from Taipeh in the face of a prolonged strike at the Superior Gas and Equipment Company, the only local supplier of the chemical, in order to insure the safety of the water supply and the health of the populace.

Manager Negado belied the claim of Dr. Mariano Icaciano, Manila City health officer that water should be boiled before it is used for drinking purposes, because of its turbidity.

The NWSA Manager pointed out that boiling removes all traces of chlorine and if the boiled water is not drunk immediately, it becomes more susceptible to contamination when cooled, unless the containers are perfectly clean and free of bacteria.

Manager Negado informed the President that to avoid alarming the public with results of inconclusive tests, he had held a conference with Dr. Icaciano, Health Director Jesus Nolasco, and officials of the World Health Organization on the procedure for conducting tests.

Manager Negado said the conference had agreed to conduct further tests, to check and counter-check each finding and to make periodic inspections of laboratories conducting the tests to insure water potability and sanitation.

The NWSA executive admitted that not all water supplied Manila and vicinity was chlorinated because some of it comes from artesian wells, particularly in Antipolo, San Mateo, Project 6 and Project 8, San Lorenzo Village, and Forbes Park.

Periodic tests, Manager Negado said, show that water in these areas has never been contaminated.

Manager Negado explained that turbid water was caused by changes to extreme pressure in the pipelines, which agitate the silt and washes it off through the faucet.

According to Manager Negado, this happens every time repairs are made in the pipelines but that it is only temporary and is harmless.

Manager Negado also called on the President for final instructions before leaving for Tokyo, Japan, to attend the Marikina Multipurpose Project committee meeting with world consultants to verify the safety of the Marikina multipurpose dam; and the Large Dams Conference, also to be held in the Japanese capital.

The NWSA chief will also look into the possibility of acquiring from reparations badly needed equipment for the NWSA.

Earlier this morning the President received Vice-President Diosdado Macapagal, who called at Malacañang to say goodbye before leaving tomorrow afternoon for the United States.

Vice-President Macapagal will address the 1960 convention of the American Legion on October 17, at Miami, Florida.

The President also received Vicente Albano Pacis, former SEATO information officer, and Manager Francisco "Koko" Trinidad of the government radio station DZFM, who both felicitated the President on his improved health.

Executive Secretary Natalio P. Castillo today administered the oath of office to Dr. Damaso Samonte as undersecretary for special health services.

Dr. Samonte will re-occupy the positions he had vacated a year ago when he ran for governor in Ilocos Norte.

The undersecretaryship for special health services is one of the two posts under the reorganized Department of Health, the other being the undersecretary for medical services.

Secretary Castillo also announced that the President had appointed an assistant fiscal, a clerk of court, and two justices of the peace. Appointed were Abelardo M. Milla as assistant fiscal of Tarlac, Enrique Casino as clerk of court of Bukidnon, and Restituto M. Mercado and Demetrio Luis as justices of the peace of Angeles, Pampanga, and Tublay, Mt. Province, respectively.

President Garcia today expressed his gratification over the pledge of support he received from the Philippine Association of Log Producers and Exporters to the reforestation program of the Administration.

The President underscored the importance of the pledge at a time when the Administration is embarking on a national scale the reforestation of denuded areas. He pointed out that the floods in Central Luzon and Cotabato can be traced to indiscriminate cutting of trees in forest areas and warned the loggers that now is the time to profit from the experience.

Valeriano Bueno and Jorge Tirador, who acted as spokesmen of the group, informed the President during their call at Malacañang this evening that the PALPE is sending a trade and goodwill mission to Japan, Korea, and Formosa to work out an agreement on quantitative requirements of Japanese and other importers, based on the capacity of PALPE members to supply and secure the stabilization of price levels, either on a quarterly or seasonal basis.

Other members of the mission who had either left ahead or were unable to see the President are Brigido Valencia, chairman; and Amado Dalisay, Napoleon Rosales, Canuto Pifianco, Jr., Pedro Majorada, Guillermo Ponce, Mamerto Sanvictores, Feliciano Sarmiento, and Tranquilino Valderrama.

The President also received this evening Roberto O. Phillips, commander of the Philippine Department of the American Legion, who reported of a favorable atmosphere in the U. S. House of Representatives committee on veterans affairs for the Teague bill which provides for a version of benefit payments to Filipinos from that of the present “peso for a dollar-to-dollar payment.

Two other Filipinos who worked for the Teague Bill, according to Phillips, were former Ambassador Joaquin M. Elizalde and General Dionisio Ojeda, head of the Philippine Federation of Veterans.

President Garcia today directed Executive Secretary Natalio P. Castillo to keep him posted on developments on the efforts of the Department of Commerce and the Department of Justice to prevent profiteering and prosecute profiteers of prime commodities.

Irked by persistent reports that the prices of basic food items were unduly rising owing to practices of unscrupulous traders in the wake of typhoon Kit, the President this morning had directed Commerce Secretary Manuel Lim and Justice Secretary Alejo Mabanag to coordinate the efforts of their offices to arrest the rising prices.

The President specifically directed the Department of Justice to study the possibility of implementing fully the anti-profiteering law.

Secretary Lim had previously recommended to the President against taking drastic action against the merchants. He said he would confer with the traders and enlist their cooperation towards keeping the prices down to reasonable levels.

The President, in his directive to Secretaries Lim and Mabanag, reiterated his determination to keep the prices of prime commodities within the reach of lower-income sections of the population

October 11.—PRESIDENT Garcia this morning led the nation in paying final tribute to the late Senator Claro M. Recto at necrological rites held in the Senate session hall.

The President, visibly touched by the great loss to the nation in the death of Senator Recto, shed tears as he gazed for the last time at his personal friend and envoy who died on a cultural and goodwill mission in Rome.

The President later led the pallbearers composed of close friends and associates of the late Senator, as, well as high government officials, from the session hall to the caisson which, took the body to its final resting place at the North Cemetery.

In his funeral oration, Senator Lorenzo M. Tañada, former protegee, partner, colleague, and later running mate of Senator Recto, was overcome, with emotion as he related incidents in their long and close association.

Sen. Tañada said that it was Senator Recto, who during the liberation picked up “the precious thread of history and lifted the glorious pattern of Filipino greatness which had produced a truly great Filipino nation in the 1890’s.”

“Thus,” Sen. Tañada continued, “although he was not the creator of a noble national design, he was its faithful guardian and brave defender.”

Tañada recalled the many deeds of kindness and generosity of Senator Recto saying, “A generous man like Recto could not avoid greatness,” adding “but with all his greatness, there was a spirit of true humility.”

Foreign Secretary Felixberto Serrano, who represented the Cabinet, said that “with his death, it was as though a majestic mountain has been removed by the hand of God. Where, once it stood in solitary splendor, a vast void has been created and a sense of desolation fills the surrounding country.”

Secretary Serrano said it was ironic that a man so devoted to his people and so passionately in love with his country should die in a foreign country. “His last words ‘It is a terrible thing to die in a foreign country, was the agonizing cry of a son whose last thought was his Motherland,’” Serrano concluded.

Aklan Gov. Godofredo Ramos, in his funeral oration, said that Recto was a constructive oppositionist who dissented against what he held wrong in the eyes of his people but conformed firmly with what he believed would promote their welfare.

Other speakers at the necrological services were former Senator Vicente J. Francisco, who represented the living delegates to the Constitutional Convention, Supreme Court Justice Alejo Labrador, and Rep. Justiniano S. Montano representing the House of Representatives.

Jose Ma. Recto, son of the late Senator, who spoke on behalf of the family, thanked friends and various organizations who had extended their sympathies and rendered homage to his father.

“My father died the way he wanted to. He died in line of duty fighting to the end. Although his loss is irreparable to us, we derive consolation from the fact that he has served our country well,” he said in a half choked voice.

President and Mrs. Garcia and their daughter Linda left Malacañang about 8 o’clock in the morning and arrived at the Senate session hall 15 minutes later.

After condoling with Mrs. Recto and the members of the family, the President ascended the rostrum flanked by Senate President Eulogio Rodriguez, Sr., and Speaker Daniel Z. Romualdez.

Also in attendance were Cabinet members, solons, members of the judiciary and the diplomatic corps, former delegates to the Constitutional Convention, close friends and relatives, and a big number of people who wanted to get a close last look at the late Senator.

Col. Nicolas Ortega, chief of the AFP chaplain corps, delivered the invocation while the Philippine Constabulary Band, under the baton of Col. Antonio Buenaventura, played In Memoriam and Nearer My God to Thee, and furnished the accompaniment to Salvacion Oppus-Ymguez, soprano who sang Ave Maria.

After the services, the President descended from the platform and headed the pallbearers for the late Senator. As soon as the funeral cortege had formed, the President motored back to Malacañang, arriving at the palace at 11 a.m.

Mrs. Garcia and daughter Linda joined the funeral cortege consoling Mrs. Recto, and returned to the Palace after the interment at the Manila North Cemetery.

Today the President received Philippine Ambassador to Rome Roberto Regala, who reported on the forthcoming International Conference on Diplomatic Agents and Immunities to be held in Vienna in March in pursuance of a United Nations resolution.

The President agreed with Ambassador Regala that the Philippines should be well represented at the conference.

Former President Sergio Osmeña, Sr., also called on President Garcia immediately after his arrival from Cebu. The former President paid his respects.

Tomas Quirino, son of the late President Elpidio Quirino, also called on the President. Quirino is leaving for a three-week visit to Indonesia at the invitation of Indonesian President Sukarno.

October 12.—EARLY this morning President Garcia made a surprise visit to the Manila Railroad Company terminal and station in Tutuban and urged railroad officials to complete as soon as possible MRR modernization plans.

The President inspected the different offices of the MRR, including the office of the general manager, the board of directors, conference room, the terminals for passengers and freights, the passenger waiting stations, and the office of the chief dispatcher where he was briefed on the operations and movements of passenger and freight trains.

The President said that, even with the various improvements and innovations already made, there is still much to be desired by way of affording the public the comforts and conveniences of modern-day travel.

President Garcia was so impressed by the modernization plans of the MRR that he directed MRR General Manager Teofilo Zosa to start their immediate implementation.

The President also approved Zosa's plan to purchase 60 passenger coaches, ten diesel engines, and 100 flat and freight cars to accommodate the ever-increasing passenger and freight demands. Spare parts, the lack of which is holding up the repair of the railway rolling stocks, will also be imported immediately.

The modernization of the MRR communications system was also earmarked for immediate implementation.

The President, accompanied by Press Secretary Jose C. Nable and Maj. Ciriaco Hocson, military aide, left the MRR much impressed by the cleanliness and the improved facilities of the government transportation firm.

President Garcia today pressed for the immediate start of the ₱50 million bond issue to get the integrated steel mill rolling by the end of next year.

The President also urged the early establishment of a modern automatic telephone exchange at the Manila International Airport to cope with the requirements of increasing air traffic.

Secretary Moreno called on the President for final instructions this morning before leaving for Japan tomorrow to attend several conferences, among them the International Board of Consultants (IBC) meeting which will pass upon the safety factor in the proposed Marikina dam multi-purpose projects.

Much concern and uneasiness had been generated by reports that the construction of the Marikina multi-purpose project, which was planned by a Japanese firm of consultants, was not safe, thus delaying the start of construction.

Creation of the IBC, which is composed of noted world specialists in engineering, geology, and dam design, had previously been approved by the President to determine once and for all the merits of the proposed multi-purpose project at Marikina.

Members of the IBC are Dr. Frank A. Nickell, George E. Goodall, and John Hammond, Americans; Dr. Alfred Falconnier, Swiss; Dr. Joseph Duffaut, French; Claudio Marchello, Italian; and a Filipino representing the Japanese firm.

Secretary Moreno informed the President of the serious communications lack at the Manila International Airport and suggested that a modern 400-automatic telephone system be set up by negotiated sale.

Secretary Moreno said that the Tele-Service Company (representing the National Electric Company of Japan), and the ITF Philippines, a branch of International Standard Electric Corporation, are interested in handling the job, as well as the expansion and modernization of the nationwide telecommunications system, either through reparations or through the firms, worldwide procurement method.

The President agreed with Secretary Moreno on the pressing need for an automatic telephone exchange at the MIA.

The President also discussed with Secretary Moreno and Bernardo Abrera, general manager of the National Steel and Shipyard Corporation, the sale of bonds for the integrated steel mill in Iligan, Lanao, which may be announced to the public this week.

The President again reiterated the importance of getting the mill rolling in order to keep pace with, the industrial growth of the country by providing basic materials for heavy industries.

November 4 this year has been set as the deadline for the sale of bonds for the steel mill which will be convertible into shares to stock (under separate contract) in the private corporation.

The Cabinet had also recommended that the buyer of the largest amount of bonds will lead in the formation of the private corporation which will eventually manage the steel mill, but each bond buyer is limited to not more than 34 per cent of the total amount of capital subscribed.

Also present at the conference was Chairman Rodolfo Maslog of the Reparations Commission, who briefed the President on possible prospects of securing equipments for the projects through reparations.

Secretary Moreno, who will be in Japan for two or three weeks, is the Philippine delegate strong vice-presidential candidate to the International Commission on Large Dams whose meeting he will also attend.

President Garcia today took up with his Cabinet reports on the upward swing of prices of prime commodities and decided to proclaim a state of public calamity in Manila, Quezon City, and Pasay, and seven provinces.

The President also received executives of the Pacific Far East Lines who paid their respects, accompanied by Mariano Laurel, president of the Philippine Banking Corporation.

The PFEL officials who called on the President were Clarence Morse, president, George Gmelch, and Bill Harder, vice-president of the corporation. They are in Manila on an inspection of the company installations.

The President later received Ilocos Norte Governor Jose E. Evangelista, who sought budgetary and relief aid as well as public works fund releases for his province; and Vice-Gov. Inday Melencio of Nueva Ecija and three town mayors who came to thank the President for relief extended to the province.

The Nueva Ecija delegation was composed of Vice-Gov. Melencio, former Governor Jose' Robles, Guimba Mayor Virgilio Calica, Muiioz Mayor Dominador Santos, Gabiao Mayor Gregorio T. Crespo, and MVO Assistant Chief Aurelio de Leon.

The President this day mobilized all relief agencies in Manila and Central Luzon and warned people living near creeks and lowlands to move to safer places to forestall possible repetition of the May 28 disaster which wrought considerable loss to lives and property.

The President also directed Executive Secretary Natalio P. Castillo to alert members of the National Emergency Relief Coordinating Committee and be ready to extend immediate assistance to typhoon sufferers. He asked his executive secretary, who is chairman of the NERCC, to keep him posted on the extent of damage and the flow of relief to needy areas.

The President also suspended all classes the whole day and sent all government employees home at noon for the rest of the day, as Manila braced for typhoon Lola, which was reported sweeping toward Manila from the north.

The President also enjoined all Army and Constabulary as well as police agencies not only to maintain peace but to be ready at all times to go to the aid of people needing their assistance under the fury of the raging typhoon and floods.

Among the agencies alerted by the President were the Social Welfare Administration, the Philippine National Red Cross, national and city health departments, the Philippine Army, Navy, Air Force, and Constabulary, and all police agencies in Manila and suburbs.

In his warning to the people inhabiting low grounds, the President said that the flash flood which hit Manila and nearby cities last May 28 might recur and that it would be best to evacuate to higher grounds, far from creeks and rivers, at least for the night typhoon "Lola" was expected in Manila.

President Garcia also ordered the immediate formation of price-control teams to check on rising prices of commodities in Manila, Pasay, and Quezon Cities, and the provinces of Bulacan, Rizal, Pampanga, Tarlac, Pangasinan, and Samar.

The President warned that all dealers caught violating the price control law which prohibits hoarding and sale of prime commodities at prices 25 per cent more than those prevailing a month before, will get the full measure of punishment.

The President said that people who had suffered enough from floods and typhoons should not be made to suffer further from food shortage due to rising prices but should be aided in their efforts to rehabilitate themselves.

The Chief Executive last night issued a proclamation declaring a state of calamity in Manila and suburbs as well as in nearby provinces in an effort to arrest spiralling prices of prime commodities.

October 14.—PRESIDENT Garcia today was pleased by reports that members of the Philippine delegation to the United Nations stood up against Soviet Premier Khrushchev and put up a show out-talking the Communist leader.

Impressed by the courage of the Philippine delegation, especially Senator Lorenzo M. Sumulong, the President wired the mission and congratulated it for its showing in the UN.

At the same time, the President sent a cable to U.S. President Eisenhower on the occasion of his 70th birth anniversary.

The Chief Executive, in his message to the U.S. President, conveyed the Filipino people's fervent prayer for his continued excellent health so that he can continue his vigorous leadership of the Free World against the Communist menace.

President Garcia this morning declared Zamboanga del Norte under a state of calamity, to arrest rapidly rising prices of prime commodities.

Zamboanga del Norte was the first province in Mindanao and the eleventh so far placed under a state of calamity by the President. Others are Manila, Pasay, and Quezon cities; and Bulacan, Rizal, Pampanga, Tarlac, Pangasinan, Nueva Ecija, and Samar.

The President had decreed the enforcement of the price control law in these areas, which prohibits the sale of any commodity at 25 per cent more than its price the month before, as well as hoarding.

Even while the President was waiting for the price list prepared by the Department of Commerce, he had directed the formation of price control teams by all agencies of the government concerned, to check hoarding and profiteering in the wake of calamities.

Zamboanga del Norte was placed under this state of calamity upon representations made by Rep. Alberto Ubay, who informed the President of the seriousness of the situation in his province where, according to him, the price of rice has gone up to ₱1.60 per ganta.

In a separate conference, the President placed under advisement the proposal of Rep. Francisco Sumulong of Rizal to nationalize all roads in the various projects of the People's Homesite and Housing Corporation in Quezon City.

Rep. Sumulong informed the President that all project roads, particularly those in Projects 3, 4, and 8, are in a serious state of disrepair because the PHHC had no funds and the Quezon City government was reluctant to take them over in their present condition.

The President told Rep. Sumulong to submit an estimate of the cost of repair and maintenance and a resolution of the PHHC board approving their nationalization so that he can refer the matter to the Department of Public Works for further study.

The President also conferred with Speaker Protempore Constancio Castañeda, Reps. Salipada Pendatun of Cotabato, Joaquin R. Roces of Manila, and Aguedo Agbayani of Pangasinan, on matters pertaining to their respective provinces.

Other morning callers were Reps. Tobias Fornier of Antique and Emilio Cortez of Pampanga, who requested fund releases for various public works projects in their localities.

This afternoon the President assured Rep. Ricardo Y. Ladrado of Iloilo that the proposed Calinog multipurpose project will be placed on the agenda of the Council of State at its next meeting.

The President gave the assurance after receiving the preliminary survey report and the recommendations made by the National Power Corporation and the Department of Public Works and Communications, giving the project a high priority.

The project is estimated to cost ₱21 million to be financed out of bond issue. It is similar to the proposed Marikina multi-purpose project and will include a hydroelectric plant, irrigation system, and waterworks reservoir.

Rep. Agaton Ursua of Camarines Sur also saw the President to request the release of ₱15,000 appropriated in Republic Act No. 2701 for the repair of the Cabusao-Libmanan waterworks, whose dikes were destroyed by a recent flood. The request of the Bicol solon was endorsed to Malacañang technical assistants for study.

Other callers were Ambassador Jose Imperial, who is soon leaving for his new post in Bangkok, Sen. Eulogio Balao and Rep. Benjamin T. Ligot of Cagayan, and Govs. Constantino Navarro of Surigao del Norte and Ricardo Castillo of Surigao del Sur, who took up local matters with the President.

October 15.—PRESIDENT Garcia today directed members of his Cabinet to submit quarterly progress reports of the accomplishments of their respective departments.

The President said that he would like to render periodic reports to the people on the progress of various activities and projects being undertaken by the government in different fields.

“The people are entitled to know,” he added.

The President also spurred his department-secretaries to improve further their records which, he said, had already shown remarkable accomplishment in previous progress reports.

Waking up early this morning, the President boarded his launch. The Chief, and crossed over to the Malacañang Park where he had his daily stroll. He was accompanied by Major Ciriaco Hocson, junior military aide, and some other assistants who briefed him on varied matters as he went along.

The President also spent some time practicing power drives with a golf club with some golfers heckling from the sidelines, including Misses Dee Munson and Lilian Price, staff members of the Foremagazine, the only golf weekly in the country.

At the conclusion of his practice session, the President was presented with a plaque and identification card making him honorary president of the Malacañang Golf Association. The presentation was made by Justice Fred Ruiz Castro of the Court of Appeals, chairman of the club’s board of directors, in the presence of club members, including Dr. Wigberto Clavecilla, Tomas Cloma, Luis Conception, and Mrs. Constancio Leuterio.

” I thank you for this honor and I hope I will be an asset instead of a liability to the club,” the President said.

Returning to Malacañang about 9 a.m., the President had breakfast with Mrs. Garcia. Then he conferred with Executive Secretary Natalio P. Castillo, who consulted him on pending matters.

In the afternoon the President motored to his Bohol Avenue residence in Quezon City, where he received a large group of provincial governors and city mayors.

President's Week in Review: October 16-22, 1960

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

October 16.—PRESIDENT Garcia today issued two proclamations declaring the periods from November 13 to 19 as “Business and Professional Women’s Week” and from November 21 to 27, this year, as “Accountancy Week.”

In declaring a Business and Professional Women’s Week, the President called upon all residents of the Philippines to cooperate in focusing the attention of the people on the important contribution of business and professional women to the economy of the country as well as on the problems brought about by their other dual role as homemakers and earners.

In his other proclamation the President also took cognizance of the immense contribution of accountants to the progress of the national economy by reason of the vantage position they occupy in business, finance, and industry which, he said, deserves public recognition.

The President also issued an executive order creating the municipality of San Miguel in the new province of Zamboanga del Sur upon recommendation of the provincial board.

The new municipality of Zamboanga del Sur is composed of the barrios and sitios of San Miguel, Alanguilan, Bulawan, Batinan, Daoan, Dumali-an, Fatima, Guipos, Laperian, Mati, Limonan, Tapan, Taliga, Calubi, Bagong Oroquieta, Tulabug, and Tiguha, all in the municipality of Diñas.

President and Mrs. Garcia commemorated the 26th birthday of their daughter Linda by hearing mass at the Malacañang chapel early this morning.

Among those who heard the mass were Speaker and Mrs. Daniel Z. Romualdez, Secretary and Mrs. Felixberto Serrano, Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Isagani V. Campo, Dr. and Mrs. Alejandro Gaerlan, and Mrs. Amparo P. Villamor.

Speaker Romualdez called at Malacañang this morning to say goodbye prior to his departure for the United States this afternoon.

After receiving friends at breakfast, the President and the First Lady motored to their Bohol Avenue residence in Quezon City where they spent the rest of the day.

October 17.—THIS morning President Garcia ordered Acting Public Works Secretary Marciano Bautista to start immediately repair work on the Arnedo dike in Pampanga, which burst for the second time at the height of typhoon Lola.

Angered when informed by Press Secretary Jose C. Nable that the dike burst again, the President snapped: “What kind of engineers do we have?”

The Chief Executive promptly called Secretary Bautista by phone and directed him to visit personally the dike. The President demanded an explanation why the dike had burst again. He had been previously informed that repair was already completed on the dike the first time it burst.

The President also:

(1) Directed Health Undersecretary Rafael Tumbukon to send immediately water purifiers and medical teams and supplies to the flooded areas. He specifically alerted Tumbukon on health measures to be adopted in these areas.

(2) Ordered the Armed Forces of the Philippines to dispatch the entire corps of engineers to assist the public works department in the repair of the damaged dike; and

(3) Instructed Social Welfare Administrator Amparo P. Villamor to rush all relief available to the flood victims.

Immediately after the order of the President was given, Secretary. Bautista called a staff meeting of department engineers to discuss ways of repairing the dike. He said P70,000 was available. He said he would leave for Pampanga right after the conference and view the damages on the dike and on other public works.

President Garcia today assured local plywood manufacturers that he will look into their complaint against the operations of the Jones Veneer and Plywood Company of Eugene, Oregon.

The President said that he will call Central Bank officials to a conference to get a clearer picture of the matter. He was apprised of plight of the Philippine Plywood industry in the face of the operations of the Jones Veneer and Plywood Company by members of the Plywood manufacturers' Association of the Philippines who blamed the American plywood firm for the present difficulties that the local industry now faces in the United States market.

The PMAP group, composed of Nicholas N. Kosloff, president, Richard Barlett and Eduardo Cojuangco, directors, informed President Garcia that the Jones Co. buys lauan veneer in the Philippines, then converts same into plywood with Douglas fir core and backs and labels the product as Philippine plywood.

The Jones Co., the President was informed, sells its so-called Philippine plywood at a cheaper price.

In view of the competition, the President was also informed that total U.S. plywood imports from the Philippines for the first semester of 1960 was 24.3 per cent less than the same period last year.

The reduction of Philippine plywood exports to the U. S. market has, as a result, caused two plywood plants operating in the Philippines to curtail production and nine others have either discontinued or are planning to stop operation.

The President also received Ambassador Walter Hofer of Switzerland, who is soon leaving to assume his new post as Swiss ambassador to Bangkok and concurrent minister to Burma.

In bidding goodbye to the President, the Swiss envoy recalled his enjoyable stay of five years and eight months in the Philippines.

Col. Jose Lukban, chief of the National Bureau of Investigation, was able to get the President's approval to the construction of the new P1.5 million NBI building in Port Area.

Ambassador Jose Ma. Delgado called on President Garcia before leaving for his post in the Vatican. The Filipino envoy returned to the Philippines for a short vacation and celebrated here his golden wedding anniversary.

This evening, the President exchanged best wishes with President Chiang Kai-shek, of the Republic of China.

The President conveyed his greetings to Generalissimo Chiang through a big group from the Chinese National War College who paid their respects to the Chief Executive at Malacañang.

The group, accompanied by Chinese Ambassador Tuan Mao-lan, gave the President a copy of The Works of Dr. Sun Yat Sen and a brochure of the college. They thanked the President for making possible their visit to further their studies of the economic, political, and military set-ups of the Philippines and other countries.

The spokesman, Lt. Gen. Shu Pei-ken, personally conveyed to President Garcia the warm greetings and felicitations of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek for the Chief Executive's full recovery and well-being.

The group, which is directly under the command of General Chiang Kai-shek, is headed by its Dean, Lt. Gen. Shu, and is composed of various department heads, members of the legislative and executive yuans, and the Chinese navy.

Among the group were Lee You-lin, Pan Liang-fong, Wang Ta-jun, and James Tsao of the legislative yuan, Minister of Economic Affairs Tsai Meng-gian, Vice-Chairman of Vocational Assistance Commission for retired Servicemen Chao Tsu-yu, Director Shen Jintai of the first department, Council for US aid, and Tan Lian-chao.

The military group was composed of four lieutenant generals, one vice-admiral, two rear admirals, five major generals and one lieutenant colonel.

The group, which arrived Sunday noon, will leave Manila Wednesday for Thailand and Vietnam before returning to Taipei.

After receiving the Chinese War College group, the President conferred with Lt. Gen. Manuel F. Cabal on the peace-and-order situation, and later received a group of municipal mayors from Cagayan.

The Cagayan delegation was headed by Senator Eulogio Balao, Rep. Benjamin Ligot, Jose P. Carag, former Cagayan governor and ex-chairman of the Commission on Election, and provincial officials, municipal mayors, and vice-mayors.

The delegation presented a resolution to the President pledging their loyalty and support to his re-election, and sought the release of typhoon relief funds for destruction wrought by the last typhoon to crops and public works projects. The resolution was signed unanimously by all the members of the delegation and 22 mayors of Cagayan.

Among the members of the delegation were Cagayan Vice-Gov. Diosdado Magayano; Board Members Mike Caronan, Consuelo Carag, and Benjamin Cortes; and some 30 municipal mayors and vice-mayors.

President Garcia today reiterated full confidence in the members of the Philippine panel negotiating a treaty of friendship, commerce, and navigation with Japan.

The President categorically stated he has no intention whatsoever of appointing a substitute in place of former Speaker Jose B. Laurel as head of the Philippine mission.

Press Secretary Jose C. Nable said the presidential assurance retaining former Speaker Laurel as chief of the Philippine mission was made to spike reports and speculations that Laurel would be changed.

The panel, led by former Speaker Laurel, conferred with the president and briefed the Chief Executive on several aspects of the proposed treaty with Japan.

The conference lasted over half an hour. Nable added that the Philippine panel members are scheduled to leave for Japan soon.

Those who met the President were former Speaker Laurel, Senator Rogelio de la Rosa, Rep. Antonio Raquiza of La Union, Central Bank Deputy Governor Andres V. Castillo, Jose Laurel III, Minister Enrique Garcia and Prof. Monico Vicente of the Department of Foreign Affairs.

October 18.—PRESIDENT Garcia today endorsed to the Department of Commerce and Industry the plan of the National Federation of Sugarcane Planters to seek additional foreign markets for the exportation of sugar.

The President also directed the Philippine embassy in Washington through the Department of Foreign Affairs to Work for the adoption of the present sugar quota in the United States on a permanent basis.

The President's action was made following a conference with Jose Mapa Gomez, president of the NFSP, who informed the Chief Executive of the bright prospect of sugar production far in excess of the local requirements and foreign quota commitments this year.

Gomez was accompanied by Rep. Vicente Gustilo of Negros Occidental, who asked the President for relief aid and funds for the reconstruction of several public works projects damaged by typhoon Lola.

The President also approved the recommendation of Rep. Delfin Albano of Isabela for the reopening of several subports in the Sulu archipelago to curb rampant smuggling and piracy prevalent in the area.

Today being congressman's day, callers consisted mostly of congressmen, who requested release of funds for public works projects and relief aid for their respective districts.

Among today's callers were Sens. Arturo Tolentino, Quintin Paredes, Alejandro Almendras with Davao provincial officials, and Roseller T. Lim with a group of American businessmen; Reps. Luis Hora of Mt. Province, Leon Guinto, Jr., with District Engineer Ciceron Guerrero of Quezon, Rogaciano Mercado of Bulacan, Pedro Venida of Camarines Norte, Lorenzo Teves and Lamberto Macias of Negros Oriental with Gov. Mariano Perdices and Mayor Jose Pro. Teves of Dumaguete City, Salipada Pendatun of Cotabato, Apolinario Apacible of Batangas, and Eladio Balite and Valeriano Yancha of Samar with Mayor Ildefonso Abanso of Calbiga.

October 19.—TAKING his first out-of town trip since leaving the hospital almost two months ago, the President and the First Lady left Malacañang about 7 a.m. and entrained for a surprise visit to Apalit, Pampanga, to see the extent of the damaged caused by the last flood.

The President commended MRR General Manager Teofilo Zosa for several innovations at the MRR station, especially the neatly clad MRR police which gave him a snappy salute, and the "new look" at the waiting room which greeted him for the first time.

The President also noted long lines of coaches carrying northbound commuters along the railroad tracks. Manager Zosa said that his coaches had to make four or five trips north to handle the heavy flow of daily commuters because the floods had cut up the highway making auto and bus rides hazardous and inconvenient.

Accompanying the President and the First Lady were Defense Secretary Alejo Santos, Education Secretary Jose Romero, Press Secretary Jose C. Nable, and GSIS General Manager. Rodolfo Andal, who were joined at Malolos by Brig. Gen. Isagani V. Campo, PC chief.

At Calumpit the President was appalled by the waters which, although much subsided, still covered the rice paddies as far as the eye could reach. The President saw houses in two feet of water and big mango trees with only their tops above the water.

Arriving at the Apalit junction, the party was welcomed by Apalit townspeople, and officials led by Mayor Alfonso Luge and Supervising Engineer Jose B. Robles.

The presidential party boarded two buses and proceeded to Sulipan for the briefing, after which the President and several members boarded a motor launch and two motorized bancas for the last leg of the trip, to survey repair work in sitio Ungot, barrio Sukad. The President noted that the work in the 150-yard beach had just started. The President ordered Public Works Undersecretary Marciano Bautista, to step up the repair work and complete work by Monday. He directed Bautista to stay behind and finish the repair job by employing three shifts in a round-the-clock schedule.

The President's flood control consists of a long-range project which will call for legislative approval next regular session, and a short-range project for the repair of 49 breaks in the Arnedo dike, three of them described as major breaks averaging 100 meters wide.

Secretary Bautista asked for another P250,000 in addition to P70,000 previously released to complete work on the Arnedo dike.

With the aid of large maps, Secretary Bautista explained to the President that the Pampanga and Angat rivers meet at a confluence in Calumpit, and because of the heavy sedimentation and the fishponds obstructing the outlet, the water creeps over the surrounding area inundating several towns in Bulacan and Pampanga.

Secretary Bautista proposed the construction of a 150-meter wide canal from Calumpit to Manila Bay to provide a free outlet in the Manila Bay for excess water. The project is estimated to cost P2.5 million and can be finished in 18 months.

Secretary Bautista further informed the President that even if the Arnedo dike could withstand the rampaging waters, it is not enough to prevent a flood, especially in Candaba swamp.

He said that a total of 30,000 square kilometers in Central Luzon was under water and that rice plantations in this area suffered heavy losses.

The President announced he will take up with his top advisers a huge flood control project embracing a careful study of the mountain ranges ringing Central Luzon, an extensive and intensive reforestation program under the Reforestation Office, and a further study of the problem of removing illegally constructed fishpond dikes in communal waters.

The President said that nobody had the right to appropriate communal waters for his own selfish and personal ends at the expense of the community or the public.

The Chief Executive also added that he may have to call upon the United States International Cooperation Administration for technical and financing assistance in this project.

The President and the First Lady visited the Apalit church before boarding the bus that took them to the train for their return trip to Manila.

Aboard the presidential train, the President instructed Defense Secretary Alejo Santos and General Manager Rodolfo P. Andal of the Government Service Insurance System to help expedite resettlement of squatters in the Sapang Palay project in San Jose del Monte, Bulacan.

The President registered surprise at the delay of the resettlement of squatters who had been rendered homeless last year, in Sapang Palay and another site in Cavite.

Manager Andal informed the President that the financing arrangement under which the GSIS will float bonds to finance the project at P7.5 million was still being studied by the National Economic Council.

The project involves purchase of 700 hectares of agricultural land at Sapang Palay, San Jose del Monte, Bulacan, for resale at cost to squatters from Manila, Quezon, and Pasay cities.

The President told some newspapermen in an impromptu press conference aboard the presidential train enroute to Apalit, Pampanga, that the case of ten high officials now facing prosecution for "unexplained wealth" should serve stern warning that his administration will not condone graft and other corrupt practices in the government.

The Chief Executive informed the newsmen that when the case was first reported to him, he directed Fiscal Leonardo Lucena, chairman of the Presidential Anti-Graft Committee, to gather enough evidence to support conviction.

“When he had the evidence ready and he came to me, I told him to endorse the cases to the Department of Justice for prosecution,” the President said.

The Chief Executive recalled to the newsmen that the defunct Integrity Board, which was created by the Liberals during the incumbency of the late President Quirino for the avowed purpose of fighting graft and corruption, had “almost nothing” to show by way of accomplishment.

During the conference, the President also recalled that Lt. Commander Calinawan’s clean-up job had netted the government an additional P100 million in customs revenues.

Whereas his two predecessors, Col. Jaime Velasquez and Manuel Manahan, resigned their jobs in exasperation, the President specified that Calinawan was responsible for the cleaning up of the customs bureau and broke up several rackets, among them were: (1) the protection racket at the piers;

(2) hot car racket involving over 1,300 cars purchased through American bases, for which unfortunately the innocent buyers are paying legal taxes:

(3) customs brokers racket, and (4) dollar- smuggling.

THE CABINET approved this evening the terms and conditions for the sale of P50,000,000 worth of government bonds to start the proposed integrated steel mill in Iligan City in Mindanao.

The floating of bonds was made necessary because the National Steel and Shipyard corporation could not handle the huge project by itself and has to go into the venture with the help of private capital.

Under the plan for financing the establishment of the steel mill, which would supply the basic needs of local heavy and light industries, the President would ask Congress to amend the law so that the N.S.S.C. could invest in a private corporation to establish and operate the mill.

The government would acquire through the N.S.S.C. 51 per cent of the capital stock of the new corporation to be set up. Later, the government would dispose of 17 per cent of its stocks to the general public.

Private capital may participate in the venture through the purchase of bonds. These bonds would be sold under certain conditions approved by the Cabinet this evening.

October 20.—PRESIDENT Garcia today expressed gratification over the organization of the Philippine Chamber of Maritime Commerce saying that it will help take care of the multifarious problems affecting the nation’s shipping trade.

The President praised the officers of the newly-organized chamber for the timeliness of its inception during this period when the government is embarking on a bold venture of increasing Philippine shipping tonnage so that at least 30 per cent of the nation’s export and import trade would be carried on Philippine-flag vessels.

The President’s remarks was made following the induction this morning of officers of the PCMC at Malacañang.

According to its organizers, the PCMC was founded to promote maritime interests and to foster closer understanding and cooperation among Filipinos engaged in the maritime industry.

Inducted were Tomas Cloma, president; Mauricio Gallaga, 1st vice-president; Teotimo Roja, 2nd vice-president; Benigno del Rio, treasurer; Felix Flores, secretary; and Bernardo Abrera, Capt. Pedro Tinsay, Delfin Diangco, A. Sol Alcantara, Fermin Francisco, and Felix Alberto, directors.

Earlier this morning the President received a delegation of Shriners from Tacoma, Washington, headed by Ralph Johnstone, who paid a courtesy call following their recent arrival. The Shriners of Washington is "a brotherhood organization for the promotion of goodwill, understanding, and friendship among peoples of the world."

Later, the President received some governors who consulted him on various matters affecting their respective provinces, ranging from relief aid and release of public works funds to promotion of cottage industries.

Among the callers were Govs. Miguel Manguera of Marinduque, Arsenio Lugay of Tarlac, Juan G. Frivaldo of Sorsogon, and Madki Alonto of Lanao del Sur.

President Garcia today lauded the United Nations Food and Agricultural Organization for its vital role in the achievement of maximum agricultural production throughout the world.

The President was host at Malacañang to some 32 delegates from 11 Asian countries and their Philippine counterparts who are holding the Fifth Development Center on Farm Management conference of the FAO in Manila.

During their courtesy call the President underscored the increasing need for cooperative assistance among all nations in a universal effort towards economic self-sufficiency, and expressed hope that the conference will be able to contribute greatly to the improvement of farming methods and techniques, especially in countries devastated by national calamities.

Among those who paid their respects to the President were U Yone Shain, deputy director of Agriculture; Tenasserin, Circle, Moulmain Farm superintendent, Tatkon, Burma; Sidney de Silva, Colombo, Ceylon; Dr. Bhavaraju, Andhra University, Waltair, India; Leim Tjian Hing, Djakarta, Indonesia; Tadakazu Suzuki, Chiba University, Chaiba Prefecture, Japan; Dr. Heung Koun Oh, Institute of Agriculture, Suwon, Korea; Ahmad Bin Mohd Amin, Department of Agriculture, Malaya; Dr. Mohamad Altaf Hussain, Food and Agriculture Ministry, Rawalpindi, Pakistan; Julian Bulanadi, Bureau of Plant Industry, Philippines; Dr. Udhis Narkswasdi, Kasetaart University, Bangkok; Chenata Wong, Laichikok, Hongkong; and Buu Loan, director of Agricultural Extension, Saigon.

Accompanied to Malacañang by Agriculture Secretary Jose M. Trinidad, the delegates were led by Director Eugenio E. Cruz of the Bureau of Plant Industry, chairman of the conference Organizing and Executive Committee; Dean Dioscoro L. Umali of the College of Agriculture of the University of the Philippines; and Dr. Shao-er Ong, so-director of the Center and FAO farm management specialist.

The conference which started on October 3 at the WHO building on Taft Avenue, will end tomorrow, October 21.

The President also received Col. Ismael Lapuz, who came to pay his respects preparatory to leaving for Washington tomorrow to resume his duties as military attache at the Philippine Embassy in the U.S. capital.

Col. Lapuz has been away from the Philippines for over two and a half years, and came home recently to attend the funeral of his father.

The President signed today the appointment of Dr. Valentin Fidelino to the Board of Medical Examiners. Dr. Fidelino, who is chief of the medical services of the V. Luna General Hospital, was chosen from a list of nominees submitted by the Philippine Medical Association.

The President also signed the reappointments of Drs. Cesar Filoteo, Edgardo Caparas, Antonio Guytingco, Oscar Chacon, and Jose Cacjin to the Board of Medical Examiners for another one-year term; and Dr. Pedro Bañez, as chairman of the Board of Dental Examiners for another term of three years.

Other appointments signed by the President were Tiburcio S. Serevo and Carlos Sulit as director and assistant director, respectively, of the Bureau of Forestry, and Deogracias B. Castañeda as member of the Code Commission, vice Dean Francisco Capistrano, who was appointed associate justice of the Court of Appeals.

The President this day directed Commissioner Melencio Domingo of the Bureau of Internal Revenue to report immediately on how far the bureau has gone in the collection of forest charges.

The President issued the directive upon being informed by Executive Secretary Natalio P. Castillo that an estimated P35 million in revenue for the government from forest charges possibly have remained uncollected since 1956.

The BIR through its regional offices is vested with the power to collect forest charges, while the Bureau of Forestry is authorized to collect reforestation fees.

The “unusual” backlog in uncollected forest fees was attributed to alleged failure of the BIR agencies to press collection even after the expiration of the 60 day grace period usually given ordinary timber license holders to settle their obligation as well as the irregular granting of clearances to license holders.

Justice Buenaventura Ocampo, PCAFE chairman, disclosed that 80 per cent of the clearances received by the BF before an ordinary timber license could be renewed by the bureau were allegedly found to be irregular.

Justice Ocampo explained that a new forestry rule requires the licensees to settle their back dues with the bureau before their respective licenses could be renewed. A clearance from the municipal treasurer showing that they have paid their corresponding obligation is a condition precedent for the issuance of their license.

THIS evening President Garcia reiterated the Philippine stand on the — Quemoy-Matsu question as laid down by the National Security Council several years ago.

The reiteration was contained in his wire addressed to Sen. Lorenzo Sumulong, member of the Philippine delegation to the United Nations, congratulating him for his statement regarding the Administration’s efforts to combat communism in this country.

Sen. Sumulong’s statement had been issued in reply to a misrepresentation made by Vice-President Macapagal in his speech before the American Legion in Miami, Florida.

“It is unfortunate that untruths which find no acceptance in our country should be peddled in foreign lands,” the President said in his wire.

He added: “With respect to the Quemoy-Matsu question, the United States state department had been informed of the decision we had taken in the National Security Council which is far from the opinion expressed by the Vice-President who definitely has no right to distort or misrepresent the official stand of this country.”

Meanwhile, President Garcia received a message from President Eisenhower, who expressed appreciation for the message of felicitations President Garcia had sent on the occasion of the U. S. President’s recent birthday anniversary.

October 21.—PRESIDENT Garcia today directed the Presidential Committee on Administration Performance Efficiency to forward to the Civil Service Commission all violations of the civil service law and regulations for administration action.

The President took this move to strengthen further the civil service by weeding out all undesirables who have been the butt of public criticisms, from the state payroll.

In his directive to Justice Buenaventura Ocampo, chairman of the PCAFE, the President emphasized that the ultimate goal of the present anti-graft drive is the preservation of a strong civil service system that is free from all kinds of pressures.

The President, however, did not bar the PCAPE from endorsing such cases to the Department of Justice for criminal prosecution, should the evidence be strong enough to support conviction.

The presidential directive also serves as a preventive measure against future violations, because once a case is brought against an employee by the PCAFE to the civil service, his reappointment or promotion will depend upon the outcome of the case against him.

The Civil Service Commission, after receiving such complaint from the PCAPE, will index it in the accused employee's card, and then initiate administrative action before the department head or chief of office, keeping close liaison with the PCAPE and the department until the case is finally resolved.

Justice Ocampo informed the President that he had already forwarded to the Civil Service some 40 cases for laxity and neglect of duty against classified employees and their immediate superiors in the following government offices: Bureau of Lands, Bureau of Public Works, Land Tenure Administration, Office of Parks and Wildlife, Land Registration Office, Bureau of Public Highways, Bureau of Forestry, Bureau of Customs, and Reparations Commission.

The PCAPE chairman said he will also endorse to the Civil Service Commission the case of public officials caught by the PCAFE-PC Trafcon team using government vehicles for unofficial and purely personal purposes, under Circular No. 20 of the General Auditing Office.

The public was also enjoined by Justice Ocampo to cooperate by reporting to the PCAFE any public servant who neglects his duties.

The President today reiterated his determination to rid the government of undesirable and inefficient public servants and to pursue a vigorous campaign against graft and corruption in the government in his remarks following the induction of Vice-Governor Rodolfo Albano, Jr., as governor of Isabela at ceremonies held at the Malacañang social hall this morning.

Albano will be acting governor during the absence of Gov. Melanio Singson, who is on tour of various Far Eastern countries as a PACD grantee to observe the progress and methods in community development for possible adoption in the Philippines.

A large delegation composed of Isabela provincial officials, municipal mayors, political leaders, relatives, friends, and admirers of the inductee witnessed the ceremony. Among those with the group were Sens. Quintin Parades and Eulogio Balao, Rep. Delfin Albano, Gov. Felipe Garduque of Cagayan, and ex-Gov. Felix Caro of Isabela.

The Chief Executive also administered the oath of affiliation to Mayor Herculano S. Basañez of Bislig, Surigao del Sur, in the presence of Govs. Recaredo Gastillo of Surigao del Sur, Constantino Navarro of Surigao del Norte, and Democrito O. Plaza of Agusan and Dr. Pio Castro, board member of Surigao del Sur.

Later the President received some congressmen who consulted him on various matters affecting their respective districts, including release of public works funds and relief to typhoon victims.

Among the callers were Reps. Tobias Fornier of Antique, Francisco Sumulong of Rizal, Rogaciano Mercado of Bulacan, and Fausto Dugenio of Misamis Oriental.

The President this day directed Chairman Marcelino Calinawan of the Presidential Fact-Finding Committee to dig deeper into the alleged syndicated pilfering of goods deposited in customs warehouses at the port area.

The President issued the directive after being informed that 13 typewriters deposited at the Manila Port Service bodega, and consigned with the Presidential Assistant on Community Development “mysteriously” disappeared from the MPS warehouse in the Port Area.

PACD Chief Ramon Binamira, who was told of the alleged loss of PACD typewriters, brought the matter to the attention of the PCAFE which conducted an informal investigation of the reported pilferage.

Preliminary PCAFE reports reveal that two of the 13 allegedly pilfered typewriters were already recovered, one of which was found inside the washlocker of a certain captain connected with the MPS.

The President in his directive ordered Calinawan to look into the possibility that the pilferage activities might be syndicated and that certain MPS officials might be linked with the syndicate which has caused tremendous losses in taxes and other fees in favor of the government.

October 22 —THIS morning the President embarked upon a massive, long and short-range program of flood control with the view to saving the nation’s rice granaries in Central Luzon from recurrent floods with the assistance of the International Cooperation Administration of the United States.

The President invited Paul D. Summers, ICA chief, to a breakfast conference this morning at his Bohol Avenue residence in Quezon City. He received assurance that the local ICA office will extend all assistance in getting the financial and technical support of the U.S. Government to this ambitious project.

The President also summoned Chairman Jose C. Locsin from a weekend vacation in his native province of Negros Occidental and directed him to coordinate with the ICA in drawing proposed blueprints and adopting a method of financing for this massive undertaking.

President Garcia emphasized to the two officials in his conference with them this morning the need for quick action, pointing out that the 17 typhoons which visited the country so far this year had nullified the all-out efforts of the government to restore the nation’s rice granary to its original productivity.

He said that fund releases amounting to from P100,000 to P200,000 for the rehabilitation of farmers in Central Luzon provinces as a result of the destructive floods had constituted a heavy drain from the President’s contingent fund. Seedlings purchased and distributed to the farmers were being unceremoniously washed away by the new floods, the President said.

In his inspection trip to Pampanga, where the President and the First Lady saw the breaches in the Arnedo dike caused by the recent floods, the President was appalled by the destruction to crops.

He had informed Public Works Undersecretary Marciano Bautista that he would seek ICA technical and financial support to a gigantic flood control system embracing a careful study of the mountain ranges ringing Central Luzon, an intensified reforestation program by the Reforestation Administration, a restudy of the illegally constructed fishponds in communal waters blocking natural outlets.

The President envisioned construction of a major 150-meter wide diversionary canal from the confluence of the Pampanga and Angat Rivers in Calumpit to Manila Bay, and a system of subsidiary laterals to other outlets to prevent the water from inundating the extensive rice lands.

Undersecretary Bautista assured the President that this canal system, which will cost about P2.5 million and take 18 months to finish, will solve the flood control problem.

The President had instructed Secretary Bautista to rush the repair work on the Arnedo dike, and to use stronger materials for the job to prevent future breaks.

This noon the President showed his determination to check spiralling prices of prime commodities as he created task forces for the provincial, city, and municipal levels charged with the strict implementation of the price control law in their respective jurisdictions.

The task force for the provincial level is composed of the commercial agent as chairman, the provincial Constabulary commander as vice chairman, and the superintendent of schools and the provincial treasurer as members.

For the city and municipal levels, the city or municipal treasurers were designated chairman, and the chiefs of police, labor agents, and Constabulary operatives as members.

The task force for Manila has a different composition in that a representative of the Presidential Committee on Administration Performance Efficiency is made team leader, with a commercial agent from the Bureau of Commerce, a representative from the Manila Police Department or the Mayor's squad, and another representative from the National Marketing Corporation, as members.

Charged with the strict enforcement of the price control law, otherwise known as Public Act No. 4164, these task forces created in three cities and nine provinces where the President had proclaimed a state of calamity, will apprehend violators and file the corresponding charges with the fiscal's office in their respective localities.

Formation of the task forces was recommended by Commerce Secretary Manuel Lim in the course of a two-hour conference at the President's Bohol Avenue residence in Quezon City this noon.

Secretary Lim informed the President that the power of the task forces to confiscate prime commodities found hoarded by unscrupulous persons was still being studied by the Department of Justice.

Under Public Act 4164, violation of the price control law is punishable with a fine of not less than P200 nor more than P2,000 or with imprisonment of not less than two months nor more than two years, or both, at the discretion of the court; and confiscation of properties of the corpus delecti. In the case of corporations, the managers or the administrators will be held criminally liable under the law.

Secretary Lim reported during the conference that the prices of prime commodities which had threatened to go out of hand, generally had gone down or stabilized as compared to prices before the proclamation of state of calamity. He said that the prices of canned goods hardly fluctuated as a result of successive typhoons and floods owing to widespread distribution of NAMARCO goods.

The President approved Secretary Lim's recommendation not to declare as yet a state of calamity in Jolo as a result of two recent destructive fires which razed the town. Secretary Lim informed the President that he had an agreement with the Social Welfare Administration to flood the town with NAMARCO goods which will be transported by Navy boats.

Warning against unduly proclaiming a state of calamity which invariably disturbs the economy of a locality, Secretary Lim proposed to find out whether the NAMARCO goods which would be sold at Manila prices would not stabilize prices in Jolo. If not, he said, the proclamation would have to be issued as a last resort as recommended by the Sulu Constabulary provincial commander.

The President previously released P20,000 for the purchase of construction materials to house hundreds of families rendered homeless by the conflagrations.

Secretary Lim also informed the President that his recommendation to include six provinces in the Bicol region as proposed, still awaited reports from his agents whom he had dispatched to the locality to find out whether conditions obtaining there warranted such drastic action.

Provinces where the President had so far declared a state of calamity are Rizal, Bulacan, Pampanga, Tarlac, Pangasinan, Nueva Ecija, Samar, Cotabato, and Zamboanga del Norte. The cities are Manila, Pasay, and Quezon City.

Secretary Lim, during his protracted conference with the President, took up other problems of his department, including increases in its budgetary appropriations so that he could employ competent technical men which he considered indispensable for the efficient operation of his office.

President's Week in Review: October 23-29, 1960

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

October 23.—PRESIDENT Garcia today directed a full inquiry into the alleged arbitrary ouster of a National Development Company employee for having supplied information leading to the discovery of attempted smuggling through NDC owned cargo liners.

Acting through Executive Secretary Natalio P. Castillo, the President said an explanation from the NDC should be forthcoming.

President Garcia emphasized that if reports are true that Hernando Bautista supplied necessary information to government agencies investigating smuggling activities, then he should be commended. The real reason for the dismissal of Hernando Bautista should be explained, President Garcia stated.

The President said he will be closely watching developments in this particular case for he expects other government employees to follow Bautista's example by helping the Administration break graft and corruption in the public service. The President emphasized he will not tolerate acts of reprisal by higher government officials on government employees who perform their duty by exposing graft and corruption.

Justice Buenaventura Ocampo, PCAPE chairman, announced a conference tomorrow with members of the NDC Board of Directors.

President Garcia had last week directed the PCAPE to turn over pertinent papers to the presidential fact-finding committee chairman, Marcelino Calinawan, in connection with investigations on alleged smuggling through NDC-owned cargoliners.

The PCAPE also received report that four other NDC employees, one a legal officer, may also be dismissed for their alleged complicity in divulging information to the PCAPE and subsequently relayed to the PFFC on the alleged smuggling, Major Natividad, PCAPE chief investigator, said.

The first to fall in the move to "silence" allegedly witnesses in the NDC case was Hernando Bautista, and NDC general inspection agent, who is also a PCAPE liaison officer in that corporation.

Bautista last week conferred with Major Teodulo Natividad, PCAPE chief investigator, upon requests of the PCAPE, to clarify certain matters asserted: in the documents linking top NDC officials in alleged smuggling in four other voyages of the corporation-owned ocean-going vessels.

The President this day directed the Reparations Commission to work for easier terms of payment in the $250 million economic development loan component of the Reparations Agreement with Japan.

The President gave this directive upon being informed that Filipino industrialists and businessmen are reluctant to take advantage of the huge loan opportunity because the Japanese group imposes stiff terms of payment which they found Very hard to meet.

Chairman Rodolfo Maslog of the Reparations Commission had reported to the President earlier that only one Filipino firm, the General Shipping Company, had applied for loan under this provision in the five years the agreement had been in effect.

The General Shipping Company had obtained a $1.4 million loan for the purchase of an interisland passenger-cargoship, making a down payment of 20 per cent and paying the balance over a period of seven years at the prevailing international rate of interest.

The President told Maslog to secure revision of the terms of payment, so as to provide for a ten per cent down payment and amortization of the balance over a ten-year period under the same rate of interest.

Members of the Cabinet have decided to celebrate President Garcia's birthday by going out to the typhoon and flood stricken areas to distribute relief to the victims, in deference to the President's wishes.

The Cabinet resolution was in answer to the President's request that instead of spending for the traditional asalto on his birthday, they instead utilize the money for relief and go out to their respective regions to distribute it to the needy.

The President told the Cabinet that he was keenly desirous of furthering the First Lady's pet obsession of helping the needy, and that he wished his birthday to be devoted to an extension of Operations Puso which was launched by the First Lady.

October 24.—PRESIDENT Garcia was reported today to have given Isabelo Sales, acting manager of the National Development Company, a dressing down for the NDC action in firing Hernando Bautista from the agency.

At his private residence on Bohol Avenue, Quezon City, the Chief Executive called down Sales for what the President said was an attempt by the NDC to subvert his administration's campaign to stamp out graft and corruption in the public service.

The President this morning signed an executive order creating the new municipality of Barobo in Surigao del Sur.

Creation of the new-town was recommended by a resolution of the provincial board of Surigao del Sur in answer to the petition of the residents of all the barrios and sitios comprising the new municipality.

The municipality of Barobo as constituted will comprise of the following barrios and sitios of Lianga, Surigao del Sur, Barobo, Wacat, San Vicente, Anaga, Bohi, Canbagang, Javier, Yaco, Dapdap, Kinaya, Rizal, Gamit, and Cabacongan.

Esteban Bernido of Bohol, Provincial Board Member Pio Castro of Surigao del Sur Barobo Mayor Felix Urbiztondo, and Vice-Mayor Domingo N. Sarcos.

Later the President received Jesus Cabarrus, president of the Marinduque Iron Mines and Acoje Mining Company, who reported on the progress of negotiations for development loans from the Export-Import Bank of Washington to develop copper, zinc, iron, and chrome ore deposits in Mindanao.

Cabarrus informed the President that he had finalized negotiations for a $16.5 million loan for the Marinduque Iron Mines, to set up an integrated copper-zinc mill in Iligan, Lanao, and another $1.5 million for the Acoje to set up a ferro-chrome processing plant also in Iligan.

Other morning callers were Gerald F. Wilkinson of Theo H. Davies and Company, NAMARGO General Manager Jose Y. Orosa, and Executive Secretary Natalio P. Castillo, who discussed pending official matters with the President

This morning the President conferred the Philippine Legion of Honor with the rank of Commander on Ambassador, Jose Ma. Delgado for outstanding service in promoting harmonious and cordial relations between the Philippines and the Holy See.

In conferring the award, the President said that Ambassador Delgado's "deep and solid humanistic training and dynamic Filipinism has earned for the Philippines the respect and esteem of the cultured and diplomatic world of Rome," thereby contributing to the promotion of cordial relations between the two states.

President Garcia directed Executive Secretary Natalio P. Castillo today to initiate criminal proceedings against two Malacañang assistants nabbed by the Philippine Constabulary while allegedly extorting money.

The President's order was made after he directed the dismissal of the two assistants, Jose L. Pascual and Damaso Corsiga. Secretary Castillo said Pascual and Corsiga were fired effective October 21 in accordance with the President's instructions.

The two Malacañang assistants were caught by a PC team headed by Capt. Fabian Ver while allegedly extorting money from the owner of the Shopwell Grocery Store on Shaw. Boulevard, Mandaluyong, Rizal, in the morning of October 20.

Pascual and Corsiga were with two others when they were nabbed by the PC. Capt. Ver said that Pascual and Corsiga yielded ₱200 in marked bills handed to them earlier by the grocery store owner.

It was, further reported that the PC team produced a concealed camera and a tape recorder which had set down the movements and recorded the conversation between the grocery store owner and Pascual and his companions.

Pascual and his companions, the PC team said, had visited the grocery store twice before they were caught.

October 25.—THIS morning the President addressed an appeal to young men of the medical profession to establish their practice in the rural areas where their services are needed most.

The President also recommended passage of legislation to remedy reported inequities in the salaries of government personnel in hospitals, puericulture centers, and rural health units.

The Chief Executive referred to the National Power Corporation for study a plan to extend the Maria Cristina hydroelectric power lines in Iligan so as to provide surrounding areas with cheaper and better light facilities and to encourage the growth of small industries.

In his conference with Sen. Pacita M. Gonzalez, concurrent chairman of the Senate committee on social justice and a joint congressional committee conducting a national health survey, the President said the Administration has been encouraging medical practitioners to establish themselves in the barrios so as to afford the barrio folks the benefits of modern science and medicine.

The President said this will also prevent over-concentration of professionals in cities and other centers of-population which might result in harmful competition.

Sen. Gonzalez informed the President that there was widespread inequity in the pay of government personnel in hospitals, puericulture centers, and rural health units which should be remedied by legislation.

She also recommended the placing of puericulture centers under the national government in order to assure regular service and security of tenure for the personnel.

Upon recommendation of Rep. Laurentino L. Badelles of Lanao del Norte, the President told the National Power Corporations to map out a rural electrification program by extending the Maria Cristina electric lines to the surrounding towns of Capatagan, Causwagan, Bacolod, Maigo, Kolambugan, Tubod, Baroy, and Salvador in Lanao del Norte.

The President said, if the plan works out, the people in these towns will not only get better and cheaper lighting but will increase their incomes by promoting home industries.

The President later received Rep. Jose D. Moreno of Romblon, who reported on the convention of American Hospital Associations which he had attended in San Francisco, California, from August 28 to Sept. 1 this year.

Rep. Moreno was accompanied by Mayor Sancho Faigao of San Agustin, Romblon, who requested seedlings to replant the ricelands which had been destroyed by the last typhoon.

Rep. Canuto Enerio of Zamboanga del Sur also called on the President to request development of Zamboanga City, Pagadian in Zamboanga del Sur, and Isabela in Basilan, into national ports.

It being Congressmen's Day at the Palace, the President also received Reps. Guillermo Sanchez of Agusan and Benjamin Ligot of Cagayan, who sought public works and relief fund releases for their respective districts; and Rep. Jacobo Z. Gonzales of Laguna, Emilio P. Cortez of Pampanga, Lorenzo G. Teves of Negros Oriental, Lamberto Macias of Negros Oriental, and Inocencio Ferrer of Negros Occidental, who consulted him on matters pertaining to their provinces.

The President today congratulated the officers and men of the Armed Forces responsible for the capture of the No. 2 Huk Leader, Ignacio Dabu, at Pasay City last night.

Executive Secretary Natalio P. Castillo today ordered the immediate dismissal from office of a Malacañang employee who received a sum of money from a claimant in consideration for the speedy action on his claim.

Secretary Castillo's action was in line with the Administration's drive to rid the government of misfits and inefficient public servants.

Ordered separated from service was Alex Granado, an employee of the Executive Office who admitted having received a certain sum from one Magno Vito. Vito was formerly with the Presidential Committee on School-house Program and has filed a disability claim with the Office of the Executive Secretary.

"Let this be a warning to all those who would take undue advantage of their connections with this office," Secretary Castillo said. "I will not tolerate the commission of corrupt practices here or in any other office under me," he added.

October 26.—PRESIDENT Garcia this morning received at Malacañang a 25-man farmers' delegation from California.

The farmers informed the President that, although the progress of agriculture in the Philippines was relatively faster than in other countries they had visited during the last few years, still much can be achieved by introducing scientific cultivation and farm mechanization on a major scale.

The President pointed out that a rice research project had been established at Los Baños precisely for this purpose and that he was very optimistic of rapid strides in agricultural production as a result of researches and studies being undertaken at the institute.

The President suggested that the group go out to the provinces and see for themselves actual conditions in the countryside so that they can take home with them a realistic picture of Philippine country life.

Composed of successful farmers in their respective communities in California, the group is on the last leg of a study group of farming techniques in all Pacific and Southeast Asian countries. During their four-day stay in Manila they will be conferring with high government officials in charge of implementing the agricultural program of the Administration and with prominent Filipino planters.

The members of the delegation were Henry Schacht and Carol Keyes, spokesmen, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Benbow, Mr. and Mrs. Simpson Homage, Mr. and Mrs. James Richardson, Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Sieh, Mr. and Mrs. William A. Sims, Harry C. Christen, Reba Edwards, Dr. Lenore D. Campbell, Edna Paar, Vera Webb, and Mesdames Eva H. Christensen, Lilian M. Kelley, Orenia Menzel, Milton Parrar, Florence Sisk, Arthur E. Show, and Merritt A. Trease.

The President also received Gov. Feliciano Leviste, who sought release of funds for public works improvements in Batangas province.

In the evening the President presided over the regular weekly meeting of his Cabinet.

This afternoon the President directed Justice Buenaventura Ocampo, PCAPE chairman, to send immediately a team of PCAPE investigators to Cotabato to verify reports that part of Social Welfare Administration relief goods for distribution to the flood victims had been channelled to the "blackmarket" by SWA employees in that province.

Preliminary PCAPE findings submitted by Sergio Tocaó disclosed that some of the SWA employees of the province allegedly took advantage of their position in falsifying documents to profit from whatever relief aid was given by the President.

Tocaó claimed that emergency relief payrolls were allegedly made to show that three gantas of rice and three cans of sardines were delivered and received by each flood victim, when in fact what were actually delivered and received were two gantas of rice and two cans of sardines. The entries were padded by altering the figures appearing in the documents of disbursements, according to Tocaó.

Justice Ocampo named Gerardo Lituanas and Matias Ranillo, PCAPE special investigating attorneys, to verify this report and if true, to file formal charges, against all the SWA employees linked in the anomaly.

President Garcia this afternoon also directed Justice Ocampo to conduct a complete performance and management survey of the National Development Company to verify reports attributed to Jose S. Rodriguez, NDC board chairman, that the corporation is in the verge of bankruptcy due to mismanagement and inefficiency.

The Chief Executive issued the directive upon being informed by the Natividad committee of the PCAPE conducting a formal inquiry into the alleged arbitrary ouster of Hernando Bautista, that the root of all the squabbles in the NDC is the reported feud existing between the NDC board on one hand and the management of the corporation on the other.

Meanwhile, reports reaching the PCAPE reveal that the NDC board, in a meeting this afternoon restored the item of Bautista. The board in restoring the item declared that the finality of the restoration is conditioned upon Bautista's being able to explain satisfactorily his own alleged involvement in smuggling through NDC-owned cargo-liners.

Rodriguez claimed during the conference with the Natividad committee that the only unit of the corporation that is making profit is the textile unit, but this is not enough to defray the operating expenses of the entire corporation, considering that the other units are losing very heavily.

President Garcia this evening was reported to be studying plans for reorganizing the National Development Company after Economic Coordinator Juan O. Chioco stated at the Cabinet meeting that the conflict between the board and the management appears to be “irreconcilable.”

The President took up the reported feud between the board and the management of the NDC which has been blamed for the heavy losses sustained by the agency.

Jose S. Rodriguez, NDC board chairman, had told the Presidential Committee on Administration Performance Efficiency that the cause of the inefficiency in the agency was the rift between the board and the management.

Rodriguez had charged the NDC with mismanagement and claimed that it is on the verge of bankruptcy.

Chioco recommended the reorganization of either the board or the management, or both in an effort to bail the NDC out from its present mess. He said he had tried to reconcile both factions but failed.

During its meeting the Cabinet also approved contracts entered into by the National Rice and Corn corporation and two firms on the barter of rice.

The two firms, Herminio G. Teves and the Philippine Associated Development Company, had paid in cash for rice from the Naric for barter abroad.

But after the contracts were signed, President Garcia declared a ban on the barter of rice, and the two firms had to sell their rice locally, losing from ₱3 to ₱4 a cavan.

Teves had paid ₱1.7 million in cash for the 4,000 metric tons of rice allotted to him and the P.A.D.C. had paid ₱761,036.55 for 2,236 metric tons of the 4,000 tons awarded to it.

The decision to allow the two firms to import was approved by the Cabinet because these firms had already made commitments abroad.

However, the President instructed Chioco to determine the extent of the commitments. He said the two firms could only import as much as they had already been committed to their contracts abroad.

October 27.—PRESIDENT Garcia today renewed his plea for national discipline which, he said, posed “a supreme challenge to every citizen of our Republic.”

In his keynote address which was read by Press Secretary Jose C. Nable before some 500 college editors and writers at the spacious Baguio City auditorium at Burnham Park this morning, the President emphasized that “national discipline is a most potent element in our efforts at national construction in order to enjoy the bounties of a free and democratic life.”

Press Secretary Nable represented the President as keynote speaker before the Third National Student Press Congress and 30th Annual Conference of the College Editors Guild of the Philippines currently being held at the Pines City.

In his prepared address the President lashed at some so-called leaders who had shown latent lack of national pride by washing political dirty linen in foreign lands, and the professional critics of the Administration whose negative thinking has rendered them virtually, incapable of constructive criticism.

“National discipline means a positive and dynamic mental attitude vibrant with invincible faith and confidence in ourselves. A defeatist mental attitude is suicidal. It is inimical to the interests of the state,” the President warned.

The President today directed the National Rice and Corn Corporation to send immediately 1,000 sacks of rice to Nueva Ecija to relieve the reported rice shortage in the province.

In his directive the President told the NARIC to avail of heavy trucks of the Armed Forces to send at least six rolling stores to the hinterlands where people were reported badly in need of the cereal.

The President also directed Social Welfare Administrator Amparo P. Villamor to extend all possible assistance to the province, upon representations made by Vice-Gov. Inday Melencio and a 50-man delegation composed mostly of town mayors who called at Malacañang this morning.

The Nueva Ecija delegation was received by Mrs. Leonila D. Garcia and Executive Secretary Natalio P. Castillo, who immediately contacted SWA and NARIC officials to relay the President's order.

Secretary Castillo requested the town mayors to submit an estimate of their road needs so that they can be included in the programming of public works projects for their province.

The Nueva Ecija delegation called at Malacañang not only to seek assistance, but to thank the President and the First Lady for making possible the continuous flow of relief to the province, and the launching Operations Puso by the First Lady, which helped much to alleviate the plight of the flood victims.

Among those who called at Malacañang were Cabanatuan City Mayor Mario Garcia, Provincial Board Member Sixto Lustre, City Health Officer Melquiades Ronquilio, PNB Vice-President Conrado Sevilla, General Alfonso Arellano, Ex-Rep. Celestino P. Juan, former Govs. Leopoldo Diaz and Jose Robles, Jr., and the mayors of Licab, Jaen, General Natividad, Cabiao, Talavera, Muioz, Aliaga, Guimba, Zaragoza, Gabaldon, San Isidro, San Leonardo, Laur, Pantabangan, Caranglan, and Rizal.

The President did not receive any caller. He spent the morning with Malacañang assistants clearing his desk of important papers.

Earlier this morning the President sent a message of condolence to the wife of Italian Ambassador to the Philippines Alberto de Clementi, who succumbed to a heart attack at the Manila Doctor's Hospital last night; The President also directed Minister Manuel G. Zamora to send a wreath to the bereaved family of the deceased diplomat.

Waking up early this morning, the President boarded a Palace launch and. crossed over to the Malacañang Park where he had a half-hour practice golf session. He was accompanied by Major Jose Estrella, junior military aide, and Felix Tugot, his golf instructor.

Returning to the Palace about 8 a.m., the President had breakfast with Mrs. Garcia. Then he held a protracted conference with Executive Secretary Castillo, who consulted him on various pending matters.

This afternoon the President directed two graft-busting committees of the government to "spare no one" in the prosecution of those involved in the recently-unearthed alleged smuggling through NDG-owned cargoliner.

In a conference this afternoon at the office of Justice Buenaventura Ocampo, PCAPE chairman, attended by PFFC Chairman Marcelino Calinawan, it was agreed that both their committees will mobilize their legal and investigation divisions to cope with the big number of cases to be filed and to enable them to comply with the President's wish for them to institute the corresponding criminal and administrative charges as soon as possible.

PFFC Chairman Calinawan disclosed that 50 persons will be charged for smuggling, violations of the Central Bank rules and regulations, customs rules and regulations, and the Anti-Graft Law for using government property and equipment for personal profits. The 50 persons include two NDC board members, three captains of vessels, three customs inspectors, 16 barge crew members, 12 customs inspectors, and two officials of the office of the ships' agents. The rest are consignees.

It was agreed during the conference to call the individual consignees of the allegedly highly dutiable goods to explain or shed light on the cases so that proper disposition of the charges could be made.

It was also disclosed during the conference that four boats might be seized by the government as forming part of the so-called "instrument of the crimes."

Present during the conference, aside from Justice Ocampo and Calinawan, were Vice-Chairman Maximo Maceren, Major Teodulo Natividad, Inspector Rosalino Abaya, Antonio Lopez, Mario Camacho, and Major Federico Salcedo, all from the PCAPE.

Meanwhile, Major Natividad, head of the three man committee conducting a complete performance survey of the National Development Company, recommended to the Chief Executive the immediate recall of NDC Manager Jose Panganiban from Japan so that he could present his side in the NDC squabble.

The recommendation was given to Justice Ocampo in the evening for transmittal to the President, who earlier expressed his desire to have a definite picture of the actual situation obtaining in the corporation.

President Garcia also directed today the PCAPE inter-departmental committee to file criminal or administrative charges against persons found responsible in the alleged anomalies unearthed in the defunct Philippine Veterans Board, now the Philippine Veterans Administration.

Auditor General Pedro Gimenez had submitted to the President early this year the result of the GAO program audit conducted on 48 different government agencies. The report had included these alleged anomalies in the former Philippine Veterans Board.

The directive was issued through Executive Secretary Natalio P. Castillo, after he was informed that the PCAPE committee verified and confirmed the GAO findings.

The President, in giving top priority in the investigation of the agency, took into consideration the fact that most of the beneficiaries of the agency are widows and orphans of veterans whose main source of support come from these pensions.

Members of the PCAPE interdepartmental committee are Mario Camacho of the PCAPE, Ben Hur Balboa of the Department of Justice, and Rolando Abaya, accounting analyst of the Budget Commission.

Brig. Gen. Margarito Torralba (ret), new head of the PVA, said that he will turn over to the committee all the documents and papers necessary for the prosecution of the case.

October 28.—PRESIDENT Garcia today paid final tribute to the late Italian Ambassador Alberto de Clemente, whose remains will be shipped to Rome tomorrow.

The President took time out from his official duties and motored to the Italian Embassy on Libertad, Pasay, at 9:30 a.m. accompanied by his daughter Linda, Minister Manuel G. Zamora, and Tarlac Vice-Gov. Benigno Aquino, Jr.

During his visit at the Italian Embassy, the President offered prayers for the deceased and, stayed for a few moments to comfort the bereaved widow and extend his condolence and those of the First Lady.

Returning to Malacañang at 10:15 a.m., the President received some congressmen who discussed with him matters affecting their respective districts.

Rep. Ricardo Y. Ladrado of Iloilo, chairman of the House committee on health, briefed the President on the findings of a joint congressional survey of health conditions in the southern Tagalog and Bicol provinces.

Rep. Ladrido thanked the President for once more showing his concern for the barrio folks when he advocated the sending of more doctors to the rural areas to extend the benefits of modern science and medicine to those who needed them most.

Rep. Francisco Sumulong of Rizal also thanked the President for expediting negotiations for the proposed purchase of Manila Railroad lots in Rizal by the Government Service Insurance System for resale to bona fide tenants at cost.

Rep. Sumulong informed the President that the next step was for the GSIS, as purchaser, and the MRR as seller, to come to an agreement as to the purchase price, so that the land can be acquired by the GSIS for subdivision and sale at nominal cost.

Rep. Sumulong was accompanied by Mayors Teodulo Barnados of Tanay, Manuel I. Santos of Taytay, Jose Alegre of Morong, and Francisco Francisco of Teresa, who requested the release of funds for road building and repair in their respective municipalities.

Other callers included Rep. Salipada Pendatun and Integration Commission Chairman Lugum Uka, who petitioned the President for liberal loans from the Development Bank and the Philippine National Bank, to the Jolo fire victims, for three months' advance salary for government-employees fire victims, and for the immediate payment of their backpay claims, if any.

Other callers were Rep. Tobias Former of Antique, Rep. Dominador Tan of Leyte, and Rep. Alberto Ubay of Zamboanga del Norte, who requested relief and budgetary aid.

Rep. Ubay was accompanied by Provincial Board Members Germanico A. Carreon and Guardson R. Lood, and Labason Mayor Gervacio B. Tocong.

The President issued today Proclamation No. 715, declaring 1961 as Jose Rizal Year, with the slogan "Visit the Philippines—See the Orient."

In another proclamation the President declared Tuesday, November 1 this year as a special public holiday, to give the people, especially those in the provinces, the opportunity to pay homage to their dead on all Saints' Day in keeping with the Filipino tradition.

Next year being the first centenary of the birth of Dr. Jose Rizal, foremost Filipino patriot and hero, the President declared it Jose Rizal Year—a year dedicated to a study of the work of the hero—in order to inspire the people to live the Rizal way.

The President adopted the slogan "Visit the Philippines—See the Orient" to give greater impetus to the development of international tourism and to broaden the significance and meaning of the Rizal Centenary by making its scope international.

In his proclamation the President renewed his invitation to "the peoples of the West to share beauty and enchantment of the East and, if possible, share the joy of honoring Dr. Rizal, who had attained international fame through his deeds and writings."

The President called upon all government officials, individual Filipinos, societies, and associations to observe Rizal Year in a manner commensurate with the honor, dignity and traditional hospitality of the country.

The President today directed Jose V. Rodriguez, board chairman and general manager of the National Rice and Corn Corporation, to buy corn in Visayas and Mindanao and peg the price of corn grit at ₱0.50 a ganta.

The President expressed the belief that the pegged price would protect the consuming public and give sufficient incentives to corn producers.

The NARIC head informed President Garcia that he had reached an understanding with Cebu corn millers and dealers to sell corn grit at the pegged price. He also informed the President that the spiralling of the price of corn grits in Visayas and Mindanao was caused by the manipulations of alien merchants.

The President was informed that the NARIC branch in Cebu had started disposing of its stock of hinumay rice amounting to about 1,600 cavans at ₱1 a ganta in an effort to stabilize the price of rice.

Rodriguez was authorized to utilize NARIC funds for the purchase of corn in Mindanao, especially in Davao where it is now being harvested.

October 29.—PRESIDENT Garcia today directed General Manager Bernardo Torres of the People's Homesite and Housing Corporation to speed up the squatter resettlement projects in Sapang Palay, Bulacan, and in Cavite.

The President also conferred with the members of the Philippine panel negotiating a treaty of friendship, commerce, and navigation with Japan, who called for final instructions before leaving for Japan on November 9, to resume negotiations.

No details were released as to the nature of the President's instructions to the panel, and both Secretary of Foreign Affairs Felixberto Serrano and former Speaker Jose Laurel, Jr., chairman of the panel, withheld comments beyond saying that the panel was leaving November 9 for Tokyo.

Those present at the conference which was held from 9 to 10:30 a.m., at President Garcia's Bohol Avenue residence in Quezon City were Secretary Serrano, Speaker Laurel; Senator Rogelio de la Rosa, Rep. Antonio V. Raquiza of Ilocos Norte, Central Bank Deputy Governor Andres V. Castillo, Commerce Undersecretary Perfecto E. Laguio, Minister Enrique Garcia, Jose Laurel III, and Monico Vicente.

In his later conference with PHHC Manager Torres, the President expressed concern for the immediate resettlement of squatters from Manila and Quezon City slums who had been rendered homeless by succeeding typhoons and floods, at Sapang Palay, San Jose del Monte, Bulacan, and Cavite.

Manager Torres informed the President that the only thing holding up the project was the implementation of the financing arrangement under which the Government Service Insurance System was to purchase bonds up to ₱7.5 million for the acquisition of the 700-hectare Sapan Palay estate in San Jose Del Monte, Bulacan.

Flotation of the bonds, however, has yet to be authorized by the Council of State as required by law.

Sapang Palay alone will accommodate some 15,000 squatter families, Torres informed the President.

The President said he could not convene the Council of State earlier for lack of a quorum because most of its members were out of the country. He assured the PHHC manager that he will convene the council as soon as a quorum can be had.

The President also showed deep concern over the fiscal position of the government housing corporation. He said that he was worried over the foreclosure of PHHC properties by the Government Service Insurance System because it would be unwise for the GSIS to be undertaking too many business enterprises. Besides, the President said, if the GSIS were to develop the properties it has acquired, the houses will be sold only to the policy holders, for to sell them to outsiders would be contrary to the corporate charter.

Chairman Torres informed the President that drastic cuts in the overhead expenses had greatly strengthened the PHHC's cash position and that its total indebtedness of ₱32 million to the GSIS had already been reduced to ₱22 million through cash payments and property transfers.

Manager Torres said that the indebtedness of the PHHC to the GSIS can be further reduced to ₱15 million so that, the amortized payments will be well within its means to meet.

Manager Torres said that in the last eight months the PHHC had been paying an average of ₱250,000 monthly to the GSIS, but if the total indebtedness could be reduced to ₱15 million, it would be paying only ₱166,000 monthly.

President Garcia today released ₱150,000 from the pork barrel fund of Sen. Rogelio de la Rosa for the flood victims of Pampanga, upon Senator De la Rosa's request.

The President later received Ambassador Leon Ma. Guerrero, who came to say goodbye before returning to his post in London as Philippine envoy to the Court of St. James.

Reacting sharply to press reports that the National Rice and Corn Corporation suffered a ₱31 million loss, the President told Justice Buenaventura Ocampo, chairman of the PCAPE, to investigate the reported loss, pin-point responsibility, prosecute the culprits, and to spare nobody who had anything to do with the anomalies.

The President also directed Executive Secretary Natalio P. Castillo to submit to him immediately the report of the General Auditing Office regarding the alleged NARIC losses so that he may be guided accordingly.

Secretary Castillo, when contacted, said he had not finished studying the progress report but that as soon, as he was through, he would brief the President on the alleged NARIC losses.

President Garcia is considering the placing of all government corporate auditors in the pay of the General Auditing Office as one means of stamping out the commission of anomalies in state firms.

The President said that corporate auditors must be independent of the corporations as much as possible, and that the only way to do it is to place them under the pay of the GAO central office so that corporate officials and employees cannot exercise influence over them.

The President said that the present set-up in which the corporation pays the salary of its auditor, places the auditor at the mercy of the board of directors who can increase or reduce his salaries and allowances anytime.

Thus, the President said, he can: be pressured into "closing his eyes" or "looking the other way," and this probably explains why so many irregularities and anomalies are discovered only after they had become too big to hide, thus costing the government enormous losses.

If the auditors were more independent, maybe they could do a better job, of fiscalizing and enforcing to the letter audit rules and regulations, the Chief Executive said.

President's Week in Review: October 30- November 5, 1960

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

October 30.—PRESIDENT Garcia spent this day quietly at his Bohol Avenue residence in Quezon City studying state papers which he had brought along from Malacañang, including the records of a number of deserving prisoners recommended for pardon by the Board of Pardons and Parole.

The President expressed his desire to extend executive clemency to a group of prisoners in connection with his forthcoming birthday, November 4.

Early this morning the President had a practice golf session on the lawn of his Quezon City residence. Then he heard mass at the living room of his home. Also at the mass were Brig. Gen. Isagani V. Campo and Maj. Ciriaco Jocson, junior military aide.

The President later had breakfast with Gen. Campo, who briefed him on the general peace-and-order situation in the country, including the current campaign recently launched by the Constabulary for the capture of Huk leader, Dr. Jesus Lava. After breakfast the President repaired to his study where he stayed the rest of the morning.

In the afternoon President Garcia and the First Lady, together with some close relatives and members of the household staff, held a Novena in honor of Our Lady of Fatima.

The President today received a wire from Rep. Leon Guinto, Jr., of Quezon, informing of his arrival in his province aboard a Navy ship with relief supplies he obtained from Operations Puso, the Department of Health, and the Social Welfare Administration. Rep. Guinto thanked the President in behalf of numerous typhoon sufferers in his district.

This afternoon the President directed Justice Buenaventura Ocampo, PCAPE chairman, to inquire into a report that another three National Development Company cargoliners are lying idle in Tokyo Bay and spending $4,000 each per day for their maintenance.

The three cargoliners are the MV. Philippine President Quirino, MV Philippine Corregidor, and the MV Philippine General Antonio Luna.

Another NDC ship expected to be delivered tomorrow, October 31, is the MV Philippine President Magsaysay.

The presidential directive, issued through Executive Secretary Natalio P. Castillo, specifically directs to the PCAPE to inquire into the reasons why the ships had not been brought to the Philippines despite their having been turned-over to the NDC about more than a month ago.

The President said that if the ships were docked here in the Philippines, the government would be saving dollars, in addition to the economic benefits our local suppliers would gain in the provisioning of the ships.

October 31.—PRESIDENT Garcia this morning assured officials of the Philippine Association of Colleges and Universities that he would confer with heads of different government agencies concerned to thresh out certain problems facing private educational institutions.

At a conference held in Malacañang, the President as informed by PACU President Pablo L. Meer of the basic problems of private educational institutions.

The PACU officials complained against the apparent discrimination against private colleges and universities in dollar allocations, both in amounts granted and in rates of exchange charged.

Dean Meer informed President Garcia that private educators could not understand why remnant dealers deserve better treatment than private colleges and universities which educate 87 per cent of college students and 62 per cent of secondary students in the country.

The President was also informed of the apparent discrimination against private colleges and universities in the allotment of foreign aid and grants, particularly from the ICA-NEC aid program which are channeled only to the University of the Philippines and other government entities. The PACU officials also charged discrimination in the enjoyment of the benefits under the Colombo Plan and the National Science Development Board scholarship plan.

The PACU officials pleaded for preferential treatment in dollar allocation at the rate of ₱2 for $1 in foreign exchange for Filipino students who are completing their courses abroad.

They asserted that these students and their parents should be spared from the ill effects of partial decontrol which they did not foresee nor could have foreseen in order to enable them to finish their courses.

The President also heard the bitter protest of PACU officials against a new regulation of the Bureau of Private Schools allegedly issued without the approval of the Department of Education which compels all private colleges and universities lawfully incorporated as stock corporations to reincorporate as non-stock corporations.

Dean Meer bitterly assailed the regulation and branded it not only unconstitutional and impractical in operation but also anti-Filipino, alleging that, if implemented, all Filipino financed schools will be forced to close, leaving only the sectarian schools.

The PACU officials also batted for the appointment of educators in the Board of Review for Motion Pictures, expressing the conviction that it would help solve the problems of juvenile and adult delinquency in the country.

They also expressed their concern about the kind of motion pictures released to the public, affecting the moral and sense of decency for both youth and adults.

Other PACU officials present at the conference were Dr. Leoncio B. Monzon, president, MLQ University; Miss Helen Z. Benitez, executive vice-president, Philippine Women's University; Dr. Gregorio Zara, executive vice-president, Feati University; Dean Jose Acleva, Lyceum of the Philippines; Jose Abad Meneses, executive dean, Araneta University; Virgilio de los Santos, executive vice-president, University of Manila; Prof. Ramon L. Recio, FEU; Federico Oliveros, Manila Central University; and Amado C. Dizon and Petronilo A. Decena, PACU staff officials.

The President also received Rufino Cardinal Santos, who reported on his recent trip to Germany.

Secretary Cesar Fortich of Agriculture and Natural Resources informed the President that if the present good weather continues, a rice surplus of about two million cavans during this crop year can be realized. Although the recent floods and typhoons affected slightly the rice production, many farmers were able to plant again, Fortich asserted.

Other callers were Dr. Richard S. Pittman, director of the Summer Institute of Linguistics of the University of North Dakota, and Dr. Howard P. McKaughan, director of the Philippine branch of SIL.

This afternoon the President approved a recommendation of the Philippine panel to renew the permits of two American airlines to make use of airport facilities in the Philippines.

Directly benefitted are the Pan American Airways and the Northwest Airlines whose permits were scheduled to expire November 4 but were granted an extension of 90 days. The extension period carried the same terms and conditions previously granted.

The Philippine panel, led by Foreign Affairs Secretary Serrano, briefed the President on the status of the Phil-American traffic rights negotiations.

Lasting for almost one hour, the conference was attended also by Commerce Secretary Manuel Lim, CAA Administrator Urbano Caldoza, Hans Menzi, PNB President Eduardo Romualdez, Eliodoro de la Rosa, and Minister Simeon Roxas, members. Daniel Gomez of the Philippine Air Lines also attended as observer.

In the interest also of public necessity and convenience, it was reported that the President had directed Philippine Air Lines, through Secretary Serrano, to take such measures as would be necessary to cope with such contingencies as could possibly arise in connection with the future status of PI-US traffic rights, which may be exchanged, restricted, or denied at the expiration of the 90-day period of extension.

Specific reference was made to the necessity of the Nation's Flag Carrier's preparing itself for the introduction of its own services or the establishment of the desired arrangements for convenient connecting services, as the case may be, depending on future developments as mentioned.

Early this morning the President and the First Lady, together with their children, close relatives, and friends heard mass at the Malacañang chapel. Among those who attended the mass were Mr. and Mrs. Fernando Campos and Col. Jorge Delarmente, chief presidential aide.

After breakfast the President accompanied the First Lady and their children to the airport where they took off for Talibon, Bohol, to fulfill the annual pilgrimage of the President to the tomb of his parents.

From the airport the President proceeded to his Bohol Avenue residence in Quezon City and spent most of his time going over state papers, among them those pertaining to deserving prisoners recommended for executive clemency by the Board of Pardons and Parole. The President had expressed his desire to extend executive clemency to a number of deserving prisoners on his birthday, November 4.

November 2.—TODAY President Garcia did not receive any caller, as he went over the agenda of last night's Cabinet meeting.

During the Cabinet meeting the President took up a proposal to import agricultural commodities from the United States under a U.S. public law. The Chief Executive took up this plan in order to boost his agricultural development program.

The Cabinet approved the proposal and decided to take up the details of the importation in the next meeting with his advisory body.

Operations Dispersal was decided upon the Cabinet at its meeting today in deference to the President's express desire that they forego traditional asalto on his birthday but instead spend the money for relief goods so that the neediest barrio people can be benefited.

Members of the Cabinet will trek to the provinces Friday, November 4, to celebrate President Garcia's birthday by distributing relief goods and foodstuffs to the flood and typhoon victims.

The President, in his recent trip to Pampanga, was appalled by the destruction wrought by the series of typhoons and floods which visited this country and had quietly instructed his Cabinet secretaries to send survey teams in their designated areas to canvass the neediest who may be served on his 64th birthday.

The President was the recipient of messages of gratitude from the barrios and towns which had been served by Operations Puso, Mrs. Garcia's pet project which had covered the entire Central Luzon at the height of the calamities.

The President said that a worthy project as Operations Puso deserves emulations, even on a minor scale and thus Operations Dispersal was conceived.

The President discouraged the sending of gifts on his birthday, but requested those who desire to help Operations Dispersal to send in gifts in the form of foodstuffs, clothings, and other prime necessities which could be distributed to the flood and typhoon victims.

President Garcia will formally launch Operations Dispersal at 5 o'clock tomorrow afternoon when he will turn over token relief goods to Cabinet members in a simple ceremony at Malacañang's study room. The turnover will signify the President's distribution of relief goods to flood typhoon victims.

Nacionalistas in two provinces called on President Garcia this evening to run for reelection and resolve his controversy with Senate President Rodriguez in order to maintain party unity.

A resolution urging President Garcia to run for reelection was approved unanimously by the Toledo city board (Cebu).

Another resolution approved by the provincial and municipal committees of Iloilo province appealed to President Garcia and Senate President Rodriguez "for an early settlement of their controversy which, if concluded at an early date, will augur well for our party."

The Iloilo resolution was approved by representatives of 42 municipalities representing Iloilo province and was terminated to President Garcia by Sen. Fernando Lopez after a report was made by Fortunato A. Padilla, secretary of the NP provincial committee of Iloilo.

November 3.—PRESIDENT Garcia was honored today the eve of his birthday, by the Armed Forces of the Philippines with a testimonial parade and review held at Camp Murphy.

A testimonial breakfast at the Central Officers' Club preceded the review, during which Auditor General Pedro Jimenez and nine former defense secretaries were awarded plaques for meritorious services rendered to the country and the AFP.

The other recipients of the awards were Teofilo Sison, Gen. Basilio Valdes, the late Tomas Cabili, Alfredo Montelibano, the late Ruperto Kangleon, the late President Magsaysay, Justice Sotero Cabahug, Sen. Eulogio Balao, and General Jesus Vargas.

The President received full military honors upon his arrival and departure, rendered by the cadets of the Philippine Military Academy.

The composite regiment that passed in review before the President consisted of two battalions of PMA cadets, one battalion of the Philippine Constabulary, one battalion of the Philippine Air Force, one battalion of the Philippine Navy, the First BCT of the Philippine Army, and units of the Presidential Guard Battalion. The composite unit was under the command of Brigadier General Isagani Campo, PC head, whose staff was composed of the following deputy major services commanders: Col. Eugenio Acab (PC), Capt. Simeon Castro (PN), Col. Francisco Licuanan (PA), and Col. Pedro Bartolome (PAF).

A formation of 21 PAF Sabrejets flew by the grandstand during the parade.

After the review, Lt. Gen, Manuel Cabal, AFP chief of staff, delivered a few remarks. Defense Secretary Alejo Santos introduced the President.

In his speech the President also announced that he had approved the list of 555 AFP officer's recommended for promotion by the defense department.

President Garcia today virtually launched his bid for reelection in next year's presidential elections before a large gathering of provincial and municipal officials representing Central and Northern Luzon provinces.

Thirty-one provincial governors and board members, city mayors, and councilors, as well as top Nacionalista Party leaders, signed and submitted to the President a resolution enjoining President Garcia to run for reelection and pledging their whole-hearted support for the President.

In an extemporaneous speech of appreciation before the delegation, President Garcia thanked the Nacionalista leaders for their endorsement of his reelection and the confidence expressed in his leadership in the party and in the affairs of state.

President Garcia emphasized that before he could announce his decision to run for reelection he would first hear from the rest of the country; such as Southern Luzon, Visayas, and Mindanao.

In another conference Defense Secretary Alejo Santos and provincial, municipal, and NP leaders from Bulacan submitted a separate resolution indorsing the President's reelection.

In his speech the President said the resolution "has touched me deeply and I should like to express my appreciation from the deepest recesses of my heart for this open, frank, and straightforward manifestation of your confidence in the leadership with which I have carried on as head of this Republic these several years that have passed. And, indeed, I wouldn't be human if I did not say that I felt touched for the recital of some of the achievements that our administration has been able to attain since 1957, when I took over the reins of government."

The President reminded the NP leaders of a statement that he often repeated in the course of the last three years. He said, "The press has been asking me, after my election in 1957, whether it was my desire to seek a re-election. I made the following answer, which I reiterated many times thereafter: "that by the end of 1961, which is the end of my term, I shall have served our country 38 years, three of those years under appointive positions and 35 of them in political positions conferred upon me by our people."

He added: "This period of 38 years is long enough for any Filipino. In fact, I consider myself a fortunate man for having deserved the confidence of the Filipino people during 35 years of my public service."

"So it was, and still is, my personal desire to retire from active political life," he said. Continuing: "Since then, my friends, the press has been asking me what I should do if there was any move to draft me again into public service. My answer has been and will always be, that my desire to retire from public service is my personal desire but that if the people have other desires for me, I shall always subordinate my personal wishes to the desires of the people."

At this juncture, the President's speech was interrupted by a prolonged applause from the delegation.

"So, my friends," the President continued, "I can only say on this occasion, vis-a-vis the resolution presented to me asking me to seek for another term, that if the sentiment expressed here by the leaders of the provinces in Northern and Central Luzon finds echo in Southern Luzon in the Visayas, and in Mindanao, you can have my assurance that I shall not shrink the responsibility—I shall respond to the call of the nation.”

The President was stopped for the second time by applause.

In concluding, the President reiterated his gratitude for “this very important resolution that you have passed which no doubt is backed up by your considered opinion and sentiments.”

The President today directed the retention of Maximo M. Macatao to his position as record custodian of the Commission of Parks and Wildlife.

The directive was issued through Vice-Chairman Maximo Maceren of the PCAPE upon being informed that Macatao, who is a “star” witness in the administrative case against Commissioner Vicente de la Cruz of the Commission of Parks and Wildlife, was being transferred to Cebu regional office allegedly upon the instigation of Commissioner de la Cruz.

Macatao, who had appeared before Major Teodulo C. Natividad, PCAPE chief investigator, this morning said that he had received an order transferring him to Cebu City with instructions to proceed to his new post “at the first available transportation.”

The President, when informed of Macatao’s case, directed his immediate retention to his former position. He said that if the allegations of Macatao is true, that he is being transferred to another because of his being a witness against Commissioner de la Cruz, he will see to it that disciplinary measures is taken against the officials concerned.

Irked by the report, the Chief Executive emphasized that he will not tolerate any act on the part of government officials exerting pressure upon employees who are witnesses in any investigation being conducted by his graft-busting agencies.

President Garcia this day, eve of his 64th birth anniversary, appealed for national unity in order to achieve earlier the objectives of his administration for a better way of life for the Filipino people.

In his message to the nation President Garcia said that a deep, abiding faith in God and the capacity of Filipinos working as one can only bring about the full realization of our objectives.

He said: “As I approach another milestone in life, my thoughts naturally turn to the less fortunate among our countrymen and to the prospects of a bright future for our young Republic; to what has been accomplished and to what remains to be done.”

President Garcia then expressed his belief that “it is a time such as the present that we should be more concerned with helping each other. If our country has been blessed more than others, considering that there are parts of the world where actual strife, hunger, and disease prevail—it is perhaps because a Filipinos have shown and demonstrated more care and deeper solicitude for our fellow countrymen.”

“This evening the President enjoined the members of his Cabinet to go out to the provinces in order to extend relief to the neediest on his natal day, Friday, November 4.

In turning over to the Cabinet secretaries relief goods for distribution to the poor, the President and the First Lady told the officials that the best gift that the President expected of them was actual service to the indigents who had been left destitute by a series of national calamities which beset the country in the last three months.

At an informal ceremony at Malacañang, the President turned over to the Cabinet members 220 sacks of rice, 110 cases of sardines, 2,200 pieces of blankets, and 2,200 pieces of clothing for distribution in 11 provinces. The Cabinet members named the campaign Operations Happy Birthday.

Social Welfare Administrator Amparo P. Villamor informed the President that, in deference to his wish, the Cabinet members had contributed to a pool which was spent for the purchase of these relief goods so that flood and typhoon sufferers in several provinces can be extended relief.

November 4.—PRESIDENT Garcia today formally announced his bid for reelection in next year's presidential elections after 48 Nacionalista governors, mayors, and top Nacionalista leaders from Visayas and Mindanao provinces clamored for his continued leadership.

The President expressed confidence in winning again in the forthcoming polls and pledged to a cheering crowd that he will attain economic independence for the country through his policy of Filipino First.

Two resolutions signed by Visayas and Mindanao provincial, municipal and NP leader were formally presented to the President at noon today, hardly 24 hours after 31 top Nacionalistas from Central and Northern Luzon provinces themselves clamored for his reelection,

The Garcia-for-reelection move continued snowballing as the President kept receiving pledges of support and appeals to run for reelection not only from NP leaders but also from student and civic organizations.

Among the resolutions clamoring for President Garcia's reelection were those from Nacionalistas in Manila and members of the Youth Leaders Association of the Philippines.

In his acceptance speech President Garcia thanked the NP leaders for their expression of confidence in his leadership manifested in resolutions submitted to him.

Mayor Leroy Brown of Basilan City presented 11 resolutions approved unanimously by the Lions Club, Rotary Club, Jaycees, NP chapters, and civic organizations of his city greeting the Chief Executive on his birthday and assuring him of their loyalty and support.

Officers, ward delegates, and delegates of the Nacionalista Party (Francisco Wing) in the fourth district of the City of Manila also presented a resolution endorsing wholeheartedly and unconditionally the reelection of President Garcia.

Members of the Youth Leaders Association of the Philippines, an organization of student leaders from different colleges and universities all over the Philippines, also presented a resolution "as a token of our sincere gratitude to him for his meritorious public service and as a sign of renewed pledge of support to his tested leadership and future plans for public service."

In separate resolutions, the City mayors and chairmen of City NP directorates, and the provincial governors and chairmen of provincial NP directorates in the Visayas, pledged their overwhelming support to the President in his bid for reelection next year.

The resolutions came as a virtual echo of the appeal of the provincial governors and provincial NP directorates of Northern and Central Luzon for the president to run for reelection.

The President, after expressing his gratitude to the delegation from Northern and Central Luzon yesterday, had assured them that "if their sentiment found echo in the Visayas and Mindanao, he will again answer the call of the nation."

In their resolution, the provincial and city executives and NP chairman from the Visayas urged the President to run for reelection because the country needs a man of his intellect, political stature, international renown statesmanship, executive competence, and a high sense of nationalism.

Meanwhile, Admiral Charles Griffin, commander of the U. S. Seventh Fleet, who was in Manila a few days ago, radioed his message of congratulations to President Garcia on his birthday, from aboard his flagship, the USS St. Paul.

President Garcia extended executive clemency to some 120 deserving prisoners upon recommendation of the Board of Pardons and Parole. The names of the prisoners granted executive clemency will be released later.

The President today expressed his gratitude to thousands of well-wishers here and abroad who had personally and in writing conveyed messages of felicitations on the occasion of his 64th birthday.

The President and the First Lady spent more than two hours shaking the hands of a long line of Well-wishers who streamed to Malacañang this morning.

The well-wishers came from all walks of life ranging from top ranking officials of the executive, legislative, and judicial branches of the government, members of the diplomatic corps, representative of private firms and civic organizations and students, to the so-called bakya crowd composed of men, women, and children from slum and squatter areas of Manila and suburbs. . At the traditional exchange of toast between the dean of the local diplomatic corps and the President, Mesgr. Siino said:

“On this dear day in which Your Excellency celebrate your birthday and the feast of your patron saint, allow me, Mr. President, in the name of the Diplomatic Corps, to put in words our sincere desire of all good things for your illustrious person, for that of your gracious lady, and of all your honourable family, gladly associating ourselves with the national rejoicing, and will all those who affectionately surround you, I have the honour to invite all present to drink a toast to the personal health of Your Excellency, and to the ever-increasing progress and prosperity of this noble Republic.”

Responding extemporaneously, the President expressed his gratitude for the good wishes of the diplomatic corps and reciprocated with a toast for the continued good health of the heads of states represented on the occasion.

After the exchange of toasts, the President and the First Lady continued receiving well-wishers, among them were students in uniform with books tucked under their arms who apparently had skipped classes to shake the President's hands. Others from the slum districts came in bakya or slippers, some of them mothers with months-old babies in their arms.

A delegation composed of officials of the Boy Scouts of the Philippines led by Jorge B. Vargas and Ralph Hawkins presented to the President a certificate of Honorary Patron of World Scouting signed by D. C. Spry, director of the Boy Scouts International Bureau, for his interest in the boy scout movement.

After receiving well-wishers the President received provincial and city executives, as well as NP political leaders who presented resolutions urging him to run for reelection and pledging their whole-hearted support.

Then the President and First Lady had lunch with immediate members of his family, and those of past Presidents, among them, Tommy Quirino, Ruby Roxas-Roxas, Mrs. Luz Magsaysay, Nini Quezon-Avancena, and Nonong Quezon.

In the afternoon the President received a big delegation of officials and labor leaders of the Manila Railroad and the Manila Port Service headed by MRR Manager Teofilo Zosa and MPS Manager Francisco Medrano.

The delegation likewise felicitated the President and reiterated their pledge of loyalty and support.

Labor leaders included President Roberto S. Oca of the Associated Workers Union and KMP; Vicente Guevara, president of the Mechanical Department Labor Union; Bonifacio Reginaldo, MDLU general secretary; and Presidents Moises Ilauria of the Station Employees Union, Jose Capistrano of the Union de Maquinistas, Eusebio de la Cruz of the Yard Crew Union, and Emilio Gaboy of the Union de Empleados de Trenes, and others.

In the evening President and Mrs. Garcia attended the reception at the Apostolic Nunciature commemorating the second anniversary of the coronation of Pope John XXIII.

President Garcia today expressed gratification to members of the Cabinet who went to flood and typhoon-stricken provinces to distribute relief goods to indigent and needy families as their birthday present to him. He said that his department secretaries had given him the best gift on his 64th birthday by attending to the needs of thousands of families left destitute by a series of national calamities which beset the country in recent months.

Dubbed Operations Happy Birthday, the members of the President's official family early this morning fanned out to the provinces to distribute relief goods.

Encouraging reports of the success of Operations Happy Birthday poured in this evening thanking the President "for his kind thoughts" and extending their sincere greetings.

From San Carlos City, Executive Secretary Natalio P. Castillo reported on the warm response of the people to Operations Happy Birthday and wished the Chief Executive many happy returns of the day. Secretary Castillo was in San Carlos to represent the President on the occasion of the formal inauguration of that new city.

November 5.—THE President played his first nine-hole golf today with a score of 49 which was considered good for a beginner at the par 30 course in Malacañang Park.

Out of nine tee shots, the President was reported to have made eight "wonderful" drives, using the so-called baseball grip which is considered unorthodox by golf enthusiasts but which is being used by some champions.

The President enjoyed the hour-long game immensely and, like a true golfer, kept ribbing his opponents all along the course.

According to his pro, Felix Tugot, his main difficulty was putting. He said that the President has a tendency to over-put.

Returning to Malacañang about 9 a.m., the President had breakfast with Mrs. Garcia.

Then he had a long conference with Executive Secretary Natalio P. Castillo, who reported on his trip from San Carlos, Negros Occidental, where he had represented the President at the inauguration of the new city. After the conference the President closed himself in his bedroom, reading some papers left with him by Secretary Castillo for study.

In the afternoon the President motored to his Bohol Avenue residence in Quezon City where he spent the night.

President Garcia today dismissed from office the justices of the peace of Pinamalayan, Oriental Mindoro, and Maddela, Nueva Vizcaya, on the strength of administrative charges filed against them.

In dismissing Justice of the Peace Romeo L. Venturanza of Pinamalayan, Oriental Mindoro, the President found respondent unfit for the office of justice of the peace because of partiality and abuse of authority.

Justice of the Peace Venturanza was charged administratively by Dominador Tolosa with partiality for refusing to accept a criminal complaint filed by him against a rural policeman, Lazaro Baon, and two others.

It appears that on October 29, 1958, at barrio Balete, Pinamalayan, an incident happened which gave rise to a criminal complaint filed by policeman Lazaro Baon against Tolosa and two others for assaulting a person in authority, with physical injuries.

Subsequently, Dominador Tolosa vainly filed countercharges against the rural policeman and two companions for frustrated homicide, alleging that the policeman inflicted serious physical injuries with intent to kill.

Although the latter complaint was signed by Chief of Police Marcelo C. Diona and properly supported by a medical certificate showing that Tolosa suffered two wounds which required medical attendance of five and 40 days, respectively, and admission by policeman Baon that he did inflict the wounds on the complainant, and several affidavits from witnesses, respondent justice of the peace refused to entertain the complaint.

At first the justice of the peace refused to accept the charges on the ground that Police Chief Diona did not swear to them, and later, in the absence of Diona who was suspended, when the complaint was being refilled by Police Chief Dominador Sotto, Justice of the Peace Venturanza reasoned out that the proper charge should be serious physical injuries, as there was not intent to kill present in the commission of the crime.

On January 27, 1959, respondent justice of the peace found Alberto Medran and Jovito Francisco guilty of slight physical injuries on the rural policeman, but acquitted Tolosa who appeared to have merely pacified the parties.

It was found later, however, that on the day previous to his acquittal, Tolosa was prevailed upon to signify his lack of interest in prosecuting the rural policeman on the promise of acquittal by the justice of the peace himself and his brother.

The President opined that respondent's refusal to entertain the charges against Baon were flimsy and that he tried all possible means to shield the policeman from the criminal complaint by placing all conceivable obstacles and even promising acquittal in return for Tolosa's desistance from the filing of his complaint.

The President pointed out that by so doing, respondent thwarted the course of justice by enabling Baon to escape criminal prosecution despite his open admission that he inflicted the injuries on Tolosa, subject of the complaint.

In accordance with the recommendation of the secretary of justice, the President found Venturanza unfit to remain in office as justice of the peace, and considered him as resigned from office without prejudice to reinstatement in another branch of the government and the enjoyment of his leave and retirement privileges.

In the other case the President found Justice of the Peace Jose V. Ylanan as justice of the peace of Maddela, Nueva Vizcaya, guilty of immorality and electioneering.

It appears that respondent justice of the peace who was legally married to Dominga Oliver, a Manila school teacher, assumed office in 1946 and contracted illicit relations with one Marcelina Canda of Maddela, Nueva Vizcaya.

Justice Ylanan and Canda lived as husband and wife for many years, behaving as such privately and publicly, out of which relations they begot stillborn twins, and a third child, Renato, with whom they posed in a family group on Renato's fifth birthday.

In the general elections of November, 1955, Marcelina Canda ran for mayor and Justice Ylagan campaigned actively for her, at one time destroying sample ballots belonging to her opponent and scolding the parties distributing them, according to the findings of the district judge who investigated the case.

Although the investigating judge recommended one-year suspension from office, the President concurred with the recommendations of the secretary of justice that the nature of his acts called for more than mere suspension, and therefore considered him as resigned from office.

President's Week in Review: November 6-12, 1960

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

November 6.—PRESIDENT Garcia today continued to receive pledges of support and resolutions urging him to run for reelection in 1961.

Among such resolutions was that of the Barrio Lieutenants League of Iloilo, which was unanimously adopted at its Provincial Assembly inaugural session recently.

The barrio league with a membership of 17,232 barrio lieutenants and barrio council officers throughout Iloilo, assured the President of grass-root support and a solid vote of 350,000 under its command.

The resolution was given to the President in appreciation for his determined policy to work for the welfare of the rural masses which, they said, should be given a chance to succeed by extending the term of the President to the full period allowed by law.

The league, which operates in four levels—barrio, municipal, provincial, and district—assured the President of full and complete support in his bid for re-election.

The President also received pledges of support and endorsement of his reelection bid in 1961 from some 500 electorates of Navotas, Rizal.

The Navotas supporters conveyed their assurances of support through Executive Secretary Natalio P. Castillo at a mass rally called by Marcelo de la Cruz in Navotas, recently.

The President resumed today his daily golf exercises and showed indications he is improving in his new sport.

Early in the morning the President, accompanied by his aide, went down to the lawn of his private residence in Quezon City and practiced swinging his golf clubs. He spent about 30 minutes perfecting his grip and swing.

After his golf session the President heard mass before an improvised altar at his private residence in Quezon City.

After the mass the President and the First Lady had breakfast. The President then retired to his private room where he went over pending state papers, including the list of prisoners recommended for pardon by the Board of Pardons and Parole.

The Chief Executive was expected to release the list of pardoned prisoners this week. He intended to release the list last Friday.

November 7.—THE President today declared that the construction of the Manila Railroad extension lines to Cagayan and Sorsogon will soon be undertaken, as negotiations for financing arrangements reached the final stage.

The President told Sorsogon Gov. Johnny Frivaldo, who came to Malacañang to inquire about the status of the project, that he was eager to get the project completed because it would hasten the linking of Luzon and Mindanao by an overland route and solve some of the most pressing economic problems.

The President told Governor Frivaldo that MRR General Manager Teofilo Zosa is leaving for the United States to conclude negotiations for financing the project with the two companies which submitted the most favorable offers.

The President pointed out that nine bids had been received and two had been chosen as the most acceptable to the Philippine Government. Manager Zosa will discuss with them whether they will undertake the projects singly or pool their resources and work jointly.

The plan is to extend the MRR line from Damortis to Cagayan Valley in the north, and from Legaspi city to Matnog, Sorsogon, in the south.

From Matnog, a ferry service operates to the northern tip of Samar where another railroad line runs to the southern tip which can be connected by a bridge across San Juanico Strait to Leyte. From Leyte, another ferry service is operating to Surigao province, which is connected to the rest of Mindanao by a system of highways.

The President said, completion of the MRR extension from Legaspi to Matnog, which forms one link in the chain, will be a big step forward to the plan to connect the entire Philippines by land transportation.

Realization of this project, he said, will induce people from centers of population in Luzon and the Visayas to migrate to Mindanao, which is still comparatively sparsely populated, thus relieving unemployment, artificial food shortages, and criminality which are generally caused by overpopulation or uneven distribution of population.

Migrating labor will also play a major part in the economic development and industrialization of Mindanao where abundant mineral resources are now being exploited industrially, the President added.

Earlier, the President administered the oath of office to Salvador Cunanan as acting undersecretary of agriculture and natural resources, vice Jose M. Trinidad, retired.

Present at the induction ceremonies which were held at the Malacañang reception room were a large group of American tourists who happened to be sightseeing at the Palace when the President came out of his study, employees and laborers of the department, as well as relatives and friends of the inductee.

Justice Ocampo was directed specifically to look into the reported assault on a news reporter-photographer in Batangas, Batangas, while gathering news and pictures of a court murder hearing, and the threat to newsmen in Tondo.

The Chief Executive was irked by a report that the assault took place right inside the courtroom, allegedly perpetrated by two men who were determined to stop the newsman-photographer from performing his legitimate work.

Justice Ocampo later ordered Major Teodulo Natividad to look into the report and find out what the Constabulary in Batangas had done by way of bringing the culprits to justice.

Justice Ocampo also earlier appealed to the different police agencies to extend full police protection to newspapermen covering the Tondo gang war to avoid repetition of the incident that happened the previous day where four newspapermen were allegedly accosted and threatened.

Valencia said this contributed in some measure to the prevention of epidemics among the flood sufferers in Central Luzon who in the past had been using river water for their daily needs.

The American businessmen, according to Secretary Valencia, shipped the water purifiers to the Philippines even while payments were still pending with the Central Bank. Valencia said acquisition of more units would be of invaluable help in promoting health and hygiene among the people of the rural areas.

Of the three units being operated by the health department, one was turned over to the Armed Forces while another unit, the one donated to Operations Puso by the Marinduque Iron Mines, is being used in Cotabato City, which also suffered from a series of floods.

NAWASA General Manager Susano R. Negado, who also accompanied the American businessmen, said water purifiers could be utilized in relieving recurrent water shortages and in providing potable water to islanders, such as in Jolo, where water is sold like any prime commodity.

The President in his order emphasized the need for establishing a competitive position for the Philippines in international tourism and of encouraging and facilitating foreign travel to this country as a means of further enhancing the nation's prestige abroad and strengthening its economy.

The President explained that the relaxation of travel and tourist regulations applies only to bona fide foreign tourists. The President took this step after being informed by Manila Councilor Francisco Varona, that the crime situation in Tondo has not improved in the last few days and that immediate remedial steps are necessary along all levels.

The Manila councilor proposed that one way of solving the crime was to strike at the root cause by establishing recreational facilities so that the youths will not have idle time in their hands which they could devote to evil doings.

Ben Rubio, chief of police of Bacolod city, who accompanied Councilor Varona, informed the President that idleness in the life of the youth was the chief cause of juvenile delinquency because a young man is restless and always eager to do something.

The President later received Rep. Leonardo Perez of Nueva Vizcaya, who accompanied Mayor Jose S. Gurat of Bayombong, Mayor Romualdo D. Xibando of Villaverde, Vice-Mayor Ruperto Basig of Aritao, and eight town councilors.

Rep. Perez sought the release of a communal forest in barrios Aggub and Bascaran, of Solana, Nueva Vizcaya, to bona fide occupants who had made improvements on the land and financial aid for public works improvements in his district.

Rep. Pedro Venida of Camarines Norte, accompanied by Ex-Gov. Wilfredo Panotas and Mayors Sofio V. Bake of Vinzons and Felix Tenorio of Labo also called on the President to request aid from the typhoon funds.

The President also received Sen. Rogelio de la Rosa, who thanked the President for the P150,000 release from his pork barrel for the typhoon and flood victims of Pampanga and bade goodbye before leaving for Tokyo to join the Philippine panel negotiating a treaty of friendship, navigation, and commerce with Japan.

It being Maricar's first birthday, the President and Mrs. Garcia, together with immediate members of the family and close relatives, heard mass at the Malacañang Chapel, after which they had breakfast together.

The President started receiving callers at 10 a.m., and finished well at past 12 noon.

This afternoon the President underscored the important role of radio and television in the process of nation-building.

In his brief remarks as guest at the inauguration of the Alto Broadcasting System's modern building on Dewey Boulevard, Pasay City, the President expressed the hope that the ABS radio and television station will serve as an instrument of unity, welding the people together and exposing them to a wholesome national culture. The President said that in this way it will become useful to the advancement of education both at home and in the classroom, besides serving as a medium of information, culture, and entertainment.

The President pointed out that it was in recognition of the tremendous role played by radio and television that he had created a radio-television section in the Malacañang Press Office upon recommendation of Press Secretary Jose C. Nable.

The President stated that in this modern age, instead of being inimical to each other as before, the trinity of mass information—press radio, and television—which have attained full development in the country, is complementing one another in their common purpose of mass information.

The President also traced the growth of local radio from two stations in 1946 to 77 at present, 23 of which operate in the Manila area. These stations, according to the President, serve one million receivers and 6.5 million radio fans, with half of the radio receivers and 2.5 million of the radio fans in Manila and suburbs.

In concluding his speech, the President congratulated the owners and staff of the ABS for having been able to put up a modern building which will not only be a welcome addition to the beautiful, city landmarks but a lasting monument to the growth and development of radio and television as media of mass information, culture, and entertainment.

November 12.—THE President today directed the Department of Foreign Affairs to keep him posted on latest developments in Vietnam where a coup had reportedly imprisoned President Ngo Dinh Diem.

The President viewed with misgivings outbreak of hostilities in the young Republic owing to the presence of numerous Filipino professionals and technicians in Saigon who have been helping in the development of Vietnam.

The President issued his directive after receiving news briefing while he was playing a nine-hole golf match at the Malacañang Golf Course this morning.

After playing at the Malacañang Park, the President received Don Sergio Osmeña, Sr., who called at Malacañang to pay his respects.

The President later ordered the Department of Public Works to direct the district engineer in Tago, Surigao del Sur, to inspect the damage on the river dike in that town caused by the tidal wave which hit the province October 22. The President gave his order upon representations of Councilor Florentino C. Falcon of Tago, who requested release of funds for the building of river dikes as stop-gap measures to protect further damage to crops and property.

In the afternoon the President laid aside a bundle of papers he was working on to answer a letter of an Illinois high school student.

The student, Joyce Yellin of Oak Park-River Forest High School had written asking for the President's opinion on who is or was the most outstanding person in the United States in the 20th century. The President frankly admitted that the question was indeed a difficult one but added that history will judge who the greatest American of the present century is.

In the afternoon the President motored to his Bohol Avenue residence in Quezon City, where he spent the night.

Justice Buenaventura Ocampo, PCAPE chairman late this evening re-commended to the Chief Executive that Jose Panganiban, National Development Comply manager, be required to explain within 72 hours why he should not be suspended.

Justice Ocampo made the recommendation after he was informed by Major Teodulo Natividad, PCAPE chief investigator and head of the special committee looking into the quables in the NDC, that four charges against Manager Panganiban had been received by his committee.

The President's action on the recommendation is expected momentarily.

President Garcia today expressed his appreciation to labor unions and labor leaders all over the country who had decided to organize and unite to support him "against all comers" in his bid for reelection.

President's Week in Review: November 13-30, 1960

Official Week in Review: December 18 – December 24, 1960

December 18.—PRESIDENT Garcia this morning scored his first golf victory by beating a tandem composed of Supreme Court Chief Justice Ricardo Paras and retired Justice Marceliano Montemayor at the Wack Wack Golf and Country Club course.

The Chief Executive paired with Chairman Paulino J. Garcia of the National Science Development Board against the Paras-Montemayor team.

Malacañang reported that the Garcia-Garcia team won. However, it did not release the score.

The President was reported to have said it was a good start. He played nine holes, and like a true winner and in the fashion of a victor in golf, the President and his partner, Chairman Garcia, were treated to a free breakfast by the defeated jurists.

Some kibitzers who witnessed the President's debut at Wack Wack golf course, also participated in the spoils of the victors.

Pleased with his victory, the President returned to his private residence on Bohol Avenue, Quezon City where he tackled pending state papers. He did not receive any callers the whole day. Before going to the Wack Wack golf course, the President and the First Lady heard mass at their residence.

December 19.—PRESIDENT Garcia assured today members of the Textile Manufacturers Association of the Philippines, the Philippine Association of Embroidery and Apparel Exporters, and the Embroidery Contractors Association of the Philippines of government assistance and protection.

The President first received the members of the Textile Manufacturers Association of the Philippines who informed him that local textile millers are now ready to go into full scale production of cotton to fill the needs of the industry and to save dollars.

The textile millers, accompanied by Rep. Salipada Pendatun, requested the President to direct different government agencies concerned to coordinate their policies to protect the cotton growing project of the TMAP.

Jesus Yujuico, president of the TMAP, advocated a government policy that would limit importation of textile to cover the shortage of local production which at present amounts to 70 million yards. He also plugged for an intensified drive to curtail importation of textile through barter, smuggling, and personal effects.

Members of the Philippine Association of Embroidery and Apparel Exporters and the Embroidery Contractors Association of the Philippines, who were accompanied by Rep. Lorenzo Teves, informed the President of the problems facing their industry. The Chief Executive pledged government assistance in order to expand their industry upon which about 540,000 homeworkers in Central Luzon and Mindanao depend.

The embroiders requested the President to recommend to the Monetary Board the adoption of a 100 per cent decontrol policy on embroidery exports so that the true value of the peso can be realized from embroidery exports.

The President assured the embroiders that he would direct corresponding government agencies to expedite clearance of import shipments of the industry following the complaint of the embroiders that unusual delay in clearance is causing disruption of production and laying off of employees.

The embroiders handed a resolution to the President pledging their full support to the Chief Executive's all-out drive against graft and corruption. They added that they were willing to help the government prosecute to the full extent any member of their association who, illegally imports textile for sale in the local market. They told the President that they were not importing textile other than for embroidery purposes.

Members of the embroidery group included ECAP President Ramon Estacio, PAEAE President Quintin Santiago, Leonardo Feltman, Armand Picciotto, Jack Nasser, Ronald Reynolds, Zoilo Lopez, Telesforo Reyes, and Jose Castillo.

The President today directed Justice Secretary Alejo Mabanag to study immediately the complaint against Gov. Ali Dimaporo of Lanao del Norte, who allegedly threatened with death provincial Fiscal Januario Lagrosas, Assistant Provincial Fiscal Salvador LI. Laya, and Casimiro T. Juarez, all of that province.

Acting on a resolution of the Iligan City Legal Practitioners' Association in behalf of the complainants requesting the Chief Executive and the Secretary of Justice to send an investigator to Iligan City to make an inquiry into the complaint, the President ordered Secretary Mabanag to make a study of the case right away for proper action.

He pointed out to Secretary Mabanag that if the complaint is found true, it should be prosecuted so that the faith of the people in the law enforcement agencies of the government will not be shattered.

In the complaint Fiscal Laya and Juarez alleged that at about 5:30 p.m. on December 14 while they were riding with Provincial Fiscal Januario Lagrosas in a car bound for Iligan City from Tubod, where they attended the prosecution of six criminal cases against Mayor Arsenio Quibranza, they were stopped by Gov. Dimaporo near the bridge at Muntay, Kolambugan.

Laya and Juarez claimed that their car was approached by Gov. Dimaporo with his eight provincial policemen deployed in the area with cocked rifles pointed at them.

Then, the two complainants further alleged, Gov. Dimaporo threatened them with liquidation for pushing through the prosecution of the criminal cases against Mayor Quibranza in the municipal court of Tubod.

"Why you are persecuting my men? I will have liquidated!" Gov. Dimaporo was reported to have told Laya and Juarez.

Gov. Dimaporo was also alleged to have included Sen. Domocao Alonto and a brother and the Lluch family of Lanao del Norte in his threat of liquidation.

Dimaporo was likewise charged with uttering defamatory words against the complainants.

Mentioned in the complaint to have witnessed the incident were Vice-Gov. Valerio Rovira and Conrado Hingco, who were said to be also in the group of G. Dimaporo.

December 20.—THIS morning the President played his second nine-hole golf at the Wack Wack Golf and Country Club and registered his second consecutive victory against the tandem of Supreme Court Chief Justice Ricardo Paras and retired Justice Marcelino Montemayor.

The President scored 57 while his team-mate Chairman Paulino J. Garcia of the National Science Development Board tallied 53 points making a total 110.

Malacañang denied charges aired recently by Mayor Arsenio H. Lacson of Manila that the President had brought with him a big retinue of security men.

"Lacson sees too many things behind his colored glasses," a Malacañang spokesman said.

This evening President Garcia conferred with Speaker Daniel Z. Romualdez in his private residence in Quezon City where the latter reported on the outcome of his meeting with Sen. Cipriano Primicias to bring about a reconciliation between the Chief Executive and President Eulogio Rodriguez. The conference started at merienda time and wound up after 8 o'clock this evening. The President was optimistic that his hopes of preserving party unity will be realized. The Chief Executive's optimism was inspired by Speaker Romualdez's report that Senate President Rodriguez would attend a Council of Leaders meeting which the President would call in the first week of January.

Before the President's conference with Speaker Romualdez, the President conferred with Rep. Salipada Pendatun, former Executive Secretary Juan C. Pajo, and officials of the Pampanga Sugar Development Company and the Prudential Bank.

The Pasudeco officials present at the conference were Alfonso de Leon, Jesus A. Lazatin, Francisco D. Gamboa, and Nicolas Belmonte. The Prudential Bank officials at the conference were former Secretary of Finance Pio Pedrosa, Augusto A. Santos, and George Litton, Sr.

The President took up with Pasudeco and Prudential Bank officials the problems facing the tobacco, sugar, and textile industries.

December 21.—PRESIDENT Garcia today awarded the Philippine Legion of Honor (commander) to Central Bank Governor Miguel Cuaderno, Sr., for the latter's outstanding achievements during his long and distinguished service to the country.

The citation mentioned Gov. Cuaderno's prominent role in the drafting of the Philippine Constitution. It also cited Mr. Cuaderno's efforts towards currency stabilization and decontrol programs to strengthen the Philippine fiscal position.

Present at the ceremonies held at the Malacañang ceremonial hall at 5 p.m. today were high government officials, business and financial leaders of the community, friends, and relatives of Governor Cuaderno, among them:

Executive Secretary Natalio P. Castillo, Defense Secretary Alejo Santos, Public Works Secretary Florencio Moreno, Labor Secretary Angel Castaño, AFP Chief of Staff Lt. Gen. Manuel F. Cabal, Major-General Pelagio Cruz, former Executive Secretary Emilio Abello, DBP Chairman Gregorio S. Licaros, former Finance Secretary Pio Pedrosa, Monetary Board Members Marcelino Balatbat and Mariano Peñaflorida, and many others.

The President and the Cabinet this afternoon authorized NASSCO General Manager Sofronio Abrera and a representative of the Jacinto Steel Inc., to meet with representatives of Koppers, Inc., and the Export-Import Bank in Washington, D.C., in order to expedite financing arrangements for the projected integrated steel mills.

The President and his Cabinet, during their regular weekly meeting, made this decision in order to prosecute more vigorously and without further delay establishment of the integrated steel mills in Iligan, designed to furnish raw materials for Philippine heavy industries.

This action was also taken on the suggestion of Samuel C. Waugh, president and chairman of the board of directors of the Export-Import Bank of Washington, that "it is now in order" to formulate a definite decision regarding the application for financial assistance of the NASSCO for the integrated steel project.

Waugh recommended the sending of a Philippine team consisting of representatives from the Government and from the Jacinto Steel, to meet with American representatives of the Koppers Company and the Export-Import Bank.

American Ambassador John D. Hickerson officially transmitted to Secretary Florencio Moreno Waugh's communication.

The President and the Cabinet also gave formal approval to the "Report on the Integrated Steel Plant" prepared by Koppers Co., Inc., which had already been thoroughly studied and generally accepted by the Export-Import Bank.

In his report to the Cabinet, Public Works Secretary Moreno, chairman of the Cabinet committee for the Integrated Steel Project, said basic engineering for foundations, building designs, roadways layouts, wharf construction, and installation of machinery for handling equipment and materials can be started immediately without further delay.

Secretary Moreno said, this would normally take four months to finish.

December 22.—THIS morning President Garcia directed the management of Philippine Air Lines to suspend “Stardust” flight until further notice.

Presidential action came close at the heels of a conference this morning with Miguel Noel, PAL executive, who reported to the President on the air crash in Cebu City early this morning. The meeting was held in the President’s Quezon City residence.

The President was appraised of the circumstances of the air crash which took the lives of 29 persons from a reported passenger list of 34. The plane came from Manila and landed in Cebu. Its destination was Davao.

The President was informed that the suspension of night flights would minimize the possibility of air accidents. Darkness is a definite disadvantage when plane instruments fail, it was explained.

President Garcia directed PAL officials to keep him well informed on developments. He expressed deep sympathy and condoled with the families of the air crash victims. The President has scheduled a conference with PAL officials and Civil Aeronautics Administration officials early next month to discuss added safety measures for interisland air travel. The President had recently directed PAL officials to look into the installation of radar equipment in all PAL planes as an added safety factor. The President stated that the PAL accidents should teach us a lesson.

President Garcia today congratulated six recipients of the “Soldier of the Year” award on the occasion of the 25th anniversary of the armed forces of the Philippines.

“I am sure this is an honor you richly deserve considering that you have sworn to give the best years of your life to the service of your country and your people,” the President told awardees.

“The six armed forces personnel to whom congratulatory letters were sent were S/Sgt. Perfecto S. de la Rosa as AFP Soldier of the Year; S/Sgt. Benjamin Y. Gonzaga as GHQ Soldier of the Year; S/Sgt. Those given temporary promotion were Major Wolfredo Encarnacion to lieutenant-colonel, for the capture of Linda Bie on June 21, 1960; and 1st Lt. Laudemer Kahulugan to captain, for the capture of Casto Alejandrino on October 12, 1960.

December 23.—THE President issued today a Christmas message to the nation and stressed the importance of Christmas.

He said the message of “goodwill and cheer is addressed to all, regardless of religion, color, rank, and property. The spirit that flows through our commemoration of the Nativity transcends all the barriers that keep men apart in other times.”

The President did not receive any caller as he went over pending state papers in order to clear his desk before Christmas Day.

President and Mrs. Garcia this evening joined about a thousand of Malacañang employees to the traditional Christmas party held at the Palace Pasig River lawn.

The President and the First Lady joined the Malacañang employees shortly after nightfall and were received with cheers by Palace officials, clerks, janitors, and household help.

President Garcia contributed P1,000 as a jackpot prize for the raffle which climaxed the celebration. The First Lady, on the other hand, donated P500 as the second prize.

During the celebration, the President addressed the Palace employees and thanked them for their cooperation in his administration. He said he wanted to join them this evening to share with them the blessings of Christmas.

President Garcia also expressed the hope that he would receive the same cooperation the employees had given him during the last four years he has stayed in Malacañang.

The President and the First Lady greeted all the employees as they arrived at the party.

December 24.—PRESIDENT and Mrs. Garcia led the faithful in the traditional observance of Christmas Eve by hearing midnight mass at the Malacañang chapel, together with Mr. and Mrs. Fernando Campos, their son-in-law, and daughter.

Close friends and relatives of the First Couple also heard mass and joined the President and the First Lady at a subsequent midnight snack, a traditional repast during Christmas Eve, held at the Palace dining hall.

Earlier during the day, the President sent a Christmas greeting to Senate President Eulogio Rodriguez. The President's message was sent by a special courier.

The President took time out from his official duties to scribe a note of hope to Miss Doris Ridgway of Virginia, United States, the victim of an incurable bone cancer, who expressed her last wish to receive Christmas cards from sympathizers.

Upon reading the news item, the President wrote in his own hand-writing: "Don't give up hope. God bless you!"

The President also appealed to the public to give Miss Ridgway a happy Christmas which may be her last, by sending a Christmas card at Route 1, Hardy, Virginia.

The President also signed pardon papers for 190 national prisoners who were recommended for executive clemency by the Board of Pardons and Parole.

At 5 o'clock this afternoon the President received Malacañang newsmen who wished him a Merry Christmas.

President's Month in Review: December 25-31, 1960

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

December 25.— PRESIDENT Garcia spent a quiet Christmas today at Malacañang with the members of his family.

After a late night where he attended the traditional, midnight mass on Christmas Eve, the President woke up a little late but spent the early mornings in a game of billiards with his aide, Lcdr. Melchor Fronda.

The President did not receive any callers, but intimate friends and relatives were reported to have visited him and the First Lady.

He had breakfast with the First Lady and then pored over state papers in his study room.

About midnight last night, the President received members of the Malacañang Newsmen's Association and, between sips of brandy, assessed the political situation.

He kept all talks on his assessment of the political situation "off the record" but gave every indications that he was confident of re-election in the 1961 presidential polls.

The President impressed that he was keenly abreast of political developments, and has been receiving confidential information from opposition quarters in the Liberal Party and even from his own party.

The Chief Executive also counselled newsmen as a Christmas message to stress more on the positive side of the news in order to "generate confidence" in the masses. He said that "negative thinking" has its adverse effects on the morale of the people and in their faith in the government and its leaders.

The President today ordered the National Emergency Relief Coordinating Committee to rush relief supplies and medicine to the victims of the P2 million Christmas Day fire which broke out in Lamitan, Basilan City.

The President expressed grave concern for the welfare of some 6,000 fire victims who lost their homes during the fire which also razed the public market to the ground.

Upon receiving telegrams from "Mayor Leroy Brown and Vice-Mayor Jose A. Legaspi of Basilan City, the President contacted the Social Welfare Administration, the Philippine Constabulary, the Department of Health, and the Philippine Airforce to coordinate their efforts in rushing relief to the fire victims.

The President also directed the NERCC to submit a report on the extent of the damage wrought by the recent fire in Lucena, Quezon, and to take precautions against the recurrence of fires in all areas, especially with the advent of the hot season.

The President said fires not only affect the people but also the general economic prosperity of the country in terms of property, manpower, time, and effort lost.

The President ordered that priority be given in the airlifting of medical supplies and doctors to prevent outbreak of epidemics, of relief goods for the immediate needs of the sufferers, and of Army pup tents for their temporary shelter.

In his wire to the President, Mayor Brown said the fire which broke out at 2 a.m. on Christmas Day, burned the public market and residential district of Lamitan, causing P2 million damage and rendering 1,000 families

A second telegram from Vice-Mayor Legaspi said a total of 6,000 persons were rendered homeless by the fire.

December 26.— PRESIDENT Garcia today discussed with public works Secretary Moreno the 1960-61 public works program with emphasis on increasing projects in the rural areas.

Secretary Moreno also took the occasion to clarify a statement attributed to Speaker Romualdez that the release of public funds had been frozen by the Administration. Moreno said a total of P26 million from the general fund had been released to date.

“There’s no such thing as freezing the release of funds for public works projects,” Moreno informed the President. “As a matter of fact, the greater bulk of the P26 million release was made on recommendations from senator and congressmen,” Moreno added.

President Garcia singled out three major items for possible inclusion in his state-of-nation speech before a joint session of Congress on January 23. He discussed in detail with Secretary Moreno the proposed 1960-61 public works program of his administration.

Mentioned for possible recommendation to the next regular session of Congress are:

1. Increased participation of provincial and municipal governments in the special highways funds by amending the special Highways Fund (Republic Act 917);
2. A financing plan for flood control projects; and
3. The construction of permanent or concrete highways.

Press Secretary Jose C. Nable said the presidential message to Congress in January may emphasize on the importance of legislating funds for flood control, especially in Central Luzon provinces. He said the President will draw from the bitter lesson of the recent floods where thousands of residents in Central Luzon provinces suffered tremendous loss, not to mention the loss to government properly.

Since the floods in these provinces, the President had directed technicians and engineers in the Department of Public Works and the Armed Forces to study the flood problem and submit their respective recommendations in time for possible inclusion in the President’s state of the nation speech, Nable said. The proposal to increase the participation of local governments in the special highways funds is in line with the President’s desire to grant local autonomy. It will be recalled that Congress approved last session the collection of an additional two centavos tax per liter of gasoline.

An improved method of collection of this additional levy was discussed by President Garcia and Secretary Moreno.

December 27.— THIS day President Garcia stayed at his private residence on Bohol Avenue, Quezon City, where he received some callers.

In the morning the President received Press Secretary Jose C. Nable, who briefed him on news developments. Nable reported to the President the increasing political attacks from members of the Nacionalista Party, especially from Senate President Eulogio Rodriguez, who fired a broadside against the Garcia administration on the first leg of his southward stump yesterday.

Mayor Arsenio H. Lacson also vowed to light President Garcia in a statement issued on the occasion of his 48th birth anniversary.

The President appeared unperturbed by these attacks. He expressed the hope that he would be able to preserve unity in the administration party.

In the afternoon the President received Gov. Feliciano Leviste of Batangas, who discussed the political developments in his province with the Chief Executive.

Rep. Benjamin T. Ligot of Cagayan also saw the President. He discussed some problems confronting his district.

Fred Archibald, vice president of the Hearst Publications, also called on the President. Archibald arrived in Manila yesterday and paid a courtesy call on the Chief Executive. He was accompanied by L. Mathewson, head of the United States Information Service in Manila.

December 28.— THIS morning the President went over the treaty on amity, commerce, and navigation with Japan. He studied the provisions carefully in preparation for his scheduled meeting with the Philippine panel headed by former Speaker Jose B. Laurel.

The Chief Executive also spent the day going over pending state papers.

This evening the President received a briefing from Foreign Affairs Secretary Felixberto M. Serrano on various matters, including the treaty of amity, commerce, and navigation signed by representatives of the Philippines, and Japan in Tokyo.

Serrano saw the President after he had received reports that the President would meet members of the Philippine panel tomorrow. Informed sources said Serrano has some misgivings on some provisions of the treaty.

Serrano also briefed the President on his forthcoming trip to Japan early next year. Serrano is leaving in the first week of January for an undisclosed mission. He informed the President of reports he had received on Malaya for President Garcia's information in connection with the latter's four-day state visit to Kuala Lumpur in February.

Serrano was the only caller today at President Garcia's private residence on Bohol Avenue, Quezon City.

President Garcia today declared Saturday, December 1, a special public holiday to enable the people to enjoy an uninterrupted New Year's holiday without prejudice to public interests.

The presidential proclamation will also give private banks and business firms ample time to close their accounts or to make inventories, as their business which would normally close on December 31, will end at the close of office hours tomorrow.

"With this proclamation the people will be in for a four-day New Year's vacation starting December 30 (Rizal Day), and ending January 2, 1961, which will automatically be a holiday since New Year falls on Sunday.

December 29.— PRESIDENT Garcia today expressed general satisfaction over the terms of the Pi-Japan treaty of friendship, commerce, and navigation. However, in a brief, impromptu/press conference at his study in Malacañang this morning, the President told the newspapermen, covering Malacañang, that the text, of the treaty was still classified matter and will not be officially released until it was declassified by both the Philippine and the Japanese governments.

The President also informed the newspapermen that he will convene the Council of Leaders at the latest a few days before Congress opens in January, to give him time to take up the legislative program for the year and incorporate it in his state-of-the-nation message to Congress.

The President expressed desire to have Senate President Rodriguez attend the meeting, tentatively set for January 4, 1961, adding he might even postpone it if Senate President Rodriguez requests postponement and returns early enough from his campaign trip to the South.

Regarding the possible shifts in foreign policy by the new United States Administration, especially in the Orient, the President counselled a “wait and see” policy.

The President said that any talk of possible shifts in foreign policy at present is mere speculation, adding that Foreign Secretary Serrano must have been misquoted in the use of the word “Misapprehension” when he was alleged to have expressed misapprehension over shifts in U.S. foreign policy.

The President counseled a period of waiting until the new U.S. President defines his policy on foreign relations in his inaugural address.

The President held his press conference immediately after inducting into office the newly elected officers of the Malacañang Newspapermen’s Association.

Inducted were Mabini R. The President later received a large bronze replica of Jose Rizal’s Mi Ultimo Adios, which was donated by the Bachelors Club of the Philippines to the Rizal Centennial Commission.

The three-by-five feet bronze plaque was presented to the President by Serapio Canceren, club president, in the presence of Director Luis Montilla of the National Library; Dr. Josa Fontanilla, Jorge Freire, and Major Arturo Sevilla, club members; Julia Pilcher, daughter of the British ambassador; and Linda Sebastian and Mrs. Rosita S. Peñera of the Rizal Centennial Commission.

The President later conferred with members of the Philippine panel which negotiated the treaty of friendship, commerce, and navigation with Japan, during which he also expressed general satisfaction over the terms of the treaty.

Present at the conference were Chairman Jose B. Laurel, Jr., Sen. Rogelio de la Rosa, Rep. Antonio V. Raquiza of Ilocos Norte, Central Bank Deputy governor Andres V. Castillo, Minister Enrique Garcia, Commerce Undersecretary Perfecto E. Laguio, and Jose Laurel, III. Also present were Director Jose Panganiban of the Institute of National Language, Professor Monico Vicente, and Major Arturo Sevilla.

The President later received Manager Filemon Zablan of the National Power Corporation, who reported to the President on prospects for a $36 million loan with the World Bank to underwrite construction of the Angat multipurpose project.

Zablan, who arrived from abroad last December 15, informed the President that the NPC might be able to get a $36 million loan from the World Bank instead of its previous application for $25 million. He said that after consultations with officials of the Harza Engineering firm of Chicago, he was convinced the power capacity for the project can be increased from the proposed 167 megawatts to 208 megawatts.

Zablan said this increase will take care of the multipurpose aspect of the project. He said this can be done by tapping the full capacity of the waterpower, which would not only be economical in the long run but will be adequate to meet the rapid rise in power shortage due to industrialization and rural electrification.

The President told Zablan that he expects the National Power Corporation to keep apace with the electricity needs of expanding industries” and added he had certified to the urgency of a bill to Congress increasing the equity capitalization of the corporation from P100 million to P200 million. Present air the conference were NPC Assistant Manager Jose Lahoz, Jorge Gonzales, and Isidro Santos, chief of the survey and investigation division of the NPC.

The President today extended executive clemency to an additional 95 prisoners now sewing terms at the state penitentiary in Muntinglupa, Rizal, on the occasion of Rizal Day. Of the 95 prisoners, 11 were granted absolute pardons and 84 were extended conditional pardons.

The President had previously extended clemency to some 190 prisoners on the occasion of Christmas Day. All these grants to deserving prisoners had been made on the recommendation of the Board of Pardons and Parole.

December 30.— THIS morning President Garcia showed marked improvement in his golf practice, scoring 41-43 in two 9-hole games at the Malacañang golf course. He played his matches against veteran golf players Col. Emilio Borromeo, Drs. Antonio Guytingco and Alejandro Gaerlan, and Commander Melchor Fronda, presidential aide.

After his games which lasted from 6:30 to 11 a.m., the President received an allegorical lantern from Major Teofilo Zosa, general manager of the Manila Railroad company, which depicted Philippine industry on the move.

The lantern featured a Filipino workingman turning the wheel of industry, a moving MRR train, and a small lighted map, showing the MRU lines and proposed extension to Cagayan Valley in the North and Sorsogon in the South.

The President had the lantern displayed at the front door of the Malacañang Palace.

The President later had a conference with Foreign Secretary Felixberto Serrano, who briefed him on the international situation, including the latest developments in strife-torn Laos.

The President was the guest of honor and principal speaker at the 1980 Rizal Day celebration held at the Luneta Grandstand this afternoon under the auspices of the Jose Rizal National Centennial Commission.

The President arrived at the grandstand at 3:15 p.m. accompanied by Education Secretary Jose Romero, chairman of the Rizal Bay executive committee.

The arrival of the President signalled the start of the civic parade, preceded by composite units of the Armed Forces of the Philippines.

Secretary Romero introduced the President. In the grandstand were members of the Cabinet, Speaker Daniel Z. Romualdez, high government officials, members of the local diplomatic corps, AFP brass, and members of the Order of the nights of Rizal, Squires of Rizal, Kababaihang Rizalista and Kabataang Maka-Rizal.

December 31.—THIS morning the President motored to the Wack Wack Golf and Country Club and played a nine-hole golf with the pair of Chairman Paulino J. Garcia of the National Science Development Board and Emerito Ramos, a local businessman. Paired with the President was Francisco Aguinaldo, another businessman.

The Garcia-Aguinaldo team lost by two strokes, President Garcia scoring 54 for nine holes.

From the Wack Wack club, the President drove back to his private residence on Bohol Avenue, Quezon City, where he received at breakfast Speaker Daniel Z. Romualdez.

Romualdez, one of the mediators in the President's political feud with Senate President Eulogio Rodriguez, was reported to have taken up with the Chief Executive the Administration's legislative program.

However, political sources said the President and Romualdez also took up the possibility of preventing the Garcia-Rodriguez rift from getting out of hand as the Senate President has consistently lashed at the President in his political stump in Mindanao.

The President and the First Lady later motored to the residence of Sen. and Mrs. Reseller T. Lim, where they had been invited to a dinner.

President and Mrs. Garcia stayed until past midnight, as they held a traditional New Year's Eve party to welcome the advent of the New Year 1961.

To the President, 1961 is a year of utmost significance, as it is a presidential election year. He has announced his availability for re-election.

In a message he issued today, the President said that "whatever the old year did not bring, the coming one, we hope, will vouchsafe."

He has been full of optimism over the coming year, and stated "we look to the future in its brightest colors." President and Mrs. Garcia had Vic Damone, noted American singer, as their special guest.

Among those invited to the Malacañang New Year's Eve affair were members of Congress and the Cabinet. The affair was held at the Malacañang social hall.

President's Week in Review: January 1-7, 1961

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

January 1.—

PRESIDENT and Mrs. Garcia were “at home” today to receive a host of well-wishers on the occasion of New Year's Day. Vice-President Diosdado Macapagal led the well-wishers on the traditional courtesy call at Malacañang. He was accompanied by his wife and three children Maria, Gloria, and Diosdado, Jr.

People from all walks of life, of varied political affiliations, ranking government officials, members of the diplomatic corps, cosmopolitan groups, AFP brass, newspapermen, and representatives of civic organizations, joined the long line of callers who trooped to Malacañang to extend their greeting to the first couple of the land.

At the traditional exchange of toasts with members of the diplomatic corps, President Garcia expressed the hope that the long cherished dream of world peace would be achieved in 1961 so that all peoples could live in honor and freedom.

He also pictured a rosier outlook for the new year despite some gloomy spots prevailing in the world today. Apostolic Nuncio Msgr. Salvatore Siino, as dean of the diplomatic corps, in turn, expressed the hope that the President will “enjoy unfailing health during this year, and that all your undertakings for the welfare of the nation be attended with favorable outcome and success.”

The Nuncio continued: “We pray that this year will bring many blessings to the people of the Philippines; that it will be a year of continuing prosperity; and that all will feel the benefits of the national progress and development.”

He asked all the members of the diplomatic corps to join in a toast to the health, happiness, and well-being of the President, as well as to the continued progress and prosperity of the Philippines.

Opposition stalwarts, like Sens. Jesus Mariano Cueneo and Estanislao Fernandez, joined the host of well-wishers. Other members of the Senate who greeted the President and his Lady were Cipriano Primicias, Mrs. Pacita Gonzalez, Gil J. Puyat, and Pedro Sabido.

Speaker and Mrs. Daniel Romualdez led members of the Lower Chamber and their ladies in greeting President and Mrs. Garcia. Defense officials and AFP brass headed by Secretary and Mrs. Alejo Santos, Undersecretary and Mrs. Mariano Yenke, Jr., Lt. Gen. and Mrs. Manuel Cabal, Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Pelagio Cruz, Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Alfredo Santos, Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Isidro Campo, and Commodore Jose Francisco also trooped to Malacañang to extend their greetings to their commander-in-chief and Mrs. Garcia.

Along about noontime, the bakya crowd joined the well-wishers, many of whom brought along their children, dressed in their Sunday best.

The continuous flow of people that filed past the reception line had to be interrupted many times as the President and the First Lady shook hands and had brief chats with the children.

President and Mrs. Garcia stood at the reception line for more than two hours.

*January 2.—*This morning the President played an 18-hole golf at the Malacañang Park after another attempt to win: his first full game at the Wack Wack Golf and Country Club last Saturday.

The President played with Press Secretary Jose C. Nable and his two physicians, Drs. Antonio Guytingco and Alejandro Gaerlan, who have also picked up the game along with their patient.

This evening the President summoned Foreign Affairs Secretary Felixberto M. Serrano to, an urgent conference on the flaming Laos, situation which threatened to involve the Philippines.

Philippine involvement was clearly indicated by this day's development following appeals by the United States to call for a meeting of member nations of the Southeast Asia Treaty Organizations.

The, Philippines is a member of the SEATO and, although Laos is not affiliated with the SEATO, the organization is committed to defend it against any intervention which may threaten the security of countries with the area.

Up to press time, the President and Serrano were still in conference.

It was learned that Serrano briefed the Chief Executive on developments in Laos where communist forces allegedly from North Vietnam had joined hostilities bringing about a case of foreign intervention for the SEATO powers to discuss and possibly take action on.

The-President and Serrano also took up the plight of Filipinos who are in Vientiane either employed as mechanics or with the Operations Brotherhood.

January 3.—PRESIDENT Garcia said that the Philippines would be completely back to free economy by next year if the present "spectacular recovery" in the country's financial stability continues. The President made the statement at a luncheon held at the Manila Hotel in commemoration of the 12th anniversary of the establishment of the Central Bank of the Philippines.

In an extemporaneous speech the President underscored the important role played by the Central, Bank in propping, up the sagging national economy during the 12 years of its existence. He lauded retired CB Governor Miguel Cuaderno for his fine stewardship of the financial institution, especially during the fight to recovery and decontrol.

Immediately after the war, the foreign exchange reserve of the country amounted to $670 million, but the work of rehabilitation and reconstruction ate up the reserves to such, an extent that in 1949, it dropped to $420 million, the President stated.

In 1949, when the Central Bank was established and exchange controls were imposed, the reserve further dropped to $250 million, or a loss again of $160 million, he added.

The President said that during the Magsaysay administration the reserve dropped down to $140 million at the end of 1957 as a result of an aggressive policy of economic development, exploitation, and utilization of natural resources.

Tracing the fight to recovery and decontrol, the President said that his administration was forced to adopt several stabilization measures in spite of vigorous opposition here and in the United States.

However, he continued, opposition to, the measures were overcome and the march to recovery and decontrol started with the adoption of stabilization measures consisting mainly of: (a) Dollar margin law; (b) retrenchment of budgetary expenditures; (c) retrenchment of bond issues; (d) restraint of credit, especially under CB Circular No. 79; (e) the raising of percentage for the reserve ratio for demand deposit from 18 to 21 per cent; and (f) basic rediscount rate increase from 1% to 2 per cent, later on the 4 ½ and even on 6 per cent.

After the adoption of the stabilization measures, marked improvements in, the national economy began to be felt, the President pointed out. Thus for the first, time since the war started, the Philippines had a favorable balance of trade and balance of payments, which was already considered an achievement.

The President also underscored the fact that the dollar reserves of the country showed spectacular 'recovery at the end of 1959 with $163 million, after deducting the payment of all foreign short term debts amounting to about $66 million and in addition to the payment of some longer term obligations which all in all totalled about $80 million.

And not so easy, thing to achieve, he stated, was the increase-in 1959 of the gross national product at a rate double that of 1958, He further stated at with the dollar reserve standing now at $205 million, he is “looking forward to a dollar reserve beyond $300 million at the end of 1961” He based his optimism on the increase of the Philippine sugar quota due to the Cuban situation.

While speaking on the “spectacular recovery of Philippine financial stability, the President said that the International Monetary Fund in its 1959 report on the Philippines commented that the Philippines is now ready to reduce to the minimum the exchange controls and go back to a free economy

“The recovery of our financial stability was such that it made possible in April of 1980 the first phase of a four-year gradual decontrol program which I announced shortly before the approval of the dollar margin law” the President said.

He added that the implementation was so successful and the stability of the currency gained in strength that it eliminated the need to wait for one year for the implementation of the second phase of the decontrol program.

“There was produced after the implementation of the second, phase of the decontrol program a new high in the business optimism of the country that it was amply warranted to announce, as I did so last December 11, that the four-year decontrol program might be completed in three years and, if the present trend continues, by 1962 we shall be completely back to free economy,” the President asserted.

At the same time that the second phase of decontrol was implemented, the President said, the rigid restrictions imposed” by CB Circular No. 79 were lifted and the reserve requirements against demand deposit which was raised to 21 per cent was lowered back to 19 per cent and later on further reduced to 18 per cent.

An additional fund of P150 million is now available to expand the credit capabilities of Filipino private banks, the President also stated.

Even as he lauded Gov. Cuaderno for his role in the recovery of the Philippine financial stability the President expressed the hope that he would like to see “final attainment of free enterprise and free economy system.”

He also said that he would like to see a “more aggressive, economic nationalism under the enlightenment of our 12 years experience in banking, making Philippine economy least vulnerable to outside economic distresses.”

In concluding his well-applauded speech, the President pledged that his administration will launch a more aggressive policy for an expanded and: diversified foreign trade, while he assured full central banking support for the rapid implementation of the industrial dispersal program to establish a latter equilibrium, of “our economic development and to establish greater employment opportunities not only in the area of Greater Manila but also in all the eight regions of the Philippines.”

On the occasion, Cuaderno received a bronze plaque for meritorious service from Domingo Enerio, president of the Central Bank 49ers Club.

The President’s extemporaneous speech lasted more than one hour. He was introduced by Finance Secretary Dominador Aytona, presiding officer of the Monetary Board.

At the presidential table also were MB members Marcelo Balatbat and Mariano Peñaflorida, and past MB members Pio Pedrosa and Antonio de las Alas.

This afternoon the President directed the Presidential Committee on Administration Performance Efficiency to investigate alleged rampant irregularities in the registration of land in Baguio.

The Chief Executive issued the directive upon being informed by Justice Buenaventura Ocampo that Councilor Yarañon of Baguio came to the PCAPE to report on the alleged “big racket” in the filing of land registration proceedings based on a new law allowing judicial re-opening of land registration cases in the townsite of Baguio.

Councilor Yarañon reported to the PCAPE that titles had been awarded to several persons based on 30 years continuous and actual possession of the land in the concept of an owner. He claimed that the area could not have been occupied by the awardees continuously for 30 years, for some of the land in question had been reforested by the Bureau of Forestry since 1932.

Major Teodulo C. Natividad, PCAPE chief, investigator, said that information received by the intelligence unit of the PCAPE tends to show that the registration and subsequent issuance of title were made through the intervention of a certain forestry official.

President and Mrs. Garcia today sent a message of condolence to the family of former Sen. Juan S. Torralba, who died at 1 o'clock this morning at the Army Station hospital in Cebu City.

The deceased had served as governor and congressman of Bohol, and as senate of the pre-war 11th senatorial district which included his province.

He is survived by his wife, Isabel, and seven children; namely, Edilberto Manuel, Catalina, Zenaida, Mila, Nicolas, and Cirila.

The body will be shipped to his home town, Tagbilaran, Bohol, tomorrow.

January 4.—THE PRESIDENT did not receive any caller this morning. He called an emergency meeting of the National Security Council at Camp Murphy at 9 p.m. yesterday and the conference adjourned at 3 o'clock this morning. The President woke up late this morning.

The Cabinet in its first meeting of the year, moved this evening to implement President Garcia's policy of noncompetition with private business as it approved the sale of the Insular Sugar Refinery and created a committee to handle the liquidation of two government-owned textile mills.

The Cabinet also created a committee to look into the proposal of the GSIS to develop the housing projects acquired from the PHHC at a cost of P27 million.

The sugar refinery sale to the Sugar Refineries Association was approved as recommended by the Office of Economic Coordination which ran the public bidding.

The price was quoted at P6,180,000. The only other bidder was the Central Azucarrera de Tarlac-Tarlac Development Corporation combine, which bid P2,250,000 for the refinery. The floor price was quoted as having been fixed at P4,750,000.

The Sugar Refineries Association agreed to retain as many employees as possible. Those laid off would be given the equivalent of one month's pay for, every year of service plus a one-month bonus.

In moving to speed up the disposal of various industries now competing with private business, the Cabinet created a committee to set the terms and conditions as well as the invitation to bid for the purchase of the NDC textile mills in Manila and the Ilocos Textile Mills.

Justice Secretary Alejo Mabanag was appointed chairman of the committee with Economic Coordinator Juan Chioco, Commerce Secretary Manuel Lim, Labor Secretary Angel Castaño, and NEC Chairman Jose C. Locsin as members.

The Chief Executive's arrival is expected to touch off a political rally endorsing his re-election.

Toledo is the scene of mining boom, it being the site of the first oil deposits to be unearthed in the country. It is the second city in Cebu.

The President and the First Lady motored to the presidential yacht after the Chief Executive had adjourned the regular meeting of Ms, Cabinet this evening.

January 5.—PRESIDENT Garcia today said the Philippines wants the United Nations to take initial action in strife-torn Laos to prevent the conflict, from spreading beyond the borders of the tiny Southeast Asian kingdom.

At the same time he urged Southeast Asia Treaty Organization members to move cautiously on the crisis, since evidence of alleged foreign intervention have to be considered before a collective decision can be made.

The Chief Executive bared this Philippine posture on Laos on board RPS Lapu-Lapu which is taking him to Toledo City, Cebu, two days after the National Security Council, in an emergency session with him had recommended this stand on the conflict.

In advocating UN action in Laos, the President pointed out that the world body would be more effective and expedient in handling the veritable powderkeg that threatens to involve other nations, including the Philippines.

The President pointed out the following factors which influenced the nation's stand in favor of an initial UN move on Laos:

1. The UN is a bigger organization with 99 members.
2. It would be more expedient, as the UN does not need a formal request from a beleaguered state for help.

Asked by newsmen on a report from Bangkok that the SEATO shuns military action in Laos, President Garcia answered that the Philippines makes her decision only after she has assessed all evidence on intervention.

He also said the eight-nation alliance's charter provides as a requisite prior request for help from protocol states, like Laos, before the SEATO nations can send military assistance.

He said, "The Philippines cannot act on mere fragmentary reports. Even the United States, with all its facilities has not gathered all evidence regarding alleged Russian or communist intervention."

He stressed that the Philippines will reach "the hour of decision" only after she has been furnished with all evidence of intervention.

President Garcia stated that he was watching developments in Laos closely and is daily receiving confidential reports on the situation in that kingdom.

The Chief Executive said Thailand has committed herself to intervene in Laos because the country's security is immediately threatened by the present civil strife.

President Garcia is scheduled to reach the port of Toledo, a Cebu coastal town until its creation into a city by Congress, at 8 a.m. tomorrow.

The President confined himself in his cabin, poring over state papers brought to the ship for his study. He met newsmen briefly at noon.

The President is accompanied on board ship by Sen. Gil Puyat, a candidate for the Nacionalista vice-presidential nomination. Education Secretary Jose Romero, and Agriculture Undersecretary Salvador Cunanan.

Before he sailed last night, the President received Manila Councilors Alfredo Gomez, Ernesto Maceda, and Francisco Varona.

January 6.—PRESIDENT Garcia today inaugurated Toledo City as the s 34th chartered city of the Philippines. In his speech during the inauguration program, he pledged to give ail he can “in the service of the people and the country” if he is nominated by the Nacionalista convention. He also bared his legislative program topped by plans for a full scale exploitation of the rich natural resources of the country.

The President also acknowledged in his address, receipt of a resolution endorsing his re-election in 1961. The resolution was adopted by 47 municipal mayors of Cebu during a convention last night. President Garcia expressed his gratitude to the framers and supporters of the resolution.

The President and his party left at 6 p.m. today for Talibon, Bohol, where he will inaugurate a church and a hospital. From Talibon, he will proceed to Tagbilaran where he will open the East Visayan athletic meet on Sunday.

January 7.—PRESIDENT Garcia landed from the yacht, RPS Lapu-Lapu, at Talibon, Bohol, at 4 p.m. today from Cebu province where he had inaugurated Toledo City.

On his way to Talibon, the President discussed with Sen. Gil Puyat plans of tapping P260 million in frozen funds from the Central Bank margin foe on dollars to finance productive enterprises. The plan was to implement an earlier announcement he made to channel the funds to finance productive industries on a credit basis through the banks.

President Garcia minimized Senate President Eulogio Rodriguez's political tour of Cebu saying that Amang cannot hope to swing to his favor what he called the baluk area. By this, he meant Mindanao and the Visayan where he mesmerized Rodriguez political stump in Cebu, he voiced the hope he would be reconciled with his arch-rival for the presidential nomination to preserve the unity of the Nacionalista Party.

Forum Talibon, President Garcia will sail to Tagbilaran where he will formally open the East Visayan meet tomorrow afternoon.

The President today directed the Presidential Committee on Administration Performance Efficiency to conduct a preliminary inquiry of a complaint filed with the office of the President against an assistant provincial fiscal for alleged immorality, serious misconduct, unfitness, and incompetence.

The President issued the directive through Executive Secretary Natalio P. Castillo, and was transmitted this afternoon to Justice Buenaventura Ocampo, PCAPE chairman, for implementation.

The complainant, in a letter to the Chief Executive, alleged that her daughter and the assistant fiscal were engaged to be married. The date and time, as well as the preparations had been set, but last November 2, the assistant fiscal married another woman leaving his daughter in a "very embarrassing situation."

The complainant informed the President that the fiscal through promise of marriage had induced his daughter to have carnal knowledge with him, as a result of which she is now in the family way.

When she became aware of her pregnancy, the victim, wrote the assistant fiscal informing him of her condition and in reply to the letter, the assistant fiscal allegedly wrote back reiterating his promise of marriage, the complainant said.

When she learned of the marriage of the assistant fiscal to another woman, she filed an administrative case with the Department of Justice on October 2, 1960, which until now, had allegedly remained pending.

The respondent assistant fiscal had been able to work for his detail with the Department of Justice which fact is seemingly “unfair and dangerous,” especially when the respondent allegedly had said that he could influence his co-prosecutors to side with him and assert influence for his subsequent acquittal, the complainant said.

The President in directing the PCAPE to investigate the case, pointed out that prosecutors are bound by their oath to uphold the law so that justice and equity should prevail.

“As they are government prosecutors, members of the community look up to them as their protectors and champions and not as the ones who would take advantage of their ignorance and frailties. It is for this reason that intellectual fitness of prosecutors is not enough. The highest degree of moral fitness is also required, aside from other qualifications the law imposes upon them to satisfy,” the President said.

President Garcia received at Malacañang a ten-man delegation from Marikina that thanked him for expediting the sale to landless occupants of a 52-hectare property in Rizal belonging to the Manila Railroad.

Yancha and Eladio T. Balite of Samar, and Mayor Guillermo Altar of MacArthur, who took up local politics with the Chief Executive.

The President signed this morning an executive order converting Libungan, formerly a barrio of Midsayap, Cotabato, into a full-fledged municipality.

Present at the signing of the order creating the new municipality, at Malacañang, were Rep. Salipada Pendatun of Cotabato, Deputy Gov. E. Cedeño, Mayor T. Balayan, Councilors B. Fajardo and B. Eugenio of Tacurong, and others.

January 28.—PRESIDENT Garcia pledged today the full backing of the government to any enterprise aimed at developing the dairy industry in Isabela and to boost the manufacture of native cigars for the American market.

The President gave this pledge before the people of nine provinces competing in the North Luzon Athletic Association meet at closing ceremonies at the Albano Stadium in Ilagan, Isabela.

The President was applauded several times when he announced the plan to establish the first government dairy plant in Isabela and the plan to construct the San Mariano-Palanan road to open the vast virgin lands and provide Isabela with a seaport at Palanan.

The President said that he had already released a total of ₱350,000 from his contingent funds for public works in Isabela and had earmarked ₱300,000 of public works funds for the San Mariano-Palanan road.

The Chief Executive also announced he had sent Agriculture Secretary Cesar Fortich to Isabela to organize the first government dairy plant because the Philippines is spending much needed dollars for the importation of 85 per cent of the country's dairy needs.

The President also urged the people to plant more tobacco and to mass-produce cigars because the time has come when the Philippine tobacco can gain a firm hold on the American market with the severance of relations between the U.S. and Cuba.

Gov. Melanio T. Singson, who said he was "a Liberal by accident," and Ilagan Mayor Veriancio Gangan were given a loud approbation by the crowd when they pledged their support to the President so that his present policies can continue.

"Although belonging to the opposition Gov. Singson said: "We are with you in your dedication to the service and welfare of our people; we are with you in your crusade for better, honest, and efficient government. We want you to know, Mr. President, that personally we are behind you, heart and soul."

In reply, the President expressed gratitude for their boldness and frankness in crossing party lines to further the interests of their constituents.

The President, accompanied by Education Secretary Jose Romero, Public Works Secretary Florencio Moreno, and Assistant Executive Secretary Enrique C. Quema, arrived at Cauayan, Isabela at 9:30 a.m. aboard the Friendship Fokker plane.

On hand to greet the visiting Chief Executive was a huge delegation representing a cross-section of the people of the region, headed by Sens. Eulogio Balao and Quintin Paredes, Rep. Delfin Albano, Govs. Godofredo Reyes of Ilocos

Sur, Jose Espino of Nueva Vizcaya, and Jose Evangelista of Ilocos Norte, Mayor Tranquilino Dalupang of Cauayan and 27 other municipal mayors, Vice-Gov. Rodolfo Albano, and members of the provincial board.

The welcoming crowd, complete with brass bands, fireworks, and flower girls, waved various placards, mostly endorsing the Garcia-Paredes ticket in 1961, and a few requesting public works improvements in different municipalities.

After receiving the honors and welcome at the airport, the President motored to Ilagan, some 30 minutes ride, for the Te Deum and the NLAA closing ceremonies at the Albano Stadium.

After the closing ceremonies, the President proceeded to the Capitol building where he was luncheon guest of the provincial officials of Isabela. During the luncheon the President distributed ₱23,000 from public works funds to the various town mayors.

After luncheon the President motored to the 17-hectare Cagayan Valley tobacco experiment station of the Philippine Tobacco Administration where he expressed amazement at the size of the leaves of a three-month old tobacco plant being cultivated as an experiment.

From there the President motored direct to the Cauayan Airport and took off at 3 p.m., arriving at the Manila International Airport an hour later.

From the MIA the President returned to Malacañang.

This evening the President sounded an invitation for foreign capital investments here and stressed that foreign assistance in the country's economic development was not inimical to his "Filipino First" policy.

The President defended his call for foreign capital in the course of his speech at the annual dinner awards given by the Standard Vacuum Oil Company for outstanding newsmen in 1959 at the National Press Club building.

He said that although the Philippines would look abroad for partnership and assistance in the prosecution of its economic development, "it will not do so at the expense of its national integrity."

The President then cited other underdeveloped countries who had sought financial assistance through foreign investments.

"They do not want the domination of their economies by aliens, as it was in their colonial past. Rather they look for partnership between citizens and foreigners on the basis of mutual understanding and mutual benefit," he stressed.

The President, however, reconciled his call for foreign investments with his Filipino First policy.

While he said there was a positive embodiment of nationalism in the Filipino First policy, he added that "we do not regard this policy as an exclusivistic movement to shut out foreign participation.

"On the contrary," he stressed, "the government recognizes the value and assistance of foreign capital and technological aid in our development."

"I have time and again, emphasized this fact in public statements, he averred.

The Chief Executive recalled that most underdeveloped countries have come to accept the fact that external assistance can play a potent role in the acceleration of economic progress.

This evening President Garcia inducted the officials of the Philippine Carabaos, Inc., at ceremonies held at the Rafael Palma Elementary School on Vito Cruz Street.

The President was fetched from his Quezon City residence by Manila Councilor Alfredo Gomez.

President's Week in Review: January 29 - February 4, 1961

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

January 29.—THE PRESIDENT and Mrs. Garcia heard mass about 6:30 this morning at the Malacañang chapel.

After mass the President motored to the Manila Golf and Country Club. He played in a foursome with Jimmy Terassa, Dr. Paulino Garcia, and Justice Roberto Concepcion. The President and Mr. Terassa won the first 9 holes by 2 strokes.

After having coffee and sandwiches, the game was resumed. The President and Terassa won the second round by 5 strokes.

From the golf course the President and party repaired to the nearby residence of Tony Araneta for lunch. The President returned to his Quezon City residence at 2 p.m.

January 30.—PRESIDENT Garcia today forseees a stronger campaign in the extermination of the cadang-cadang disease affecting the coconut industry with the helping hand that private enterprise is extending to the government.

The President said that he would “be glad to see the day when the disease is exterminated.” He pointed out that the disease has rendered eight million coconut trees fruitless and caused an estimated damage amounting to ₱40 million annually.

The President officially opened the cadang-cadang fund campaign of the Cadang Cadang Research Foundation, Inc., in his Quezon City residence in the presence of high government officials, prominent businessmen, U.S. Ambassador John Hickerson, and German Ambassador von Furstenberg.

The Foundation, founded in July 1960, is the first private research foundation in the country and is now engaged in a five-year program of research to determine the causes and ways of exterminating cadang-cadang.

The first charter members to contribute to the Foundation through the President were Caltex Philippines represented by R. J. Monical; Shell Company of the Philippines represented by G. W. Churchill; Philippine Manufacturing Company represented by Bunnet Howe; Philippine Refining Company represented by William Gailbraith and Bob Robertson; Franklin Baker Company, represented by Hans Rothkirch; PHILCOA represented by Board Chairman Feliciano de Gala; National Science Development Board represented by Chairman Dr. Paulino Garcia and Vice-Chairman Casimiro del Rosario.

Present at the kick-off ceremonies were J. P. Roxas, Robert McCombe, Ike Garrido, James Jacobi, James Liu, W. E. Manefee, R. F. Johnson, R. J. Connor, C. M. Grossett, L. Dawson, Eugene Ranson, Fr. William J. Schmitt, Dr. Robert Chandler, director of the International Rice Research Institute of the Rockefeller Foundation, Frank Co Tui, Canuto Manuel, Howard Hick, L. D. Harrison, Hans Hohman, Dra. Josefina Magno, and Dr. Dionisio Birosel.

Earlier this morning, President Garcia formed a committee to draft the bills he had recommended in his recent state-of-the-nation message to Congress.

With only a 30-day deadline, the committee will start meeting tomorrow.

The committee is composed of Finance Secretary Dominador Aytona, as chairman; DBP President Gregorio Licaros, GSIS General Manager and Board Chairman Rodolfo Andal, Dr. Cecilio Putong, Isidro Macaspac, Dr. Nathaniel Tablante, Legislative Secretary Vicente Logarta, Dr. Amando Dalisay, and Malacañang Legal Adviser Salvador Esguerra among others, as members.

The President accepted an invitation to inaugurate on April 8 the STANVAC refinery in Limay, Bataan. The invitation was extended by C. A. Larsen, F. L. Fourrier, J. R. Re villa, and A. A. Narciso.

Other presidential callers were Consul Leon Garcia, Dr. Sotero Laurel, Marjorie S. Ravenholt, Clarence Hulford, Rep. Salipada Pendatun, Labor Secretary Angel Castano, P. L. Lim, Harry Stonehill, Fernando E. V. Sison, G. Lee, J. Kui, R. Villonco, and Bob Brooks.

This afternoon the President called upon the youth to join the fight against graft and corruption and help in the preservation of the sanctity of the polls in the coming elections.

The President issued this challenge before the officials, faculty members, and student population of the Far Eastern University who overflowed the FEU quadrangle during the opening ceremonies of the 27th anniversary celebrations of the university where he was the guest speaker.

In his 30-minute speech, the President vowed that he will not tolerate, much less allow, the commission of frauds during the forthcoming elections, and called upon the student body to help preserve clean honest elections as they did once before.

The Chief Executive also urged the student population to organize for civic service so that they can become potent weapons against graft and corruption, the rising incidence of juvenile delinquency, and the continuing war against communism.

Once organized, the President said, the youth of the land can provide an effective helping hand to the government not only in the eradication of graft but also in the preservation of forests and natural resources.

The President, however, opposed the proposal by the Opposition to regiment the youth through state control as smacking of Fascism which, he said, may be the forerunner of the Brown Shirts and the Black Shirts.

The President also lashed at the critics of the Filipino First policy which they sought to depict as an anti-foreign and exclusivistic policy, in their desire to perpetuate the Filipino nation groveling in the misery of prostrate status quo ante.

The President was introduced by Dr. Teodoro Evangelista, president of the Far Eastern University, while Major Natividad delivered the welcome address.

The President left his residence on Bohol Avenue at 4 p.m. accompanied by Dr. Evangelista and Major Natividad, arriving at the FEU at 5:10, where he was received by the Reception Committee composed of the Board of Trustees and Deans of the FEU.

After the ceremonies, the President and guests were honored at cocktails, after which the President motored to Malacañang.

January 31.—PRESIDENT Garcia today expressed alarm over reports that the peace and order situation in Ilocos Sur might deteriorate again.

Rep. Faustino Tobia of Ilocos Sur said at a conference with the President at Malacañang that recent “irresponsible statements” made by Vice-President Diosdado Macapagal about starting a revolution have emboldened certain Liberal partymen in his province.

The Ilocano solon expressed fears over recent activities of Liberal “goons” who go about the province terrorizing Nacionalistas. Decrying these activities, Rep. Tobia said that the Liberals in his province expect to return to power through terrorism.

Cesar Legayada, president of the Philippine Air Lines Supervisors Association, presented to President Garcia a resolution adopted by the group expressing its opposition to the recommendation of Administrator Juan O. Chioco of the Office of Economic Coordination for government supervision of the PAL, defending revision of the management contract which expires on February 1, 1961, between the government as majority stockholder and Col. Andres Soriano.

PALSA resolution presented to the President states that the implementation of the plan of Administrator Chioco that he be delegated all powers and prerogatives of the President on state corporations in the OEC group, including the PAL, "will be a synonym for retrogression and an interruption of the company's forward march."

The President informed the group who were accompanied by Rep. Ricardo Ladrado of Iloilo that the Cabinet withheld consideration of the Chioco plan in view of the inquiries made by the Senate Transportation Committee headed by Sen. Lorenzo Tañada.

Other PALSA officials who saw the President were Eduardo Carceller, George Canceran, Isabelo Fontanilla, Catalino Bañez, Macario Laurel, Floro Reyes, Cesar Songalia, Miguel de la Rosa, Maximo Tabeta, Feliciano Icasas, Manuel Visaya, David Fuentes, Edilberto Acevedo, Prudencio Mercado, Juan Jocson, Eulogio Tolentino, and Jose Magno.

Other presidential callers were Reps. Luciano Millan of Pangasinan, Laurentino Badilles of Lanao del Norte, Lucas Paredes of Abra, Jose Leido of Negros Oriental, Justiniano Montano of Cavite, Emilio Cortez of Pampanga, Agaton Ursua of Camarines Sur, Dominador Tan of Leyte, and Jose Moreno of Romblon.

The President also received Sen. Lorenzo Sumulong and former Gov. Salvador Lluch of Lanao.

This afternoon the President congratulated Ramon Santos, a farmer-laborer from Basilan City, as "the symbol of the combined efforts of the half a million members of the Social Security System to promote the economic security of the people."

The President personally handed to Santos a special certificate attesting to his membership in the System at a ceremony held at the Malacañang study room this afternoon.

In his brief remarks the President lauded the SSS for having gained the confidence not only of 500,000 members but also of the entire people who are beneficiaries of the laborers' savings which the System has wisely invested in the economic development of the country.

The President added that the System has gained maturity and lends a stabilizing influence among the people throughout the country.

Santos, the father of eight children and a laborer in the Menzi Agricultural Corporation in Basilan, traveled to Manila with his wife to receive a special certificate from the President. He was the recipient of the following prizes: ₱4,500 worth of furniture and appliances donated by different business firms, free accommodation during his stay at the Shellborne Hotel, ₱23,000 worth of one year accident insurance, and one year scholarship for one of his sons who is now a second-year high school student.

Present at the ceremonies were Mrs. Ramon Santos; Mrs. Elsa Darbo, a daughter by the first marriage of Ramon Santos; Sen. Pacita M. Gonzalez, chairman of the Senate committee on social justice, community development, and welfare; G. Gaviola, Jr., SSS Administrator Gonzalo W. Gonzalez, SSS chairman; Ildelfonso J. Remolona, commissioner; Higinio R. Francisco, Benjamin LI. Sevilla, Teodoro R. Ganzon, deputy administrators; and other officials of the SSS.

After the ceremonies, the President received a delegation of municipal officials from Estancia, Iloilo, headed by Speaker Protempore Jose Aldeguer.

The municipal officials who took up matters pertaining to their municipality with the President were Mayor Eusebio Reyes, Vice-Mayor Serafin Demaisip, Councilors Romeo de los Santos, Julio Sitchon, Cristeto Sinense, Angel Alpasan, Pastor Cordero, Eriberto Acebuque, and Democrito Bacos.

This evening the President emphasized the need for quick action on the part of local tobacco and sugar producers in order to place a strong bid for the American sugar market.

The President told members of the Tobacco Board during a lengthy conference at Malacañang that besides quality, time was of the essence because other tobacco-producing countries would be only too glad to compete for the American market which had been a Cuban monopoly until the severance of relations between the United States and Cuba.

The President and the Tobacco Board members who were accompanied to Malacañang by Sen. Eulogio Balao, discussed plans for increasing and standardizing cigar production in order to meet expected demands in the American market.

The conference was spurred by the President's repeated appeals to tobacco and cigar producers for better and more cigars so that the Philippines can fill her yearly quota of 180,000,00 duty-free cigars. This would mean an additional income of $60 million to the tobacco farmers.

Among the matters discussed during the conference were: the planting of more acreage to both native and Virginia tobacco, highly mechanized production of cigars, and publicly campaign in the United States to sell Manila cigars.

The President emphasized that cigar factories should be established right at the source of materials in the tobacco regions in order to assure a continuous supply of properly aged tobacco which will sustain the factory throughout the season.

The conference also agreed that a vigorous campaign for Manila cigars should be carried on in the United States.

The use of machines in the production, it was pointed out, is necessary not only to increase production but also to standardize the product for purposes.

The President also approved the establishment of a tobacco project in La Granja, Negros Occidental, by the Bureau of Plant Industry and the release of funds for tobacco trade promotion work by the Bureau of Commerce.

Those who conferred with the President were Director Rizalino Pablo of the Bureau of Commerce, Roque Yap, Domingo Paguirigan, Tomas Hernandez, Elias Castañeda, and W. Doener.

February 1.—THIS morning President Garcia met congressional reporters in a traditional breakfast conference in Malacañang.

The Chief Executive usually invites newsmen covering the congressional beat every time Congress opens its regular session. However, there were uncouth remarks by a "newsman," presumably trying to be smart. The result was disastrous for what would have been a jolly affair. The President was in bad mood after the newsman's remarks. He looked sternly at the man. Newsmen asked the President questions and the Chief Executive replied as a matter of course.

After his meeting with congressional newsmen, the President conferred with Foreign Affairs Secretary Felixberto M. Serrano, who submitted the recommendation of the members of the Philippine aviation panel.

The President had a long conference with Serrano, who briefed the President in connection with the forthcoming state visit of the Chief Executive to Kuala Lumpur.

Serrano has set his departure date tentatively tomorrow.

In the afternoon the President motored to the International Fair, which he inaugurated despite the fact that the area was still bustling with feverish efforts to complete the booths. The President arrived at the Sunken Gardens at 3:30 p.m. Upon arrival at the International Fair grounds, the President noted that most of the booths were still incomplete.

During the ceremony where representatives of countries raised their respective flags, the President noted that the Philippine representative did not show up.

Speaking before a mammoth crowd at the opening of the Philippine International Fair at Manila's Sunken Garden this afternoon, the Chief Executive emphasized that Philippine industrialization has reached the stage where its products can more than adequately meet the demand of the domestic market.

We must, therefore, look for new and broader markets both for our industrial products and our sugar, copra, hemp, lumber, tobacco, and other export products with the view to exchanging them with the products of other countries, the President pointed out.

In welcoming the representatives of participating countries, the President expressed the hope that the fair will not only foster better trade relations but also bring closer understanding and friendly relations between them and the Philippines.

After the cutting of the ceremonial ribbon by Mrs. Manuel Lim and some Cabinet ladies, the President visited the Spanish, the Vietnamese, and the Chinese pavilions, and later toured the Fair before motoring back to Malacañang.

Participating in the Fair, besides the Philippines, are Republic of China, France, Indonesia, Japan, Korea, Spain, Thailand, the United States, Vietnam; and 13 chartered cities, 24 provinces, 24 private companies and trade organizations, and 14 government agencies.

The President arrived at Malacañang at 5:05 p.m. in time for the regular weekly Cabinet meeting.

February 2.—PRESIDENT Garcia today reiterated his stand not to fill the three vacancies in the Municipal Board of Pasay City, as provided for by law, in order to give the Pasay electors the chance to elect the best qualified men for the positions. The President also reiterated his appeal for unity to ranking officers of the Pasay NP directorate to unite in order to insure the victory of the majority party in the November elections.

The Pasay NP delegation called at Malacañang this morning and endorsed the reelection bid of President Garcia "to realize more fully his vision of a better Philippines" and pledged its unconditional loyalty.

The President said that although he is authorized by law to appoint three additional councilors, still he feels that representation in the Pasay municipal board should be the responsibility of the Pasay electorate.

The Pasay group, led by Presbitero Velasco, NP chapter president, Vice-Mayor Ansberto Paredes, and former Vice-Mayor Ruperto S. Galvez, included Councilor Jovito Claudio, ex-Councilor Francisca Herrera, Pasay NP chapter Vice-President Catalino Gerenillo, ex-Councilor Antonio Diaz, and Eligio Herrera.

Earlier this morning, the President had breakfast with Senate Protempore Fernando Lopez and Rep. Jose Aldeguer, majority floor leader.

The President also received U.S. Ambassador John Hickerson, who introduced Rear Admiral Charles Duncan, new commander of the American naval base in Subic Bay.

Admiral Duncan replaced the late Rear Admiral Arthur Spring, who together with his wife, met a tragic death in a plane crash.

Mayor Teodorico Esclamado of P. Burgos, Southern Leyte, accompanied by Rep. Nicanor Yñiguez, conferred with the President on urgent public works project in his municipality.

Other presidential callers were Rep. Miguel Cuenco of Cebu; Ramon Aboitiz; Gov. Jesus Almero of Masbate; Gov. Manuel Barretto of Zambales; Mayor Jaime Avendoza of Sipocot, Camarines Sur; Mayor Lauro Dizon of San Pablo City, and Mayor Lucio Gutierrez of Malabon, Rizal.

This afternoon the President authorized the release from bond issues of ₱8 million to activate three major land resettlement projects of the National Resettlement and Rehabilitation Administration.

In another directive the President ordered General Manager Rodolfo P. Andal of the Government Service Insurance System to expedite approval of the ₱6 million loan to the city of Manila for the construction of more school buildings.

In approving the release of ₱8 million from bond issues, the President told Budget Commissioner Faustino Sy-Changco that the three NARRA projects situated in Lanao del Norte, Agusan, and Palawan, totaling some 52,522 hectares, form an important part of the overall development program.

The President emphasized this was to implement his pledge to give land to the landless and ease congestion in Central Luzon provinces.

Approval of the release was recommended by Mrs. Remedios Fortich and Bruno Aparri, chairman and manager, respectively, of the NARRA who called on the Chief Executive at Malacañang.

In his directive to Manager Andal, the President expressed his desire to have the school construction program started as soon as possible to meet the increasing demand for school admission.

The President gave his directive to Manager Andal upon representations of Manila Councilor Francisco Gatmaitan, who requested early construction of the tenement housing units in the bay shore areas in Tondo.

The President told the Manila councilor who is chairman of the committee on education of the Municipal Board that salary increases for school teachers, totaling ₱17 million, were included in the budget submitted to Congress for the next fiscal year.

Early in the afternoon the President received Ilocos Sur Gov. Godofredo Reyes, who expressed the gratitude of the Ilocos farmers for the ₱10 million payment of ACCFA purchases which was authorized by the President over the objections of the auditor general.

Gov. Reyes informed the President that he is starting a coconut project by requiring school children to plant coconuts in the deforested areas, and reviving cotton production in order to replace Japanese cotton being used by the Ilocos Textile Mills in Narvacan, a branch of the National Development Company.

The President also received Albay Gov. Nicanor Maronilla-Seva, who requested release of public works funds.

Late in the afternoon the President tendered a merienda at Malacañang in honor of some 25 ex-officio Nacionalista delegates from Manila.

Present at the merienda were Manila Reps. Augusto Francisco and Joaquin R. Roces; Bienvenido Nicandro, who represented Labor Secretary Angel Castaño; Manila Councilors Alfredo Gomez and Francisco Gatmaitan; former Reps. Luciano de la Rosa, Prudencio Remigio, Engracio Clemeña, and Fernando Viola; and Ex-Councilors Joaquin Yuseco, Fausto Albert, Pablo Dio Cruz, Marciano Santos, Justo Ibay, Angel Linao, Victoriano Banaag, Isidoro Fojas, Leonardo Garcia, Antonio Barredo, and others.

President Garcia's voting power in the forthcoming NP national convention was further strengthened today when Abra province committed its entire delegation to the convention in support of the President's reelection.

President Garcia likewise widened the beachhead he established in northern Luzon provinces as major political groups rallied behind the President's reelection bid.

In separate communications to the President, the barrio lieutenants League of Vigan, Ilocos Sur, led by President Alfredo Figuerres; town officials of Santiago, Ilocos Sur, led by Mayor Jose A. Echales; and the Ilocos Textiles Worker's Union led by President Filomeno F. Cordero, indorsed unconditionally the reelection of President Garcia.

In another resolution, Pasay City residents rallied behind the move to reelect President Garcia. The indorsement was signed by Vice-Mayor Ansberto Paredes, ex-Vice Mayor Ruperto Galvez, and Presbitero R. Velasco, president of the NP Pasay City chapter.

February 3.—THIS morning the President received Peter Frankel, president of the Junior Chamber International, who recently arrived to induct the newly elected officials of the Manila Junior Chamber of Commerce and the Manila Jayceerettes.

The distinguished visitor was accompanied to Malacañang by Ramon Osmeña, president of the Philippine Jaycees; Wilfredo Tecson, president of the Manila Jaycees; and Gregorio Araneta II, Antonio Meer, Ben Crame, and Douglas MacKenzie. W. E. Murray, general manager of the Far East Division, Caltex (N.Y.) and president of Caltex (Philippines), also paid a courtesy call on President Garcia.

The Caltex executive was accompanied to Malacañang by R. J. Monical, managing director of the Caltex (Philippines), and top Caltex executives, J. P. Roxas, W. E. Menefee, and C. Wood.

Former Philippine Ambassador Joaquin M. Elizalde, accompanied by Generals Dionisio Ojeda and Alfonso Arellano, called on the President and briefed him on the status of several pending legislative measures affecting the Philippines in the U.S. Congress.

Other callers were Mrs. Aurora de Recto, widow of the late Senator Recto, her son Rafael, and the following national officers of the Recto Filipinism Movement: Francisco San Gabriel, Jr., Perpetuo Virtusio, Tomas Aquino, Marcelo Banog, Epifanio Arias, Amado Inciong, Jose J. Pijuan, Anita Punzalan, Felix Sanchez, Ricardo Cancio, and Cayetano Dimayuga; and Felipe Ysmael and Sen. Pedro Sabido.

President Garcia issued a proclamation extending the prohibition to slaughter carabaos up to December 31, 1961, Malacañang announced today.

The presidential proclamation sought to carry out effectively, the provisions of Republic Act No. 11 and to conserve our work animals purely for agricultural purposes.

However, the President emphasized in the proclamation that permits to slaughter carabaos may be issued by the provincial commander subject to the following conditions:

- (1) That the carabao is 15 years old or over;
- (2) That the carabao is unfit for work;
- (3) That the carabao must be inspected by the provincial veterinarian and the provincial commander or their authorized representatives: and

(4) That the provincial veterinarian and the provincial commander shall make a joint certification that the carabao is 15 years old or over and unfit for work.

The President also issued a proclamation requiring all branches and agencies of the government to keep clean their premises and all property under their control or supervision in keeping with the objectives of the “Visit the Philippines—See the Orient” Jose Rizal Year slogan.

This evening the President reiterated that the Administration will carry on with renewed vigor the fight for economic emancipation as embodied in the Filipino First policy.

In reiterating his determination, the President also expressed solid support to the Recto Filipinism Movement which, he said, runs parallel to the struggle for economic independence to give Filipinos dominance in the Filipino household.

The President was applauded several times as he announced his support for the RFM during the opening of the national headquarters this evening at the Recto residence on Leveriza, Pasay.

The President pointed out that the Filipino First policy has received spectacular support from all sectors of the population, as a result of which, Filipino businessmen and industrialists who used to get only 43 per cent of dollar allocations now enjoy over 53 per cent of dollar allocations in the Central Bank.

The President received thunderous ovations when he made his pledge of support to the movement saying:

“As long as this movement supports the Filipino First policy, which is nothing more than economic nationalism, I subscribe to it 100 per cent; insofar as this movement is dedicated to maintaining the cherished ideals for which this nation had suffered for four centuries—the ideals of freedom, liberty, and democracy—I subscribe to it 100 per cent; insofar as the movement is dedicated to the promotion of the wellbeing of the Filipinos, I subscribe to it 100 per cent and, I therefore, wish this movement a full measure of success.”

February 4.—THE PRESIDENT today received Sen. Cipriano Primicias and Speaker Daniel Z. Romualdez, two NP mediators who had arranged for the crucial Garcia-Rodriguez meeting this evening. The President was briefed on the agenda of the meeting.

Primicias saw the Chief Executive first at the latter’s residence in Quezon City. The two expressed optimism that the meeting this evening was going to be fruitful in that it would patch up the political differences between the President and Rodriguez, who is the president of the party.

After Primicias had left the President, Romualdez saw the Chief Executive. Romualdez is one of the President’s witnesses and is known to be a strong Garcia supporter.

After his meeting with the two NP mediators, the President motored to the Veterans Memorial Hospital golf course, where he played a nine-hole golf.

President Garcia relaxed at the VMH golf course in preparation for his meeting with Amang.

This evening President Garcia motored to the Sunburst Room of the Manila Hotel for a historic meeting with his chief rival for the Nacionalista presidential nomination, Senate President Eulogio Rodriguez.

The meeting was billed as an “amity conference” to bring about a political rapprochement between the two feuding top NP leaders who are disputing the presidential nomination of the administration party.

The President and Senate President Rodriguez exchanged pleasantries when they met and the meeting started with a dinner.

President Garcia and Senate President Eulogio Rodriguez agreed to submit to the national directorate of the Nacionalista Party for decision the question of their mutual withdrawal from the presidential nomination by the NP convention.

Under this agreement, the 172-man directorate will be asked to vote “yes” or “no” on the question.

If the directorate votes “yes,” both of them would give up their candidacy for the nomination in favor of a third candidate whom the convention will be free to nominate.

If the directorate votes “no,” this would signify that their rivalry is not yet over. It will then be resolved by NP delegates who will meet in a pre-convention caucus.

The delegates who will be equally divided between the President and Amang will vote by secret ballot as to whom they would prefer to be the presidential candidate of the party.

The two agreed to this procedure after each had rejected the other’s proposal in a three-hour make-or-break confrontation at the Sunburst Room of the Manila Hotel to resolve their political feud and preserve the party’s unity.

President's Week in Review: February 5-11, 1961

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

February 5— AFTER a hectic night haggling with Senate President Eulogio Rodriguez over the Nacionalista presidential nomination at the swanky Sunburst Room of the Manila Hotel, the President woke up early this morning to hear mass at the Lourdes church. The First Lady accompanied the President to the Lourdes church.

The President met Senate President Rodriguez the night before in what was called an “amity meeting,” but the conference broke up without resolving the Garcia-Rodriguez rivalry for the NP presidential nomination.

After the hectic night, the President relaxed in his Quezon City residence after coming home from the early Sunday mass at the Lourdes church.

There were no scheduled callers, but authoritative sources said that there were NP leaders and supporters who tried to see him to give their view's on the outcome of the Garcia-Rodriguez “amity conference.”

In the evening the President and the First Lady motored to Baesa, Rizal, to felicitate former Education Secretary Cecilio Putong, who celebrated his birthday.

President Garcia ordered today the Presidential Committee on Administration Performance Efficiency to look into the alleged ₱2 million swindle of the National Treasury reported in one of the Sunday morning papers.

This order was given after a conference with the members of the Presidential Backpay Committee who recommended such investigation. Present at the conference with the President were Max Maceren, vice-chairman of the PCAPE, and the members of the Presidential Backpay Committee composed of Pedro V. Aguilar, Ruben de Castro, and Rodolfo Ocampo.

The President directed Maceren to submit a report on his findings as soon as possible.

February 6.—PRESIDENT Garcia will submit to Congress tomorrow the budget for fiscal year 1961-62, carrying a total outlay of ₱1,387.9 million as financed from all funds, or ₱40.2 million over the last year's budget.

Budget Commissioner Faustino Sy-Changco stressed that the basic fiscal policy of the government as directed by the President is to allocate the bulk of expenditures to those programs which promote economic and social development “calculated to give the most lasting benefits to our people.”

Fiscal year 1960 was concluded with a General Fund gross surplus of ₱0.9 million, as expenditures of ₱959.8 million fell below income receipts of ₱960.7 million.

In the current fiscal year, it is estimated that the gross income of the fund will be 1,024.7 million, while its gross expenditures will be ₱1,024.4 million, leaving a surplus of ₱0.3 million.

For the fiscal year 1962 the gross expenditures of the General Fund are estimated at ₱1,090,053,060, while its estimated gross income is ₱1,090,118,230, chalking up a surplus of a little more than ₱65 thousand.

The budgetary increase of ₱42.0 million for the Department of Education includes the amount of ₱16.2 million which will be spent to open 5,000 new classes for the fiscal year 1962, and reflects President Garcia's concern for the education of the masses.

To enable government employees to reach the minimum of their salary range in accordance with the WAPCO plan, ₱32.5 million is provided in the budget for the next fiscal year, of which ₱21 million was earmarked for public school teachers.

Owing to the coming national elections, the outlay for the Commission on Elections has been augmented by ₱13.8 million.

Other departments or agencies which will receive major increases in their allotments are Department of Finance, ₱15.6 million; Department of Commerce and Industry, ₱8.3 million; Department of Agriculture and Natural Resources, ₱6.2 million; Department of National Defense, ₱4.3 million; and Department of Health, ₱3.3 million.

February 7.—PRESIDENT Garcia today directed Budget Commissioner Faustino Sy-Changco to revise the pay schedule of public school teachers to enable them to collect their salaries twice, instead of only once, a month.

In giving this directive after the signing of his budget message to Congress at his residence on Bohol Avenue, Quezon, City, the President underscored the difficulties which the lowly school teacher, often the victim of loan sharks, has to meet in the management of the house.

The President also announced full implementation of the WAPCO plan to enable all government employees at present receiving salaries below the minimum prescribed by WAPCO, to receive the WAPCO minimum salary.

For this purpose, the budget proposal carried an appropriation of ₱32.5 million, of which ₱21 million has been earmarked for public school teachers affected.

Under the ₱1.388 billion budget proposed for fiscal year 1961-1962, general fund expenditures are calculated to reach ₱1,090,053,600 as against total general fund receipts of ₱1,090,118,230, or a small surplus of only ₱65,000.

In his message to Congress, the President also sought an increase of ₱42 million for the Department of Education, of which ₱16.2 million will be spent for 5,000 new classes to take care of children who will be of school age this year.

In his message the President appealed to Congress to accept the budget in toto in order not to hamper the Administration's policy of promoting the general welfare of the people.

Present at the signing were ranking personnel, division chiefs, and supervisors of the Budget Commission, among them, Silvestre Sarmiento, Lucio Topacio, Alfredo Marchadesch, Benjamin Vilorio, Enrique B. Tacad, Fernando Dizon, Jose C. Lansang, Juan Agcaoile, Diosdado Castro, Arturo Y. Consing, and Florencio Dalusung.

Earlier this morning, the President had a closed door conference with Executive Secretary Natalio P. Castillo, during which they took up pending state papers.

After receiving Secretary Castillo, the Chief Executive received Agriculture Secretary Cesar Fortich and Undersecretary Salvador Cunanan, during which the President designated Cunanan as Acting Agriculture Secretary in the absence of Secretary Fortich, who is accompanying the President to Malaya.

The President later conferred with Justice Buenaventura Ocampo, chairman of the PCAPE, over the alleged backpay swindle which the President had ordered investigated.

Also present at this conference were PCAPE Vice-Chairman Max Maceren, PCAPE chief investigation; and Maj. Teodulo Natividad, legal officer; and Rodolfo V. Ocampo and Timoteo Aldaba.

Finance Secretary Dominador Aytona reported to President Garcia today the successful outcome of his mission to the United States. The President had sent Aytona to the United States two weeks ago to negotiate with the World

Export-Import Bank in Washington for a loan to finance the government's multi-million peso integrated steel mill project in Iligan City in Mindanao.

Aytona informed the President that the Bank has approved the principal terms and conditions of the loan and that the Philippine Government can proceed immediately with the implementation of its steel mill program.

The loan, which aggregates about $70 million, was worked out by Aytona in Washington with the help of technical men of the National Shipyards Steel Corporation and private Filipino industrialists.

Before leaving Malacañang the President issued Executive Order No. 416 providing instructions for the conduct of public affairs during his stay abroad and designating the Executive Secretary as his liaison in order to enable the President to exercise all official functions while abroad as if he were within the national territory.

As soon as the President entered the airport, a battery of armed forces artillery guns boomed a 21-gun salute while the President stood at attention as the band struck up the National Anthem.

After the military honors, the President proceeded to the waiting plane but spent a full 20 minutes shaking hands and acknowledging the wishes of his close associates and the general public for a successful and bon voyage.

The President told his well-wishers that he was going to Malaya to strengthen the bonds of kinship and friendship between the Malaya and the Filipinos in order to preserve liberty, justice, and universal peace in this part of the world.

President Garcia landed at Kuala Lumpur airport at 4:37 o'clock (Manila time) this afternoon after a seven-and-half hour flight from Manila with an hour's stopover in Jesselton for refuelling.

The Chief Executive, accompanied by Mrs Leonila D. Garcia and 12 other members of his party, received a red carpet welcome where even umbrella bearers were reported to have driven into the airport in chauffeured limousines.

Reports reaching Manila said the President and his party landed 20 minutes ahead of schedule and at a time when the Malayan king had just arrived at the reviewing stand and was being escorted to his position under a golden umbrella.

Among those who met the President at the airport were the Malayan Paramount Ruler, the Yang Di Pertuan Agong and his consort, Malayan Premier Tunku Abdul Rahman, the Sultan of Selangor, and the members of the Cabinet of the host country.

February 9.—PRESIDENT Garcia plunged today into his busiest day as his state visit to Malaya entered its second day.

He drove to the hilltop residence of Malayan Prime Minister Tengku Abdul Rahman shortly before noon to discuss the possible formation of a Southeast Asian Association of States.

The Prime Minister's residence, the former home of the British advisor to the sultan of state, is situated over the green parks in Kuala Lumpur.

The President wore a Filipino barong and was hatless as the climate was warm. He drove to the police headquarters for briefing on the northern border. The President was informed that communists were still harassing the border jungles and the Malayan police are flushing them out in cooperation with the Thai troops.

The President said during his conference with Lt Gen. Sir Rodney Moore, chief of the Malayan Armed Forces, and Police Commissioner Dato C. H. Fermer at the Royal Malayan police headquarters that the situation obtaining in Manila is similar to that in Malaya.

Earlier in the morning the President and the Paramount Ruler, the Yang Di Pertuan Agong, played golf together.

February 10.—PRESIDENT Garcia today flew to Malacca on the penultimate day of his four-day state visit to Malaya.

At the historic site in southern Malaya, the President paid homage to the city's patron saint, St. Francis Xavier.

The President was accompanied by Mrs. Garcia. They were shown around by Malacca Gov. Dato Hadji Abdul Malik, who informed the visiting Philippine Chief Executive that St. Francis was buried in a ruined church adjoining the government house.

The President also visited the Kemendore Land Settlement, which reportedly is modeled after the Philippine settlement projects.

After a half-day visit to Malacca, the President returned to Kuala Lumpur, where he met the members of the Malayan press.

At the press conference the President pointed out that he was interested in the establishment of an Association of Southeast Asian States (ASAS). The President reiterated his stand against the recognition of Communist China until the "supreme question of world conflict or peace will have been resolved one way or the other."

In the evening the President and Mrs. Garcia gave a state dinner in honor of Malaya's Paramount Ruler, the Yang Di Pertuan Agong. It was the third dinner the President gave in three days in Kuala Lumpur.

In brief remarks during the occasion, the President rallied Southeast Asian countries to pool themselves together to bring "prosperity and a richer life" to their people.

President Garcia will conclude his four-day state visit to Malaya tomorrow. He is scheduled to take off from Kuala Lumpur at 8 o'clock and will be in Manila at 5:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon.

President Garcia today directed National Treasurer Vicente G. Gella and National Cashier Domingo Maloga, to answer in writing within 72 hours administrative charges preferred against them by the Presidential Backpay Committee.

The directive was transmitted by Executive Secretary Natalio P. Castillo this afternoon.

In the report to the President which was (furnished the two officials by Secretary Castillo, the PBC charged the two officials with estafa through falsification of official and public documents in connection with the filing and payment of recomputed (inflated) backpay claims of over 300 pre-war casual laborers of the Lanao district engineer.

The PBC officials, Pedro V. Aguilar, chairman, and Ruben, de Castro and Rodolfo V. Ocampo, members, also recommended civil and criminal action against the two officials and backpay claimants who had already received payments for the alleged spurious claims.

The PBC reported that some 300 backpay claims bearing the forged signatures of Enrique A. Guerrero, highway district engineer, and Ireneo Barbasa, provincial auditor of Lanao, were processed by the Backpay Unit and new acknowledgment certificates issued allegedly upon instructions of National Treasurer Gella.

The PBC pointed out that although the forgeries were confirmed by Capt. G. Fernandez, who performed laboratory tests at the Philippine Constabulary Central Laboratory, they were processed in direct violation of rules and regulations on partial and final redemption set by the PBC.

The Committee said that some 177 claims are still pending as a result of Secretary Aytona's freeze order of June 1, 1960, while 92 more amounting to ₱89,720.20 are with the Backpay auditor's office awaiting action.

February 11. —THE PRESIDENT and Mrs. Garcia this morning called on the Malayan Paramount Ruler, who joined them in motoring to the Kuala Lumpur airport.

After brief but impressive ceremonies, the President and the First Lady boarded the Viscount plane at 9: 04 a.m. for Manila. The presidential plane stopped over at Jesselton for refuelling.

This afternoon President Garcia arrived from a four-day state visit to Malaya and reported to the nation that he was happy to be back “with one more mission accomplished.”

The President reported that “we are marching forward under the light of democracy to unite the peoples of Asia behind the great cause for world peace and of international understanding and good will.

“We can look forward to a better future, to a world that is better to live in and fight for,” he said.

The President said that he was touched by the sincerity and warmth of the welcome he received in Malaya and added that “I can feel that the heart of the Malaysians beats like that of the Filipinos.”

Even as he traced the common origin of race, language, and tradition of both peoples, which have been isolated for centuries when both were under foreign rule, the President said that now that they have regained freedom and have reconnected broken ties “we can look to a future of better and closer relations.”

The Philippine Air Lines Viscount plane bearing the President and his party was escorted by Philippine Air Force jet planes. It touched Philippine soil again at exactly 5:44 p.m. and taxied to the apron of the domestic terminal where the welcomers had gathered.

The President was the first to alight from the plane, followed by Mrs. Garcia, Rep. and Mrs. Salipada Pendatun, Social Welfare Administrator Amparo Villamor, Secretary Cesar Fortich of Agriculture and Natural Resources, Secretary Manuel Lim of Commerce and Industry, Senator Ambrosio Padilla (LP), Dr. Salvador Araneta, Fernando Campos, Col. Jorge Delarmente, Drs. Antonio Guytingco and Valentin Fidelino, and the rest of the party.

The President proceeded to an improvised stand to receive full military honors, including the 21-gun salute from composite units of the Armed Forces of the Philippines under the command of Lt. Col. Sanchez.

After the military honors, the President was greeted by the diplomatic corps led by the Apostolic Nuncio Msgr. Salvatore Siino and members of Congress heads by Speaker Daniel Romualdez and Sen. Cipriano Primicias, members of the Cabinet and the Judiciary, AFP brass, other high government officials and well-wishers.

The President then proceeded to another improvised stand to speak extemporaneously for seven minutes after being presented to the crowd by Executive Secretary Natalio Castillo.

The President and Mrs. Garcia led a motorcade to Malacañang passing F.B. Harrison, Quezon Avenue, Dewey Boulevard, Isaac Peral, Taft Avenue, Ayala Boulevard, Gen. Solano, and Dr. Jose Laurel Street.

President's Week in Review: February 12-18, 1961

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

February 12.—PRESIDENT Garcia today acceded to the desire of Col. Andres Soriano for the non-renewal of the management contract between the latter and the Philippine Air Lines when it expires on March 31 this year.

The President conferred with Col. Soriano, who called at his Bohol Avenue residence in Quezon City this morning to reiterate his wish to resign as president and director of PAL because “it was becoming increasingly clear that the villification and attacks against the PAL and myself are leading to the undermining of public confidence in the airline.”

Accompanied by Eduardo Romualdez, president of the Philippine National Bank and chairman of the PAL board of directors, Col. Soriano informed the President that these attacks had had disturbing influences on the morale of the employees and might affect the continued high efficiency so vital in the operation of an airline.

Col. Soriano expressed the hope that his resignation would afford an opportunity “for a reexamination of national aviation policies and would permit a calmer deliberation of the future status of the company.”

The President said he appreciated the full circumstances of Col. Soriano's position and that it was with “great reluctance and regret” that he was acceding to his desire to terminate the management contract on or before its expiration date.

The termination of the contract was first proposed by Col. Soriano last February 8 on the President's departure for Kuala Lumpur. The President then told the PAL executive that the matter would be more extensively discussed on his return from Malaya.

The President received assurance from Col. Soriano that the airline operations would continue without interruption and that management functions would be maintained at its highest efficiency.

The Chief Executive expressed hope that Col. Soriano's experience and knowledge of aviation would be available to the government in the future.

Soriano unhesitatingly pledged his fullhearted cooperation because “the success of the airline, as always, remains closes to my heart.”

February 13.—THE COUNCIL OF STATE today approved a cash disbursement ceiling of ₱125,424,351 for various projects from bond issues during the remaining period of the current fiscal year.

The Council also congratulated President Garcia for his “signal success in opening a new era of closer relations and greater understanding among the free peoples of the Pacific area” as a result of his recent state visit to the Federation of Malaya.

In recommending approval of the list of projects eligible under bond issue disbursements which was submitted by the State Council Screening Committee, the President laid emphasis on the “impressive records chalked up” by the Land Tenure Administration and the National Resettlement and Rehabilitation Administration which, he said, would suffer unless they were sufficiently financed.

The President pointed out that the NARRA settlements, the latest of which was Wao in Lanao del Sur, were rapidly growing in wealth and population and fast becoming regular municipalities.

Unable to attend the Council meeting were Vice-President Diosdado Macapagal, Rep. Cornelio T. Villareal, Senate President Eulogio Rodriguez, Sr., Gov. Isidro Rodriguez, and General Emilio Aguinaldo.

Before adjourning the meeting, the President announced the appointment of Sen. Lorenzo M. Tañada, who attended the meeting for the first time this noon in place of the late Sen. Claro M. Recto. Rep. Jose J. Roy was also present at the meeting.

This afternoon the President directed port authorities to maintain and administer all government piers in order to give incoming tourists and foreigners a pleasant impression of the country.

The President gave this directive in the course of his speech following the formal turnover of Pier 5 by the Department of Public Works to the Customs Commission.

At the same time, the President thanked the American people and government for their invaluable financial and technical assistance which has made possible the rehabilitation and improvement of Pier 5, formerly the United States military port in Manila.

The modern pier which was rebuilt at a cost of ₱13.5 million as a joint project of the National Economic Council and the International Cooperative Administration, is part of the overall program of the Administration to modernize and increase pier and harbor constructions to cope with the ever-increasing needs of commerce for more berthing space for international vessels calling at Manila.

Ambassador John D. Hickerson, speaking on behalf of the United States Government, informed the President that his people are proud of the opportunity to demonstrate once again their friendship and affection for the Filipinos in a joint effort to develop the country's facilities.

Present at the brief turnover ceremonies which were held at Pier 5 were ICA Director Paul D. Summers, Public Works Director Julian Buendia, who turned over the pier to Customs Commissioner Eleuterio Capapas, Public Works Secretary Florencio Moreno, Public Works Undersecretary Marciano Bautista, Finance Secretary Dominador Aytona, NEC Chairman Jose C. Locsin, and other officials of the ICA, the NEC, and the Department of Public Works and Communications.

After the ceremonies, the President motored back to Malacañang arriving there at about 7 p.m.

February 14.—THIS morning the President conferred with finance and public works officials on the draft of a bill authorizing the National Shipyards and Steel Corporation to invest in a stock corporation that will operate the projected integrated steel mill.

Present at the conference were Finance Secretary Dominador Aytona Public Works Secretary Florencio Moreno, and Fernando and Jose Jacinto, who represented private investors willing to join in the venture.

The draft will be finalized by a special committee created by President Garcia for submission to Congress, together with other legislative measures he proposed in his state-of-the-nation message.

The Proposed measure seeks authority for NASSCO to own stocks to the extent of 51 per cent of the authorized capital stock of the corporation to be organized to operate the integrated steel mill, provided that such investment shall not exceed ₱61.2 million.

The bill also authorizes the President to contract obligations in behalf of the government with foreign credit institutions not exceeding $70 million in order to finance the foreign exchange and other financial requirements of the steel mill.

President Garcia today received the grateful appreciation of United States President John F. Kennedy for the Philippines' steadfastness to the common effort to preserve the integrity, and strengthen the sinews of the free world.

In his message to President Garcia, which was conveyed by Ambassador John D. Hickerson, the U.S. Chief Executive said: "I deeply appreciate the warm message of congratulation and encouragement which you and Mrs. Garcia were kind enough to send me on the occasion of my inauguration. At this time of international peril, it is of great satisfaction to the American people and to my administration that the Philippines is pursuing its steadfast course as a partner in the common effort to preserve the integrity and to strengthen the political, economic, military, and moral sinews of the free world. We value most highly the close ties which had historically joined our two countries, and we look forward to continuing cooperation in the interest of a secure and fruitful peace."

President Garcia today sounded a nationwide appeal for support to the Philippine National Red Cross fund campaign for 1961 in order to enable the organization to carry on its humanitarian work.

The President sounded this appeal during the kick-off ceremonies held at the Malacañang social hall this afternoon, during which he personally handed his donation of ₱1,000 to Antonio de las Alas, PNRC chairman.

During the ceremonies the Aurora Aragon-Quezon Medal was awarded to the First Lady and three former First Ladies of the land for highly distinguished service in the fund-raising efforts of the Philippine National Red Cross.

Awarded medals besides Mrs. Leonila D. Garcia were Mrs. Trinidad de Leon-Roxas, Mrs. Victoria Quirino-Gonzalez, and Mrs. Luz Banzon-Magsaysay.

The PNRC fund campaign for 1981 has set a goal of ₱1.7 million, of which ₱570,000 has been allotted to the city of Manila.

The campaign got an auspicious start when it was announced by Manuel J. Marquez, chairman of the advance gifts division that a total of ₱260,000 had already been turned in by city and provincial Red Cross chapters, with Manila chipping in ₱87,000, a little short of its quota of ₱100,000.

President Garcia continued receiving pledges of support to his reelection bid from congressmen, local officials, and even from some members of the Liberal Party.

Antonio Capilitan, who in 1957 ran as the official LP congressional candidate in the third district of Leyte, was inducted by President Garcia this morning as Nacionalista in the presence of Rep. Nicanor Ymguez, Leyte Board Member Emiliano Melgazo, and Mayors Roman de Jesus of Anahawan, who is the president of the Mayors League of Southern Leyte; Rito Montederamos of Libagon, Aludio Taguipes of Hinomangan, Teodorico Esclamado of P. Burgos, Gil Japson of Hinondayan, and Demetrio Salem.

President Garcia today ordered Executive Secretary Natalio P. Castillo and Malacanang Legal Adviser Judge Salvador Esguerra to study the legal aspects of the Manila City Council's insistence to rename Azcarraga Street "Claro M. Recto" in the face of Mayor Lacson's two vetoes of the measure.

The President gave the order during the call this evening of large group of Recto followers and sympathizers.

The case has been appealed to the President by Manila Vice-Mayor and Presiding Officer of the City Council Antonio V. Villegas and some 13 Manila Councilors.

The measure which would rename Azcarraga from Del Pan to Legarda "Claro M. Recto Street" was vetoed by the city mayor twice on the ground that its present name had already acquired historical significance.

The Manila councilors contended that since it crosses streets named after Filipino greats, such as Juan Luna, Rizal Avenue, Quezon Boulevard, and others, it was but fitting and proper that it also be named after a Great Filipino, Recto.

Among those who called on the President were Dra. Aurora Recto; sons of the late Senator; Manila Councilors Francisco Varona, Francisco Gatmaitan, Ernesto Maceda, Alfredo Gomez, Felicisimo Cabigao, Pablo Ocampo, Apolonio Gener, Joaquin Yuseco, Eriberto Remigio, Vicente Cruz, Gonzalc S. The unique induction ceremony was held at the rear platform of the presidential coach during a whistlestop at Tarlac, Tarlac, where a mammoth crowd from all parts of the province gathered to welcome the President and to witness the induction.

In his brief remarks the President told the people of Tarlac of his abiding faith in young men's ability to implement the program of the government successfully. He said that Aquino has an impressive record aside from a greater show of promise as an executive.

The President left Malacañang at 8:30 a.m. and arrived at the MRR Tutuban station where he boarded a train for Damortis, La Union. The First Lady saw him off at the station. After the induction of Gov. Aquino, the President and his party proceeded to Damortis arriving there at 1:45 p.m. From Damortis, the President motored to Baguio where a delegation headed by Mayor Luis Lardizabal welcomed him.

President Garcia indicated tonight the readiness of the government to give the management of Philippine Air Lines to private enterprise. He said he was opposed to government management of P.A.L.

The President met with representatives of the Pilots Investments and Financing Corporation who went to see him at Mansion House this evening to present an offer to purchase government shares in the P.A.L.

The President told them to make a formal offer. The President said that the government was ready to sell its P.A.L. shares to private investors provided there is an assurance that P.A.L. will continue to give efficient and safe service.

The President gave this directive in the course of a lengthy conference with Defense Secretary Alejo Santos, who called at the Guest House this afternoon to brief the President on the "bomb-throwing" incident at his Bohol Avenue residence.

According to Secretary Santos the confessed prankster, Victor Bueno, had told the investigators that he was promised ₱500 to throw the giant firecrackers to scare away a certain Toledo whose father was reportedly working in Malacañang and who is a candidate for Pasay City chief of police.

Bueno pointed to one Junior Pelagio as the one who promised to pay him after throwing the firecracker at a certain place near Mayor Cuneta's residence in Pasay.

The prankster told operatives that Pelagio did not appear and he had to cruise in the taxi (Kingsway No. 2701) because he could not pay the fare, until he was apprehended in Cubao.

The prankster maintained that he did not know that the house belongs to the President, according to Secretary Santos.

Later in the evening the President received Paul Reeves, who had recently returned from abroad. Mr. Reeves assured the President that the $73 million Philippine war damage bill has very bright prospects of passing the United States Congress.

He said this is due to the fact that Congressman Walter Judd, who had stood against the bill in 1958, 1959, and 1960, has agreed to push it through and is the co-author of the pending Zablocki-Judd Bill.

The President also received Rep. Ramon Mitra and Gov. Bado Dangwa of Mt. Province, who took up with the Chief Executive the problems affecting their province and also requested PCSO funds for barrios which are not accessible by car.

Apparently referring to some Asian countries who were lukewarm to join the proposed ASAS, the President said; “those of our Free World neighbors and friends who choose otherwise, we are prepared to respect their freedom of choice, developing our relations with them in any or all of the other constructive categories of democratic activity mutually acceptable.”

The Chief Executive pointed out that although the Philippines is a small nation, it has chosen to take an active part in this area because “the Free World is fighting for a world community ruled by law; the communists, for rule imposed by force. As one of the small nations, a world of law is our sole hope of stature and dignity. Under a world rule of force we can expect nothing better than national extinction and racial absorption,” he added.

Incidentally, the President took issue with the Opposition claim that "there has been no economic leadership and that everything that happened, happened only by chance."

Before his speech, the President together with the various delegates, spent more than an hour inspecting the exhibits at the pavilion and had expressed satisfaction over the rapid strides of the local industrialists.

"Everything that we have seen there," the President later pointed out, "did not happen by chance. Certainly, those fine specimens have been the product of careful planning on the part of both the manufacturers and the government."

Mariano del Rosario, overall chairman who delivered the opening remarks, told the 500 delegates that the achievements of the Administration can very well be the cause for the growth of the country.

The President received a prolonged ovation when he announced that "I shall permit total lifting of controls only if there are adequate safeguards to protect Filipino industries and Filipino enterprise."

The President gave his pledge because, he said, he and the entire administration are convinced that Filipino industry and initiative are carrying the brunt of the fight for economic dominance as enunciated in the Filipino First policy.

At the same time, the President hit at his political detractors, saying that “no one, not anyone can say, I won because I cheated.”

The President stressed that he had never been defeated in his political career.

“Nor can anyone say of me” he charged, “that when the fight was tough and victory seemed to belong to my opponent, I made advance excuses for my impending defeat by claiming my opponent will commit fraud and then threatening reprisal in that unlikely event.”

Although the President did not identify his political detractors, it was evident he referred to Vice-President Macapagal, Liberal Party presidential standard bearer, who warned recently of the threat of a revolution in the event he is cheated in the coming polls.

The President attributed his attitude towards his political fights to lessons of sportmanship he learned in the YMCA.

He congratulated the organization for its achievement during the first 50 years.

The President recalled that he had been a constant visitor to the YMCA where he used to play chess.

The President reiterated his determination to pursue “with vigor the Filipino First policy” to wrest the stranglehold on the country’s economy from aliens and their dummies.

“My campaign against graft in the government is likewise being carried out relentlessly in order that this cancer that is gnawing into our body politic may be cut off and checked completely,” he added.

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

March 5.—AFTER returning late Saturday from Pangasinan where he witnessed the launching of the vice-presidential candidacy of Senator Cipriano Primicias, President Garcia woke up early to attend Sunday mass at the Malacañang chapel.

The President took a hurried breakfast and then proceeded to the Manila Golf Club with his aide and personal physicians for a round of golf.

From there, the President motored to his Bohol Avenue residence in Quezon City. He was fetched by Defense Secretary Alejo Santos to the Luneta, where he addressed the cadets of the Reserve Officers Training Corps.

President Garcia today appealed to the youth for a responsible leadership with patriotic mission that is free from desirable influences.

The President, as the commander-in-chief of the Armed Forces of the Philippines, sounded this appeal in his address on the Luneta this afternoon, during the field day celebration of the Manila ROTC and PMT units, participated in by 26 colleges and universities in Manila.

In his brief message to the future leaders, the President paid tribute to the role of the youth in the defeat of Communism, and urged them "to carry on in combating and negating with truth what has been evolved by professional conspirators as an art of lies and deceit, and ultimately of violence, to overthrow existing and duly constituted governments."

The President added that "the youth should continue being model citizens of their communities, in word and in deed, and thus create an atmosphere where our free way of life becomes in itself a deterrent to whatever force seeks to destroy it."

Before delivering his address, the President awarded the presidential trophy for the most outstanding ROTC unit of the year (University of the East) to Cdt. Lt. Col. Meliton Bulan.

The President issued the directive upon being informed by Justice Buenaventura Ocampo, PCAPE chairman, that reports received by the committee reveal that the house maid was forced to affix her thumbmark on the document transferring by adoption the custody of her child barely seven days after her delivery. The act of intimidation was allegedly performed by a justice of the peace of Cuyo, Palawan, in the presence of two policemen and a Philippine Constabulary trooper.

The Chief Executive was visibly irked upon being informed that the apparent reason behind the "adoption move" was to evade criminal and/or civil liability that could possibly arise out of the case. In reminding the treasurers, as deputies of the Commission on Elections, of their sacred task of guarding the people's will during elections, the President said, "Give me a clean, free, and honest election and I will be happy to have been able to conduct the freest, cleanest, and most orderly election as President of the country."

The President emphasized that, in a democracy, the election of public servants is by the popular mandate and that the safeguarding of the popular will is a sacred trust reposed on them as deputies of the Commission on Elections.

At the same time, the President told some 2,000 Virginia tobacco producers that the Virginia tobacco industry has reached maturity and that the government may be expected to remove the props and allow it to develop as a free enterprise.

The President was guest speaker at the first general assembly meeting of the Virginia Tobacco Association of the Philippines, composed of various Virginia tobacco FACOMAs, this noon at the Fiesta Pavilion of the Manila Hotel.

The President was given a thunderous ovation and shouts of Mabuhay upon entering the Manila Hotel. In his well-applauded extemporaneous address the President said that heretofore the Philippines had neglected to take advantage of the duty-free cigar quota of 200 million provided under the Laurel-Langley Agreement.

The President said the opportunity presented by the rejection of Cuban products in the American market “is a golden opportunity which occurs only once every half century.”

The President reiterated the government policy of giving way to private enterprise wherever possible and said that since the Virginia tobacco can now stand on its own feet, the government is expected to throw away the props.

The President said he was glad the aims of Republic Act 1194, providing a price support for Virginia tobacco have been achieved and have not only provided substantial revenues to the government but wider benefits to the six million people dependent on the “golden leaf.”

The President also pledged the release of the ₱11 million balance of unpaid ACCFA purchases of Virginia tobacco in 1959 as soon as the release of payments of the ₱10 million previously made available by him was completed.

After his address, the President was given a plaque of appreciation by the Philippine Chamber of Virginia Producers for his efforts to help the tobacco producers. The plaque was read and delivered to him by Gregorio C. Gonzalez, chamber president.

The President gave this pledged to a group of Northern and Central Luzon governors and mayors who presented a resolution requesting preference for the Virginia Tobacco Facomas in the award of contracts for tobacco processing and redrying by the Philippine Virginia Tobacco Administration.

The President assured the provincial and local executives that the PVTB board, the members of which all come from the tobacco region, will award such contracts on the basis of their merits based on the financial and physical abilities of the contracting parties, and would always be inclined to give preference to Filipino producers.

The President also renewed his assurance to release ₱11 million to pay the balance of ACCFA purchases of Virginia tobacco in 1959 as soon as the ₱10 million now being paid out is exhausted.

The President, however, warned that this will be slow because the purchases covered by the ₱11 million, (July to the end of 1959) will be carefully checked with the list of anomalous transactions furnished by the Department of Justice to the General Auditing Office.

Some ACCFA purchases during the said period were reportedly either Upgraded, mixed with native and poor grade tobacco, or generally anomalous.

The Northern Luzon executives also endorsed the permanent appointment of Andres V. Castillo as Governor of the Central Bank, inclusion of GSIS Manager Rodolfo Andal in the NP senate slate, and the appointment of Francisco Arañas as Andal’s successor.

Meanwhile, in reply to the appeal of the 10 Zambales town officials who accompanied Gov. Iba Mayor A. Ortega informed the President that the Victory liner had withdrawn some of its units because it had acquired new lines in Nueva Ecija, and that its buses are inadequate and commuters were complaining of inefficiency and poor service.

The Zambales officials also petitioned the extension of the Ambuklao power line to Zambales; and the construction of the ₱1.5 million Capas (Tarlac)-Botolan (Zambales) road which will not only open up 15,000 hectares of virgin land for settlement but also provide a sea outlet for Central Luzon provinces.

The President told the Zambales executives to canvass the electricity requirements of their municipalities and submit their finding to him so that he can recommend proper action to the National Power Corporation.

On the proposed Capas-Botolan road, the President said the project requires legislative action to appropriate the necessary funds.

In his speech the Chief Executive urged the contractors to observe more fidelity to contractual obligations with government agencies so as not to delay or upset the timetable of government programs and cause the government additional expense or embarrassment for failure to meet on time its commitment for certain services.

March 11.—THE President this day directed Executive Secretary Natalio P. Castillo to furnish him with a complete report on the illegal traffic in narcotics in which some Manila policemen were allegedly linked.

Presidential action on this matter was a follow-up of his twin directives issued simultaneously to the National Bureau of Investigation and the Philippine Constabulary ordering the two agencies to look into the dope traffic. The Chief Executive's action was also spurred by a report from the House Good Government Committee that the dope traffic had already spread over a wide area.

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

March 12.—DESPITE a late night at the annual Gridiron dinner of the National Press Club yesterday, the President woke up early this morning to hear Sunday mass at his private residence in Quezon City. With the President was the First Lady.

Jurado reported that Gimenez had agreed to waive pre-audit of claims of not more than ₱3,00 for the payment of tobacco purchased on credit by the Agricultural Credit and Cooperative Financing Administration.

Gimenez was also reported to have agreed to pay all claims involving tobacco purchases made in 1959 by the ACCFA, provided he is given evidence by the Department of Justice that the sale was not anomalous.

March 13.—PRESIDENT Garcia today commended youth leaders of five student associations for helping the government in combating communism in the Philippines.

Representatives of the College Editors Guild, Student Councils Association of the Philippines, Student Catholic Action of the Philippines, and Conference Delegates Association of the Philippines saw the President at Malacañang to inform him of their project to hold seminars on the evils of communism throughout the country.

In this connection, the President was informed that the five student groups had already held successful, and well attended seminars in Naga and Davao cities.

The President pointed out to the student leaders the positive steps taken by the Administration to prevent communism from spreading in the Philippines, like the establishment of the National Resettlement and Rehabilitation Administration to give public lands to the landless and the Land Tenure Administration to buy landed estates or resale to poor occupants.

Youth leaders who saw the President were Raul Roco, president of the National Union of Students; John Osmeña, president of the Student Councils Association of the Philippines; Augusto Kimpo, president of the Student Catholic Action of the Philippines; Juanito Garay, president of the College, Editors Guild, and Teodorico Imperial, president of the Conference Delegates Association of the Philippines. They were accompanied by Lino Illera, chief of the Malacañang Youth Affairs Office.

The President also received officials of the federation of Free Farmers led by their president, Jeremias U. Montemayor, who requested the President to use his powers in convincing sugar planters to grant better wages to their laborers.

Montemayor claimed that a system of proportional wages would be most welcome by the laborers. He explained that under the system, wages would be computed on the basis of production per hectare and the current price of sugar.

Montemayor lauded the program of President Garcia for the socio-economic upliftment of the living conditions of agricultural laborers.

The FFF officials expressed their opposition to the plan advocated by some government officials and private persons for the importation of corn to bring down the prices.

Officers of the Philippine Institute of Accountants also paid a courtesy call on the President after their recent election. They were Francisco F. Gonzalez, president; Alfredo Velayo, past president; Enrique Gabriel, executive secretary; Alfredo Javier, Rodolfo Jacob, and Teodoro Agbayani, vice-presidents; Gregorio Eleoseda, Jesus Cariño, and Vicente Lesquety, directors.

Soriano, former Secretary Mariano Garchitorena, and Miss Inocencio Revilla, president of the Women's Party of the Philippines.

March 14.—THE PRESIDENT said today international banking institutions are now prepared to invest in the Philippines as a result of the country's economic and financial stability, in a luncheon speech at the Manila Hotel in connection with the observance of Philippine Foreign Trade Week sponsored by the Philippine Chamber of Commerce.

Showing his complete command of the subject, President Garcia spoke extemporaneously and his speech was repeatedly interrupted by applause.

Armed with Central Bank data, the President lengthily traced the growth of foreign trade with Europe and Japan in postwar years. He said Japanese trade increased from $178 million in 1958 to $291 million in 1960, while the European trade jumped from $169 million in 1958 to $189 million in 1960.

President Garcia also reiterated the policy of the Administration to diversify foreign trade.

We believe in spreading our foreign trade to give us stability and protect us against any possible sudden decline in the American market, the President said.

The President stated that it is to the credit of the United States government that that country is not putting up obstacles on the way of the Philippine government in seeking to diversify Philippine foreign trade, in spite of the decline in the Philippine-American trade.

Since the grant of independence to the Philippines in 1946, the policy of the Republic according to the President, was to try to establish as many markets as possible, adding that "we do not believe in putting all our eggs in one basket."

President Garcia also went on record as stating that he would first determine the public pulse before submitting the Japanese peace treaty to the Philippine Senate for ratification.

He invited the members of the Chamber of Commerce as well as the Chambers of Industries and Agriculture and Natural Resources to study closely the proposed treaty, and thereafter submit their views, to the President and to Congress for proper evaluation and determination.

President Garcia pointed out that the matter of foreign trade is a two-way affair, and that no one country could expect to get all the credit at the expense of the other country. He said Filipino businessmen have shown their foresight and capability when treating on this very same subject matter.

The President was well applauded when he announced that upon representations made by CCP Acting President H. B. Reyes, he had endorsed Finance Department Order No. 22, dated May 19, 1960, to the Secretary of Justice for an opinion.

In taking this step, the President pointed out the far-reaching effects of the order, adding that while exporters and importers directly pay the taxes, the consumers ultimately pay for everything.

The President was introduced by former Foreign Affairs Secretary Felino Neri.

Early in the morning the President and Mrs. Garcia heard mass said at the Malacañang chapel, marking the start of a four-day retreat. The first couple of the land invited those who attended the first day of the retreat, which included wives of members of the Cabinet and Congress to breakfast.

March 15.—PRESIDENT Garcia today declared March 17, 1961, a special public holiday in the province of Zambales and Cebu City to give the people of the province and city full opportunity to observe with appropriate ceremonies the fourth anniversary of the death of the late President Magsaysay.

President Magsaysay and others died on Mt. Manungal, Cebu, on March 17, 1957.

President Garcia this afternoon received the letters of credence of Raul Rodriguez Araya as the First Argentine ambassador to the Philippines.

Araya relieves Minister Alfredo Allende, who had administered the affairs of the Argentine embassy as charge d'affaires.

The new Argentine envoy was met at the Malacañang reception hall by Col. Jorge Delarmente, senior aide to the President.

Araya was accompanied by Minister Allende, who is scheduled to leave shortly for reassignment.

Members of the Cabinet headed by Foreign Affairs Secretary Felixberto M. Serrano witnessed the presentation of the letters of credence.

After the ceremony the President received Lt. Gen. Manuel Cabal, chief of staff of the Armed Forces of the Philippines.

Cabal saw the President for instructions before leaving for Bangkok on Monday to head the Philippine delegation to the military advisers' conference of the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization.

The President later presided over the weekly meeting of the Cabinet.

This evening the Cabinet decided against the importation of rice and corn after Agriculture Secretary Cesar Fortich reported that there would be surpluses of both cereals this year.

During the Cabinet meeting President Garcia created a committee, headed by Secretary Fortich, to find ways and means of bringing down the price of rice.

In his report on the corn situation, Secretary Fortich belied claims that there was need for importation of the cereal as there would be a shortage this year.

Fortich said the expected corn production this year was 20,680,000 cavans. The expected total requirement of the country was only 19,948,570 cavans. There was also a surplus last year, Fortich said.

The importation of corn was urged because of the rise in the price of the staple. However, investigation developed that rise in price was caused by faulty distribution.

The President had ordered the National Rice and Corn Corporation to buy corn in Davao and Cotabato and ship it by Philippine navy boats to Cebu City, center of distribution in Visayas.

Defense Secretary Alejo Santos reported that of the 20,000 cavans of corn bought by the NARIC in Davao, 10,000 cavans had already been transported by navy vessels to Cebu City.

During the discussion on the corn situation, the President asked Fortich to see if Luzon farmers could be encouraged to hike their production of corn.

He pointed out that almost all the industrial corn, like those used as feed in poultry farms, were used in Central Luzon. It would be better, he said, if the feed used in these poultry farms were raised near the places where they were used.

This afternoon the President received a resolution passed by the Municipal Council of Plaridel, Bulacan, pledging the councils abiding faith and loyalty to him and his administration.

The resolution passed unanimously by the council singled out the “determined fight of President Garcia against graft and corruption and his firm policy to ferret out misfits and incompetents in the government” as one of the reasons that lead to the passage of the council resolution.

Citing the case of former Sugar Quota Administrator Ramon L. Paguia, who is also from Plaridel, the municipal council said, “Paguia’s separation from the service upon orders of the Chief Executive is a wise step in the right direction. His decision on this case strengthened more the faith and confidence of the people of Plaridel in his administration.”

March 16.—PRESIDENT Garcia signed a proclamation creating the municipality of Lugait in the province of Misamis Oriental at a conference with Rep. Fausto Dugenio and Mayor Alejandro D. Uy of Manticao this morning.

The new municipality formerly formed part of the town of Manticao and has enough income for expenses, according to the Department of Finance.

The President also ordered the release of ₱10,000 for the improvement of a prewar building of the Puericulture Center of Dumangas, Iloilo.

Rep. Ricardo Y. Ladrado of Iloilo, chairman of the committee on health, and Mayor Ramon Duremdez of Dumangas informed the President that present plans call for the conversion of the center into a children’s and maternity hospital.

The President also ordered the Presidential Guard Battalion commander to detail a contingent of guards of honor to stand vigil at the Magsaysay mausoleum at the North Cemetery from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.

The President this day directed the Presidential Committee on Administration Performance Efficiency to look into the alleged "land-grabbing" case in Sitio Tibulao Panabu, Davao, where 120 "Ata" families were reportedly victimized.

The Chief Executive issued the directive after receiving a PCAPE report that the Ata, one of the many tribes inhabiting the hinterlands of Davao province, are about "ready to take the law into their hands" to recover from a corporation the land on which they have been toiling since time immemorial.

The President in issuing the directive ordered the PCAPE to study the matter carefully so that a permanent solution to benefit not only the Ata tribe but also other non-Christian tribes, who are similarly situated, could be adopted.

The Chief Executive also instructed the PCAPE to find out if there are irregularities in the disposition of public lands in the area, and to file, if necessary, criminal or administrative charges or both against parties that might be held answerable.

The President observed that this "land-grabbing" business had been going on for sometime but the proper government agencies concerned seemed not to have lifted a finger to help this people in their predicament.

This afternoon the President reaffirmed the Filipino people's determination to preserve the ideals of freedom and democracy in the face of the threat of communism.

The President also took occasion to congratulate the President and people of the Republic of Korea for their relentless struggle to preserve their sovereignty against the red menace.

The President reaffirmed the Filipino people's stand to Lt. Gen. Heng Kuu Lee of South Korea, who paid a courtesy call at Malacañang, accompanied by Col. Bong Duces Chun and retired Brig. Gen. Dionisio Ojeda, commanding officer of the 10th BCT which saw action in Korea.

Gen. Lee, who is also president of the Korean Veterans Legion, is on a brief stopover in Manila in the course of an observation tour of Veterans affairs in the different countries of the Free World.

The President told Gen. Lee that here in the Philippines the veterans are actively taking part in the economic development of the country. He emphasized, however, that their duty of preserving peace and liberty was not over because "eternal vigilance is the price of the people's liberty."

Gen. Lee informed the President that his compatriots were likewise engaged in building up a stable republic and are also ready to answer the call of duty whenever they are called to the battle front.

The President asked Gen. Lee to convey his best wishes and those of the Filipino people for the continued success of the sister republic of Korea and to thank their Chief Executive for his thoughtfulness in greeting President Garcia and the Filipino people through Gen. Lee.

This evening the President expressed gratification to American capitalists who are going into partnership with Filipino industrialists in a joint effort to boost the country's economic stability.

Robert J. Dixon, president of Johnson & Johnson International, informed the Chief Executive in the course of his courtesy call at Malacañang this evening that his company is expanding its operations in the Philippines under the 60-40 arrangement.

Dixon, who is also a director of the Far Eastern Council and the National Foreign Trade Council, two powerful American business groups, said his company is bringing into the Philippines $3 million worth of machineries to manufacture hygienic products locally.

Dixon presented the President with the 25 millionth can of Johnson Baby Powder manufactured by his company in the Philippines, and a package of assorted Johnson products for the President's granddaughter.

The President told the visiting American businessman that his decision to set up a local plant was another indication of the growing confidence of industrialists here and abroad in the soundness of the country's economic policy and its bright future.

Dixon was accompanied to Malacañang by Thomas Rogers, Jr., VP and managing director; Raymond Sadlier VP and general manager, Export Division; Paul J. Quinn, VP; Jose Ma. Galatas, Metro Drug; Herminio Ozaeta; Edward Stewart, production director; and Antonio Zorrilla, P. R. & advertising counselor.

In his speech President Garcia appealed to educational institutions in the country to help in the “moral and spiritual regeneration of the people” who had adversely suffered from the vicissitudes of the last war.

In his appeal for a moral regeneration, the President pointed out that “we cannot fail to see the unmistakable signs of a growing trend toward materialism. Stealthily, like a thief in the dead of night, its influence seems to be creeping into the minds of our people, blurring their sense of social values and otherwise affecting their outlook on life.”

He deplored the effect of this trend upon the impressionable minds of the youth, “Whetting their desire for the material things of life—money, possessions, and the power that goes with wealth and social position.”

President Garcia urged a return to the old concepts of honesty, family solidarity, clean and righteous living, respect for authority, and the other traits which have the objects of encomium by the chroniclers of the early days of history.

The President issued a proclamation today declaring March 23 of every year as World Meteorological Day.

The executive committee of the World Meteorological Organization has previously approved the establishment of an annual world meteorological day to be celebrated on March 23, the anniversary of the day in 1950 when the World Meteorological Convention formally came into force.

The President also pointed out that the success of PAL operations was a tangible evidence of the capability and technical know-how of Filipino pilots and technicians who had built up the good name of the PAL over the years.

Eduardo Z. Romualdez, chairman of the board, informed the President that the board will convene tomorrow to elect an acting President in order not to disrupt the service during the transition period from the termination of the present contract until a new management takes over.

This evening the President motored to the Manila Hotel, where he attended the annual dinner of the Business Writers Association of the Philippines, which gave awards to outstanding men in the different fields of business.

In his after-dinner speech the President said that the decontrol will shift back the country's economy to the system of free enterprise.

"For fifteen years" he said, "we have held the leadership among the new independent countries in the field of economic development in Asia and Africa. Let us keep that leadership not for vainglory or national pride," he added.

The Cabinet approved today a government contract with the Liberation Steamship company for the sale of three National Development company-owned Doña vessels.

The contract calls for the Liberation Steamship company to pay for the three ships—the Doña Nati, the Doña Alicia, and the Doña Aurora—for ₱13,970,864.

Other terms of the contract were not available from Malacañang this evening but a spokesman said the contract was approved only after all the required procedure for the transaction had been complied with.

These included public bidding prior to which all shipping firms were furnished with the terms and conditions for the sale, the spokesman said.

The Liberation Steamship company was the only bidder which made the deadline for the bid, the spokesman said.

The Cabinet also adopted two measures to stop the rising cost of wheat flour. These were:

1. Pegging the price to around ₱11 per bag of 50 pounds, which is ₱5 lower than the current price; and
2. Allowing importers to bring in one-half million bags of flour with the condition that each importer give his word he would sell the flour at the price fixed by the government.

The dollars for the importation would be on the ratio of 50 per cent on the preferred rate and 50 per cent on the free market rate.

In approving, the importation, the Cabinet stressed that this was good only for April and May because after the latter month two local flour mills were expected to start full production.

These were the General Milling, Inc., and the Liberty Flour Mills, which were expected to produce 3,520,000 bags a year.

The President expressed dissatisfaction over the stop-gap measure taken, and directed Secretary Dominador Aytona to study ways and means of solving the problem permanently.

March 23.—PRESIDENT Garcia this morning received Seijiro Yoshizawa, former ambassador of Japan to India, who is on a brief stop-over in Manila in the course of a goodwill tour of the Far East.

The visiting Japanese envoy who is leaving Sunday, March 26, was accompanied to Malacañang by Shigezo Yoshikawa, first secretary and charge d'affaires of the Japanese embassy in Manila.

Yoshizawa was the chairman of the reception committee during President Garcia's state visit to Japan in 1958 when he was accorded a royal welcome by the people of Japan.

The President also received British Ambassador John Arthur Pilcher, who came to say goodbye to the President before leaving soon for a long vacation.

The British ambassador was accompanied by Charge d'affaires John Henry Lambert, who will be in charge of the British embassy during the ambassador's absence.

As the President was busy preparing the speeches which he will deliver in Iloilo and Cebu, he cancelled all his other morning appointments.

The President and the First Lady are leaving for Iloilo and Cebu tomorrow morning at 8 a.m. aboard the RPS Lapu-Lapu.

Besides holding conferences with provincial, city, and local officials during his trip, the President is commencement speaker at the University of San Agustin in Iloilo on Saturday, and the Southwestern University in Cebu on Sunday.

March 24.—THIS morning President Garcia issued a directive clarifying the government's policy on the enforcement of forestry laws and regulation and the disposition of illegally cut logs seized during last year's campaign against illegal logging.

The Chief Executive issued the directive upon being informed that there is no definite policy adopted regarding the disposition of the thousands of illegally felled logs as a result of which some are now rotting in the forests in at least seven provinces in Luzon.

President Garcia left this morning aboard the RPS Lapu-Lapu on a four-day trip to Iloilo and Cebu to fulfill several speaking engagements.

Before the Lapu-Lapu pulled out of Pier 3 at 9:10 a.m., the President held brief conferences with Speaker Daniel Z. Romualdez on legislative matters, Executive Secretary Natalio P. Castillo, and Foreign Affairs Undersecretary Fructuoso Cabahug on pending state matters.

March 25.—PRESIDENT Garcia today administered oath of affiliation with the Nacionalista Party to Gov. Jose C. Zulueta, Vice-Gov. Guadalino Mosquera, and 12 municipal mayors of Iloilo, thereby wiping out the last vestiges of the Liberal Party in the province of Iloilo.

The affiliation ceremony took place at the luncheon tendered by Gov. Zulueta at his residence in Iloilo City, in the presence of 42 municipal mayors, more than 1000 barrio lieutenants, Cabinet members, senators and congressmen, and governors of neighboring provinces.

A delegation of unity signed by all the municipal mayors and barrio lieutenants of Iloilo was read endorsing the reelection of President Garcia.

Gov. Zulueta and House Majority Floor Leader Jose Aldeguer, the latter representing the Lopez faction, also spoke pledging to give the President an overwhelming majority in the coming elections. Gov. Zulueta and Rep. Aldeguer predicted the President would get 95 per cent of all the votes in Iloilo.

President Garcia in turn stated that one of his life's achievements is the unity of the Iloilo warring factions brought about by his visit.

By unanimous vote of the mayors and barrio lieutenants, the President was awarded the Marikudo award presented by Mrs. Armi Kuusela-Hilario, wife of the president of the Barrio Lieutenants Association of the Philippines.

The President and his party arrived in Iloilo about 8 a.m. today aboard the RPS Lapu-Lapu, which was escorted from Guimaras Island by a colorful fluvial parade. Throngs lined up Muelle Loney and cheered the President as the ship approached for docking.

After the welcome ceremonies at the wharf, the President and the First Lady headed a long motorcade to San Jose church for the Te Deum. Then the President proceeded to Oton to lay the cornerstone of the provincial capitol, assisted by the First Lady, Gov. and Mrs. Zulueta, and Mayor and Mrs. Ganzon. President's Week in Review: March 26 - April 1, 1961

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

March 26.—PRESIDENT Garcia started his Lenten fast this morning by taking nothing but milk at breakfast after attending an early Palm Sunday mass aboard the RPS Lapu-Lapu.

The yacht was then sailing smoothly towards Cebu City from Iloilo City, where the Chief Executive witnessed the fusion of two big political factions behind his reelection bid.

The President said he was shortening his annual Lenten fast from the usual two weeks to seven days this year upon the advice of his physicians, Newsmen surmised that this advice must have something to do with the President's long hospitalization at the Veterans Memorial Hospital late last year.

The President drank another glass of milk at lunchtime, then another at suppertime. He will start taking nothing but orange juice on Wednesday. The fasting will end on Easter Sunday.

Apparently inspired by his political gains in Iloilo, the President appeared buoyant and witty during his interview with newsmen. Asked to comment on reports about Amang Rodriguez's more conciliatory attitude, the President chuckled: "Politics is very complicated. That's why even if you read the Bible from cover to cover you will not find the word 'politics' in it."

Then when asked by a naughty newsmen if he would endorse Mayor Arsenio H. Lacson, his bitter critic, as his running mate, President Garcia quipped: "There's nothing wrong in hoping against hope."

The RPS Lapu-Lapu docked at Cebu City at 3:30 p.m. today. The President and his party will sail back to Manila at midnight tonight.

March 27.—ABOARD the RPS Lapu-Lapu, President Garcia and his party are expected to arrive in Manila at 11 p.m. today from a two-day inspection tour of Iloilo and Cebu provinces.

The President, on the second day of his fast, woke up early this morning and spent the whole day inside his cabin reading the Holy Bible. He subsisted only on milk and water sprinkled with little sugar.

The Lapu-Lapu with the presidential party lifted anchor from the Cebu wharf last night and kept steaming at 17.5 knots in an effort to head off an approaching typhoon.

The seas had been smooth since the Lapu-Lapu left Cebu midnight last night, but the ship developed slight roll as she began to encounter slight swells and white caps at the Sibuyan Sea and Romblon pass this noon.

The passengers were relieved when informed by Comdr. Manuel Mandapat that typhoon Tess, reported to be packing winds with velocity of 100 miles per hour, veered at 2 p.m. and would not come to within 500 miles of the Philippines.

March 28.—PRESIDENT Garcia today ordered Secretary of Justice Alejo Mabanag and the presidential committee on administration performance efficiency to probe thoroughly the forgery of decisions in Manila municipal courts and the other tribunals so that the proper penalties could be meted out on the responsible parties.

The President conferred this morning with Executive Secretary Natalio Castillo on the forgery racket.

In ordering Mabanag and the PCAFE to investigate the anomaly thoroughly, the President said no effort must be spared to stop the perversion of justice the moment it is discovered. He directed the PCAFE to determine if the irregularity was also rampant in provincial courts.

In his conference with Castillo, the Chief Executive also took up the Senate move to expose alleged kick-backs in the importation of flour.

Following the conference, Secretary Castillo issued a statement denying the alleged racket by some administration leaders as a means of raising funds for the election campaign.

The President arrived in Baguio about 8 o'clock this evening from Manila to spend the Holy Week in the Pines City.

President Garcia today highly praised the Cebu boy who gave up ...his life in order to save a friend from drowning.

In a letter to Mr. and Mrs. Aniano Cobarde, parents of young Nestor Cobarde, who perished after saving his friend from drowning, the President wrote: "The tragedy is too much to bear on your part, I am sure, but yours is the deserved pride that you brought forth into this world a boy who, though still very young, already practiced the virtues that should properly abound in the adult world. I wish I had such a son."

March 29.—PRESIDENT Garcia categorically said today that he favors leaving the management of the Philippine Air Lines to private sector and gave the PAL Board of Directors a period of three months to decide on the best and most acceptable management bid.

The President told newsmen during impromptu press conference that it is the standing policy for the government to step out whenever private enterprise is ready to take over.

The appointment of Eduardo Z. Romualdez as PAL president is ad interim, the President pointed out, while the Board of Directors determines the cash value of the government shares in the firm prior to the choice of a permanent management from several offers.

Replying to a query from a newsman on whether he would allow Cabinet members reportedly aspiring for the vice-presidential position to testify before the Senate, the President said he left to those concerned to decide whether or not to testify.

The President, who had already lost ten pounds since he started fasting four days ago, started taking today orange juice at mealtime.

The lone caller was Administrator Ramon Gaviola of the Social Security System, who took up joint financing ventures with private enterprise in which the System is interested.

After receiving Gaviola, the President retired to his bedroom to read the Holy Bible and Life of Christ by Vincent Sheen.

President Garcia ordered today the immediate release of ₱50,000 from his contingent fund for the relief of the fire victims in the recent fire that razed Laoang, Samar.

The initial amount of ₱50,000 was ordered immediately released through Executive Secretary Natalio P. Castillo.

The President also directed Social Welfare Administrator Mrs. Amparo P. Villain or to extend immediate SWA aid to the fire victims and make a survey of the damage.

The President today congratulated the Philippine delegation headed by Ambassador Eduardo Quintero for getting a substantial reduction of Philippine obligation under the Romulo-Snyder Agreement and for other concessions obtained by the group.

The President dispatched his congratulatory message upon receiving the report sent through cable by Ambassador Quintero from Washington.

In his telegram to the President, Ambassador Quintero reported approval by the United States of:

(1) Claim for expenses of recovered personnel division which was rejected in 1950 and 1951. The claim which amounted to ₱10,860,000 was reduced to ₱9,086,000. This amount would be used to reduce the Philippine obligation under the Romulo-Snyder Agreement, instead of peso-payment to the Philippine government which would necessitate U.S. congressional action.

(2) Reduction of the Romulo-Snyder obligation by ₱4,996,860.66 which was due to the United States auditors' errors in computation, lifting of suspended account, and transfer of the trust fund to the Philippine government.

March 30.—THE PRESIDENT reiterated today the Philippines' stand against the recognition and' admission of Red China to the United Nations.

Replying to questions from newspapermen regarding the Philippine position on the two China proposal, the President said that Red China's membership in the UN would considerably weaken the prestige of Free China, which is also a member of the UN Security Council.

The President said that the proposal, if carried out, would result in serious repercussions in the world body and in Asia and threaten world peace, especially in countries whose large Chinese populations might turn communists.

Citing cases, the President said the Philippines would face graver menace than the suppression of the Huk movement which costs millions of pesos every year.

During his talks with Malacañang newsmen in his stroll around the Mansion House grounds this morning, President Garcia scotched reports that the three-man Nacionalista Party screening committee was snagged. He said according to J. Antonio Araneta, the third neutral member, the committee is working smoothly and had passed upon 350 ex officio delegates out of a total of 1,140 delegates.

While he was not optimistic over the committee's success, the President felt that it should be given a chance to work out a solution for the sake of party unity.

The President spent most of the day in meditation except for short strolls with the First Lady to admire flowers in full bloom in the Mansion House.

President Garcia is now taking milk and fruit juice in the course of his fasting. His fast will end on Easter Sunday, when he will take his first solid meal since he started fasting.

President and Mrs. Garcia this afternoon motored to Holy Ghost hill where they heard the traditional Maundy Thursday mass at the Blue Sisters convent. They also received Holy Communion.

After the mass the President returned to the Guest House, where he continued his Holy Bible reading, while the First Lady went on visita iglesia with Mesdames Jose Aldeguer, Joaquin R. Roces, and Macario Asistion.

March 31.—PRESIDENT Garcia Friday directed the Philippine Constabulary to conduct a full dress investigation of alleged gun-running activities wherein military personnel are linked.

The President issued the directive upon being informed by PC chief Gen. Isagani Campo that politicians are allegedly purchasing guns and ammunitions to build their own private armies. Campo expressed fears that the private armies might be used during the elections.

The President also directed Campo to look into the reported ties between some AFP men and civilians in the gunrunning racket and to render a complete report on the extent of gunrunning activities in the country so that all persons linked may be prosecuted, and remedial measures adopted to curb the racket.

Earlier this morning the President and Mrs. Garcia strolled around the Mansion House ground. In the afternoon the President and the First Lady heard the traditional Seven Last Words at St. Joseph Church.

April 1.—THE PRESIDENT today proposed a new deal for sugar workers in order to give them greater participation in the sugar bonanza from the additional sugar quota in the United States.

In another directive the Chief Executive told Secretary Castaño to confer with the striking laborers of the Cebu Portland Cement factory in Naga, Cebu, to effect a peaceful settlement of the strike.

The President took this step after his conference with Jose Zafra, acting general manager and board chairman, and Z. R. Falcon, production manager of the CEPOC, who reported that the strike has been going on for a week because of the refusal of non-unionist laborers to pay the one-peso agency fee being collected by the labor union.

The President told Secretary Castaño that the collection of the agency fee from the non-unionist was illegal and that this was decided in a recent case of the Manila Railroad Company at the Court of Industrial Relation. The President added if the unionist would like to have their case decided, they could do so but that there should be a peaceful settlement first.

The President told Labor Secretary Angel Castaño to make a survey of the sugar industry with the view to increasing the level of wages of workers in the sugar industry.

The President rejected today a proposal to hold a new civil service examination in view of the high mortality rate in the recent general clerical examination as demoralizing to the successful candidates.

The proposal was advanced by SSS Administrator Ramon Gaviola, who informed the President that there will be a big number of vacancies in the government service as a result of the implementation of the new Civil Service Law, known as Republic Act No. 2260,

Gaviola told the President that consideration should also be given to qualify skilled but ineligible government employees because they could not be replaced by civil service eligibles, as most of those who passed in the recent examination were already in the service.

The President said that to give another examination now would be inadvisable, as it might be interpreted to favor certain group of employees. Moreover, the President said that government employees who had been in the service for five consecutive years cannot, under the new Civil Service Law, be separated from the service.

The President began receiving callers today at the Guest House as the Holy Week drew to a close.

In the morning the President who had started on semi-solid diet, completed a nine-hole game at the Mansion House Golf Course with Judge Guillermo Guevarra, Egmidio Marquez, and Drs. Manuel Gaerlan and Valentin Fidelino. The First Lady also started taking golf lessons seriously.

Not a bit tired by the game, the President had breakfast and received Governors Andres Castillo of the Central Bank, Conrado Estrella of Pangasinan and Jose Zulueta of Iloilo, who went to pay their respects to the Chief Executive.

Among other callers were SSS Administrator Ramon Gaviola, Philippine Consul to New York Samson Sabalones, Acting Cebu Portland Cement Corporation Manager Jose Zafra, and Zosimo Falcon, also of the CEPOC.

Later in the day the President went over some state papers brought from Manila by Edilberto Gallares, Malacañang technical assistant.

Very early in the morning and late in the afternoon, the President went into the liturgy of Easter vigil, and inspired by the thought that Easter is the beginning of Life and Grace for Christianity," the Chief Executive sent an Easter Message to all Christian Filipinos.

President Garcia today extended executive clemency to 477 insular prisoners. The Chief Executive approved the list of prisoners upon recommendation of the Board of Pardons and Parole.

Of the pardoned prisoners, 22 will be granted absolute pardon, 72 conditional and 283 commutation of sentences.

The names of the pardoned prisoners will be released early next week.

President's Week in Review: April 2-8, 1961

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

April 2.—PRESIDENT Garcia exuded enthusiasm as he saw “new faces” “at the traditional Easter Sunday luncheon he and Mrs. Garcia tendered at the Mansion House.

The guest, composed of Cabinet members, Justices, members of Congress, provincial and Baguio City officials, and close friends and relatives of the First Couple of the land, were received at the picnic grove of the Mansion House.

Among those who attended the luncheon were Rep. Sergio Osmeña, Jr., Sen. A. Padilla, and Aurelio Montinola.

This afternoon President Garcia proclaimed Rep. Ramon Mitra as official NP candidate for reelection in the second district of Mountain Province.

Mitra was chosen earlier official candidate of the Nacionalista Party at a convention held at the Trinidad Agricultural School.

After Mitra's proclamation, President Garcia turned over to Baguio City Mayor Luis Lardizabal a check for ₱200,000 for the Convention Hall of Baguio.

In the presence of some three hundred delegates, the President lauded the choice of Mitra as proof of the people's confidence in his brilliant record as a lawmaker for six terms and as chairman of the House foreign affairs committee.

The President was roundly applauded when he said that Mitra's choice will reflect the people's confidence in the Nacionalista Party, which will be in a better position to serve the nation with tried and true men like Mitra.

In turning over the check for Convention Hall, the President underscored its importance because of an increasing holding of international conferences in Baguio owing to the Philippines' active participation in the United Nations.

Early in the morning the President and Mrs. Garcia heard mass at the Guest House. Also present were Mr. and Mrs. Fernando Campos, Sens. Gil J. Puyat and Eulogio Balao, and Rep. and Mrs. Jose Aldeguer.

After breakfast the President began receiving guests to the traditional Eastern Sunday luncheon. After luncheon the President retired to his room before receiving scheduled callers and proclaiming Mitra.

April 3.—PRESIDENT Garcia congratulated Finance Secretary Dominador Aytona and Commissioner Melecio R. Domingo of the Bureau of Internal Revenue for their “repeat performance” of last year's increased collections.

The President publicly commended the two officials during a conference at the Guest House in which Commissioner Domingo reported that BIR contributed ₱736 million to the aggregate ₱1 billion income in 1960, or roughly 73.6 per cent.

Domingo said that the actual receipts from the period from July to December, 1960, amounted to ₱291 million, exceeding the budget estimate of ₱274 million by roughly ₱17 million.

The BIR head said that with the adoption of several measures, his office expects another increase of ₱33 million during the last semester of the current fiscal year, or a total increase of ₱50 million for the whole year.

Comparing the July to December, 1960, collection by both the BIR and the Customs of ₱637 million with ₱538 million collection of July to December, 1959, Domingo said that a general increase of ₱99 million was achieved.

The President emphasized that the achievement was more remarkable considering that there were no new sources of collections, no new tax laws were enacted, and the tax rates remain stationary.

Domingo informed the President that the increased collections were due to: (1) assignment of 2000 collection agents to replace local treasurers who did not devote full time; (2) adoption of the "pay as you file" system in which half of the tax due is collectible at riling of income tax returns to discourage delinquency and make available for use such collection; (3) use of new techniques acquired abroad by pensionados under ICA grants; (4) weeding out of undesirables resulting in the filing of 500 administrative cases mostly against field personnel; and (5) diminishing percentage of tax exemptions to new and necessary industries until next year.

Earlier this morning the President received Carlos Palanca and Ramon Del Rosario, who paid their respects and discussed business with the Chief Executive; Elections Commissioner Genaro Vizarra and Sixto Brillantes, who assured the President of a clean, honest, and orderly elections in November and who sought a Baguio site for the use of the elections commission.

The President also received justices of the Supreme Court who called on him at the Guest House. The justices were Cesar Bengson, Sabino Padilla, Felix Bautista Angelo, Alejo Labrador, Roberto Concepcion, J. B. L. Reyes, Jesus Barrera, and Arsenio Dizon.

He also received Foreign Affairs Secretary Felixberto Serrano, who briefed him on the full implication of the Laotian crisis.

April 4.—EARLY this morning the President played golf at the Mansion House golf course and told newsmen later he was improving in his new game.

After his golf game the President had breakfast with newsmen at the Guest House. He told newsmen at the Guest House he was inclined to sign the new bill passed by Congress declaring April 9 as a regular public holiday.

The President also took up the political developments as reported to him by Executive Secretary Natalio P. Castillo and Secretary of Labor Angel Castaño by telephone and by wire.

He said he was optimistic the primary proposed in the amity meeting held last February 4 will go through.

In golf parlance, the President said, if the presidential race were golf, he would give the Senate President a handicap of 120.

At 9:15 o'clock this morning the President was fetched by Secretary of Education Jose E. Romero to address the members of the Philippine Association of School Superintendents at the Teachers Camp.

President Garcia today assured some 200 school superintendents that his administration will continue its educational program of giving emphasis on the development of the physical, mental, and moral values of the youth.

The Chief Executive made the assurance to members of the Philippine Association of Schools Superintendents who are holding their 52nd annual convention at Quezon-Roosevelt Hall in Baguio City from April 4 to 13.

The President said that much of the future socio-economic progress of the country depends on how effective the educational program could be carried out.

After delivering his speech the Chief Executive, together with the First Lady, were treated to a light snack at the Aldaba Hall in the Teachers' Camp.

During the snack the presidents of three major teacher organizations, on behalf of their respective members, expressed their gratitude to the Chief Executive, saying that “his is the only administration that has done a lot for the welfare of the teachers.”

The three presidents, namely, F. Yanson of the PASS, Dominador X. Lopez of the Philippine Public School Teachers Association, and Apolinar Tolentino of the Philippine Association of Vocational Educators, also expressed their faith and confidence in the President and his administration.

The President was presented to the PASS members by Secretary Romero, while the welcome address was delivered by Mayor Lardizabal.

After his engagement with the PASS, the Chief Executive motored back to the Guest House where he had lunch.

At 2 p.m. the President, together with the First Lady and members of the presidential party, motored to Damortis where they boarded a special train for Manila, arriving in Manila at 8:10 p.m.

From the Tutuban MRR station the party proceeded to Malacañang where the President spent the night.

April 5.—PRESIDENT Garcia today spent the whole morning in his private residence in Quezon City, where he went over pending state papers which piled up during his seven-day stay in Baguio during the Holy Week.

Occasionally, political leaders visited the President and discussed developments in the political front brought about by the stalemate in the executive committee meeting of the Nacionalista Party last Monday.

The President had previously announced his readiness to meet Senate President Eulogio Rodriguez in a second amity conference in an effort to stave off a possible split in the majority party. Rodriguez has rejected the executive committee proposal for this amity meeting.

In the afternoon the President motored to Malacañang, where he received visiting German business executives who paid a courtesy call on him.

Berthold Beitz, chairman of the executive board of the Fried Krupp Essen, headed the German business executives. With Beitz were Count Ahlefeld-Laurig and Edward B. Unger. The German visitors were accompanied to Malacañang by Ramon S. Roco, president of the Machinery Engineering Supplies, Inc., and Helmuth Koenig, also of the same company.

After receiving the German business executives, the President presided over the regular meeting of the Cabinet. During the meeting the President took up the reported corn shortage in five Cebu towns.

After the Cabinet meeting the President motored to the Manila Hotel to attend the fifth anniversary dinner of the Norluzonian, an organization of civic leaders in Northern Luzon.

The Cabinet approved this evening terms and conditions for the sale of two National Development company-owned mills, the Ilocos Textile Mill and the Manila Textile Mill. The terms and conditions had been drawn up by a Cabinet committee.

Among the terms and conditions were:

1. Only bids offering a floor price of ₱4.5 million in the case of the Manila Textile Mill and ₱2.3 million in the case of the Ilocos Textile Mill, exclusive of inventories, shall be accepted.
2. The down payment for the Manila Textile Mill must be ₱1,350,000, and for the Ilocos Textile Mill, ₱690,000.

Another feature of the terms and conditions approved by the Cabinet was that successful bidders must set aside and reserve for at least two years a block of common and voting shares equivalent to at least 12.5 per cent of the authorized capital stock of the corporation to be allocated for purchase by N.D.C. workers.

The Cabinet also approved a proposal of Commerce Secretary Manuel Lim to invite representatives of four American cigar manufacturing firms who have indicated a desire to come to the Philippines to look into the possibility of getting their raw material supply here.

Lim informed the Cabinet that other tobacco-producing countries like Indonesia, Jamaica, and Brazil had extended similar invitations.

During the Cabinet meeting President Garcia brought up a Bulletin report about a famine in five towns in Cebu. He directed the NARIC, through Economic Coordinator Juan O. Chioco to:

1. Determine the veracity of the report; and
2. Rush corn grit supplies to the affected areas if the report is found to be true.

April 6.—THIS morning the President signed two bills into law, one proclaiming April 9 as Bataan Day and a legal holiday and the other appropriating the sum of ₱100,000 for the Seventh Anti-Communist Conference of Asians in Manila.

In proclaiming the ninth of April as Bataan Day, the President enjoined all Filipinos to observe a one-minute silence at 4:30 in the afternoon and to hold appropriate rites in honor of the heroic defenders of Bataan, their parents, wives, or widows.

By virtue of the President's action, April 10 this year become a legal holiday as provided for under the Revised Administrative Code, because April 9 falls on a Sunday.

Present at the signing of the bill (S. 483 and H. 941) at Malacañang this morning were Rep. Ramon Bagatsing of Manila, author of the bill; Brig. Gen. Dionisio Ojeda, president of the Veterans Federation of the Philippines; and officers of the Defenders of Bataan, including Maj. Gen. Alfredo M. Santos, overall chairman; Teodoro M. Kalaw, Jr., national commander; Antonio Varias, past national commander; Ernesto D. Rufino, Vice-national commander; Col. Oscar S. Santos, national adjutant; and Cols. Jose A. Arambulo and Salvador T. Paccio.

House Bill 4506, which was also signed by the President today, appropriates ₱100,000 out of the unused funds of the National Treasury for the transportation and accommodation of foreign delegates to the Seventh Asian People's Anti-Communist Conference which will be held in Manila from May 2 to 5 this year.

It being Congressmen's day at the palace, the President had a very heavy schedule.

Early this morning the President received Speaker Protempore Constancio Castañeda and his father-in-law, Toribio Teodoro, proprietor of Ang Tibay Shoes, who paid a social call on the Chief Executive.

Between callers, the President administered the oaths of affiliation with the Nacionalista Party to Mayor Bienvenido Marquez and five other former Liberals of Padre Burgos, Quezon, who were accompanied by Rep. Leon Guinto, Jr., and Mayor Santiago Quiloña of San Julian, Samar, who was accompanied by Rep. Felipe Abrigo and the mayors of Oras, Quinapandan, Arteché, and Hemani.

Mamintal Tamano and five others; Rep. Luis Hora of Mountain Province, who took up the question of the cultural minorities; Rep. Nicanor Ihiguez of Southern Leyte with a six-man delegation; Rep. Francisco Sumulong of Rizal; Vice-Mayor Maximo Gatlanbayan of Antipolo, Rizal; Rep. Jose Legaspi of Aklan; and Mayor Napoleon Dala of Libacao, Aklan.

President Garcia today extended a helping hand to change the bleak future of four children into a bright hope for a better life. He directed the V. Luna General Hospital to extend immediate hospitalization to Donato Bay Ion, a 63-year old beggar who supports a wife and four children.

The President also ordered the Social Welfare Administration to give the necessary financial aid to old man Baylon, who is suffering from an intestinal disease and is growing blind.

Deeply moved upon reading the sad plight of Baylon in an afternoon Manila newspaper, the President lost no time in having the old man located. He issued the twin directive expressing his conviction that Baylon's children should be afforded a better future.

Baylon manages to feed his family by begging all day long along Padre Faura near the Department of Foreign Affairs. His wife is a laundry-woman who earns one peso a day. He almost committed suicide three years ago from utter desperation springing from the fact that he lost his house, first wife, and three children during the war.

April 7.—PRESIDENT Garcia this morning reiterated the need for a permanent school financing act to avert the perennial school shortage which is becoming serious every year.

The President told the Council of Leaders at their breakfast meeting in Malacañang today that although one-third of the total budget is earmarked for education, it is barely enough to provide the rudimentary education provided in the Constitution.

The President also urged passage of a satisfactory foreign investment bill to create an attractive climate for foreign capital that may be invested for the development of the country.

Other matters taken up by the President with the Council of Leaders in their three-hour conference were:

- (1) Appointments in the judiciary, which had been made by the President to clear the courts of a heavy backlog of cases;
- (2) Abolition of the margin fee as a complementary measure to full decontrol; and
- (3) Other administration bills pending in Congress.

The breakfast meeting started at 8:10 a.m. and lasted up to 12 noon.

The President was the guest of honor and speaker at the launching ceremony held at Fort Santiago.

Commerce Secretary Manuel Lim, in his capacity as chairman of the FSIRA Executive Board, and Benjardi M. Crame, co-chairman of the same board, accompanied the President from Malacañang to the fort.

After the ceremony President Garcia and other guests, including members of the diplomatic corps, inspected the shrine, with Carlos da Silva serving as guide.

The executive board is composed of Lim, chairman; Crame, co-chairman; and Andrew Gruber, Carlos Santiago, Yu Khe Thai, Gen. Dionisio Ojeda, C. S. Gonzales, Luis Ma. Araneta, Andres Soriano, Jr., Modesto Farolan, Carlos da Silva, Dannet Howe, Enrique Belo, Manuel Elizalde, and Gaudencio Antonio, members.

April 8.—THIS morning President Garcia emphasized the urgency of accelerating all phases of economic progress, and invited foreign friendly capital to come in and help develop the country.

The President extended his invitation during the inauguration of the Bataan refinery of STANVAC in Limay, Bataan, this morning, in which he was principal speaker.

In his speech before some 2,000 employees and guests, including government officials, members of the diplomatic corps, and prominent citizens, the President paid tribute to STANVAC as one of the greatest contributors to Philippine progress, and pointed to the expansion of its activities as a tangible evidence of American initiative and Filipino cooperation in action.

Earlier, the President decorated Christian A. Larsen, general manager, for his meritorious and praiseworthy efforts to contribute to the vigorous growth of Philippine economy as an executive of STANVAC.

The President conferred the Philippine Legion of Honor (Commander) on Larsen in recognition of his abiding faith in Philippine democratic institution, his efforts to promote harmonious labor management relations, and the enrichment of Philippine journalism by providing deserving Filipinos with opportunities for advancement.

Larsen in his dedicatory address, and H. F. Prioleau, president and board member who came all the way from New York, affirmed America's confidence in the stability and bright future of Philippine economy, and thanked their Filipino workers without whom, they said, the establishment of the refinery could not have been possible.

Prioleau also expressed the hope that allied industries will find fresh encouragement in the example set by STANVAC and help the Philippines develop her economy to their mutual benefit.

Prioleau said that among the benefits to be derived in the establishment of the $45 million refinery in Bataan are:

- (1) More employment and general prosperity;
- (2) Vital knowledge to be acquired by Filipino technicians;
- (3) Growth of allied industries, creating an industrial complex and giving the government a large share in the form of taxes; and
- (4) Dollar savings of some $5 million annually.

Mrs. Leonila D. Garcia, who was assisted by Mesdames Pedro Dizon, Floro Roxas, Larsen, and Sen. Pacita M. Gonzalez, unveiled the plaque marking the inauguration of the plant, while President Garcia pushed the button which symbolically started operations.

The President, accompanied by the First Lady, Cabinet members, and Prioleau, left Pier 3 in Manila at 9:40 in the morning, arriving at Limay aboard the RPS Lapu-Lapu at 11:30 a.m.

From the wharf where the President was welcomed by Stanvae officials and prominent guests headed by Bataan Gov. Pedro Djzon and Limay Mayor Floro Roxas, the President toured the housing compound before proceeding to the ceremonial site.

After the inspection of the housing project, cocktails were served at the administration building, after which the guests were honored at a luncheon, during which the ceremonies were held.

Among those present at the ceremonies were Secretaries Alejo Mabanag of Justice, Manuel Lira of Commerce, Felixberto Serrano of Foreign Affairs, Alejo Santos of Defense, Cesar Fortich of Agriculture, OEC Administrator Juan O. Chioco, Budget Commissioner Faustino Sy-Changco, and a large group of chiefs of missions headed by United States Ambassador John D. Hickerson.

After the ceremonies the President motored back to the wharf and boarded at the Lapu-Lapu which shoved off for Manila at 2:40 p.m., arriving at Pier 3 shortly before 4 p.m.

In the course of his Bataan visit, the President was presented with a petition by former Gov. Emilio Ma. Naval, president of the Landowners and Farmers of the province, protesting the enforcement of Assessment Orders 14 and 16, which increased land values by over 100 per cent.

Gov. Naval informed the President that the last typhoons and floods had caused a big drop and severe losses in the harvests and that it was untimely to enforce the new assessment in order to raise more taxes.

Naval added that a stream of resolution from barrio and municipal councilors had forced Vice-Gov. Faustino V. Vigo to introduce a resolution requesting the secretary of finance to suspend the effectivity of Assessment Orders 14 and 16, for at least one year.

The President said that he will take up the matter with the secretary of finance.

President Garcia, in a message issued on Bataan Day, extolled the unconquerable spirit of the defenders of Bataan, whose victory in defeat 18 years ago, provided a rich legacy in the unique Filipino-American partnership of today.

Recalling the fall of Bataan which had caused unfold national sorrow for both the Philippines and the United States, the President said that “the indomitable spirit of Bataan never fell; thus was Filipino-American comradeship maintained during the dark war years in the crucible of guerrilla fury.”

President's Week in Review: April 9-15, 1961

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

April 9.—AFTER his breakfast this morning the President motored to the Manila Golf Club in Makati, Rizal, where he played nine holes with Manuel Nieto, Jr., chairman of the Games and Amusement Board, and Jose Galatas.

This evening the President attended a dinner of the "Solid North," an organization of civic and political leader from the Northern and Central Luzon provinces. The affair was held at the Philippine Navy Clubhouse.

The "Solid North" association presented three candidates for the NP vice-presidential nomination; namely. Senators Cipriano Primicias, Quintin Paredes, and Speaker Protempore Constancio E. Castañeda.

This was the second time the President attended an affair given by civic and political leaders from the North. He had attended a dinner given last week by the Norluzonians.

Upon receiving the resolution on the vice-presidential candidates the President said he would endorse it to the convention which, he said, would choose the presidential vice-presidential candidates of the party.

Before attending the "Solid North" dinner, the President inducted Tomas de Guzman and Eulogio de Guzman, Jr., sons of Gov. Eulogio de Guzman of La Union, into the NP. The induction of the brothers was held significant, as Gov. De Guzman was elected under Liberal Party. The De Guzmans were inducted into the NP at the President's private residence in Quezon City.

The President also motored to St. Mary College auditorium, where he attended the closing day of the four-day convention of the Philippine Veterans Legion.

In his brief remarks the President assured the vets he would take steps to insure an honest and orderly election.

The President received plaque from the PVL for having shown interest in the welfare of the veterans, war widows, and orphans.

April 10.—A FIVE-HOUR meeting of the NP executive committee today failed to resolve the Garcia-Rodriguez rift and to settle other pressing party problems, like the holding of a primary.

Except for an agreement that President Garcia and Senate President Eulogio Rodriguez themselves decide the issue of about 400 contested delegates, the intra-party situation was believed to have dipped further when Amang confronted President Garcia with a new White Paper. The document, first read by the Senate leader himself and continued by Mayor Lacson, contained nine pages with seven specifications of complaints.

President Garcia was immediately put on the defensive, and his defense and the expression of views by the other members of the NP ruling body used up much of the time of the marathon meeting held at the Manila Hotel.

The highlights of the conference:

1. The President and Amang will meet at a time and place to be decided by them within one week to resolve the question of 400 primary delegates in 18 provinces and three chartered cities.
2. The two leaders will then report to the NP ruling body which will decide on the need of convoking the committee to another meeting.
3. The question of the party convention was not taken up.

The President motored to the Manila Hotel at 12:35 p.m. accompanied by Assistant Executive Secretary Mariano R. Logarta. Upon arrival at the Manila Hotel, the President was escorted to the presidential suite, where he was fetched by Legislative Secretary Vicente Logarta when most of the NP executive committee members had arrived.

The Chief Executive found out that the NP executive committee members had already been furnished with copies of a new "White Paper," which Amang claimed, was the fourth in a series he had written denouncing alleged graft committed by persons close to the President.

It was a tumultuous session marked by unleashed tempers over the widening rift between the President and Senate President Rodriguez.

A Malacañang spokesman said the President took the initiative of discussing the controversial "White Paper" and explained every point in the catalogue of charges leveled at him by the Senate President.

The same Palace source said that the majority, if not all, of the members of the NP executive committee were satisfied with the President's explanation.

The President sat down with the NP committee for almost five hours.

It was held possible that the President and Rodriguez may meet anew on Saturday after President Garcia's arrival from a four-day trip to Bacolod City and Estancia, Iloilo.

Before motoring to the Manila Hotel, the President had breakfast with Speaker Daniel Z. Romualdez and Speaker Protomopore Constancio E. Castañeda, and plotted moves in his meeting with the NP executive committee.

The breakfast conference was held at the President's private residence in Quezon City.

From the Manila Hotel, the President returned to his private residence in Quezon City where he spent the night.

April 11.—PRESIDENT Garcia appointed today Justice Cesar Bengzon as Chief Justice of the Supreme Court, succeeding retired Chief Justice Ricardo Paras.

The President, likewise, appointed Justices Dionisio de Leon and Felipe Natividad, both of the Court of Appeals, as Associate Justices of the highest tribunal of the land.

Justices De Leon and Natividad will fill in the vacancies brought about by the retirement of Supreme Court Justices Marcelino R. Montemayor and Jose Gutierrez David. Justice Montemayor retired last year while Justice David retired last January.

The appointment of the three justices were in accordance with Article VIII, section 5, of the Constitution and other existing laws governing the appointments of the justices to the Supreme Court. The President signed the appointments before he sailed for Bacolod City early this morning.

The elevation of Justice Bengzon as Chief Justice and the promotion of Justices De Leon and Natividad to the highest tribunal were agreed upon by President Garcia and his council of leaders during a breakfast conference held in Malacañang last Friday.

Bengzon's appointment to the highest judiciary position capped his impressive and brilliant record in the court of justice. He is the senior member of the Supreme Court. He hails from Camiling, Tarlac.

President Garcia left Malacañang for the RPS Lapu-Lapu at 8 o'clock this morning. Before the Lapu-Lapu sailed for Bacolod City at 9 a.m., the President received on board the ship Govs. Godofredo Reyes of Ilocos Sur, Felipe Garduque of Cagayan, Manuel Barretto of Zambales, and Eulogio de Guzman of La Union. They discussed local problems.

Later, Lt. Gen. Manuel F. Cabal, Armed Forces chief of staff, reported to the President on the recently concluded SEATO conference in Bangkok which Cabal attended.

After Cabal, Finance Secretary Dominador Aytona and Acting Gov. Andres Castillo of the Central Bank conferred with President Garcia.

The President directed Administrator Vicente Araneta of the Agricultural Credit and Cooperative Administration and Auditor General Pedro M. Gimenez to release all check's drawn in favor of FACOMA for Virginia tobacco they have sold to the ACCFA.

President Garcia was pleasantly surprised to see the participation in the welcome of truckloads of laborers and employees of three sugar centrals owned by J. Amado Araneta, treasurer of the Liberal Party.

NEC Chairman Jose Locsin, Gov. Valeriano Gatuslao, and Mayor Teofisto Cordova of Bacolod City led government officials and people, from all walks of life in the reception which was considered unprecedented in the province.

A fluvial parade met the Lapu-Lapu and escorted the yacht to Banago wharf, where upon landing and receiving full military honors, President Garcia and the First Lady led a long motorcade to the Sacred Heart Church at Lupit for the Te Deum and the blessing and inauguration of the Gov. Gatuslao driveway of the church.

At the Sacred Heart Seminary, the President and his party were received by Msgr. Manuel Yap, Bacolod bishop; Fr. J. Jumaoas, seminary rector; and officials of Barangay Sang Virgin led by Antonio Gaston, national president, and Virgilio Dulton, president of the Bacolod chapter.

The First Lady donated bed sheets to the Bacolod Orphanage through Mrs. Julia Infanta, president of the Catholic Women's League, before leaving together with the President and party for a rally of provincial, city, and municipal officials and employees, barrio council members, and the public at the Negros Occidental High School stadium which was jam-packed by people.

From the stadium, President Garcia motored to the La Sale gymnasium for a luncheon engagement sponsored by the Federation of Sugarcane Planters, where he delivered a short address.

Later, the President proceeded to the Lapu-Lapu for a rest. At 3 p.m. he had a 30-minutes exclusive conference with provincial, city, and municipal officials on their problems.

At 5:30 p.m. the President reviewed a civic and military parade at a stand built at the public plaza. The parade ended at the University of Negros Occidental, where the First Lady formally opened the Feria de Caridad of the Sacred Heart Church.

Later, the President and the First Lady with party attended the Kayumanggi dance where Mrs. Garcia proclaimed Miss Hanneli Montilla as muse of the Press Club.

The President and his party boarded the Lapu-Lapu before midnight for the trip to Estancia, Iloilo, where they are expected at 2 p.m., tomorrow.

April 13.—PRESIDENT Garcia was royally welcomed today upon his arrival at Estancia, Iloilo, where people from all the towns of the fifth district of the province congregated early this morning to see and hear him.

Estancia, which is considered the Alaska of the Philippines, outdid itself in receiving the President, considering the fact that Vice-President Macapagal also visited the town at the same time.

Owing to insistent demands, the President had to speak at an impromptu rally held in front of the market of Estancia and received a pledge from Mayor Eusebio Reyes that the town will give him a bigger majority than in the 1957 election when he won over Jose Yulo.

About 100 motorized fishing boats participated in a fluvial parade welcoming the Chief Executive and his party.

From Estancia, the President led a motorcade through the next town of Batad, where Mayor Jose Bañez urged him to speak at another impromptu rally, and read a resolution approved by all municipal officials and members of barrio councils endorsing the President's reelection bid.

In Sara the President inaugurated, the emergency hospital in the presence of delegation from all over the fifth district of Iloilo.

Speaking at rallies, Rep. Jose Aldeguer urged the people of his district not to vote for him if they will not vote for President Garcia.

From Sara, the President returned to Estancia, where he attended the coronation at the fair.

President Garcia told newsmen this morning he is prepared for a break with Senate President Rodriguez and let the Nacionalista Party decide the presidential candidate of the party. The President met newsmen aboard the Lapu-Lapu on the way to Estancia, where he crossed the path of Vice-President Macapagal, who is stumping in Iloilo.

Apparently at the end of his patience. President Garcia said, "I am willing to go any length to preserve party unity, but if the realities are different, I am ready to confront them."

"If the party is divided, let it not be said that President Garcia was the cause of it," he added.

The President also: (1) defended the sale of the Dona vessels by the National Development Company; (2) branded Amang's white paper as an "old song" played on the same old phonographs; and (3) claimed as a "wild story" Rodriguez's charge that Boholanos have settled on 149 hectares of land in Bago Oshiro, Davao.

The President is scheduled to return to Manila tomorrow night after a two-day stump of Negros and Iloilo.

April 14.—THE PRESIDENT sailed for Manila from Estancia, Iloilo, at 3 o'clock this morning. The boat sailed at full speed and entered Manila Bay shortly after six o'clock in the evening. However, the yacht slowed down in its approach of the breakwater and docked at Pier 3 at 8:30 p.m.

Earlier in the morning, at his suite at the Lapu-Lapu, the President conferred with Govs. Zulueta and Plaza and took up the political developments in their respective areas.

Gov. Zulueta reported to the President the lukewarm reception accorded Vice-President Diosdado Macapagal in Iloilo. He also recalled his tiff with the Liberal Party presidential candidate and vowed to fight Macapagal in the coming elections.

In the evening the President conferred with the six Manila councilors who joined him in his four-day stump to Negros Occidental and Iloilo. They were Councilors Alfredo Gomez, Vicente G. Cruz, Felicisimo Cabigao, Francisco Varona, Jr., Pablo Gener, and Francisco Gatmaitan.

The Manila aldermen took up with the President their pet projects and sought his support to help finance them.

President Garcia returned at 3:30 this evening from a four-day stump of Bacolod City and Estancia, Iloilo, where he sewed up the heavy sugar votes of West Visayas.

The President came in aboard the RPS Lapu-Lapu together with the First Lady and Govs. Jose C. Zulueta of Iloilo and D. O. Plaza of Agusan.

Heartened by the massive welcome accorded him in Bacolod City and in Estancia and Sara, Iloilo, hometown of House Majority Floor Leader Jose M. Aldeguer, the President expressed confidence he would sweep Iloilo and Negros Occidental in the coming presidential polls.

The President was deeply impressed by the big crowds which gathered to meet him in Sara and by the biggest fluvial parade mounted to meet the yacht Lapu-Lapu as it steamed to shore in Estancia.

April 15.—PRESIDENT Garcia today waited the whole day for his guest who did not come.

He had left his calendar open for his amity talks with Senate President Eulogio Rodriguez in accordance with the decision of the Nacionalista Party's executive committee last Monday. But Amang never came.

While Press Secretary Jose C. Nable insisted that Rodriguez did not snub the President, it was evident that the host, President Garcia, waited the whole day for his expected guest who never came.

President Garcia and Rodriguez were supposed to iron out conflicts in the list of disputed delegates to the primary or convention which will choose the NP presidential candidate.

The Chief Executive was in his bedroom and alerted all his aides to relay to him any report of the visit of Rodriguez.

Up to press time this evening Amang had not shown up at the Palace.

Earlier in the morning the President played golf at the Manila Golf Club to get into the swing of balls after a four-day stump in the Visayas.

Although he was at the Manila Golf Club, he had ordered his aides to relay immediately to him any report of Amang's decision to see him anywhere.

Before going to the golf course, the President also ordered his aides to lay a wreath at the tomb of President Roxas at the North Cemetery on the occasion of 13th anniversary of the latter's death.

The President also ordered an honor guard to keep vigil at the Roxas mausoleum.

However, a report that Senate President Rodriguez was preparing his own slate for the coming elections was said to have disturbed the Chief Executive. Up to press time this evening Malacañang was silent on the President's reaction to the report.

Amang was quoted as having given Mayor Arsenio H. Lacson complete freedom to criticize the Administration. Lacson has been identified as among the Senate President's political henchmen.

At the same time, Noli Reyes, private secretary of the President, sent a wire to Villegas in the name of the President, informing the labor leader of the action taken.

The President was incensed when he read the complaint of Villegas, published in a metropolitan paper in which the labor leader alleged that the alien was using the name of the President in turning down the petition of the workers for the minimum wage.

Villegas alleged that the alien also used the name of the President to flaunt the authorities in Cebu. It was also alleged that the alien has been using threats to cow his laborers, dismissing some and subjecting others to bodily harm.

In the afternoon the President received delegates to the Government Prosecutors League convention, at cocktails in Malacañang.

President Garcia created today a legislative-executive committee to devise ways and means to arrest the spiraling prices of prime commodities.

The committee was created during the regular weekly Cabinet meeting in which the current trend of prices of commodities which keep soaring, was discussed intensively.

Named to the committee were Commerce Secretary Manuel Lim, Finance Secretary Dominador Aytona, and National Economic Council Chairman Jose C. Locsin.

Invited to join the committee were Sens. Gil Puyat, Pedro Sabido, and Cipriano Primicias, and Reps, Jose Roy, Vicente Peralta, and Ramon Durano.

During the Cabinet meeting, the President reiterated his directives for the Departments of Commerce and of National Defense to enforce strictly the price control law now that the re-requirements for the publication of the price lists have already been met.

President Garcia also directed Budget Commissioner Faustino Sy-Changco to take all the necessary steps to implement a previous verbal directive to pay the salaries of school teachers twice a month not later than July this year.

The President pointed out that teachers, especially those in rural areas, are two or three months behind in receiving their pay. He said the situation should be remedied immediately.

The Cabinet also discussed ways of remedying the imbalance of monetary circulation between the urban areas and the outlying districts. It has been observed that money supply is plentiful in centers of populations and scarce in the provinces.

The President took up with the Cabinet members ways and means to remedy this imbalance which accounted for the high prices of commodities.

The President presided over the regular weekly meeting of his Cabinet after the cocktail party.

In the evening the President was guest speaker at the inauguration and induction of the San Juan Chamber of Commerce.

President Garcia urged all government prosecutors to press the drive relentlessly against venalities in the public service in connection with his all-out drive against graft and corruption in the government.

In his brief talks with Chief Prosecuting Attorney Baldomero M. Villamor, president of the Government Prosecutors' League, at the Malacañang Social Hall, the President expressed gratification over the success of the drive which, he said, should serve as a warning against dishonest public servants.

The President and the First Lady this afternoon received the GPL members at cocktails on the opening day of their four-day conference being held at the Philippine General Hospital Science Hall on Taft Avenue.

The government prosecutors were accompanied by Justice Secretary Alejo Mabanag, Undersecretary Enrique Fernandez, Solicitor General Edilberto Barot, Villamor, and the other officers of the league.

This afternoon President Garcia directed Justice Buenaventura Ocampo, PCAPE chairman, to conduct a formal investigation of alleged abuses committed against inmates of the Correctional Institution for Women in Mandaluyong, Rizal, reportedly by male employees of the institution.

The Chief Executive issued the directive through Executive Secretary Natalio P. Castillo, who briefed the President on the existence of the irregularity late this afternoon.

Preliminary PCAPE findings reveal that some 14 inmates of the CIW were found to be in the family way according to the 1960-1961 record of the institution's infirmary. Out of the 14, three reportedly became pregnant while serving their sentence.

The President, irked by the report said that he wants an immediate and thorough investigation of the alleged "highly immoral" acts of the employees. He ordered that if evidence warrants it, the proper government agency must file not only administrative charges against these persons but criminal charges as well, to serve as an example to officials and employees who are taking advantage of their position to molest other persons under them.

The complaint reaching the PCAPE and signed by the father of one of the alleged victims requested that the matter be looked into to protect the inmates, who because of their situation, are allegedly being taken advantage of by these persons.

The complainant said that one of the abusers is a "very close" relative of a top official of the institution, and for this reason, the victims themselves could not file the complaint openly for fear of reprisal from the CIW official concerned.

Justice Ocampo, upon receiving the complaint this morning, dispatched immediately Attorneys Rodolfo Ocampo and German Fernando, special PCAPE investigators, to conduct a spot check, to verify the reliability of the complaint.

The complaint also informed the PCAPE that female prisoners are assigned to private quarters of prison officials to work as helpers or laundry women where they are at times abused or left to the mercy of these officials or the immediate members of their family.

This evening President Garcia pledged anew the continuing fight for economic emancipation as the goal of the Nacionalista Party.

Discarding a prepared policy speech owing to a sore throat, the President reiterated this policy at the inauguration and induction of the officers of the San Juan Chamber of Commerce and Industry in San Juan Rizal late this evening.

The President received a long ovation from some 500 members of the new trade organization when he said in his brief remarks that the Nacionalista Party, which had fought for over 40 years for political independence which was attained in 1946, considered it a sacred duty to wrest control of the patrimony of the land for the sustenance and strengthening of the Filipino people.

The President pointed out that for four centuries, the economic policies of the country were charted by foreigners for their own benefit, never for the benefit of the Filipino people, and that it is the duty of the Filipinos to chart their own policies and assume their god-given rights.

This, the President told the organization, was the reason for his launching the Filipino First policy, which has found wide and popular support from all sectors of the country and which was adopted as the cornerstone in the founding of the San Juan Chamber of Commerce and Industry.

The program was delayed owing to the regular weekly Cabinet meeting. The President arrived at the inaugural ceremonies at 9 p.m., and left at 11: 30, after the program, for his Bohol Avenue residence.

April 27.—PRESIDENT Garcia today took steps to counteract what Malacañang called Liberal Party propaganda charges that the Administration was out to cheat in the November 14 polls.

Before boarding the presidential train at the Tutuban Station in Manila en route to the Summer Capital, President Garcia issued a directive to Defense Secretary Alejo S. Santos to take necessary steps to insure “clean and orderly elections.”

Later in his chat with newsmen, the President recalled how he has won all his political battles through honest ballotings.

President and Mrs. Garcia arrived at the Guest House at five in the afternoon and were met by a large delegation of city officials and employees headed by Mayor Luis Lardizabal and Gov. Bado Dangwa of Mountain Province.

The President will be the guest speaker at the 6th annual convention of the Philippine Electric Plant Owners Association at the Pines Hotel tomorrow noon and at the convention of the Regional Federation of Virginia Tobacco FACOMAs at Burnham Park Saturday morning.

The President and Mrs. Garcia left Tutuban by train at 9:15 in the morning and arrived at Damortis at 3:45 p.m. They proceeded to Baguio by car.

Accompanying the President are Rep. and Mrs. Ramon Mitra, Rep. and Mrs. Manuel Zosa, Mrs. Daniel Romualdez, Mrs. Joaquin Rocas, Mrs. Amparo Villamor, Gen. Manuel Cabal, NAWASA General Manager Susano Negado, and others.

President Garcia today ordered the immediate release of ₱50,000 from his contingent fund for the relief of victims of the fire which hit Baguio City last Tuesday. The order for the release of the initial amount of ₱50,000 was given through Executive Secretary Natalio P. Castillo.

The President, likewise, directed Administrator Amparo Villamor of the Social Welfare Administration to extend all possible aid to the fire victims.

The two-hour fire which gutted the commercial district along Session Road caused losses to properties estimated at ₱1.5 million and injury to one. The conflagration was considered to be the biggest and the most destructive ever to hit Baguio City.

April 28.—PRESIDENT Garcia today received assurances of support from 30 former Liberal leaders of Mt. Province, 15 of whom took their formal oath of affiliation with the Nacionalista Party at the Guest House.

The former Liberals, some of them candidates for local posts, pledged support to President Garcia in a resolution presented to him during the oath taking. They said that they decided to support the President because of his boldness and determination to prosecute erring officials and fight against graft and corruption.

They pointed out that the Liberals who are so vocal in accusing the present administration of graft and corruption were the ones who were indicted by the people and booted out of office for such offense.

They expressed their faith in the good work of the President who has been exposed to all kinds of accusations, and said that they are supporting him so that his good work will continue for the salvation of the country.

Among those who took their oath of affiliation were Juan Zarate, Antonio Ramos, Pedro Claravall, Marcelo. Pajel, Aurelio Peralta, Juanito Astudillo, Pedro Alcantara, Adelina Pajel, Leon Dacanay, Emmanuel Zaragoza, and Antonio Alabanza.

Earlier the President received Indonesian Defense Minister Abdul Harris Nasution and Mrs. Nasution, who reiterated President Sukarno's standing invitation to the Chief Executive to visit Indonesia.

In their meeting the President and Minister Nasution compared their countries' struggle for independence and also discussed the world situation. Minister Nasution informed the President that communists in Indonesia constituted an isolated small minority and their strength had been exaggerated.

The President told Minister Nasution, who was also accompanied by Indonesian Ambassadors Suska to Burma and Spade to Australia, that he had already accepted President Sukarno's invitation but that He could not make it this year.

Early in the morning, the President strolled alone around the Mansion House because the First Lady had gone up to Bontoc on a two-day trip. The President later received Manila Councilors Alfredo Gomez, Vicente Cruz, and Eriberto Remigio, who sought ₱50,000 for Fabie Estate Development and ₱150,000 for schools; Govs. Felipe Garduque, Godofredo S. Reyes, Manuel Barretto, and Eulogio F. de Guzman, who petitioned the President to study the feasibility of importing rice to counteract the activities of unscrupulous spectators who are victimizing the consumers as a result of the destruction caused by floods and typhoons, particularly in Central Luzon, which is considered the rice granary of the Philippines.

The President said that he will give the matter serious consideration.

At noon the President proceeded to the Pines Hotel to address the Philippine Electric Plant Owners Association.

In the afternoon the President administered the oaths of office to Chief Justice Cesar Bengzon and Associate Justices Dionisio de Leon and Felipe Natividad of the Supreme Court at the Guest House.

The oath-taking ceremonies which took place one after the other were attended by a large group composed of all the associated justices of the Supreme Court with the exception of Justice Felix Angelo Bautista, members of the appellate and lower courts, high government officials, close relatives, and friends of the inductees.

Also present were former Secretaries Salvador Araneta and Emilio Abello; Jesus Vargas, former AFP chief of staff; Bibiano Meer, former internal revenue collector; Judge Guillermo Guevara; and Manila Councilor Francisco Gatmaitan.

President Garcia appealed to electric owners to explore all possible means of producing cheap electric power in order to insure the success of the country's industrialization program.

The President made this appeal at a luncheon this noon before some 500 delegates in the opening session of the two-day convention of the Philippine Electric Plant Owners Association at the Pines Hotel this noon.

In his brief extemporaneous speech, the President quoted former President Eisenhower's message in 1960 which said "the race between the increase of wages and the increase of the cost of production has placed American commodities out of the world market."

The President emphasized that this is a warning to Filipinos, and added that electric plant operators should explore all means of averting the eventuality by producing cheaper power so that industrialists are assured a fair profit and better chances for competition.

The President said that the rural electrification act of 1960 fell far short of his expectations because it did not provide for the necessary funds, unlike the Tennessee Valley Authority and other similar acts in the United States which had millions of dollar appropriated.

PEPOA President Abaya, speaking for the association, pledged full support for the industrialization program and the dispersal of industries. Abaya also submitted the association's petition, to wit: endorsement of House Bill No. 613 increasing NPC capital to ₱250 million; House Bill No. 340 amending the charter of the Development Bank of the Philippines to allow loans to industries including electric generation to implement RA Act No. 770 providing rural electrification; and lastly the inclusion of electric power as one of the basic industries under Senate Bill No. 669.

Present at the luncheon conference were NEC Chairman Jose Locsin, PEPOA Vice-President Julio Diaz, ICA Deputy Chief of Operations Leland Randall, and Msgr. William Brasseur, who delivered the invocation.

After the speech the President awarded certificates of appreciation to Caltex represented by Mclellan and J. P. Roxas for their support and assistance to the association.

April 29.—PRESIDENT Garcia advocated anew the importation of a limited quantity of blending tobacco for aromatic cigarettes in exchange for locally produced low-grade Virginia tobacco.

The President reiterated his stand in a speech which was read by Zambales Gov. Manuel Barretto before the First National Convention of Virginia Tobacco Facomas at the St. Louis Auditorium in Baguio.

President Garcia was the guest speaker but upon his doctor's orders, he cancelled all engagements and stayed in bed the whole day today.

In a prepared speech the President assured farmers of continued government price support until they can stand competition in a free market.

The President, however, pointed to the problem posed by mounting stocks of low grade Virginia tobacco that are not saleable locally. He said that only 30 per cent of Virginia tobacco produced locally is of good quality and this is not enough to supply local requirements; hence, the need for blending tobacco.

The President said that ACCFA alone has 49 million kilograms of low-grade tobacco amounting to ₱141 million, while the Philippine Virginia Tobacco Administration (PVTa) has 18 million kilograms worth ₱49 million, making a total of ₱190 million in government capital tied up in surplus low-grade Virginia tobacco.

President Garcia revealed offers of local manufacturers to buy three and one-half kilos of Philippine low grade tobacco in exchange for one kilo of imported blending tobacco which, if accepted, will reduce accumulated surplus and result in greater income for government from importation of aromatic cigarettes.

The President also said that while the Philippines is looking for other markets, it must not lose the golden opportunity in the ruptured United States-Cuba relations to gain a firm hold on the American cigar market.

The President had also requested Sen. Domocao Alonto to represent him at the convention of Filipino Land Tillers Association at Burham Park auditorium this afternoon.

In his speech President Garcia pledged that the government will redouble its efforts in giving land to the landless until every Filipino farmer has his own piece of land.

Among others, the President requested Sen. Alonto to convey to the farmers that:

- (1) He is in favor in principle of extending easy credit to farmers;
- (2) He will study the feasibility of procuring through reparations modern farm implements to improve production: and
- (3) He will seriously consider rice importation to relieve shortage which resulted from crop destruction by floods and typhoons.

The Chief Executive said that self-sufficiency in rice which was achieved for the first time will continue as the principal aim of the Administration.

The President said that there will be rice production surplus of four million cavans by June this year with Cotabato contributing 12,400,000 cavans.

Citing figures, he said that agricultural production since 1955 increased 17.2 per cent while food crops jumped 20.8 per cent.

The President said, however, in answer to Govs. Manuel Barretto of Zambales, Felipe Garduque of Cagayan, Godofredo Reyes of Ilocos Sur, and Eulogio de Guzman of La Union, who suspected manipulation of prices as a cause for shortage in their respective provinces, that he will consider seriously their petition to import rice.

President Garcia also said that in the distribution of land to the landless, the Administration in 1960 issued 25,840 land titles covering 91,000 hectares as compared to 1953, the last year of the Liberal administration, when 8,489 land titles covering 6,000 hectares were issued.

The President also informed the conventionists that the extension of liberal credit to the farmers had already been taken up by the Cabinet.

President's Week in Review: April 30 - May 6, 1961

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

April 30.—EARLY this morning the President heard mass at the Guest House. After the mass the President stayed in his bedroom and cancelled all callers. The Guest House was full of callers, mostly government officials and members of Congress who were in Baguio for the three-day holidays.

Upon the advice of his physicians, particularly Dr. Antonio Guytingco, President Garcia stayed in bed.

Dr. Guytingco advised the President to have a complete rest, and, if his ailment does not improve, he may not address the Labor Day rally tomorrow.

Dr. Guytingco said the President may be forced to cancel his engagements if he does not recover from his colds.

President and Mrs. Garcia left for Manila at 2 this afternoon and arrived at the railroad station of Damortis, La Union an hour later.

At the Damortis railroad station, the President and Mrs. Garcia boarded a special train for Manila. After a brief stop-over at Dagupan, the President and members of his party returned to Manila and arrived, in Malacañang at 8:33 this evening.

May 1.—THIS morning President Garcia received James McFarland, chief of the Philippine desk at the U.S. State Department and member of the U.S. panel which concluded the Romulo-Snyder Agreement with the Philippines recently.

McFarland has been in the Philippines two weeks on inspection and was leaving for home in the afternoon. He was accompanied on his courtesy call by Col. V. O. Tiongson, Malacañang financial assistant.

The President also received Labor Secretary Angel Castaño, who briefed him on the Labor Day celebration which he said was the biggest to be held in the Philippines so far.

Secretary Castaño said that over 100,000 people wanted to attend the program in the afternoon at the Araneta Coliseum in Quezon City but only 37,000 will be accommodated inside, and 50,000 will be able to see the program through the television outside the coliseum.

The President expressed regret that owing to his cold he could not accompany the First Lady to the program. He requested Secretary Castaño to represent him and read his Labor Day message to the nation.

The President today mobilized government agencies in an effort to rush all possible assistance and relief to the victims of the Sunday fire which swept through twelve blocks in the business and residential districts of Guiribatan, Albay, causing property losses of more than ₱1 million.

Press Secretary Jose C. Nable said that the President, despite a nagging cold which dogged him during the last days, personally directed Social Welfare Administrator Amparo Villamor to rush relief goods for immediate distribution to the fire victims. At the same time the President directed the Philippine Air Force to coordinate with social welfare Workers in transporting relief food and goods. Health Secretary Elpidio Valencia was also directed by President Garcia to look into the health conditions in Guinobatan, especially as to the availability of potable water, in order to avoid the outbreak of an epidemic.

May 2.—PRESIDENT and Mrs. Garcia joined thousands of devotees who trekked to Antipolo, Rizal, this morning and heard mass which ushered in the traditional month-long Antipolo season during which the faithful from all over the country will make pilgrimages to the Virgin of Good Voyage.

The President and the First Lady and their children, Mr. and Mrs. Fernando Campos, were fetched from Malacañang by Sen. Lorenzo Sumulong at 7:30 a.m. and arrived by motor at the Antipolo Church at 8:10 a.m.

On hand to greet the First Family at the entrance of the town were Mayor and Mrs. Isaias Tapales, who headed a large group of local town officials.

At the Antipolo church another large crowd composed of local residents and Catholics from Manila and neighboring towns, as well as officials headed by Sen. Pacita M. Gonzalez and Mrs. Lorenzo Sumulong, gathered to welcome the President and his party.

The misa de la Reyna marks the opening of the Maytime Antipolo celebration.

After taking communion and paying homage to the miraculous Virgin, the President and the First Lady inaugurated the newly constructed Antipolo auditorium, where breakfast consisting of putong pute, cuchinta, suman, and mangoes was served.

Before leaving Antipolo the President thanked Sen. Sumulong and the town officials for the wonderful reception. The presidential party arrived in Malacañang at 10:30 a.m. With the party were Mesdames Daniel Romualdez, Jose Aldeguer, and Macario Asistio.

The President then immediately summoned foreign affairs and national defense officials to a hurried conference in Malacañang.

Called to the huddle were Foreign Affairs Secretary Felixberto M. Serrano, National Defense Secretary Alejo Santos, Sen. Eulogio Balao, and Rep. Bartolome Cabangbang.

The meeting was called presumably to take up the worsening Laotian crisis following a breakdown in negotiations to settle the dispute through peaceful means.

Speculations were raised that the Malacañang conference took up possible Philippine participation in a contemplated action by the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization to quell violence in the tiny Laotian kingdom.

Secretary Serrano, who returned recently from the Council of Ministers meeting of the SEATO, briefed the President and defense officials on the seriousness of the communist subversion in Laos.

Serrano had pointed out that the trouble in Laos may blow up into war, as the United States has started military build-up to implement its commitments with the SEATO in the event peaceful negotiations fail.

President Garcia today directed the Angat River Irrigation System authorities in Bulacan to settle immediately the unpaid wages of some 200 casual laborers hired by the agency in 1950 and 1958.

The Chief Executive issued the directive upon receiving a PC APE report that the persons affected were small farmers contracted by the agency on a daily basis to dig the ditches through which tapped irrigation water could pass toward the rice fields.

The President was irked by the seemingly unreasonable delay in the settlement of the wages which appear to involve a small sum considering that the total wages due each individual ranges from, ₱30 to ₱40 only.

The President observed that although the sum due each person is comparatively small, yet to the small farmers the amount means a lot. He directed Major Teodulo C. Natividad, PCAPE chief investigator, to look into the possibility that persons other than the farmer-payees received the wages by forging signatures.

The President in directing the PCAPE to investigate the possibility of illegal payment was prompted by numerous complaints reaching the Office of the President that the practice is rampant, especially when the persons involved are illiterates.

The plight of the 200 Bulacan farmers was brought to the attention of the President through the PCAPE by Pulilan Councilors Marcial Cruz, Amando Galang, and Apolonio Arceo, a Pulilan barrio lieutenant.

This evening the President presided over the meeting of the National Security Council to assess the latest developments in the Laotian crisis.

The Chief Executive called the NSC the other day to a meeting at Camp Murphy after he had been briefed by foreign affairs and defense officials on the seriousness of the Laos situation.

The President, during his conference with foreign affairs and defense officials in Malacañang, expressed his readiness to fulfill the country's commitments with the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization.

Invited to the security parley were top officials of the government, including the leaders of Congress and some members of the Cabinet.

Liberal Party leaders headed by Vice-President Macapagal were also invited to join the discussion involving the threat to the security of the country.

Senate President Eulogio Rodriguez, the President's chief rival for the Nacionalista Party presidential nomination, was also expected to be present.

The President started from Malacañang shortly before 9 p.m. for Camp Murphy.

Upon his arrival the President immediately called the National Security Council meeting to order.

May 3.—THIS morning the President was reported still indisposed. For almost two weeks now, he has been complaining of colds.

Upon the advice of his physician, the President cancelled his scheduled appointments for the day except his meeting with the Security Council.

He directed Foreign Affairs Secretary Felixberto M. Serrano to represent him before the 7th Asian Peoples Anti-Communist League Conference held at the University of Santo Tomas.

President Garcia today reaffirmed his stand in the fight against communism in order to preserve the survival of freedom, civilization, and human rights in the Free World.

The President made the reaffirmation as he assured the Asian People's Anti-Communist League during its 7th conference at the UST's college of medicine, that the prestige and power of his office will support any scheme of defense against communism that may be evolved during its deliberations.

The Chief Executive, who was introduced by Rep. Cornelio T. Villareal of Capiz as a loyal friend of Asian peoples and a courageous fighter in the continued struggle for freedom and democracy in Asia, was represented by Foreign Affairs Secretary Felixberto Serrano, who read the President's speech.

President Garcia was later awarded a testimonial plaque for his "unstinted, unequivocal defense of freedom with justice against the forces of communism, not only in the Philippines but in Southeast Asia and the Pacific."

Others who received similar plaques were Cardinal Santos, Senator Dodd, and Chief Delegate Ku of the Republic of China.

United States Senator Thomas J. Dodd, who gave the keynote address, paid tribute to the late President Ramon Magsaysay under whose leadership, he said, “freedom had made its most significant victory over communism in the Philippines.”

Other speakers at the opening ceremonies were Rep. Ramon D. Bagatsing of Manila, APACL league council chairman and PACOM president, who gave the opening speech; Ku Cheng Kang, APACL immediate past chairman and chief delegate of the Republic of China; Rep. Inocencio V. Ferrer of Negros Occidental, who introduced Senator Dodd; and Rufino J. Cardinal Santos, who delivered the invocation.

Over 1,000 composed of members of the diplomatic corps, Armed Forces of the Philippines, and the general public, witnessed the opening ceremonies, besides the 44 delegates from 18 countries and 23 observers from six organizations.

Countries represented were Australia, Burma, Nationalist China, Hongkong, Iran, Japan, Jordan, Republic of Korea, New Zealand, Thailand, Turkey, and the Republic of Vietnam.

May 4 —PRESIDENT Garcia ignored the advice of his physician and stayed late last night up to early this morning presiding over the meeting of the National Security Council.

Dr Antonio Guytingco, the President’s personal physician, was seen fidgeting outside the War Room of Camp Murphy, as the security council conference which started at 9 last night extended up to almost 2 this morning.

The President’s physician told newsmen: “How can the President recover from his cold?”

But the Chief Executive waded through the discussion on the political and military aspects of the explosive Laotian crisis which blew hot and cold within 24 hours this day.

After a late night, the President stayed in bed until this morning. He cancelled all his scheduled appointments upon the advice of his physician.

However, he conferred with Executive Secretary Natalio P. Castillo and took up pending state papers.

Secretary Castillo brought up pending appointments, including those in the judiciary. However, up to press time this evening, no appointments were announced by Malacañang.

This evening the President received Press Secretary Jose C. Nable, who took up with the Chief Executive pending issues.

The President stayed the whole day today at the Palace.

President Garcia today ordered a full-dress investigation of a complaint that NARIC rice and corn grit, supposedly for sale at lower prices, are allegedly being channelled to hoarders and blackmarketeers in Cebu province, threatening to create a more acute shortage of the cereal in that area.

The Chief Executive, who showed signs of impatience over the alleged failure of the NARIC, police, and other government agencies assigned to curb the reportedly rampant hoarding and blackmarketing of the staple food said in a strongly worded directive to the PCAPE that he wants a thorough investigation of the charges so that the guilty parties, whether public officials or private businessmen, be prosecuted to the fullest “extent” of the law.

Justice Buenaventura Ocampo, PCAPE chairman, informed the Chief Executive that several provinces in the South sent similar complaints to the PCAPE. Among the provinces affected by the "shortage" are Negros Occidental, Negros Oriental, Iloilo, Capiz, Cebu, Samar, Leyte, Romblon, Zamboanga del Norte, Cotabato, Agusan, and Palawan.

A wire charging the NARIC agency in Cebu with channelling the cereal to hoarders and linking private businessmen to the irregularity was sent to the President by Ramon D. Abellanosa, former vice-mayor of the Cebu City.

In his wire to the President, Abellanosa said that the NARIC is conducting the distribution of the staple on a very limited scale allegedly to cover-up irregular transactions to the prejudice of thousands of consumers banking on cheap NARIC rice and corn grit for subsistence.

Abellanosa declared that he is ready to substantiate his charges and that he is willing to appear before any investigating body to discuss point by point the defects of the NARIC method of distribution in Cebu.

Abellanosa branded the system as "faulty" and "apparently designed to benefit a few businessmen rather than the population in general as envisioned by President Garcia."

May 5.—THIS morning the President received United States Ambassador John D. Hickerson, and later the executives of Lufthansa Aircraft Corporation who came to pay their respects before returning to Germany.

Ambassador Hickerson informed the President during his courtesy call that he was very much impressed by his recent trip to the South, which was both enlightening and eye-opening. The American ambassador said he was impressed by the economic potentialities as well as the rapid development of the southern islands, especially Mindanao.

The Lufthansa executives who are scheduled to leave tomorrow morning after attending the inauguration of their local office, expressed the hope that they could contribute to the economic progress of the Philippine and at the same time promote closer relations between their country and the Philippines.

The President expressed his gratitude for their decision to participate jointly with the Filipinos in the economic development of the country, and assured them that their venture would be mutually profitable.

The Lufthansa executives who called on the Chief Executive at Malacañang were Sakes Director and Mrs. J. Von Frankenberg, Far East Regional Director H. Bank, Far East Sales Development Manager C. Dehio, Advertising and Publicity Manager Mrs. Linde Lo; and President A. V. Rocha, Manager R. Altonaga and Treasurer John Rocha of Rocha and Company, local representatives of Lufthansa.

President Garcia appointed today Justice Querube C. Makalintal as Presiding Justice of the Court of Appeals.

The President also appointed Judges Juan P. Enriquez, Gustavo F. Victoriano, Jose S. Rodriguez, Manuel M. Mejia, Julio Villamor, and Natividad Almada Lopez as Associate Justices of the Court of Appeals.

Justice Makalintal is the most senior of the present justices in the court of appeals. He succeeds Presiding Justice Dionisio de Leon, who was promoted recently to the Supreme Court.

With the exception of Lopez, the other five newly appointed associate justices are at present judges of the court of first instance. Lopez is judge of the Juvenile and Domestic Relations Court.

Enriquez is judge of the court of first instance, branch 8, of Manila; Victoriano is judge of the court of first instance of Negros Occidental; Mejia is judge of the court of first instance of Bulacan; Rodriguez is district judge, fourth branch, of the court of first instance of Cebu; and Villamor is judge of the court of first instance of Manila.

The appointments of the presiding justice and six associate justices were immediately submitted to the Commission on Appointments for confirmation.

The President today ordered the release of ₱1 million from the public works fund for the construction of the Buntun bridge crossing the Cagayan River.

The construction of the bridge which will connect Cagayan with Mountain Province was promised by President Garcia during his visit to Cagayan last December and is in accordance with the road building program of the Administration.

Completion of the Buntun bridge will provide the people of the two provinces with easier and speedier means of transportation and is expected to develop more fully the social and commercial contacts between the two provinces.

An initial amount of ₱200,000 has already been released and the first construction phase of driving piles has started.

The President also ordered today Budget Commissioner Faustino Sy-Changco to release immediately the sum, of ₱50,000 from his contingent fund for the relief of the victims of the fire which hit barrio Paraiso in Fabrica, Negros Occidental, yesterday.

The directive for the release of the initial amount was given through Executive Secretary Natalio P. Castillo, following a report made by Gov. Valeriano M. Gatuslao and Rep. Vicente Gustillo of Negros Occidental.

The President also directed the Social Welfare Administration to extend all possible aid to the fire victims.

The six-hour fire razed to the ground the entire community of Paraiso, rendering some 10,000 persons homeless and destroying property estimated at ₱5 million. Paraiso is the trading center of northern Negros and is considered as “one of the tickest populated communities in the Philippines.”

May 6.—PRESIDENT Garcia spent this day studying some important bills which were brought to his Quezon City residence by Legislative Secretary Vicente Logarta for certification to Congress as urgent.

The Chief Executive went through the batch, together with Logarta. Later he received Malacañang Protocol Officer Minister Manuel Zamora to discuss the courtesy call of General Anastacio Somoza Debayle, chief of the Armed Forces of Nicaragua.

President Garcia today paid tribute to the “dauntless” spirit of Robert E. McCann, a China-born American businessman and a victim of communist tyranny and oppression in the China mainland, who died of cancer in Clark airforce base last Thursday.

In a letter extending his sympathies to McCann’s widow, the President expressed the hope “that his death will inspire all free men the world over.”

The Chief Executive, in giving praise to McCann, said that “though afflicted with incurable cancer, he beat the seemingly endless years, ten of them, and literally turned back the pendulum of human lifetime.

May 4 —PRESIDENT Garcia ignored the advice of his physician and stayed late last night up to early this morning presiding over the meeting of the National Security Council.

Dr Antonio Guytingco, the President's personal physician, was seen fidgeting outside the War Room of Camp Murphy, as the security council conference which started at 9 last night extended up to almost 2 this morning.

The President's physician told newsmen: "How can the President recover from his cold?"

But the Chief Executive waded through the discussion on the political and military aspects of the explosive Laotian crisis which blew hot and cold within 24 hours this day.

After a late night, the President stayed in bed until this morning. He cancelled all his scheduled appointments upon the advice of his physician.

However, he conferred with Executive Secretary Natalio P. Castillo and took up pending state papers.

Secretary Castillo brought up pending appointments, including those in the judiciary. However, up to press time this evening, no appointments were announced by Malacañang.

This evening the President received Press Secretary Jose C. Nable, who took up with the Chief Executive pending issues.

The President stayed the whole day today at the Palace.

President Garcia today ordered a full-dress investigation of a complaint that NARIC rice and corn grit, supposedly for sale at lower prices, are allegedly being channelled to hoarders and blackmarketeers in Cebu province, threatening to create a more acute shortage of the cereal in that area.

The Chief Executive, who showed signs of impatience over the alleged failure of the NARIC, police, and other government agencies assigned to curb the reportedly rampant hoarding and blackmarketing of the staple food said in a strongly worded directive to the PCAPE that he wants a thorough investigation of the charges so that the guilty parties, whether public officials or private businessmen, be prosecuted to the fullest "extent" of the law.

Justice Buenaventura Ocampo, PCAPE chairman, informed the Chief Executive that several provinces in the South sent similar complaints to the PCAPE. Among the provinces affected by the "shortage" are Negros Occidental, Negros Oriental, Iloilo, Capiz, Cebu, Samar, Leyte, Romblon, Zamboanga del Norte, Cotabato, Agusan, and Palawan.

A wire charging the NARIC agency in Cebu with channelling the cereal to hoarders and linking private businessmen to the irregularity was sent to the President by Ramon D. Abellanosa, former vice-mayor of the Cebu City.

In his wire to the President, Abellanosa said that the NARIC is conducting the distribution of the staple on a very limited scale allegedly to cover-up irregular transactions to the prejudice of thousands of consumers banking on cheap NARIC rice and corn grit for subsistence.

Abellanosa declared that he is ready to substantiate his charges and that he is willing to appear before any investigating body to discuss point by point the defects of the NARIC method of distribution in Cebu.

Abellanosa branded the system as "faulty" and "apparently designed to benefit a few businessmen rather than the population in general as envisioned by President Garcia."

May 5.—THIS morning the President received United States Ambassador John D. Hickerson, and later the executives of Lufthansa Aircraft Corporation who came to pay their respects before returning to Germany.

Ambassador Hickerson informed the President during his courtesy call that he was very much impressed by his recent trip to the South, which was both enlightening and eye-opening. The American ambassador said he was impressed by the economic potentialities as well as the rapid development of the southern islands, especially Mindanao.

The Lufthansa executives who are scheduled to leave tomorrow morning after attending the inauguration of their local office, expressed the hope that they could contribute to the economic progress of the Philippine and at the same time promote closer relations between their country and the Philippines.

The President expressed his gratitude for their decision to participate jointly with the Filipinos in the economic development of the country, and assured them that their venture would be mutually profitable.

The Lufthansa executives who called on the Chief Executive at Malacañang were Sakes Director and Mrs. J. Von Frankenberg, Far East Regional Director H. Bank, Far East Sales Development Manager C. Dehio, Advertising and Publicity Manager Mrs. Linde Lo; and President A. V. Rocha, Manager R. Altonaga and Treasurer John Rocha of Rocha and Company, local representatives of Lufthansa.

The President also appointed Judges Juan P. Enriquez, Gustavo F. Victoriano, Jose S. Rodriguez, Manuel M. Mejia, Julio Villamor, and Natividad Almada Lopez as Associate Justices of the Court of Appeals.

Justice Makalintal is the most senior of the present justices in the court of appeals. He succeeds Presiding Justice Dionisio de Leon, who was promoted recently to the Supreme Court.

With the exception of Lopez, the other five newly appointed associate justices are at present judges of the court of first instance. Lopez is judge of the Juvenile and Domestic Relations Court.

Enriquez is judge of the court of first instance, branch 8, of Manila; Victoriano is judge of the court of first instance of Negros Occidental; Mejia is judge of the court of first instance of Bulacan; Rodriguez is district judge, fourth branch, of the court of first instance of Cebu; and Villamor is judge of the court of first instance of Manila.

The appointments of the presiding justice and six associate justices were immediately submitted to the Commission on Appointments for confirmation.

The President today ordered the release of ₱1 million from the public works fund for the construction of the Buntun bridge crossing the Cagayan River.

The construction of the bridge which will connect Cagayan with Mountain Province was promised by President Garcia during his visit to Cagayan last December and is in accordance with the road building program of the Administration.

Completion of the Buntun bridge will provide the people of the two provinces with easier and speedier means of transportation and is expected to develop more fully the social and commercial contacts between the two provinces.

An initial amount of ₱200,000 has already been released and the first construction phase of driving piles has started.

The President also ordered today Budget Commissioner Faustino Sy-Changco to release immediately the sum, of ₱50,000 from his contingent fund for the relief of the victims of the fire which hit barrio Paraiso in Fabrica, Negros Occidental, yesterday.

The directive for the release of the initial amount was given through Executive Secretary Natalio P. Castillo, following a report made by Gov. Valeriano M. Gatuslao and Rep. Vicente Gustillo of Negros Occidental.

The President also directed the Social Welfare Administration to extend all possible aid to the fire victims.

The six-hour fire razed to the ground the entire community of Paraiso, rendering some 10,000 persons homeless and destroying property estimated at ₱5 million. Paraiso is the trading center of northern Negros and is considered as “one of the tickest populated communities in the Philippines.”

The Chief Executive went through the batch, together with Logarta. Later he received Malacañang Protocol Officer Minister Manuel Zamora to discuss the courtesy call of General Anastacio Somoza Debayle, chief of the Armed Forces of Nicaragua.

President Garcia today paid tribute to the “dauntless” spirit of Robert E. McCann, a China-born American businessman and a victim of communist tyranny and oppression in the China mainland, who died of cancer in Clark airforce base last Thursday.

In a letter extending his sympathies to McCann’s widow, the President expressed the hope “that his death will inspire all free men the world over.”

The Chief Executive, in giving praise to McCann, said that “though afflicted with incurable cancer, he beat the seemingly endless years, ten of them, and literally turned back the pendulum of human lifetime.

May 14.—PRESIDENT Garcia woke up early this morning for a third meeting with his house guest, Vice-President Lyndon Baines Johnson.

The Chief Executive had stayed late last night, having given a state dinner in honor of Vice-President and Mrs. Johnson, who arrived the other day for a 24-hour stay in Manila.

The President and Vice-President Johnson discussed the Southeast Asian situation and took note of increased Communist activities in this area. They also took up pending Philippine-American problems.

The President and the First Lady had breakfast with their guest, but President Garcia and Vice-President Johnson retired to the Malacañang study room to take up other Philippine-American problems, including the country's request for a permanent sugar quota in the U.S. market.

After their conference, their third talk since Johnson's arrival here Saturday, the President and the American Vice-President dictated a communique which they released shortly after the visiting U.S. official had left for Taipei.

The President stayed in his study room, while Johnson presided over a press-radio-TV conference.

President and Mrs. Garcia saw the Vice-President and Mrs. Johnson off from the Malacañang stairway.

President Garcia met newsmen after the departure of the Johnsons. He said that the Vice-President's speech before the joint session of Congress was "encouraging."

The President told newsmen he was not attending the Nacionalista Party executive committee meeting, as the list of delegates had already been approved by Senate President Eulogio Rodriguez.

He wanted to give the NP executive committee members a free hand in dealing with his reply to Rodriguez' latest version of his "White Paper."

The President and the First Lady later heard a late mass in Malacañang. The Chief Executive later motored to his private residence in Quezon City, where he rested and waited for the outcome of the NP executive committee meeting.

The President this day made another bid to keep down prices of prime commodities by requesting Congress to increase the operating capital of the National Marketing Corporation from ₱2 million to ₱3 million.

Earlier last week, the President, cognizant of the serious threat posed by rising prices, sought revival of R. A. 2610, which expired last December, authorizing him to fix ceiling prices of prime commodities, to; impose penalties on profiteers, and to import rice, corn, and other commodities in short supplies.

In certifying to the urgency of H. B. 6162 (S. 752), increasing the operating capital of the NAMARCO from ₱2 million to ₱3 million, the President said that the state corporation has been very successful in stabilizing prices and discouraging price manipulators and profiteers.

Approval of the bill would enable the NAMARCO to set up principal warehousing centers in Northern, Central, and Southern Luzon, as well as the Visayas and Mindanao. In this way, the President said, the NAMARCO can keep prime commodities readily available to the wage-earners and the barrio people who are the most adversely affected by the upward trend in prices.

The President today stayed aboard the yacht RPS Lapu-Lapu where he went over pending bills needing his certification before they could be taken up by Congress during its last week of session.

The President enjoined the auditors to join, the crusade to rid the government of the pernicious practices of a few who are destroying in the public mind the beneficial results of the honest labors of the conscientious public servants.

“In a democracy like ours, no man, however powerful or well-intentioned can carry the fight alone and hope to succeed,” the President said, but working together, joining our efforts, and pooling our strength and resources, I know we cannot fail”

“You are expected to owe no allegiance to any political party and, with the exception of the Auditor General, to owe no loyalty to any man or group of men, but in conscience to do your best the best way you can and as you see it,” the President continued.

Present at the opening ceremonies were some three hundred government auditors from all over the Philippines.

May 16.—PRESIDENT Garcia stayed for the second consecutive day aboard the RPS Lapu-Lapu, where he went over pending measures requiring his certification before they could be taken up by Congress on the last three days of its regular session.

The President boarded the yacht Sunday evening and has since received very few callers aboard the boat.

The President received R. Sargent Shriver, director of the Peace Corps, who arrived the other day on a tour of Asian countries. Shriver is the brother-in-law of U.S. President John F. Kennedy.

President Garcia today welcomed the assistance being tendered by President Kennedy's Peace Corps to strengthen further the efforts of the Administration in community development.

Referring to the Peace Corps plan, the President said, “It is good.” He added that this project would be a contribution in strengthening the fabric of democracy by helping in the fields of education and rural community development.

The President made this statement after his hour-long conference with Shriver, who called on the President this morning aboard the RPS Lapu-Lapu in Manila Bay.

During the conference Director Shriver expressed optimism over the success of the educational phase of the program, owing to the favorable reaction of Filipino officials and barrio folks whom he had contacted during his recent trip to Albay where the first Peace Corps teams will operate Shriver also informed the President that he was highly impressed by the progress of rural development in the Philippines.

The President told Shriver that the success of rural development in the Philippines is due to a large extent to the people's spirit of self-help and the efforts of the Presidential Assistant on Community Development. Under the self-help program, the President said, the barrio people willingly furnish the labor in the construction of communal irrigation projects and feeder roads, while the government provides the materials.

The President also expressed approval of the plan to utilize movie, television, and radio in the Peace Corps educational program. He said he has been advocating the use of such media in adult education, and believed firmly that it will succeed.

Under the educational phase of the program, the Peace Corps will accept volunteers from among college graduates to serve in the Philippines beginning next year as aides in rural elementary schools, for the purpose of improving instruction, particularly English.

Some 300 Peace Corps aides will be sent to the Philippines after undergoing a three-month training abroad in the culture customs, religion and traditions of the Filipino people among, whom they will live and work.

Director Shriver, who left for home this afternoon, informed the President that his aides will stay in the Philippines to; prepare the groundwork for the program.

Williams, who was 71 on his death, has long been identified with education in the Philippines, having come to this country as a school teacher in 1925.

May 17.—PRESIDENT Garcia today directed budget Commissioner Faustino Sy-Changco to release immediately ₱5 million to finance the coconut industry in the Philippines.

The amount will be placed immediately at the disposal of the Development Bank of the Philippines, which in turn will liberalize and make available easy credit to coconut farmers, producers, and processors.

The sum of ₱2.5 million will be earmarked by the government- bank exclusively to individual coconut farmers for farm improvement purposes, but not to exceed ₱2,000 each loan.

The remaining ₱2.5 million is set aside by the bank which will make it available to corporations and associations of coconut farmers, producers, and processors.

Republic Act 2282 earmarks a total of ₱30 million for the coconut industry in the Philippines. The appropriation is raised from the bond issue, fund.

The Chief Executive issued the directive to the PC APE following a conference with Executive Secretary Natalio P. Castillo, who briefed him on six cases of violence in Negros Occidental involving sugar-cane plantation laborers on one hand, and the police forces on the other who are allegedly harassing and mauling plantation workers.

The President was irked by a report that 30 Sacadas on an Hacienda in Cadiz town were allegedly beaten-up and arbitrarily jailed on “trumped up” charges.

The President directed the PCAPE and the Philippine Constabulary to investigate immediately the charges and file the necessary criminal and/or administrative complaint against the police officers, as well as all person linked in the alleged anomaly.

At the Cabinet meeting this afternoon, the President discussed the recommendations of a legislative-executive committee which he had created to study how prices of prime commodities could be stabilized.

The President said the committee recommended the following:

1. The restoration of the emergency powers of the President;
2. The importation of rice to deter hoarding and speculation of staple; and;
3. The importation by the National Marketing Corporation of enough prime commodities to bring down prices.

The President reiterated his desire that he be given back the standby powers to control prices which was given him by Congress but expired last December.

Under that law, the President was authorized to fix the ceiling prices of prime commodities, to authorize the importation of such commodities tax free, and to confiscate hoarded commodities.

The law also provided stiff penalties for violators.

The President said he needed those powers now that prices had gone up. He expressed the fear that unless the trend was stopped, basic necessities would go beyond the reach of the masses.

The President also created a Cabinet committee to make a study of the needs for the development of Mindanao in which the United States could help.

The recommendations of this committee, he said, would be incorporated in the memorandum he would sent to U.S. President Kennedy, who had asked how the U.S. could help in the development of Mindanao.

The American leader had made the inquiry through Vice-President Lyndon Johnson, who paid a one-day state visit here last Saturday.

The committee created by the President is composed of Dr. Jose C. Locsin, chairman of the National Economic Council, chairman; and Agriculture Secretary Cesar Fortich and Public Works Secretary Florencio Moreno, members.

The President asked all the other Cabinet members to submit their own recommendations for possible incorporation in the memorandum for Kennedy.

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

May 21.—PRESIDENT Garcia today directed Social Welfare Administrator Amparo Villamor to extend immediate relief to some 1,000 families of laborers and vendors who had been rendered jobless as a result of the devastating fire which razed four blocks of business establishments in Binondo last Friday.

The President issued the directive on receipt of a written report from the SWA administrator who undertook a survey of the extent of destruction wrought by the recent conflagration.

On orders of the President, two emergency teams of social workers set up headquarters at the ground floor of a building spared by the fire on Folgueras corner M. de Santos Street to attend on a round the clock basis to fire sufferers. The SWA, however, found difficulties in contacting the fire victims as most of them have homes in the suburbs and come only to the area to work.

Mrs. Villamor informed the President that some 2,000 stores and other big business establishments had been levelled to the ground. She estimated that more than 1,000 families of Filipino workers had been directly affected with the loss of their means of livelihood.

Early this morning the President heard mass at his Bohol Avenue residence in Quezon City. Also at the mass were Mrs. Garcia, Maj. Jose Estrella, junior military aide, and members of the household.

The Chief Executive spent the day quietly at his private residence working on some papers he had brought over from; Malacañang. He did not receive any caller.

May 22.—PRESIDENT Garcia today discussed with officials of the Committee for American Relief Everywhere (CARE) and members of the Presidential Committee on Rural Information and Education the distribution of more CARE radios to the rural areas in order to fight subversive propaganda and to enlighten and inform the barrio people.

The President was informed by Robert Linder, local CARE chairman, and Defense Undersecretary Mariano Yenke, chairman of the presidential committee, that CARE radios have been distributed already to 1,591 barrios. They emphasized that the goal is to have a radio each in the more than 19,000 barrios of the Philippines.

The conferees evolved plans for the third allocation of 1,000 CARE radios which will soon be delivered to the presidential committee.

The President took the opportunity to express his gratitude to the American people for the donation of the radios which were promised him during his state visit to the United States.

Also present at the conference were Kenneth Schneider, CARE overseas supervisor, PCRIE Vice-Chairman Bernardo G. Silverio, Executive Director Carlos F. Nivera, and Maj. Fajardo Dua.

Meanwhile, President Garcia discussed with Dr. Andres Castillo, acting governor of the Central Bank, the problem of the deferred payments on all imports. They scheduled another conference before the end of the month to decide finally on the ratio of payments.

Castillo explained that to give producers of capital goods who brought equipment and machineries under the deferred payment plan the ₱2 to $1 ratio would practically wipe out the foreign exchange reserves of the Central Bank.

Other callers were Dra. Rafaelita Soriano, Minister Guillermo Sison of the Department of Foreign Affairs, Dr. Maracio Zafra, and Dr. Damaso Samonte,

This afternoon the President administered the oath of office to the newly-appointed presiding justice and three associate justices of the Court of Appeals before a large crowd at the Malacañang reception hall. Inducted by the President were Presiding Justice Querube C. Makalintal and Associate Justices Juan P. Enriquez, Manuel M. Mejia, and Julio Villamor.

In a brief conference following the induction ceremonies, the President told the inductees to mete out justice without fear or favor but with equity and fairness.

The oath-taking ceremonies were witnessed by one of the largest crowds ever assembled in Malacañang to witness such occasions, composed of high government officials, members of the judiciary, representatives of civic organizations, close relatives, and friends of the inductees.

Later in the afternoon the President received Vice-Mayor Mario Ortiz and three members of the City Council of Cebu, who requested approval of H. 5884 and H. 5653, both of which had already been passed by both Houses of Congress.

H. 5884 seeks to change the name “Aveliana Vocational High School” to “Aveliana National High School” in order to permit the admission of students taking general courses in preparation for higher education.

H. 5653 seeks to update the Cebu City charter by providing for separate superintendent of schools, city engineer, and additional judges and fiscals.

Those who called on the president included Cebu City Councilors Juan C. Zamora, Luis Diores, and Florencio Urot; and Carolino Gandiongco, president of La Suerte Club.

May 23.—THIS morning the President discussed ways and means to improve the peace and order situation in Ilocos Sur in an hour long conference with Rep. Faustino Tobia at Malacañang.

One of the remedies discussed at the conference was the disbandment of armed civilian bodyguards of the candidates for Congress regardless of party affiliations.

Rep. Tobia suggested that instead of civilian bodyguards, the Armed Forces of the Philippines assign AFP personnel to insure protection to all candidates in order to avert any untoward incidents up to election time.

“I would like to insure a clean, orderly, and peaceful election in that province,” President Garcia stated.

Rep. Tobia informed the President that since the 1957 elections, he had lost more than 200 leaders through violence, blaming politics for their deaths.

By presidential directive, the Department of National Defense was adding more troops to preserve peace and order in Ilocos Sur.

The President also received Rep. Nicanor Eñiguez of Leyte del Sur and a delegation from Sugod Bay and Panaon. He directed Budget Commissioner Faustino Sy-Changco to implement immediately the Sugod Bay Emergency Hospital project at a cost of ₱60,000.

Other presidential callers this morning were Judge Demetrio Vinzon of Leyte, Severo Asuncion, and Rep. Gaudencio Abordo, who accompanied a delegation of Palawan municipal officials to urge implementation of several projects in their respective municipalities.

President Garcia was informed today of the mass defection from the Liberal Party into the Nacionalista fold of two large political groups in Zamboanga del Sur and Cotabato.

The Savillano-Nadila-Singano faction in Zamboanga del Sur with 8,000 electoral members, which supported the Liberal Party during the last elections, have formally affiliated with the Garcia Reelection Movement in that province.

This evening the President and Mrs. Garcia motored to the private residence of Finance Secretary Dominador R. Aytona to felicitate the latter on the occasion of his 43rd birthday.

Earlier the President clarified his press statement to the Associated Press that he was leaving the choice of the vice-presidential nominee to the Nacionalista Party convention.

This was to assuage the ruffled feelings of other vice-presidential aspirants after the President was quoted by the "AP" that he believes that Secretary Aytona and Senator Gil J. Puyat were the two strongest contenders for the NP vice-presidential nomination.

May 24.—PRESIDENT and Mrs. Garcia today were swamped with messages of congratulations coming from friends and relatives from all parts of the country on the occasion of their 28th wedding anniversary.

Well-wishers flocked to Malacañang to extend their congratulations personally to the First Couple of the land.

The simple celebration started with mass at the Malacañang chapel, with President and Mrs. Garcia receiving Holy Communion, following an old Filipino customs. Then followed breakfast at the family dining hall, where the President presented Mrs. Garcia with a gift consisting of a chain of amethyst and gold.

Officials of the Filoil Refinery Corporation and their ladies, and Gulf Oil officials in the Far East and the Philippines were also invited.

The guest list included Filemon Rodriguez, Mr. and Mrs. Ramon V. del Rosario, Mr. and Mrs. Carlos Palanca, Jr., and Herb Goodman, James Lee.

This afternoon the Cabinet directed the National Economic Council to "review" its position on the rice supply in the country and see if it could certify to the lack of the commodity.

The order was decided upon after President Garcia informed the Cabinet that he had been receiving "many and insistent" suggestions to import rice to curb the rising price of the staple.

At the last Cabinet meeting, a special legislative-executive committee headed by Sen. Gil Puyat had urged the importation of rice to bring down the price of the commodity. But the N.E.C. put its foot down on the proposal.

Under the provisions of Republic Act 2207, rice may be imported only if the N.E.C. certified to the existence of an actual or an impending shortage.

The Cabinet asked the N.E.C. to meet today to review its data on the rice supply. It directed the Council to make its report today, if possible, before the President leaves for Talibon, Bohol.

If this was not possible, the Cabinet told the N.E.C., the report should be submitted to the President upon his return early next week.

The Cabinet asked the council to go anew over the supply, the surplus from last year's harvest, and the rice requirement.

May 25.—PRESIDENT Garcia this morning directed Budget Commissioner Faustino Sy-Changco to release immediately the sum of ₱40,000 from his contingent funds for the relief of the victims of calamities in Manila and four provinces.

The directive was given by the Chief Executive through Executive Secretary Natalio P. Castillo in Malacañang shortly before he and the First Lady boarded the RPS Lapu-Lapu for Bohol to attend the annual fiesta of Talibon, the President's hometown.

The bulk of the aid in the amount of ₱20,000 will be for the victims of the fire which gutted four blocks of commercial establishments and residential houses in Binondo, Manila, on May 19.

The release of the other sum of ₱20,000 was ordered by the President after representations made by Social Welfare Administrator Amparo Villamor for the relief of the fire and starvation victims in Antique, Aklan, Lanao del Norte, and Negros Occidental.

Earlier this morning, President Garcia was informed by Sen. Alejandro Almendras that Rep. Fausto Dugenio was proclaimed official candidate of the Nacionalista Party for the lone congressional seat of Misamis Oriental.

The Senator from Davao, who was the keynote speaker at the provincial NP convention held yesterday, also informed President Garcia that 19 out of the 23 municipal mayors had pledged to support the Chief Executive's reelection bid.

The President administered the oath of affiliation as card-bearing members of the Nacionalista Party to Lt. Col. Felicisimo D. Reyta of the Antipolo Veterans Legion and to Sofronio M. Sian, director of the Cereal Millers Association for President Garcia's Reelection, in the presence of Maj. Francisco Datol and Gregorio E. Cruz, Jr.

The President today designated the period from June 1 to July 15 for the 13th annual educational and fund campaign of the Community Chest.

In issuing the proclamation the President called on the people to support the campaign and to give generously to the Community Chest which unites into one annual appeal the fund campaigns of the following civic organizations: Abiertas House of Friendship, American-Philippine Guardian, Asilo de Sen Vicente de Paul, Asociacion de Damas Filipinas, Catholic Youth Organization, Council of Welfare Agencies, Free Legal Aid Clinic, Girl Scouts of the Philippines, Good Shephard Convent, La Proteccion de la Infancia, National Federation of Women's Clubs, Free Medical Clinics, Philippine Association of the Deaf, Philippine Band of Mercy, Philippine Mental Health Association, Young Men's Christian Association, and the Young Women's Christian Association.

The President authorized all government officials and employees, including school authorities and teachers, to accept contributions for the Community Chest and urged them to give the campaign full support and dedicated leadership in their respective communities.

President Garcia also created today a national committee that will take charge of the 15th anniversary celebration of Philippine Independence this coming July 4.

The committee which will formulate plans and devise ways and means, as well as prepare the program for this year's celebration, will have the Education Secretary as chairman and the Secretary of National Defense as vice-chairman.

For the purpose of discharging its functions, the committee was empowered to create such sub-committees as may be necessary.

Designated members of the committee are the following:

The Secretaries of Labor and Health, the Administrator of Economic Coordination, the Commissioner on Tourism, the Presidential Press Secretary, the Governor of the Central Bank, the Chairman of the Development Bank of the Philippines; the presidents of the Philippine National Bank, Philippine Association of Colleges and Universities, Chamber of Commerce of the Philippines, Philippine Chamber of Industries, Chamber of Agriculture and Natural Resources, Bankers Association of the Philippines, Manila Rotary Club, Manila Junior Chamber of Commerce, Lions Club of Manila, National Press Club of the Philippines, Civic Assembly of Women of the Philippines; the National Commander of the Veterans Federation of the Philippines, and the Cabinet Secretary, who will also act as secretary of the committee.

May 26.—PRESIDENT and Mrs. Garcia arrived in Talibon, Bohol, this afternoon to pay their annual traditional homage to Santa Purisima Trinidad, the town's patron saint, on the occasion of the fiesta of Talibon, President Garcia's hometown.

The Chief Executive pays homage to the saint every year during the town fiesta. So far he has missed fulfilling his vow only once, when he was attending the Geneva conference as vice-president and foreign affairs secretary.

The President and the First Lady, with children Mr. and Mrs. Fernando Campos, together with Gen. Manuel F. Cabal and a party of Manila newspapermen, arrived at Talibon at 4:30 p.m. after a rough uneventful journey aboard RPS Lapu-Lapu.

Two kilometers offshore, the party was met by colorful fluvial parade, while at the wharf townsfolk who had gathered en masse, led by Rep. and Mrs. Maximino Garcia and Mayor and Mrs. Lazaro Ibardo, gave the favorite son a rousing welcome.

From the pier President Garcia proceeded to church to hear mass after which he attended the procession around the town.

In the evening the President and the First Lady were dinner guests of Rep. and Mrs. Garcia.

This morning President Garcia had a chance to chat with newsmen aboard the Lapu-Lapu. He spent two hours talking about the coming convention with them.

May 27.—THIS morning the President, the First Lady, their daughter Linda, and her husband Fernando Campos, heard a pontifical mass said by Bishop Manuel Mascarinas of Tagbilaran assisted by parish priests of neighboring towns.

After the mass the family had breakfast at the Talibon convent from which the President proceeded to the Talibon town hall to address the seminar of Bohol police chiefs.

President Garcia renewed his appeal for free and clean elections before 35 chiefs of police of Bohol at the Talibon town hall.

The President also appealed to the police chiefs to wage an information drive against illegal fishing, and to set up units to guard fishing grounds.

The President had lunch at the house of Mayor Evardos of Talibon where he met old acquaintances.

The President with the First Lady later visited his 96-year-old uncle, Alipio Garcia, at the Talibon Emergency Hospital before boarding the Lapu-Lapu for Manila. The yacht left Talibon at 3 o'clock this afternoon.

Since he was informed of the latest political developments in the morning, the President has appeared unperturbed by reports that Senate President Rodriguez, his NP political rival, would release another expose on graft and corruption preparatory to holding a rump convention to nominate him (Amang) as presidential candidate.

Official Week in Review: May 28 – June 2, 1961

May 28.—PRESIDENT Garcia returned at four o'clock this afternoon from a four-day trip to his hometown of Talibon, Bohol, where he attended the annual town fiesta.

The Chief Executive visits his hometown every year during its town fiesta where he dances the Visayan guaracha at the public auditorium, which is also the public market.

The President was accompanied by the First Lady and his daughter, Mrs. Linda Campos, his son-in-law, Fernando Campos, and his only granddaughter, Maricar Campos.

President Garcia was met by a large crowd at the Talibon wharf by his townspeople.

In the course of his four-day trip, the President went over pending state papers at his suite aboard the yacht RPS Lapu-Lapu.

He also conferred with Lt. Gen. Manuel Cabal, chief of staff of the Armed Forces, and Brig. Gen. Isagani V. Campo, chief of the Constabulary. The President and the Army brass took up the problems of peace and order. Campo reported on the Constabulary investigation in connection with the ambush of Mrs. Floro Crisologo in Ilocos Sur.

The President directed Campo to take all necessary measures to prevent the Crisologo ambush from starting a series of political violence in the province.

Before debarking from the presidential yacht, the President met newsmen who had accompanied him to Talibon, Bohol, and gave a brief informal press interview. He took up the new blast of Senate President Eulogio Rodriguez, his chief rival for the Nacionalista presidential nomination.

The President showed exasperation over Rodriguez's attacks and indicated he was ready for a showdown with the Senate President.

From the yacht, the President and the First Lady motored to Malacañang.

May 29.—PRESIDENT Garcia today congratulated a group of Filipino investors for their boldness and foresight in taking over the ownership of the Manila Electric Co. (Meralco) and emphasized that this transaction "is the signal triumph of Filipino First policy" of the Administration.

The President also took the occasion to assure foreign investors that the Meralco's changing ownership is a positive example of the Administration's policy that the government will continue "to dispense fair, just, and constitutional treatment to foreign interest and investment."

He emphasized that, unlike other countries, the Philippines will not resort to confiscatory measures in taking over ownership of foreign controlled business interests.

"This will not happen as long as I hold this position," President Garcia stressed.

In congratulating the new owners, headed by Eugenio Lopez, the President expressed hope that the Meralco under the new management will bring greater benefits and afford better service to the people.

The President also expressed elation over a statement issued by A. F. Tegen, president of the General Public Utilities Corporation of New York, in New York saying that economic conditions in the Philippines warrant the ownership and operation of the public utility by Filipinos themselves.

Tegen was also quoted by wire services as saying that the GPUC was withdrawing from the Philippines “reluctantly” to further the development of its subsidiaries in the United States because it recognized the importance to the Philippines of Filipino ownership of the Meralco, which was the biggest public utility owned by the Americans.

The Filipino businessmen who negotiated the $46 million deal under which dollar payment will be made over a number of years, thanked the President for his encouragement and support which greatly facilitated the success of the negotiations.

They informed President Garcia that voluntary withdrawal of the GPUC from the Philippines belied the claim of certain quarters that the “Filipino First” policy was anti-American and anti-foreigner.

They assured the President that the Meralco will be under the new management after all formalities have been finished by June 30 this year.

The incorporators of the new management, the Meralco Securities Corporation, who called on the President, besides Lopez, are Salvador Araneta, Dr. Jose Soriano, Juan J. Carlos, Emilio Gonzales Lao, Jose Y. Orosa, Roberto Villanueva, Ricardo Ledesma, Ernesto Rufino, Mrs. Josephine Cojuangco, Generoso Tanseco, Mrs. D. C. Teodoro, Bobby Benedicto, and Antonio Delgado.

The President this morning received Harold Hartog, a director of Unilever, who paid his respects to the Chief Executive before leaving on May 31 after a successful two-week business survey in the country.

Hartog expressed confidence in the stability and soundness of the local economy and informed the President that the Philippine Refining Company, a Unilever subsidiary, will expand operations.

Unilever, a Dutch company, owns 450 corporations spread all over the world outside the Iron Curtain. It ranks sixth among the biggest international corporations, and the second biggest outside the United States.

Hartog was accompanied to Malacañang by officials of Philippine Refining, among them, W. R. Galbraith, president, and A. Ponce Enrile, Filipino director.

Earlier this morning the President received Ambassador Carlos P. Romulo, who arrived in Manila at 6 o’clock this morning to be the keynote speaker at the June 3 convention of the Nacionalista Party.

Romulo said he rushed to Malacañang to pay a call on the Chief Executive immediately upon landing at the airport. Romulo reported to the President on the status of pending P.I.-U.S. problems.

President Garcia also huddled briefly with Virginia Yaptinchay, special assistant to the Central Bank governor in charge of the import department.

The President this evening conferred with members of the Monetary Board. Those who saw the President were Gov. Andres V. Castillo, Finance Secretary Dominador Aytona, Chairman Gregorio Licaros of the Development Bank of the Philippines, President Eduardo Z. Romualdez of the Philippine National Bank, Marcelo Balatbat, and Mariano Peñaflores.

There will be no full decontrol or acceleration of the decontrol program this year.

This was the decision of President Garcia and monetary authorities after a three-hour meeting in Malacañang this evening.

There will be no change in the present exchange rates “until and after all the necessary measures (to the decontrol program) have been enacted by Congress,” it was further announced.

May 30.—THIS morning President Garcia ordered Justice Secretary Alejo Mabanag to expedite the filing and trial of a murder case which had been allegedly committed in Tubod, Lanao del Sur, in 1955 but which up to now has not been filed in court.

Apparently irked by the delay in bringing the culprits to justice, the President upon petition of one of the victims, Diego Palomares, told the justice secretary “to set the machinery of justice in motion by filing the complaint immediately and expediting trial which had been delayed for almost six years.”

Palomares was with the 100-man delegation from Lanao del Sur which called at Malacañang to pledge unqualified support to the President and whoever may be chosen as his running mate in the June 3 convention. The delegation was headed by Rep. Laurentino Badelles and former Gov. Salvador Lluch.

Rep. Badelles informed the President that although the double-murder, in which four others were seriously wounded, had been allegedly committed in 1955, no complaint had been filed up to the present, and that the criminals were still at large.

They also informed the President that last year when an attempt was made to prosecute the case, the fiscal and his party were ambushed by unknown persons believed to be members of the special police of the incumbent governor.

Others in the delegation were Ex-Mayor Mariano Badelles and Vice-Mayor Emilio Alquezar of Iligan City, Mayors Miguel Canoy of Linamon, Nolan Antonio of Bacolod, Crispin Bancauil of Maigao, Fortunato Sumontan of Kolambugan, Gregorio Dayak of Baroy, Gumampong Ali of Bateo, Bernardo Nietes of Capatagan, Abadiano of Salvador, Maguirang Patauran of Pantawaragat, and other NP delegates and leaders from Lanao del Sur.

Earlier this morning the President received Rear Admiral David J. Welsh, newly appointed commander of U.S. naval forces in the Philippines, vice Rear Admiral Joseph M. Carson.

Admiral Welsh was accompanied to Malacañang by Admiral Carson, who is leaving for home assignment on Saturday; United States Ambassador John D. Hickerson; and Lt. G. S. Phillips, aide and flag lieutenant.

President Garcia’s bid for re-election gained further strength when the Rizal Federation of Barrio Councils of Rizal province pledged its support in a resolution passed during a meeting of the federation at the old Selecta on Recto Avenue (Azcarraga) this noon.

In endorsing the re-election bid of President Garcia, the federation observed that since the beginning of his administration, numerous benefits have been extended to the rural areas through his community development programs.

The federation further took cognizance of the fact that under the present administration, the rural autonomy has been given greater impetus, culminating with the passage of the Local Autonomy Act.

Gov. Esteban Bernido received the resolution on behalf of the Chief Executive.

During the affair, some 24 barrio representatives to the federation led by Salvador Morales of Caloocan, president of the federation, took their oath of allegiance to the President before Gov. Bernido.

Also present during the affair were Surigao Gov. Constantino C. Navarro and Salvador Buazon, former national vice-president of the Barrio Lieutenants Association of the Philippines (BLAP).

May 31.—PRESIDENT Garcia today underscored the importance of implementing the development program for Mindanao during the present decade ending in 1970, as approved by the Nacionalista administration in a keynote speech delivered at a testimonial dinner given in a Quezon City restaurant by the Philippine Better Roads Association in honor of the district and city engineers.

To start the Mindanao development program, the President stated that the Nacionalista dominated Congress had approved during its recent regular session an appropriation of P300 million. He said that the bill approved by Congress authorizes him to create a body to study further the development of Mindanao.

The President pointed out that he took up the Mindanao development program with U. S. Vice-President Johnson during latter's recent stay in Manila, and received the assurance of the visiting American official that the matter would be brought immediately to the attention of President Kennedy.

The President also stated that the present decade will witness the start of the road cementing program of the Administration for which purpose Congress authorized an appropriation of P60 million. He took the opportunity to laud Congress for increasing the appropriation for the road cementing program which will enable the government to construct 600 kilometers of cement roads throughout the country.

Congress responded favorably to the program of road cementing that it increased the original request of the President for an appropriation of P35 million to P60 million, realizing the importance of the program.

The Mindanao development program envisions the exploitation of its rich natural resources, especially the Surigao laterite deposits, the Zamboanga iron deposits, among others, which will tremendously boost the national economy, the President said.

He added that the Nacionalista administration has quadrupled the LP record in road construction since it took over the reins of government and pointed out that the NPs will take up this achievement as one of the issues it will cite to the electorate during the political campaign.

In this respect, he said that there Would be no better spokesman for the NPs than Secretary Florencio Moreno of Public Works if he is picked out at the coming national convention as one of the NP Senate bets.

The President lauded the work done by the engineers in the work of reconstruction of the country from ruins caused by the last war, which has impressed visitors.

Before delivering his speech, the President signed House Bill No. 4035, which authorizes the payment of additional compensation to highway division engineers, highway district engineers, and city engineers as division engineers, ex officio district engineers, and city engineers of the Bureau of Public Work respectively.

The President was asked to give a plaque to Secretary Moreno for outstanding performance, and citations to the following: Nicolas Aldana, district engineer of the year; Dominador Ermitaño, special citation; Benjamin Limbaga, city engineer of the year; and Salvador Villacorta, special citation.

Earlier this morning, the President received Sen. Lorenzo M. Tañada, head of the Nationalist-Citizens Party.

Tañada's call on the President gave rise to political speculation that the Senator may be drafted as a "dark horse" in the vice-presidential race of the Nacionalista Party.

This afternoon the President presided over the regular meeting of the Cabinet in his usual calm despite the raging political storm which threatens to divide the ruling Nacionalista Party.

Undaunted by partisan intrigues attributed to followers of Senate President Eulogio Rodriguez, President Garcia took up with the members of his Cabinet the proposed importation of 100,000 metric tons of rice. The importation is expected to lower the cost of the vital cereal.

President Garcia has expressed concern over the spiraling prices of the staple grain and had asked the National Economic Council to review the rice situation to facilitate the importation of the cereal.

Under the law, no importation of rice could be made unless the NEC has certified to the shortage of the local stocks.

Before presiding over the Cabinet meeting, the President addressed the members of the Philippine Better Roads Association, underscoring the importance of implementing the development program for Mindanao.

The President motored to Quezon City where the testimonial dinner was held.

June 1.—PRESIDENT Garcia today exuded confidence and optimism as delegates to the Nacionalista Party convention on June 3 continued to flock to Malacañang to renew pledges of unqualified support.

In expressing his gratitude to the various delegates for their support, the Chief Executive urged them to vote for a winning team so that the party's program for the welfare of the masses can continue unimpeded.

Before receiving the delegates who came to pledge their votes and assure him victory at the convention and in the November elections, the President held closed door conferences with Senate Majority Floor Leader Cipriano Primicias and Finance Secretary Dominador Aytona.

The President also received Senate President Protempore Fernando Lopez, who paid his respects to the Chief Executive following his recent arrival from abroad. Sen. Lopez was accompanied by Rep. Domitilo Abordo and former Gov. Mariano Peñaflorida of Iloilo.

The President later administered the oaths of affiliation with the Nacionalista Party to Benjamin Ibañez and Deogracias M. Parcoris of Siniloan, Laguna. The two former Liberals took their oaths in the presence of Rep. Wenceslao R. Lagumbay and Laguna delegates to the NP convention.

Among those who pledged their votes to the President were ten Manila councilors and their 40 delegates to the NP convention, including Councilors Ernesto Maceda, Francis Yuseco, Alfredo Gomez, Pablo Ocampo, Francisco Gatmaitan, Gonzalo S. Rivera, Eriberto Remigio, Vicente Cruz, Felicísimo Cabigao, and Apolonio Gener.

A 30-man delegation from La Union, headed by Rep. Francisco Ortega, former Govs. Bernardo Gapuz and Joaquin Ortega, and NP congressional candidate Jose D. Aspiras also pledged solid support to the President.

Other delegations who saw the President were (1) a 20-man delegation from Agusan province headed by Rep. Guillermo Sanchez and Governor D. O. Plaza; (2) Samar delegates headed by Reps. Eladio T. Balite, Valeriano Yancha, and Felipe Abrigo, mostly compose of municipal mayors and councilors; and (3) a Leyte delegation headed by Rep. Marcelino Veloso, Lt. Gov. Uldarico Reyes of Biliran, and CEPOC Director Sofronio Veloso.

Owing to the large number of callers, the President stayed at his study up to 2 p.m.

President Garcia today took up possible last-ditch rapprochement with Senate President Eulogio Rodriguez, who is veering away from the Nacionalista Party.

Senate Majority Floor Leader Cipriano P. Primicias conferred this morning with the President behind closed doors giving rise to political speculations that the Pangasinan senator was working on a plan to bring the President and Amang together to avert a schism within the majority party.

Rodriguez had threatened to boycott the NP convention which may precipitate his expulsion from the party or his ouster as president of the NP and the Senate.

No details were immediately available from Malacañang sources on the outcome of the talks. However, the President was agreeable to meet the Senate President for a final amity meeting.

This afternoon the President inducted into office newly appointed Justice Gustavo Victoriano of the Court of Appeals. Victoriano was one of four judges of the court of first instance promoted to the Court of Appeals.

President Garcia also received Indian Ambassador Sankar Maitra, who paid a courtesy call on the Chief Executive.

Sen. Eulogio Balao brought a group of delegates from Cagayan to pledge their support to the President.

Agriculture Secretary Cesar Fortich also led delegates to the Chief Executive. In the delegation were Board Member Jesus Neri and Councilor Pio Roa of Cagayan de Oro.

Ambassador Carlos P. Romulo also conferred with the President, who presumably went over the envoy's keynote speech for the NP convention Saturday morning.

The President this day appealed to government agencies, provincial and municipal officials, business and commercial firms, employees and other citizens, and all residents of the Philippines to give their utmost support to this year's educational and fund campaign of the Community Chest of Greater Manila.

In a message read by Executive Secretary Natalio P. Castillo during the kick-off ceremony of the 13th annual fund campaign of the CCGM held at the Malacañang social hall this afternoon the President stressed the need for concerted effort "towards meeting the cost of broken homes, delinquency, crimes, poverty, and sickness."

The Chief Executive paid tribute to the noble work of the 17 Red Feather agencies in helping over a million needy people during the past 12 years.

"It has been a most welcome and valuable partner of our government in our common effort to help make our country a healthier and happier place to live in," the President said.

On behalf of the President, Secretary Castillo opened this year's annual fund drive with a personal contribution of P1,000.

The total contributions during the kick-off ceremony amounted to P168,576 in cash and P68,618 in pledges.

President Garcia today directed the payment of salary increase of employees of the strike-bound Philippine Charity Sweepstakes Office.

The order was issued following representations made by PCSO General Manager Eugenio Santos and Board Member Fernando Santico this morning.

On orders of the President, Executive Secretary Natalio P. Castillo approved the new plantilla and its accompanying supplemental budget covering salary increases totalling P242,939 after Budget Commissioner Sy-Changco submitted his recommendation for its approval.

The action of the President is expected to meet the demands of the striking employees. It will also pave the way for a final classification by the WAPCO of the positions.

The PCSO employees went on strike this morning because of the alleged refusal of the management to implement this salary increases as agreed upon between the management and the PCSO labor union.

Santico, however, said that the increases could not be implemented because of the objections of the WAPCO. The increase in salaries of the employees has been approved by the board of directors of the PCSO, Santico said.

June 2.—PRESIDENT Garcia told the provincial press and radio as well as several large groups of convention delegates who pledged their votes to him that the party in power has better chance of clinching victory in November on account of its numerous achievements and the dissatisfaction obtaining in the opposition ranks.

In a conference with provincial newspapermen and radio commentators who are in Manila to cover the Nacionalista Party convention, the President stressed this morning the necessity of keeping the citizenry well informed in order to maintain a healthy democracy.

The President said that of all the Asian countries, the Philippines which has proven itself worthy of the appellation “show window of democracy” has been most successful in perpetuating the democratic way of life most aptly emphasized in the Constitution, “sovereignty resides in the people.”

He said that because of universal education and the mass of information media such as the press, the radio, and television, obtaining in the Philippines, officials who will administer national affairs are chosen by the people, unlike other Asian countries where governments and administrations change by force of arms.

The President pointed out that for the first time in 1960 and 1961 the government budget was balanced with even a small surplus of earnings over expenses. As a result, he said, the credit of the government has been recognized by such institutions as the International Monetary Fund, the National City Bank of New York, and other international financial institutions.

Official Week in Review: June 11 – June 17, 1961

June 11.—PRESIDENT Garcia arrived in Dipolog, Zamboanga del Norte, at four o'clock this afternoon and was met by a large crowd, including the feuding political factions headed by Rep. Alberto Ubay and former Gov. Felipe Azcuña.

Gov. Guadalupe Adaza headed provincial officials in welcoming the visiting Chief Executive.

After 38 hours of sea journey through a relatively calm sea, the President was feted, along with the First Lady, with a merienda upon his arrival in Dipolog.

He is scheduled to confer with Sen. Gil J. Puyat, his vice-presidential running mate, whom he had asked to join him in his stump of the Mindanao area.

Although he told newsmen that Puyat has "as good a chance" as the Liberal Party vice-presidential candidate, Emmanuel Pelaez, and independent candidate Sergio Osmeña, Jr., the President stressed Puyat "must win heavily in Luzon to make it."

The President, after a quick merienda, motored to Dapitan where he addressed a huge political rally. Then he returned to Dipolog to address another rally shortly before midnight tonight.

Earlier, the President heard mass with the First Lady aboard the yacht, together with the passengers of the RPS Lapu-Lapu.

After breakfast the President chatted with newsmen, and took up subjects of possible reconciliation with Senate President Eulogio Rodriguez.

President Garcia, however, was reported as cool to efforts to bring about a rapprochement with Mayor Arsenio H. Lacson.

June 12.—PRESIDENT Garcia this morning was pleasantly surprised over the rapid progress and beautification that Marawi had undergone since his last visit about two years ago.

Addressing a mammoth rally at the city plaza after a conference with provincial, city, and municipal officials of Lanao del Sur, the President said that such progress attested to the determination of the Administration to accelerate the development of Mindanao.

The President warned, however, that if the Liberals return to power they would retard the progress of Mindanao at least ten years because they are behind the times by ten years.

The Chief Executive was roundly applauded by some 20,000 cheering Maranaos who braved the rain to hear him announce (1) that plans were about completed for a system of feeder roads around Lanao Lake; (2) that he had recommended to Congress the cementing of 600 kilometers of roads, 200 each for Luzon, Visayas, and Mindanao, including Marawi-Iligan; (3) that he had opened for agricultural purposes part of Camp Keithley reservation; and (4) that he was ready to announce the names of members of the Board of Regents of the University of Mindanao as soon as Secretary Jose Romero of Education arrived.

The President said the university will lay emphasis on Islamic culture.

The President arrived at Iligan City at 9 a.m. on the second leg of an inspection trip, accompanied by Mrs. Garcia and Sen. Domocao Alonto. He was received at the pier by a thick crowd headed by Rep. Laurentino Badelles, Gov. Ali Dimaporo, ex-Gov. Salvador Lluch, and Mayor Cabili.

The President and party proceeded to St. Michael church for a Te Deum amidst flag-waving welcomers who greeted the First Couple of the land with shouts of Mabuhay.

The reception was complete with fireworks, brass bands, cadets, and coeds in uniform, and was outdone only by the reception in Lanao del Sur where close to 50,000 turned out to receive them.

After the Te Deum sang by Fr. Robert Stock, the President motored to Marawi stopping briefly at Baloi to address a rally. At provincial boundary, Maranaos in gay and unique costumes lined the highway, and flags and bunting floating in the breeze gave the occasion a festive air.

After a conference with local officials and a speech at Marawi plaza, the President returned to the RPS Lapu-Lapu for a brief rest before addressing a mammoth crowd in a rally at Iligan and conferring with local officials of Lanao del Norte.

The President and Sen. Gil J. Puyat started their campaign with a visit to the Rizal house of exile and with speeches at the Dapitan plaza and, later in the evening, at another rally in Dipolog.

After the Dipolog rally, the President boarded the Lapu-Lapu at 1 a.m. for the trip to Iligan.

June 13.—PRESIDENT Garcia arrived in Oroquieta, Occidental Misamis, this morning to start a two-day siege of the two provinces of Misamis now considered to be Liberal strongholds owing to the candidacy of its native son, Emmanuel Pelaez, under the opposition banner.

The re-electionist Chief Executive, accompanied by the First Lady and national officials from Mindanao, arrived aboard the RPS Lapu-Lapu at 9:30 this morning and immediately started an intensive campaign which would take him in cross-province barnstorming tour with whistle-stops in three principal towns and barrios.

In a speech at a morning rally in Oroquieta, the President said the NP administration should be retained in power to enable it to complete its gigantic economic development program for Mindanao.

He cited administration efforts “to convert this great region from land of promise to land of prosperity.”

In the same rally President Garcia also announced the formation of a presidential task force to supervise the distribution of virgin lands to landless residents in Mindanao. He said the task force which he personally heads, has tapped 150,000 hectares of idle land in the provinces of Lanao del Sur, Lanao del Norte, and Cotabato for distribution to the landless.

The President also flayed Vice-President Macapagal and other Liberal bets for their “hypocritical expousal” of the cause of good government and clean elections.

He reminded his audience that “the men who now come to you as crusaders for good government are the same who did not lift a finger of protest against shameless looting of public coffers and suppression of the popular will at the height of the Liberal regime.

The President called upon the electorate to judge both parties on the basis of solid accomplishments and not on empty promises.

From Oroquieta, the presidential party proceeded to Ozamiz City, whistle-stopping in principal towns and barrios on the way.

President Garcia today declared June 19 a special public holiday. The day marks the 100th birthday anniversary of Dr. Jose P. Rizal.

In declaring the official holiday, the President said that “it is fitting and proper that the people be given full opportunity to celebrate the day with appropriate ceremonies in keeping with Dr. Rizal’s ideals and teachings.”

President Garcia directed the Bureau of Forestry to nullify or reject all bids submitted by applicants for concessions covering some 7,500 hectares of forest land formerly covered by the U.S. Naval Reservation in Olongapo, Zambales.

The President’s directive, signed before he left for a nine-day stumping tour of Mindanao and the Visayas, was dispatched this morning by Justice Buenaventura Ocampo, PCAPE chairman, to the forestry bureau for implementation.

The Chief Executive in issuing the directive, sought to reserve the area which is the watershed of the principal rivers and creeks, the source of irrigation and potable water for some 100,000 residents of the municipality of Olongapo and other neighboring towns.

The PCAPE is recommending the cancellation of most, if not all, of Ordinary Timber licenses already issued because the findings of the combined PCAPE-Forestry team tend to show that the concession areas granted in the provinces of Bataan and Zambales five or six years ago do not any more have standing timber to permit the continuance of the effectivity of licenses granted, Maximo Maceren, PCAPE vice-chairman, said.

June 14.—PRESIDENT Garcia arrived in Cagayan de Oro City this afternoon from Gingoog. He was accompanied by the First Lady and Sen. Gil J. Puyat, his vice-presidential teammate.

The President announced the immediate updating of the salary scales of government employees to meet the rising cost of living in the country.

He also urged the residents of Cagayan de Oro City to support the Nacionalista Party candidates, for the NP administration has started tapping the huge potentialities of Mindanao.

In Gingoog the President spoke in ten rallies. In these rallies, he bared the development plans for Misamis Oriental consisting of various projects involving over P1 million. He also bared the completion of the electrification project of Mindanao in three months.

In his rally on the public plaza, the President revealed also the establishment of a coffee processing plant for Mindanao.

He later conferred with provincial and city officials of the cities.

In Gingoog the President attended a Te Deum at the Catholic church.

The President this evening mobilized the facilities of three executive departments and sought all-out assistance from two medical associations in dealing with the raging influenza epidemic.

Arriving at 6 p.m. at Cagayan de Oro City, the President expressed alarm over news of the spread of the disease in Manila and various areas in Luzon and Cebu.

He issued three directives authorizing the release of necessary funds to cope with the epidemic and ordered the suspension of classes, if found necessary, in affected areas. He directed Education Secretary Jose E. Romero to suspend school classes in influenza-affected areas.

President Garcia appealed to the Philippine Medical Association and the Manila Medical Society to assist the Department of Health in containing the epidemic.

In a wire to Health Secretary Elpidio Valencia, the Chief Executive directed the mobilization of the entire Department of Health in combating the flu epidemic. He also asked Valencia to study the possibility of establishing mobile health units in affected and threatened places.

The President gave Executive Secretary Natalio P. Castillo wide authority to release as much funds needed from the presidential contingent funds to finance health moves Valencia might undertake.

This afternoon the President ordered Legislative Secretary Vicente Logarta to enplane to Mambajao, Camiguin sub-province, and bring with him all pending Congress bills not yet acted upon by the Chief Executive.

The deadline for the President to act on all the 462 bills passed by Congress is June 17, 1961. Congress adjourned last May 18.

Secretary Logarta is enplaning early tomorrow morning with all unsigned bills.

President Garcia today declared the period from July 1 to August 15, 1961, for the fund campaign of the Boy Scouts of the Philippines for the attainment of its avowed aims and purposes.

In his proclamation the President took cognizance of the good work being done by the Boy Scouts of the Philippines in training and moulding every boy in the land to be a patriotic, God-fearing, upright, clean, and responsible citizen.

The Chief Executive called upon all government officials and employees and all citizens and residents of the Philippines to assist in this campaign and to give it their entire support so that the Boy Scouts of the Philippines may be assured of funds that will enable it to carry out its operations effectively, to intensify its nation-wide training and recruiting program so that the great number of boys of Scouts age seeking admission into the organization may be served.

The President authorized all national authorities and teachers to accept, in behalf of the Boy Scouts of the Philippines, fund-raising responsibilities and urge them to give active support and leadership in their respective communities.

June 15.—PRESIDENT Garcia indicated at Cagayan de Oro City today he would call a special session of Congress next month to consider urgent measures left unacted upon by both Houses. The President hinted his decision in the course of a speech before members of the barrio lieutenants association of the province.

In his speech the President told the barrio leaders of his unequivocal support of the PACD bill which went through the Senate, but failed to pass the lower House. He told his audience that he was convinced more than ever of the importance of the PACD after his Mindanao tour.

Later the President and the First Lady were guests at the inauguration and blessing of the new building of the Development Bank of the Philippines. In his speech President Garcia cited the establishment of the DBP branch in Cagayan de Oro City as another evidence of the Administration's deep concern for the rapid development of Mindanao.

The President said further that the bank would save local businessmen and farmers from loan shakes and usurers, aside from encouraging growth of industries.

Among those present during the rites were Sen. Gil Puyat, DBP Chairman Gregorio Licaros, Eduardo Romualdez of the PNB, Sen. Lim, and SSS Commissioners Gaviola and Remolina.

The President addressed a public rally at the city's plaza.

From Cagayan de Oro City, the President proceeded to Mambajao, Misamis Oriental, to continue his political tour of western Mindanao.

Arriving at Mambajao, the President met a minor accident when he slipped and fell from three flights of stairs while getting down from his cabin to address a rally in the island. The incident occurred as the President was preparing to debark from the Lapu-Lapu and board a launch to the island. He sustained a cut and bruises in his right knee.

Unfazed, President Garcia proceeded to the island with his running mate, Sen. Puyat.

After the rally the President told his political advisers on board the yacht that he will announce his position on the amity terms of Senate President Rodriguez when he returns to Manila.

President Garcia today directed Executive Secretary Natalio P. Castillo to release the necessary funds to check the flu epidemic now gripping Manila and some provinces.

The President, likewise, directed Education Secretary Jose E. Romero to suspend classes in places affected by the epidemic, if and when necessary.

The directives were issued in separate wires by the Chief Executive after receiving reports of the mounting cases of flu victims throughout the country.

He instructed Secretary Castillo to coordinate with Health Secretary Elpidio Valencia on the steps to be taken to stop further spread of the disease.

June 16.—TPRESIDENT Garcia was treated by Negros Oriental, in his first visit to a Visayan province since his nomination as the Nacionalista Party standard bearer, to a royal welcome today.

The President and his entourage which includes the First Lady and his running mate, Sen. Gil J. Puyat, arrived at Dumaguete City at 2:30 this afternoon aboard the RPS Lapu-Lapu from a six-day stumping tour in northwestern Mindanao.

A big crowd, complete with military honors and brass bands, was on hand at the wharf to greet the Chief Executive. School children lined up along the city streets and on the highway to Tanjay town, some 25 kilometers away, which the Chief Executive visited.

From the wharf, the President proceeded to the local Catholic church to hear a Te Deum sung by Bishop Epifanio Surban. Then he conferred with provincial and national officials at the Foundation College auditorium.

President Garcia was profuse in his thanks for the warm and spontaneous reception accorded him at the wharf. Leading the pier welcomers were Gov. Mariano Perdices, Rep. Lorenzo G. Teves, City Mayor Jose Teves, and Legislative Secretary Vicente Logarta, who had flown to Dumaguete City with important bills to be signed by President Garcia.

Among the measures brought by Secretary Logarta for the President's signature were the voluminous General Appropriations Bill and the P500 million Public Works bill for the fiscal year 1962.

During the conference at Foundation College, the President granted the request of Rep. Teves that the transfer to Butuan City of public works dredging equipment being used in Dumaguete be delayed for another 10 days.

President Garcia returned to Dumaguete later this evening and addressed another big rally at Quezon Park.

After the rally and a round of conferences with NP campaign leaders in Dumaguete, the President boarded the RPS Lapu-Lapu and sailed for Manila. The presidential party is expected in Manila early Sunday morning.

June 17.—THE President had a nice rest following the hectic whirlwind stumping tour in Negros Oriental yesterday.

The Lapu-Lapu pulled anchor at Dumaguete City at past midnight, and the voyage was smooth the whole day.

President Garcia woke up late and heard mass said on deck. After the mass the President partook of a light breakfast which included fried eggs and broiled fish.

Then he closeted himself in his cabin with Legislative Secretary Vicente Logarta, who joined the presidential party in Dumaguete City with a pile of some 460 bills requiring the President's action before midnight tonight.

Under the Constitution, the President has until midnight tonight to act on the bills passed by the Fourth Congress during its last regular session ending last May 18.

President Garcia quietly went over the controversial measures. There were no lobbyists who bothered the President in Manila last year although wired messages from certain interests batting for the approval of their pet bills clogged the radio lines of the Lapu-Lapu.

The only "lobbyists" on board are Manila Councilors Alfredo Gomez and Francisco Gatmaitan, who are urging presidential okay of three highly controversial bills granting squatters in Manila the right to buy patrimonial lots in Ermita and Tondo. The three measures have been recommended for veto by the presidential interdepartmental committee which studied the bills and by Mayor Arsenio H. Lacson.

Among the important bills signed by the President were the P1.2 billion General Appropriations Bill and the P564 million Public Works Bill for the fiscal year 1961-1962. There were, however, certain provisions in the two measures which were vetoed.

The President also affixed his signature to the Mindanao Development Authority Bill which was described as a fitting climax to his eight-day stumping tour of northwestern Mindanao.

The President today underscored the entrance of Liberty Flour Mills into the business of milling of wheat grain as another great step "in our brisk march forward to industrial progress."

The President said that with the establishment of the Liberty Flour Mills, he is more than optimistic about the realization of his plan to build up a truly industrialized Philippines.

The President's speech before the formal inauguration of the Liberty Flour Mills in Mandaluyong, Rizal, was read by Executive Secretary Natalio P. Castillo before a huge crowd which included government and diplomatic officials, church dignitaries, and prominent businessmen.

The President's message was preceded by a ribbon cutting ceremony. Mrs. Linda Garcia-Campos, who represented the President and the First Lady in the inauguration, cut the stream of ribbon across an entrance to the mill, as the symbolic start of one of the country's newest flour mills.

The ceremonies officially brought to a close the construction phase of the Liberty Flour Mills which started in May, 1960, and marked its formal opening in the service of Philippine industry and commerce.

Six rare books which Rizal had used in his study in London and which British Charge d'Affaires Lambert hoped would use by the Filipino scholar were turned over to the Chief Executive. They were Arte de la Lengua Tagala by Agustin de la Magdalena, Arte y Regla de la Lengua Tagala by Francisco de Sanchez, Vocabulario de Lengua Tagala by Padro Buenaventura, Bocabulario de la Lengua, Nos. I y II by Noceda y S. Lucar, and Diccionario Pangasinan-Espanol by Fernando Cosgava.

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

July 2.—PRESIDENT Garcia boarded the Lapu-Lapu at Maasin early this morning for his return trip to Manila, where he is expected to arrive early tomorrow morning.

The President was assured by Nacionalista leaders of both Leyte provinces that the only problem now facing the NP ticket was how to increase the 67,000-vote majority he garnered in the 1957 elections to 100,000 in the coming polls.

The assurance was given by Speaker Daniel Romualdez, political kingpin of Leyte del Norte, and Rep. Nicanor Yñiguez, political boss of Leyte del Sur, who both said the Garcia-Puyat team would have easy sailing in their province.

The President inducted 150 former Liberal leaders who defected from the opposition to join the NP. The defectors were accompanied to the President by Mrs. Salud Parreño.

Gov. Ildefonso Cinco also assured President Garcia that all Leyte NPs were exerting efforts to give the NP team the 100,000-vote majority fixed by Speaker Romualdez.

President Garcia last night attended the coronation of Natividad Miel as Miss Maasin, and, by popular request, declaimed during the coronation ceremony.

After the ceremony "Queen Nati" stayed in the background as people clamored for a presidential speech. President Garcia appealed for support of the entire NP ticket and, speaking about his own candidacy, he said this was his last time to ask for the Leyte electorate's support.

President Garcia pointed out that in 1941, when he ran for senator, Leyte had supported him. He then took the opportunity to express his gratitude for their past support.

He said he always won the election because he utilized profession and position to help the poor and helpless unlike a certain aspirant who is the lawyer of vested interests and other big companies.

During the rally President Garcia inaugurated the P2000,000 Maasin waterworks system. The rally broke up at 2:30 this morning when the Lapu-Lapu arrived off Maasin.

July 3.—THIS day President Garcia started playing host to the "Liberator of the Philippines," General of the Army Douglas MacArthur, and his wife Jean, who are here as special guests for Independence Day.

The Chief Executive broke tradition and protocol rules by personally welcoming the American General, who is an honorary Filipino citizen, upon the latter's arrival with his entourage at 4: 30 this afternoon. The President was accompanied to the airport by Mrs. Garcia.

After brief military honors and an over-extended personal greeting exchanged between Gen. MacArthur and his old acquaintances at the airport, the President and the general rode on a sleek convertible car for the long motorcade to Malacañang and confetti shower at the Escolta.

The President installed his guests at the Malacañang guest rooms where the visiting Philippine Liberator will be billeted for the duration of his stay here.

President Garcia arrived at 8 o'clock this morning at Pier 3 on board the Lapu-Lapu from a week-long stumping tour of Leyte del Norte and Leyte del Sur.

He was met at the pier by Speaker Romualdez, other political leaders, and by his daughter, Linda Garcia-Campos, and granddaughter, Maricar.

Towards noon the President addressed an Independence Day program of the Civic Assembly of Women of the Philippines.

Speaking before the awards ceremonies of the Civic Assembly of Women of the Philippines in its 15th annual conference commemorating the independence of the Republic, he said "women have stayed in the forefront in pushing the wheels of Philippines progress and as long as they keep striving in the "noble task of building a strong and healthy nation, the Filipinos have no cause to worry."

He added that, "women have already started elbowing out men in many professions and have made incursions in many fields, like the diplomatic service and the judiciary," citing as examples the appointments of Ambassador Trinidad M. Legarda and Court of Appeals Justice Natividad Almeda-Lopez.

In this respect, the President pointed out, the Nationalista administration has been quick to recognize the advancement of Filipino women and has given recognition to outstanding and capable women leaders by appointing them to responsible positions in the government.

After his speech President Garcia awarded presidential medals of merit to the following CAWP awardees:

1. Former Chief Justice Ricardo Paras, in recognition of his courageous and distinguished leadership in the Supreme Court and distinct public service;
2. Dr. Fe del Mundo, for her contribution to national progress through her dedicated service in the field of child health;
3. Bai Matabay Plang, in recognition of her outstanding contribution in the field of education and social work;
4. Mrs. Virginia Llamas-Romulo, in recognition of her exemplary "womanly virtues which Filipino nation has always extolled—those of a devoted wife and mother;"
5. Howard S. Cullman, for his singular contribution to the cultural life of the Filipino through his generous promotion of Philippine folk arts;
6. Mrs. Geronima T. Pecson, for her distinctive contributions to family life, profession, and; community services;
7. Severino Montano, in recognition of his valuable contribution to the preservation and appreciation of Philippine culture by means of the drama as an expression of our deepest spiritual and cultural aspiration as a people;
8. Felipe de Leon, for his distinctive contributions to the Filipino music and his invaluable service to the community and nation; and
9. The Family of Ambassador Jose Ma. Delgado, in recognition of the outstanding achievements of this Filipino family whose exemplary services to the country should serve as inspiration to other families."

After the awards ceremony the President motored to Sta. Ana to express his heartfelt condolence to Mrs. Marina Francisco and the other members of the family of the late Rep. Augusto Francisco, who died last night.

July 4.—EARLY in the morning President Garcia stayed at his bedroom in Malacañang, working on pending state papers.

At 2 p.m. the President joined Gen. MacArthur, who is billeted in the Malacañang bedroom which served as bedrooms of the late Presidents Quirino and Magsaysay, for the trip to the Luneta grandstand and the Independence Day celebrations.

The President and Gen. MacArthur rode in the presidential limousine and, on arrival at the Luneta grandstand, both were given thunderous ovations by the milling multitudes, at the parade grounds.

An unexpected development in the parade, Lina Pasion, Miss Philippines of Hawaii now on a visit to Manila, got off from her BTTA float and put a each on the President and General MacArthur.

Then Miss passion bussed the President on the forehead, and when MacArthur's turn came, the General surprised even the President by giving the Filipino beauty a one-handed embrace.

Returning to Malacañang at about 5:30 p.m. from the Luneta, the President rested a while in preparation for the state dinner.

President Garcia gave a state dinner this evening on the occasion of the observance of the 15th anniversary of Philippine Independence at Malacañang.

General and Mrs. Douglas MacArthur, who are special guests of the Republic on the occasion of Freedom Day, were special guests of honor at the state dinner.

The Chief Executive exchanged toasts with the illustrious Philippine Liberator.

July 5.—PRESIDENT Garcia took cognizance today of the still unsolved killing of a Cebu newspaperman in the light of reports indicating he was assassinated because of his crusade against Cebu City government anomalies.

He ordered the National Bureau Investigation this morning to step into the case and expedite the bringing to the courts of the killer or killers of Antonio Abad Tormis, editor of the Cebu Republic News.

Tormis was killed by an unidentified gunman in Cebu City Monday night inside his car which he Was starting for the trip to his house.

So concerned was the President with the Tormis killing that before turning in this evening, he directed Executive Secretary Natalio P. Castilio to submit to him, a progress report on the NBI investigations.

Aside from attending to the Tormis case, the President kept much to himself.

He woke up late this morning, having prolonged his rest during the night because of the daylong grueling grind he had in connection with the observance of Independence Day, capped by a late state dinner for Gen. Douglas MacArthur.

The Chief Executive worked on pending state papers towards noon. He rested briefly this afternoon, and then continued poring over important papers on the affairs of the state.

He turned in early for the night.

July 6.—THIS day President Garcia further bolstered the chances of victory of the Nacionalista Party in Leyte by an overwhelming majority when he received the pledge of support from former Speaker Protempore Domingo Veloso, LP stalwart, at a conference held in Malacañang.

After the conference Veloso said that “the claim of President Garcia that he will receive a majority of 100,000 votes in both Leyte provinces is a modest estimate because it did not include the support of my faction.”

Earlier the President received Rep. Frank T. Bow of Chio, who was accompanied on his courtesy call by Elmer R. Hipsley of the U. S. State Department, and Max V. Kreb, political consellor of the U. S. Embassy in Manila.

Former Speaker Jose Laurel accompanied Kenneth Barbier, executive vice-president of the International Telephone and Telegraph Corporation (Philippines, Inc.), and Ruben R. Ramirez, president of the Ramirez Telephone Corporation of Legaspi City, on their courtesy call on President

This evening the President met his Cabinet to consider the proposed importation of 4.5 million kilos of Virginia tobacco, but promptly adjourned the session when he found out there was nothing to talk about yet.

Agriculture Secretary Cesar Fortich, chairman of a special Cabinet committee assigned the task of studying the importation, asked for more time to look into all angles of the controversial proposal.

Fortich told the President that a meeting of his special committee held earlier this day in the office of Finance Secretary Dominador Aytona did not arrive at a unanimous decision on the matter.

The President extended executive clemency to a total of 936 insular prisoners on the occasion of the 15th anniversary of Philippine Independence, Malacañang announced today.

The grant of clemency to the deserving prisoners had been recommended by the Board of Pardons and Paroles.

Of these prisoners, 760 were given commutation of sentence, 128 conditional pardons, and 48 absolute pardons.

The names of those granted executive clemency will be released some time next Week.

July 7.—PRESIDENT Garcia today asked Gov. Juan Frivaldo and Rep. Salvador Encinas of Sorsogon to cooperate with other government officials in expediting the acquisition of land to be traversed by the extension of the railroad line from Albay to Sorsogon.

The President issued the appeal at a conference held in Malacañang in an effort to meet the deadline for the commencement of work on the Sorsogon railroad extension project, scheduled for this September.

The Sorsogon officials were informed by the President that the acquisition on rights of way along the railroad line might hold up the start of the project.

For initial expenses of construction work in the southern line, President Garcia told the Sorsogon officials the amount of P2 million is already prepared. At the sametime he lauded landowners of Nueva Ecija, Nueva Vizcaya, Isabela, and Cagayan who donated parcels of land traversed by the Cagayan Valley railroad extension.

The President also received a big delegation of Quezon residents, led by Gov. Claro Robles and Remy Aguila, NP congressional aspirant, and discussed local problems.

In accordance with his policy of giving more attention to rural areas, the President at a conference with Rep. Fausto Dugenio of Misamis Oriental authorized the release of P16,000 for the construction of barrio roads in Claveria, P10,000 for the construction of feeder roads in Sagay, and granted a budgetary aid of P8,000 to Claveria in view of a deficit caused by typhoons and rat infestation which adversely affected tax collections in the municipality, aside from P7,000 as typhoon relief.

Rep. Dugenio was accompanied by former Provincial Board Member Sixto Avaro, Inocencia Ladao of Sagay, and Mayor Gerardo Urcallo of Claveria.

Other callers included Rep. Guillermo Sanchez of Agusan, GSIS General Manager Rodolfo Andal, and Undersecretary of Education Jose Tuazon, who accompanied School Superintendent Roman F. Lorenzo of Rizal.

Earlier President Garcia granted an exclusive interview to Mrs. Ligaya Victorio-Fruto, staff writer of the Star Bulletin of Honolulu.

The President directed Budget Commissioner Faustino Sy-Changco today to give priority to the release of P32.5 million corresponding to the full implementation of the Wage and Position Classification Office (WAPCO) salary plan beginning July 1.

Commissioner Sy-Changco, in a budget circular concurred in by Auditor General Pedro M. Gimenez and Civil Service Commissioner Amado del Rosario, said that government agencies may now approve the payment of salaries to employees whose positions have been upgraded by the WAPCO without change in title or designation.

However, employees whose positions have been reclassified by WAPCO with change in title or designation may be paid salary adjustments only after the issuance and approval of individual appointments.

The President also directed today Civil Service Commissioner Amado del Rosario to formulate a well-defined procedure for the replacement of non-eligibles in government offices and agencies in such a manner that it would be carried on gradually so as not to impair or prejudice seriously public service.

The President was prompted to issue this directive following a report by Chairman Buenaventura Ocampo of the PCAPE that a sudden and immediate laying off of non-eligibles would seriously disrupt the services in many offices. The directive was made through Executive Secretary Castillo.

Chairman Ocampo said that he has received inquiries from, many government offices requesting advice as to how they can implement the Civil Service Law regarding employment of eligibles without seriously impairing their services since immediate replacement of non-eligibles in their offices is not feasible. It was claimed that there are not enough eligibles to replace the non-eligibles.

The question was posed as to whether continued employment of non-eligibles pending availability of eligibles may be allowed. These questions were posed to Civil Service Commissioner Amado del Rosario this afternoon by Vice-Chairman Maximo A. Maceren of the PCAPE in a conference held at the former's office.

Commissioner del Rosario said that he did not intend a sudden and abrupt laying-off of non-eligibles. It was pointed out that under the present Civil Service Law, as in the old one, there is a provision that permits the appointment of non-eligibles as provisional employees pending certification from the Civil Service Commission of eligibles.

Under this provision the employment of non-eligibles may be extended without incurring any liability under the law. Many heads of offices did not have a clear understanding of the proper interpretation of this provision. It was felt that a clarification on this matter should be made. In view of this the President also directed Commissioner del Rosario to clarify this point.

Another point which the President directed Commissioner del Rosario to consider seriously was the problem of many government employees who are non-eligibles but have been in the service in many instances for as long as ten years. The President directed Commissioner del Rosario to adopt means within the framework of the present Civil Service Law which will give these non-eligibles every opportunity to qualify in an appropriate examination so that they may be retained in the government service.

July 8.—THE President spent a restful day, keeping much to himself at his Bohol Avenue residence and receiving only a few caller previously screened as having urgent business with him.

Keeping most of the time in his study room at his private residence, the Chief Executive tackled a big pile of state papers that have accumulated since the Independence Day celebrations.

The President also conferred with some of his Palace assistants and plotted with them the course of his political campaign during the ensuing days until the middle of August. His tentative plans will take him to Isabela Cagayan, Mindoro, Romblon, Masbate, and Southern Mindanao between the last half of July and the first half of August.

Among those who called on the President were Rep. Vicente Peralta and Gov. Constantino Navarro of Surigao del Norte.

In the evening President Garcia motored to the residence of Justice Buenaventura Ocampo, chairman of the Presidential Committee on Administration Performance Efficiency, on Nebraska, Malate, to felicitate the PCAPE Chief on his birth.

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

July 9.—EARLY this morning the Chief Executive heard an early mass with Mrs. Garcia at their Bohol Avenue residence.

President Garcia pursued his new hobby today by playing golf at the Valley Golf Club in Antipolo, Rizal, the whole morning.

The President was paired with Celso S. Tuason, president of the golf club. They piled up a total of 105 points, edging out their rival pair, former Chief Justice Ricardo Paras and Antonio Gonzales, who scored 117.

The Chief Executive was accompanied to the new golf club by Press Secretary Jose C. Nable; Dr. Antonio Guytingco, personal physician of the President; and Cmdr. Melchor Fronda, aide.

After an all-morning round of golf at the Valley Golf Club, President Garcia had lunch and then rested briefly for an afternoon siesta.

In the evening, at 7:30 o'clock, the President left his residence and motored to the Manila Hotel to address a dinner of the Philippine Institute of Architects at the Winter Garden.

July 10.—THIS morning the President called for Land Registration Commissioner Antonio H. Noblejas and ordered him to intensify the distribution of land titles to the barrios and other rural areas.

Noblejas was accompanied to Malacañang by Assistant Commissioner Gregorio Bilog, Jr., and Cesar Vergara, LRC technical assistant.

In the afternoon the President received Rodrigo and Consuelo Lim, who briefed him on the political situation in Misamis Oriental, home province of the Liberal vice-presidential aspirant, Emmanuel Pelaez.

Former Gov. Bernardo Torres of Leyte then called to report to the Chief Executive that the Garcia-Puyat team will win by a comfortable margin in his province, with the President assured of more than 100,000-vote majority.

Rep. Salipada K. Pendatun of Cotabato and Gov. Madki Alonto of Lanao del Sur also reported that the Garcia-Puyat team will win in Lanao by a bigger majority this time than in 1957 when Yulo ran as LP candidate.

President Garcia emphasized the importance of science in national development as he received from Go Kim Pah, president of the Equitable Banking Corporation, a donation of P20,000 for research work at the National Science Development Board.

He accepted Go's donation during a brief ceremony held at Malacañang in the eve.

Present during the turn-over rites were Dr. Paulino Garcia, NSDB chairman; Dr. Frank Co Tui, ICA adviser; Dr. Casimiro del Rosario, NSDB vice-chairman; Atomic Energy Commissioner Florencio Medina; Commissioner Canuto Manuel of the National Institute of Science and Technology; Rev. William J. Schmidt; Brother Benedict; and Brother Richards.

July 11.—PRESIDENT Garcia said today he will soon fill up all the vacancies in the judiciary to prevent the clogging of court dockets. The President also said that he will name the president of the Mindanao University in the next few days so that the law creating the Muslim university to lay emphasis on the Muslim culture can be implemented.

In his conference with Sens. Arturo M. Tolentino and Roseller T. Lim at Malacañang this morning, the Chief Executive said he will pick up judges from among the names recommended by the secretary of justice. He said Manila and the suburbs will be given priority in the filling of vacancies but that the entire 50 judgeships will gradually be filled up.

Earlier, the President received the Brotherhood Exchange mission sent by the United Filipino Council of Hawaii to represent the 70,000 Filipinos in Hawaii at the 15th Independence Anniversary and Rizal Centennial celebrations.

The trip was facilitated by the state of Hawaii to promote closer relations between Americans and Filipinos under President Kennedy's people-to-people program.

The mission, which was accompanied to Malacañang by Commissioner Modesto Farolan of the Bureau of Tourist and Travel Industry, included Capt. Roland Sagum, Justo de la Cruz, Andres Baclig, and Richard Caldito, who presented the President with the symbolic key of Maui County.

The President also received a group of Protestant ministers and leaders who paid their respects to the Chief Executive before leaving for their respective countries. Among them were Philippine-born Rev. and Mrs. Taylor Dunlop of Seattle, Washington, Hairik Mayva of Iran, Rev. Ensign Leininger, and Robert Crawford.

The group was accompanied by Dr. Enrique Sobrepeña, general secretary of the United Church of Christ; Dr. Samuel Catli and Dr. Jose Yap, director of Christian Education and executive-secretary, respectively, of the Federation of Christian Churches in the Philippines; and Jose Navarro.

The President also received Rep. Emilio Cortez of Pampanga and his 30-man delegation, who sought relief from the destructive typhoon and flood which hit his province; Rep. Manuel Enverga of Quezon and Lucena Mayor Casto Propogo, who took up problems of their respective jurisdictions and invited the President to inaugurate the city of Lucena on August 19; Rep. Ricardo Y. Ladrido of Iloilo, who also invited the Chief Executive to inaugurate the P250,000 hospital in Lambunao and lay the cornerstones of the P21 million Calinog hydroelectric project and the P100,000 gymnasium in Pototan, Iloilo.

Other callers were Reps. Pedro Venida of Camarines Norte, Felix Fuentebella of Camarines Sur, Leonardo Perez of Nueva Vizcaya, and Nicanor Y. Yñiguez of Leyte del Sur.

The President today directed the Presidential Committee on Administration Performance Efficiency to conduct a preliminary fact-finding inquiry into the charges levelled against Undersecretary of Health Rafael Tumbukon by Health Secretary Elpidio Valencia in connection with the recently unearthed drug-supply anomalies.

The Chief Executive issued the directive to Justice Buenaventura Ocampo, PCAPE chairman, upon receipt of a letter of Secretary Valencia denouncing the alleged apparently irregular participation of Undersecretary Tumbukon in the reported anomalies.

Justice Ocampo said that the charges of the Health Secretary is for gross [unreadable] and usurpation of functions in that Undersecretary Tumbukon allegedly signed requisition and issue vouchers when he was not authorized to do so.

President Garcia today administered the oath of affiliation with the Nacionalista Party to nine former Liberals from Lanao del Sur, headed by Ex-Deputy Governor and Liberal Party Chairman Datu Darangina Diampuan of the province.

Sen. Dombcaio Alonto, who accompanied the new Nacionalistas to Malacañang, said the decision of Datu Diampuan to affiliate with the Nacionalistas will trigger off mass defections among Lanao Liberals who are dissatisfied with the LP.

Datu Diampuan presented his resignation from the LP yesterday morning to Rep. Cornelio T. Villareal, who tried to prevail upon him to reconsider his decision. Instead, Datu Diampuan marched to Malacañang with his followers and took his oath before President Garcia, together with Pendatun Dimaporo, Zenaden B. Guro, Togon Cahar, Pacabangan Mama-o, Mangigin Manabuang, Asal Sangopan, Magamora Pangcat, and Tungcap Mortaba.

July 12.—PRESIDENT Garcia today renewed the pledge of the Filipino people to defend freedom and to stand by those who champion it.

The President gave this pledge shortly before General Douglas Mac-Arthur and his wife, Jean, boarded their plane at Balagbag airport for their return home at 10 o'clock this morning.

In response to the President, General MacArthur thanked the Filipino people for "the wonderful reception to an old soldier and his sweetheart wife," that they received everywhere they went.

Heavy with the sadness of parting, the two comrades-in-arms clasped hands tightly for a long moment before General and Mrs. MacArthur ascended the ramp of the sleek U.S. military jet transport that took them to the Philippines on their nine-day "sentimental journey."

The President and the First Lady woke up early and presented souvenir gifts to General MacArthur and members of his party at Malacañang. Among the gifts presented were an oil painting of General MacArthur wading ashore at Leyte on October 20, 1944, by Romeo Enriquez; a 16 mm. documentary film of the Independence Day ceremonies of July 4, 1946, at which General MacArthur was guest speaker; autographed framed pictures of the President and First Lady; a piña set; a souvenir plaque decorated with the insignias of all military units under MacArthur's command; a box of Philippine cigars; two volumes of newspaper clippings of the trip; a pictorial album of the trip; commemorative medals; a book of stamp collections; a kamagong cane from General Cabal; and a basket of ripe mangoes.

The President and the First Lady then sat at breakfast for the last time with their distinguished guests. Also present were Senate President and Mrs. Eulogio Rodriguez; General Courtney Whitney; Lt. Col. J. Sheedy, General MacArthur's physician; and Col. Jorge Delarmente, Malacañang senior aide.

At 9 a.m., after bidding a fond farewell to veterans who had flocked to Malacañang to see him off, General MacArthur boarded Car No. 1 for the trip to the Balagbag airport. With him in the car were the President, Senate President Rordiguez, General Whitney, and Col. Delarmente. Mrs. Garcia, Mrs. Jean MacArthur, and Mrs. Luisita Rodriguez rode in another car.

As the long motorcade moved slowly from Malacañang to the airport, long lines of people, young and old, crowded the streets to wave goodbye to the general whose name has become a legend to them. The spirit of joy and rejoicing with which they received the American couple on their arrival was, however, missing from their glum faces. They, too, seemed to feel that Mac-Arthur's visit was just a brief flash before the old soldier faded away.

As soon as the general and his party arrived at the airport, a 19-gun salute boomed and the crowd of people from all walks of life who had come to send him off, stood at rigid attention undaunted by a heavy downpour which lasted for about 10 minutes.

Among those at the airport were Nini Quezon-Avanceña, an old friend of the general and his wife, United States Minister John Gordon Mein, Education Secretary Jose Romero, Undersecretary Fructuoso Cabahug of Foreign Affairs, AFP chief of staff Lt. Gen. Manuel F. Cabal, other high government officials, and members of the diplomatic corps headed by Papal Nuncio Salvatore Siino.

After receiving military honors from an AFP unit, and formally bidding [undreadable] the Filipino people, General MacArthur and his party walked to the ramp and waved to the people before entering the plane. Waiting for him at the plane door was Ambassador Carlos P. Romulo, who accompanied the general to the Philippines.

As soon as the jet transport had taken off, the President returned to Malacañang where a few unscheduled morning callers awaited him.

Among those who called were Sen. Eulogio Balao and Reps. Benjamin Ligot of Cagayan and Delfin Albano of Isabela, who came to make arrangements for the President's trip to Cagayan Valley to break the ground for the Manila Railroad extension line.

This evening the Cabinet approved the sale of P5.6 million worth of Manila Hotel shares owned by the Manila Railroad Co. to the GSIS on a cash basis.

The decision was reached after the MRR indicated that it might not be able to meet its compulsory retirement benefit obligations amounting to P3.2 million if the transfer of stock to the GSIS is not consummated.

The Cabinet also approved the sale of the Romblon marble project to the Republic Marble Products, Inc., for P750,000 to be paid over a six-year period.

The amount was the minimum set by the CEPOC board in its meeting last February. The private firm will make the five per cent down payment of over P37,000 upon the signing of the contract of sale.

The Cabinet, however, withheld the 12,663 sq.m. lot occupied by the Manila Hotel from the contract of sale to the GSIS.

July 13.—PRESIDENT Garcia today directed the Reparations Commission to make available as government counterpart fund to Philippine rural banks the sum of P2 million.

In directing the release of the amount, the President emphasized that the rural banks, of which there are 174 now operating all over the country, are playing a vital role in the economic growth of the country as well as in rescuing the rural populace from the clutches of the usurers.

The President said these banks are creating prosperous middlemen and businessmen in the rural areas where before the Filipino did not even have the proverbial "Chinaman's chance."

Earlier the President inducted the newly-elected officials of the Rural Banks Association of the Philippines at his study room in Malacañang, in the presence of Sens. Domocao Alonto and Ambrosio Padilla, Alfredo Montelibano, and Rep. Maximino Noel of Cebu.

Inducted were Jose E. Desiderio, president; Sergio F. Naguiat, Nestor Jalandoni, and Braulio Villasis, vice-presidents; Procopio C. Reyes, Mrs. Lily A. Padilla, Jose R. Segismundo, Macario C. Tiu, Sr., Juan M. Salang, Eleno de Guzman, Augusto F. Gonzalez, Deogracias T. Reyes, Hermenegildo R. Rosales, Virgilio M. Garcia, and Gaudencio Poblete, directors.

The President also received a ceremonial kris from former Rep. Luminog Mangelen of Cotabato, who pledged to the President 70,000 votes from his district and informed the President that he will be proclaimed sultan otto when he visits Cotabato.

Ex-Rep. Mangelen, who was still recovering from a recent illness, was accompanied to Malacañang by Sen. Alonto, Marawi City Mayor Macapada Batarra, Cotabato Board Member Datu Samad Mangelen, Bulan Mayor Bai Tonina Mangelen, Ampatuan Mayor Abdullan Sanke, and four others.

The President later conferred with Rep. Ramon P. Mitra of Mountain Province and Acting Central Bank Governor Andres V. Castillo, on the implementation of Republic Act 3089, otherwise known as the Gold Subsidy Act.

Under this law, all gold producers who seek government assistance are required to sell their procedure to the Central Bank at the official price plus a government subsidy of P50 to P60 per ounce.

The Act also provides for the formulation of rules and regulations for its implementation within 30 days from its approval on June 17, and the appointment of three members by the President to complete the Board which will include the Central Bank governor as chairman and the director of the Bureau of Mines as fourth member.

Others who called on the President to discuss problems of their respective jurisdiction and seek fund releases from public works appropriations and the President's contingent fund, were Reps. Reynaldo P. Honrado of Sungao, Wenceslao R. Lagumbay of Laguna, Apolinario R. Anacible of Batangas, and Pedro Venida of Camarines Norte; and Mayors Julio Ganaban of Guigoog City and Lucrecio Vasallo of Salay, Misamis Oriental.

President Garcia today asked consumers to be on the alert against hoarders of the imported rice which was brought into this country to force down the price of this cereal to a minimum of P0.85 and a maximum of P.95 per ganta.

The President said he will deal severely with hoarders of the imported rice.

Acting through Executive Secretary Castillo, the President issued separate directives to the PCAPE, the Constabulary, and the NAMARCO to coordinate their efforts in preventing the hoarding of the cereal. The President emphasized, the all-out cooperation of the public will be needed on this matter. President Garcia reminded consumers that they can avail themselves of the telegram at P0.10 to denounce any anomaly that may be unearthed by them. Such telegrams may be sent directly to him or to the PCAPE, he said.

The President stressed that hoarding of the imported rice would defeat the purpose of its importation which is to force down the price of this cereal and make it available to the poor people at not more than P0.95 per ganta.

President Garcia also congratulated NAMARCO Manager Jose Orosa for adopting a "foolproof" system of distribution.

In a report to the President this afternoon, Orosa explained that he had written all provincial governors and mayors alerting them of the system of distribution. The system as explained by Orosa follows: (1) A Constabulary soldier will accompany the rice shipment to its destination, (2) the NAMARCO wires the provincial officials the date that the rice had been shipped together with a statement of the amount of rice shipped and the selling price per ganta, (3) the provincial and town officials acknowledges the NAMARCO wire with a telegram of their own stating that they had checked on the NAMARCO distributor, and finally (4) the provincial and town officials are asked to watch the price of rice, nowhere in the country should it sell for more than P0.95 a ganta.

President Garcia this evening postponed his trip to Isabela and Cagayan provinces because of the typhoon and inclement weather in that area. His security officials informed the President that typhoon signals had been raised over the Cagayan Valley.

No definite date for the President's visit to Isabela and Cagayan provinces were announced.

July 14.—THE Chief Executive conferred early in the morning with Juan C. Pajo, chairman of the Philippine National Bank board of directors. They reportedly discussed Bohol politics.

After Pajo's call, Vice-Gov. Benigno S. Aquino of Tarlac came in for a conference with the President. A palace statement said "Ninoy" informed the President that the airstrip in Cauayan, Isabela, where President Garcia was to have landed on the first leg of a projected three-day stump of the Cagayan Valley, was under water. The President had cancelled the trip.

Teofilo Zosa, general manager of the Manila Railroad Company, also called to the President presumably to find out when the Chief Executive would be able to make the trip to Cagayan Valley.

The Cagayan Valley trip which the President cancelled was to have been highlighted by his laying of the cornerstone of the terminal of the proposed MRR extension line to Tuguegarao.

Towards noon Emiliano Melgazo, Leyte provincial board member, and Press Secretary Jose C. Nable called one after the other on the President.

Nable reportedly took up with the President the latest blast of Vice-President Macapagal against Malacañang.

President Garcia set an early Cabinet discussion of a new proposal of the National Economic Council to import an additional 180,230 metric tons of rice to remedy an expected shortage of the cereal for the month of August.

The President received from Jose C. Locsin, NEC chairman, a report justifying the need for more rice imports, in addition to the 100,000 metric tons already authorized by the Cabinet, part of which is now being re-sold in Manila.

July 15.—PRESIDENT Garcia took an early week-end respite from the usual grueling sessions with official callers. He kept much to himself in his study room in Malacañang.

The Chief Executive did not see any visitor after leaving specific instructions to his aides that he did not want to be disturbed. He devoted much of his time to studies of pending state papers.

In the afternoon President Garcia had a round of billiard games with Major Jose Estrella, junior presidential aide.

He then conferred with Press Secretary Jose C. Nable. The President informed Nable that he had ordered early start of work on the multi-million-peso extension of the Manila Railroad lines to Cagayan Valley. He said he had ordered Teofilo Zosa, MRR manager, to cause the immediate start of construction work. He conferred with Zosa earlier.

Zosa had earlier postponed work on the project in view of the inability of the President to make the scheduled weekend trip to Tuguegarao, Cagayan, to lay the cornerstone of the MRR terminal building in the capital town of Cagayan.

President's Week in Review: July 16-22, 1961

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

July 16.—PRESIDENT Garcia spent a quiet Sunday at Malacañang. In the morning he heard mass at the Malacañang chapel. After mass the President had his breakfast alone, as the First Lady had to attend a wedding ceremony. Then he spent some time with his granddaughter, Maricar, before he read the Sunday newspapers, after which he studied state papers until noontime.

Partaking of a light lunch, the President then rested and read the Holy Bible, which had been given to him by Francis Cardinal Spellman.

In the evening he attended the asalto held at the Malacañang social hall by Cabinet and Congress ladies in honor of Mrs. Garcia, who is celebrating her 55th birth anniversary today.

The special Cabinet committee on the development of the Mindanao, Sulu, and Palawan area submitted its five-year program proposal to President Garcia today.

The plan calls for a total expenditure of P1.23 billion, starting off with a P214 million initial outlay for 1962.

Private participation in the plan will constitute P530 million, or roughly 40 per cent of the total.

Chairman Jose C. Locsin of the National Economic Council, head of the special committee, said the program covers the development of agriculture, mining, and manufacturing on a precedent-setting scale; the development of transportation and communication, education and public health, community development; and the improvement of public administration skills and practices in the area.

The report said that the revenue would be taken from the Mindanao Development Authority, government revenue, reparations, foreign aid and loans, as well as particular allotments from the national government.

The lion's share of the program has been allotted to construction with P478 million, with manufacturing projects rating second with P276 million.

In agriculture the program calls for expansion of crop, livestock, and fish production; forest conservation and use; new approaches to development of agricultural estates; and a reexamination of the land tax patterns and leases.

July 17.—EARLIER this morning the President assisted the First Lady in celebrating the latter's 55th birth anniversary. They heard mass at Malacañang and received well-wishers.

In the afternoon the Chief Executive reenacted his signing last June 17 of a bill converting Mrs. Garcia's hometown, Opon, in Cebu, into a chartered city to be known as Lapu-Lapu City.

After the ceremony the President and the First Lady were entertained with a Happy Birthday program by the Garcia for Reelection Movement in Manila.

During the program the performance of Dominador, Alicia, and Domingo de Guzman 7, 5, and 3 years, respectively, who were accompanied on the guitar by their grandfather, Romulo San Jose, drew warm applause.

However, Maricar, the President's granddaughter stole the show when she shouted "again" at the end of an improvised piece called Reelect Garcia President.

Among the songs rendered by the De Guzman kids were “Happy Birthday To You,” “I Love You,” and “Abadabada,” which were rendered in their Tagalog versions.

The Malacañang Newsmen’ Association, led by its president, Mabini Rey Centeno, also greeted the First Lady in the afternoon and presented her with a gift.

This evening the President braced up for a scheduled meeting at 10 a.m. tomorrow with the Council of Leaders at his Bohol Avenue residence in Quezon City.

Principal figures in the conference will be the President himself and Senate President Eulogio Rodriguez, Sr., who has been agitating for the Council’s meeting so that his demand for reforms may be satisfied.

Palace sources said the President plotted up to this evening the strategy he would follow tomorrow, and boned up on background materials to cope with any surprise move the Amang make tomorrow.

July 18.—PRESIDENT Garcia conducted a marathon session today with members of the Council of Leaders in a formal sealing of his rapprochement with Senate President Eulogio Rodriguez, Sr.

The Chief Executive sat down with the Council of Leaders at 10 a.m. at the presidential private study room and they immediately plunged into business scheduled for the conference. The meeting broke up at 8:05 p.m.

The unforeseen extension of the Council of Leaders meeting prompted the President to cancel his afternoon engagements, including the scheduled presentation of the credentials of Korean Ambassador-designate Honko Lee.

The formal accreditation was re-scheduled for 5 o’clock tomorrow afternoon.

Before meeting the members of the Council of Leaders, the President received Dr. Maurice Galante, and Luis and Gregorio Lacson. The three were accompanied by the Senate President Protempore.

Earlier President Garcia authorized the release of P100,000 for the waterworks system of Padada, Davao, and P50,000 for the construction of feeder roads in the same municipality.

The President released the money after administering the oath of affiliation with the, Nacionalista Party to Mayor Gregorio M. Matas of Padada. Matas was also the district chairman of the Liberal Party in southern Davao. Present at the affiliation ceremony were Juan C. Pajo, chairman of the board of the Philippine National Bank; Rep. Bartolome Cabangbang of Bohol; Davao City Councilor Dominador Zuño; Niño Ramirez; Malacañang Executive Assistants Jose Ma. Rocha and Edilberto Gallares; and Gaudioso Tiongco.

July 19—PRESIDENT Garcia today scored again when he raided Liberal ranks and came out with three Liberal mayors and one vice-mayor wrapped up in the Nacionalista fold.

The President administered the oath of affiliation at Malacañang to the following Liberals from Camarines Sur; Mayor Jaime Sibulo of San Fernando, Mayor Napoleon Pendor of Del Gallego, Mayor Hilarion Rodriguesa of Bombon, and Vice-Mayor Francisco Binondo of Magarao.

The latest incursion of the President in the LP ranks leaves only two LP mayors in the first district of Camarines Sur while the Nacionalista ranks have swelled to ten.

The defection of the three LP mayors swung the balance of power from the LPs to the NPs in the municipal level from 18-18 tie to 21-15 advantage in the whole province.

The new NP converts who pledged to support the Garcia-Puyat ticket informed the President that in the near future other Liberals in their province are going to defect.

Earlier the President received a group of financiers who represented Don Julio Muñoz and whose purpose is to invest capital to accelerate the industrialization program of the President.

Given the proper incentives, the foreign financiers are willing to invest up to $50 million in the Philippines, according to a spokesman of the group.

The financiers whose headquarters is in Geneva, Switzerland, represent financiers from Great Britain, Switzerland, and Spain.

The group was composed of Dr. Jaime Ferrer, Justice Salvador Viado, and Prof. Antonio de Luna, who were accompanied to Malacañang by Santiago Abraham, president of the Ajax International (Philippines), and Jose Llamas.

The President also received Gov. Felipe Garduque of Cagayan with whom he discussed some pressing problems of the province.

This afternoon the President directed the Presidential Committee on Administration Performance Efficiency to look into the case of one, Antonio R. Pigar, temporary letter-carrier of Binalbagan, Negros Occidental, who had allegedly been discriminated against in his bid for re-appointment to the same job he occupied for more than five years, until laid-off for lack of funds.

The Chief Executive issued the directive to Justice Buenaventura Ocampo, PCAPE chairman, after reading the letter of appeal sent him by Pigar.

The letter-carrier informed the President that when the position of letter-carrier was re-created, another person who is also a non-eligible like him was allegedly given undue preference despite his "better qualifications" both in length of service and educational attainment.

The other candidate to the position is not even a high school graduate and, even though he had also worked as letter-carrier for the same municipality, his experience as such, is sorter, compared to his experience, Pigar said.

President Garcia today underscored his concern for the welfare of labor, not only because of its vital role in the country's economic development but because labor is less fortunate and deserves more benefit than many other sectors of the populace.

The President added that labor is the counterpart of capital in building up the economy and that, without labor, capital is useless; so labor must receive its just due from the benefits of progress and prosperity brought about by economic development.

The President made those observations before some 50 labor leaders from Mountain Province who called on him to express their gratitude for his approval of the Gold Subsidy bill and to pledge their unconditional support to his re-election in November.

The delegation which was accompanied to Malacañang this afternoon by Rep. Ramon P. Mitra. Sr., and Gov. Bado Dangwa of Mountain Province, included Engrs. P. Quinto and J. S. Perfecto of Benguet Consolidated, Inc.; Abraham Brillantes and Marcos Danaguin, president and vice-president, respectively of Bohok Lumberjacks Association; Ernesto, Abraham and Ramon Lanag, president and vice-president, respectively, Baguio Gold Mining Laborers Union Crispin Ballang, president of Itogon Mining Labor Union; Mariano Dula and Simplicio Hiquiana, president and secretary, respectively, Benguet Exploration Miners Union; and the following members of the board of Benguet-Balatoc Workers Union: Vicente Oximana, president; James Lucero, vice-president; Benjamin Dumo, secretary; Teodorico Calica, assistant to the president; Gregorio Adaci; Juan Calub and Fernando Aoanan.

Before proceeding to the Cabinet meeting, the President received Harry Welker, editor of the New York Herald-Tribune Syndicate, who came to pay his respects to the Chief Executive. Welker is leaving Monday for Hongkong and Tokyo after spending a week in the Philippines gathering materials on the local election campaign for a series of articles on the Far East.

President Garcia and Korean Ambassador-designate Honkon Lee this afternoon reaffirmed their countries' determination to continue the struggle against communism and the maintenance of their freedom and independence.

The Philippine Chief Executive and the new Korean ambassador exchanged pledges at the presentation of the latter's letters of credence at the Malacañang ceremonial hall this afternoon at 5 p.m.

In reply to the ambassador's cordial greetings and request for close cooperation between the two governments, the President recalled Philippine participation in Korea's struggle for independence and in her fight for membership in the United Nations, and assured him of the full cooperation of the entire Philippine officialdom.

The new ambassador of Korea is a young general of 41 years, a professional soldier who rose to chief of staff of the ROK army before retiring in 1957 to become national commander of the Korean Veterans Association. He succeeds former Ambassador Lincoln Hoon Kim.

The Korean ambassador was accompanied to Malacañang by Minister Pedro Angara-Aragon; Col. Young Juhng Pak, Korean military attache; Consul Choong Whay Koo; and Third Secretary Sung Moo Park of the Korean embassy in Manila.

Among those present at the presentation ceremonies were Executive Secretary Natalio P. Castillo, Secretaries Florencio Moreno of Public Works, Alejo Santos of Defense, Elpidio Valencia of Health, Manuel Lim of Commerce, and Serafin Salvador of General Services, Chairman Jose C. Locsin of the National Economic Council, Paulino J. Garcia of the National Science Development Board, Buenaventura Ocampo of the Presidential Committee on Administration Performance Efficiency, Lugum Uka of National Integration, Foreign Affairs Undersecretary Fructuoso Cabahug, Assistant Executive Secretary Enrique C. Quema, and Ministers Manuel G. Zamora and Manuel Collantes.

The importation of another 100,000 metric tons of rice to lower prices was approved by the Cabinet this evening.

The additional rice, estimated to cost $12 million, is expected to fill the expected shortage for the months of August and September.

President Garcia created a five-man committee to study the financing aspects of the transaction and to find out if the Philippines can take advantage of the farm surplus program of the United States government.

The Chief Executive pointed out as a possibility, the tapping of a group of European financiers who had indicated a willingness to invest up to $50 million to help ease the financial difficulties of the country. The financiers called on the President earlier today.

Members of the committee chairmanned by Commerce Secretary Manuel Lim are NEC Chairman Jose Locsin, Finance Secretary Dominador Aytona, Economic Administrator Juan O. Chioco, and Foreign Affairs Undersecretary Fructuoso Cabahug.

The Cabinet decision was based on the certification of the NEC that there would be a total shortage of 1.127 million cavans of rice in July; 1.802 million cavans in August; and 1.323 million cavans in September.

July 20.—PRESIDENT Garcia today issued an administrative order prohibiting public officers and employees from entering into certain kinds of official transaction with spouses and relatives of the President, Vice-President, Senate President, and Speaker of the House of Representatives.

Administrative Order No. 359, which was signed by the President this afternoon is in pursuance to Republic Act No. 3019, otherwise known as the Anti-Graft and Corrupt Practice Law.

The order prohibits public officers and employees from dealing directly or indirectly with relatives of the four high government officials either by affinity or consanguinity up to the third civil degree “in any business, transaction, contract, or application with the government or any other matter calling for action or decision by such officers or employees.”

The President in his order warned that any officer or employee of the government or of government-owned or controlled corporations found violating the prohibition shall be “dealt with accordingly.”

Under section 5 of Republic Act No. 3019, known as the Anti-Graft and Corrupt Practices Act, it is unlawful for same relatives of these four high government officials to intervene, directly or indirectly, in the same type of transactions with the government.

This particular provision, however, does not apply to persons who, prior to the assumption of office of the officials to whom they are related, have already been dealing with the government along the same lines of transaction, nor to transaction already existing or pending at the time of assumption to office of the officials.

Neither does this provision of law apply to any application the approval of which is not discretionary on the part of the official concerned but depends upon compliance with requisites provided by law, or rules or regulations issued pursuant to law, nor to any act lawfully performed in an official capacity or in the exercise of a profession.

The President today directed the Department of Justice to give full legal assistance in the criminal prosecution of violators of the ceiling price law.

The presidential directive was issued after President Garcia ordered the immediate prosecution of a Quezon City NAMARCO retailer who was allegedly found selling NAMARCO rice at P1.20 in violation of a presidential directive to sell the imported cereal at P0.85.

The NAMARCO retailer whose identity was not disclosed was apprehended by Vicente Hechanova, team leader of the PCAPE-Department of Commerce agents engaged in “operation normal prices” campaign waged by the government to prevent the hoarding and overpricing of prime commodities.

The President again took occasion to renew his appeal to the people to report any irregularity or violation in the sale of the NAMARCO rice and urged them to make use of the “ten-centavo” telegram in filing their complaint directly with him or with the PCAPE.

He emphasized that all-out cooperation of consumers would insure successful distribution of the imported rice.

The case of the NAMARCO retailer was submitted to the legal panel of the Commerce Department preparatory to the formal filing of the charges before the Quezon City fiscal’s office.

Under Republic Act No. 4164, persons engaged in the retail business of prime commodities are required to price prime commodities in accordance with the ceiling price law. Any person or retailer found violating this requirement will be penalized with a fine ranging from P200 to not more than P2,000 or six months imprisonment or both.

July 21.—PRESIDENT Garcia today rejected outright all possible Russian moves to open diplomatic relations with the Philippines.

The President's rejection was a strong reiteration of his policy that, as long as he is President of the Republic, he would not entertain any proposal towards opening diplomatic relations with the Soviet Union.

In a telephone conversation with Foreign Affairs Secretary Felixberto M. Serrano early this morning, the President consulted Serrano about the news reports from Filipino newsmen now on a tour of Russia that "the Soviet Union is ready anytime to establish diplomatic relations with the Philippines." The newsmen's report quoted as their source Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Nicolai Phirubin.

The President left at 7 o'clock this evening on board the yacht Lapu-Lapu for a seven-day barnstorming tour of five southern Tagalog island provinces. These are Romblon, Masbate, Marinduque, to Mindoro Occidental and Mindoro Oriental.

The Chief Executive was accompanied by Mrs. Leonila D. Garcia, political leaders, and wives of Cabinet members senators, and congressmen.

President Garcia continued working on pending state papers in efforts to clear his desk before he pulled out for the island provinces in the evening.

July 22.—PRESIDENT Garcia was in a fighting mood today, obviously elated by the elimination of a thorny problem to the Nacionalista Party election drive: the formulation of a senatorial slate.

Rising early from a good night's rest, the President wrested from newsmen, during an informal press conference aboard the RPS Lapu-Lapu the initiative in commenting on current political issues.

The Chief Executive did not need much prodding in answering his opposition rival's criticism of his administrative order banning relatives of the President, the Vice-President, the Senate President, and the Speaker from certain government transactions.

Vice-President Diosdado Macapagal was quoted as having declared that President Garcia should have followed the late President Magsaysay's example" by issuing the ban upon assuming the presidency four years ago.

"Obviously," the President fumed, "Macapagal is ignorant of the fact that Republic Act 3019 (Anti-Graft and Corrupt Practices Law) was enacted only last year and my administrative order is grounded on that status rather than an imitation of President Magsaysay."

"I'm no carbon copy of Ramon Magsaysay," President Garcia stressed as he explained that he could not have revived the Magsaysay ban before the passage of the anti-graft law because he considered it "untenable from the legal point of view."

President Garcia observed that the Magsaysay ban was issued without benefit of a thorough legal study and had the effect of completely denying the President's relatives access to their government.

"But with the passage of the anti-graft law," he added, "the situation is entirely different since the statute now pinpoints specific transactions in the government which presidential kin may not engage in."

President talked to newsmen shortly before he disembarked in Odiongan, Romblon, to address a morning rally at the local plaza.

In his stumping speech President Garcia accused Vice-President Macapagal of doing nothing concrete for the masses.

"Will hand-shaking solve the problems of the nation?" the President asked with sarcasm.

Odiongan is the first stop of the President's seven-day stumping tour in Romblon, Masbate, Mindoro Oriental, Mindoro Occidental, Catanduanes, and Marinduque.

President Garcia covered some 54 kilometers of territory, including Odiongan, Despujol, Calatrava, San Agustin, and Romblon towns with two major rallies and two whistle stops.

With the presidential party are Secretary of Public Works Florencio Moreno, Rep. Jose D. Moreno, Mrs. Garcia, Secretary Dominador Aytona, Press Secretary Jose C. Nable, Mrs. Daniel Z. Romualdez, Mrs. Elpidio Valencia, Mrs. Isagani V. Campo, and other high officials.

President Garcia, in his speech, warned that the return of the Liberals to power would restore a regime of terror.

The President administered the path of affiliation with the Nacionalista Party of 92 Liberal Party leaders in Romblon, among them ex-Mayor Federico Maaba, ex-Councilor Andres Pitalino, Celso Balqueza, and Policarpio and Antonio Mongari.

In San Agustin, Odiongan, and Romblon towns the President cited progress attained by the nation during the NP regime, including improved living conditions of the rural people and unprecedented advance in industry.

President Garcia today proclaimed Tuesday, July 25, 1961, as College Editors' Day. The proclamation was issued in conjunction with the pearl anniversary of the College Editors' Guild.

The President cited in his proclamation the College Editors' Guild for having been "instrumental in fostering closer understanding among our student constituencies, insuring freedom of the college press, encouraging good literature, elevating the standards of collegiate journalism, and rendering service to the country through the dissemination of knowledge and information."

President's Week in Review: July 23-29, 1961

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

July 23.—THE President crisscrossed Masbate in a whole day stumping tour which started in Cataingan town at 8 this morning and wound up with tonight's rally in Masbate, Masbate. He motored a total of 70 kilometers, delivering speeches in population centers on the way.

The President noted that like Romblon, where he campaigned the whole day yesterday Masbate is predominantly Nacionalista in sentiment.

President Garcia woke up early aboard the Lapu-Lapu this morning and partook of a hearty breakfast. He was in a jolly mood as he assessed the political situation with newsmen covering his trip, his third barnstorming tour since his nomination as reelectionist NP standard bearer last June 3.

As usual the President exuded optimism of NP victory in the November 14 polls and he gave another reason for his confidence. He cited what he called the weakness of the Liberal Party at the grassroots level.

Asked to elaborate on his estimate; of the situation, the President called attention to the failure of the Liberal Party until now, he said, to complete its lineup for the 120 congressional districts. He quickly attributed such "failure" to the reluctance of good candidates to carry the LP banner in the electoral contest.

"That is suicidal," said the President, as he argued that: congressional candidates are important in the overall scheme of the national-elections because they carry the brunt of the barrio-to-barrio campaign for the national ticket.

The Chief Executive claimed that the situation in the Nacionalista Party camp was the exact opposite because in, almost all congressional districts; several candidates are vying for the chance to bear the NP banner;

At this juncture, he pointed to former Chronicle political reporter Francisco "Kiko" Dipasupil, who wants to be the official NP candidate for, the second congressional seat of Batangas, along with incumbent Rep. Numeriano U. Babao and several others.

The President wished Dipasupil good luck and virtually assured him of his blessings. President Garcia himself invited the former newsman to join him in his current vote-winning drive.

President Garcia sailed for Marinduque tonight aboard RPS Lapu-Lapu confident of having sewed up the votes of Masbate for the Nacionalista ticket.

July 24.—PRESIDENT Garcia breezed through dangerous grounds today as he stumped in Boac, Marinduque at the height of the rivalry between the warring Nacionalista Party factions headed by Gov. Miguel Manguera and reelectionist Rep. Francisco Lecaroz.

The President had a hard time steering clear of the raging intramurals, which he described in Masbate yesterday as proof of Nacionalista strength at the grassroots. He has welcomed as a good sign the fact that many seek the NP congressional candidacies.

Gov Manguera, the President was informed is pitting Edmundo Reyes against Rep Lecaroz, who is reported to have the backing of no less than Speaker Daniel Z. Romualdez. Both factions are fighting to get the NP election inspectors.

The intra-party wrangling, however, did not prevent President Garcia from winning more converts for the Nacionalista Party. In between whistlestops today he administered the oath of affiliation with the NP to Buenavista Mayor Claudio M. Mabunga and his Liberal followers.

The defection of the Mabunga group left the Liberal Party with only one municipal mayor in the entire province of Marinduque.

The President capitalized on the defection to bolster his claim that his visit in Marinduque has turned the political tide in favor of the Nacionalista.

The Chief Executive was an inspired man as he reiterated his pledge to see to it that the November 14 elections are free, clean, and orderly.

“I would rather lose in an untainted election than win in a poll marked by dishonesty and terrorism,” declared President Garcia in major speeches.

He then recalled “the rape of democracy” during the Liberal Party regime, citing such infamous cases as the killing of the Nacua brothers in Cebu and the Moises Padilla tragedy in Negros Occidental.

Attacking his LP rival, the President asked his audiences where Vice-President Macapagal was at the time, and what he was doing to stop the trampling of civil rights.

“Macapagal stood aloof to the challenges of the time,” the President charged;

The presidential party landed at Sta. Cruz town at 9 this morning aboard the RPS Lapu-Lapu from Masbate. From Sta. Cruz President Garcia traversed Marinduque, whistlestopping in population centers until he reached Boac. He sailed for Mindoro Occidental tonight from the municipal port of Balanacan.

July 25.—PRESIDENT Garcia today stumped Liberal-controlled province of Mindoro Occidental where he made definite gains by his visit.

With a potential voting population of 25,000, the President expected to receive 55 per cent of the votes. He delivered a major political speech in the town plaza where a huge crowd heard him defend the Administration against opposition attacks.

Emphasizing the unequalled record of the Administration in its service to the people and country, the President warned against the return of the Liberals to power which, he said, would signal the return of wholesale looting of the nation’s wealth and poll frauds, such as those committed in 1949.

The Chief Executive also squarely faced the issue of rising prices of prime commodities, explaining that this was merely a worldwide trend which naturally affects the Philippines.

The President was met by provincial and town party officials. A colorful fluvial parade of gaily decorated bancas and fishing boats met the RPS Lapu-Lapu as it steamed into port late this afternoon.

The President will stump in Mindoro Oriental the whole day tomorrow before returning to Manila.

July 26.—OVERWHELMED by the spontaneous and unprecedentedly large welcome at Pinamalayan earlier this morning, the President said that he felt proud and happy that he had justified the confidence of the people of the province who gave him a big majority in the 1957 elections by keeping his promise for the improvement of their lot.

The President and party arrived in Pinamalayan at 9:30 a.m. and were met at an improvised wharf by 10,000 cheering people headed by Dominador Madrid, ex-Rep. Conrado Morente, NP Congressional Candidate Jose Leido, Jr., and a host of others.

From the wharf the President and the First Lady proceeded to the Church for Te Deum and later held conferences with local officials at the municipal building.

After speaking briefly at the rally, the President had lunch at Mayor Madrid's residence before boarding the RPS Lapu-Lapu for Calapan.

In Calapan the President, accompanied by the First Lady and Constancio Leuterio, received another rousing welcome. He proceeded to church for Te Deum and later conferred with local officials.

President Garcia today renewed his challenge to the opposition to lay aside negative thinking and destructive criticism for constructive proposals as he wound up his week-long island-hopping in Calapan, Mindoro Oriental.

After addressing a rally and dinner at Rep. Leido's residence, the President boarded the Lapu-Lapu for the return trip to Manila.

The President and the First Lady wired from the Lapu-Lapu their condolence to the surviving member of the family of Court Appeals Justice Manuel Mejia, who perished with his wife and seven children in a fire which gutted their house in Malate.

Julieta, 14, a sixth grade pupil of barrio Subaan, Pula, is suffering from brain tumor followed by gradual loss of hearing and eyesight as well as severe headache.

Mrs. Gertrudes Nolasco, the mother, said she first noticed symptoms in May this year and had unsuccessfully tried to secure treatment locally. The child's parents are poor farmers.

Upon being told of the case of the girl at his conference with Pinamalayan municipal officials, the President directed Dr. Antonio Guytingco, presidential physician, to diagnose the case. Dr. Guytingco recommended the immediate airlifting of Julieta to Manila.

July 27.—THE President arrived shortly after 9 a.m. today from a five-day stumping tour of the five southern provinces and was met by political leaders from Manila, Occidental Negros, Samar, Nueva Ecija, and Capiz, with whom he conferred briefly on local matters.

President Garcia expressed confidence that he is going to win in the provinces of Romblon, Masbate, Marinduque, Mindoro Oriental, and Mindoro Occidental at a conference with Speaker Daniel Z. Romualdez and House Majority Floor Leader Rep. Jose Aldeguer, who met him upon his arrival on board the RPS Lapu-Lapu.

Among the welcomers from Manila were Mrs. Marina Francisco, widow of the late Rep. Augusto Francisco of the fourth district, and Councilors Alfredo Gomez, Gonzalo-Santos Rivera, Francisco Gatmaitan, Eriberto Remigio, and Vicente Cruz.

Gov. Valeriano Gatuslao led a delegation of Negros Occidental NP leaders composed of Board Member N. Jocson, Jose Espino, Ramoncito Padilla, Placido Esteban, and Francis Medel, who conferred on local matters with the President.

Other callers were Vice-Gov. Inday Melencio of Nueva Ecija, former Rep. Carmen D. Consing, former Gov. Jose Dinglasan of Capiz, and Reps. Eladio Balite and Valeriano Yancha of Samar.

From the Lapu-Lapu, the President motored to the Funeraria National to express personally his condolences to the surviving members of the family of the late Justice Manuel Mejia, who met a tragic death, together with his wife and seven children, in an early morning fire which completely destroyed his home in Maytubig, Malate, yesterday.

The President this day ordered the chairman of the Board of Liquidators to facilitate the release of two parcels of land located in Davao and Cotabato so that the P300, 000 government coffee processing plant could be immediately constructed in these provinces.

The Chief Executive issued the directive upon being informed by Justice Buenaventura Ocampo, PCAPE chairman, that the Agricultural Credit and Cooperative Financing Administration, in collaboration with the International Cooperative Administration, has all the machinery and construction materials ready to cut up the plant. The plant site is still under consideration.

In a conference between ACCFA Administrator Vicente Araneta and PCAPE Chairman Maximo Maceren, Araneta said that check for P70,000 will be flown to Davao, Monday, by an ACCFA official and the President the Coffee Growers Cooperative Marketing Association to be used in the purchase of coffee beans produced in that region. The purchase of the coffee beans by the COGCOMA through the ACCFA on a commodity loan basis is being undertaken to assist coffee growers in obtaining a better price for their beans.

July 28.—THIS noon the President stated that it is essential to increase rice and corn production in this country not only to maintain self-sufficiency but also to keep cereal prices within the reach of the lower income sections of the population.

The President made the statement at Malacañang Park after awarding the prizes to the winners of the third national rice and corn production contest.

“When we have increased production and kept prices down, then we can claim that we really have achieved something,” the President said.

The President took the opportunity to congratulate the winners for increasing the yield in their farms when before the Nacionalista administration was returned to power, it was considered impossible to harvest 50 cavans of palay per hectare.

He cited with satisfaction that Victor de los Reyes, winner in Category III (over 15 hectares) had an average yield of 282 cavans of palay a hectare, which is a far cry from the yield of 182.64 cavans a hectare registered by Felmington Dorado, of Calauan, Laguna, winner of the same category in 1958, when the contest started.

Decrying the fact that many big palay planters were not happy at the efforts of the government to maintain the price of rice at P0.85 per ganta, the President pointed out the example of other Asian countries that kept the prices down in order to keep the masses well-fed and contented.

He added that there is no reason why the Philippines cannot keep prices down through an increased yield.

This afternoon the President moved swiftly to cut down on illegal logging in Bataan by directing the PCAPE to cancel all existing timber licenses in that province.

The Chief Executive based his directive on a recommendation and report of the Inter-departmental Committee on Forest Conservation submitted to him by Justice Buenaventura Ocampo, PCAPE chairman.

The directive was recommended as a counter-measure to check the discriminate cutting of timber in that province and to make it easier for police authorities to apprehend timber smugglers.

At the same time the President directed Justice Ocampo to forward a copy of the findings and recommendation of the special committee to the Bureau of Forestry for immediate implementation.

The Forest committee, in recommending the cancellation of all licenses in the province, based its finding on the report that the Bataan can no longer yield timber in commercial quantities.

To be effected by the order for cancellation of licenses are forest areas in the towns of Dinalupihan, Limay, Mariveles, and Orani, covering some 5,000 hectares and granted previously to seven persons.

President Garcia today called the Cabinet to a special meeting tomorrow at 10:00 a.m. to clear a backlog of pending state matters among these, petition of the Estero Sunog Apog (Tondo) for allocation.

The President called the meeting before he received president Eduardo Romualdez of the Philippine National Bank, who accompanied chairman George D. Woods of the First Boston Corporation.

After receiving the visiting American businessman, the President received a delegation of officials of the Boy Scouts of the Philippines (Cavite Council) who asked for the release of funds for the construction of the Boy Scouts headquarters in Cavite City.

The delegation led by Gov Delfin Montano and members of the Provincial Board of Cavite, was assured that the President would study the release of the amount of P127, 000 appropriated in the 1961 Public Works Act for the purpose.

At the same time, the President lauded the youth movement of the BSP as an effective way to combat juvenile delinquency in the Philippines.”

This afternoon the President called eight senatorial candidates and top Nacionalista Party leaders to a strategy conference in Malacañang tomorrow morning.

This will be the first formal meeting of the senatorial candidates with the President since they were elected by the party’s executive committee.

The President invited the candidates to breakfast in Malacañang at 8 tomorrow morning. They are expected to map out a stepped up and saturation campaign for the remaining period prior to election day.

The conferees are likewise expected to discuss other party problems.

Invited to the conference are the vice-presidential candidate, Senator Gil J. Puyat; senatorial reelectionists Lorenzo Sumulong, Quintin Paredes, Pedro Sabido, Pacita Madrigal Gonzalez, Domocao Alonto, and Decorao Rosales; Labor Secretary Angel Castaño and Rep. Jose J. Roy of Tarlac; Senate President Eulogio Rodriguez; and Speaker Daniel Romualdez.

July 29.—AT a breakfast conference this morning President Garcia and top Nacionalista leaders adopted definite measures to step up the pace of the campaign for the remaining 100 days prior to election day. The President and the other candidates for national positions were brimming with confidence in winning the elections.

In rapid succession the leaders agreed to:

- (1) Proclaim as official candidates the eight senatorial aspirants in a public rally in Plaza Moriones, Tondo, August 18;
- (2) Confirmed the proposal of NP strategists to split the eight senatorial candidates into three teams, one to be led personally by the vice-presidential hopeful, Sen. Gil J. Puyat;
- (3) Adopted a time table for a systematic and effective campaign that would send all candidates stumping in all provinces; and

(4) Discussed ways and means of outlawing any attempt of candidates, whether for national or local office, to campaign solely for himself. The conferees agreed that the campaign line would be for a straight NP ticket from President down to congressman.

Senate President Rodriguez warned against the dangers of candidates going it alone. He stressed the importance of campaigning for the whole ticket.

President Garcia informed the NP leaders of his own assessment of the political situation in all the places he has so far visited, covering to date northern Mindanao and part of the Visayas and Luzon. President Garcia invited the leaders to a breakfast conference in Malacañang.

Present were Vice-Presidential Candidate Puyat, Senate President Eulogio Rodriguez, Sneaker Daniel Z. Romualdez, Speaker Protempore Constancio Castañeda, senatorial candidates Lorenzo Sumulong, Quintin Paredes, Pacita Madrigal-Gonzalez, Domocao Alonto, and Pedro Sabido. Secretary Castaño who was reported campaigning in Leyte, Sen. Decoroso Rosales, campaigning in Central Luzon, and Rep. Jose Roy were unable to attend. Also present were Gov. Esteban Bernido of Bohol and Legislative Secretary Vicente Logarta.

President Garcia and the Cabinet approved today the proposed importation of high-grade U.S. Virginia leaf tobacco as a means of improving local products and to enable the ACCFA to dispose of its huge stocks of low-grade Leal Virginia tobacco and pay its indebtedness to the Central Bank and farmers.

Importation of high-grade Virginia tobacco for blending purposes was proposed by a Cabinet committee which pointed out that the ACCFA had to dispose of its huge stocks of low-grade Virginia leaf tobacco aggregating some 49 million kilo! to enable it to settle its P155 million outstanding obligations to the Central Bank and the farmers.

The committee which had been created to study Problems connected with the disposition of the ACCFA stocks and which had submitted its final report at the Cabinet meeting today was composed of Agriculture Secretary Cesar M. Fortich, chairman; and Finance Secretary Dominador Aytona, Justice Secretary Alejo Mabanag, Labor Secretary Angel Castaño, and Commerce Secretary Manuel Lim, as members.

The President, at a special meeting of his Cabinet at Malacañang this noon, underscored the urgency of disposing the stocks to enable the agency to liquidate its indebtedness to the Central Bank and the farmers, and maintain the high quality of local tobacco products.

He said that the deteriorating quality of local products had been held responsible for the rampant smuggling of foreign-made cigarettes and resulted to loss of revenue estimated at P4 million in three months. The President expressed fear that in a year this loss might be multiplied to as much as six times which, he said, the government could all afford owing to heavy budgetary requirements this year.

President Garcia this noon expressed his gratitude to the members of the League of Governors and City Mayors for assuming a major role in the electoral fight and "making the victory of the Nacionalista Party ticket much earlier".

The President was the guest of honor and main speaker at ceremonies marking the inauguration of the League's national campaign headquarters on Dakota Street, Malate.

The role to be played by the provincial and city executives in the national election is "an indication that the Nacionalista Party will achieve another victory in November," the President added.

In answer to the clamor of the members of the League, the President stated that "further improvement of the local autonomy act is meritorious."

At the same time, the President pleaded to the League's members to work for the victory of a straight NP ticket in their respective localities.

Present at the inaugural ceremonies of the League's headquarters were Senate President Eulogio Rodriguez, Speaker Daniel Z. Romualdez, and Sens. Gil J. Puyat, Pacita Madrigal Gonzalez, Domocao Alonto, Lorenzo Sumulong, Quintin Paredes, and Pedro Sabido.

The President was introduced by Gov. Isidro Rodriguez of Rizal in his capacity as chairman of the League.

Before leaving for the inaugural ceremonies, the President received at Malacañang officials of the Music Promotion Foundation of the Philippines and music lovers led by Jovita Fuentes, and assured them that the corner stone of the National Theatre will be laid before November.

Before leaving for the inaugural ceremonies, the President received at Malacañang officials of the Music Foundation of the Philippines led by Jovita Fuentes. He assured them that the cornerstone of the National Theatre will be laid before November.

In the evening the President was again a guest speaker—this time at ceremonies marking the 30th anniversary of the College Editor's Guild at the Winter Garden, Manila Hotel.

A feature of the evening called for his handing an award to Liberal Vice-Presidential Candidate Emmanuel Pelaez as the "most distinguished alumnus" of the CEG.

President's Week in Review: July 30 - August 5, 1961

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

July 30.—PRESIDENT Garcia today ordered the disbursement of P68 million for the redemption of backpay certificates already processed under the new system of assessing claims.

In a directive addressed to Finance Secretary Dominador Aytona, the President said that he had received complaints from holders of backpay certificates in Manila and in the provinces over the delay in the payment of their claims.

The President expressed hope that with the adoption of the IBM system instituted by Secretary Aytona, processing of the claims would be greatly facilitated and the claimants paid as early as possible.

The Chief Executive had previously directed the revision of processing procedures which, he observed, had been rather slow.

President Garcia today granted another 30-day reprieve to Antonio Yu, alias Sostenes Yongco, in order to give the Board of Pardons and Parole more time to study his petition for commutation of sentence from death penalty to life imprisonment.

The Chief Executive, however, approved the execution of the death sentence imposed on two other prisoners on the recommendation of the board. The prisoners are Eutiquio Yamson, alias Eustaquio Yamson, and Primo Romero, who had been meted out the supreme penalty by the Rizal court of first instance which was affirmed by the Supreme Court.

These three convicts had previously petitioned the Chief Executive for the commutation of their death sentences. The President had referred their petitions to the Board of Pardons and Parole for its recommendation.

President Garcia woke up early and heard mass with the First Lady at the Malacañang chapel.

The President then had breakfast. After a brief rest, he brushed up with his golf at the Malacañang golf course. He played with Dr. Antonio Guytingco, Dr. Alejandro Gaerlan, and retired Censor Director Leon Ma. Gonzales.

The President also received pledges of support from two big delegations, one from Negros Occidental which supports the candidacy of Macario Zafra in the congressional district of the province and a 50-man delegation of NP ward leaders from the Manila fourth district who endorse the candidacy of Mrs. Marina Francisco for the congressional seat vacated by her late husband. The Negros Occidental delegation headed by Zafra and Jose O. Macasa included members of the Liberal Party and some followers of independent candidates, among them Dr. Aniceto Parreño and Amado A. Parreño and Reynaldo C. The Presidential Medal was conferred on Abey for his "enterprising leaders of the worldwide service club" which has a membership of over 2,000 in the Philippines dedicated to the promotion of international goodwill and community betterment.

In a report to the President on operation of the DBP covering the fiscal year June 30, 1961, Chairman Gregorio S. Licaros described the bank's operations as "satisfactory."

Particular emphasis was made by President Garcia on the bank's assistance to farmers. He said continued emphasis should be made on this particular policy which is within the sphere of the Administration's program to attain self-sufficiency in food.

The President also noted with pride that more private capital are being invested which may be interpreted as a sign of confidence in the stability of the government.

August 1.—PRESIDENT Garcia today received another boost in his re-election bid with the mass induction into the Nacionalista Party of former Liberal Party leaders of Zambales.

In bolting the opposition and joining the NP, the 37 new Nacionalista partymen informed the President they had decided to join Gov. Juan Triviño and Liberal Party Board Member Vicente Bonot of Camarines Sur; and Reps. Wenceslao R. Lagumbay of Laguna and Benjamin Ligot of Cagayan, who took up problems of their respective districts with the Chief Executive.

The President today showed a firm determination to continue his fight against graft and corruption by relieving the director of the Bureau of Printing and the justice of the peace of Urdaneta, Pangasinan.

Printing Director Mariano Ledesma was found by the three-man probe committee headed by Justice Undersecretary Enrique Fernandez guilty of mismanagement, gross negligence, and incompetence, based on specific acts of overpricing and overstocking, supplies and incurring huge overdrafts.

In considering Ledesma resigned from his post effective on the date of his preventive suspension, the Chief Executive took cognizance of Ledesma's over 40 years of public service' and allowed him to enjoy his retirement privileges. He was suspended on September 24, 1960.

In his administrative order the Chief Executive concurred in the findings of the committee composed of Undersecretary Fernandez, Maj. Teodulo Natividad of the PCAPE, and Laureao A. Ferrer of the General Auditing Office.

Specifically, Ledesma was found guilty of overstocking in the requisition of the following supplies:

- (1) 6,000 reams of white writing paper in November and December of 1959, which would take three years to consume;
- (2) Ledger buff paper which would take the bureau 30 years to consume;
- (3) Book cloth requisitioned in September and November, 1959, which will take 10 years to consume; and
- (4) Large quantities of various envelopes, glue, and metal fasteners for which there was little use.

The committee found it hard to believe that Ledesma, who had attended many Committee on Awards meetings; used the phrases "urgent" and "for immediate delivery" indiscriminately on his requisitions even when there was no immediate need for the supplies.

The committee said that such phrases furnished ready justification for dispensing with the required public bidding in which case the bureau could have got the lowest price for the supplies.

The committee cited specific instances in which the bureau lost plenty owing to overpricing as a result of Ledesma's certifications.

The committee also found, the bureau to have incurred the following overdrafts from June 30, 1956, to September 30, 1960: June 30, 1956, P1,054,468.41; 1957, P1,491,119.46; 1958, P2,393,442.96; 1959, P2,232,135.05; June. 30, 1960, P3,675,393.93; and Sept. 30, 1960, P3,178,565.95.

In another administrative order the President considered Melecio E. Bongolan resigned from office as justice of the peace of Urdaneta, Pangasinan, effective upon receipt of the order, on recommendation of the secretary of justice.

The district judge who investigated the case against Bongolan found the latter guilty of abuse of authority, partiality, gross ignorance of the law, and rank inefficiency.

Bongolan was charged with grave abuse of authority and utter disregard of his sworn duty to administer justice impartially, in Criminal Case 1239 which he dismissed when the witnesses for the prosecution failed to appear on the date set for original hearing which had been reset at a later date by him.

Other cases cited were:

- (1) Crim. Case 1353 in which Florida Andaya filed charges for less serious physical injuries against Diosdado Caoagdan, which the justice of the peace also dismissed on the pretext that Andaya failed to show how and by whom she was wounded, despite' the contrary;

(2) Crim. Case 1118, in which the justice of the peace dismissed a case for less serious physical injuries against Eusebio Bernales and. ordered the filing of case for serious-physical injuries, which was turned down by the Pangasinan court of first, instance on the ground of double jeopardy; and

(3) Cr. C. 1060 and Civ. 193—the first allowed to drag on for almost two years with 20 postponements, while the latter was postponed for seven months.

August 2.—BEFORE leaving for the South this evening President Garcia appointed Fernando Dizon as acting deputy commissioner of the Budget Commission.

The Budget Commission has been without a deputy commissioner for almost two years following the transfer of Secretary Aytona to the Department of Finance and the elevation of Deputy Commissioner Faustino Sy-Changco to the commissionership.

President Garcia in appointing Dizon took into consideration his 37 years of efficient public service.

Starting as a P40 a month clerk in the Bureau of Audits, Dizon became the chief of the Budget Operation Service of the Budget Commission five years ago, which position he held until his new appointment as deputy commissioner.

A Bachelor of Commercial Science at the Jose Rizal College, the new acting deputy commissioner of the budget also studied budgeting in the United States in 1952 as an ICA pensionado in public administration.

In the ECAFE Conference held in Bangkok in 1957 he was chosen the Philippine delegate in the field of budgeting.

Immediately following the signing of the appointment papers by Executive Secretary Natalio P. Castillo, Commissioner Sy-Changco inducted Dizon into office and hailed his appointment as the triumph of the merit system in the government service.

President Garcia today spent the day quietly in his cabin working on state papers he had brought along with him from Manila.

The yacht Lapu-Lapu cruised at a leisurely pace in an unusually smooth sea as it approached Palawan.

The President worked continuously, stopping only during meal time and a short siesta in the afternoon.

The President is scheduled to arrive at Puerto Princesa, Palawan, early tomorrow morning on his first official visit to that province during his incumbency.

August 3.—PRESIDENT Garcia was assured today of at least 60 per cent of the Palawan votes. This assurance was given by Rep. Gaudencio Abordo, Gov. Telesforo Paredes, and other Palawan officials and given more credence by the warm and huge reception accorded the President which, in the words of Mayor Severino Vicente of Puerto Princesa, was “the biggest so far ever accorded any presidential candidate.”

Palawenos by the thousands flocked to Puerto Princesa to give the President a red carpet reception on his first visit to the island province during his incumbency as President. People from hundreds of kilometers away started arriving at Puerto Princesa since early yesterday to get their first glimpse of the Chief Executive. The wharf was filled with people upon arrival of the President and party on board the RPS Lapu-Lapu.

Immediately after receiving honors at the wharf, the President, the First Lady, and members of the party, as well as welcomers, proceeded to the Cathedral where Te Deum was sung. After the Te Deum, the President proceeded to Governor Mendoza Park, (named after the Palawan governor executed by the Japanese) where a rally was held. Before the President was introduced by Rep. Abordo, Gov. Paredes presented Sens. Pac M. Gonzalez, Domocao Alonto, and Lorenzo Sumulong, who asked the Palawan electors to vote for straight NP ticket.

In his speech the President belied the claim of the Liberals that they were interested in the welfare of rural folks by citing facts and figures. In the matter of feeder roads construction and development of springs, the President said that the NPs accomplished more than the LPs. The Nacionalistas constructed in 1961 alone a total of 104 kilometers of sub-graded feeder roads and 62 kilometers of surfaced roads and developed many springs aside from constructing 136 artesian wells in Palawan. The President took opportunity to express his gratitude to the voters of Palawan long considered an NP bailiwick and where he always won in all elections since 1941 without having to campaign in the province.

In comparing records of the LP and the NP regimes, the President pointed out that in this sparsely populated province where roads are essential, the LPs constructed a total of six kilometers of all type of concrete and asphalted roads in 1953 as against 217 kilometers constructed by the NPs in 1961, or an increase of 150 per cent.

After the rally the President and party had lunch at the residence of Gov. Paredes before meeting national, provincial, and municipal officials.

The President left on board the RPS Lapu-Lapu bound for Jolo, Sulu, at 2:30 p.m.

President Garcia granted a 30-day reprieve to prisoners Primitivo Ala y Duran and Martial Ama y Torres, who were scheduled to be executed tomorrow, August 4, for murder, Malacañang announced today.

The stay of execution of the two convicts was granted by the President in order to give the Board of Pardons and Parole ample time to consider the convicts petitions for commutation of their death penalty.

Records of their case showed that Ala killed a fellow convict by the name of Ruperto Argus y Garcia on March 24, 1959, while Ama killed another convict by the name of Almario Bautista in the New Bilibid prison in Muntinlupa, Rizal, August 27, 1958.

Although they pleaded guilty of the crime upon arraignment, the trial court gave them the supreme penalty, which penalty was affirmed by the Supreme Court because of the aggravating circumstances, one of which is quasi-reeidivism in that the crime was committed while both of them were serving prison terms.

August 4.—PRESIDENT Garcia was very chummy with newsmen aboard the RPS Lapu-Lapu during the short trip from Jolo, Sulu, to Zamboanga City. He was obviously inspired by the new political gains he won in the Moslem capital where he inducted into the Nacionalista camp 30 Liberal Party leaders.

Before a big crowd on Plaza Tulay in Jolo, the President released some P300,000 in public work funds for development projects in Sulu and promised to accelerate the progress of that Moslem province if reelected in November.

Here, a big crowd of 50,000 welcomers greeted the President at the local pier. Sen. Gil J. Puyat, his running mate, was on hand to join the Garcia party in its Mindanao stump.

Before disembarking, President Garcia exchanged jokes with newsmen and freely lambasted his favorite targets—the Liberals and Vice-President Macapagal.

The President took occasion to deny reports that the Barrera Report slated to be by Malacañang had been “expurgated.” He gave assurance that the “unexpurgated” edition will be published.

Turning to his Liberal Party rival, the President twitted the Vice-President for yielding readily to the demands of Mayor Arsenio H. Lacson that two LP congressional candidates be junked. The President described this action of Vice-President Macapagal as a sign of weakness.

“It is quite clear that the opposition leaders are unable to make up their minds and decide for themselves,” he added.

August 5.—THE President today drew more support to the Nacionalista Party when he inducted into the NP Bernardino Camins, Vice-President Macapagal's own campaign manager in Zamboanga City.

The Chief Executive administered the oath of affiliation aboard the RPS Lapu-Lapu.

Later, during a public rally in Basilan City, Mayor Leroy S. Brown assured President Garcia that "the people of Basilan will manifest their gratitude to you come November for your solicitous attention to their welfare."

The President's departure for Basilan City from Zamboanga City was delayed for two hours because he took time out to view the remains of Mrs. Mercedes Lim, mother of Sen. Roseller T. Lim, and to condole with the bereaved family.

Mrs. Lim succumbed to a stroke at 5:20 this morning at the Zamboanga General Hospital, where she was rushed two hours earlier.

The President was accompanied by the First Lady, reelectionists Sens. Lorenzo Sumulong, Pacita Madrigal-Gonzalez, and Domocao Alonto; Rep. Canuto M. S. Enerio; and Mrs. Daniel Z. Romualdez.

Upon his return to the Lapu-Lapu, President Garcia swore in Camins into the Nacionalista Party. Camins was elected Liberal Party presidential campaign manager for Zamboanga City only a month ago.

The new NP convert explained that latest political developments which found LP leaders giving ex-Bacolod City Mayor Felix P. Amante and ex-Pampanga Gov. Jose B. Lingad important positions in the Liberal Party organization convinced him that he could no longer stay in the opposition party and remain true to his principles.

The presidential party arrived in Basilan City shortly after 9:30 a.m. today and was received with a resounding welcome, complete with a display of gaily costumed women and the sound of drums and gongs.

On hand at the pier at the head of the welcoming throng were Sen. Gil J. Puyat, NP vice-presidential candidate, and Mayor Brown.

The President and Puyat later spoke at a public rally in Basilan City, training their guns at Vice-President Macapagal and the Liberal Party.

Puyat told his audience that Macapagal's election in 1957 was a "big mistake," because he has been doing nothing since then but collect his salary from the people's funds. He also warned against regionalism, saying that a Philippines threatened by communism need cohesion and national unity.

A heavy downpour drove the crowd to seek shelter under trees and nearby buildings while President Garcia was speaking. The Chief Executive was forced to cut short his address, but he drew a thunderous applause when he recited a balak (Visayan poem) in response to the clamor of the audience.

From the rally, the President and his party boarded again the Lapu-Lapu which sailed for Pagadian town, the capital of Zamboanga del Sur.

President's Week in Review: August 6-12, 1961

President's Week in Review: August 13-19, 1961

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

August 13.—PRESIDENT Garcia arrived at Dapa, Surigao del Norte, this afternoon in the course of his 15-day political stump of Mindanao.

Shortly before landing at Dapa, the President conferred with Commissioner Lugum Uka of the Commission on National Integration and discussed possible measures to help deserving non-Christian students.

He directed Budget Commissioner Faustino Sy-Changco to release P1.1 million to finance non-Christian scholars. It is the biggest dole authorized by the government. Last year, only P500,000 was released to help non-Christian students.

In a rally at Dapa, the President lashed at the Liberal Party and its candidates before a crowd estimated at 25,000.

The President charged Vice-President Macapagal, LP presidential candidate, with mud-slinging in his political campaign to unseat the NPs in the November elections.

President Garcia also delivered a political broadside against Emmanuel Pelaez, LP vice-presidential candidate, and challenged the latter to bare the achievements of the opposition party by way of helping the people in the rural areas.

President Garcia and his party are scheduled to leave tonight for Surigao, capital of Surigao del Norte, to climax his political stump in that province. From there, he will proceed to Agusan.

At the rally in Tandag, Vice-Gov. Montano Ortiz, Board Member Pio Castro, and ex-Sen. Felixberto Serrano, who are vying for the congressional seat appeared in the same stage.

Ortiz, the official NP congressional bet, predicted that in Tandag alone, where the President won in 1957 by a ratio of 29 to one, the electorate will give the Chief Executive a bigger majority in November.

In Tago, LP Mayor Damian Laurente said the President never lost in his town in all past elections.

The Chief Executive had the opportunity to meet his old friend, Vice-Mayor Tomas Pareja, who lived with him in the same boarding house in Intramuros during their student days.

After lunch at the Tandag Elementary School, the President boarded the RPS Lapu-Lapu for the town of Dapa in Siargao Island in Surigao del Norte where he spoke at a rally, and then left for Surigao for another mammoth rally.

The President is scheduled to inaugurate the Surigao Development Bank before departing for Cabadbaran, Agusan, at midnight tonight.

August 14.—PRESIDENT Garcia received today assurance from feuding Nacionalista Party factions of Agusan of solid support upon arrival at Cabadbaran and Butuan City.

Despite of the high waves, the presidential party landed at Cabadbaran and led a motorcade to church for the Te Deum before going to the plaza for a youth rally.

At the rally Rep. Guillermo R. Sanchez of Agusan and former Agusan Gov. Felixberto Dagani, both vying for the lone congressional seat of Agusan, cast away political differences to appeal to the electorate for solid support for the NP national ticket.

Dagani, referring to attacks of Vice-President Macapagal and ex-Senator Emmanuel Pelaez against the President, said: "Those who continually find fault with President Garcia should first look at the mirror to see if they are perfect."

The former provincial executive warned that "former Justice Secretary Oscar Castelo and ex-Gov. Rafael Lacson of Negros Occidental, who are now languishing in Muntinlupa, are best examples of the reasons why we cannot permit the Liberal Party to come back to power lest they resort again to frauds and terrorism and rape democracy again."

In his speech the President said the Liberals always take with them in their campaigns a sack of criticism and a barrel of mud to engage in character assassination and to impugn honesty of political opponents.

He added that the graft and corruption issue being raised by the Liberals for the fourth time is a stale issue, because the electorate have repudiated the Liberals from 1955 to 1959.

President Garcia, denounced his opposition rival for doing nothing as congressman about the Maliwalu massacre in his own province, Pampanga, during the height of LP power. He added that Vice-President Macapagal never denounced the massacre both at the halls of Congress and before the courts of justice.

The President warned the electorate about the LP electoral gimmicks designed to fool the people, and castigated Pelaez for being a tool of vested interests.

The President was met at the Cabadbaran wharf by Rep. Sanchez, Gov. D. O. Plaza, Dagani, and Mayor Basilisa Atega in whose residence he had lunch. He rested a short while before going to Butuan for a conference with national, provincial, and local officials.

After addressing a rally in Butuan City, the President and his party motored to Nasipit, with a whistle-stop at Buenavista, for a farewell rally before boarding the RPS Lapu-Lapu at midnight for Cabalian, Leyte.

August 15.—THE President today squeezed tight his schedule to make a surprise visit to the Tacloban fire area to see personally the progress of relief work which had been going on since fire gutted the City's commercial center last August 11.

In a brief message to the fire sufferers, the President assured continued relief work as long as necessary and authorized government lending institutions to grant liberal credit loans to help the victims rehabilitate themselves.

The First Lady, who had sent Operations Puso goods to the fire area, received resounding ovations when she helped SWA workers distribute relief to the needy this morning.

Touched by acclamation and placards expressing gratitude to the President and the First Lady, Mrs. Garcia said afterwards that when she launched "Operations Puso" a year ago she never expected it to last so long. Now she said "Operations Puso" is a by-word, thanks to the selfless dedication of civic-spirited men who contributed generously for the welfare of our fellowmen."

The First Lady emphasized that Operations Puso is an example of what faith, hope, and charity can do to make the Philippines a better place to live in.

President Garcia had previously released P100,000 from his contingent fund, P10,000 of which was spent for local procurement of relief goods in Tacloban. Felicidad Legarda, SWA supervisor who is assisted by 14 SWA personnel, said that relief consisting of three planeloads of rice, canned goods, blankets, mosquito nets, clothings, and some 120 Operations Puso bags, has been extended to hundreds of families.

The President and the First Lady made the unscheduled stop risking the dangerous motor launch crossing from Babatngon, Leyte, to the RPS Lapu-Lapu docked on the Samar side of San Juanico Strait to bring cheer, comfort, and sympathy to the fire victims.

The President left Nasipit soon after the rally that ended at 2:00 a.m. and arrived in Tacloban at 12:00 noon, where Speaker Daniel Romualdez, Gov. Ildefonso Cinco, Mayor Artemio Mate, and other officials accompanied the Chief Executive and the First Lady in the survey trip.

From Tacloban the President motored 40 miles to Babatngon to address an unscheduled rally. The President told Leyteños that the Nacionalista Party, inspired by Quezon, Osmeña, and Palma has dedicated itself to the attainment of economic independence through the Filipino First policy and the uplift of the living conditions of the Filipinos.

Sen. Pacita M. Gonzalez, another speaker, informed the people that the NP, if given a new lease in November, will continue to work for the people's welfare, especially of women, children, and barrio folks.

Other speakers at the rally were Gov. Cinco and Mayor Ricardo Ansales of Babatngon.

From Babatngon the President and party waited for one hour to board the RPS Lapu-Lapu launch on a three-mile crossing to the yacht anchored on the Samar side.

The President proceeded to Calubian, the last stop on the return trip to Manila, to inaugurate the Northwestern Hospital.

From Calubian the President will proceed to Manila where he is expected to arrive at about 9:00 a.m. tomorrow.

August 16.—PRESIDENT Garcia returned this evening from a "hectic but fruitful" political stump of Mindanao and Sulu. He looked tired but nevertheless spry, confident that he had solidified his position in the areas which had given him landslide majorities' in the 1957 elections.

With the President were the First Lady, Press Secretary Jose C. Nable, Brig. Gen. Isagani V. Campo, Councilor Alfredo Gomez, and newsmen.

Gen. Campo conferred with the President aboard the presidential yacht and discussed with the latter plans to insure an orderly and peaceful elections in November.

Councilor Gomez, on the other hand, took up political matters in Manila with the Chief Executive, including plans of bringing Vice-Mayor Antonio Villegas into the Nacionalista Party.

The Chief Executive was met at Pier 5 by Executive Secretary Natalio P. Castillo, who reported to the President on pressing state matters.

The President and his party had come from Tacloban City where they made an unscheduled visit to view the fire area. Mrs. Garcia distributed relief goods to the fire victims.

The President and the First Lady proceeded to Malacañang where they spent the night.

President Garcia solidified the Nacionalista Party position in Surigao del Norte with the mass affiliation of the municipal officials of Dinagat.

Those who took their oaths of affiliation with the NP before the President were Mayor Baldomero Meso; Vice-Mayor Bernardo B. Ga, Councilors Dioscoro Pigaro, Ereno Geraldino, Timoteo Estobo, Anselmo Piodo, Lupici-nio Edera, and Recaredo Ecubin; Municipal Secretary Angel Masaya; and LP leader Tomas Lesoy.

The oath-taking of the new Nacionalistas topped off popular rally preceded by a magnificent torch parade from the pier which waited patiently for the President to arrive up to past 11 p.m. The President was scheduled to arrive two hours earlier but was considerably delayed by another public rally at the town of Dapa where a mammoth crowd from six other towns gave the President a warm welcome.

At both rallies, the crowds expressed preference to hear the President's ballot instead of a political speech.

August 17.—THE President today stayed in his bedroom the whole day to rest after a gruelling 17-day political campaign which took him to all the Mindanao provinces and certain areas in the Visayas.

On advice of Dr. Antonio Guytingco, the President's physician, Malacañang officials closed the doors of the President's bedroom to enable the Chief Executive to be alone for the respite. Dr. Guytingco prescribed rest, although the President's blood pressure was pronounced normal.

The Chief Executive still has to wade through several months of intensive campaign in an effort to insure his re-election in the coming November polls. He is slated to switch his-campaign to Luzon, the heaviest voting area in the country, beginning tomorrow.

Several Malacañang officials had wanted to see the Chief Executive to consult him on official matters, but they were asked to come back tomorrow.

President Garcia and the First Lady returned last night. The President looked tired but beamed with confidence that his hectic political campaign in Mindanao provinces will give him a 4 to 1 majority over the Liberal Party presidential candidate.

President Garcia today proclaimed Saturday, August 19, as special public holiday to commemorate the 83rd birthday of the late President Manuel L. Quezon.

In his proclamation the President said "it is desirable that our people be given full opportunity to render homage to the memories of our illustrious leader".

August 19 of every year, being also Citizenship Day, the Chief Executive in the same proclamation enjoined the observance of the day with "appropriate ceremonies designed to inculcate upon our people, especially the youth, the rights and duties of good citizenship to the end that they will consecrate themselves to the ideals and traditions of our Republic."

The President today directed the implementation of the WAPCO plan regarding the automatic, increase of salaries of government employees.

In a directive to budget Commissioner Faustino Sy-Changco, the President said that the plan should be implemented in this year's budget.

The President said that this policy should be also reflected and implemented in the five-year, fiscal plan. He was referring to the WAPCO pay plan, which insures the automatic increase of salaries of government employees.

President Garcia was informed by Commissioner Sy-Changco that the amount of P32.5 million had been already earmarked for the purpose of implementing the WAPCO plan of salary increases. The President based his directive on the assurance by Commissioner Sy-Changco that there are funds available for this purpose.

August 18.—THIS morning President Garcia presided over the Council of Leaders meeting and took up various conflicts among congressional aspirants in the Nacionalista Party. He met the Council of Leaders from 9:15 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. in Malacañang.

The President decided to help solve the political disputes among NP aspirants after he had resolved his own feud with the Senate President.

The President and Senate President Eulogio Rodriguez signed a joint communique burying their political hatchet, and joined hands for a better government and for the victory of the NP in the coming elections.

Present at the council meeting were the President, Senate President Rodriguez, Speaker Daniel Z. Romualdez, Speaker Protempore Constancio E. Castaneda, Sen. Cipriano Primicias, and House Majority Floor Leader Jose Aldeguer.

After the protracted meeting with Congress leaders, the President motored to the Manila Hotel where he addressed the Lions Club. He extolled the life of the late President Quezon whose 83rd birth anniversary will be celebrated tomorrow.

From the Manila Hotel, the President returned to Malacañang. He left again at 10 o'clock this evening for Plaza Moriones, Tondo, where the Nacionalista national and city tickets were proclaimed.

This was the President's first appearance at a political meeting in Manila since the presidential campaign in 1957.

After his proclamation by Senate President Rodriguez, NP president, President Garcia appealed to the city electorate to keep him and the Nacionalista Party at the helm of the government so that they could continue the unfinished projects of the Administration.

At the same time, the President warned against a Liberal victory in November. He accused the Liberals of wholesale frauds in the 1949 elections and charged that their administration failed miserably in promoting the welfare of the people.

President Garcia compared the record of the Nacionalista Party with that of the Liberal regime to show that, contrary to LP claims, the NP administration has achieved vastly more than the LPs.

August 19.—PRESIDENT Garcia said today that the Nacionalista Party is not afraid of facts on vital public issues so long as they are faithfully presented by the press to the people.

The Chief Executive made this statement in paying tribute to the late President Manuel L. Quezon on the occasion of the induction of the officers of the Quezon Press and Radio Club held in Lucena City his noon.

He said that although the press have been lately critical of his administration, sometimes "it is better to have a free press abused than curtailed."

He emphasized that democracy cannot be successful if the citizenry is not well-informed on the vital public issues whether it is election time or not.

The President also underscored the role played by the press in Quezon's fight for independence during the Commonwealth.

Before speaking at the induction and awards presentation ceremonies held at Don Froilan Lopez Hall of the Luzonian Colleges, President Garcia offered a minute silent prayer in honor of the memory of the late national leader on the occasion of his 83rd birthday anniversary.

The President and his party received a rousing welcome upon arrival at the newly created Lucena City this morning with thousands of greeters led by Reps. Manuel Enverga and Leon Guinto, Jr.; Gov. Claro Robles, Mrs. Claro Recto, and Lucena City Mayor Casto Profugo, overflowing the space of the railroad station here.

Alighting from the coach of the presidential train, President Garcia thanked the huge crowd in Tagalog, expressing his deep gratitude for the warm and spontaneous reception.

He was given full military honors, including the 21 gun salute. He later went to the MLQ memorial monument for wreath laying ceremonies before proceeding to the town cathedral for a Te Deum with members of the National Veterans Action under Major Jaime Piopongco.

The inducted officers of the Quezon Press Club were: Cesar Villariba, president; Ven Zoleta, executive vice-president; Jose Mendoza, first vice-president; Pio Bautista, second vice-president; Jose Atienza, secretary; Leandro Garcia, treasurer; Zenaida Ragaza, assistant treasurer; and Juan Oboza, auditor.

The President also presented QPRC awards to Rep. Enverga as Quezonian of the Year; Mayor Profugo as Mayor of the Year; Filemon Rodriguez as Industrialist of the Year; Manuel Marquez as Banker of the Year; Felix Brillantes as Businessman of the Year; Dr. Pablo Managas as Professional of the Year; Peter Paul (Phil) Co., as Employer of the Year; Artemio De Luna as "Labor Leader of the Year; and Luis Gonzales as Farmer of the year. A posthumous award was presented to the late Senator Claro M. Recto for service to the country.

After the civic parade in honor of Quezon's birthday, the President spoke at a huge rally. He then held a conference with national, provincial, and municipal officials.

The President this day certified to the Court of Industrial Relations the labor dispute in the strike-bound Philippine Airlines.

The certification was issued following separate conferences with the PAL management headed by Eduardo Romualdez, PAL president, on board the presidential train enroute to Lucena, Quezon, this morning and with representative of PAL workers at Malacañang earlier this morning.

The President issued the certification on the recommendation of Labor Secretary Angel M. Castaño, who contended that the government-controlled corporation is performing services affecting public interest.

Under the law, the certification has the effect of compelling the strikers to return to work pending the resolution of their case.

President's Week in Review: August 20-26, 1961

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

August 20.—PRESIDENT Garcia made deep gains in Quezon province today as he won to his side two Liberal mayors who assured his victory in their respective municipalities.

LP Mayor Andres Remo, in a conference with the President, pledged to the Chief Executive, "I guarantee your victory here."

Earlier, during a mammoth rally in Lukban which was swelled by people from neighboring towns who nocked to see the President, the Chief Executive also inducted into the Nacionalista Party LP Mayor Remigio Bastonera of Infanta, thereby reducing the Liberal mayors to only seven as against 38 Nacionalista mayors in the entire province.

Speaking before the huge crowd, the President recalled the NP fight against the copra cartel in foreign markets in order to secure better prices for copra producers.

Lukban townspeople, most of whom were small copra producers, cheered the President when he cited the efforts of the Nacionalista Party to help the copra industry, adding that the NP-dominated Congress had appropriated P38 million to help them, particularly in the production and marketing phases, to wrest control of the industry from alien hands.

Great significance was attached to the presence of Mrs. Aurora Recto, widow of the late Senator Recto, and Sen. Lorenzo M. Tañada of the Nationalist-Citizens Party, along with Rep. Manuel Enverga and Gov. Claro Robles.

Mayor Dator assured the visiting Chief Executive that he will make a sweeping victory in Lukban.

Earlier President Garcia inducted the officials of the newly created Lucena City. Inducted were Mayor Casto Profugo, Vice-Mayor Manuel Derosas, and Councilors Hermilando Alcala, Antonio Lagos, Rosendo Angeles, Mauricio de la Paz, Antonio Cabrereros, Crisanto Tadosa, and Federico de Leon.

After the induction ceremonies the President assisted the First Lady at the unveiling of the marker commemorating the inauguration of Lucena City. He then heard mass at the cathedral before motoring to Tayabas and Lukban towns.

After the rally at Lukban, the President and his party were luncheon guests of Mayor Dator and Lukban municipal officials.

At Tayabas, Mayor Epifanio Orias, an LP mayor, headed the welcomers.

August 21.—THIS morning the President stayed in his bedroom, where he rested after a two-day stump in Quezon province.

He ordered Press Secretary Jose C. Nable to read his speech before the National Association of Government Public Relations Officers at the Malacañang Social Hall.

The President, in the speech read by Secretary Nable, said that the "function of public relations is neither to cover up nor to compensate for the deficiencies in a person's or an administration's policies. It is not and can never be a substitute for good policies."

"Public relations is based on the premise that its subject must first pursue policies which are in the public interest and then the effort to earn the goodwill of the public only follows," the President said in his speech.

The President further said that it is the duty of the public relations men to inform the people of the truth, to gather the true facts, and to tell them of “what we have done for them and will continue to do for them so that they can arrive at a fair and intelligent decision on election day—a decision based on the cold and inexorable logic of indisputable and accomplished facts and not on emotions stirred by demagoguery and overweening personal ambitions.”

President Garcia today, through Executive Secretary Natalio P. Castillo, denied the petitions for reconsideration of former Sugar Quota Administrator Ramon L. Pagua, who was dismissed last January 28 by the Chief Executive for gross negligence, grave abuse of discretion, and misconduct in office.

Pagua’s dismissal from office was embodied in an administrative order issued on the strength of the, unanimous recommendation of a three-man investigating committee headed by the late former Justice Mariano de la Rosa of the Court of Appeals which heard the charges against him.

In denying his petitions, the President chided the former SQA chief for alleging that the President’s decision “was based on the erroneous and fraudulent committee report,” which contention he even had published in newspapers: through paid advertisements.

The President said that the man who composed the committee that investigated the case “showed a good grasp of the law, regulations, and fundamentals on sugar and a thorough appreciation of the basic facts and various angles involved in the case,” and considered Pagua’s stand as “an unfair and gratuitous slur on the investigating committee.”

This evening the President addressed Filipino businessmen as guest speaker of the Chamber of Commerce of the Philippines and reiterated his stand to push through his Filipino First program to wrest away from alien traders control of the country’s economy.

August 23.—PRESIDENT Garcia today lauded the establishment of the cigar rolling mills in the Cagayan Valley as of tremendous significance in the history of the country.

In his brief remarks at the cornerstone laying of a twin P2 million cigar rolling mills of the Philippine Tobacco Administration in Tuguegarao, Cagayan, and Cabagan, Isabela, the Chief Executive expressed the hope that the pioneer plants would enable Philippine cigars to gain firm foothold in the American market.

Later, at a public rally in Cabagan, the President castigated Macapagal for denouncing the distribution of P1.5 million for public improvements in Quezon province as “bribing the people to retain the Nacionalistas in power,” during the Chief Executive’s recent trip to that province.

Speaking with indignation, the President asked; “What better proof of Nacionalista affection for the people could there be than give them schools, roads, and hospitals?”

The Chief Executive received a long ovation when he said in a ringing voice; If that is bribery then I am ready to commit thousands of bribes in order to serve the people, for after all the government is of, by, and for the people.”

Earlier in the morning the President laid the cornerstone of the PTA cigar mill at Tuguegarao assisted by Sens. Quintin Paredes, Pedro R. Sabido, and Eulogio Balao; Reps. Delfin Albano and Jose J. Roy; and Manager Peregrino Quinto.

Sealed in the cornerstone were a roster of government officials for posterity, rice for good luck, and a bottle of oil for the smooth operation of the plant.

From Tuguegarao, the President motored to Cabagan, Isabela, and, despite continuous driving rains which destroyed all welcome preparations and soaked people wet, he received warm receptions.

He laid the cornerstones of another cigar rolling plant and the P320,000 Northern Isabela Hospital.

At the cornerstones laying ceremonies, the Chief Executive handed to Manager Quinto a P2 million check for the construction of the rolling mills; P150,000 for the purchase of tobacco in Cagayan; P250,000 for Ilagan, Malig, and Naguilian; and P100,000 for Echague.

The President emphasized that he had always won all his political fights without any protest, and took occasion to lash out at the opposition for having been “responsible for the rape of democracy in the 1949 elections.”

The President was cheered during the course of his extemporaneous address prompting Joaquin G. Garrido, a member of the UNICRUCCEL advisory council, to remark that the organization could well be renamed UNICGARCEL, recalling United Crusade for Garcia Election.

UNICGARCEL members were expecting to roast the President, who is running for re-election this year. However, President Garcia, leaning on his clean political record, was able to take advantage of the situation to stress his determination to keep this year’s polls “clean, free, and orderly.”

The President was informed today that a team of the Nacionalista League of Provincial Governors and City Mayors invaded Mindanao yester-day to mop out Liberal Party remnants in that area and insure the victory of a straight NP ticket.

The President gave the assurance that the Nacionalista Party record is the best guarantee that the coming elections will be free, clean, honest, and orderly. He pointed out that under the responsibility of the majority party all elections had been above board.

The President addressed the huge crowd that gathered in front of the Pinaglabanan monument. He braved the drizzle that continuously fell throughout the military parade and review. He was presented by Mayor Nicanor Ibuna.

After the grandstand ceremonies, the President had merienda at the residence of the late Dr. Severo Siasoco. Then he returned to Malacañang.

August 30.—PRESIDENT Garcia today took time out from his political campaign and did some spade work in an effort to clear the backlog of state papers which had piled up while he was stumping in some Luzon provinces.

In the morning the President presided over the Council of State meeting and in the afternoon, he convened his Cabinet for their first meeting in two months.

In between these two meetings, the President received the credentials of Jacobus Van der Zwaal as ambassador of the Netherlands to the Philippines and Dr. Tan Huu Thee as ambassador of South Vietnam.

In accepting the credentials of the South Vietnamese envoy, the President said he was happy to receive him as the first diplomatic representative of his country to the Philippines.

He said that the Philippines and Vietnam have a common political experience.

The ceremony was attended by the members of the Cabinet and by Ambassador Trinidad Legarda, Philippine envoy to Thailand who is also assigned to Vietnam.

In receiving the credentials of the new Netherlands envoy, the President said Ambassador Van der Zwaal's assignment to this country is the "latest manifestation of the strength of the friendship that binds our two peoples."

President Garcia and his Council of State approved, various urgent public works and self-liquidating economic development projects all over the country proposed to be financed from bond issues totalling some ₱150 million.

In a two-hour meeting in Malacañang's state dining room early this afternoon, the Council unanimously voted to give to a screening committee wider determining powers to decide which of the projects should be given top priority, and to set a ceiling as to the amount of bonds to be floated to finance these projects.

The Council committee which had been instructed to submit its recommendations after consultations with the Monetary Board of the Central Bank and the National Economic Council is composed of Public Works Secretary Florencio Moreno, chairman, and the following members:

Senate Majority Floorleader Cipriano Primicias, Speaker Protempore Constancio Castañeda, Finance Secretary Dominador Aytona, Executive Secretary Natalio P. Castillo, Budget Commissioner Faustino Sy-Changco, Senator Lorenzo M. Tañada, NEC Chairman Jose Locsin, and Rep. Cornelio Villareal of Capiz.

During the meeting the President called attention of the Council members to four proposed projects which he considered essential and urgent, namely:

- (1) Extension of the South railroad line from Legaspi to Matnog, southernmost point of Sorsogon;
- (2) Additional capitalization of the National Marketing Corporation amounting to ₱10 million to enable it to step up its drive to stabilize prices and place prime commodities within the reach of the laboring class;
- (3) Improvement of facilities of the National Waterworks and Sewerage Authority so as to insure an adequate water supply in summer and an efficient drainage system in the rainy months for Manila and suburbs; and
- (4) The Quinala River hydroelectric project in Albay costing ₱3.3 million designed to generate 2,000 KW and to provide the Bicol region with a cheap source of power.

The President urged that priority be given to the extension of the southern railroad line as a means of helping the farmers in Southernmost Luzon and hasten the development of the area. He pointed out that the financing of the railroad extension to the Cagayan Valley in Northern Luzon had already been provided for.

In plugging for the NAWASA project, the President took occasion to recall that Mayor Arsenio H. Lacson of Manila, when he first ran for office 12 years ago, was elected on the promise that he would solve the recurrent flood problem in the City.

The President said it is apparent that Mayor Lacson has forgotten this election promise, and that it is up to the national government to do something about this urgent matter.

During the meeting the President announced the appointment of Health Secretary Elpidio Valencia as chairman of the NAWASA board of directors, vice Ambrosio Magsaysay, retired.

The Council of State screening committee was charged with studying each individual project with the view to determining its rank in the scale of priorities. Among the considerations to be taken by the committee in its study of the merits of the projects are (1) whether they conform with the overall program of economic and social development; (2) whether the project is among those which rank high in the scale of priorities previously set forth by the Council of State; and (3) whether the level of bond issues necessary to finance the projects would cause an undue rise in prices and exert pressure on the balance of payments.

The Chief Executive opened the meeting about 12:45 p.m. by emphasizing the urgent need of deciding upon the advisability and feasibility of approving these projects.

Vice-President Diosdado Macapagal and Rep. Cornelio Villareal, opposition representatives in the Council, were unable to attend as they were reported campaigning in the provinces. They were invited and informed about the meeting.

Also unable to attend the meeting were Senate President Eulogio Rodriguez, Sr., who was indisposed; General Emilio Aguinaldo, who was ill, Senate President Protempore Fernando Lopez, who is abroad; and Speaker Protempore Constancio Castañeda and House Majority Floorleader Jose Aldeguer, who are both out of town.

This evening the Cabinet approved the importation of an additional 100,000 metric tons of rice to keep the price of the cereal down.

The Philippine National Bank was instructed to make ₱24 million available to the NAMARCO to finance the importation of the additional rice.

Commerce Undersecretary Perfecto Laguio in his capacity as chairman of the NAMARCO board of directors said he will convince the board tomorrow afternoon to determine the date and place of the public bidding for the additional rice importation.

He said, however, that the eight awardees in the last bidding would be automatically given the awards for the importation of 25,000 tons, following the law which allows old awardees 25 per cent of new importations.

The Cabinet members suggested that the NAMARCO use a new distribution system to replace the first "foolproof" system devised by the NAMARCO.

The new system will be based on lists of employees to be submitted by heads of offices of both government and private firms.

The rice will be distributed through the offices and firms instead of through regular NAMARCO distributors.

August 31.—PRESIDENT Garcia this morning laid a wreath at the tomb of the late President Magsaysay at Manila's North Cemetery, to commemorate the 53rd birthday anniversary of the former Philippine Chief Executive from Castillejos, Zambales.

Earlier the President issued a proclamation declaring the day a special public holiday in Zambales, where RM was born, to give the people in the province opportunity to observe the day fittingly.

The President had also ordered the mounting of a guard of honor from the Presidential Guard Battalion at the tomb of the late President from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. today.

Shortly before 11 a.m., the President took time out of his regular schedule to motor to the North Cemetery to lay a wreath and offer prayers at the tomb of his famous predecessor.

At the tomb the President was joined by relatives of the late RM, among them his son Ramon, Jr., his son-in-law Jesus Vargas, Jr., Dr. Paulino J. Garcia, and Judge Feliciano de Gala, chairman of the PHILCOA.

From the Cemetery the President returned to Malacañang and received the Rizal mayors. The President had a breakfast conference this morning with a delegation from Negros Occidental who briefed the President on the political situation in the province.

The President this day announced he will soon create the Embroidery and Apparels Control and Inspection Board to carry out strict implementation of the Embroidery and Apparels law.

The President gave this assurance to a group of municipal mayors from the second congressional district of Rizal who complained that the illegal entry of duty-free embroidering materials sold locally has caused the mass lay-off of factory hands and partial closure of textile mills.

The law which provides that all embroidery materials imported into the Philippines should be re-exported as Philippine-made embroideries and apparels and not be sold locally, was among the bills approved by the President last June.

The mayors headed by Marikina Mayor Osmundo de Guzman, president of the Rizal Mayors League, petitioned the President to put a stop to the importation of embroidery raw materials to save the textile industry.

The President, however, pointed out that while self-sufficiency in clothing remains a goal of the Administration, to stop importation of embroidery materials would be unfair to thousands of Filipino embroiderers who will lose their only means of livelihood.

The Chief Executive said the solution would be a strict implementation of the law through the creation of the Embroidery and Apparels Control and Inspection Board.

During his conference with the Rizal mayors, the President administered the oath of affiliation with the Nacionalista Party to former Grand Alliance Mayor de Guzman, Vice-Mayor Jose Andres, and Councilors Virginia de Guzman and Manuel Santos of Marikina.

President Garcia conferred today with Vice-Mayor Antonio Villegas of Manila, a Liberal, in Malacañang giving rise to speculations that the latter may join the Nacionalista Party. Villegas has been repeatedly quoted as displeased with the way he was treated by LP leaders in Manila.

Malacañang was silent on the conference, but previous reports indicated the Manila vice-mayor was drifting towards the NP.

In the evening the President and the First Lady motored to the residence of Sen. Gil J. Puyat to felicitate the President's vice-presidential running mate who celebrated his 54th birthday.

The President today issued an administrative order abolishing the Presidential Fact Finding Committee in the Bureau of Customs.

In abolishing the PFFC, the President said that the purpose for which it was created is about to be achieved, except the final winding up of certain pending projects and the corrective phase in them which properly belongs to the corresponding administrative authority.

The Committee was created by the President in 1958 through Administrative Order 268 to recommend ways and means of ejecting good administration, performance, and efficiency in the Bureau of Customs.

The Chief Executive gave the Committee 90 days within which to wind up its pending work.

President's Week in Review: September 3-9, 1961

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

September 3.— AFTER hearing mass in Malacañang, where he received holy communion, the President played golf with Chairman Paulino J. Garcia of the National Science Development Board and J. Antonio Araneta up to 1 o'clock in the afternoon.

The President played 18 holes and had lunch at the Wack Wack Clubhouse with his playmates.

From the clubhouse, the President motored back to Malacañang for a brief nap and then studied pending state papers which piled up during the week.

The President today received a message from Rep. Harold Cooley, chairman of the United States House agricultural committee, thanking him on behalf of tobacco growers in America, for authorizing the importation of high-grade U.S. Virginia leaf tobacco to improve the quality of locally-manufactured cigars and cigarettes.

"I am certain that this action will prove to be mutually advantageous to the peoples of both of our countries since our tobacco will blend well with native-grown tobacco," Rep. Cooley informed the President in a cable received in Malacañang. "All the tobacco growers of America are grateful to you," the cable stated.

President Garcia, after consultation with his Cabinet, had approved the proposed importation to enable the ACCFA to dispose of its huge stocks of low-grade Virginia leaf tobacco, some 49 million kilos, and to settle its indebtedness of amounting to ₱155 million from the Central Bank and the farmers.

The President also received today a message of gratitude from some 100 evicted families of Enrile, Cagayan, who were allocated government lands through the direct intervention of the President.

These families who were earlier given until March next year to vacate the land they had been cultivating for more than ten years will be resettled in the rich agricultural area in Tabuk, Mountain Province, about 40 kilometers away from Enrile.

The message of gratitude was transmitted to the President by PCAPE Vice-Chairman Maximo Maceren, who, together with members of a Presidential task force, went to Cagayan and Tabuk to look for a suitable farm land for the displaced families.

September 4.— PRESIDENT Garcia today strengthened his position in Mindanao, Mountain Province, Manila, and Pampanga as he discussed the political situation with top leaders representing these areas.

President Garcia was assured by eight governors who recently concluded an 8-day tour of Mindanao that his re-election has an "easy sailing" and that his running mate, Sen. Gil J. Puyat, is "picking up considerable ground" in the region.

The assurance was conveyed to the President by Gov. Isidro Rodriguez, president of the Governors and City Mayors League, in the presence of Sen. Puyat.

Other members of the group were Govs. Manuel Barretto of Zambales, Juan Frivaldo of Sorsogon, Godofredo Reyes of Ilocos Sur, Godofredo Ramos, of Aklan, Felipe Garduque of Cagayan, D. O. Plaza of Agusan, and Constantino Navarro of Surigao del Norte and Vice-Governor Graciano Aluyon of Marinduque.

The governors requested the President to impose party discipline on all NP congressional candidates in order to insure a straight party victory.

The President also received a pledge of support from 40 professionals of Macabebe, Pampanga, led by Marcelo Lagman.

The Macabebe group denied reports of a strong regional in favor of Macapagal and Puyat and asserted that on the contrary they were working hard for the victory of the Garcia-Puyat team in their hometown.

The group, accompanied by Rep. Emilio Cortez, was composed of Alejandro Manlapaz, Drs. Marcelino Benzoza, Leocadio Manansala, and Miguel Galang, Urbano Castillo, Emilio Hernandez, former Councilor Antonio de la Cruz, Fernando Dungca, Ricardo Manlapaz, Juan Bustos, Feliciano Viray, Melencio Cancio, Eloy Alfonzo, Jesus Polintan, and others.

The President administered the oath of affiliation as member of the Nacionalista Party to Mayor Juan Madriaga of Pudtol, Mountain Province.

About three hundred members of the Manila Jockeys Mutual Aid Association, NP and PPP ward leaders of Manila led by Eladio Sordan, pledged to support the President in the November elections.

Other callers were Eduardo Romualdez, board chairman of the Philippine Air Lines, who received instructions to see the PAL strikers at the office of Sen. Roseller Lim, chairman of the Senate committee on Labor, Gov. Clara Robles of Quezon, Gov. Jesus Almero of Masbate, and Sen. Domocao Alonto.

The President today granted another 30-day reprieve to prisoners Primitivo Ala y Duran and Marcial Ama y Torres, who were scheduled to be executed today at the state penitentiary for murder.

The stay of execution was granted by the President to give the Board of Pardons and Parole ample time to consider the convicts' appeal for commutation of their death sentence.

Ala killed a fellow convict while he was serving prison at Muntinlupa on March 24, 1959, while Ama also committed the same crime on August 27, 1958.

The two convicts pleaded guilty upon arraignment at the trial court but were given the supreme penalty because of aggravating circumstances.

President Garcia today received a message of sympathy from President Posun Yun of the Republic of Korea, who learned of the flood disasters that inundated part of northern Luzon provinces during the recent downpour.

In his message which was forwarded to the Chief Executive by Ambassador Honkon Lee of the Korean embassy here, President Posun said that he is praying for the early reconstruction of the stricken areas.

President Garcia this evening reiterated the policy of the Philippines in favor of total disarmament as the solution to a lasting world peace.

The President said the Philippines will stand four square behind all moves for total disarmament.

The President frowned upon the decision of Soviet Russia ending the ban on nuclear test.

This evening the President said he will honor the decision of the Nacionalista Party arbitration committee declaring the first congressional district of Sorsogon as a "free zone." The Presidential statement was made after the Chief Executive conferred with Major Bonifacio Gillego.

The NP arbitration committee composed of Sen. Eulogio Balao, chairman; Secretary Cesar Fortich, J. Antonio Araneta, and Gov. Valeriano Gatuslao, members, decided officially on August 28 to declare Sorsogon's first congressional district as a "free zone."

September 5.—PRESIDENT Garcia today had a two-hour conference with members of the Council of Leaders and senatorial candidates of the majority party at Malacañang to discuss campaign plans and strategies.

The President also exchanged views with the NP senatorial bets on the progress of their campaign and discussed ways and means to gear it to the campaign of the NP congressional candidates to avoid duplication of efforts.

The conference started at 11 a.m. continued through lunch and ended at 1 p.m.

The conferees were heartened by the announcement of Sen. Domocao Alonto that the entire NP senatorial ticket will garner an overwhelming majority in Mindanao owing the campaign of NP leaders for a straight ticket.

Present at the conference were Speaker Daniel Romualdez, Sens. Gil J. Puyat, Quintin Paredes, Pedro Sabido, Arturo Tolentino, Domocao Alonto, Lorenzo Sumulong, Cipriano Primicias, Pacita M. Gonzalez, and Reps. Constancio Castañeda, and Jose Roy.

Earlier the President administered the oath of affiliation as NP member to Alejandro L. Catubig, former provincial secretary of the Progressive Party of the Philippines and the Grand Alliance, in Pangasinan.

Present at the induction were Sen. Cipriano Primicias, Gov. Conrado Estrella, Vice-Gov. Nancy Q. Sison, and other top Pangasinan NP leaders.

The President also signed an order creating the town of Basista as well as the appointment papers of the following municipal officials: Mayor Artemio Frias; Vice-Mayor Irineo de Guzman; and Councilors Romeo Resultay, Alejandro de Guzman, Juan Frias, Maximiano Mendoza, Primitivo Frias, and Victor Cagunot.

At two p.m. the President motored to the Nichols airbase where he boarded a plane for Bukidnon on the first leg of his 15-day stumping tour of Mindanao, Western Visayas, and Bicol provinces.

With the President were Sens. Gil J. Puyat, Pedro Sabido, Pacita Gonzalez, and Rep. Jose Roy of Tarlac.

The President this day ordered the dissolution of the Export Coordinating Committee following completion of task of finding ways and means to check the loss of dollars through anomalous importation and exportations of goods.

The President, through Executive Secretary Natalio P. Castillo, directed acting Customs Commissioner Rolando Geotina, who is also acting chairman of the coordinating committee, to notify the members of the committee's abolition.

The committee was created by the Cabinet on December 18, 1957, to formulate appropriate measures to stop the underpricing, misdeclaration, and overshipment of exports as well as overpricing in importations which have resulted in the loss of dollars and revenues.

The members of the committee are Foreign Affairs Secretary Felixberto M. Serrano, Defense Secretary Alejo Santos, Agriculture Secretary Cesar Fortich, and Commerce Secretary Manuel Lim.

The Chief Executive noted with satisfaction the accomplishments of the committee in effectively carrying out the task entrusted to it despite various handicaps like lack of adequate personnel and funds.

Reports from customs attaches in Hongkong, Tokyo, London, San Francisco, Los Angeles, and other ports of entry showed negligible differences in ships' cargoes between what was loaded and what was actually landed at their destinations.

September 6.—PRESIDENT Garcia today appealed for a renewal of confidence in the Nacionalista administration so that it will be able to continue with its grandiose program of development and increased services for the rural areas.

Debunking criticisms that he has forgotten the welfare of the masses, the President said he will never forget the masses from whence he came, pointing out that he was born a poor man.

The President cut short his speech upon the request of the people for his famous balak, and left to his teammate and senatorial team the refutation of the opposition claims against the majority party.

Puyat predicted in his speech that President Garcia will win in Luzon because the people will vote on the good, faithful service of the President to the people.

He said the Nacionalistas deserve a renewal of power in order to carry out successfully the plans under the Mindanao Development Authority (MDA).

President Garcia left Del Monte at 8 this morning traveling 70 kilometers of rough, winding roads through the country's finest scenery.

At Sumilao and Impasugong, the party made forced stops as enthusiastic welcomers waved placards and stretched colored ribbons across the route and sprayed the party with fresh flowers.

Arriving at 10:30 a.m., the party was met at the outskirts of Malaybalay by another huge welcome crowd stretching up to the town plaza.

After a Te Deum at the St. Isidro Church, the President and his running mate, together with Sens. Pedro Sabido and Pacita Madrigal Gonzalez and Reps. Jose Roy and Cesar Fortich, went to the public rally.

The welcome party was led by Mrs. Fortich, Vice-Gov. Teodoro Oblad, and Mayor Lorenzo Dinglayan.

Immediately after the luncheon, the party took off from Malaybalay airport aboard the Fokker, Sahib, and Dagohoy for Surigao where another rally awaited the NP campaigners. They will spend the night at Surigao before proceeding to San Jose, Antique, the following morning to carry the fight to Panay.

President Garcia today proclaimed Tuesday, September 19, as Law Day.

In issuing the proclamation, the President said that the vital role which lawyers play in the administration of justice should be brought to the attention of the people.

He emphasized that the administration of justice is "indispensable to a sound and vigorous democracy," and urged the bar and lawyers' associations throughout the country to celebrate the day with appropriate programs.

This evening President Garcia and Nacionalista senatorial candidates warned that the return of the Liberals to power meant the return of poll frauds and systematic looting of the country's wealth.

Speaking one after the other with clock-like precision, the NP candidates kept what Gov. Constantino Navarro said was the biggest gathering ever held at the local plaza, that lasted from 3 p.m. to past midnight, some even foregoing supper to wait for the President, who was scheduled to be the last speaker.

Both the people and local government officials praised President Garcia for fulfilling the promise he had made last month that he would return to their province. They said that few candidates kept their promises like him.

President Garcia, during his tour of Mindanao provinces last month, had been scheduled to hold rallies in several towns of Surigao but owing to the disruption of the itinerary on account of many unscheduled stops, the Chief Executive had arrived in Surigao at past midnight instead of at 4 p.m. of the appointed day; hence, the promise to return to the province.

President Garcia, Vice-Presidential Candidate Gil J. Puyat and senatorial candidates Pedro Sabido, Pacita M. Gonzalez, and Jose J. Roy arrived from Malaybalay, Bukidnon, at 3 p.m. yesterday and were received with flowers, brassbands, and fireworks by an estimated crowd of 20,000.

President Garcia and party will enplane tomorrow morning to Antique after spending the night at the residence of Gov. Navarro in this town.

September 7.— PRESIDENT Garcia and Nacionalista senatorial candidates today continued their sustained drive to topple down Liberal strength as they invaded Panay on the third day of their campaign that covers Mindanao, Visayas, and the Bicol region.

Concentrating on past Liberal record of inefficiency, terrorism, and frauds in elections, and neglect of the masses, the Nacionalista tandem and senatorial team, composed of the President, Vice-Presidential candidate Gil J. Puyat, Sens. Pedro Sabido and Pacita M. Gonzalez, and Rep. Jose J. Roy, received repeated ovations at a rally this morning at the San Jose public plaza.

President Garcia, in his hour-long speech, recalled the campaign in 1958 when he and the late President Ramon Magsaysay raised the issue of renaming the people's faith and confidence in the government and won overwhelming majority for the Nacionalista Party throughout the country.

"You will recall the reform movement of Magsaysay and myself, giving lands to the landless and homes to the homeless, even to Huk diehards," the President said. "Now that we have restored the faith and confidence of the people in the government, we are again appealing to you on the basis of performance."

The President then compared the record of the Liberals and the Nacionalistas. He said the Liberals had given Antique only one prefabricated school and one-half hospital against the Nacionalistas' 444 prefabricated schools, three hospitals, two finished concrete bridges costing F3 million, two other costing ₱1.5 million, twenty kilometers of feeder roads, 70 springs developed, 12 more artesian wells, 182 barrio school buildings, and others

The President and his party arrived in San Jose, Antique, past 10 a.m. and landed amidst uproarious welcome which indicated a solid Nacionalista strength in the entire province.

Leading the huge welcome party composed mostly of delegations from towns some 100 kilometers away were Rep. Tobias Fornier, Gov. Josue L. Cadio, and provincial and municipal officials.

From the airport, the party proceeded to the St. Joseph parish church for the Te Deum, and then to the rally.

The rally was threatened by intermittent showers and hot sun, but the crowd stayed on to hear the President who was surprised by their requests for balak since he did not consider the province a part of the balak area.

After speaking at the rally at past 1:00 p.m., the President proceeded to the residence of Rogelio Javier for lunch and brief rest before flying to Roxas City, where he will address an evening rally and later board RPS Lapu-Lapu for New Washington, Aklan.

The President received today a roaring welcome upon arrival at the LP bailiwick from Antique aboard the plane Dagohoy.

In spite of the inclement weather, people from all walks of life forgot politics and crowded the airport some seven kilometers from the city and all along the route of the motorcade to cheer the President and party.

Nacionalista welcomers were led by former Reps. Carmen Dinglasan-Consing and Jose Dorado; former Gov. Jose Dinglasan; former Roxas City Mayor Leni Alba; Provincial Board Member Ricardo Castro; Mayors Jose Viterbo of President Roxas town, Pedro Esmundo of Tapaz, Prudencio Livera of Maayon, and Eligio Apelita of Pilar; and Mrs. Dolores Mosquete, president of the Capiz Women's Club.

Not to be outdone, local Liberals trooped in great number to the airport to welcome the President, among them Vice-Gov. Filomeno Villanueva representing Gov. Atila Balmes, who is in Manila, and City Mayor Lorenzo Arnaldo, Vice-Mayor Mabini Altavaz, and Councilors Arturo Jugo, Nicolas Arcenas, Vicente Laferrer, Teodoro Arcenas, and Salvador Medina.

Among other welcomers were Aurelio Ramos representing the Asturias Sugar Central and executives of the Pilar Sugar Central of the Elizaldes.

The President led the motorcade from the Airport to the Cathedral for Te Deum.

The Chief Executive then proceeded to the residence of former Rep. Consing for rest before going to Asturias Sugar Central for dinner.

After dinner the President attended a mammoth rally held in the city plaza and then boarded the RPS Lapu-Lapu for New Washington, Aklan.

September 8.—THIS morning President Garcia almost met an accident which could have been fatal. He had barely crossed the gangplank connecting the RPS Agusan to the New Washington town wharf when it flipped on its left side, throwing out two members of the presidential party following the Chief Executive.

One of the victims was Francisco de Leon of the Manila Chronicle, who was able to hold on to a dangling rope until aid arrived. De Leon does not know how to swim. The other was Sergeant Prado of the PC, who fell into the water and swam to safety.

The accident did not dampen the enthusiasm of the President in wooing the votes of Aklan. In his speech in New Washington, Ibajay, and Kalibo he accused the Liberals of having failed to live up to the ideals of the late President Roxas.

President Garcia observed that ironically it is the Nacionalista Party that is now implementing the good policies of Roxas. He told the followers of ex-Speaker Jose Yulo that their idol was now campaigning for him because Yulo was disgusted with the leadership "of Vice-President Macapagal.

Feuding Nacionalista factions led by Rep. Jose Legaspi and Gov. Godofredo Ramos, who are contesting the lone congressional seat of Aklan declared a moratorium on politics in order to give President Garcia a big welcome upon his arrival this morning in Kalibo, Aklan, NP bailiwick.

From New Washington, President Garcia and his party motored to Kalibo where they were received by a mammoth crowd that escorted the presidential party to church for the Te Deum and then to the residence of Gov. Ramos for lunch and conference with provincial officials.

The President rested at the residence of Virgilio Garcia where he took his merienda before motoring to Ibajay for the rally.

From Ibajay, the President and his party came back to Kalibo for dinner at the residence of Rep. Legaspi and a grand rally at the plaza where Liberal, now NP convert, Mayor Federico Icamina promised to give the NP ticket a sweeping victory.

At the same rally, Vice-Gov. Virgilio Patricio was scheduled to be inducted as governor in lieu of Gov. Ramos, who resigned to run for Congress against Rep. Legaspi.

After the rally, the President and party motored to New Washington to board the RPS Lapu-Lapu for Bulan, Sorsogon.

President Garcia today directed the PCAPE-NAMARCO enforcement group and all police agencies engaged in the apprehension of NAMARCO rice “blackmarketeers” to adopt and “iron fist” policy against these unscrupulous persons.

The President issued the directive in a wire sent through Executive Secretary Natalio P. Castillo following receipt of a wire from Malacañang giving him a day-to-day fill in on the rice situation.

The Chief Executive said that drastic measures should be adopted against these persons, Filipinos, and aliens alike, who preferred their own selfish interest to the welfare of 27-million Filipinos.

The directive of the President was read to some 38 PCAPE investigators who were to be deputized as NAMARCO agents before they departed this afternoon to places where the supply of rice was tagged as “critical”.

September 9.—THE President boarded the RPS Lapu-Lapu at New Washington, at past 5 a.m. today after a series of rallies in New Washington, Makate, Ibajay, and Kalibo in Aklan which ended at 3 a.m.

At 6 a.m. the Lapu-Lapu lifted anchor and proceeded to Bulan, Sorsogon, via Masbate, anchoring at 1 p.m., two miles northeast of Ticao Island, where it will remain for the night.

The President and the rest of the Nacionalista campaigners took a much-needed respite today after a gruelling five-day stumps of Mindanao and Visayas provinces. Except for brief conferences with Press Secretary Nable and Gonzalo D. Vasquez, the President kept to his cabin the whole day to take a complete rest.

With the President on board the yacht are Sens. Pedro Sabido, Domocao Alonto, and Pacita M. Gonzalez and Rep. Jose J. Roy. Also with the President is Maj. Bonifacio Gallego, NP official candidate for the first district of Sorsogon, who had been invited by the President to join him at Roxas City.

Sen. Gil J. Puyat, NP vice-presidential candidate, who flew to Iloilo from Kalibo, will join the presidential party in Bulan, Sorsogon, tomorrow.

President Garcia today issued a proclamation pegging the maximum price of rice to ₱1.20 per ganta and enjoining all retailers to observe this price ceiling.

The proclamation was signed by the President in Kalibo, Aklan, early this morning shortly before he pulled out on board the RPS Lapu-Lapu for Bulan, Sorsogon, on the fifth day of his current barnstorming tour of Mindanao, Western Visayas, and Bicol provinces.

The President pledged that he will retain Libon's favorite son in the Cabinet if reelected and predicted that Aytona may some day occupy the highest or second highest position of the land.

The President left Polangui at 10 a.m. and made an unscheduled stop in Libon. With the President were Gov. Nicanor Maronilla Seva of Albay and reelectionist Sens. Pedro Sabido and Pacita M. Gonzalez.

From Libon he proceeded to Bato to start his political campaign in Camarines Sur.

Observers said the President will win over a large segment of the opposition with his clean, high-level campaigning in the Bicol region.

At Bato the President addressed two rallies, one held by the municipal officials and the other, by the NPs at the market place.

At the NP rally the President expressed confidence in his victory owing to lack of LP candidates in Cebu, Bohol, Leyte, Negros, and other provinces.

The President and party had lunch and a brief rest at the residence of William Buguid, PHILCOA secretary.

From Bato the presidential party will proceed to Nabua, Iriga, and Buhi to address separate rallies. The President will spend the night in Iriga.

September 14.—PRESIDENT Garcia today appealed for the solid support of the Bicol voters so that the Administration can continue giving more benefits to the abaca producers.

The President continued stumping in the second district of Camarines Sur for two consecutive days in an effort to strengthen the NP hold in the province, holding rallies in Baao, Ocampo, Tigaon, and Goa.

He pointed to several measures adopted by the majority party in order to improve the lot of the abaca producers, among them more income and enactment of Republic Act No. 3045, appropriating funds for the development of the abaca industry.

The Chief Executive said that, if only for these reasons, he expects the Bicolanos to give their solid support to the Nacionalista Party.

In answer to the President's appeal, the members of the Rinconada Abaca Producer Marketing, Inc., of Iriga, presented a resolution unanimously approved pledging members of the group not only to vote for the President and the NP ticket but also to campaign actively to ensure an NP victory.

At Iriga where he slept, the President inducted into the Nacionalista fold three LP leaders; namely, Councilor Ramon Badaje Exedile, Eliodoro Cailao, and retired Head Teacher Jose Antioquia. They were sponsored by NP Mayor Jose Villanueva.

The Chief Executive heard low mass at Iriga's St. Anthony church and attended Te Deum at Baao and Ocampo.

At Ocampo he gave an exclusive press interview to members of the National Association of American Editors currently on observation tour of Southeast Asian countries. He then proceeded to the Consocep Resthouse for the inauguration and rest.

President Garcia today proclaimed the period from September 24 to 30 as National Health Week.

In issuing the proclamation, the President said that it is but fitting that the joint efforts of the various public and private health organization, in the protection and promotion of health be brought to the attention of the people.

The Chief Executive said that "the protection and promotion of individual and community health is a prime obligation of organized society."

The President took occasion to pay tribute to the Government and the private, fields and volunteer civic organizations devoted to health who, he said, "have shown exemplary dedication" in the fulfillment of their obligation.

September 15.—PRESIDENT Garcia said today that Nacionalista Party measures during his administration have changed the country's economic structure and opened the gates for new opportunities for rapid development. He spoke at the inauguration of the Cagaycay irrigation system at Goa, Camarines Sur.

He pointed out that the inauguration of the system, the fifth to be constructed in Bicolandia during his administration, was geared to the program of self-sufficiency in food, and would undoubtedly prevent current shortage of rice in towns of Goa, Lagonoy, and San Jose which are benefited by the project.

With five new irrigation systems and the enactment of Republic Act 3045, which appropriates ₱20 million to help the abaca industry, President Garcia said he foresaw prosperity for Bicolanos. The new law enacted by the Nacionalista administration seeks to modernize abaca by-products through scientific research, like using fiber for production of cigarette papers as done in Japan.

In answer to requests of Rep. Felix Fuentebella and the mayors of Goa, Lagonoy, and San Jose, the President promised to secure funds for the construction of a 400-kilowatt hydroelectric plant to serve the three municipalities.

Explaining the spiraling prices of rice, the President said production was reduced by numerous typhoons which hit Bicolandia and by two big floods which placed Central Luzon under water last year.

President Garcia slept aboard the RPS Lapu-Lapu last night. This morning he landed at Nato and motored to the Cagaycay dam site. He passed through San Jose where a big crowd lined on the roadside begged him to stay a little longer. He attended a Te Deum at the local Catholic church.

Another unscheduled engagement was a political rally in Lagonoy where the President could not refuse a request for him to deliver a speech. The impromptu whistle-stops caused the President to arrive at the inauguration rites two hours late.

From the dam site, President Garcia motored back to Nato and boarded the Lapu-Lapu for Guijalo and Caramoan for more rallies. Thereafter, he boarded again the Lapu-Lapu at past midnight for rest.

President Garcia today expressed gratification over a report that some 2,000 ranking Liberal Party members of Mallig, Isabela, including the Vice-Mayor and the entire LP council members, are all set to affiliate with the Nacionalista Party.

The Chief Executive received the report of the intended mass affiliation in Bicol this afternoon where he is on a current stumping tour.

The report, signed by PCAPE Vice-Chairman Maximo Maceren and Sergio Tucao, executive director of the PCAPE Presidential Task Force, said that Mayor Catalino Franada and Councilor Francisco Pascual of Mallig arrived this morning to pledge their support to the President and the entire NP ticket, and to inform them that some 2,000 LP ward leaders composed of the Mallig vice-mayor, the entire municipal council, barrio lieutenants, barrio council members, and their LP followers are all set to affiliate with NP.

September 16.—PRESIDENT Garcia today advocated a national policy of faith, hope, and love to combat the destructive effects of the policy of hatred being preached by Liberals in their campaign.

The President enunciated the policy at the popular luncheon tendered by provincial and city officials in his honor at the Ateneo de Naga gymnasium.

The President broke off his political stump today to join the First Lady and his daughter Linda as well as thousands of people in the traditional pilgrimage and adoration of the Lady of Peñafrancia, patroness of Naga.

In advocating the national policy, the President emphasized that the foundation of prosperity, peace, and happiness are faith that can remove mountain of obstacles, hope that crosses darkness between aspirations of today and realities of tomorrow, and love that unites man to fellowman and to God, the Creator.

He said these three mighty forces are the strongest defense against “destructive criticism and gospel of hatred being propagated by our rivals” which result only in the demolition of national institutions and the destruction of societies and communities.

The President asked the people to ask the Liberals for a concrete program of government which can be the only basis for their prosperity and happiness.

Earlier, the President and the First Lady were praised and congratulated by Archbishop Pedro Santos of Nueva Caceres for their deep concern for the welfare of the masses, during the cocktails held at the convent hall.

In an after-luncheon address the President lauded Finance Secretary Dominador Aytona and predicted that some day he will hold higher responsibilities than those he is now holding.

The President left Guijalo for Naga at 6 a.m. by boat, and from there motored to Naga City, some 40 kilometers away, to join the traditional pilgrimage to the Lady of Peñafrancia.

At Naga the President received assurances from Sangay Mayor Salvador S. Felipe that he will carry 95 per cent of the votes of the municipality.

Arriving at the boundary, the President was met by a long motorcade headed by Rep. Agaton Ursua, Mayor Victorino Ojeda, Vice-Mayor Mariano Villafuerte, and former Gov. Juan Triviño.

From there the President and the First Lady headed the motorcade through a three-kilometer route lined with people who were attending the annual fiesta.

The President proceeded to the Cathedral where a Te Deum was sung by Archbishop Pedro Santos. After cocktails at the convent, the Chief Executive proceeded to the Ateneo de Naga gymnasium for luncheon.

In the afternoon, after a brief rest at the residence of Dr. Dominador Almeda, the President met the fluvial procession and heard mass in honor of the Lady of Peñafrancia. He later addressed a public rally at the city plaza. He stayed overnight in Naga City.

President's Week in Review: September 17-23, 1961

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

September 17.—PRESIDENT Garcia and his party, which includes the First Lady, running mate Gil J. Puyat, and Nacionalista senatorial candidates, entrained at Naga City this morning hearing mass at Peñafrancia church and partaking of breakfast with Msgr. Pedro Santos, archbishop of Nueva Caceres.

In informal chats with newsmen aboard the presidential train, President Garcia was brimming with optimism over the political gains of his four-day stump in the supposedly opposition area.

He was elated over the "full" reconciliation of Sen. Puyat and Finance Secretary Dommador R. Aytona, erstwhile rivals for the NP vice-presidential nomination contest at the NP national convention last June.

Until yesterday morning, Puyat and Aytona had not spoken to each other since the convention. Following the dramatic forgive-and-forget huddle, Aytona mounted the rostrum during a political rally in Naga City and appealed for a straight NP victory.

Aytona vowed that he will quit the government service if President Garcia loses in the Bicol region. He repeated the promise in Daet tonight,

The President held six political conferences in Camarines Sur and was kept busy inducting new Nacionalistas in between rally speeches.

The presidential party is sailing for Manila tomorrow night after stumping in several Camarines Norte towns, and will arrive in Manila early Wednesday morning aboard the RPS Lapu-Lapu.

This evening the President reiterated his pledge that elections under his administration will be clean, honest, and free.

At the same time, he urged the people to go out and vote for the men whom they think will lead the country ably and well.

In a nationwide radio address on the occasion of the 26th anniversary of the first elections held under the Philippine Constitution on September 17, 1935, the President gave assurance that he will not tolerate any attempt at subverting the people's will.

"My thirty-six years of public service in which I have won all my political battles will not be stained at this stage of my life," he said.

In urging the electorate to go to the polls and vote for the men of their confidence, he asked them not to allow themselves to be blinded by passion and prejudice.

"Do not allow yourselves to be made the tools of demagogues. Vote and vote freely. I will safeguard your freedom. The sanctity of your ballot shall be untrammelled. Let us live together in freedom and prosperity as true and tested Filipinos," the President said.

September 18.—THE President directed Brig. Gen. Isagani V. Campo to release 500 sacks of rice impounded by the local PC command.

The President issued his order after the owner of the cereal, Luis Miguel, called on him at Daet and assured him that he would sell the stock at government price.

Miguel earlier had obtained a court injunction stopping the PC from selling the rice. Alarmed that the injunction might become a pattern that would weaken his antiprofitteering drive, President Garcia wired a directive to the solicitor general's office to exhaust all remedies in fighting moves to stop confiscation of hoarded cereal.

The President inducted more than 100 Liberal Party stalwarts led by Mayors Nicolas Herico of Paracale, Marciano Linis of Jose Panganiban, Sofio Balce of Vinzons, and Claro Ibasco of Mercedes.

The President in rallies stated that the NP does not practice political vindictiveness. He pointed out that although he lost in the province, his administration gave aid to the mining industry, constructed a smelter plant in Jose Panganiban, and included Camarines Norte in the construction of cement roads.

In the afternoon the President inspected the NASSCO steel mill in Jose Panganiban and later spoke at simultaneous rallies in Larap and Jose Panganiban where he appealed for support for the NP tickets.

After the rallies the President boarded the RPS Lapu-Lapu for the return trip to Manila.

President Garcia today granted a 35-day reprieve to prisoners Manuel Pakingan and Braulio Bersalona, ending October 25, 1961, in order to give the Board of Pardons and Parole ample time to study their petitions for commutation of sentence from death penalty to life imprisonment.

Manuel Pakingan, 34, was convicted by the Court of First Instance of Cavite for the murder of Cesareo Gawaran of Bacoar, Cavite, on November 10, 1953, and was sentenced to life imprisonment which, on appeal, was modified by the Supreme Court to death penalty.

Braulio Bersalona, 57, was convicted by the Court of First Instance of Bohol for the murder of Francisco Bersalona, a sexagenarian, on March 28, 1935, in barrio Tambo, Mabini, Bohol, and was sentenced to suffer the death penalty which was affirmed by the Supreme Court.

The execution of their death sentences had been originally set for September 20, 1961.

However, Brig. Gen. Isagani V. Campo, Constabulary chief, told the President the other day that there was sufficient stocks of the cereal.

The President is also expected to meet NP leaders sometime this week before he sails anew for Iloilo, Negros Occidental, Negros Oriental, and Misamis Occidental for another 10-day campaign starting Saturday.

President Garcia mourned the death of Dr. Dag Hammarskjold, secretary general of the United Nations, and extolled his efforts to preserve world peace. The President said Dr. Hammarskjold's life was one dedicated to the service of mankind. The Filipinos, he said, join other freedom-loving peoples of the world in mourning this great loss.

The President this day ordered a more intensified investigation of the reported disappearance of Special Prosecutor Isidro Vejungco of the Department of Justice, who had been assigned to prosecute cases of anomalies in some government corporations.

In a wire received in Malacañang this evening from the RPS Lapu-Lapu enroute back to Manila, the President reiterated his deep concern over the case, saying that he will never allow violence and lawlessness subvert the prosecution of justice in this country.

The President ordered the National Bureau of Investigation, one of the agencies working on the case, to submit progress reports on their investigations.

The Chief Executive had been informed of Vejungco's disappearance more than a week ago when the special prosecutor was first reported missing. He promptly wired Justice Secretary Alejo Mabanag in Manila to submit details of the case on learning that the missing prosecutor had been handling the prosecution of alleged anomalies in the ACCFA, in land cases involving some government agencies, as well as some murder cases in Ilocos Sur, at the time of his disappearance.

September 24.—PRESIDENT Garcia today pledged that the Administration will keep the country moving upward, forward, and onward along the highway of prosperity and progress.

The President, confident of the Nacionalista victory in November, gave this pledge to the people of Iloilo in his first two speeches at Tigbauan and Guimbal this morning.

The President emphasized that the Nacionalista Party, which was organized to fight for immediate, complete, and absolute independence, will press on its fight with vigor for economic independence because it is vital to our very existence that the Filipino should gain control of its own economic household.

The President also lauded the unity of the warring factions in the province as a sign that the entire Nacionalista ticket will win. He said that the NP candidates deserved the vote of confidence because they are chosen on the basis of record of achievements and dedication to the people's service.

President Garcia said that the Nacionalista Party, which was given the vote of confidence in the last four elections, chalked up a brilliant performance, and as if to underscore President Garcia's reiteration, LP Mayor Eugenio Torrento of Tigbauan, who organized a riotous welcome for the President, told the people not to forget the many benefits extended by the President to Tigbauan.

Sen. Fernando Lopez and Gov. Jose C. Zulueta appealed to the people to close ranks behind the Nacionalista Party because the happiness and prosperity of the region and the entire country rest on NP victory.

September 26.—PRESIDENT Garcia today committed the Administration to the development and improvement of the sugar industry to exploit the sugar bonanza of increased United States quota.

Earlier, during the unveiling of the Moises Padilla monument in Bacolod City, the President warned the electorate against a new era of terrorism should the Liberals gain power in November.

During the ceremony the President enjoined every Filipino to help preserve democracy which has been recognized by the whole world as the most successful in whole Asia.

The President pointed out that the cause of democracy is bigger than the cause of Garcia or the Nacionalistas, and reiterated that he would rather lose than win in terrorized and fraudulent elections.

The President laid down the sugar platform in a speech at the luncheon at La Carlota Central immediately after he had opened the milling season by pulling on the switch at the mill.

In his speech the President said that the bonanza should be spread out among the millers, planters, and laborers because every humble man is entitled to a share of the comforts of modern civilized life.

In a letter he personally dictated on board the RPS Lapu-Lapu while enroute from one Visayan province to another, the President chided Mrs. Milagros P. Novales, owner of the umbrella who made her complaint through a newspaper, for her failure to lodge her claim earlier.

Said the President: “Of hand, it would seem that you have slept on your rights too long and this omission on your part should put you in estoppel. But of course you had an unassailable title to the lost umbrella; hence, I find it only fair that I should pay you the price you gave for it.”

He enclosed a postal money order for ₱25.00.

The President’s attention had been called to an item appearing in a recent issue of a morning daily that on August 19, 1959, Mrs. Novales attended a ceremony in the Don Bosco Institute, where her son was enrolled. President Garcia and Cardinal Santos had headed the guests.

As the sun was very hot and the Cardinal was looking around for an umbrella with which to shield the President, Mrs. Novales had offered her umbrella. The ceremony over, the President left in his car. A “dignified looking” man, to use Mrs. Novales’ words, followed, carrying the umbrella with him. The loss of the parasol had been on her mind ever since.

Before disembarking from the ship the Chief Executive signed a letter addressed to Director Raoul Inocentes of the Bureau of Labor Relations, informing him of his designation as acting undersecretary of labor.

Inocentes will take the place of former Undersecretary Agapito Braganza, who was recently designated acting secretary, vice Angel Castaño, who is running as an official candidate for senator under the Nacionalista Party banner.

Inocentes, who was an assistant to the Secretary of Labor, was designated acting labor secretary upon the recommendation of former Secretary Castaño.

Among the officials that met the President and party at the pier were Health Secretary Elpidio Valencia, former Labor Secretary Castaño, Assistant Executive Secretaries Enrique C. Quema and Edilberto Gallares, Manila Councilor Alfredo Gomez, and many others.

October 2.—PRESIDENT Garcia today paid the highest tribute to the late Senator Claro M. Recto for his “sterling nationalism” and “granite conviction” on the occasion of the Batangas solon’s first death anniversary.

The President was the guest speaker at the memorial services and ceremonies for the late senator held under the auspices of the Claro M. Recto mausoleum in the North Cemetery.

Recalling the greatness of Senator Recto, the President said that the most outstanding contribution of the Batangas lawmaker to Philippine History and politics was his “nationalism which was neither tainted by chicanery to cater to the popular fluctuation of opinion nor was formulated to please the powers that be.”

He pointed out that the utterances, writings, and opinions of the late Senator on nationalism constitute the best part of his life. “Every one of us admires Recto for one thing and that is his sterling nationalism that is akin to Rizal,” the President said.

Speaking extemporaneously, the President stated that Recto’s nationalism was probably one of the reasons why on the inscriptions on his mausoleum are found the words of Rizal through Philosopher Tacio: “No todos dormia ante la noche.”

The President spoke at the rites after former Chief Justice Ricardo Paras spoke on the “Deathless Words of Claro M. Recto.” The Chief Executive and Doña Aurora R. de Eecto led the floral offering at the mausoleum which was blessed by Mons. Alejandro Olalla, D.D., bishop of Lipa.

The President today stated that the election of his running mate, Sen. Gil J. Puyat, would insure the continuation of the economic policies of the Nacionalista administration, at a conference with Bulacan political leaders who pledged to support his reelection bid.

The Bulacan group was told by the President that their support for his reelection bid would be useless if they did not work for the election of Puyat as Vice-President, as the NP economic policies would be disregarded in case another candidate would assume the second top position of the country.

In response to the President’s request, the Bulacan leaders pledged to work for Puyat’s candidacy.

During the occasion the President administered the oath of affiliation with the Nacionalista Party to former Mayor Servando Santos of Baliuag, who, before his defection, was the campaign manager of the Liberal Party for the province of Bulacan.

The President, worried over the long absence of Vejungco and the negative findings of the National Bureau of Investigation to find the motive for the sudden disappearance, also told the family of the missing prosecutor to keep the police informed of any suspicious incidents.

Mrs. Trinidad Almario Vejungco, wife of the missing prosecutor, informed the President that newspaper reports that her husband was living somewhere in Nueva Ecija were not true. She also reported to the President that early this morning four unidentified men were inquiring for her married daughter, Mrs. Lilia V. Vejungco.

In his extemporaneous address at the First Foundation Day celebration of the Philippine Veterans Administration this afternoon, the President warned that unless the Filipinos, particularly the veterans, are ready to die for the democratic principles which they fought for, the mandate of the people's will could be subverted, especially through elections.

The President told the huge assembly at the PVA compound that the elections of 1949 were an abject lesson to all freedom lovers. He said that in that election the Liberals tried to rape the people's will through violence, terrorism, and wholesale frauds.

Only the people's determination to defend the democratic ideals for which many of them fought and died, prevented the Liberals from destroying the democratic ideals and democratic processes in this country, the President said.

President Garcia pointed out that the Huk rebellion of 1950 was a direct result of the efforts of the Liberals to subvert the people's will in that election.

The President pledged to the veterans that he is determined to maintain clean, free, and honest elections and expressed his faith that the veterans will stand against any practices to violate the sanctity of the ballot.

Touching on the functions of the Philippine Veterans Administration, the President said that the PVA was the best evidence of the government's concern for its soldiers, their widows, and their orphans.

In view of the expected surplus in the future, the President said he had directed government agencies concerned to find new industrial uses of rice. He mentioned the experiments being undertaken at the Rockefeller International Rice Research Institute located near the College of Agriculture of the University of the Philippines in Los Baños, which produces better seeds for better yield.

The Mabacan Irrigation System costing nearly P1 million will irrigate about 1,500 hectares and benefit the towns of Calauan, Bay, and Los Baños. It is expected to increase the yield of palay in the three towns by no less than 350,000 cavans, the President said.

The two Ambassadors were presented to the President by Minister Pedro Aragon Angara, protocol officer of the Department of Foreign Affairs,

President Garcia said today that he is leaving for the northern provinces not only to plead for the Ilocano votes but also to observe first hand the actual peace and order situation in that trouble-ridden region.

On the eve of his departure for an 11-day campaign tour which will take him to seven provinces and two cities in Northern and Central Luzon, the President expressed his desire to meet personally with local leaders of both parties in Ilocos Sur and Ilocos Norte in an effort to bring about a more peaceful election in these two provinces.

The President indicated his desire to appeal personally to the local leaders to temper their passions and conduct their campaigns with sobriety and calmness in order to avoid violence and unnecessary bloodshed.

While he said that he is satisfied with the progress of the peace and order campaign so far being waged in the locality during the past few weeks, the President however added he would like to have assurance that the situation will not erupt to more violence as election day draws near.

The Chief Executive reiterated his directive to the Constabulary and the Armed Forces to accelerate the collection and confiscation of loose firearms in the area and the strict implementation of regulations prohibiting unauthorized persons to carry firearms.

The President, likewise, reiterated his threat to place the region under military control if the situation warrants, recalling that he had ordered Armed Forces authorities to stand-by a full strength battalion combat team for this purpose.

The Chief Executive had previously been briefed by Brig. Gen. Isagani V. Campo on conditions in the locality, particularly the campaign against loose firearms.

Accompanied by reelectionist Sens. Lorenzo Sumulong, Pacita M. Gonzalez, and Domocao Alonto, the President will leave by plane tomorrow morning. He will cover the provinces of Ilocos Sur, Ilocos Norte, Abra, La Union, Mt. Province, Pangasinan, and Tarlac. He is also scheduled to hold rallies in Baguio and Dagupan Cities.

President's Week in Review: October 8-14, 1961

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

October 8.—THE presidential Friendship Fokker plane carrying President Garcia and company landed at the Laoag (Ilocos Norte) airport at 10:15 this morning, with Laoag Mayor Eulalio Siason, a Nacionalista, heading the Nacionalista welcomers.

Liberal officials, led by Gov. Jose Evangelista and Rep. Antonio V. Raquiza, displayed sportmanship as they vied with the Nacionalista leaders in giving the Chief Executive a warm welcome.

Two followers of Gov. Evangelista, Francisco Babal and Bartolome Tolentino, did more than just welcoming President Garcia. They asked him to induct them into the Nacionalista camp during a rally in Dingras town.

Following a Te Deum at the local Catholic church, the Chief Executive motored to Dingras, Sarrat, and Bacarra towns where political rallies were awaiting him.

In barrio Sta. Rosa in Sarrat farmers and members of their families left their farms to form a human roadblock to the presidential party.

The President was forced to get off the car and address the crowd. He was applauded warmly when he assured the farmers of continued government subsidy to the Virginia tobacco industry.

The President harped on the same theme in all his political speeches.

The presidential party returned to Laoag late this evening. President Garcia conferred with Nacionalista officials and leaders at the home of Health Undersecretary Damaso Samonte before addressing another political rally at the town plaza.

President Garcia wound up a hectic day in the Liberal-dominated province of Ilocos Norte tonight, confident of having improved his political position.

October 9.—PRESIDENT Garcia today charged Liberal leaders with distortion of facts and demagoguery in their attempt to win the people's votes.

Speaking at huge rallies in Batac and Badoc, Ilocos Norte, and later in Sinait, the President lambasted the opposition for criticizing the importation of American blending tobacco and for promising to lower the prices of commodities when they gain power.

"Can I," the President asked, "destroy one of the pillars of our national economy when I am supposed to strengthen it, promote prosperity, and increase the people's per capita income?"

The Chief Executive also revealed that certain unprincipled Liberals had helped create artificial rice shortage to make it an issue against the Nacionalistas.

"Luckily," he said, "they have been found out, because while you can fool all people sometime and some people all the time, you cannot fool all people all the time."

He explained that the importation of blending tobacco was decided as a measure to save cigarette factories in the country which are being forced to close shop owing to lack of quality raw materials and because of the fact that the Agricultural Credit and Cooperative Financing Administration (ACCFA) has accumulated unsaleable low grade Virginia tobacco of nearly seven million kilos.

The President, however, emphasized that the importation of four and a half million kilos will be strictly for blending purposes and on the condition that the importer buys four kilos of poor quality tobacco from the ACCFA and two kilos from the producer for every kilo imported.

He said this would enable the ACCFA to dispose of locally accumulated tobacco to enable the government to collect P25 million in customs and ₱72 million in specific taxes.

The Chief Executive also announced that he had released ₱8 million to pay for the unpaid ACCFA purchase of 1959.

The President left Laoag at 9:00 this morning, stopping at Batac, Biloca, Currimao, Badoc, and Sinait to address huge crowds.

Heading the welcomers at Badoc was Liberal Mayor Angel Bautista. Also present were Ilocos Sur Gov. Godofredo Reyes, Rep. Faustino Tobia, ex-Mayor Esmeraldo Agabin, and Judge Roman Campos.

After addressing the Badoc rally, the President proceeded to Sinait “for luncheon and another meeting- He then motored to Vigan, making whistle stops at Cabugao, Lapog, and Magsingal, and later inaugurated the new Sto. Domingo municipal building annex.

The President is expected in Vigan at seven this evening to speak at another rally and spend the night at Secretary Enrique Quema’s residence.

October 10.—PRESIDENT Garcia today called on the Liberals to take up his challenge for them to present a better solution to the problem of disposing accumulated low grade Virginia tobacco in ACCFA bodegas.

In rallies in Bangued, Abra, and in Pidigan town, he insisted that the Nacionalista formula for solving the tobacco surplus problem would “inject more vigor into the local Virginia tobacco industry and help maintain the government price support for the industry.”

The President, explained that the formula requires importers of high grade U.S. Virginia tobacco to purchase, for every kilo imported, four kilos of low grade local Virginia leaf from the ACCFA and two kilos directly from the farmers.

President Garcia challenged the Liberals to present a better formula whereby the surplus of 47 million kilos of Virginia tobacco can be disposed of and at the same time generate funds to continue the government price support program.

He disclosed that Central Bank officials had informed him that the CB has reached the limit of extending loans for Virginia tobacco purchases and that the Auditor General had also informed him that the GAO would not pass in audit further payments of Virginia tobacco unless ACCFA repaid its Central Bank loans amounting to ₱15 million.

After long studies of the problem, the President said he came up with the formula but added that he was willing to adopt another scheme if the Liberals could present a better one for the sake of the Ilocano farmers.

President Garcia had breakfast in Vigan, Ilocos Sur, in the house of Assistant Executive Secretary Enrique Quema, together with ex-Gov. Eliseo Quirino, Antonio Quirino, Tommy Quirino, Ilocos Sur Gov. Godofredo Reyes, and Rep. Faustino B. Tobia.

The President was heartened by the sight of Antonio Quirino and Tobia, who are rivals for Ilocos Sur’s second congressional seat, evidently forgetting local politics in order to welcome him.

Before leaving Vigan the President went to the Archbishop's palace and was welcomed by Bishop Antonio Mabutas of Laoag in the absence of Archbishop Juan Sison now in Rome.

The President then went to Narvacan, passing through Bantay and Santa.

In Narvacan the President lauded the sportsmanship of Ben Zarragoza and Mayor Ponciano Reyes of Santa Maria, both contesting the first congressional district seat, who set aside their rivalry in order to welcome him and endorse the Nacionalista national ticket.

President Garcia inducted into the NP Vice-Mayors Constante Valdez of Santa Lucia and Honesto Laurente of Tagudin and Councilor Modesto Lardizabal of Tagudin.

There, the President was mobbed by townfolks at the plaza where he spoke after hearing a Te Deumat the local Catholic church.

After the rally the President was the honored guest at a popular banquet at the newly rebuilt provincial capitol where he spent the night.

October 11.—PRESIDENT Garcia today lambasted Vice-President Macapagal for “shamelessly peddling his theory of command responsibility and promising to provide 28 million Filipinos with employment and to abolish poverty.”

Delivering his “fightingest” speech at Candon, the President described the theory of command responsibility as a sign of mental emptiness and asked the rally crowd: “How can you hold one man responsible for the acts of another? Let us stop kidding ourselves and not be fooled by these demagogues.”

He also charged Vice-President Macapagal with “shamelessly peddling ridiculous ideas,” like providing everyone with employment and abolishing poverty which, he said, no person can believe.

The Chief Executive cautioned the people not to be deceived by such promises which are usually accompanied by destructive criticism, character assassination, and vilification, but to vote judiciously for the party which can promote the progress and prosperity of the nation.

The President appealed for a straight Nacionalista ticket victory so that the NPs can build a greater, happier, and more progressive Philippines on foundations of faith, hope, and love.

At San Esteban the President, noting the absence of local Liberal officials, told the crowd that welcomed him that officials who, for partisan consideration, show discourtesy to the Chief Executive of the land by not greeting him do not deserve the confidence of the people.

On the other hand, he praised LP Mayor Clemente Abaya and the huge crowd at Candon for giving him and his fellow candidates a chance to be heard.

The Chief Executive emphasized that a renewal of mandate for the Nacionalistas will not be a personal favor or an act of mercy but a just reward for four years of spectacular achievements among which are expansion of agriculture by 40 per cent, establishment of 2,000 new industries, employing two million people and reducing unemployment from 1,800,000 to 800,000, stabilization of the credit and financial position of the government, and turning the balance of trade in favor of the Philippines in 1960 to $47 million.

The President's speech was preceded by those of senatorial bets Pacita M. Gonzalez, Quintin Paredes, and Angel Castaño. The Chief Executive arrived at 8: 30 a.m. at the Abra-Ilocos Sur boundary where he was met by a delegation headed by Rep. Faustino Tobia and Gov. Godofredo Reyes.

After breakfast with Gov. Reyes and addressing a crowd at the plaza, the President proceeded to Tagudin, addressing rallies at San Esteban, Santiago, Candon, and Sta. Lucia on the way.

The President and party had a late lunch at Tagudin, and after addressing rallies in that town and Bangar and Bacnotan, he motored to San Fernando, La Union, for another mass meeting. He then proceeded to Poro Point for the night.

October 12.—PRESIDENT Garcia today announced that the period from 1960 to 1970 will be dedicated to the attainment of economic emancipation and development in the Philippines.

Speaking at the inauguration of the Philippine National Bank branch, in San Fernando, La Union, the President emphasized that the opening of more Philippine-owned banks, besides boosting the nation's economy, will prove vital in recovering economic control from aliens.

Later the President inaugurated the ₱100,000 bailey bridge in Sto. Rosario. He said it was one more evidence of the Administration's deep concern for the welfare of the barrio people.

In a rally at San Fernando still later, the President said that the importation of blending tobacco would enable the government to continue its tobacco support program to save the industry.

Earlier, at Sto. Rosario, President Garcia inducted into the Nacionalista Party Vice-Mayor Gaetos of San Juan and Trifon Carbonell of San Gabriel. He also swore in this evening at Bacnotan Aniceto Carbonell, LP local chairman, who told the President that he was "switching to the NP because he valued the people's interests more than his party."

During the inauguration the President also pledged the continuance of universal education to provide all children, rich and poor alike, equal opportunities for advancement.

The President said the present administration is giving more emphasis to rural health and education, unlike any past administration. This is the reason for the tremendous increase of the national budget for these services, he pointed out.

In his speech at the PNB the President paid tribute to the daring and pioneering spirit of the late President Quezon and other leaders who built the PNB from modest beginnings to serve the Filipino businessmen, farmers, and traders, and to prevent total control of the economy by the aliens.

Present at the inauguration were the First Lady, PNB President Eduardo Z. Romualdez, Gov. Eulogio de Guzman, Rep. Francisco Ortega, Mayor Lorenzo Dacanay, Justice Secretary Alejo Mabanag, and other high ranking national, provincial, and municipal officials. Romualdez paid tribute to President Garcia as the one solely responsible for the recent rise in the value of PNB assets to P1.3 billion and the increase of deposits to P850 million.

The President held a breakfast party caucus aboard the RPS Lapu-Lapu attended by Rep. Francisco Ortega, congressional aspirant Jose Aspiras, and other party leaders.

After the caucus the President motored to San Fernando for the PNB inauguration and later to Sto. Rosario for the San Juan bridge inauguration. From there the President proceeded to Bauang to address a noon-day rally. He returned to San Fernando for lunch at about 3 p.m.

From San Fernando, the President motored to Agoo for another meeting, making whistlestops at Naguilian, Caba, Aringay, Damortis, Sto. Tomas, and Rosario where he urged the people to vote for the straight Nacionalista ticket on the basis of the Administration's solid achievements.

From Rosario the President motored to Baguio, via Kennon road, arriving at the Pines City late in the evening.

October 13.—PRESIDENT Garcia today pledged to give continued support to the mining industry that will result in benefits to both labor and management.

At the same time he warned his audience against being misled by the false propaganda and crazy theories of the opposition which, he said, are designed to deceive them into voting for the Liberal candidates.

Addressing a huge crowd that jam-packed the movie house at the Balatoc Mining Company compound, the President reminded the miners that when he was elected President, the mining industry was on the brink of folding up because of unfavorable international trade conditions.

He said he signed the Mitra bill which is now Republic Act No. 3089, otherwise known as the Gold Mining Subsidy Act, in order to save the industry from closing shop.

The new statute further provides for five per cent bonus to the mining laboring class from whatever allocation may be provided as subsidy for the industry.

The Chief Executive said that the new law provides for an appropriation of ₱83 million for the first three years.

The President was roundly applauded when he revealed that the mining will receive about ₱130,00 as bonus under the subsidy program for the first quarter. Some of the miners, he said, have already received their

He reiterated his appeal for a renewal of the people's confidence in the Nacionalista Party for its accomplishments.

This evening the President instructed Justice Buenaventura Ocampo, PCAPE Chairman, to assign more investigators to the alleged "Kickback" racket involving ACCFA and FACOMA key officials.

The Chief Executive issued the order following receipt of a wire informing him of the progress of the investigation of the ACCFA tobacco case in the Ilocos region.

Justice Ocampo informed the President that complaints received by the PCAPE from Naguilian, La Union, and Sinait, Ilocos Sur, alleged the existence of a tie-up between ACCFA. and FACOMA officials.

In his preliminary report to the PCAPE chairman, Ondrico A. Batugal, PCAPE investigator, said that several farmers complained of deductions ranging from five to fifteen per cent of what is due them in their tobacco transactions with the ACCFA.

In Sinait, Vice-Mayor Marianito Ibanez said in his verified statement before the PCAPE that of the ₱3,939.15 due him from his sale of tobacco to the ACCFA, ₱240 was deducted by the FACOMA officials.

October 14.—THIS morning the President administered the oath of affiliation with the Nacionalista Party of Alfredo Limcaco and his brother, Ernesto.

Alfredo Limcaco is the technical assistant of Senator Estanislao A. Fernandez, Liberal Party deputy general campaign manager.

Later the President had luncheon conference with Speaker Daniel Z. Romualdez, NP general campaign manager.

He also received Lt. Gen. Manuel F. Cabal, Armed Forces chief of staff, who reported on the recently concluded SEATO conference.

Other callers at the Mansion House included Ambassador Raul T. Leuterio, Philippine consul general in New York, who paid his respects, and acting Public Works Secretary Marciano D. Bautista.

This evening President Garcia accused the opposition of abusing the intelligence of the Filipino people for making false promises and indulging in destructive criticism.

The President addressed a big crowd which braved a continuous cold drizzle which intermittently broke into moderate rains at the Malcolm Square in Baguio. He lampooned the opposition for continuously promising to bring down the prices of commodities.

“We cannot accomplish anything out of hatred and negative thinking,” the President said. “If we have to realize our aspirations for a better and prosperous Philippines, we must have to work together instead of engaging in character assassination.”

President's Week in Review: October 15-21, 1961

Official Week in Review

October 15.—PRESIDENT Garcia today debunked the claim of Vice-President Diosdado Macapagal that if elected he would bring down prices of commodities.

In a rally in Pozorrubio, Pangasinan, the President said that even presidents of great nations like the United States cannot go against laws of economics. He cited world-wide trend of rising prices of commodities which affects the Philippines.

He added that anybody who claims he can arrest the trend is not telling the truth.

He recalled the rape of democracy perpetrated during the heyday of the Liberal Party and said "when nothing happens to your suffrage, there is no reason to worry, but when it is taken away from you suddenly, you remember the Nacionalista Party and its role in safeguarding free elections."

President Garcia was pleasantly surprised at the warm, reception he received in Tayug, Pangasinan, LP bailiwick.

After breakfast the President conferred with Jose Maria Rocha, presidential executive assistant.

President Garcia's reelection bid was further bolstered in Cotabato with the assurance made by Gov. Datu Udtog Matalam that the Chief Executive will garner the biggest majority ever given any presidential candidate.

The assurance was made by Gov. Matalam during a conference with a presidential task force headed by Sergio Toca.

The President arrived at western Pangasinan towns this morning from Lingayen on the third day of his four-day stump of the province to clinch its votes for the majority party candidates.

"I am happy to report to you that my administration has fulfill its promise of promoting the progress and prosperity of our nation," the Chief Executive said.

He pointed out that the country always had an unfavorable balance of trade from 1941 to 1958. Beginning 1959, however, commerce had been so developed that the balance of trade in favor of the Philippines is now 47 million dollars.

The President took occasion to endorse the reelection bid of Rep. Aguedo Agbayani, who he said is one of the rising economists of the country.

In going to Alaminos the President made whistle-stops at Labrador and Sual, where he made brief speeches asking people to reiterate confidence in his administration.

The Chief Executive is scheduled to address rallies in Mangatarem, Lingayen, and in Binmaley tonight.

He will stay overnight at the Urduja House in Lingayen. With the President's party are senatorial candidates Decoroso Rosales, Pacita M. Gonzalez, Jose Roy, Quintin Paredes, Pedro Sabido, and Angel Castano.

President Garcia today took steps to protect Tondo fire victims by suspending the permit of the General Shipping Company to build a warehouse in the foreshore land occupied by them.

The President made this move following a conference with Max Maceren, vice-chairman of the Presidential Committee on Administration Performance Efficiency, at Dagupan City this morning.

The victims of the fire which hit Tondo last January, complained that the General Shipping Company was building a "Berlin" wall around the area they were occupying by virtue of a provisional permit issued by the Bureau of Lands.

While the Bureau of Lands justified issuance of the permit to the shipping firm on the ground that the lot was exempted from the law concerning the Tondo Foreshore Lands (R. A. 2439), the Land Tenure Administration maintained that the property was covered by the law; hence, the permit should be suspended.

Vice-Chairman Maceren recommended the suspension of the permit pending resolution of the case between the Bureau of Lands and the Land Tenure Administration in order to protect the fire victims who are occupying shanties and army tents in the area.

October 19.—PRESIDENT Garcia called on the late President Sergio Osmeña at the Veterans Memorial Hospital in Quezon City shortly after his arrival this morning from a stumping tour of northern Luzon.

The review of the financial status of the country was made in preparation for the launching of economic projects which would require dollar financing.

During the conference the MB decided to ask sugar millers and planters to step up their production in order to meet the 150,000-ton additional sugar quota granted by the United States.

At noon the President sailed for Leyte, where he is scheduled to officiate at ceremonies marking the anniversary of the Leyte landing. He will also undertake a four-day stumping tour of Samar and Leyte provinces.

October 20.—PRESIDENT Garcia received a rousing welcome on arrival in Tacloban, Leyte, today to attend the ceremonies marking the 17th anniversary of the Leyte landing.

Shortly after his arrival, he motored to Plaza Libertad where he delivered the main address at the anniversary celebration of the landing of American forces in Palo, Leyte.

The President also laid a wreath at the tomb of the unknown American soldier.

Among those who accompanied the President to the tomb were US Ambassador John D. Hickerson, Speaker Daniel Z. Romualdez, and other high-ranking Filipino and American officials.

While aboard the yacht Lapu-Lapu the President created a committee to take charge of the funeral arrangements and burial of former President Sergio Osmeña.

President Garcia created the committee in order that “adequate arrangements be made for the holding of official necrological services and state funeral for the former President, commensurate with the people’s love and respect for him with the great debt of gratitude that they owe him.”

The committee is headed by Speaker Daniel Romualdez. Among the other members are Sens. Ferdinand Marcos, Mariano Jesus Cuenco, and Domocao Alonto; Secretaries Elpidio Valencia, Alejo Santos, Jose Tuazon, and Jose C. Nable; Justice Jesus Barrera; Speaker Protempore Constancio Castañeda; Minority Floor Leader Cornelio Villareal; Gen. Basilio Kaldes; former Executive Secretary Jose Reyes; Assistant Executive Secretary Enrique C. Quema; and Gov. Francisco Remotigue, with Minister Manuel G. Zamora as secretary.

The President also issued an order directing the National Rice and Corn Corporation to explain why it was purchasing rice from alien rice merchants in Cotabato province instead of direct from Filipino farmers.

He issued the order following receipt of reports from Sergio Toca, presidential task force director, of alleged irregular buying practices by the NARIC in Cotabato.

October 21.—PRESIDENT Garcia decided today to attend the necrological services for the late President Sergio Osmeña, Sr., in Cebu City on Monday, October 23.

The President will stay in Cebu City, for only-two hours to attend the necrological rites and leave immediately for Manila.

In his campaign speeches in Oras, Samar, the President pleaded for a new mandate of the people to allow the Nacionalista party to continue and finish the socio-economic program, of his Administration,

He chided Vice-President Macapagal for charging that the present administration has forgotten the plight of the rural folk by reminding, the crowd that he (the President) could not probably forget the rural folk because “I was born poor like you.”

President Garcia said that his administration is working in earnest for the uplift of the living conditions in the rural areas as borne out by the social and economic development programs being undertaken at present.

The President and party arrived 11 a.m. at the Oras wharf and was met by jostling welcomers led by acting Gov. Vicente Valley, Rep. Felipe Abrigo, and 20 town mayors. They proceeded to the town parish church for a Te Deum, thence to the Plaza for the rally which was overflowing with rural folks.

After luncheon at the Holy Cross Institute, the presidential party hoarded the RPS Lapu-Lapu, for Borongan where, upon arrival, they attended another Te Deum at the town parish church.

The President conferred with the municipal officials at the town hall, and then attended the public rally at the Plaza where rural folks clamored for his balak.

President Garcia will return to Manila Tuesday morning, Oct. 24, instead of Monday, Oct. 23, as originally scheduled, because of the Cebu stop. His trips to Nueva Ecija and Bulacan have been moved to Oct. 27 and 28.

President Garcia moved today to alleviate the plight of some 600 hundred families in Tondo when he issued a presidential proclamation subdividing the portion known as the Sunog Apog in Isla de Balut. The area will be divided among, bona fide occupants.

In issuing the proclamation the President considered as a prime concern the construction of drainage works that will conform with the approved plan of the National Planning Commission. In the last session, the President vetoed a bill ordering the release of the same area because it did not provide for appropriate drainage to prevent the incidence of floods in Manila.

The proclamation was issued on the recommendation of a special Cabinet Committee headed by Justice Buenaventura Ocampo of PCAPE. The Committee submitted its recommendation after consultations with the Department of Public Works and Communications, the Department of Health, and the National Planning Commission regarding implementation of health and safety regulations in the area.

The other members of the Committee are Secretary Florencio Moreno, Secretary Alejo Santos, Secretary Jose Locsin, and Administrator Amparo Villamor.

The President ended his Samar stump with speeches in the towns of Laoang, Catarman, San Jose, and Allen. The President urged the electorate in those towns to give another mandate to the NP which has devoted eight years of service to the people.

In his speech in Laoang, President Garcia announced the release of P1 million as aid to the fire victims in that town and ₱100,000 to repair a bridge which was destroyed by a recent typhoon.

Despite the rough trip from Borongan, the President woke up early and heard mass aboard the yacht while anchored four miles off Laoang.

At 9:00 a.m. Rep. Eladio T. Balite and Laoang Mayor Romulo Giray boarded the yacht to welcome the Chief Executive, and to escort him to the wharf with a long fluvial parade of gaily decorated boats and motor bancas.

Other speakers who followed the President were Sens. Gil Puyat, vice-presidential candidate, Pedro Sabido, Domocao Alonto, and Pacita M. Gonzalez, and Cong. Jose Roy.

From Laoang the presidential party proceeded in several buses to Catarman but made whistle stops at Tambungian and San Roque as well as in the barrios of Bantayan, Bagaspas, Roxas, and later, in Mondragon.

From there President and Mrs. Garcia proceeded to the Samar Institute of Technology to inaugurate the Alumni Home building. The President addressed the faculty and student body at the SIT amphitheater before proceeding to Catarman and Allen.

The Chief Executive took time out from his campaign to issue a stern warning to any person, Filipino or alien alike, that he would not hesitate to jail them if they are caught smuggling rice out of the country.

The President issued the warning upon receiving a report that rice, which is the country's critical item and which commands a high price in North Borneo, is being smuggled to the British colony under the very noses of police agencies.

Sergio Toca, executive director of the presidential task force, transmitted the President's warning to Cotabato rice merchants during a meeting there. The meeting was attended by members of the Cotabato rice millers, representatives of the Bureau of Commerce, and Maj. Narciso Digamon, assistant PC provincial commander in Cotabato.

October 23.—PRESIDENT Garcia today paid glowing tribute to the sterling qualities of the late former President Sergio Osmeña as a statesman and patriot during an impromptu program held at the social hall of the provincial capitol building in Cebu City where the remains of the former President lie in state.

Speaking extemporaneously in Visayan, the President pointed out the many sacrifices of Don Sergio for the unity of the Nacionalista Party and for his love for the country and people.

The Chief Executive said Don Sergio left three great legacies to the Filipino people; namely, fervent nationalism, the Nacionalista Party, and the Republic of the Philippines.

He said Osmeña's nationalism is so akin to Rizal's for which the hero and martyr laid down his life in Bagumbayan and welded his disunited people into one.

The President cited the important role played by the late former Chief Executive in founding the Nacionalista Party in 1907, together with Quezon and Palma, to fight the Federal Party, which favored the annexation of the Philippines as a state of the American Union.

Although Don Sergio is dead, the President added, his spirit and ideals will remain alive to guide the present and coming generations.

The Chief Executive consoled the Cebuanos, saying that not only Cebu but the whole nation as well weeps the death of the Grand Old Man whose name is written on the rock of ages.

So grief stricken was the President at the end of his speech that he started shedding tears, and the huge crowd that filled the hall, moved by his speech, also broke out in tears.

The President arrived in Cebu aboard the RPS Lapu-Lapu at about noon and was met at Pier One by Rep. Sergio Osmeña, Jr., representing the family of the late former President.

After his speech, the President rested awhile at the office of Gov. Francisco Remotigue and then motored to Don Sergio's house for lunch with the immediate members of the Osmeña family.

From the Osmeña residence, the President and the First Lady returned to the RPS Lapu-Lapu at about 4 p.m. for the 23-hour trip back to Manila with a short stop at Lapu-Lapu City, formerly Oton town.

October 24.—PRESIDENT Garcia returned at 5 this afternoon from an eight-day stump of Leyte and Samar and a sidetrip to Cebu City where he viewed the remains of the late President Sergio Osmeña.

He was met at Pier 3 by Defense Secretary Alejo S. Santos whom he summoned to a conference on the deteriorating peace-and-order situation throughout the country. Santos assured the President the situation is "under control."

The President arrived with the First Lady, Sen. Pacita M. Gonzalez, and Mesdames Paz Romualdez and Amy Lim.

He returned to Malacañang where he viewed for the second time the remains of the late President Osmeña which lies in state at the Palace.

This afternoon he took advantage of his voyage home aboard the presidential yacht by going over a thick pile of pending state papers which were brought to him by Assistant Executive Secretary Enrique C. Quema. Quema flew to Tacloban City to take to him the papers.

The President chatted with some passengers aboard the presidential yacht. He told them that his visit to Samar had tremendously increased his position in that province. He expects to poll a majority of from 65 to 70 per cent in the province.

In the evening the President motored to the Club Filipino to attend the dinner of the Association of the Philippine Broadcasters.

On the way to Manila the President rested in his suite aboard the RPS Lapu-Lapu. He had a hectic time traveling on gravel roads through the coastal Samar towns.

Earlier this morning the President, the First Lady, and Mr. and Mrs. Fernando Campos, heard the requiem mass celebrated by Mons. Hernando Antiporda at the Malacañang hall for the late President Sergio Osmeña, Sr.

Also present at the mass were chiefs of diplomatic missions, members of the Cabinet, other high government officials, families of past Philippine Presidents, and close relatives and friends of the deceased, among whom were:

This afternoon Malacañang announced that all officials and employees in government offices, as well as school pupils and students in public and private schools, colleges, and universities in the City of Manila and suburbs, are excused from coming to office or, class tomorrow morning to enable them to attend or witness the funeral procession as a parting tribute to the late President Osmeña.

The remains of the late Don Sergio Osmeña, Sr., will be laid to rest at the Manila North Cemetery tomorrow, at high noon.

This evening the President presided over the regular meeting of his Cabinet. It was the first meeting of his advisory body since he plunged into an intensive political campaign two months ago.

The Chief Executive found his Cabinet badly depleted by resignations of department secretaries who decided to run for public offices in the coming elections.

Those who left the Cabinet to run for public offices were Secretary of Labor Angel Castaño, Education Secretary Jose E. Romero, acting General Services Secretary Serafin Salvador, and Executive Secretary Natalio P. Castillo.

Newest face in the Cabinet was acting General Services Secretary Arsenic Lugay, former governor of Tarlac, who sat down for the first time with the President and other department secretaries.

October 26.—PRESIDENT Garcia led the nation in paying final tribute to the late President Sergio Osmeña, who was laid to rest at the Manila North Cemetery at high noon today.

The Grand Old Man of Cebu was buried beside the late Sen. Claro M. Recto, in the presence of high government officials, members of the diplomatic corps, close associates of his in his long public career, relatives and friends, as well as thousands of people from all walks of life.

In his oration at the necrological services earlier, at the session hall of Congress, President Garcia eulogized President Osmeña as one of the greatest men ever born to the Filipino race: a beloved and gentle friend, firm and wise leader, fearless and greathearted statesman, broadvisioned and selfless patriot.

The President said the late statesman left the Filipinos three of his most glorious legacies: a vigorous and triumphant Nacionalista Party, a united nationally-conscious nation, and a free independent Republic.

The President and the First Lady, accompanied by Linda Campos, left Malacañang at 8:30 and arrived 15 minutes later at the session hall of Congress.

At 10 a.m. after the necrological services the flag-draped bier was mounted on a black caisson drawn by a scout car and followed by a mile-long funeral cortège, and proceeded slowly northward along Padre Burgos, Taft Avenue, Plaza Lawton, MacArthur Bridge, Plaza Goiti, Carriedo, Rizal Avenue, and Blumentritt.

Along the route thousands of people crowded the streets to get a last look at the late Chief Executive, as he was taken to his final resting place.

As the funeral cortège approached the cemetery, a 21-gun salute boomed.

The bier was then taken to a catafalque opposite the niche, where final rites were performed by Col. Nicolas Ortega, chief of the Army chaplain corps.

Then three volleys of artillery were fired, and taps sounded the final salute before the remains were gently deposited in the final resting place, with the President placing the last trowel of mortar as a final gesture to his late friend.

The President and the First Lady returned to Malacañang about 12:30 p.m.

In the evening the President inducted the officers of the Tondo Coordinated Parents-Teachers Country Association at the Torres High School.

Tanghal, third vice-president; Maria Clara Gutierrez, secretary; Patrocinio Toribio, assistant secretary; Rosendo Feleo, treasurer; Emiliana Olandez, assistant treasurer; Dalmacio Maniquis, auditor; and Melquiades Mangay, press relations officer.

After inducting these officers, the President motored to Balut Island where he was met by tenants of the Sunog Apog subdivision. The tenants expressed their gratitude to the President for having allocated a place for them.

October 27.—PRESIDENT Garcia today started on a four-day stump of Nueva Ecija, Bulacan, and Quezon provinces, probably his last campaign in Luzon before shifting his drive again to the Visayas and Mindanao.

He started from the Tutuban Station of the Manila Railroad Company shortly before 8 o'clock, 45 minutes behind his schedule. The President had overslept having gone to bed late the previous night after a political rally in Malabon, Rizal.

With the President were Acting Education Secretary Jose Y. Tuason and Sens. Pedro Sabido and Pacita M. Gonzalez.

They were joined in Guimba by Vice-Gov. Inday Melencio, Press Secretary Jose C. Nable, Economic Coordinator Juan O. Chioco, Public Works Undersecretary Marciano Bautista, retired General Alfonso Arellano, Angel Concepcion, Martiniano Abad, and Mariano Sta. Romana, Jr.

The President had planned to address the crowd at the railroad station in Guimba briefly. Affected by the enthusiasm of the crowd, the President decided to hold his political meeting at the town plaza.

Before reaching Guimba, the President passed through Tarlac where he was met by acting Gov. Bienvenido Buan and joined by acting General Services Secretary Arsenio Lugay.

Owing to the delayed schedule and the change of plans in Guimba, the President arrived in San Jose four hours behind schedule. Hungry and tired, the President was faced with a problem upon reaching the town. There were three platforms set for him and he was made to choose which stage he would use.

One was set up by Mayor Arturo B. Pascual, a political leader of the town, who had just joined the Nacionalista Party; the other by Maurino Sobrepena, NP president of the town, and the third by the Constabulary as the neutral stage.

The President sought to solve the problem by visiting Sobrepena in his residence and then repaired to Pascual's house where he took his lunch. He then mounted the stage prepared by the mayor.

From San Jose, the President motored to Cabanatuan City with brief rallies in Muñoz and Talavera.

October 28.—PRESIDENT Garcia's plea for a new mandate for the Nacionalista Party to continue administering the government received enthusiastic response as he carried the campaign to Bulacan with initial rally in San Miguel.

Earlier at Cabiao, Nueva Ecija, the President said that projects being inaugurated by him were the products of careful planning, positive thinking, and efficient performance by the NP. He assured the people that the party will continue to serve their interest if retained in power.

The President spoke in the inauguration of the 1.3 km. concrete road in Cabiao that will connect Nueva Ecija with Pampanga.

The President also revealed he had directed Public Works Undersecretary Marciano Bautista to construct an additional 700 meters after seeing the dilapidated condition of the road.

The President left Gapan this morning after a late breakfast conference with OEC Administrator Juan O. Chioco, Secretary Bautista, NSDB Chairman Paulino J. Garcia, PNB Vice-President Conrado Sevilla, Vice-Gov. Inday Melencio and other officials, rural health officers, and teachers at the residence of Chairman Garcia.

Arriving in San Isidro, the President received a tumultuous welcome complete with brass band, fireworks, and leis.

In grateful welcome for the President and for his first visit, people who jam-packed windows and rooftops assured him of NP victory in November and gave him a warm send off.

At Cabiao a more uproarious welcome from a much thicker crowd greeted the President, with Mayor Gregorio Presco also assuring the President of NP victory.

From the entrance to the town, the President walked along concrete road which he inaugurated, up to the church for Te Deum, and later delivered a brief remark and promised flood control system to prevent erosion by the Pampanga River.

The President was considerably delayed, as people crowded along the route forcing him to stop and shake their hands.

At the boundary the President was received by Defense Secretary Alejo Santos, Rep. Rogaciano Mercado, and Gov. Martin at the head of welcomers who escorted him to the rally.

People forgetting their hunger at almost 2 p.m. applauded him again and again as he cited the benefits extended by the NP administration.

The President said that government finances have considerably stabilized to enable him to finance huge projects in Luzon, Visayas, and Mindanao to answer the people's needs.

The President then proceeded to Bustos where he inaugurated a steel bridge and the new municipal hall.

The President also unveiled the memorial for heroes of the resistance movement during World War II in the Bulacan Military area after which he proceeded to the Santos residence for lunch at 3 p.m.

From there the President motored to Baliuag to lay the cornerstone of the new municipal building and address a rally, and later in Hagonoy for another meeting.

From Hagonoy the President motored to Malolos where he also spoke. Then he entrained for Padre Burgos past midnight to finish his Quezon campaign.

Garcia, C. P. (1961). Official Week in Review. Official Gazette of the Republic of the Philippines, 57 (44), cccxciii-cccxvii

President's Week in Review: October 29 – November 4, 1961

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

October 29.—PRESIDENT Garcia stumped in ten towns of Quezon province appealing for support for the Nacionalista Party “in view of the nationalistic policy of the NP exemplified by the Filipino First policy.”

The President stated that this same nationalism had been preached by great Filipinos like Rizal, Quezon, and Recto. He urged the people of Quezon to vote as one man to support this policy which aims: to wrest from alien hands the control of natural resources and of foreign as well as domestic trade.

In all the rallies, Sen. Lorenzo M. Tañada introduced the President and urged the people of his province to support the Garcia-Puyat team and the other national NP candidates in view of the nationalism advocated by the majority party.

At barrio Malicboy, Pagbilao, Quezon, the President and party heard mass said on the train, together with barrio folks who welcomed the presidential party.

MRR ground crew were able to clear a landslide on the tracks leading to Padre Burgos, and the President and party proceeded by train, together with Sen. Tañada, Gov. Claro Robles, Rep. Leon Guinto, Jr., and Miss Remy Aguidia. Guinto and Aguila are both NPs, contesting the 2nd congressional seat of Quezon.

After the whistlestop at Unisan and Siain, the President and party motored to Atimonan where they had lunch at the residence of former Gov. Leon Guinto, Sr., before speaking at a rally on the plaza.

After the rally the President motored back to Siain to board the train for Tagkawayan.

On the way back the President held rallies in Calauag, Lopez, and Gumaca.

The President spoke mostly in Tagalog and made a big hit with listeners who applauded him many times.

In Padre Burgos, where the NP has never won since 1946, LP Mayor Bienvenido Marquez came out openly for the President and informed him that there were many Cebuanos and Boholanos in the town who wanted the President to speak briefly in Visayan.

The President took the train back for Manila at past midnight.

October 30.—PRESIDENT Garcia returned about 11 this morning from a hectic three-day campaign of Nueva Ecija, Bulacan, and Quezon highly optimistic of receiving the majority votes in those provinces.

The three provinces have a combined potential voting population of over 600,000 and President Garcia said he has blasted the so-called Liberal stronghold in Central Luzon provinces.

Before President Garcia stumped in Nueva Ecija, he was told that he would receive some 37 per cent of the province's 194,000. After his visit, the President said he hoped to split the votes in the province where he lost heavily in 1957.

President Garcia said he expects Senator de la Rosa to strip Vice-President Macapagal of a large number of votes in the province.

President Garcia, during his barnstorming campaign in Quezon province, strengthened the position of the NP there by inducting into the Nacionalista fold five local LP stalwarts. The new NP converts are Vicente L. Escasa, president of the National University Alumni Association, well known civic, social, and youth leader and former stalwart of the Yulo-Macapagal Movement there; Ernesto V. Isaac of Unisan; Vice-Mayor Bernardo Pagkaliwangan, Councilor Mariano Salamat, and Barrio Lieutenant Napoleon Arellano, all of Tagkawayan.

Owing to the clamor of the people to hear the President, the schedule of the Chief Executive there was revised. The President made unscheduled stops in Tagkawayan, barrio Panaon of Unisan, Malicboy and Pag-bilao. Other towns visited by the President were Siain, Atimonan, Calauag, Lopez, Gumaca, and Padre Burgos.

The President was delayed three hours in his return to Manila owing to a derailed log car which blocked the railroad tracks. A landslide at kilometer 171 also delayed the President's schedule here.

The President's return from Quezon province marked the end of his stump in Luzon. He is scheduled to leave today for the Visayas, particularly Bohol, where he will check on the political home fires before the Nov. 14 elections.

From disembarkation point, the 'President proceeded to Camp Murphy where he reviewed a Loyalty Day parade by officers and men of the Armed Forces of the Philippines.

The Loyalty Day parade is a traditional affair of the AFP in connection with the birthday celebration of President Garcia, commander-in-chief of the Armed Forces.

Since President Garcia will not be in Manila to observe his birthday, the AFP reiterated its loyalty to their commander-in-chief.

In his speech the President called for unity and vigilance against the menace of communism in order to preserve freedom and democracy in the Philippines.

In the evening the President motored to the Manila Hotel where he inducted the new officers of the Philippine Chamber of Industries; namely, Mariano V. del Rosario, president; Kilarion M. Henares, Jr., 1st vice-president; Antonio C. Delgado, 2nd vice-president; Aurelio Montinola, Jr., treasurer; and Augusto Caesar Espiritu, executive secretary.

Speaking at the induction of the new officers of the Philippine Chamber of Industries at the Manila Hotel, the President said the economy of the country was stable and, if there were problems and setbacks, most of these were caused by factors outside the control of the Administration.

President Garcia accused the opposition this evening of distorting facts and foisting upon the people economic dangers which did not exist in an effort to discredit his administration*

The President today ordered the Philippine Constabulary to look into reports that congressional candidates 'in different provinces are employing "goons" armed with fake identification papers to give them a semblance of authority to act as personal bodyguards.

The Chief Executive issued the order to General Isagani Campo, PC chief, through Justice Buenaventura Ocampo, PCAPE Chairman.

The President who expressed time and again his determination to have a clean and honest election this coming November, instructed Justice Ocampo to make representations with authorities concerned so that "nothing will disturb the free exercise of the right of suffrage this coming election." The President, in giving the directive, said, "I will not tolerate any acts that threaten to curtail the free exercise of the right to vote."

The President ordered the PC to mobilize its intelligence units to be sent to the different provinces to cheek on the activities of these "goons" so that proper counter-measures could! be adopted to insure a free, orderly, and honest election.

October 31.— PRESIDENT and Mrs. Garcia this morning gave a breakfast in Malacañang in honor of visiting U.S. Agriculture Secretary and Mrs. Orville Freeman.

Secretary Freeman and his party arrived in Manila Sunday on a tour to survey the food situation in different countries for the U.S. government,

Secretary Freeman said that it was not proper to say there exists a surplus of foodstuffs in the United States or anywhere else while want and suffering exists in other countries.

The President lauded the deep concern and benevolent attitude of the American people; and government towards the poor and under-privileged in foreign countries.

He said this was one of the best means of eradicating communism and keeping the world safe and secure for all free peoples.

Secretary Freeman was given a fill-in on the needs of the Philippines to increase production, such as irrigation and fertilizers, by Agriculture Secretary Jose C. Locsin.

Before leaving the Philippines this afternoon, the Freemans also visited the U.P. Agriculture College and the Rice Institute in Los Baños sponsored by the Rockefeller Foundation.

Present at the breakfast, besides the President and the Freemans, were U.S. Ambassador John D. Hickerson, Secretary Locsin, Minister Manuel G. Zamora, Mrs. Dorothy Jacobson, and Rod Leonard of the Freeman entourage.

The President today postponed his departure for Talibon, Bohol, from 10 a.m. to 12 midnight in order to work on pending state papers and receive callers.

After the breakfast tendered by the President and First Lady at Malacañang this morning, the President inducted into the Nacionalista Party, Los Baños Mayor Genaro Catalan (Ind.), who pledged to work for the victory of the Nacionalista Party in November.

Mayor Catalan was accompanied to Malacañang by Wenceslao Nocom, his former campaign manager.

The President also received Mrs. Maria Padilla, mother of the late Moises Padilla, who had been killed in the 1949 elections in Magallon, Occidental Negros.

Mrs. Padilla reported steady progress in her campaign for the Nacionalista Party in the Bicol region and assured the President that the Nacionalista Party is strong there.

The President later also received Reparations Commission Chairman Rodolfo Maslog, Commissioners Juan Alberto and Gregorio Abad, and Reparations Commission Executive Secretary Mauricio Bas, who consulted him on reparations matters, particularly the sixth year schedule already agreed upon between the Philippines and the Japanese governments.

President Garcia's re-election bid in the coming November election was further bolstered today with a pledge of support from Alfredo Lamen, an independent candidate for Congress in the third district of Mountain Province.

Lamen, who was accompanied to Malacañang by Mayors Jaime Quirino of Tabuk and Juan Madriaga of Pudtol, Apayao, Mountain Province, made his pledge of support for the entire Nacionalista Party slate in the presence of Justice Buenaventura Ocampo, PCAPE chairman; Sergio F. Toca, Presidential Task Force director; and Inspector Rosalino Abaya, PCAPE acting chief investigatory

After breakfast the President j chatted with newsmen and stated he was not taking along other Nationalists candidates with him this time, as they had already "given a vote of confidence and victory."

President Garcia discussed with newsmen his own election assessment. He claimed he will win with plurality of from 700,000 to 800,000 votes and will be able to carry Sen. Gil J. Puyat, his running mate. President Garcia said Puyat will beat his Liberal party rival by 200,000 votes.

The Chief Executive, after the impromptu press conference, retired to the presidential suite where he went over state papers. Other passengers aboard played parlor games, including mahjong, poker, and blackjack.

The Lapu-Lapu is expected to steam into Talibon at 6 a.m. tomorrow in time for breakfast at the Garcia home there.

The President will visit the cemetery where his parents are buried. He will sail for Tagbilaran after visiting the tombs of his parents.

November 2.—PRESIDENT Garcia paid homage at the tomb of his parents in Talibon, Bohol, today.

The Chief Executive arrived 8 a.m. today in the small fishing town of Talibon at the northernmost coastal of Bohol, in time for All Saints' Day. He laid a wreath and placed lighted candles at the graves of his beloved forbears.

President Garcia always returns to his native town of Talibon at this time of the year to visit the tombs of his beloved parents. The only time he missed his annual visit was in 1955.

Then Vice-President and concurrently Foreign Affairs Secretary, he headed a Philippine delegation to an international conference.

The President's father, Policronio Garcia, died in 1947 at the age 80 when his son was still a senator. His mother, Ambrosia Polistico, passed away in 1932 at the age of 60 when her son was still provincial governor.

Their remains were interred one over the other in a single tomb some four feet above the ground. The; grave looks drab, unpainted, and with no markings whatsoever to identify illustrious occupants.

Accompanied by Mrs. Garcia, the President was met on his arrival aboard the RPS Lapu-Lapu by a large crowd of townspeople. Headed by Gov. Esteban Bernido, Rep. Maximino Garcia, and other local officials, the welcomers gathered at the wharf to greet the famous son of Talibon.

The President and the First Lady proceeded to the town church for Te Deum. They then had breakfast in the Talibon residence of Rep. Garcia.

At 10 a.m. the first couple motored to the old cemetery, a few kilometers outside the town, on a grassy land among coconut grooves.

Surrounded by his close relatives, young and old, the President tarried around the scenic cemetery to honor the dead. This is one of the rare occasions that he can rest from his strenuous campaign schedule.

The RPS Lapu-Lapu pulled out about 2 p.m. for Tagbilaran, where the President will spend his 65th birthday on Saturday, November 4.

The President is scheduled to return to Manila on Monday after holding three public rallies in three towns, one in each of the three congressional districts of Bohol.

November 3.—PRESIDENT Garcia had a very busy day today as hundreds of wellwishers flocked to his residence.

Well-wishers have been coming to felicitate him on his natal day tomorrow, and to wish him poll victory on November 14.

On the eve of his 65th birthday the Chief Executive began receiving messages of congratulations from Mends and admirers all over the country.

The President's callers were swelled by provincial and municipal officials who came to discuss official matters, and political leaders who briefed him on political situations in their respective localities.

President and Mrs. Garcia woke up early and. went to the cathedral to hear mass at 8:00 a.m. After mass they went home to have breakfast and to receive callers.

Among those who called on the President were Jose Briones, national director, Municipal Mayors' League of the Philippines, who saw the President to ask for a Manila site for the League's headquarters.

The President held a conference at 5 p.m. with provincial and municipal officials at the Governor's home. In the evening he was given an asalto by local teachers and provincial and municipal officials and their ladies.

At 8:00 a.m. tomorrow the first couple will hear mass at the cathedral, and later, entertain friends and well-wishers at a luncheon in their residence.

The President will start at 2: 00 p.m. tomorrow for Jagna in the third district, then proceed to Loboc in the second district. He will address loyalty rallies in those places. From Loboc the President will return to Tagbilaran to attend a huge rally at 10:00 p.m.

November 4.—PRESIDENT Garcia dedicated the rest of his life to the service of the nation as he turned 85 years today.

Speaking to hundreds of well-wishers who called at his Tagbilaran residence to felicitate him on his birthday, the President called for a program based on faith, hope, and love as foundations of strong and enduring Republic.

The Chief Executive emphasized to friends that in all his 37 years of public service he' has always kept service to the nation as his motto, and will continue to do so as long as the Filipino people repose their trust and confidence in him

Apparently unfazed by the reported withdrawal of Sen. Rogelio de la Rosa in favor of Vice-President Diosdado Macapagal, the President appeared in high spirits and excellent health as he and the First Lady received friends and well-wishers this morning.

At 8:00 a.m. the first couple heard mass and received communion at the Tagbilaran cathedral.

Former Executive Secretary and Mrs. Natalio Castillo, Agriculture Undersecretary and Mrs. Salvador Cunanan, Bishop Manuel Mascarinas of Tagbilaran and Marcelino Gacay of the Department of Agriculture and Natural Resources were among the host of others that heard mass with the first family.

After mass the President returned to his residence, had breakfast with close relatives and friends, and received a long stream of callers. Among those who came to greet the President were Gov. Esteban Bernido of Bohol, Constantino Navarro of Surigao and Francisco Remotigue of Cebu; Tagbilaran Mayor Venancio Inting; Gens. Manuel Cabal, Isagani Campo, Alfredo Santos, and Ricardo Papa; and provincial and municipal officials.

During a program where strains of "Happy Birthday" were repeatedly sung, the President received renewed pledges of loyalty from the generals as their commander-in-chief, as well as assurances of a free, clean, and honest elections. In like manner local officials and leaders renewed their pledges of support and promises of victory in November.

President and Mrs. Garcia entertained friends at a luncheon. After a brief rest the President motored to Jagna in the third district of Bohol then to Loboc in the second district and finally in Tagbilaran in the first district where he addressed loyalty rallies.

President Garcia said today that Senator Rogelio de la Rosa's withdrawal improved his chances of winning the elections.

Commenting on press reports on Sen. De la Rosa's move, President Garcia told newsmen today, "If the reported withdrawal and horse trading are true, it will only drive De la Rosa's men away from the Liberal Party. It can even improve my chances".

The Chief Executive expressed confidence that the withdrawal will not adversely affect his candidacy. If that is true, the President said, then Senator De la Rosa has destroyed and sold himself down the river.

The President today patched up differences between reelectionist Congressman Bartolome Cabangbang and Jose Zafra in the second district of Bohol. The President did so to avoid further possible bloodshed between sympathizers of both candidates.

The Chief Executive also directed the Philippine Constabulary to disarm and disband personal bodyguards of both candidates. He told Cabangbang and Zafra to be extra careful for the reason that whatever happens in Bohol would be a reflection on him.

Cabangbang and Zafra dramatically embraced each other as a sign of forgetting personal differences. Both pledged to conduct their respective poll campaigns devoid of personal attacks.

The President will fly on a commando sortie to Mindanao tomorrow. He is expected in Manila on November 8. The First Lady will return on board the RPS Lapu-Lapu and arrive in Manila as scheduled.

Arriving unannounced, President Garcia immediately plunged into a series of conferences with party leaders. No details of the conferences were released by Press Secretary Jose C. Nable.

Traveling with the President are Secretary Nable, presidential aides Lcdr. Melchor Fronda and Gerry Palaypay, and Dr. Valentin Fidelino, personal physician.

The Chief Executive took off from his home province, Tagbilaran, Bohol, where he celebrated his 65th birth anniversary yesterday, to consolidate his forces in Mindanao. He arrived in Cagayan de Oro City unannounced although there were reports he was coming here.

Rep. Fausto Dugenio of Cagayan de Oro province met the President and assured him that the withdrawal of Sen. De la Rosa from the race would help the efforts of the Nacionalista Party.

Dugenio predicted that the De la Rosa followers may drift towards the Nacionalista ticket.

President Garcia has scheduled a series of political sorties to "weak" spots in Mindanao in order to consolidate his position in that area.

November 6.—PRESIDENT Garcia today plunged into mere conferences with Nacionalista leaders of Mindanao who came to Cagayan de Oro City after reading news reports that the Chief Executive had flown there yesterday.

The President discussed the political situation with the NP leaders, including the effects of the withdrawal of Sen. Rogelio de la Rosa from the presidential race in favor of Liberal Party presidential candidate Diosdado Macapagal.

An obvious offshoot of De la Rosa's withdrawal was the defection of a disillusioned coordinator of the former movie actor, Norberto Comendador.

Comendador, Identified by Malacañang as chief coordinator of Sen. De la Rosa in Bukidnon, was sworn into the Nacionalista Party by President Garcia.

At the same time, the President today issued a strong statement denouncing De la Rosa's withdrawal from the presidential race in order to favor Vice-President Macapagal.

He recounted De la Rosa's attacks against Macapagal when the former was still running for the presidency as an independent candidate.

The President today abolished all investigating committees on veterans' pension throughout the country.

In ordering the abolition of the veterans' pension committees, the President, in an executive order, said that the Philippine Veterans' Administration (PVA) was constituted with the sole function of handling all veterans' affairs.

In presenting the resolution, Benigno assured the President that the Youth of the land would vote for the Chief Executive because "you stand for liberalism and progress in contrast with Vice-President Macapagal's narrow and bigoted views on government and democracy."

The President, after expressing gratitude to the delegation, reiterated his appeal for a clean and orderly election and counselled the Yulo group to conduct their homestretch campaign on a high level.

At the same time the Chief Executive said that with ex-Speaker Yulo and Benigno's followers' support, his (Garcia's) victory this election was made more certain.

Leaders of the Lubao, Pampanga, delegation which pledged support for President Garcia at an indignation rally in Malacañang yesterday reiterated their pledge of support today and added that the statement of Lubao Mayor Dominador Danan denying that bonafide Lubao residents took part in the rally was all "lies."

The leaders of the delegation returned to Malacañang today to refute the denial of the Lubao mayor. Ex-councilor Francisco Guinto and Guillermo Turla, both of Lubao, who were among the delegation leaders, said that all the 71 busses, which were used by the delegation, were filled up in Lubao by bonafide residents of the town who were enthusiastic to join the denunciation rally.

Although the President was optimistic of topping Vice-President Diosdado Macapagal, Liberal Party presidential candidate, in the Bicol regions, it was believed that the Chief Executive will find rough sailing in some Bicol provinces.

The President has devoted the last four days before election day to political conferences to resolve conflicts and step up follow-up campaigns to be able to crystallize pledges of support into votes on Election Day.

The President failed to return to Manila last night to fulfill an engagement at the miting de avance on Plaza Miranda.

At press time last night, the President was still reported in the midst of political conferences in Naga City. Aytona had asked the President to visit Bicolandia anew in order to strengthen his political forces there.

In an unscheduled press conference before breakfast this morning in his home, President Garcia was optimistic about his victory which he forecast to be from the minimum majority of Macapagal.

In Bohol alone, Garcia said he expected to snow under Macapagal by at least 100,000 majority votes.

After voting President Garcia motored to Loon, last town in Bohol's first congressional district.

He expects to stay there overnight to await early poll returns from Mindanao and the Visayas, stating that Tagbilaran is the center of communications for both regions.

The President was up at six o'clock this morning after a restful night, the first good rest he has had since the start of his hectic campaign. He went over poll predictions and reports sent to him by all congressional aspirants before retiring shortly before midnight.

The President, after visiting several polling places in Tagbilaran and several others in the first district of Bohol, expressed satisfaction over the peaceful and orderly manner in which the people exercised their right of suffrage.

The President on the other hand motored to Calape, some 42 kilometers away, passing through the towns of Cortes, Maribojoc, La Paz, and Loon.

At Maribojoc the President received assurances from Mayor Jacinto Robillar that even the Liberals are voting for him and that Macapagal will get zero in some precincts. There he also met with NARIC Manager Jose V. Rodriguez, who briefed him on the Cebu political situation.

He was to have sailed for the capital city aboard the presidential yacht RPS Lapu-Lapu this afternoon en route to Baguio for a much-needed post-election rest.

A spokesman said the Chief Executive remained composed and went about his chores unperturbed by reports giving his opponent, Vice-President Diosdado Macapagal, a wide lead in the unofficial tally of votes cast for presidential candidates.

In the afternoon the President received Rep. Bartolome Cabangbang, victorious NP reelectionist candidate in the second district, who informed him of his plan to seek an investigation by the Commission on Elections of alleged discrepancies in the tabulation of votes cast for presidential and vice-presidential candidates by "Operations Quick Count."

The OQC tally, according to Cabangbang, reflected a difference of 350,000 votes between the sum totals of votes cast for presidential candidates on one hand, and vice-presidential bets, on the other.

November 16.—PRESIDENT Garcia returned to Manila late last night after a night flight from Tagbilaran, Bohol.

With the President were Drs. Antonio Guytingco and Valentin Fidelino, Rep. Bartolome C. Cabangbang, Major Jose Estrella, presidential aide, and Major Abdinago Ortiz, chief of the presidential security.

President Garcia literally "slipped" out of Tagbilaran, where he voted last Tuesday and stayed there for two days to await early returns. He left for Manila in order to be able to check on election figures following discovery of an alleged discrepancy in the returns of the Operations Quick Count.

Mrs. Leonila D. Garcia Stayed behind, but left for Manila this morning aboard the presidential FokkerFriendship plane.

The presidential yacht Lapu-Lapu, which took the First Lady and Manila newsmen to Tagbilaran, was virtually deserted and sailed practically without any passenger to Manila yesterday afternoon.

In Manila, Malacañang imposed a blackout on the activities of the Chief Executive. He was reported to have motored to the Manila South Cemetery to pay tribute to the late President Quirino in connection with the latter's birth anniversary.

Malacañang would neither confirm nor deny this report. The Malacañang press office said that k "complete blackout" has been thrown around the President's activities.

Other sources, however, said the President conferred with Senate President Eulogio Rodriguez and Senator Gil J. Puyat, NP vice-presidential candidate. No report was also available on this conference.

President Garcia flew back to Tagbilaran this afternoon after a few hours stay in Manila.

Nable said that the president then decided to return to Tagbilaran where he will rest from the rigors of the campaign and await final election results.

President Garcia left unexpectedly for Tagbilaran aboard the Fokker presidential plane at 6 o'clock this afternoon. He took off unexpectedly with his aides, leaving Nable behind.

November 17.—PRESIDENT Garcia today rested in his bedroom at his private residence in Tagbilaran, Bohol.

He received some callers who listened with him to radio announcements on the tabulation of election returns.

During the noon hour, President Garcia huddled with Gov. Esteban Bernido, Rep. Bartolome C. Cabangbang, former Civil Aeronautics Administrator Urbano Caldoza, Pasay City Police Chief Basilio Pineda, Jose Bernaldez, and other political leaders in Bohol.

The President said he is resting in his home province while waiting for final election returns.

He fumed over reports that in his plane the other night which brought him to Tagbilaran were pallet boxes. He said the report was "crazy."

The President flew to Tagbilaran last night aboard the presidential Fokker Friendship plane. With him were Lcdr. Melchor Fronda, his naval aide, and other security officers.

In the morning the President closeted himself alone in his bedroom except for his naval aide and his presidential assistant, Leoncio Piquero, who took turns in bringing him the latest reports and messages on the election returns.

President Garcia dictated congratulatory messages to congressional winners like Rodolfo Ganzon of Iloilo City and Salidapa Pendatum of Cotabato.

November 18.—PRESIDENT Garcia returned to Manila at 10:30 this morning and surprised newsmen with an announcement he was not conceding the election of Vice-President Macapagal, his Liberal Party rival.

Everything was set for President Garcia's concession the previous day. Vice-President Macapagal had issued an embargoed statement for publication in such an event.

But when the President landed aboard the presidential Fokker Friendship plane he was surprised to find newsmen waiting for him at the Nichols Airbase.

He had always flown secretly to and from Tagbilaran, Bohol, and Manila.

The President told newsmen he was surprised to find them. "How are you boys?" he greeted them.

"How was the trip?" the newsmen countered.

The exchange of pleasantries finally developed into a planeside interview.

"I am not conceding," the President said.

Newsmen had expected him to acknowledge his defeat in the face of the big advantage piled up by Vice-President Macapagal in tabulations of the Operations Quick Count and of the Commission on Elections.

While his vice-presidential running mate had conceded not only his defeat but impliedly acknowledge Vice-President Macapagal's victory, the President was still in the thick of the fight.

He told newsmen that he was going to ask the Commission on Elections to tabulate the official returns and not the telegraphic reports of the board of inspectors.

He said he was seeking justice, adding that he was informed of discrepancy in the telegraphic reports of boards of inspectors and the actual returns of the board of canvassers.

With the President today were Gov. Esteban Bernido of Bohol, Rep. Bartolome C. Cabangbang, Niño Ramirez, Pasay City Police Chief Basilio Pineda, Lcdr. Melchor Fronda, and Dr. Antonio Guytingco.

President's Week in Review: November 19-25, 1961

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

November 19.—PRESIDENT Garcia stayed in Malacañang the whole day this day and received a few callers, friends whose hopes have been buoyed anew by the Chief Executive's fighting statement yesterday: "The fight is not yet over."

President Garcia, defeated by two unofficial counts, chatted with some friends, some Nacionalista leaders, who saw him in the Palace. He explained his views that he would not let down more than three million voters who had supported and voted for him with a concession of defeat on the basis of unofficial returns.

The President hit President-elect Macapagal for announcing his program of government even before he had conceded defeat and before the Commission on Elections had finished counting the official returns as certified to by the boards of inspectors.

Vice-President Macapagal had announced appointments to the Cabinet and even announced he would call Congress to a special session on January 2.

"Why is he (Macapagal) in a hurry?" the President asked his friends.

He previously branded Vice-President Macapagal's appointments and choice of men, including valets, "premature."

The President spent the day with the First Lady and his son-in-law, Fernando Campos, who had been reported to have lost but was also hoping to offset the votes of Rep. Justiniano S. Montano of Cavite.

November 20.—PRESIDENT Garcia this morning directed the Social Welfare Administration to rush relief goods to Butuan City families who had been rendered homeless following a ₱1 million fire that broke out yesterday in that city.

The Chief Executive issued the directive upon the receipt of report that at least four persons died, 14 business establishments razed to the ground, 25 families rendered homeless as a result of the two-hour conflagration.

SWA Administrator Amparo P. Villamor in compliance with the presidential directive immediately wired the Butuan City SWA agency to give the necessary assistance and instructed them to render a complete report on the extent of the damage so that the requirements of the 25 families could be determined as early as possible.

The President today followed a regular schedule at Malacañang and started receiving callers.

First caller was Per G. Stahl, president of the Lions International, who was accompanied by Judge Antonio Quirino, governor of Lions District 301-A; Mike Campos, president of the Manila Lions Club; and Mariano Miranda, chairman of Lions District 301-A.

A group of NP political leaders called on the President to point out certain "clerical errors" committed in the transmission of election returns.

Gov. Constantino Navarro and Rep. Reynaldo Honrado of Surigao del Sur told the President that, contrary to news items published in the metropolitan papers, the Chief Executive had won in their province by about 5,000 votes. In Surigao del Norte, both added, President Garcia also won by about the same margin.

The President also pointed out a glaring "clerical errors" committed in one precinct in Calamba, Laguna, where he was credited with only 10 votes but it was found out later that he won in the precinct.

He also underscored the discrepancy of about 14,000 votes in Iloilo which favored his political opponent, as well as the report he received from Rep. Dominador Tan of Leyte of a Garcia win in his district alone of about 18,000, but Comelec figures show he garnered a majority of only 8,000 votes.

Rep. Mercado of Bulacan also reported that in one precinct in Obando another “clerical error” was committed in favor of Macapagal.

President Garcia grieved over the accusation of the opposition that he has a plot to commit a fraud and change the official returns of the election in his favor.

He said: “My public record shows that I have never cheated in any election. If I have not yet conceded, it is because I am waiting for the actual canvass of the official election returns which will be done by the Commission on Elections a few days from now.

“I sincerely believe that telegraphic returns should not be the basis of an official proclamation by the Commission on Elections of the winner. It was invoked that Yulo conceded in 1957 on the basis of telegraphic returns. If he did, it is because he did not find any discrepancies in the telegraphic election returns because I conducted the elections in a very clean way. I repeat, I would rather go down in defeat than win in a fraudulent election. I wish this to be the attitude of the opposition.”

Other presidential callers were James E. Warner of the New York Herald-Tribune and Don Ludlow of the London Daily Mirror, who were accompanied by A. L. Valencia.

November 21.—PRESIDENT Garcia continued to be swamped the whole day today with reports throughout the country supporting the charge that glaring errors were committed in the reporting of presidential and vice-presidential election returns by telegraphic messages to the Commission on Elections.

Simultaneously, a Malacañang spokesman emphasized that President Garcia did not question the integrity and honor of the election commissioners.

The President pointed out that what had been sought by Malacañang was clarification of errors committed in the reporting of election returns by telegrams. Malicious and deliberate tampering of these messages to the Commission is possible, it was stated.

Presidential comments were based on reports appearing in afternoon papers quoting Commission officials as stating that tampering of telegrams to the Commission was impossible.

On the contrary, the President has every respect for the law, the spokesman emphasized. The President has never cheated nor even contemplated cheating in elections in his entire 36 years of public life, it was added.

What has been merely asked from the Commission is for that body to look into the glaring errors committed while reporting the election returns by telegrams to the Commission, it was stated.

President Garcia had earlier turned over for verification to the Commission conflicting poll reports in Malitbog, Leyte, Jagna, Bohol, and Cebu City which showed that he lost while the official count reported the President as having won.

This morning the President received Richard W. Reuter, executive director of the Cooperative for American Relief Everywhere, Inc. (CARE), who informed him that the community development program of the Philippine government is so effective that “CARE men learn a great deal here,”

Reuter, accompanied in his visit to Malacañang by Robert Linder, local CARE head, also reported on the development of the CARE school lunch program in the country which benefits approximately 3 million students in 23,000 schools in the country.

The President was informed that CARE representatives from six Asian countries are studying in Los Baños the community development course offered by the Presidential Assistant on Community Development.

Reuter expressed the conviction that what CARE personnel can learn here about community development can be of some major use in other Asian countries.

George F. Getty II, president of the Tidewater Oil Company, also called on the President. In his courtesy call, the Tidewater executive was accompanied by W. F. Hagans and C. H. Penson, managing director and public relations manager, respectively of the local Tidewater office.

November 22.—THIS evening the President welcomed the announcement by the Commission on Elections that it will start tabulating official election returns Friday and attempt, to complete the count in 10 days.

At the same time, the President received more reports from Nacionalista field men supporting the claim that errors had been committed in reporting election returns by telegraphic messages to the Commission on Elections and Operations Quick Count.

In hailing the announcement of the Commission on Elections for speedy count of election returns beginning Friday, President Garcia emphasized that this would serve to clarify the confusion that has caused by erroneous reporting by telegraphic messages.

President Garcia said it was the duty of all parties concerned to keep the entire people informed on the conduct of the elections just held.

He took occasion to reiterate his position that he has never doubted the integrity nor the honor of the election commissioners.

What was merely being sought was a clarification of the errors committed by telegraphic messages sent to the Commission on Elections and OQC, he said.

The President also disabused the public's mind from malicious insinuations by certain opposition quarters of alleged attempts by the NP to tamper with the official election returns.

He stressed that he never cheated in his 36 years in the public service nor in any election, and that the reason for his refusal to concede the victory of Vice-President Macapagal at this time was that he was waiting for the official final count of the Commission on Elections.

The President said his decision was influenced by the discovery of glaring discrepancies found in telegraphic messages to the Commission on Elections and to the OQC.

The President also received this evening the unconditional support of seven Manila councilors who called on him in Malacañang.

Councilors Gomez, Gatmaitan, Cruz, Yuseco, Remigio, Cabigao, and Alday told the President they would stay by him through thick and thin.

President Garcia today gave the green light to Ambassador Carlos P. Romulo to visit officially Taipei and South Korea.

Ambassador Romulo could not say his date of departure but revealed that his trip to Taipei was on a personal invitation by Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek and by Chairman Pak of the National Reconstruction Government of South Korea.

Romulo said both invitations extended to him were made in his capacity as former President of the United Nations General Assembly.

The President was closeted with Romulo for about half an hour.

November 23.—EARLY this morning President Garcia alerted the Social Welfare Administration in the wake of reports received from the Office of the President that heavy damage to life and property is expected as a result of the last typhoon.

The Chief Executive issued the alert order following an early conference with PCAPE Vice-Chairman Maximo Maceren, who briefed him on the extent of damages as gleaned from reports received from provincial executives that wired the committee for assistance.

The President also directed the SWA to give assistance to victims of a dawn fire in Gumaca, Quezon, which reportedly, razed 50 residential and commercial buildings, in the municipality.

Estimated loss was placed at ₱1 million with no casualty reported.

Malacañang announced today the new composition of the Board of Examiners which will conduct the medical examinations on November 29.

Appointed members of the new board were Drs. Jesus Delgado, Carmelo Jacinto, and Pablo Nañagas. They replaced Drs. Antonio Guytingco, Edgardo Caparas, and Cesar Filoteo, who had served for two years last November 17.

The reappointed members were Drs. Ricardo Juico, Valentin Fidelino, and Estelito Madrid.

Under the Medical Act of 1959, a member of the Board of Medical Examiners serves for a term of one year. He may be reappointed for a term of another year but may not serve more than two years.

This evening the President said the Nacionalista Party will not surrender to the Liberals under any terms and conditions.

With this statement, the Nacionalistas virtually slammed the door shut against the proposal made by the Liberals for an entente cordiale in both chambers of Congress.

The Nacionalistas will stand together and closely, the President stressed. This was a reiteration of party unity by the President.

Earlier, a caucus of NP congressmen rejected outright a proposal sponsored by the Liberals for an entente cordiale between the Nacionalista and Liberal solons in Congress.

In the same caucus the congressmen adopted the pose of acting as a party and not as individuals.

President Garcia said he was not attending a caucus of Nacionalista senators scheduled for this evening.

The Chief Executive also took occasion to reiterate his praise of the Commission on Elections' determination to start count on presidential and vice-presidential election returns, and try, to complete the count in 10 days.

President Garcia said this tally by the Commission should clear the confusion that has been raised among the people, Nacionalistas and Liberals alike, caused by errors committed in transmitting election returns through telegraphic messages to the Commission on Elections and Operations Quick Count.

He said the government machinery will cooperate fully with whatever needs the Commission may have in its forthcoming task.

November 24.—PRESIDENT Garcia today stayed in Malacañang where he received intimate friends and relatives who consulted him on political developments.

He insisted he was still awaiting the final canvass of the official poll returns by the Commission on Elections. He stated that “the fight is not yet over.”

The President stayed in Malacañang where he was in a better position to receive reports of developments at the Commission on Elections which started the canvassing of official election returns. He had previously disputed the authenticity of returns sent through the wire.

The poll body did not release its latest tabulations, but the President was hopeful that the final tabulation would show some disparity between the figures of the Operations Quick Count and those of the Comelec.

In his talks with his relatives the President asserted that whatever would be the outcome of the Comelec’s figures, he would seek to strengthen the Nacionalista Party and make it an effective political group. He said he would only concede his defeat if he is convinced by official figures as counted by the Comelec.

President Garcia also took occasion to hit President-elect Diosdado Macapagal for his pronouncements and program of government even before the Comelec has completed the tabulation of poll returns.

November 25.—FOR the second consecutive day President Garcia stayed in Malacañang working on state papers which had piled up since before the elections. He went over pending appointments in preparation for the go-signal to fill up existing vacancies in the judiciary and other positions in the government.

The Malacañang press office said that there were no listed callers of the President.

It was learned, however, that a congressional committee saw the President early this evening to transmit the decision of the NP solons for a special session.

Those who were reported to have seen the President were Speaker Daniel Z. Romualdez and Reps. Dominador Tan, Vicente Peralta, and Salipada Pendatun.

Other politicians were reported to have seen the Chief Executive and discussed with him the political developments, including possible accommodations of their proteges in some vacancies.

The President also took up the latest trends in the tabulation of official returns by the Commission on Elections.

Although the Comelec has not announced the results of their day-to-day countings, Malacañang men have been posted with the Commission to follow the official tabulations of electoral countings.

The President is banking on these tabulations on a final judgment of his political career.

From unofficial tabulations, the President appeared to have gotten the short end of the countings. However, the President said he had uncovered “clerical errors” which had tainted the authenticity of these tabulations.

The Chief Executive issued the directive owing to persistent reports that the death tolls in some provinces, particularly in Samar and Romblon, had reached alarming proportions.

The President wanted to find out what measures had already been adopted to check the spread of the disease and that steps need to be taken to insure its eventual eradication.

Early in the morning the Chief Executive went to Malacañang Golf Club where he played a foursome with his physicians, Drs. Antonio Guytingco and Valentin Fidelino, and Constancio Leuterio.

Then together with Mrs. Garcia daughter Linda Garcia Campos, and son-in-law Fernando Campos, the President heard mass at the Malacañang chapel.

The President had previously conferred with the Council of Leaders in a four-hour meeting in Malacañang but he failed to arrive at a definite decision on the matter. There were dissenting voices from some NP senators and congressmen which appeared to have wrecked the plans.

Press Secretary Jose C. Nable announced this evening the President's meeting with Speaker Romualdez. However, Nable did not divulge the subjects taken up at the conference. Nable speculated the President and Romualdez discussed further the special session plans and took up with the President the dissenting voices in the House of Representatives.

In view of this meeting with Speaker Romualdez, the President directed Chairman Jose C. Locsin of the National Economic Council to represent him at the Jose Rizal Centennial Congress which opened this day.

Before leaving for a medical check-up at the Veterans Memorial Hospital, Secretary Nable spiked reports the President conferred with Senate Majority Floor Leader Cipriano Primicias. Nable said the President met Romualdez alone today. He said the Chief Executive had already sounded out the views of the Senate majority floor leader last week.

This evening the President welcomed some 100 delegates to the First International Congress on Rizal and expressed gratitude for their interest in perpetuating the life and teachings of Dr. Jose Rizal.

The delegates, some 70 of them coming from 18 foreign countries, came to pay their respects to the Chief Executive at Malacañang.

They are attending the First International Congress on Rizal being held in Manila from December 1-8, 1961, as part of the Rizal Centennial celebration.

In expressing deep appreciation and gratitude for their interest in Rizal, the Chief Executive told the foreign delegates that he felt proud that the Filipino race had produced a son like Rizal whose thoughts, ideas, and ideals have produced things that contribute to a better civilization.

“He was a man whose life was dedicated to the service of his country, ever in search of freedom and liberty; a man who preached peace and whose ideas were for world understanding,” the President emphasized.

The Chief Executive was reported indisposed and on the advice of his physician, Dr. Antonio Guytingco, stayed in his bedroom after receiving the papal nuncio.

Many callers went to Malacañang to see the Chief Executive to talk him into calling a special session.

Many senators and congressmen were seen at Manila waiting for a chance to see the Chief Executive. Among them was reparations Commissioner Juan Alberto.

The callers were told the President was indisposed. Dr. Guytingco did not specify the President’s ailment.

December 6.—THE President stayed at the Palace the whole morning. It was learned from informed sources that the Chief Executive conferred with the Speaker Daniel Z. Romualdez. During the conference the President was reported to have said he was not appointing justices and judges during the remaining days of the year and would not call a special session of Congress.

The President was also quoted as saying that he was still optimistic the official returns of the Commission on Elections would tilt in his favor.

The evening the President presided over the second regular meeting of his Cabinet after the November 14 elections.

The President took up the proposed sale of the textile mill of the National Development Company which was stopped by a Manila court injunction.

Up to press time the President and the Cabinet had not yet arrived at a definite decision on the sale owing to the court decree restraining the NDC from disposing of its textile mills and the two adjoining lots.

This evening the President honored with a state dinner in Malacañang, United States Ambassador John D. Hickerson who is leaving tomorrow for home.

Ambassador Hickerson resigned as U.S. envoy to the Philippines shortly before the election raising speculations that it had something to do with the local polls.

Hickerson said that upon his return to the United States he will retire to private life. He has been in the U.S. foreign service as a career diplomat. He was a hold-over ambassador from the US Republican administration.

Among those invited were members of the diplomatic corps headed by Mons. Earlier the President played a game of billiards with his aide, Jose Vasquez. Malacañang said the President played a number of games and was steadily picking up in this sport.

Reps. Vicente Peralta of Sorsogon and Salipada Pendatun of Cotabato also called on the President and discussed political developments.

Official Week in Review: December 10 – December 16, 1961

December 10.—PRESIDENT Garcia spent this day quietly. In the morning he heard a Sunday mass at the Malacañang chapel with the members of his family.

After the mass the President had breakfast with the members of his family. He virtually lost his appetite when he was informed of a press report to the effect that he was preparing to concede his defeat.

Irrked by the news report, the President issued a statement to the press denying the story that he was conceding today.

“No amount of prodding will make me change my decision,” he said.

President Garcia explained that he was still waiting the results of the tabulation by the Commission on Elections of written poll returns.

In the afternoon the President sat down with Assistant Executive Secretary Edilberto B. Gallares and resumed working on pending state papers.

The Chief Executive indicated he wanted to clear his desk of the pile of pending stat papers before the end of the year.

December 11.—PRESIDENT Garcia was besieged by Nacionalista leaders from both the Senate and the House of Representatives the whole day today as excitement heightened over the joint session to be convoked tomorrow to canvass the returns in the presidential elections last November 14.

While Malacañang early yesterday did not identify the President’s callers, it was learned that Speaker Daniel Z. Romualdez headed the morning visitors.

Other House leaders who were seen to have entered the President’s room were Reps. Jose Aldeguer, Nicanor Yñiguez, Eladio Balite, and Emilio Cortez.

Senate Majority Floor Leader Cipriano Primicias was also reported to have conferred with the President.

No announcement was available from Malacañang on the topics taken at the meeting.

It was hinted, however, that the Congress leaders consulted the Chief Executive, who is the titular head of the NP, on the special joint session of Congress tomorrow to canvass the election returns and the possibility that President-elect Macapagal may be proclaimed.

In the afternoon the President met some NP senators at a merienda and discussed plans for the coming special joint session of Congress tomorrow.

Although no details were made available to the press at press time, it was learned that the President was being persuaded to concede his defeat.

As the conference was still being held at press time in the evening, Malacañang did not identify the senators who saw the Chief Executive.

The President today personally directed health department officials to rush vaccines and medical personnel to Lanao del Sur to counteract the reported outbreak of choleriform enteritis in the province.

The President acted immediately upon receiving reports from provincial officials of Lanao del Sur. Sen. Domocao Alonto also made personal representations with the Malacañang on the rushing of vaccines and medical personnel to the province.

The President placed the Philippine Air Force planes under the disposal of the health department to airlift the medicine and personnel.

December 12.—PRESIDENT Garcia spent the whole day today watching special session proceedings in Congress on television.

The Chief Executive had sent Congress a letter denouncing alleged irregularities in some 2,000 precincts which, he said, he vitiated the will of the people in the choice of their national officials.

The President also received some solons who consulted him anew on plans to scrutinize minutely the returns. Among those who saw the President was former Executive Secretary Natalio P. Castillo, who presented the case of the President before the congressional canvass committee.

Castillo informed the President on his 30-minute presentation of documents to substantiate President Garcia's charges that irregularities were committed in some precincts. The President appeared pleased with the progress of the special session proceedings.

President Garcia today presented a plaque to the William Howard Taft Memorial Association "as a token of affection" of the Filipino people to the late United States President and first Civil Governor of the Philippines "whose policy of administration was The Philippines for the Filipinos."

The plaque was presented by Acting Executive Secretary Edilberto B. Gallares to the late American President's son, Charles P. Taft, who is also the president of the Association.

In receiving the plaque, the younger Taft expressed appreciation of the "interest and concern of the Philippines in the services" of the American Civil Governor to the Filipino people, who also served as the president of the Second Philippine Commission.

According to young Taft, the plaque will be used as a historical marker on the house in Mt. Auburn, Cincinnati, where President Taft was born.

The Presidential Award was, likewise, conferred upon Aguinaldo, Jr., by the President "in recognition of his wholehearted cooperation in numerous operations and projects" designed to promote peace and order within the province.

The conferment of the award was made by Acting Executive Secretary Edilberto B. Gallares on behalf of President Garcia.

In his citation the President gratefully acknowledged Aguinaldo's "altruism, civic spirit, and personal dedication towards the promotion of the welfare of the masses in the rural areas as manifested by his desire to contribute what he could and to help in every way possible within his sphere of influence for the social uplift and progress of the community."

President during the awarding ceremony held at Malacañang this morning were the awardee's children Alice, Aquiles, and Consuelo; Col. Harry Lambert of the U.S. Army; Mr. & Mrs. Amando Mirasol; Counselor T. Hayasi of the Embassy of Japan; and Manuel Villarreal.

The President received today Susanta de Fonseka, Ceylonese minister. Malacañang said it was purely a courtesy visit.

The President also watched on televisions special session proceedings in Congress where his charges of election frauds delayed the proclamation of Vice-President Diosdado Macapagal as the President-elect.

This evening the President presided over the regular meeting of the Cabinet which took up routinary questions, including the proposed sale of government shares in the Manila Gas Corporation to the members of the Manila Gas Savings and Loan Association.

The President had previously endorsed in principle the sale of the government shares in the Manila Gas Corporation but the Cabinet withheld approval pending a study of the legal questions involved.

The President said he wanted to dispose of pending problems with the Cabinet before the end of the year.

December 14.—PRESIDENT Garcia received some callers this morning after a protracted battle challenging the validity of election returns which gave him the short end of the last presidential elections.

Malacañang did not identify the callers who saw the Chief Executive but it was hinted that they were political leaders known to be close to President Garcia.

The President virtually conceded his defeat by congratulating President-elect Diosdado Macapagal and Vice-President-elect Emmanuel Pelaez.

Following his message of congratulations, the President named the members of a presidential committee which will take charge of the inauguration of the President-elect and Vice-President-elect on December 30.

President Garcia today created a committee to take charge of the inauguration of the President-elect and Vice-President-elect of the Philippines to be held on December 30.

The Presidential committee is empowered to call upon any department, bureau, office, agency, or instrumentality of the Government for such assistance as it may need, and may create such sub-committees as may be needed for the purpose of discharging its functions.

Appointed to the committee are Finance Secretary Dominador Aytona and Sen. Ferdinand E. Marcos, co-chairman; Sen. Arturo M. Tolentino and Estanislao Fernandez, Budget Commissioner Faustino Sy-Changco, Fernando E. V. Sison, Reps. Vicente Peralta, and Gerardo Roxas, Mayor Arsenio H. Lacson, Tarlac Gov. Benigno Aquino, Jr., Acting Executive Secretary Edilberto B. Gallares, Amelito R. Mutuc, Press Secretary Jose C. Nable; and Rufino G. Hechanova, members; and Minister Manuel G. Zamora, member-secretary.

The committee shall meet at the call of either of the chairman.

Minister Zamora, committee secretary, announced that the inaugural committee will hold its first meeting at the Council of State room tomorrow at 10:00 a.m. to start preparations for the inaugural rites.

December 15.—PRESIDENT Garcia received a few callers and discussed with them the causes of his defeat in the last presidential elections.

The Chief Executive expressed bitterness over the fact that, although the majority of the Nacionalista congressional candidates won their political fights, he lost in their districts.

He believed he was junked by some NP congressional candidates in their respective campaigns. The President indicated he will retire from active political life after leaving Malacañang.

He sat down with acting Executive Secretary Edilberto B. Gallares and worked on pending state papers. President Garcia wanted to clear his desk before the end of the year.

In the evening the President received Gov. Conrado F. Estrella of Pangasinan and Rep.-elect Natalio P. Castillo.

The President discussed with the two political leaders his plans for retiring from active political life. He had previously turned down suggestions to head the party. He said the NP president should be a person in high position in the government so that he could lead the party effectively.

This evening the President appointed Finance Secretary Dominador Aytona as head of a group to represent the outgoing administration in the turnover of the executive department of the government to the incoming administration of President-elect Macapagal.

Press Secretary Jose C. Nable said that with this presidential action the Chief Executive assured a smooth turn over of the executive machinery of the government. It also assures continuity of service to the people and the country, Nable said.

President Garcia made the appointment of Secretary Aytona after he was told that President-elect Macapagal had earlier appointed Executive Secretary-designate Amelito Mutuc and former Labor Secretary Eleuterio Adevosos as heads of a task force to study the turn over of the executive department.

Secretary Aytona was instructed by the President to draw the membership of his group from the list of members composing the presidential inaugural committee.

President Garcia had instructed Secretary Aytona, as chairman of the presidential inaugural committee, to cooperate fully in the drafting of the inauguration program.

Let the representatives of President-elect Macapagal take the initiative in the planning because of the inauguration will be their show, the President said. Where we can help will be in cooperating fully with them, he added.

December 16.—PRESIDENT Garcia this morning received Commodore Jose V. Francisco, chief of the Philippine Navy at Malacañang.

The Navy chief called to say-goodbye to the President preparatory to turning over his command to Commodore Simeon M. Castro this afternoon. The President received the retiring PN chief after playing a round a golf with friends at Malacañang Gold Course.

Commodore Francisco, who is 52 years old, completes 36 years of service upon retirement.

President Garcia today personally directed the prosecution in court, before his retirement from the government service on December 30, of all persons involved in illegal disbursements committed through forgery.

Deeply shocked and angered by a report made by Col. Vicente Tiongson, Malacañang finance division chief, the President personally directed the National Bureau of Investigation to investigate the case.

Col. Tiongson told the President that the forged treasury warrants and checks were discovered some five days ago while Tiongson was in the process of clearing his desk and closing his account books for the current year. Tiongson said that he immediately started investigating the forgery cases.

Reacting sharply to the report, President Garcia directed that the culprits be made to pay the full penalty of the law. He emphasized he wanted this carried out before the end of the month.

Investigation so far conducted have pointed out to a group of personnel in the Accounting, Auditors Office, and Technical staff as being implicated in the forgery cases.

Definite suspects in the forgery cases have been singled out by government and Malacañang investigators. Their identities were withheld.

Col. Tiongson said that investigations and close check of books so far conducted led to the discovery of forged treasury warrants and checks in the amount of P150,000. He admitted the possibility that more cases of forgery may be discovered as the investigation progresses.

Tiongson said his signature were forged.

All pertinent papers, connected with the forgery cases have been locked up for safe keeping with the Provost Marshall's office. These will be the basis for the prosecution in court of the persons involved.
